

TALMUD

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH. ALL [PERSONS] ARE FIT TO EVALUATE OR TO BE MADE THE SUBJECTS OF VALUATION,¹ ARE FIT TO VOW² [ANOTHER'S WORTH] OR HAVE THEIR WORTH VOWED: — PRIESTS, LEVITES AND [ORDINARY] ISRAELITES, WOMEN AND SLAVES. PERSONS OF UNKNOWN³ SEX AND HERMAPHRODITES ARE FIT TO VOW [ANOTHER'S WORTH], OR TO HAVE THEIR WORTH VOWED, AND ARE FIT TO EVALUATE, BUT THEY ARE NOT FIT TO BE MADE THE SUBJECTS OF VALUATION, FOR THE SUBJECT OF VALUATION MAY BE ONLY A PERSON DEFINITELY EITHER MALE OR FEMALE.⁴ A DEAF-MUTE, AN IMBECILE, OR A MINOR⁵ ARE FIT TO HAVE THEIR WORTH VOWED OR BE MADE THE SUBJECT OF VALUATION, BUT THEY ARE NOT FIT TO MAKE EITHER A VOW [OF ANOTHER'S WORTH] OR TO EVALUATE, BECAUSE THEY HAVE NO MIND.

GEMARA. What does ALL [PERSONS] ARE FIT TO EVALUATE mean to include? — It is meant to include one close to manhood who must be examined.⁶ What does [ALL⁷ ARE] FIT TO BE MADE THE SUBJECTS OF VALUATION mean to include? — It is meant to include a person disfigured, or one afflicted with boils.⁸ For one might have assumed that since Scripture says: A vow according to thy valuation,⁹ that only such persons as are fit to be made the subjects of a vow [as regards their worth], are fit to be made subjects of a valuation, and that persons who are unfit to be made subjects of a vow [as regards their worth], are also unfit to be made subjects of a valuation, hence Scripture informs us: of persons.⁹ i.e., no matter who they be. What does [ALL PERSONS] ARE FIT TO VOW mean to include? — [The phrase ALL] is needed only for [the clause] 'are fit to have their worth vowed' — What is to be included [in the phrase ALL] ARE FIT TO HAVE THEIR WORTH VOWED? Is it to include persons of unknown sex or hermaphrodites — but they are expressly stated [in our Mishnah]! Again is it to include a deaf-mute, an imbecile and a minor — they too are expressly stated! And if it is to include a person below the age of one month — that too is expressly mentioned!¹⁰ And again if it is to include an idolater — he too is expressly mentioned!¹¹ — In reality it is meant to include a person below the age of one month; and the Mishnah states it [by implication] and later on expressly mentions it.¹²

What does 'All persons are obliged to lay on hands' mean to include?¹³ — It is meant to include the heir, and this against the view of R. Judah.¹⁴ What does 'All persons can effect a substitute'¹⁵ mean to include? — That, too, means to include the heir, in contrast to the view of R. Judah. For it was taught: An heir must lay on hands, an heir can effect a substitute. R. Judah says: An heir does not lay on hands, and an heir cannot effect a substitute. What is the reason of R. Judah's view? — [Scripture says:] His offering,¹⁶ i.e., but not his father's offering. And he infers the rule concerning the commencement of the dedication of the animal from the rule governing its end. Just as at the end of the dedication the heir does not lay on hands, thus also at the beginning¹⁷ he cannot effect a substitute. And the Rabbis? — [Scripture says redundantly:] And if he shall at all change — that included the heir. And we infer the rule concerning the end of the dedication from the rule governing the commencement of the dedication. Just as at the beginning of the dedication the heir has power to effect a substitute, so at the end is he obliged to lay his hands on the animal's head.¹⁸ But what do the Rabbis do with 'his offering'? [They interpret:] 'his offering', but not the offering of an idolater; 'his offering', but not the offering of his neighbour; 'his offering' i.e., to include all who have a share¹⁹ in the ownership of a sacrifice in the duty to lay on hands. And R. Judah?²⁰ — He does not hold that all who have a share in the ownership share the obligation of laying hands thereon; or, indeed, if he should hold so

(1) Lev. XXVII, 1f fixes the value of the person dedicated to the sanctuary, this value depending only on the age of the person dedicated. Hence, if someone uses the formula: Erek peloni 'alay. i.e., the valuation of So-and-so be upon me (to pay to the sanctuary). he must make payment in accord with the valuation fixed in Lev. XXVII, independent of the person's physical or mental condition. Thus e.g., the valuation fixed there for a man of the age of between twenty and sixty, is fifty shekels.

(2) But if he said: Deme peloni 'alay, i.e., the equivalent of the market value of So-and-so be upon me (to pay to the sanctuary), he has made a vow and he must pay the amount which that person would fetch, if sold on the slave market. In this case the deciding factor would be not age, but physical and mental condition.

(3) Tumtum; lit., 'one hidden, stopped up'. i.e., a person whose genitalia are covered by a skin, hence one of unknown sex.

(4) Scripture refers (ibid.) to 'male' and 'female', but persons whose sex cannot be determined are excluded from the valuation.

(5) A boy under the age of thirteen, a girl under the age of twelve years.

(6) Mufla' from the root meaning, to make clear, to examine, hence 'one to be examined' as to the purpose for which he made the valuation. Above the age of thirteen such knowledge is taken for granted. Below the age of twelve it is assumed to be absent. During the period from twelve to thirteen the boy is to be subject to questioning. If the examination establishes his knowledge of the purpose of the dedication, his dedication is considered valid, and renders payment obligatory. Otherwise no significance is to be attached during that period to his utterance of the formula: Erek peloni 'alay.

(7) The first word of the Mishnah ALL is assumed to apply to the four cases enumerated. This word does not seem necessary, the Mishnah might have stated e.g., Priests, Levites and Israelites are fit etc. The additional ALL hence is assumed by the questioner to have implied the inclusion of persons whom, without this inclusion, one might have excluded. Hence the series of questions establishing the identity of the persons included in each case. This discussion leads to the consideration of other passages throughout the Mishnah, in which the word 'all' occurs, and to an explanation of who is included in each statement.

(8) Lev. XXVII, 2.

(9) A person disfigured, or afflicted with boils would fetch no price at all on the market place. In the expression A vow according to thy valuation, one might have inferred from this juxtaposition, that a certain fundamental agreement prevailed between cases of vow (of one's worth) and of valuation, and that therefore a person unfit to have his worth vowed (because a vow was redeemable by payment of the market value, which did not exist in the case of a disfigured person) would be unfit to be made the subject of a valuation. But this inference is cancelled by another Biblical phrase, which indicates that what is required is but 'persons', independent of their physical condition: When a man shall clearly utter a vow of persons (ibid.).

(10) V. infra 5a.

(11) Ibid. 5b.

(12) By the redundant ALL, which obviously includes some person or persons, which but for this all-inclusive term, would have been excluded. The particular reason why this case rather than any other of the four here dealt with is included here Rashi finds in the fact that it is the only one concerning which a controversy exists (infra 5a), whence the statement here by implication is of importance in teaching that even the Rabbis who hold that one who is less than a month cannot be subject to evaluation, nevertheless agree that he can have his worth vowed.

(13) The Gemara proceeds now to discuss all other cases in which a redundant 'all' is to convey some inclusion in the principle of other persons. The laying on of the hands on the head of the animal to be sacrificed conveyed the sense of ownership. It was a duty, hence a question arises in the case of several partners, or in the case of proxy.

(14) R. Judah denied this obligation to an heir. Lev. I, 3 reads: If his be a burnt-offering . . . he shall lay his hand upon the head. This, R. Judah argues, expressly limits the duty of laying the hand to the man who offered it, not to his heir, who is freed from his obligation.

(15) Lev. XXVII, 10: He shall not alter it, nor change it, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good; and If he shall at all change beast for beast, then both it and that for which it is changed shall be holy. The dispute concerns only the case of an heir in respect of an offering dedicated by his father but all agree that an exchange made by anyone besides the original owner of the sacrifice would have no effect at all, the first animal remaining sacred, the second not being affected by the unauthorized attempt at exchange.

(16) Lev. III ,2, 7 and 13 in connection with the laying on of hands in the case of peace-offerings. V. Rashi and Tosaf. a.l.

(17) First an animal is separated for the purpose of being offered on the altar. That is the commencement of its sanctification. At the end, just before the slaying of the animal, the owner lays his hand on its head. R. Judah infers from the regulations at the end, viz., the prohibition for anyone but the owner to lay hands on the head, the inefficacy of the change at the beginning, i.e., his intended exchange has no effect on the animal he wanted to substitute.

(18) The Sages infer from the redundant 'shall at all change' that even another may effect the substitute and argue from the beginning of the sanctification to the end, hence permit an heir to lay hands on the animal.

(19) The phrase 'his offering' occurs three times in Lev. III, viz., vv. 2, 7 and 13, and while two of these expressions have a limiting sense, one has an inclusive meaning, just as 'his' implies ownership, so must anyone who has a claim to ownership lay his hands on the animal's head. Therefore, every member of a group who offer the animal together must perform the laying on of hands.

(20) Since R. Judah would interpret 'his offering' in each case in an exclusive sense, how could he derive the obligation of the laying on of hands on the part of anyone who shares in it-for which an inclusive interpretation is necessary?

he would infer [the exclusion of] idolater and neighbour from one passage,¹ so that two more would remain redundant, from one of which he would infer that 'his offering' means 'but not that of his father', and from the other that all who have a share in the ownership of a sacrifice are obliged to perform the laying on of hands. But what does R. Judah do with 'If he shall at all change'? — He needs that to include woman,² for it was taught: Since all this chapter is couched in masculine gender, what brings us eventually to include woman? The text stated: 'If he shall at all change'.³ But [whence do] the Sages [infer this]? — From the [redundant] 'And if'. And R. Judah? — He does not interpret 'And if'.⁴

What does 'All persons are obliged⁵ to observe [the laws concerning] the booth' mean to include? — That is meant to include a minor that no more needs his mother,⁶ for we have learnt: A minor that no more needs his mother is obliged to observe the laws concerning the booth.⁷ What does 'All are obliged to observe the law of the lulab'⁸ mean to include? — That includes a minor who knows how to shake the lulab, for we learnt: A minor who knows how to shake⁹ the lulab is obliged to observe [the laws of] the lulab.¹⁰ What does 'All are obliged to observe the [law of] the fringes' include? — That includes the minor who knows how to wrap himself, for it was taught: A minor who knows how to wrap himself [into the tallith]¹¹ is obliged to observe the law of the fringes. What does 'All are obliged to observe the rules concerning the tefillin' include? — That includes a minor who knows how to take care of the tefillin, for it was taught: If a minor knows how to take care of the tefillin,¹² his father buys tefillin for him. What does 'All are obliged to appear' include?¹³ — It is meant to include one who is half¹⁴ slave and half freedman. According, however, to Rabina, who holds that one who is half slave and half freed is free from the obligation to appear, [the word 'All'] is meant to include one who was lame¹⁵ on the first day of the festival and became normal again on the second day. That would be right according to the view that all the days of the festival may make up for each other. But according to the view that they all are but making up for the first day, what will 'All' come to include?¹⁶ — It will include one blind in one of his eyes. This [answer] is not in accord with the following Tanna, for it was taught:¹⁷ Johanan b. Dahabai said in the name of R. Judah: One blind in one eye is free from the obligation to appear, for it is said:¹⁸ Yir'eh-yera'eh [he shall see — he shall appear] i.e., just as He is present to see [the comer], so shall He be seen, just as His sight is complete,¹⁹ so shall the sight of him who appears be intact.¹⁹ Or, if you like, say this: In truth it is meant to include one who is half slave and half freed man, and if the view of Rabina should appear as the difficulty, this is no difficulty either; the first view is in accord with the former Mishnah, the second with the later Mishnah. For we learnt:²⁰ One who is half slave and half freed man shall serve himself one day and his master the other — thus Beth Hillel. Said Beth Shammai to them: You took care of the interests of his master, but you have done nothing [thereby] on his behalf. For he is unable to marry either a female slave or free woman. Shall he do without marriage? But the world was created only for propagation of the species, as it is said: He created it not a waste. He formed it to be inhabited.²¹ Rather, for the sake of the social welfare we force his master to set him free, and the slave writes out a document of indebtedness covering the other half of his value. Beth Hillel retracted and taught as Beth Shammai.²² What does 'All are obliged to sound the shofar'²³ mean to include? — That includes a minor who has reached the age of training, for we learnt: One does not prevent a minor from blowing the shofar on the festival.²⁴ 'All are obliged to read the scroll'.²⁵ 'All are fit to read the scroll'. What are these meant to include? —

(1) The word 'his' could exclude both the fellow-Jew and the idolater, since the Scriptural 'his sacrifice' logically excludes both.

(2) That a woman can effect a substitute in her offering.

(3) Lit., 'if change he shall change' the emphasis is inclusive.

(4) He does not ascribe to that word the implications attributed to it by the Sages. About the limits of such interpretation and the basic suggestions implied in disputes thereon v. D. Hoffman, Leviticus I, 9f.

(5) The Gemara proceeds now to a systematic examination of all cases in which the word 'all' is used. Unless it can be proved that in each case that word includes something normally excluded, the argument, or rather the first question posed on 2a will be invalidated.

(6) A child which (Suk. 28b) on awakening no more calls out 'Mother!' but attends to his needs, dresses himself, etc.

(7) Suk. 28a.

(8) The palm-branch forming with citron, myrtle and willow, the cluster taken during the Feast of Tabernacles (v. Lev. XXIII, 40) is every day waved in every direction to symbolize the omnipresence of God.

(9) The lulab is waved in the four main directions: south, north, west and east, and there are some details as to the position of the components of the cluster, which are known to the worshipper, so that he may follow the cantor's lead.

(10) Suk. 42a.

(11) The prayer shawl at the four corners of which the fringes are attached, and into which one wraps oneself, 'in order to remember the commandments of the Lord'. The wrapping must be performed in a special manner, v. M.K. 24a.

(12) Commonly called phylacteries. The attachment, leather box and leather strap, each on left arm and forehead, containing the Shema' and other extracts from the Torah, originally worn all day, now only at the morning prayer.

(13) Ex. XXIII, 17: Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the Lord God. The Scriptural text is all-inclusive, hence the Mishnaic 'All' must deal with a case which, but for its redundant 'all', one would have excluded from the obligation to appear.

(14) A full slave is free because 'before the Lord God' is interpreted to mean: only those who have but one Lord or Master, i.e., excluding the slave, who has a terrestrial master in addition to the Eternal Lord to serve. If owned by two masters, one of whom frees him, the slave becomes half freed, and stays half slave.

(15) The word regel in Hebrew may mean either 'foot' or 'festival' (on the three festivals the men 'footed' it to Jerusalem). Hence the inference that only those who could foot it normally are obliged to appear on these three festivals, which excludes a lame man.

(16) There are two views as to the statement of the Mishnah (Hag. 9a: One who has made no offering on the first day of the feast must make up, or has the opportunity to make up for it, throughout the other days of the festival), the first holding that each day has its own obligation; hence even if the worshipper was unfit on the first day of the festival, provided he is fit on the next, he is not exempt on the other days per se imposing the obligation, whilst the other considers only the first day imposing the obligation of an offering. Consequently, if he was disqualified on the first day, or free of that obligation, he would be exempt a complementary offering. The practical difference, in our case, would be this: One who on the first day of the festival had been lame, hence not obliged to offer the festal sacrifices, would be free according to the second view, but according to the first, would be obliged to make the offering on one of the subsequent days of the festival.

(17) Hag. 2a.

(18) The massoretic text y-r-'-h may be accentuated to read either yir'eh (he will see) or yera'eh (he will be seen). The first reading applied to the Lord, the second to the Israelite appearing before Him, would be thus interpreted: Just as the Lord sees him 'with two eyes' i.e., with undisturbed vision, so shall the worshipper be one appearing with 'both eyes intact, i.e., with undiminished sight. For an alternative rendering v. Hag., Sonc. ed., p. 3. n. 3.

(19) Lit., 'with two eyes'.

(20) Hag., Sonc. ed., p. 3. n. 6.

(21) Isa. XLV, 18.

(22) V. Hag. 2b.

(23) The trumpet blown on the New Year, v. Lev. XXIII, 24.

(24) R.H. 32b. The source quoted does not seem to fit the 'inference made, for the answer postulates evidence that a minor is obliged to sound the shofar, whereas the reference quoted refers to the fact that one does not prevent a minor from sounding the horn, which allows for the possibility of his being neither obliged nor forbidden to sound it. There is a lacuna in the text which Tosaf. s.v. אין מעכבין supplies, from R.H. 33a, where such obligation is definitely stated.

(25) I.e., the Scroll of Esther read on the feast of Purim.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 3a

They are meant to include women, in accord with the view of R. Joshua b. Levi; for R. Joshua b. Levi said: Women are obliged to read the scroll because they, too, had a part in that miracle.¹ What does 'All are obliged to arrange zimmun'² mean to include? — It means to include women and slaves, for it was taught: Women are under the obligation of zimmun amongst themselves, and slaves are under the obligation of zimmun amongst themselves.³ What does 'All may be joined to a zimmun' mean to include? — That includes a minor who knows to Whom one pronounces a blessing, for R. Nahman said: One may arrange a zimmun with a minor who knows to Whom one pronounces a blessing.⁴ What does 'All defile by reason of their flux' include? — That includes a child one day old, for it was taught: [It could have said,] When a man [hath an issue out of his flesh].⁵ Why does the text state 'any man'? That is to include a child one day old, [teaching] that he defiles by reason of his flux; this is the view of R. Judah. R. Ishmael the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka says: [This inference] is not necessary, for behold, Scripture reads: And of them that have an Issue, whether it be a male or a female,⁶ i.e., once he is 'a male', however minor or major, once she is 'a female', whether minor or major.⁷ If so, why does the Torah use [the redundant phrase] 'any man'? The Torah speaks in the language of man.⁸ What does 'All are susceptible to be defiled by someone defiled through contact with a corpse'⁹ include? — That includes a minor. For one might have assumed that since Scripture reads: But the man that shall be unclean, and shall not purify himself,¹⁰ that means only [to] a man [does this law apply] but not to a minor, therefore it is said: And upon the souls [persons] that were there.¹¹ What then did 'man' come to exclude?¹² — It is meant to exclude a minor from the penalty of excision.¹³ What does 'All contract uncleanness by leprosy' include? — That includes a minor. For one would have taught: [Scripture reads:] A leprous man,¹⁴ that means only a man but not a minor, therefore we are taught [that a minor, too, is defiled when leprous]. But say perhaps: Thus, indeed?¹⁵ — [The text reads:] When adam [a man] shall have in the skin of his flesh,¹⁶ i.e., as long as it is [an adam].¹⁷ Then why the word 'man'? — This is in accord with what was taught: '[A leprous] man', thence I derive only the law as referring to a man, whence am I to infer it for woman? When it says: And the leper,¹⁸ that includes two. Why then does the text state, [A leprous] man'? That refers to [the matter referred to] later,¹⁹ [viz.,] only a [leprous] man lets the hair of his head go loose and rends his clothes, but a [leprous] woman does not let the hair of her head go loose, nor does she rend her clothes. What does 'All may inspect the signs of leprosy', 'All are fit to inspect the signs of leprosy' include?²⁰ — That includes one who is not familiar with them and their names. But did not a Master say that one unfamiliar with them and their names may not inspect leprous signs?²¹ Rabina said: This is no difficulty: One case speaks of one who understands them when they are explained, the other of one who, even when they are explained, does not understand them. What does 'All are fit to mix the ashes'²² include? According to R. Judah it includes a minor; In accord with the Sages it includes a woman, for we are taught: All are fit to mix the ashes except a deaf-mute, an imbecile or a minor. R. Judah considers a minor fit, but a woman and a hermaphrodite unfit. What does 'All are fit to sprinkle'²³ include? — That includes an uncircumcised²⁴ person In accord with the view of R. Eleazar; for R. Eleazar said: If an uncircumcised person sprinkled, his sprinkling is valid.

What does 'All are fit to slaughter ritually' include? — The first includes a Samaritan, the second a non-conforming Israelite.²⁵ What does 'All may compel to go up to the land of Israel' include?²⁶

- (12) Since all persons can defile, why the exclusive 'man'?
- (13) This passage refers to an unclean person entering the Sanctuary, the penalty for which offence is excision (by the hand of God). The word 'man' in the passage indicates that whereas any 'soul' (even a minor) can defile, only a man, i.e., an adult, incurs the penalty of death when in his unclean state he enters the Sanctuary.

That includes slaves.¹ But according to the one who teaches 'slaves' explicitly, what does it include? — That includes the case [when the husband moves] from a beautiful habitation [in the Diaspora] into a bad one [in the land of Israel]. What does 'All may compel to go up to Jerusalem' include?² It includes the case [of moving] from a beautiful habitation into a bad one.

'All are obliged to observe the laws concerning the booth even priests, Levites and Israelites'. But that³ is self-evident, for if they are not obliged, who is obliged? — The statement is necessary for the priests, for I would have thought, since Scripture says: Ye shall dwell in booths,⁴ and a Master said: 'Ye shall dwell' [means] 'in the same manner as you occupy your habitation', just as in the dwelling husband and wife are living together, so shall husband and wife live together in the booth, and since the priests are prevented by the [Temple] service,⁵ one would have assumed they are free from the obligation to dwell in the booth; we are therefore taught that though they are free at the time of the service, outside the time of the service they are definitely obliged [to observe the laws of the booth]; just as is the case with travellers; for a Master has said: those who travel by day are free from the obligation of the booth by day and are bound to it at night. 'All are obliged to observe the law concerning the fringes, even priests, Levites and Israelites'. But that is self-evident? — It is necessary because of the priests, for I would have thought, since it is written: Thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff . . . thou shalt make thee twisted cords,⁶ that only such persons as are bound by the prohibition of mingled stuff in their garments are obliged to make the twisted cords, as since to them [the wearing of mingled] stuff has been permitted,⁷ one might have thought that they would not be obliged to make themselves fringes, therefore we are informed that although that prohibition does not apply at the time of their service, it does apply outside that time of service.⁸

'All are obliged to observe the commandment of the tefillin, even priests, Levites and Israelites'. But that is self-evident? — It is necessary because of the priests. For I might have assumed that since it says: And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hands, and they shall be for frontlets between thine eyes,⁹ that only those to whom [the obligation to bind] upon the hand applies are bound to [bind upon] the head; but as to the priests [the obligation of the sign] upon the hand does not apply to them, as it is written: [And his linen garment, his linen breeches] shall he put upon his flesh,¹⁰ [which means] that nothing may intervene between them and his flesh,¹¹ one might say [the obligation of the sign upon] the head similarly does not apply to them, therefore we are informed that they are not indispensable one to another, as we learnt: The tefillin of the arm is not indispensable to the tefillin of the head, neither is the tefillin of the head indispensable to the tefillin of the arm.¹² But why shall it be different with the tefillin of the hand?¹³ [Evidently] because Scripture says: [And his linen garments] ... shall he put upon his flesh? But in connection with [the sign upon] the head it is similarly written: And thou shalt set the mitre upon his head?¹⁴ — It was taught: 'Between the plate and the mitre his hair was visible', at the place where he put his tefillin.¹⁵

'All are obliged to perform the commandment touching the horn, even priests, Levites and Israelites'. But that is self-evident? — For the sake of the priests is it necessary, for I might have assumed since it is written: It is a day of blowing the horn unto you,¹⁶ that only those who are obliged to sound the horn one day [a year] are obliged to do so on that day; the priests, however, since they are obliged to sound the horn throughout the year, as it is written: Ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt-offerings,¹⁷ one might have assumed to be free from that obligation. But these things are not similar. Here it is a case of the horn, there one of trumpets? — Still, the information is necessary, for I might have assumed, since we learnt¹⁸ that the Jubilee year is like the New Year with regard to the sounding of the horn and the benedictions, that therefore only he to whom the laws of the Jubilee year apply is obliged to perform the laws touching the New Year, but he to whom the laws of the Jubilee year do not apply, need not perform the laws touching the New Year, and since priests are not affected by the laws governing the Jubilee year, as we learnt:¹⁹ priests and Levites may sell at any time

(1) A circumcised Canaanite slave, whom his master must not sell outside the Holy Land, if the slave desires to be imported to Palestine. The master must either take him to the Holy Land or emancipate him outside thereof. Tosaf. s.v. לאתו.

(2) I.e., the husband can compel the wife to go up to the land of Israel even under such conditions.

(3) Here starts a new type of question, really a sub-question of the first. In the first the problem was to discover the case to be included because of the inclusive 'all'; in the following cases the redundant 'priests, Levites and Israelites' is to be accounted for. The law was given to Israel. Israel is divided into the three groups, Priests, Levites and (common, not levitical) Israelites. Why then the repetition? The answer in each case will have to show that for some particular reason one of the three classes might have been excluded, but for the repeated clause, which expressly includes them.

(4) Lev. XXIII, 42.

(5) Priests must be levitically pure when performing the service, whilst the act of conjugality would render them levitically impure.

(6) Deut. XXII, 11 and 12 are read together, and according to the principle that the proximity of passages in Deut. justified legalistic inference (Ber. 10a), they are assumed here to be interdependent.

(7) The girdle of the priests was of mingled stuff, linen and wool, v. Yeb. 4b in explanation of Ex. XXXIX, 29.

(11) Hence not the tefillin either since such binding would intervene between the priestly garment and the flesh.

(12) Men. 38a. The Mishnah means that the performance of the obligation of the sign upon head and arm respectively is not interdependent, i.e., failure to bind the sign upon the head does not render the binding upon the hand invalid, or superfluous. Although part of the same sign-symbolism, they represent two independent, individual acts.

(13) That priests are exempt from binding it on.

(14) Ex. XXIX, 6, so that the tefillin on the head would act as interposition between the head and the mitre.

(15) Hence the argument of the last note could not be made here, whilst the tefillin of the arm does interfere with the regulation that nothing shall intervene between the linen garment and the priest's flesh, the tefillin being placed upon the biceps of the left arm, tradition provides for a free space between plate (Ex. XXVIII, 36) and mitre, where the tefillin of the head had its legitimate place.

and redeem at any time, one might say that they are not affected by the laws governing the New Year either, therefore we are informed that although they are unaffected by the law of release of landed property, the law concerning the release of debts and the emancipation of slaves binds them at any rate.¹

‘All are obliged to read the scroll, even priests, Levites and Israelites’. is that not self-evident? — No, it is necessary [to state that] concerning the interruption of their [Temple] service, in accord with Rab Judah in the name of Rab; for Rab Judah in the name of Rab said: Both the priests in their [Temple] service, the Levites on their platform, the Israelites at their posts² interrupt their work and come to listen to the reading of the scroll.

‘All are obliged to arrange a zimmun even priests, Levites and Israelites’. Is not that self-evident? — No, it is necessary for the case in which the priests were eating consecrated foods. I might have thought since the Divine Law said: And they shall eat those things wherewith atonement hath been made,³ that this is an atonement, therefore we are informed: The Divine Law has said: Thou shalt eat and be satisfied,⁴ and this applies to them as well.

‘All may be joined for a zimmun, even priests, Levites and Israelites’. Is that not self-evident? — No, it is necessary for the case where the priests eat of terumah⁵ or of consecrated foods, whilst the non-priest eats of profane foods. I might have assumed that since the commoner, even though he desired to eat with the priest [of the latter's food], he could not do so, therefore he could not be joined to him [for the zimmun] either, so we are informed that granted that the non-priest may not eat together with the priest, the priest could surely eat together with the non-priest.⁶ ALL MAY EVALUATE, EVEN PRIESTS, LEVITES AND ISRAELITES. But that is self-evident? — Rabbah said: This is necessary in view of the opinion of Ben Bukri, for we learnt:⁷ R. Judah said: Ben Bukri testified at Jabneh that any priest who paid the shekel⁸ does not thereby commit a sin. R. Johanan b. Zakkai said to him: Not so! But a priest who does not pay the shekel commits a sin. The priests, however, Used to explain the following verse to their advantage: And every meal-offering of the priest shall be wholly made to smoke; it shall not be eaten.⁹ Now, [they argued] since the ‘Omer and the two loaves and the shewbread are ours, how could they be eaten? — But according to Ben Bukri, since they are not de jure obliged to bring it [pay the shekel], if one brings it he should be considered a sinner, for he brings profane things to the Temple Court?¹⁰ — [The assumption is that] they bring the shekel and hand it over to the community.¹⁰ Now I might have assumed that since Scripture reads: And all thy valuations shall be according to the shekel of the Sanctuary,¹¹ that only he to whom the obligation of the shekel applies is subject to the laws of valuation, but as to priests, since the obligation of the shekel does not apply to them, are not subject to the laws of valuation; therefore we are informed [that they are]. Said Abaye to him: But the words, ‘And all thy valuations’ serve to teach that ‘all thy valuations’ must each amount to no less than one sela’? Rather, said Abaye, [the inclusion of priests] is necessary [for this reason]: I might have assumed that since Scripture reads: And their redemption money — from a month old shalt thou redeem them — shall be according to thy valuation,¹² that only he to whom the law of redeeming [the first-born] applies, is subject to the laws of valuation, but as to priests, since they are not included in the law concerning redemption, therefore they are not subject to the law of valuations; therefore we are informed [that they are]. Said Raba to him: If so, since with regard to the ram of guilt-offering Scripture reads: And he shall bring his forfeit unto the Lord, a ram without blemish out of the flock, according to thy valuation,¹³ let us also argue that only he to whom the law of valuation applies is liable to bring a ram of guilt-offerings but one of doubtful sex, or a hermaphrodite, who is not subject to the law of valuation, is free from the obligation to offer up a ram of guilt-offering? Rather, said Raba, or as some say, R. Ashi: [The inclusion of priests] is necessary, for I might have said, since Scripture reads: Then he shall be set before the priest, etc.,¹⁴ that [only an Israelite is set] before the priest, but not a priest before a fellow priest; therefore we are informed [that priests, too, are included in the law of valuation].

What does ALL ARE FIT TO BE MADE THE SUBJECT OF VALUATION include? — That includes one disfigured or afflicted with boils. Whence do we derive that? — For our Rabbis have taught: ‘According to thy valuation’, that includes a general valuation.¹⁵ Another interpretation: ‘According to thy valuation’, i.e., one pays only for the valuation of a whole person, but not for the valuation of his limbs. One might have assumed that they exclude [the valuation of] any thing on which life [the soul] depends, therefore the text states: ‘Persons’.¹⁶ ‘Persons’ [souls], but not a dead person. Thence I would exclude the dead, but not the dying, therefore the text states: Then he shall be set [before the priest], and the priest shall value him,¹⁷ [which means] only one who can be set [before the priest] can be evaluated but one who cannot be set before the priest cannot be evaluated either. Another interpretation: ‘Persons’ — thence I could infer only the case of one evaluating person; whence do I know the case of one evaluating a hundred persons? The text therefore states: ‘Persons’. Another interpretation: ‘Persons’

(1) The Jubilee year affects more than the sale of land, viz., also the manumission of slaves; the priests do not enjoy any privileged position, hence they are also included in Jubilee legislation, whence their obligation to blow the horn on New Year's day.

(2) V. Meg. 3b.

(3) Ex. XXIX, 33.

(4) Deut. VIII, 10. According to Sh. Mek.: ‘I would have thought that since it is written: Thou shalt eat and be satisfied, and bless, i.e., only when you eat for the purpose of appeasing your hunger is it obligatory for you to pronounce the blessing, but since priests (also) eat to obtain forgiveness, they would be free from that obligation, therefore we are informed etc.’.

(5) V. Glos.

(6) It need not be mutually possible to join in the meal, hence as long as priest and non-priest are able to partake of one meal together, the zimmun is obligatory, for even the priest is permitted to eat non-consecrated food.

(7) Shek I, 4.

(8) The sin, as explained infra, would lie in his bringing profane money into the sanctuary. The command of Ex. XXX, 13: This they shall give, every one that passeth among them that are numbered, half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary, yields several inferences. 'Among then that are numbered' excludes the tribe of Levi who were not numbered among the rest of the tribes. Hence the priest offering his shekel might be assumed to offend by introducing non-consecrated, i.e., profane, hence forbidden, money into the sanctuary. Nevertheless, Ben Bukri maintains he does not offend, because he may surrender it to the non-priestly community, which is obliged to offer the shekel, thus converting his own shekel into consecrated money. R. Johanan b. Zakkai, however, points out that there are indications in the text justifying a different interpretation. — Every one that passeth' may refer to the whole people, including the Levites, who passed through the Red Sea.

(9) Lev. VI, 16. They argued: Since this verse prohibits the enjoyment of anything offered up by priests, our shekel, the proceeds of which should be completely used for 'smoking' would render the 'omer and the shewbread, the costs of which were defrayed from the shekel payments, prohibited for any human use; whereas they are eaten by the priests in the sanctuary. Consequently, for any priest to pay the shekel would be sinful. But this argument is faulty for it is only the priest's own flour-offering which must be wholly burnt, in all other cases the majority of the givers, i.e., the non-priestly community, determine the character of the offering, which need therefore not be consumed wholly on the altar.

(10) V. n. 1.

(11) Lev. XXVII, 25.

(12) Num. XVIII, 16.

(13) Lev. V, 25. This inference would be absurd; none would suggest that the hermaphrodite be freed from this law.

(14) Lev. XXVII, 8.

(15) The normal form of the valuation is: The valuation of So-and-so or the valuation of myself be upon me, i.e., I undertake to pay. A general valuation is: I undertake to pay a valuation, without referring to any person thus to be valued.

(16) Lev. XXVII, 2: persons, souls. Without a leg, for example, one would still be a person, but not without the head. Hence the valuation, say, of a man's head or heart, is taken to be equal to the valuation of his whole person, whereas the valuation of a non-vital part of his body has no significance.

(17) Ibid. 8.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 4b

, thence I could infer only the case of a man evaluating either man or woman. But whence do we know the case of a woman evaluating a man, or of a woman evaluating a woman? The text therefore states: 'Persons'. Another interpretation: 'Persons' — that means to include one disfigured or afflicted with boils. For I might have assumed: 'A vow . . . according to thy valuation' [meaning] whatsoever can have its worth vowed is subject to valuation, but whatsoever cannot have its worth vowed is not subject to valuation,¹ therefore Scripture states: 'Persons'. 'Then thy valuation shall be' — that includes the person of 'doubtful sex and the hermaphrodite among those who can have their worth vowed. For I might have assumed: Since [Scripture reads]: 'A vow according to thy valuation' that only such things as are subject to valuation can have their worth vowed; but whatsoever is not subject to valuation cannot have its worth vowed, therefore the text states: Then shall thy valuation be for the male,² [viz.,] only for the male but not for one of doubtful sex, or an hermaphrodite. One might have assumed that they may not be subject to the valuation of a man, but that they are subject to the valuation of a woman, therefore [the text reads]: Then thy valuation shall be for the male . . . and if it be a female — that means only one definitely male or female [is subject to valuation], but not one of doubtful sex or a hermaphrodite.

The Master taught: 'According to thy valuation': that includes a general valuation. What is a general valuation? — For it was taught: If someone says, I assume the obligation of a general valuation,³ then he gives according to the minimum amount possible in valuations. What is the minimum due in valuations? Three shekels. But say, perhaps, fifty shekels?⁴ — If you take hold of the larger [amount], you may lose your hold, but if you take hold of the lower, you will keep it!⁵

Then say, perhaps, one shekel? As it is written: And all thy valuations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary?⁶ — That passage refers to the regard to one's means.⁷ What then is the purpose of the Scriptural passage?⁸ — R. Nahman, in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha said: To tell us that in this case he is not adjudged according to his means.⁹ What is the reason? — Because it is as if he had made an express statement [of the minimum]. Others say: R. Nahman in the name of Rabbah b. Abbuha said, He is adjudged according to his means. But that is self-evident? — I might have assumed that [a general valuation] is considered like an express statement, therefore we are informed [that it is regarded like a poor man's vow]. 'Another interpretation: "According to thy valuation", i.e., he pays only in case of the dedication of a whole person, but not for the valuation of his limbs'. But you have used this text to infer the rule concerning a general valuation? — Read: [Since instead of] 'valuation', it says, 'according to thy valuation'.¹⁰

'One might have assumed that this excludes anything on which life [the soul] depends, therefore the text states: "Persons" [souls] viz., souls but not the dead person'. But you have used that word for another purpose. Read: [Since instead of] 'person' [it says] persons'.¹¹

'Thence I would exclude the dead but not the dying, therefore the text states: "He shall be set [before the priest] and [the priest] shall value him"'. But, if so, you might exclude the dead also through inference from: 'He shall be set . . . and the priest shall value him'? — In truth so. Wherefore then [the exposition] of 'person', 'persons'? As we shall explain later on.¹²

'Another interpretation: "Persons", thence I could infer the case of one evaluating one person; whence do I know the case of one evaluating a hundred? The text therefore states: "Persons". Another interpretation: "Persons" , thence I could infer only the case of a man evaluating either man or woman. But whence do I know the case of a woman evaluating a man, or of a woman evaluating a woman? The text therefore states: "Persons". Another interpretation: "Persons", that means one disfigured or afflicted with boils'. But you have used the word for these [other teachings]?¹³ — No Scriptural text is necessary for these, because the balance [between them] is even, hence all may be inferred therefrom.¹⁴ The passage is necessary only for [the inclusion of] one disfigured or afflicted with boils. "'Then thy valuation shall be", that includes one of doubtful sex and an hermaphrodite among those who can have their worth vowed'. But why is a Scriptural passage necessary for [including these in the rule of those whose] worth [can be vowed]? Let them be no worse than the worth of a palm tree! If he said: The worth of a palm tree [do I oblige myself to pay], would he not have to pay it? — Said Rabbah:¹⁵ It means to say that he [his worth] be assessed according to the importance [of his limb].¹⁶ I would have thought that since it is written: 'A vow according to thy valuation', that whatsoever is affected by the law of evaluation is assessed according to the importance [of the limb] ' but that whosoever is not affected by the laws of evaluation is not assessed according to the importance [of the limb, hence the Scriptural indication]. Said Abaye to him: Is indeed one to whom the laws of valuation do not apply assessed according to the importance [of the limb]? Was it not taught: [If someone said], The head of this slave shall be consecrated to the sanctuary, then he and the sanctuary share it in partnership.¹⁷ If he said: The head of this slave be sold to you, they assess its value between them.¹⁸ [If he said], The head of this ass is consecrated, he and the sanctuary share it in partnership; [if he said], The head of this ass is sold to you, they assess it between them. [If he said], The head of this cow is sold to you, he has sold no more than her head. And not only that but even if he said: The head of this cow Is consecrated to the sanctuary, the sanctuary has no more than her head. And R. Papa said: [The reason why there is no partnership in the case of a cow is] because the head of an ox is sold¹⁹ in the butcher's shop. Now ass and cow are not affected by the law of valuations, and yet are not assessed according to the importance [of the limb]? But according to your own position, what of the case of a slave to whom the law of valuation does apply, and yet he is not assessed according to the importance [of the limb]?²⁰ Rather: There is no difficulty. This latter [Baraita] refers to things dedicated to the altar, the former to things dedicated to the Repair of the House.²¹ How did you explain [the latter

Baraita]? As referring to things dedicated to the altar? But look at the second part: And not only that, but even if he said: The head of this cow is consecrated to the sanctuary, the sanctuary owns no more than her head. Why that? Let the sacred character spread so as to include the whole animal?²² Has it not been taught:

(1) V. supra p. 16 n. 4.

(2) Ibid. 3.

(3) The suggestion is that the lowest possible amount is involved, namely three shekels, for a female from one month to five years of age.

(4) But why give him the benefit of the doubt? Why not impose, with even justification, the maximum?

(5) A proverb, v. Hag. 17a.

(6) If, however, we consider it safer to impose the minimum amount, because that is definitely included in any general valuation, whereas the maximum may be fought as against the intention of the man who dedicated, then why not impose the minimum possible in connection with valuations, one shekel, v. 25.

(7) That verse refers to a poor person, having made a vow of valuation, in which case the payment of his vow is regulated in accord with the valuator's means, never less than a shekel. But that does not affect the case of one who made a vague general evaluation, who, therefore, must pay the minimum of a valuation, viz., three shekels.

(8) What is the significance then of 'According to thy valuation'? Since it is simple inference that a general valuation implies the minimum of three shekels, below which no valuation can go, the text seems meaningless.

(9) In the case of a general valuation the payment is fixed at three shekels, even if it is beyond the means of him who made the vow.

(10) The word without any suffix would have sufficed. The redundancy of the suffix implies additional information. Hence a double inference such as made here is quite legitimate.

(11) Cf. n. 1. mutatis mutandis.

(12) I.e., to include one disfigured or afflicted with boils.

(13) That one may evaluate a hundred persons, and that a woman too may evaluate.

(14) The word 'nefesh' (person, soul) allows with even logic a number of inferences: any person, male or female, may dedicate or he dedicated; person as well as persons may be dedicated; anything that is vital (to person, or soul) may be dedicated, even if it be but part of a person. Anyone of these inferences are therefore 'balanced', evenly justified and neither could one be inferred exclusively as more logical than the other. But the inclusion of one disfigured or afflicted with boils, which would have seemed incongruous because such persons cannot have their worth vowed, needed some textual justification or at least intimation, and that is provided by the plural 'persons', which includes even persons disfigured etc.

(15) So Sh. Mek. Cur. edd. Raba.

(16) So R. Gershom; e.g., if a person's head or heart or any other vital organ were vowed, such vow, because of the vital need to that person of the respective organ, would be considered as equal to a vow of the whole person's worth, thereupon due to the Temple Treasury.

(17) Sc. its worth, which then is divided between them.

(18) V. infra.

(19) In the case of slave and donkey the head could not be (cut off and) sold, whence the vow implies part ownership. This shows that objects to which the law of valuation does not apply, are nevertheless not considered as having been vowed in their totality when a vital organ has been vowed, which contradicts the thesis, above, of Rabbah.

(20) The same question applies to Abaye's position inasmuch as from the same Baraita it appears that even a slave, who is affected by the law of valuation, is not assumed to have been vowed in his totality, even though one of his vital organs has been vowed.

(21) Only with regard to dedications, the money of which flows to the repair fund, do we go by vow of vital organs, therefore also a hermaphrodite whose worth had been vowed to the repair fund, would be considered totally vowed, as long as a vital organ had been vowed; but such a regulation does not apply to objects dedicated to the altar.

(22) Since the whole animal could be offered up as a sacrifice.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 5a

If one said: 'The leg of this [animal] shall be a burnt-offering', one might have assumed that the whole animal thereby becomes a burnt-offering, therefore the text states: All that any man giveth thereof unto the Lord shall be holy,¹ i.e., only [that] 'thereof' [which he giveth] shall be holy, but not the whole thereof shall be holy. One might have assumed that the whole becomes profane,² therefore the text states: '[It] shall be', i.e., It retains its present character. How then? It is sold for the purchase of burnt-offerings and the money realized, with the exception³ of the [value of the] limb dedicated, shall be profane; this is the view of R. Meir. R. Judah, R. Jose and R. Simeon say: Whence do we know that if a man said: The leg of this animal shall be a burnt-offering, that the whole animal is a burnt-offering, therefore the text states: 'All that any man giveth thereof unto the Lord shall be holy': that means to include the whole. Now even according to the view that thereby the whole animal does not become consecrated, that applies only to [the vow of] an organ upon which life does not depend, but whenever a limb is vowed upon which the life [of the animal] depends, the whole [animal] becomes consecrated?⁴ — This is no difficulty. One speaks of the vow of the animal itself,⁵ the other of the vow of its equivalent in money. But it 'was the Master himself⁶ who said that if someone consecrates a male [animal] in its money equivalent, that [animal] becomes consecrated in itself !⁷ — That is no difficulty: one case⁸ speaks of his having dedicated the whole, the other of his dedicating one member of the body.⁹ But even concerning [the dedication of] one member it is a matter of doubt, for Rabbah asked: If a man had dedicated one member in its money value, how then? — The question was asked about a perfect animal, whereas here we are dealing with a blemished one, similar to the donkey¹⁰ [discussed above]. But the case of [the dedication of] a blemished one is also doubtful, for Rabbah asked: If someone says the money value of my head¹¹ is [dedicated] to the altar, what then? — The question was asked before he heard this teaching,¹² but now that he has heard this teaching, it is no more doubtful to him.

[To turn to] the main text: Rabbah asked, [If a man said,] The money value of my head be for the altar, shall he be valued according to the importance [of this], or shall he not be so valued? [Do we say that] it never happens that a vow regarding [a person's] worth be not assessed according to the importance [of the limb] or, [on the other hand, do we say] it never happens with regard to a consecration for the altar that [the consecration] is determined by the importance [of the limb]?¹³ — The question remains [unanswered].

Raba asked: [If someone said:] The valuation of myself I undertake to pay for the altar, is he adjudged according to his means, or not? [Do we say,] It is never found in connection with valuation that one is not adjudged according to one's means; or, [on the other hand] it never happens with regard to any vow to the altar that¹⁴ one be adjudged according to his means? — The question remains [unanswered].

R. Ashi asked: If a man dedicated a field of possession¹⁵ for the altar, what then? Do we say it never occurs that a field of possession can be redeemed except on the basis of fifty shekels for each [part of the field sufficient for] the sowing of a homer of barley, or [perhaps, we say] it does not happen with regard to any [gift for] the altar that it be redeemed otherwise than in accord with its actual value?¹⁶ — The question remains [unanswered]. MISHNAH. A PERSON LESS THAN ONE MONTH OLD MAY HAVE HIS WORTH VOWED¹⁷ BUT NOT HIS VALUATION.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: If one evaluates a person less than one month old, R. Meir says, He gives his worth [its market value], but the Sages say, 'He has said nothing'. Wherein are they of divided opinion? — R. Meir says: No man utters his words in vain,¹⁸ and knowing that a person less than one month old cannot be made the subject of a valuation [and having spoken] he makes up his mind to vow his worth. The Sages, however, hold that a man may utter his words in vain. According to whose view [of the disputants] will be what R. Giddal said in the name of Rab, who said. if one said: the valuation of this vessel¹⁹ is upon me, he shall pay its worth! — That is in accord with R. Meir. But this is self-evident? — You might have said: It could be in accord with the view of the Rabbis [Sages]. For in the other case one could have erred in thinking that just as a child of one month has valuation thus also one less than one month old; but in this case where there is nothing to err about, for a man surely knows that a vessel has no valuation, and therefore he had intended his statement to mean to vow the vessel's worth, therefore we are informed [that even here the Sages do not so hold].

(1) Lev. XXVII, 9.

(2) The whole animal, apart from the dedicated limb, is profane without further ado.

(3) Both groups base their interpretation on the same Scriptural verse, emphasis deciding the issue. R. Meir stresses the words 'that any man giveth thereof' in a private sense, to exclude such portions as were not included in his gift. The other Rabbis interpret: 'All that any man giveth thereof' to mean that all animals whereof any part is given become fully consecrated.

(4) Tem. 11b places the dispute between R. Meir and the Sages only in the case of a non-vital organ and thus the question arises: why in the case of the head does the sanctuary not own more than the head?

(5) The consecration of one organ is suggested as spreading over the whole animal, when that organ itself has been consecrated, but where only the money value of such an organ has been vowed there, that organ itself remains a detached entity, not connected in its consecration with the rest of the body, hence not affecting it as to consecration.

(6) Rabbah, who gave the last answer.

(7) Tem. 11b.

(8) Rabbah's ruling in Tem.

(9) In the case where he consecrated the head only for its value obviously the consecration is limited to the monetary value of the member consecrated.

(10) Both a blemished animal of a class admitted to the altar, or an animal, though unblemished, but of a class unfit for sacrifices, are in one category.

(11) Shall the vowing of his head be considered, because of the vital importance of the head, as equal to the vowing of his whole worth or not? Now a man is in the same category as an unblemished animal as far as the altar is concerned.

(12) Cited supra. If one consecrates the head of an ass.

(13) I.e., that by consecrating the value of one vital organ the worth of the animal is consecrated to the altar.

(14) Text corrected in accordance with Sh. Mek. cur. ed.: That it can be redeemed except for its value.

(15) V. Lev. XXVII, 16ff.

(16) If someone consecrated that field for the fund from which burnt-offerings were provided, how could he redeem his pledge? Do we abide by the general rule in such cases of a vow for Temple repairs, or do we consider the special circumstance governing vows for the altar?

(17) Because, no matter how young, it would fetch its price in a market; but as to valuation a definite minimum age is stated.

(18) R. Meir holds that no man utters any statement uselessly; he might, however, talk loosely, use terms applicable to a case somewhat different from the one involved. Thus the terminology of dedication might well be used by someone who has in his mind a vow. 'Or, as Tosaf. s.v. אדם has it: A man, indifferent to the exact terminology, or ignorant of it, would intend to have his utterance serve whatever purpose the Rabbis attributed to the words he used.

(19) 'Valuation' was fixed only for human beings, hence vessels cannot be evaluated, thus an illustration of the former problem is offered here.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 5b

But why was it necessary [for Rab] to state [this ruling] on the view of R. Meir? — One might have thought the reason for R. Meir in that case was that he decreed [the obligation to pay] in the case of a child less than one month old out of consideration¹ for one which was one month old, but that in the case here,² where no such decree is warranted, one might [assume that R. Meir would] not [rule thus], therefore we are informed that R. Meir's reason is that no man utters his words at random, so that the same rule applies in both cases.

According to whose view will be the teaching of Rabbah b. Jose³ in the name of Rab [according to others R. Yeba b. Jose in the name of Rab]: If one consecrates [to the sanctuary] his neighbour's animal, he shall pay its worth.⁴ According to whom? According to R. Meir. But Rab has already said that once before, for R. Giddal in the name of Rab said: If one said, 'The valuation of a vessel be upon me, he shall pay its worth'. — You might have said: In the one case he knew that a vessel has no valuation whereupon he made up his statement with the intention for its worth, but in the case of an animal, which is normally fit to be consecrated, one might say that this is what he meant: If I report it to its owner he will sell it [to me], therefore let it be consecrated as from now already, and I shall offer it up [after having purchased it], but that he did not mean its worth,⁵ therefore he informs us [that this is not so].⁶ R. Ashi⁷ said: This applies only where he said: I undertake the responsibility [for an animal], but not if he said: I assume the obligation [to consecrate] this [animal].⁸ MISHNAH. AN IDOL-WORSHIPPER ACCORDING TO R. MEIR CAN BE MADE THE SUBJECT OF A VALUATION BUT CANNOT EVALUATE, WHEREAS ACCORDING TO R. JUDAH HE MAY EVALUATE BUT CANNOT BE MADE THE SUBJECT OF A VALUATION. BOTH AGREE, HOWEVER, THAT HE CAN BOTH VOW ANOTHER'S WORTH AND HAVE HIS WORTH VOWED BY OTHERS.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: The children of Israel⁹ may evaluate, but idol-worshippers may not evaluate. One might have assumed that they cannot be made the subject of a valuation either, therefore the text states: Man,¹⁰ these are the words of R. Meir. Said R. Meir: Now that one Scriptural verse includes and the other excludes, whence am I [justified in] saying: He may be made the subject of a valuation, but may not evaluate himself?¹¹ It is because Scripture has included more among those subject to valuation than among those fit to evaluate; for a deaf-mute, an imbecile and a minor each may be made the subject of a valuation, but is not fit to evaluate. R. Judah said: The children of Israel may be made the subject of a valuation, but idol-worshippers are not fit to be made the subject of a valuation. One might have assumed that they [the latter] are not fit to evaluate either, therefore the text states: 'Man'. Said R. Judah: Since one verse includes and the other excludes, whence do I come to make the statement that idol-worshippers are fit to evaluate and are not subject to valuation? Because Scripture has included more among those fit to evaluate than among those subject to valuation. For one of doubtful sex and a hermaphrodite are fit to evaluate, but are not subject to valuation. Said Raba: The decision of R. Meir appeals to logic, but not the reason; the reason of R. Judah is logical, but not his decision. The decision of R. Meir appeals to logic as it is written: Ye have nothing to do with us to build a house unto our God.¹² His reason does not appeal, for he argues from the case of a deaf-mute, an imbecile or a minor; but it is different with them since they have no intelligence. The reason of R. Judah is logical, for he deduces it from the case of one of doubtful sex and a hermaphrodite, which, although endowed with intelligence, are yet excluded by the Divine Law [from evaluation]. His decision, however, does not appeal, as it is written: 'Ye have nothing to do with us to build a house unto our God'. How, indeed, does R. Judah deal with 'Ye have nothing to do with us'? — R. Hisda said in the name of Abimi: His valuation [money] must be hidden.¹³ But then one should not be guilty of sacrilege in connection with them, for it was taught: Concerning the five kinds of sin-offerings which must be left to die, and all moneys that must be cast into the Dead Sea, one must not derive any benefit from them, nor is one guilty of sacrilege [if one has used them].¹⁴ Why then was it taught with regard to the consecration of idol-worshippers: These things apply only to things consecrated for the altar, but things consecrated for Temple repairs are subject to the law of sacrilege?¹⁵ — Rather, said Raba: It¹⁶ was due to the 'weakening of the hands', as it is written: Then the people of the land weakened the hands of the people of Judah and harried them while they were building.¹⁷

(1) I.e. , to safeguard the payment fixed in the Bible.

(2) Referring to a vessel.

(3) So Sh. Mek. cur. edd. Joseph.

(4) Since none can consecrate an object not belonging to himself, the suggestion is that he meant to offer the money value of the object in question, such offering, of course, being independent of his owning the animal.

(5) If his hope was to obtain the animal and to consecrate it (and not its money value), then his utterance was quite in vain and no obligation results: The money value he had not vowed, the animal itself did not belong to him, wherefore he incurred no obligation whatsoever.

(6) That, according to R. Meir he must have known that the animal itself cannot be consecrated, and therefore must have had in mind the payment of its market value, which is now obligatory.

(7) Sh. Mek.: Mar b. R. Ashi.

(8) If a man said: My neighbour's animal do I consecrate, only then does an obligation arise to pay its money value, but if he said 'This animal' shall I provide for the altar,' he obviously has said nothing. For he could undertake to make himself responsible for the money value of an animal, but he could surely not oblige himself to dedicate the animal that does not belong to him. In the latter case his words are for practical purposes meaningless. He has said nothing.

(9) Thus does the chapter on dedications commence: Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them (Lev. XXVII, 2), the inference being obvious.

(10) Ibid.

(11) What is the justification for declaring the idol-worshipper fit for one rather than for the other? The text has both inclusive and exclusive indications. 'The children of Israel' excludes, while 'man' includes.

(12) Ezra IV, 3.

(13) R. Judah's view that idol-worshippers are fit to evaluate does not imply that such money is to be used — that is excluded by Ezra IV, 3, — but it does mean that it acquires sacredness, so as to be forbidden for profane use; and since it is also not fit for sacred use, it must be hidden or destroyed.

(14) V. Me'ilah 3a.

(15) Since they are to be destroyed they ought not, according to the cited Baraitha from Me'ilah be subject to the law of sacrilege.

(16) The refusal to accept the idol-worshippers' gifts in the days of Ezra.

(17) Ezra IV, 4.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 6a

One [Baraitha] taught: If an idol-worshipper offers a freewill- gift towards Temple repairs 'one accepts it from him, whilst another [Baraitha] taught: One does not accept it from him. Said R. Ela in the name of R. Johanan: This is no difficulty: The first applies to the beginning,¹ the latter to the end.² For R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: In the beginning one should not accept from them even salt or water, whereas at the end one may not accept a thing that can be easily identified,³ but something that cannot easily be identified one may accept. What is a 'thing that can be easily identified'? — R. Joseph said: Like the cubit [of metal] keeping off the raven.⁴

R. Joseph raised an objection: And a letter unto Asaph the keeper of the king's park [that he may give me timber to make beams, etc.]?⁵ — Abaye said: It is different with the government because it will not retract. For Samuel has said: If the government said, I will uproot a mountain, it will uproot the mountain and not retract!

Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: If an idol-worshipper separated the terumah⁶ from his pile [of produce], then we examine him. If he said:⁷ I have separated it with the same intention as an Israelite, it is to be handed to the priests but if not, it must be hidden, because we consider the possibility of his having in his heart intended it for the Lord.⁸ An objection was raised [against that]: If an idol-worshipper had dedicated a beam to the Sanctuary upon which the Name [of God] is inscribed, he is to be examined. If he said: I have separated it with the same intention as an Israelite, then one should cut off [the part containing the Name of God] and use the rest. But if [he does] not [offer this explanation], it must be hidden away, because we fear his heart [intention] may have been [to dedicate it] to the Lord. The reason then [for this decision] is because the Name [of God] is inscribed thereon, and only therefore does it require to be hidden away, but if the Name [of God] were not inscribed thereupon, then indeed, it would not have to be hidden away!⁹ — [No!] Even if the Name [of God] were not inscribed thereupon it would likewise have to be hidden away, and it is exactly this that we are told, that although the Name [of God] is thereon inscribed, he need but cut off that portion and use the rest For the Name of God not in its proper place is not considered sacred.¹⁰ For it was taught: If it [the Name of God] was written upon the handles of a vessel, or upon the props of a bed, behold, it shall be cut off and hidden.¹¹

R. Nahman said in the name of R. Abbuha: If one says, This sela' is dedicated to charity, he is permitted to exchange it. Now it was assumed that this is permitted only for himself, but not for anybody else;¹² but it was stated that R. Ammi said in the name of R. Johanan that it is permitted both for oneself and for someone else. R. Ze'ira said: We have learnt that only where he said: [I take] upon myself [generally], but if he said: [I take] upon myself to [give] this, then he is obliged to give this [sela']. Whereupon Raba demurred: On the contrary! The opposite is logical. If he said: Behold this [sela' I take upon myself to pay], then he may use it for himself, so that he may be responsible for it, but when he said: [I take] upon myself [a sela'], he should not [be permitted to exchange it]? But the fact is it makes no difference.¹³ It was taught in accord with Raba: Vows are [like] charity, but consecrations [to the sanctuary] are not like charity. What does that mean? Neither vows nor dedications are charity. Is it not rather this that is meant: Charity [is like vows] in respect of the prohibition 'Thou shalt not delay it',¹⁴ but is not like a consecration [to the sanctuary] because anything so consecrated one must not use, whereas [money dedicated to] charity one may [meantime] use for oneself! R. Kahana said: I reported this teaching before R. Zebid of Nehardea whereupon he said: This is how you stated it;¹⁵ we, however, state it thus: R. Nahman in the name of R. Abbuha based on Rab said: If one said, This sela' is [dedicated to] charity, he may exchange it both for himself, or for someone else independent of whether he had said: [I take it] upon myself [in general], or [I take it upon myself to pay] this [sela'].

Our Rabbis taught: [If one said:] This sela' shall be for charity, then before it has reached the hand of the [charity] treasurer, it is permitted to exchange it, but after it has come into the treasurer's hand, it is forbidden to exchange it.

(1) At the beginning of the building the intention of the idol-worshippers may not be a good one, their gift being made to give them entry into the building programmed which they plan to interfere with or delay. But according to the law they may be accepted for Temple repairs, hence the ruling of R. Judah.

(2) When the building is completed.

(3) Which might cause the heathen to point Boastfully to their contribution, or to its importance for the Temple.

(4) An arrangement of iron points on the roof of the Temple designed to keep ravens away. V. M.K. 9a.

(5) Neh. II, 8. From this passage it is evident that gifts were accepted from (Cyrus) an idolator, and that happened at the beginning of the building.

(6) V. Glos.

(7) One may not accept a gift for the sanctuary from a heathen. Hence, if he says: I want the terumah to go where the Jew's terumah goes, one may accept it from him and give it to the priest, who is permitted to receive it. Rashi: The reference is to the present day when there is no sanctuary, and when consequently things dedicated to the sanctuary must be hidden away, v. Bek. 53a.

(8) But a gift 'Unto the Lord', i.e., for the sanctuary must not be accepted from, him, and must be hidden.

(9) This contradicts the earlier teaching!

(10) There attaches no holiness whatsoever to the name inscribed on the wrong kind of place or material, the right kind would be parchment, or paper, everything else is not normally fit to have the name inscribed thereon.

(11) Shab. 61b.

(12) I.e., to use this coin for his own purpose, to refund it to the Sanctuary afterwards. But it would be wrong for him to lend it to his neighbour, for it may be argued reasonably that he meant to use it meantime for himself, whilst conscious of his obligation to pay it later into the Temple treasury. But he surely did not, in his intention to use it, include ally benefit to his neighbour such as a loan to him of this sum.

(13) One might argue with even force: If he said, I take upon myself to pay this sela' into the Temple treasury, then it thereby has become its property, and by using it one has incurred the obligation, not only moral but legal, of restoring that property; whereas in the case of a general vow (I accept it upon myself to give a sela') a different argument is to be made. At any rate, since both claims have support, we recognize no practical difference between the one form and the other.

(14) Deut. XXIII, 22.

(15) I.e., you reported R. Nahman's statement in general terms, relying on R. Ammi and Raba to explain its implications.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 6b

But it is not so, for R. Jannai borrowed and paid it [afterwards]?¹ — It is different with R. Jannai, for what he did was acceptable to the poor, for the more he delayed the more did he succeed in collecting and bringing in to them.

Our Rabbis taught: If an Israelite dedicated a candlestick or a lamp to the synagogue, he is not permitted to exchange it. R. Hiyya had thought that was to say [it may not be changed] either for a secular or a religious purpose. Whereupon R. Ammi said to him: This is what R. Johanan said: We have learnt [of the prohibition] only in connection with a secular purpose, but for a religious purpose it is permitted to exchange [the object dedicated] — For R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: If an idol-worshipper had dedicated a candlestick or a lamp to the synagogue, then, before the name of its owner has become forgotten, it is forbidden to exchange it; after the name of the owner has been forgotten, it is permitted to change it. Now to what purpose is it to be changed? Shall I say for secular use? — Then why speak of an idol-worshipper's gift, the same applies to that of an Israelite? Hence you must say for a religious use, and nevertheless the reason [why it may not be changed is]² because an idol-worshipper would create a row about it, but in the case of an Israelite who would not create a row about it, it would be proper [to change it].³

Sha'azrek, an Arab, made a gift of a lamp to the synagogue of Rab Judah. Rehaba changed it['s use] and Raba took it amiss. (Some say: Raba changed it and Rehaba took it amiss. Others say: The sextons of pumbeditha changed it and both Rehaba and Raba rebuked them for it.) He who changed it held: It would⁴ be a rare occurrence, whereas he who rebuked held: It may happen that he comes.⁵

MISHNAH. ONE AT THE POINT OF DEATH OR ABOUT TO BE PUT TO DEATH CANNOT HAVE HIS WORTH VOWED, NOR BE SUBJECT TO VALUATION. R. HANINA B. AKABIA SAID: HE IS FIT TO BE MADE THE SUBJECT OF A VALUATION BECAUSE HIS PRICE IS FIXED. R. JOSE SAID: HE MAY VOW ANOTHER'S WORTH, EVALUATE, AND CONSECRATE [TO THE SANCTUARY], AND IF HE CAUSED DAMAGE, HE IS OBLIGED TO MAKE RESTITUTION.

GEMARA. It is quite right that one at the point of death cannot have his worth vowed, because he has no money [value]; nor can he be made the subject of a valuation because he is not fit to be set and valued.⁶ But as regards one about to be put to death, whilst it is true that he cannot have his worth vowed since he has no money [value], why should he be unfit to be made the subject of a valuation?⁷ — Because it was taught: Whence do we know that if one about to be put to death says: The valuation of myself is upon me,⁸ he has said nothing? The text states: No devoted thing . . . shall be redeemed.⁹ One might have assumed that this holds good even before the proceedings [of his case] are finished, therefore the text states: Of man,¹⁰ i.e., but not [as long as he is] a whole man. But what will R. Hanina b. Akabya who holds him fit to be made the subject of a valuation 'because his price is fixed', do with 'No devoted thing, etc.'? — He needs this in accord with what was taught: R. Ishmael the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka said: Since we find that those to be put to death by the hand of heaven can offer a monetary expiation and thereby obtain atonement, as it is said: If there be laid on him a ransom,¹¹ I might have thought the same applied to those who are to be put to death by the hand of man, therefore we are taught: 'No devoted thing shall be redeemed'. From here I may derive teaching only for severer penalties of death, for which even when committed in error no atonement is possible.¹² But whence do I know that it applies also to lesser penalties of death, for which at least when committed in error atonement is possible? The text therefore states: 'Any devoted thing, etc.'

R. JOSE SAYS: HE MAY VOW ANOTHER'S WORTH, EVALUATE. But did the first Tanna say that he may? Rather, there is no dispute whatsoever that he may vow another's worth, evaluate and consecrate, the dispute touches only the case of his having caused damage,¹³ the first Tanna holding that if he had caused damage he is not obliged to make compensation, whereas R. Jose holds he is obliged to make compensation when he has caused damage. What principle are they disputing? — R. Joseph said: They are disputing whether an oral¹⁴ debt can be collected from the heirs, the first Tanna holding an oral debt cannot be collected from the heirs, whereas R. Jose considers it can be collected. Raba¹⁵ said: All agree that an oral debt cannot be collected from the heirs, what they are here disputing is the [nature of a] debt arising from the law of the Torah, the first Tanna holding that a debt arising from the law of the Torah is not to be considered equal to one acknowledged in a document [of indebtedness], whilst R. Jose considers it like one acknowledged in a document [of indebtedness]. There are some who refer it¹⁶ to the following matter: If one¹⁷ about to be executed wounded others, he is obliged to make reparation, but if others have wounded him, they are free [from reparation].¹⁸ R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: Even if he has wounded someone he is free, because he may not be placed before the Court of Law again.¹⁹

(1) He was a commissioner of charity, yet he used to borrow funds to use them for his own purposes!

(2) Before the name of its owner is forgotten.

(3) This proves that R. Johanan holds that it may be changed even for a secular purpose.

(4) That the donor would notice such a change, and protest.

(5) It is not impossible that the donor, who travelled much, might come to the city and see the change and protest therefore their rebuke.

(6) C. supra p. 16 n. 4.

(7) Surely the amount of valuation is fixed.

(8) Var. lec.: and somebody says, The valuation of him is upon me, v. Keth. 37b.

(9) Lev. XXVII, 28. I.e., all condemned persons are not redeemable.

(10) Once a man is sentenced to death he is no more a whole man, hence the partitive 'of man'; v. Keth. 37b. But before such a sentence has actually been pronounced, he is still a whole man to whom the text, 'of man' (i.e., part of man, in the ad hoc meaning) does not apply.

(11) Ex. XXI, 30. As is evident from Sanh. 15b, in the case of the goring ox, the owner incurs death through the decree of heaven for his negligence, and in such a case the evil decree may be averted by a monetary compensation or expiation. The word 'devoted' is interpreted as devoted by human beings, hence 'devoted to death' by human beings. Such interpretation removed the possibility of any devoted thing being saved from execution by compensation-payment, for, No devoted thing shall be redeemed (from death by payment).

(12) The crime of blasphemy even if committed in error cannot be remedied as is done with other unintentionally committed crimes, by sin-offering or (in the case of involuntary manslaughter) by exile.

(13) Since he has a mind, he obviously is fit to do things which one possessed of mentality is fit to do. This obligation would, of course, descend upon his heirs, hence the principle involved.

(14) An obligation arising from the law of the Torah has the character of an orally admitted debt. Hence, even if no definite decision had been made by the court on the question of his damage, a delay in his execution would be considered unnecessary, hence prohibited. Nevertheless the debt arising from the law of the Torah is considered an oral debt.

(15) Var. lec.: Rabbah.

(16) The statements of R. Joseph and Raba.

(17) Tos. B.K. 9.

(18) He is obliged to make reparation because until his moment of death he is presumed to have a mind, hence is responsible. But since he is about to be executed, his body as such is no more in its integrity, hence one who wounds him should be free from any obligation to make compensation payment. All these refer to someone about to be executed by the laws of Israel, i.e., after careful investigation and examination. One, however, sentenced to death by the heathen tyrants or other malefactors, might perhaps be ransomed, freed by persuasion or payment, hence his physical integrity may yet be said to be unimpaired.

(19) The examination of the claim against him would consume some time. This would involve a delay in his execution, which is forbidden, v. Sanh. 89a.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 7a

From this it would appear that the first Tanna holds that he may be placed before the Court of Law again! Said R. Joseph: They are disputing whether an oral debt can be collected from the heirs, the first Tanna holding an oral debt may be collected from the heirs, whilst R. Simeon b. Eleazar holds it cannot be collected. Rabbah said: All agree that an oral debt cannot be collected from the heirs, they are disputing here whether an obligation arising from the law of the Torah may be considered as one written in a document of indebtedness, the first Tanna holding it is to be regarded like one acknowledged in a document of indebtedness, whilst R. Simeon b. Eleazar holds it is not to be regarded like one acknowledged in a document of indebtedness.

An objection was raised:¹ If one dug a pit in a public thoroughfare, and an ox fell upon him and killed him, [the owner of the latter] is free, and even more, if the ox should die, then the heirs of the owner of the pit must repay its money value to the owner of the ox! Said R. Ela in the name of Rab: [This speaks of the case] where he stood before the Court of Law.² But the text reads: 'And killed him'! — Said R. Adda b. Ahabah: It means he hurt him fatally. But did not R. Nahman say that R. Hagga read: Killed and buried him!³ But the law is [that the heirs are liable] where the judges were sitting at the opening of the pit. Our Rabbis taught: If one is about to be executed one sprinkles⁴ for him the blood of the sin-offering or the blood of the guilt-offering. But if he sinned at that time,⁵ one is no more obliged to attend to him.⁶ What is the reason? — R. Joseph said: We must not put off his execution. Said Abaye: If so, then concerning the first part, too?⁷ — That refers to the case that his sacrifice by that hour was killed already. But if it had not been slaughtered before that hour, what then [would be the law]? presumably it would not be so! Then instead of having the text read, 'If he sinned at that time they do not attend to him', let the distinction be made with reference to [the sacrifice itself]: These things apply only when his sacrifice by that hour had been slaughtered already, but if his sacrifice had not been slaughtered by that hour, one does not [sprinkle of his blood upon him]? — This indeed is what he said: These things apply only if by that hour his sacrifice had been slaughtered already, but if his sacrifice had not been slaughtered yet, then his case is like that of one who sinned at that hour, and to whom therefore one need not attend in this matter.

MISHNAH. IF A WOMAN IS ABOUT TO BE EXECUTED, ONE DOES NOT WAIT FOR HER UNTIL SHE GIVES BIRTH.⁸ BUT IF SHE HAD ALREADY SAT ON THE BIRTHSTOOL,⁹ ONE WAITS FOR HER UNTIL SHE GIVES BIRTH. IF A WOMAN HAS BEEN PUT TO DEATH ONE MAY USE HER HAIR; IF AN ANIMAL HAS BEEN PUT TO DEATH IT IS FORBIDDEN TO MAKE ANY USE OF IT.¹⁰

GEMARA. But that is self-evident, for it is her body!¹¹ — It is necessary to teach it, for one might have assumed since Scripture says: According as the woman's husband shall lay upon him,¹² that it [the unborn child] is the husband's property, of which he should not be deprived, therefore we are informed [that it is not so]. But perhaps [the former point of view] may indeed [be the law]? — Said R. Abbuha in the name of R. Johanan: Scripture says: They shall die, also both of them,¹³ that includes the child. But this [verse] is required for the inference that they must both be of equal condition,¹⁴ as R. Joseph teaches? — We infer it from 'also'.¹⁵

BUT IF SHE HAD ALREADY SAT ON THE BIRTHSTOOL: What is the reason? — As soon as it moves [from its place in the womb] it is another body. Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: If a woman is about to be executed one strikes her against her womb so that the child may die first, to avoid her being disgraced.¹⁶ That means to say that [otherwise] she dies first? But we have an established [assumption] principle that the child dies first, for we learnt: A child one day old inherits and bequeaths;¹⁷ and R. Shesheth said [in explanation]: He inherits the mother's property to bequeath it to his brothers from his father. Now this [as is clearly indicated] applies only to a child 'one day old', but not to an embryo, because it would die first and no son already in the grave can inherit from his mother to bequeath to his paternal brothers?¹⁸ — This applies only to [her natural] death, because the child's life is very frail, the 'drop' [of poison] from the angel of death enters and destroys its vital organs,¹⁹ but in the case of death by execution she dies first. But there was a case in which [the child] moved three times? — Mar son of R. Ashi said: That is analogous to the tail of a lizard which moves [after being cut off].²⁰

R. Nahman said in the name of Samuel: If a woman who has been sitting on a birthstool died on a Sabbath, one may bring a knife and cut her womb open to take out the child. But that is self-evident? What is he doing?

(1) From here it is evident that an obligation arising out of the law of the Torah is considered like one acknowledged in a document of indebtedness, and since the principle is there definitely established as legitimate, it is wrong to assume that what is a recognized Tannaitic principle, since it is reported in an anonymous, i.e., accepted form, is opposed by the majority view in our Mishnah on Raba's explanation.

(2) Before he died the court had decided that he must pay the fine, such decision being equal to a debt acknowledged by himself in writing.

(3) The ox killed and buried the man, by his fall upon him, in the pit. According to this reading the owner of the pit could not have been adjudged before the court. I.e., the court was held at the pit, with the fatally wounded man adjudged guilty before his actual death, the obligation arising having the character of a debt acknowledged in writing.

(4) I.e., for his sake, to obtain for him forgiveness for another sin committed in error, for which this sacrifice had been offered up.

(5) E.g., he ate some forbidden fat in error whilst on his way to be executed.

(6) He is about to be executed and any ceremony on his behalf would have to take place before he actually dies, and thus may cause the prohibited delay in his execution.

(7) One would have to wait here with the killing of the animal and the sprinkling, and thus delay his execution.

(8) If she were found to be pregnant.

(9) I.e., if her pains of parturition had begun already. Rashi holds this to apply to a woman whose pains had started before sentence was pronounced; according to Tosaf, even if the pains had begun only after the sentence. For the child is considered as of one body with the mother only as long as it still is in its normal place. But as soon as it has started to move, it is another body and thus unaffected by the mother's state.

(10) In the case of an animal sentenced by the court to be destroyed (as e.g., an ox which gored a man to death) the prohibition to use its corpse in any manner comes into force as soon as sentence is pronounced, in the case of a human being only with the execution proper.

(11) The embryo is part of her body, having no identity of its own and dependent for its life upon the body of the woman.

(12) Ex. XXI, 22 refers to the indemnity to be paid to the husband for a premature child.

(13) So literally. E.V. 'They shall both of them die'. Deut. XXII, 22. The redundant 'both of them' is used for another situation.

(14) That they must both be of age so that both are punishable; if one is a minor, no death penalty for this adultery is inflicted.

(15) Which is redundant, and from which the law here concerning the embryo is derived.

(16) If the child, having escaped death, came forth after her execution, it would cause bleeding and thus expose the executed mother to be disgraced.

(17) If on that one day of its life it should inherit some property, by dying on the same day the child would cause its paternal brothers to inherit it. V. B.B. 142a; Nid. 44a.

(18) Hence, when the mother dies after the child, her property does not pass to the child, which is legally assumed to be in the grave; he is therefore unable to inherit his mother's property and much less to bequeath it to his paternal brothers.

This proves that the child is assumed to die before the mother as otherwise the case above could also deal with an unborn child, whilst the Mishnah limits it to the child born and one day old.

(19) The phrase here is borrowed from the death of an animal, which is achieved in accordance with the laws of Shechitah by the cutting of the windpipe and the gullet, the two organs to be cut in accordance with the ritual law.

(20) Although no more alive; similarly such moving on the part of the child is no sign of its life.

Only cutting flesh?¹ — Rabbah said: It is necessary [to permit the] fetching of the knife by way of a public thoroughfare.² But what is he informing us? That in case of doubt one may desecrate the Sabbath! Surely we have learnt already: If debris falls down upon one and there is doubt whether he is there or not, or whether he is alive or dead, whether he is a Canaanite or an Israelite, one may remove the debris from above him!³ You might have said: There [permission was given] because [the person in question] had at least presumption of having been alive, but here where it [the embryo] did not have such original presumption of life, one might say no [desecration of the Sabbath shall be permitted], therefore we are informed [that it is].

IF A WOMAN HAS BEEN PUT TO DEATH etc. But why? These things are forbidden for any use? — Rab said: [This refers to the case] where she had said: Give my hair to my daughter. But if she had [similarly] said: Give my hand to my daughter, would we have given it to her? — Rab said: It refers to a wig.⁴ Now the reason [for the permission] is that she had said: 'Give [it]', but if she had not said: 'Give [it]', it would have been as part of her body and forbidden [for any use]. But this matter was questioned by R. Jose b. Hanina, for R. Jose b. Hanina asked: What about the hair of righteous women, and Raba had remarked: His question refers to [their] wig?⁵ — The question of R. Jose b. Hanina referred to the case of [such wig] its hanging on a peg; but here the wig is attached to her [head], therefore the reason [it is permitted] is because she said: 'Give [it]', but if she had not said 'Give [it]', it would be as her body and forbidden.

This appeared difficult to R. Nahman b. Isaac for it is placed in juxtaposition to the [law concerning an] animal, hence just as there [the hair] is part of the body, here too it should be part of the body?⁶ — Rather, said R. Nahman: In the one case [the woman's] it is the actual death which renders the body prohibited for any use,⁷ whereas in the other case [the animal's], the close of the legal proceedings [the pronouncement of the death sentence] renders it prohibited for any use. Levi taught in accord with Rab and he also taught in accord with R. Nahman b. Isaac.⁸ He taught in accord with Rab: If a woman went forth to be executed and she said: 'Give my hair to my daughter', one would give it to her; but if she died [before making such a demand] one would not give it, because the dead must not be used for any purpose. But that is self-evident? — [Say] rather the ornaments of the dead are prohibited for any use.⁹ It was taught in accord with R. Nahman b. Isaac: If a woman died, her hair is permitted for use. If an animal was put to death, it is forbidden for any use. And what is the difference between the one and the other? In the one case it is only the actual death which renders the body prohibited for any use, and in the other case the pronouncement of the death sentence in itself renders it prohibited for any use.

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. THERE IS NO VALUATION LESS THAN ONE SELA' NOR MORE THAN FIFTY. HOW IS THAT? IF ONE PAID A SELA',¹⁰ AND BECAME RICH, HE NEED NOT GIVE ANY [MORE]. BUT IF HE GAVE LESS THAN A SELA' AND BECAME RICH, HE MUST PAY FIFTY SELA'S.¹¹ IF HE HAD FIVE SELA'S IN HIS POSSESSION,¹² R. MEIR SAYS, THEN HE NEED NOT GIVE MORE THAN ONE, WHEREAS THE SAGES SAY HE MUST GIVE THEM ALL. FOR THERE IS NO VALUATION OF LESS THAN ONE SELA NOR MORE THAN FIFTY SELA'S.

GEMARA. THERE IS NO VALUATION LESS THAN ONE SELA. Whence do we know that? — For Scripture said: And all thy valuations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary,¹³ i.e., all valuations which you evaluate shall be of no less than a shekel. Nor more than fifty sela's, as it is written: Fifty.¹⁴

IF HE HAD FIVE SELA'S IN HIS POSSESSION, etc. What is the reason of R. Meir? — Scripture says: 'Fifty', and it is also written: 'Shekel', i.e., either fifty or one shekel. And the Rabbis? That means that all valuations which you evaluate shall be of no less than one shekel.¹⁵ But where he has [more], there applies the Scriptural verse: According to the means of him that vowed,¹⁶ and here he has means. And R. Meir?¹⁷ — That indicates that the possessions of him who evaluates rather than of him who is evaluated are to be considered. And the Rabbis? — Does this not incidentally prove that where he has possessions, take from him as much as he can pay?

R. Adda b. Ahabah said: If a man had five sela's in his possession and said: My own valuation be upon me [to pay], and he repeats: My own valuation be upon me, and then he paid four sela's on account for the second valuation and one sela' for the first, then he has fulfilled his duty to both. What is the reason? — Because:¹⁸ A creditor, later in order of time, who has collected before [an earlier one] retains what he has collected. [Likewise] here when he paid for the second [valuation] he was in debt for the first,¹⁹ and when he paid for the first he had no more.

(1) Only the cutting of a living person constitutes desecration of the Sabbath, the cutting of meat is unavoidable in eating.

(2) The bringing of any portable property from private territory into a public thoroughfare or vice versa constitutes transgression of the law of the Sabbath as Biblically stated.

(3) V. Yoma 83a.

(4) That wig, tied to her hair, might have been considered part of her body and therefore forbidden for any use, hence also inadmissible as a gift to her daughter. But since she left instruction of such gift, she evidently did not consider the wig part of her body, and guided by her view we do not consider it such either, hence the gift is valid.

(5) According to Deut. XIII, 13ff the inhabitants of a city condemned for idolatrous practices to which they had been led astray were to be destroyed with all their property. Righteous persons, however, lost only their property but not their life. The theoretical question touched the wig of righteous women of such a city: Was it to be considered part of their body and thus will it escape destruction, or is it to be regarded as detachable from the head and as general property does it fall under the ban? At any rate what is a matter of doubt there could not possibly be taken here as settled law!

(6) How then could he interpret our Mishnah as referring to the woman's wig, which is not part of the body?

(7) The reference is indeed to her natural hair, but since hair never lived it is not affected by death, which renders forbidden all such parts of the body which had their vitality cut off by death (Rashi).

(8) Levi had an ancient Baraita the view of which accorded with Rab and another with R. Nahman b. Isaac.

(9) The reference must hence be to a wig.

(10) A Biblical shekel. According to Lev. XXVII, 8 a special reduction was made in the case of the poor, but any such reduced estimate may not fall below a sela'.

(11) One twenty years of age and of male sex whose normal valuation is fifty sela's, happens to be poor when paying the poor man's exceptional one sela' for any valuation. That sela', being the legal minimum for a poor man, therefore has paid his debt, and freed him from any obligation, even if afterwards he became rich. But if, whilst poor, he had paid less than a sela', he has not paid the minimum, his obligation to pay his valuation still rests upon him, and on becoming rich he must therefore pay the complete sum due, under the circumstances of payment which for a man not poor, amounts to fifty sela's.

(12) And his prescribed valuation was, say, fifty.

(14) Ibid. 3.

(15) Indicating only a minimum beyond which the sum may be increased to the maximum of fifty. There are no rigorous restrictions between these two sums, adjustments being made in accordance with the possessions of the respective dedicator.

(16) Lev. XXVII, 8.

(17) How will he explain this latter verse?

(18) B.K. 34a.

(19) To the extent of the whole five sela's on the view of the Sages in our Mishnah, so that as far as the second valuation is concerned he had no five sela's to pay and hence discharged his obligation by paying the four sela's.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 8a

But if he paid four for the first [valuation] and one for the second, then he has fulfilled his obligation regarding the second one, but he has failed to discharge his obligation touching the first, as all [his sela's] were subject to the payment for the first.¹

R. Adda b. Ahabah asked: If he had five sela's and said in one utterance, Two of my valuations be upon me [to pay], how then? [Shall I say]. Since he said it in one utterance the obligations arise simultaneously so that he would have to pay two and a half for the one valuation and two and a half for the other, or is the whole sum due for each of them? — The question remains [unanswered].

THERE IS NO VALUATION LESS THAN ONE SELA' NOR MORE etc. Why is this re-statement necessary? — This is what we are told: There is none less than one sela', but there are some above one sela'; there is none above fifty sela's, but there are some below fifty sela's, and it [the teaching] is stated anonymously² in accord with the Rabbis.

MISHNAH. IF A WOMAN GOES ASTRAY³ IN HER RECKONING THERE IS NO RE-OPENING FOR HER [OF THE NIDDAH COUNT] EARLIER THAN SEVEN, NOR LATER THAN AFTER SEVENTEEN DAYS.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: If a woman astray in her reckoning said: 'I saw uncleanness for one day' then her re-count begins after seventeen days;⁴ [if she says.] 'I saw uncleanness for two days', her re-count commences after seventeen days;⁵ [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for three days', her re-count commences after seventeen days.⁶ [If she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for four days', her re-count commences after sixteen days;⁷ [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for five days', her re-count commences after fifteen days.⁸ [If she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for six days', her re-count commences after fourteen days; [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for seven days', her re-count commences after thirteen days; [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for eight days', her re-count commences after twelve days; [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for nine days', her re-count commences after eleven days; [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for ten days', her re-count commences after ten days;⁹ [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for eleven days', her re-count commences after nine days; [if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for twelve days',¹⁰ her re-count commences after eight days;

(1) The decision being in accord with the Sages, all his sela's were affected by the first valuation. The practical difference lies in the fact that since now he is considered as still obliged to make payment for the first valuation, he would have to pay full fifty sela's if at any later time he became rich.

(2) Whenever one Mishnah reports conflicting opinions in the name of the disputants, and another a decision in this case anonymously, the latter is regarded as authoritative.

(3) Lev. XV deals with the regulations touching the woman's issue (of blood), and distinguishes between an issue 'in time of her impurity' and one 'not in' or 'beyond' the time of her impurity. The flow 'in the time of her impurity' is called dam niddah — the blood of her menstruation; the flow beyond or outside the time of her impurity is called dam zibah — the blood of one having an issue. According to the law of the Torah a woman who menstruates for the first time becomes unclean as niddah for seven days, the day on which she menstruated included. She remains in this state of uncleanness for seven days, independent of whether she has had that issue of blood for the first day only or on any other of the seven days. Even if she should suffer such issue for seven days continuously, as long as it has stopped before sunset on the seventh day, she takes the ritual bath that night and becomes clean thereby. These seven days are her niddah days. The eleven days following are called 'the days of her having an issue', yeme zibah, any issue of blood during which is considered 'not in' or 'beyond the time of her impurity'; this period starts at the end of the seven days of her normal impurity, quite independent of her having taken the bath prescribed or not. Any issue of blood on one of these eleven days renders the woman a zabah ketannah, one having a minor issue, and by taking the ritual bath on the day following the issue, she becomes clean if no new issue appeared on the day of the bath. The same law applies if on any other of the eleven days issue should have appeared. But if such issue appeared on three consecutive days, the woman's considered zabah gedolah, one having a major issue, and she does not regain her ritual cleanness until seven days. free from any issue following the last of the three days, have passed. On the seventh day she takes the ritual bath of purification, and on the eighth day she offers two turtle-doves as her sacrifice of purification. If during these eleven days there had been no issue of blood, or only a 'minor issue' then any day from the twelfth on, on which she should have an issue, is the commencement of her niddah days, yeme niddah. If, however, she had become during the eleven days zabah gedolah, one having a major issue, then she does not become a niddah again until there have been seven days after the last day of the flow during which there was no issue whatsoever. Any issue of blood appearing before such seven days have passed is considered part of the days of zibah. Even after the days of her niddah have started she of course becomes a niddah only when and if she has an issue, yeme niddah signifying no more than that she becomes a niddah in case of any issue, as against her being a zibah during the other period. After she has become a niddah again she remains in this state for seven days. to be followed again by the days of zibah. A woman thus can become a zabah only in the eleven days following her yeme niddah; or, if during these eleven days she had three days' consecutive flow, she remains a zabah until she had had seven days of freedom from any flow. After that period she becomes a niddah again, with the first flow. And similarly a woman can become niddah again only after the passing of the eleven days of zibah, or, if during these days she had become a zabah gedolah, one having a large issue, she can become a niddah only after seven days have gone after the last day of the flow during which no further flow was experienced. Upon the day on which the woman becomes niddah again, depends the count of the rest of these days of her niddah state as well as the count of the days of her zibah. Therefore the day on which she becomes niddah is considered the 'entrance', the 'gate', the 're-opening'. The Mishnah refers to a woman 'astray in her reckoning', i.e., one who after purification has experienced a flow of blood, and does not remember whether she was passing through the days of niddah or those of her zibah. She is unable to emerge from this state of uncertainty to a new safe reckoning until after the end of the present flow she experiences a new one, as to which she is definitely sure that it was her period of niddah. This certainty cannot be obtained earlier than after seven days, nor later than after seventeen days, during which she experiences no flow of blood at all.

(4) If the flow of blood had lasted for only one day, followed by seventeen days free from any flow, then any new flow signifies the commencement of her days of niddah. For the day on which she had the flow concerning which she was astray fell either into her period of zibah or into that of niddah. If that day was one, or even the first one, of her days of zibah then the days of her niddah would have commenced no later than on the tenth day after the flow; and her flow on the eighteenth day renders her a niddah. If, however, the day on which she had that flow, concerning which she was astray, should have been one of her yeme niddah, then having become niddah on that day (after her bath of purification which terminated her uncleanness) she remains in the state of niddah for six more days, becomes a zabah for the eleven days following, to enter her period of niddah thereupon, eleven days later, which is on the eighteenth day or any day following it.

(5) Similarly, if she had seen blood for two days, then the flow of blood again after seventeen days of cleanness is there-commencement of her days of niddah. If these two days were days of zibah then the days of niddah would commence no later than nine days after the flow, Or, if the two days of the flow were in the period of niddah then that period of niddah was over in five days, the following period of zibah terminated after eleven days, or the new period of niddah would re-commence after only sixteen days. But it is also possible that the first of the two days was the last day of the zibah period and the second the first of the niddah period, in which case six more days would be necessary to terminate her niddah period, to be followed by eleven days for her zibah period, so that seventeen days must pass before she can definitely be said to have become a niddah again.

last four days of the niddah period, and the following eleven of the zibah period. But since it is also possible that the first two of the three days of the flow were the last days of the zibah period, and that consequently the niddah period would commence only with the third, six more days of the niddah period followed by eleven days of the zibah period must pass before the woman can re-commence her new niddah period, hence again the necessity of seventeen clean days before she can definitely re-commence her reckoning.

(7) If all the four days were either yeme niddah or yeme zibah, the new re-commencement could have started before seventeen days. If they were yeme zibah, the new period of niddah would start after seven days. If the days of the flow fell in the niddah period, the new reckoning could start after fourteen days, viz., the remaining three days of the niddah period and the eleven of the zibah period. In this case one cannot posit the possibility of the first three days of the four days' flow having been the last days of the zibah period, followed by the fourth day as the first of the new niddah period, for, as explained above, the niddah period does not follow upon a three-day flow in the zibah period, before seven completely free days have passed. But it is possible that the first two of the four-day flow were the last days of the zibah period, whereupon only the third day signified the commencement of the zibah period, so that five more days of the niddah and eleven days of the zibah period are required before her re-commencement of her new niddah period may be definitely assumed.

(8) V. next note.

(10) In the case of eleven days, on the same basis, two days of the new zibah period have passed after the intervening days of niddah, so that only the remaining nine days of zibah must be counted before the woman re-enters her niddah period; in the case of a twelve-day flow there are only eight; in the case of a thirteen-day flow only seven days of the zibah period before the new niddah period re-commences. Never earlier than before the passing of seven days, because that is the period necessary for a zibah to become a niddah again, never later than after seventeen days, so that the Mishnaic law becomes evident as indicating the minimum and the maximum necessary for a woman astray in her reckoning before she can definitely reach the 'gate' of her safe reckoning, i.e., the re-commencement of her niddah period.

[if she says,] 'I saw uncleanness for thirteen days', then her re-count commences after seven days; for the re-opening [of the Niddah count] does not come before seven nor later than after seventeen days. R. Adda b. Ahabah said to Rabbah: Why all this [reckoning]? Let her count seven days and be permitted [to have intercourse]! — He answered: [We are meaning] to set her right concerning her menstruation and its re-commencement.¹

Our Rabbis taught: All women who are astray in their reckoning are zaboth² and must offer a sacrifice which must not be eaten,³ with the exception of those whose [niddah] re-count started after the seventh or after the eighth day.⁴ who must offer a sacrifice which is to be eaten. But are women astray in their reckoning zaboth? Furthermore, must a woman who has had an issue one day, or two days, at all offer up a sacrifice? — Rather read, Zaboth who are astray in their reckoning⁵ must offer a sacrifice which is not to be eaten, with the exception of the woman whose [niddah] re-count starts after seven or after eight days, who must offer up a sacrifice that is to be eaten.

MISHNAH. NO SIGNS OF LEPROSY ARE SHUT⁶ UP LESS THAN ONE WEEK AND NONE MORE THAN TWO WEEKS.

GEMARA. NO LESS THAN ONE WEEK refers to human leprosy. NONE MORE THAN THREE WEEKS refers to leprosy of houses. R. Papa said: Thy righteousness is like the mighty mountains,⁷ refers to human leprosy. Thy judgments are like the great deep,⁷ refers to the leprosy of houses. What is the simple meaning of the Scriptural verse? — Were it not for Thy righteousness [as great] as the mighty mountains, who could stand before Thy judgments [as profound] as the great deep! Rabbah said: ‘Thy righteousness is like the mighty mountains’, because ‘Thy judgments are like the great deep’. Wherein are they conflicting? — In the dispute of R. Eleazar and R. Jose b. Hanina, for it was reported that R. Eleazar says: He suppresses;⁸ R. Jose b. Hanina says: He forgives;⁹ Rabbah agrees with the view of R. Eleazar, whilst Rab Judah concurs with that of R. Jose b. Hanina.

MISHNAH. THERE ARE NEVER LESS THAN FOUR FULL MONTHS IN THE YEAR, NOR DID IT SEEM RIGHT TO HAVE MORE THAN EIGHT.¹⁰ THE TWO LOAVES¹¹ WERE CONSUMED NEVER EARLIER THAN THE SECOND, NOR LATER THAN THE THIRD DAY. THE SHEWBREAD¹² WAS CONSUMED NEVER EARLIER THAN THE NINTH NOR LATER THAN THE ELEVENTH DAY. AN INFANT MAY NEVER BE CIRCUMCISED EARLIER THAN THE EIGHTH NOR LATER THAN THE TWELFTH DAY.¹³

GEMARA. What does DID NOT SEEM RIGHT TO HAVE MORE THAN EIGHT mean? — R. Huna said: It did not appear right to the Sages to make more than eight months full. Wherefore is the difference with regard to nine, that they would not [make full]? Because if they did not [stop at eight]

(1) R. Adda meant that this counting of the days has as its sole purpose the permission of renewed sexual congress, whereas our purpose was to enable her to re-establish a definite rule of her counting. For, if e.g., she does not know whether she is in the period of niddah or zibah, she would be confused as to how soon she becomes clean again. as niddah only four more days would be required for her to become clean after a three-day flow, whereas if she were a zibah seven days would be necessary before she becomes a niddah again; or, after one-day's flow, as niddah she would have to wait six more days for the bath of purification, whereas in the case of a minor zibah, such a bath may be taken on the next day.

(2) Plur. of zabah, v. Glos.

(3) This is explained as referring to women astray as to their reckoning who may be suspected of being zaboth. As such they must offer the sacrifices, prescribed for a zabah gedolah, a pair of turtle-doves of which one is a sin-offering, the other a burnt-offering. The burnt-offering is consumed on the altar, but the sin-offering as a rule is partly eaten by the priests. The form of killing, melikah (pinching of the bird's neck with the fingernail) is legitimate only with the required bird sin-offering. Since the woman in the above cases is only suspected of being a ‘zabah’, her sin-offering is not definitely required. In this doubtful case the sin-offering had to be brought to satisfy the possibility of the woman having been a zabah; but it must not be eaten, because there is reasonable doubt, hence the sacrifice may be legally profane and having been killed in a manner prohibited for profane food, is unfit to be eaten by anybody.

(4) In which the woman must have been a zabah. Having had a twelve-day flow of blood, she must have been zabah. For even on the assumption that the first two days were the last days of a zibah, the woman became zibah again on the second count, for the ten days left, seven had belonged to the niddah and the other three to the new zibah, and of course, if the first days came at the beginning of niddah, or three of them were the end of zibah, the woman would definitely be a zibah. In all other cases, however, the woman is only doubtfully a zabah, for just as one could say that three of the days were in the zibah period, making her a zibah proper (zabah gedolah), so could one say that the last two days of the flow came from the zibah period, without making her a zabah gedolah, so that within the days concerned she could not become a zibah again.

(5) I.e., only those who, having had a three-day flow and being thus under the definite suspicion of zibah, whilst astray in their reckoning.

(6) Rashi reads: There is no cleanliness obtainable in the case of leprosy. etc. Lev. XIII distinguishes between leprosy which the priest at his first inspection may be able to declare as either clean or unclean, and doubtful cases. In case of doubt (ibid., 4) the priests must shut up the suspected leper for at least one week, in the case of leprosy of a house, which has remained unchanged after the first week, and has either remained unchanged or has spread at the end of the second week, the priest must shut up the house for another, the third week. V. Neg. XIII, 1.

(7) Ps. XXXVI, 7. The word zedakah (righteousness) has also the meaning of 'mercy'. It is a mark of divine mercy in prescribing one week's shutting in for man.

(8) Or, presses down the balance of merits; v. next note.

(9) Or, raises the scale of impurity. According to R. Eleazar: The Lord in His mercy ignores man's sins, so that his good deeds may save him when before the throne of God in judgment. According to R. Jose b. Hanina: The Lord forgiving, wipes the sins off completely, or, in the case of the man's repentance, changes his very sins into virtues. (V. R.H. 17a.) Rabbah, explaining in terms of R. Eleazar, sees God's zedakah in the fact He keeps His judgment of man's sins in the deep abyss, invisible on the day of judgment, whereas Rab Judah suggests, in accord with the other Tanna, that but for God's supreme zedakah which forgives iniquity, or, for the repentant changes it into moral asset, man could not stand the divine judgment.

(10) A full month (lit., 'a prolonged one') is one of thirty days, a defective one is one of twenty-nine days. The average year has six months of thirty days each, and six of twenty-nine days each. For there are about twenty-nine and one half days between one new moon and the other, whence a month of thirty days, to restore the balance, must be followed by one of twenty-nine days. However, there are more than twenty-nine and one half days between one new moon and the other, approximately twenty-nine days, twelve hours and forty minutes; furthermore, there are other causes influencing the fixing of the calendar, as the result of which the arrangement of six full and defective months undergoes certain variations, so that one year might have a larger number of full, the other more than the half of defective months. In the time of the Mishnah the Sanhedrin decreed the beginning of the new months on the basis of the testimony of witnesses who had actually seen the new moon. But even then conditions would arise (such as non-visibility of the new moon, due to cloudy weather) when the Sanhedrin would be guided by its own astronomical calculations. For such a decree the principle was adopted that no year may have more than eight, nor less than four full months.

(11) Of the Feast of Weeks, v. Lev. XXIII, 27. Since they could not be eaten before the lambs of the sacrifice had been offered up, they were not as profane food, for which alone permission to bake or cook was given on the Holy Day on which all manner of work is prohibited. And as not immediately ready for human food, and hence not under the category of permitted labour, these breads had to be baked on the day before the Feast of Weeks, or, if the latter fell on a Sabbath, on the Friday preceding it. i.e., on the third day. Ex. XII, 16: Save that which every man must eat, that alone may be done by you, excludes that which is not immediately available for human use.

(12) Placed every Sabbath on the Table in the Sanctuary and consumed by the priests on the following Sabbath, they had to be baked on the preceding Friday (not earlier, since they were to be fresh). If a Holy Day fell on Friday, they were baked on Thursday. If the two days of the New Year fell on Thursday and Friday (the only Holy Day which could, even in the time of the Sanhedrin, last for two days. v. Men. 100b), the shewbread would be baked on Wednesday to be eaten on the following Sabbath, on the eleventh day, its baking overriding neither the Sabbath, nor a Holy Day.

(13) The circumcision performed on the eighth day overrides both Sabbath and Holy Day. Here, however, we deal with a boy born Friday eve at twilight. Hence his birthday is doubtful: it may be either Friday or Saturday. the twilight may be considered as belonging either to the day past or to the following one. The Sabbath following may therefore be the eighth or the ninth day after the birth and the circumcision must be postponed (for a doubtfully eighth day circumcision does not override the Sabbath) to the following, the tenth day. If the following day be a Holy Day, the circumcision could not take place before the eleventh day. If the two days of New Year fall on Sunday, the circumcision is postponed to the twelfth day. V. Shab. 137b.

the new moon¹ would come three days too early! But now, too. It would come two days too early?² — This is in accord with what R. Mesharsheya said: 'It refers to a case where the preceding year was prolonged',³ Here, too, the reference is to a year following a prolonged year, and the prolongation of a year is one month.⁴ But put one full month against one incomplete month, and there will be still one day left?⁵ — People do not pay too much attention to that.⁶

'Ulla said: [the meaning is,] It did not seem right to the Sages to make more than eight defective months. He [the Tanna] states here a reason:⁷ What is the reason that it did not seem right to the Sages to have less than four full months? Because it did not seem right to them to have more than eight defective months. Why not nine? Because in that case the new moon would be coming three days too late?⁸ But now, too, it would be coming two days too late? — That is to be explained in accord with R. Mesharsheya: 'It refers to a case where the preceding year was prolonged'; here, too, the reference is to a year following a prolonged year.⁹ Deduct one defective month against one full month, and still there will be one day left?¹⁰ They [the people] will say: It [the moon] has actually been seen, whilst we had paid no attention.¹¹ [

- (1) The new moon, coming say on Wednesday, with New Year starting only on the Sabbath. This discrepancy would cause popular murmuring against the 'arbitrariness of the Sages'.
- (2) But the arrangement of eight months, too, would leave a difference of two days, hence what is the value of limiting it to eight full months? Normally six full months plus six defective ones would take care of the situation.
- (3) I.e., a year of thirteen months.
- (4) Which may be either full or defective, and having made the intercalation of the preceding year defective, we have regained one day. which is counter-balanced by one day of the eight full months this year.
- (5) Yet, even with one month full, and one month of last year incomplete. we gain only one day, so that one day still intervenes between the new moon of Tishri and the fixation of the New Year; so that popular clamour against the Sanhedrin's margin would be aroused still.
- (6) A one day's margin would not be considered abuse of the Sanhedrin's function.
- (7) And 'for what reason', he says.
- (8) 'Ulla's interpretation of the Mishnah: No less than four full months, but not more either, because 'it did not seem right to the Sages to have more than eight defective months', so that the New Moon should not appear three days after the New Year.
- (9) And the prolonged month was made full, the consideration being the reverse of the former.
- (10) Cf. n. 3 mutatis mutandis.
- (11) The people assume in this case that the Sanhedrin had good reason, the basis of which, the actual seeing of the new moon, had escaped themselves.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 9b

In what principle do they differ?¹ — In regard to the prolonged year. For it was taught: By how much is a year prolonged? By thirty days. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said: By a month.²

An objection was raised: The Feast of Weeks can fall only on the day of the waving,³ and the New Year can fall only on either the day of the waving or the day following the night of the last day of the full month [of Nisan].⁴ Now that will be right according to 'Ulla if eight defective months could be arranged, but not full ones; hence this may happen thus: if both are defective, it falls on the day of the waving; if one is full and the other defective, it falls on the day following the night of the last day of the full month.⁵ But according to R. Huna who says one does make [eight] full months, it may happen that it falls on the day following the day after the night of the last day of the full month?⁶ — R. Huna will answer you: But is it indeed right. according to 'Ulla? Only eight [full] months are not made, but we do make seven. Now can it not happen that we arrange them not in winter but in the summer, with the result that it would possibly fall upon the day following the day after the last day of the full month?⁷ — Rather, this is in agreement with the 'Others', for it was taught: 'Others' taught. Between one Feast of Weeks and the other, and between one New Year and the other, there is an interval of no more than four days [of the week], or in the case of a prolonged year, five days.⁸ But, at all events, on the view of the 'Others', it could not fall on the day of the waving? — R. Mesharsheya said: The reference is to a prolonged year, and the prolongation of a year is by thirty days. Deduct one [full] month against the other [full one] and it will fall upon the day of the waving.⁹

Said R. Adda b. Ahabah to Raba: Do 'Others' intend teaching us [how to count] the number?¹⁰ —

This is what they convey to us: That it is not obligatory to proclaim a new moon on the basis of having seen it.¹¹ Rabina demurred: But there are days made of hours,¹² and days of thirty years?¹³ — Since they do not occur every year, he does not count them. Samuel, too, agreed with the view of R. Huna, for Samuel said: The lunar year consists of no less than three hundred and fifty-two, nor of more than three hundred and fifty-six days. How is that? — If the two are full,¹⁴ there are [fifty] six; if the two are incomplete. [fifty] two; if one is complete and one incomplete, [fifty] four.

An objection was raised: [If one said,] I shall be a Nazirite according to the number of the days of the solar year, then he must count for his Naziriteship three hundred and sixty-five days according to the years of the sun; [if he said,] According to the days of the lunar year, he must count for his Naziriteship three hundred and fifty-four days according to the days of the lunar year. Now, if that [account above] were right, at times you find [a year of three hundred and fifty] six days?¹⁵ — With regard to vows go after human parlance as well as after the majority of years. Rabbi, too, held the view of R. Huna, for it was taught: Rabbi happened to have arranged for nine defective months, and the moon [of Tishri] was seen in its due season! Whereupon Rabbi was amazed and said: We have arranged nine incomplete ones and yet the moon [of Tishri] appeared in due season! R. Simeon b. Rabbi said to him: perhaps this happened to be a prolonged year

(1) R. Huna and 'Ulla. R. Huna accepts R. Simeon b. Gamaliel's view and 'Ulla that of the first Tanna.

(2) A month of twenty-nine days. The margin is the point of difference.

(3) The second day of Passover (v. Lev. XXIII, 10-12) i.e., on the same day of the week as the second day of Passover. The fifty days are counted from the sixteenth of Nisan to the first of Shabuoth. Hence the fiftieth day must fall upon the same week-day as the first, the day of the waving.

(4) Or iburo, the night of its being made a full month, because upon the night depends its completeness, for if the new moon is proclaimed for the thirty-first day, that fact renders the month just passed full (one of thirty days).

(5) [Normally the twelve months of the year beginning with Tishri are full and defective in rotation. Where there is a departure from this order, the only months affected are Kislew in the winter and Siwan in the summer, which months are made defective instead of being normally full. Now if both these months are made defective, giving eight defective months for the year, there is an interval between the 30th of Nisan and the first of Tishri of eight days of the week, i.e., the first of Tishri falls on the same day of the week as the 31st of Nisan; and since the 30th of Nisan falls on the same day as the day of waving, which is exactly fifteen days before, the New Year will also fall on the day of waving. Should, on the other hand, only one of these two months be made defective — namely Kislew, whilst Siwan is full, there would be nine days of the week difference between the 30th of Nisan and the first of Tishri, so that New Year will fall on the 31st day. i.e., the day following the night of the last day of the full month of Nisan.]

(6) [On the view of R. Huna that we make eight full months, the two months Heshwan (in winter) and Iyyar (in summer) normally defective are made full, with the result that one extra day of the week is added as interval between the 30th day of Nisan and the first Tishri making New Year to fall two week-days after the 30th of Nisan.]

(7) [By making the extra full month in the summer, there would be added an extra day of the week as in p. 51, n. 6 with the same result.]

(8) The statement that the New Year must fall either on the day of the week on which the waving day falls or upon the day following the night after the last day of the full month is in accord with the teaching of 'Others', who hold that all months are full and defective in strict rotation, making a total of 354 which is four days over fifty weeks, leaving four days of the week as interval between one New Year and the other in a normal year and five in a prolonged year.

(9) [Having added in winter an extra full month, Nisan is made defective, with the result that we have four defective months during the summer, making New Year fall on the day of the waving. v. p. 51, n. 5.]

(10) From the fact that all months follow each other in regular order, it follows that there are four days' difference between the New Years.

(11) Even without having actually seen the new moon the new month may be proclaimed by the proper authorities.

(12) Granted that 'Others' go by the order of the new moons, yet it happens that in a simple (not prolonged) year, five days may intervene between one Passover and the other. For the forty minutes above twenty-nine days and twelve hours, between one moon and the other, make in one year an additional eight hours, in three years an additional day.

(13) And even when that is accounted for, there remain minutes, which added to one another amount in every thirty years to one complete day. The exact duration is: twenty-nine days, twelve 793/1080 hours, which time fragments combined add one day in every three, and one additional one every thirty years.

(14) Of the defective ones (i.e., Marheshwan and Iyyar) they add two days, i.e., three hundred and fifty-six days altogether; if two of the full ones (i.e., Kislew and Siwan) are made defective, there are two days less than usual, and the year has but three hundred and fifty-two days.

(15) Then why should the Nazirite be given a reduced term, two days shorter?

and the prolongation of a year is by thirty days. and last year we made the two full, put the three full against the three defective, and it will come to Its proper place.¹ He answered to him: Light of Israel! So it was! MISHNAH. THEY BLEW NEVER LESS THAN TWENTY-ONE BLASTS IN THE SANCTUARY AND NEVER MORE THAN FORTY-EIGHT.² THEY PLAYED NEVER ON LESS THAN TWO HARPS,³ OR MORE THAN SIX, NOR EVER ON LESS THAN TWO FLUTES OR MORE THAN TWELVE. ON TWELVE DAYS IN THE YEAR WAS THE FLUTE [HALIL] PLAYED BEFORE THE ALTAR.⁴ AT THE KILLING OF THE FIRST PASSOVER-SACRIFICE,⁵ AT THE KILLING OF THE SECOND PASSOVER-SACRIFICE,⁶ ON THE FIRST FESTIVAL DAY OF PASSOVER, ON THE FESTIVAL DAY OF THE FEAST OF WEEKS, AND ON THE EIGHT DAYS OF THE FEAST [OF TABERNACLES].⁷ AND THEY DID NOT PLAY ON A PIPE [ABUB]⁸ OF BRONZE BUT ON A REED PIPE, BECAUSE ITS TUNE IS SWEETER. NOR WAS ANY BUT A PIPE SOLO USED FOR CLOSING⁹ A TUNE. BECAUSE IT MAKES A PLEASANT FINALE. THEY¹⁰ WERE SLAVES OF THE PRIESTS. ACCORDING TO R. MEIR. R. JOSE SAID: THEY WERE OF THE FAMILIES BETH HAPEGARIM, BETH-ZIPPORUA AND FROM EMMAUS,¹¹ FROM WHICH PRIESTS WOULD MARRY [WOMEN].¹² R. HANINA B. ANTIGONOS SAID: THEY WERE LEVITES.¹³

GEMARA. Our Mishnah¹⁴ will not be in accord with R. Judah. for it was taught: R. Judah said: One who sounds a smaller number of blasts may not sound less than seven, and one who sounds a larger number must not exceed sixteen. What principle are they disputing? — R. Judah says: Teki'ah, teru'ah, teki'ah¹⁵ constitute one sound,¹⁶ whereas the Sages hold: Teki'ah is a separate sound, so is teru'ah, and so the [second] teki'ah.¹⁷ What is the reason for R. Judah's view? — It is written: And when ye blow an alarm [teki'ah],¹⁸ and again it is written: They shall blow an alarm [teru'ah],¹⁹ from this it is evident that teki'ah, teru'ah and teki'ah are one sound.²⁰ And the Sages? — That merely indicates that the teru'ah sound is to be both preceded and followed by a teki'ah sound.²¹ What is the reason of the Sages' view? — Scripture says: But when the assembly is to be gathered together, ye shall blow, but ye shall not sound an alarm.²² Now, if one should assume that teki'ah, teru'ah, and teki'ah are together only one sound would the Divine Law have said: perform but one half of the command! And R. Judah? — This is no more than a signal.²³ According to whom will be the following teaching of R. Kahana: There may be no interruption whatever between teki'ah and teru'ah? — According to whom? According to R. Judah. But this is obvious. You might have said: It may be in accord even with the Rabbis, and it is taught thus only to exclude the view of R. Johanan who said that if one heard nine sounds even in the course of nine hours during the day, he had fulfilled his duty,²⁴ therefore we are informed [that this is not so]. But say, perhaps it is indeed so? — If that were the case, what means: 'No interruption whatever'?

ON TWELVE DAYS IN THE YEAR WAS THE FLUTE PLAYED etc. Why just on these days? Because an individual²⁵ completes the Hallel psalms on them.²⁶ For R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Jehozadak: There are eighteen days on which an individual completes the Hallel: the eight days of the Feast [of Tabernacles], the eight days of Hanukkah, the first Festival day of Passover and the Festival day of the Feast of Weeks. In the exile²⁷ [one praying individually completes the Hallel] on twenty-one days: the nine days of the Feast [of Tabernacles], the eight days of Hanukkah, the two Festival days of Passover, and the two Festival days of the Feast of Weeks.

Why this difference that on the Feast [of Tabernacles] we complete Hallel on all the days, and on the Passover Festival we do

(1) Rabbi also held that eight full months are the limit, hence his astonishment when the new moon of Tishri came at the proper time in spite of the additional incomplete months. Last year the two normally defective months (Heshwan and Iyyar) were made full and the intercalated month was full. If the three defective ones of this year are placed against the three full ones of last year a normal situation is achieved, hence the new moon of Tishri appeared at the moment when it was fixed.

(2) V. Suk. 53b.

(3) Lit., 'a kind of hose', nabla in Greek, which according to Josephus had twelve strings and was played with the hand.

(4) On these days all the thanksgiving Psalms (Hallel. Ps. CXIII-CXVIII) were sung. The meaning here is doubtful: either, 'on these days the flute was played before the altar, whereas on other days it was played together with all other instruments on the Dukhan by the Levites', or on these days alone the flute was played, on other days other instruments only. The technical term 'beat' (מכה) applies to the flute, because tunes are evoked thereon by beating with the fingers on the holes.

(5) During the singing of the Hallel, Pes. 64a.

(6) On Iyyar the fourteenth, when the Passover-sacrifice of those who on Nisan the fourteenth were on a journey afar off, or in an unclean state, was offered up. V. Num. IX, 9ff.

(7) The playing of the flute on these days was part of the official music in the Sanctuary, prescribed during the process of offering up the sacrifices, and overriding both Sabbath and Holy Days. But the playing of the flute at the Water Festival (Suk. 50a) overrode neither, and was permissible on a week-day only.

(8) The change in the Hebrew designation for 'pipe' is explained in the Gemara.

(9) Either, 'to smoothe', then in the causative, to close a tune softly; or, 'to separate', to close one before the other starts; or, the overture, before the song commences.

(10) It was the youths or servants who played the flutes as well as the other instruments.

(11) Near Tiberias.

(12) Not slaves but youths of noble families, with whom the proud priestly families were willing to intermarry. The practical difference arising from this dispute has something to do with a man's claim to descent and desire to marry into a priestly family. If none but the youths of such excellent families were admitted to such service, participation in the latter would be sufficient evidence of noble descent and would eo ipso be sufficient ground for admission into such family. According to R. Meir even servants were admitted to such service, hence former participation therein is no evidence of noble descent, and no self-sufficient ground for admission into a priestly family.

(13) Legally also non-Levites were admissible. Actually, however, only Levites were admitted, whence the fact of ones participation was sufficient proof of levitical descent,

(14) In that it teaches: 'They blew never less than twenty-one, nor more than forty-eight blasts'.

(15) Teki'ah: one long sound; teru'ah; a rapid succession of three notes each, a broken tune. The value (length) of a teki'ah is equal to a teru'ah. V. R.H. 34a as to the significance and form of the sounds.

(16) And consequently are to be sounded without a break between them.

(17) And consequently are to be separated from each other by a small pause.

(18) Num. X, 5.

(19) Ibid. 6.

(20) The Hebrew verb used to denote 'blow' in both instances is derived from the same root as teki'ah.

(21) The proof is derived from the fact that teru'ah in these passages is preceded and followed by the root word of 'teki'ah', interpreted here as indicative of the form the blast took.

(22) Num. X, 7.

(23) It is not a proper sound of teki'ah, but a mere signal of assembly.

not do so on all of its days? — The days of the Feast [of Tabernacles] are differentiated from one another in respect of the sacrifices due thereon, whereas the days of Passover are differentiated from one another in respect of their sacrifices.¹ Let it then be read on the Sabbath which is distinguished by its sacrifices? — It [Sabbath] is not called a festival. But what of New Moon which is called a festival, let the complete Hallel be said on it? — [New Moon] is not sanctified as to [prohibition of] labour, as it is written: Ye shall have a song as in the night when a feast is hallowed,² i.e., only the night sanctified towards a festival requires a song, but the night which is not sanctified towards a festival does not require a song. Then let the Hallel be said on the New Year and on the Day of Atonement, both of which are called Festival and are sanctified by [the prohibition of] labour?³ — That [is not possible] because of R. Abbahu, for R. Abbahu said: The ministering angels said before the Holy One, blessed be He: Why do not the Israelites sing a song before you on the New Year and on the Day of Atonement? He answered them: Would that be possible; the King sits on the throne of Judgment, with the books of those destined to live and destined to die before Him, and Israel singing a song before Me? But there is Hanukkah, on which neither one nor the other [condition applies] and the Hallel is said? — That is due to the miracle. Then let it be said on Purim, on which, too, a miracle occurred? — Said R. Isaac: [It is not said] because no song [Hallel] is said for a miracle that occurred outside the [Holy] Land. To this R. Nahman b. Isaac demurred: But there is the exodus from Egypt, which constitutes a miracle that happened outside the Land, and yet we say Hallel? — There it is due to the fact taught, for it was taught: Before Israel entered the [Holy] Land, all the lands were considered fit for song to be said [if a miracle had occurred in their boundaries]; once Israel had entered the Land, no other countries were considered fit for song to be said. R. Nahman, however, answered: The reading [of the Megillah]⁴ that is its [Purim's] Hallel. Raba said: It fits quite well there: Praise ye servants of the Lord,⁵ but not servants of Pharaoh; but here 'servants of the Lord', not servants of Ahasuerus. Surely they are still servants of Ahasuerus! But according to R. Nahman who says the reading [of the Megillah] is its Hallel, was it not taught that after Israel had entered the Land, no other land was considered fit to sing Hallel about? — After Israel was exiled they [the other countries] were restored to their original fitness.

THEY DID NOT PLAY ON A PIPE OF BRONZE: He [the Tanna] begins with Halil and closes with Abub? — Said R. Papa. Halil is the same of Abub [this latter being its right name], and why was it called Halil? — Because its tune is sweet [hali].

Our Rabbis taught: There was a pipe in the Sanctuary which was smooth and thin, made of reed, and from the days of Moses, [and its sound was pleasant].⁶ The king commanded to overlay it with gold, whereupon its sound was no more pleasant. Then its overlay was taken off, and its sound was pleasant again as before. There was a cymbal in the Sanctuary from the days of Moses, made of bronze, and its sound was pleasant; then it became damaged. The Sages sent for craftsmen from Alexandria of Egypt, and they mended it, but its sound was not pleasant any more. Thereupon they removed the improvement and its sound became as pleasant as it was before. A bronze mortar was in the Sanctuary, from the days of Moses, and it would mix the drugs. When it became damaged the Sages sent for craftsmen from Alexandria of Egypt who mended it, but it would no more mix the drugs as well as it used to.⁷ Whereupon they removed the improvement, and it would mix them well again as before. These two vessels were left over from the first Sanctuary, and after they had been damaged there was no remedy for them. It is with reference to them that David said: They were of burnished brass,⁸ and bright brass.⁹ In connection with them it is said also: And two vessels of fine bright brass, precious as gold.¹⁰ Rab and Samuel were disputing: One said each of them had the full weight of two of gold; the other held both of them had the weight of one of gold. R. Joseph learnt: Both of them had the weight of one of gold. It was taught: Nathan said: They were two each,¹¹ for shenayim is the written text, which one should read: not shenayim [two], but shniyyim [double ones].

R. Simeon b. Gamaliel taught: The Siloah was gushing forth through a mouth of the size of an issar.¹² The king commanded and it was widened so that its waters be increased, but the waters diminished. Thereupon it was narrowed again, whereupon it had its [original] flow, to make true that which was said: Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might.¹³ Thus also would R. Simeon b. Gamaliel say: There was no hirdolim in the Sanctuary. [What is hirdolim?] — Abaye said: A musical instrument [table]¹⁴ worked by pressure [of water] because its sound was heavy and disturbed the music. Rabbah b. Shila, in the name of R. Mattenah, on the authority of Samuel, said: There was a magrefa¹⁵ in the Sanctuary; it had ten holes, each of which produced

(2) Isa. XXX, 29.

(3) In spite of the fact that the New Moon is also called a festival, it lacks the condition of 'sanctification by Prohibition of labour'.

(10) Ezra VIII, 27.

(11) I.e., two cymbals and two mortars.

(12) V. Glos.

(13) Jer. IX, 22. The lesson to be derived from these accounts seems to be, no 'foreign' improvements could remove what appeared imperfect in the Sanctuary. Things became right after the disastrous 'improvements' were removed.

(14) No absolutely satisfactory interpretation of this work is available: The very letters are uncertain, nor is the text clear. V. Tosaf. a.l. The rendering here adopts the reading ab (heavy) instead of 'areb (pleasant) of cur. edd. V. Marginal Gloss. Jast. connects it with hydraula (water-organ) and renders: There was no organ used in the Sanctuary because it would interfere (eliminating 'areb, pleasant. perhaps as dittography of um'arbeb) with the sweetness of the song.

ten different kinds of sounds, with the result that the whole amounted to one hundred kinds of sounds. A Tanna taught: It was one cubit long, one cubit high, from it projected a handle, which had ten holes. Each of them produced one hundred kinds of sounds, amounting for the whole to one thousand kinds of sounds. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: To remember whose teaching it is: The Baraita exaggerates'.¹ THEY WERE SLAVES OF THE PRIESTS. Shall we say they are of conflicting opinions concerning the following principle: He who said they [the players of the instruments] were slaves holds that the essential in the music of the Sanctuary was the singing with the mouth, the instrumental music being just for sweetening the sound; whereas he who said that they were Levites holds the instrumental music to have been the essential. But if you reason this way, what will appear as R. Jose's view? If he holds that the essential of the [Sanctuary] music was the singing with the mouth, it [the instrumental music] should have been satisfactory [if performed] by slaves; if [on the other hand] he holds that instrumental music was the essential, it would have to be done by Levites?² — In reality he holds that vocal music was the essential; here, however, they are disputing as to whether one may promote one from the dukhan³ to noble⁴ families and to the enjoyment of tithes.⁵ He who said that they [the players of the instruments] were slaves would hold one may not promote any one from the dukhan to either noble families or to the enjoyment of tithes; whereas he who said they were Levites would hold one may promote any one from the dukhan both to [marriage into] noble families and to the enjoyment of tithes; whereas he who said that they [the players of instruments] were Israelites, would hold that one may promote any one from the dukhan to [marriage into] noble families, but not to the enjoyment of tithes.⁶

Our Rabbis taught: The omission of the song invalidates the sacrifice, this is the view of R. Meir. The Sages, however, hold that the omission of the song does not invalidate the sacrifice. What is the reason of R. Meir? — R. Eleazar⁷ said: Because Scripture said, And I have given the Levites — they are given to Aaron and to his sons from among the children of Israel . . . and to make atonement for the children of Israel,⁸ i.e., just as atonement⁹ is indispensable, so is the song indispensable. And the Rabbis? — This [analogy is] with reference to another teaching of R. Eleazar, for R. Eleazar said: Just as the atonement is performed during the day, so does the song take place during the day.¹⁰

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: Whence do we know that fundamentally the song is obligatory on the basis of the Torah? As it is said: Then shall he minister in the name of the Lord his God.¹¹ Now which ministry is it in the course of which the Lord's name is mentioned? You must say: It is the song. But perhaps it is the [priest's] raising of the hands [to bless]? — Since Scripture said: To minister unto Him and to bless in His name,¹² it follows that the priest's blessing [in itself] is no ministry. R. Mattenah said: [It is derived] from here: Because thou didst not serve the Lord thy God in joyfulness and with gladness of heart.¹³ Now which service is it that is 'in joyfulness and with gladness of heart'? — You must say: It is song. But perhaps it means the words of the Torah, as it is written: The precepts of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart?¹⁴ — They are described as 'rejoicing the heart', but not as 'gladdening [the heart]'. But say [it refers to] first-fruits, as it is written: And thou shalt rejoice in all the good?¹⁵ — They are called 'good', but not 'gladdening the heart'. R. Mattenah said: Whence do we know that the [offering up of] first-fruits requires a song? — We infer that from the analogy of the words 'good', 'good'¹⁶ which occur here too. But that is not so, for R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Whence do we know that the song is not sung [in the Sanctuary] except over wine? — Because it is said: And the vine said unto them: Should I leave my wine, which cheereth God aid man?¹⁷ Granted that it cheers men, whereby can it cheer God? From this it is evident that the song is not sung except over wine! — That is possible in accord with what R. Jose taught: [You shall take of the fruit of the ground¹⁸ implies] You may offer the fruit, but not liquids. Whence do we know that if he brought grapes and pressed them [he has performed his duty de facto]? The text therefore states: Which thou shalt bring.¹⁹

Hezekiah said [we infer this] from the following passage:²⁰ And Chenaniah, chief of the Levites, was over the song; he was master [yasor] in the song, because he was skilful.²¹ Do not read 'yasor', but 'yashir' [he sang]. Belvati, in the name of R. Johanan inferred it from here: To do the work of service.²² Which work needs [depends on] service? Say: That is the song. R. Isaac inferred it from here: Take up the melody, and sound the timbrel, the sweet harp with the psaltery.²³ R. Nahman b. Isaac derived it from here: Those yonder lift up their voice, they sing for joy; for the majesty of the Lord they shout from the sea.²⁴ One Tanna derived it from here: But unto the sons of Kohath he gave none, because the service of the holy things belonged unto them: they bore them upon their shoulders.²⁵ Would I not have known from the meaning of 'upon their shoulders', that they bore them? Wherefore then they bore them'? But 'they bore them' here means 'in song', for thus also it is said: Take up [se'u] the melody and sound the timbrel,²³ and it is said also: They lift up [yisse'u] their voices, they sing for joy, etc.²⁴ Hananiah, the son of the brother of R. Joshua derived it from here: Moses spoke and God answered him by a voice²⁶

(1) Whereas the Mishnah is exact in its style, the Baraitha allows itself occasional hyperbolic language. R. Gershom a.l. uses severe language against the Baraitha. Rashi refers to Hul. 90b where, however, some of the exaggerations go back to the Mishnah Middoth, or are no exaggerations. In this case, at any rate, the Mishnah reports a reasonably effective instrument, whereas the Baraitha tells a tall instrument story.

[i.e.,] concerning the voice.¹ R. Ashi² derived it from here: It came even to pass when the trumpeters and singers were as one to make one sound to be heard.³ R. Jonathan derived it from here: That they die not, neither they, nor ye.⁴ [i.e.,] just as you at the service of the altar, so they, too, at the service of the altar. It was taught also thus: 'That they die not, neither they, nor ye. viz., ye by engaging in their work, or they by engaging in yours, would incur penalty of death; they, however, by engaging in [another's] work of their⁵ own [group] would be incurring penalty for transgression, but not death. Abaye said: We have it on tradition that a singing Levite who did his colleague's work at the gate incurs the penalty of death,⁶ as it is said: And those that were to pitch before the tabernacle eastward before the tent of meeting toward the sunrising, were Moses and Aaron, etc. and the stranger that drew nigh was to be put to death.⁷ What 'stranger' is meant here? Would you say a real stranger [non-priest]? But that has been mentioned [by Scripture] already! Rather, must it mean a 'stranger' to this particular service.

An objection was raised: Concerning a Levite chorister that attended to the Temple gates, or a gate-keeping Levite who sang, as to whether they are guilty of a transgression or incurring penalty of death, that is a matter of dispute among Tannaim, for it was taught: It happened that R. Joshua b. Hananyia went to assist R. Johanan b. Gudgeda in the fastening of the Temple doors,⁸ whereupon he [the latter] said to him: My son, turn back, for you are of the choristers, not of the door-keepers. Would you not say that they were of divided opinion herein, that one held⁹ he incurs the penalty of death, and for this reason the Rabbis forbade [their assisting], whereas the other held that only a transgression was involved, whence [the Rabbis] did not decree this preventive measure? — No, both agree that only a transgression is involved; [and their point of issue is the following:] one holds that the Rabbis forbade assisting as a preventive measure, the other holding that they did not forbid assisting as a preventive measure.¹⁰

R. Abin asked: Does a freewill burnt-offering of a community require song or not? The Divine Law says: Your burnt-offerings¹¹, which means no matter whether they are obligatory or freewill-offerings; or in saying 'your burnt-offerings' does perhaps the Divine Law mean those of all Israel?¹² — Come and hear: And Hezekiah commanded to offer the burnt-offering upon the altar. And when the burnt-offering began, the song of the Lord began also, and the trumpets, together with the instruments of David, King of Israel.¹³ What need was there here for song? Would you say it was on account of [the daily] obligatory burnt-offering? That surely needed no consultation? Rather, it was one in connection with a freewill burnt-offering! Said R. Joseph: No, it was the burnt-offering [offered] on the new moon, and it was questionable as to whether the new month has been fixed in its right time so that it should be offered up, or not. Said Abaye to him: How can you say so,¹⁴ is it not written: And on the sixteenth day of the first month they made an end . . . then Hezekiah commanded to offer the burnt-offering upon the altar, etc.¹⁵ — Rather, said Rami the son of R. Yeba: The question was with reference to the lamb offered up with the 'Omer,¹⁶ [namely]: Was the new month decreed in its right time or not so that the lamb may be offered? — R. Avya demurred to this: They should have seen when the paschal lamb had been sacrificed, when the leavened bread had been eaten!¹⁷ Rather, said R. Ashi: It is the same as with the messenger of the congregation, who consults [formally asks for permission to start the prayer].¹⁸ Now that you have come to this answer, say: Even if it was the case of the [daily] obligatory burnt-offering, [yet there is no difficulty]: It is the same as with any messenger of a community, who consults [his congregation].

Come and hear: R. Jose said, Good¹⁹ things are brought about on a good [auspicious] day, and evil ones on a bad one. It is said, The day on which the first Temple was destroyed was the ninth of Ab, and it was at the going out of the Sabbath,²⁰ and at the end of the seventh [Sabbatical] year. The [priestly] guard was that of Jehoharib, the priests and Levites were standing on their platform singing the song. What song was it? And He hath brought upon them their iniquity, and will cut them off in their evil.²¹ They had no time to complete [the psalm with] 'The Lord our God will cut them off', before the enemies came and overwhelmed them. The same happened the second time [the second Sanctuary's destruction].²² Now what need was there for song? Would you say that it was on account of the [daily] burnt-offering? But that could not be, for on the seventeenth of Tammuz the continual sacrifice had been abolished.²³ Hence it was on account of a freewill burnt-offering! But how could you think so? Why should an obligatory-offering have been impossible and a freewill-offering available? — That is no difficulty: A young ox may accidentally have come to them!²⁴ Said Raba, or, as some say, R. Ashi: But how could you think so?²⁵ The song of the day was: The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof,²⁶ whereas the verse, 'And He hath brought upon them their iniquity' belongs to the song due on the fourth day of the week! Rather [what you must say is.] It was just a lamentation text that had come to their mouth. But it says: 'They were standing upon the platform'²⁷ [Rather, say] That is in accord with Resh Lakish who said: The song may be sung even without any [attending] sacrifice.²⁸ But that principle might be applied to a voluntary burnt-offering, too?²⁹ — That might lead to an offence.³⁰ How is it therewith?³¹ — Come and hear: R. Mari the son of R. Kahana taught: Over your burnt-offerings and over the sacrifices of your peace-offerings;³² just as the burnt-offering is Most Holy, so are the peace-offerings [referred to] Most Holy;³³ and just as the peace-offerings have a definite time fixed for them, so have the burnt-offerings a definite time fixed for them.³⁴

(2) Marginal Gloss suggests R. Oshaia, the usual disputant of R. Jonathan who follows.

(3) II Chron. V, 13.

(4) Num. XVIII, 3. The only altar service of fit Levites was the singing. Anyone performing at the altar any service for which he is unfitted, as e.g., exchanging the Levite's task for that of the priest's incurs that penalty.

(5) If a Levite engaged in the work of another Levite, his offence is not as serious as that of one who had undertaken

Priest's work; still, it is an offence.

(6) Abaye does not appear satisfied with the distinction made just now, because he found a teaching much more severe, (7) Num. III, 38. The Torah would not state anything twice. In III, 10: The stranger that draweth nigh shall be put to death (i.e., by the hand of heaven). Hence the statement involving a similar penalty to the stranger in verse 38 must refer to another 'stranger', a Levite who was a 'stranger' because unfit for that service allotted to another.

(8) Both Rabbis were Levites.

(9) When a chorister or doorkeeper do each other's work.

(10) R. Johanan held that if a chorister did gate-service alone he incurred penalty of death, hence if he assisted in such work as was not allotted to him, he, at any rate, fell under the interdiction of the Sages, whence he advised him to return; the interdiction of the Sages having for its purpose the prevention of any Levite's doing his neighbour's work unassisted, which offence would involve death as the penalty. But R. Joshua held that even if a Levite did his neighbour's work alone, no more than a transgression of a prohibition, without attendant severe penalty, was involved; hence if one only assisted one's neighbour, not even Rabbinic interdiction was transgressed.

(11) Num. X, 10.

(12) Restricting it, however, to obligatory dues.

(13) II Chron. XXIX, 27. Obviously he had been consulted, otherwise he would not have commanded a self-evident thing. Hence the matter must have been non-obvious.

(16) V. Lev. XXIII, 12. The lamb was an obligatory burnt-offering.

(17) Aliter: How could they have offered up if the date was not clear to them?

(18) Similarly with the case of Hezekiah, formal permission was first obtained from him before sacrificing the lamb offered in connection with the omer, though it was an obligatory one.

(19) E.g., the redemption from Egypt, as well as the final redemption, fall into the month of Nisan. In Num. XIV, 1 the whole congregation is reported to 'have lifted up their voice and cried', complaining against Moses and Aaron, and against God. That evil day fell on the ninth of Ab. The ninth of Ab therefore was a day predestined to disaster. (R. Gershom.)

(20) I.e., Sunday.

(23) Because no lambs were left for the sacrifice and none would be imported on account of the siege.

(24) The siege had prevented the securing of proper animals (lambs) for the continual offering. but any cattle was fit for the freewill burnt-offering.

(25) That the song referred to is the song sung in connection with offerings.

(26) Ps. XXIV, 1. This is the song for Sunday; every day had its song definitely arranged.

(27) [How then could it be assumed that the references to a freewill-offering; surely not all the Levites would take their stand on the platform for the offering of a freewill sacrifice (v. R. Gershom).]

(28) [So that the song could have been sung though there was no continual sacrifice. Consequently the song in the cited Baraitha may refer to the one sung in connection with the obligatory daily burnt-offerings, affording no solution to R. Abin's query.]

(29) If a song was in order even without any sacrifice being offered, the answer would have been found for the question above of R. Abin (Tosaf.).

(30) One would have inferred that no freewill-offering may be offered up without a song, so that if no Levites were present or available, as happened in the time of Ezra, no freewill burnt-offerings would be made at all! (R. Gershom.) According to Rashi: If voluntary singing were permitted, its very voluntariness would occasion legal laxities, and such laxities would be transferred to obligatory songs. too.

(31) What is the answer to R. Abin's question?

(32) Num. X, 10. Here Scripture compares the freewill peace offering to the burnt-offering, in connection with prescribed music.

(33) I.e., congregational peace-offerings, v. Lev. XXIII, 19.

(34) Only burnt-offerings due at a definite time, i.e., only prescribed, obligatory ones, require a song, but not voluntary ones.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 12a

The following question was asked: Do libations offered¹ up by themselves require a song or not? Since R. Samuel b. Nahmani had said: Whence do we know that one does not sing the [Sanctuary] song except over wine, etc.?² Do we say it [over wine alone], or do we say it only when [the sacrifice] includes food and drink, but not over drink alone? — Come and hear: R. Jose said, Good things are brought about on an auspicious day, etc. Now what need was there for song? Would you say it was on account of an obligatory burnt-offering? But that could not be for on the seventeenth of Tammuz the continual offering was abolished! And if it was on account of a voluntary burnt-offering! Did not R. Mari the son of R. Kahana teach that such did not require a song?³ — Hence it must have been the song on account of libations?⁴ Said Raba, or as some say. R. Ashi: But how could you think so? The song of the day was ‘The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof’, whereas the verse, ‘And He brought upon them their iniquity’ belongs to the song due on the fourth day of the week? Rather [say]: It was a verse of lamentation that came to their mouth! But it says: ‘And they were standing on their platform’? — [Rather say,] That is in accord with Resh Lakish; for Resh Lakish said: The song may be sung even without any [attending] sacrifice. Then let the same be said for libations, too? — That might lead to an offence.

[To turn to] the [above] text: R. Jose said, Good things are brought about on an auspicious day, etc. ‘At the first time it was at the end of the seventh year’. How could that have been? Is it not written: In the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten.⁵ Now which is the year the beginning of which falls on the tenth of Tishri? Say: This is the jubilee year.⁶ And if you should think that [the Sanctuary] was destroyed in the first year [of the seven years’ cycle], [consider] there are from the first year of one seven years’ cycle to the first year of another seven years’ cycle eight years, and to the first of the next seven years cycle fifteen years? — Said Rabina: It was in the fourteenth year after the year in which the city was smitten. But how, then, in ‘the twenty-fifth year’? It was, really in the twenty-sixth year, for a Master said: They were exiled in the seventh year, they were exiled in the eighth year, they were exiled in the eighteenth year, they were exiled in the nineteenth year. Now from the seventh to the eighteenth are eleven years, add fifteen and that makes it twenty-six years!⁷ — Rabina will answer you: But even according to your own reckoning is it right? Since they were exiled also in the nineteenth year, [you have] from the seventh to the nineteenth twelve years, add fourteen years and you have twenty-six years? What you must therefore say⁸ is that [the counting] excludes the year in which they were exiled. So is it with me: [the counting] excludes the year in which they were exiled. But, at any rate, the number nineteen remains a difficulty according to Rabina?⁹ Do you think three exiles are involved? [No, rather:] they were exiled in the seventh year after the subjection of Jehoiakim,¹⁰ which happened to be the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar; they were exiled in the eighteenth year¹¹ after the conquest of Jehoiakim, which was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, for a Master has taught: In the first year he [Nebuchadnezzar] conquered Nineveh

(5) According to Ezek. XL, 1 this was the year when the Sanctuary was destroyed. ‘Our Exile’ meaning the exile of Jehoiakim in 597.

(6) In the jubilee year the beginning falls on the Day of Atonement, on which the Sanhedrin sounds the shofar, the slaves are set free, and the fields are restored to their original owners. V. R.H. 8b.

(7) This is soon explained.

(8) In order to explain the statement of Ezekiel satisfactorily.

(9) For, if he counts from seven to nineteen, he finds twelve years, which with fourteen added, again are twenty-six.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 12b

, in the second he came up and conquered Jehoiakim.¹ 'The same happened with the second [destruction of the Temple]'. But how is it possible that the second time it happened at the end of a septennate? For how long did the second [Temple] stand? Four hundred and twenty years. Now, four hundred years correspond to eight [cycles of] jubilees, fourteen years would make two septennates, leaving six years over. Hence it [the second destruction] should have happened in the sixth year [of the septennate]! — This is in accord with R. Judah, who says that the fiftieth year is counted both ways.² Take the eight years of the eight jubilee [cycles], add [to them] those six [years] which will amount to fourteen years, thus it is found that it [the destruction of the second Sanctuary] happened at the end of a septennate. But on the view of R. Judah it could not have happened the first time at the end of a septennate; for it was taught: Seventeen jubilee [cycles] did Israel count from the time they entered the Land [of Israel] until they left it. And you cannot assume that they counted from the moment they entered, for if you were to say so, it would be found that the [first] Temple was destroyed at the beginning of a jubilee, and you could not find [right the statement]: 'in the fourteenth year, after that the city was smitten'.³ Rather, deduct from them the seven years of the conquest and the seven during which the land was distributed, thus you find [substantiated]: 'In the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten'. But according to R. Judah you must count the seventeen years of the seventeen jubilee [cycles], and add them to these, so that it happened in the third year of a seven years cycle! — The years from the exile by Sennecherib until their return through Jeremiah are not counted.⁴ Or, if you like, I can say it is indeed in accord with the Rabbis, and as to the statement 'the same happened the second time', this refers to the remaining [details].⁵ This also stands to reason, for if you were not to take it thus, was there indeed the guard of Jehoiarib at the second Sanctuary? Was it not taught: Four guards went up from the Exile: Jedaiah,⁶ Harim, Pashhur and Immer. The prophets who were among them divided them into twenty-four guards. They mixed them [the lots] and placed them into an urn. Thereupon came Jedaiah and took six for his own portion and for that of his fellows;

(1) It was not exile, but subjection which Jehoiakim suffered. According to II Kings XXIV, 1: Jehoiakim became his servant three years; then he turned and rebelled against him.

(2) The fiftieth year is counted as the end of the last and as the beginning of the new jubilee cycle.

(3) Which, as explained supra 12a, was a jubilee year.

(4) So Rashi and Tosaf. According to tradition Jeremiah restored the ten tribes in the eighteenth year of King Josiah (v. infra 33a and Meg. 14b). With their return began the counting of a new jubilee cycle to mark the renewed observance of the laws of the Year of Release and Jubilee which had fallen into disuse while the Northern Kingdom was in exile. The Temple was destroyed 36 years later so that the 'fourteenth year after that the city was smitten' fell in the jubilee year. Cur. edd. read: 'the three years from the exile' which is inexplicable.

(5) Outgoing of Sabbath, ninth of Ab.

(6) In the first Sanctuary the guard of Jedaiah came before that of Pashhur, which again preceded that of Immer. Now, however, the order was not clear, hence the prophets chose to abide by the decision of the lots.

then came Harim and took six for his own portion and for that of his fellows. Thus also Pashhur and Immer. Then the prophets who were among them regulated that even if Jehoiarib the head of the guards were to come up he could not push Jedaiah from his place, but Jedaiah would remain the chief, and Jehoiarib only an adjunct to him.¹ Hence [the statement refers only] to the remaining [details].

R. Ashi said: He does not count the six years until Ezra had come up and dedicated [the Sanctuary].² For it is written: Then ceased the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem.³ And it is also written: And this house was finished on the third day of the month Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of Darius the king.⁴ And a Tanna taught: About the same time in the following year Ezra with his exiled community went up [to the Land], as it is said: And he came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king.⁵ [To revert to] the main text: ‘Seventeen jubilee cycles did Israel count from the time they entered the Land until they left it’. But you cannot say that they counted from the moment they entered. For if you were to say so, then it would be found that the Temple was destroyed at the beginning of a seven years cycle and you could not account for: ‘In the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten, etc.’ Whence do we know that it took seven years to conquer [the Land]? — Caleb said: Forty years old was I when Moses the servant of the Lord sent me from Kadesh-Barnea to spy out the land⁶ . . . and now, lo, I am this day four-score and five years old.⁷ And a Master said: ‘The first year Moses built the tabernacle, in the second the tabernacle was put up, then he sent out the spies. When Caleb passed over the Jordan how old therefore was he? He was two years less than eighty years old.⁸ When he distributed the inheritances, he said: ‘Now, lo, I am this day four-score and five years old’. Whence it follows that it took seven years for them to conquer the land. And whence do we know that it took them seven years to distribute it? — If you like, say: Since the conquest took seven years, so did the distribution. Or, if you like, say: Because otherwise one could not account for ‘In the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten’.

MISHNAH. THERE WERE NEVER LESS THAN SIX⁹ INSPECTED LAMBS IN THE CELL OF LAMBS,¹⁰ SUFFICIENT FOR A SABBATH AND THE [TWO] FESTIVAL DAYS OF THE NEW YEAR,¹¹ AND THEIR NUMBER COULD BE INCREASED INTO INFINITY. THERE WERE NEVER LESS THAN TWO TRUMPETS AND THEIR NUMBER COULD BE INCREASED INTO INFINITY.¹² THERE WERE NEVER LESS THAN NINE LYRES, AND THEIR NUMBER COULD BE INCREASED INTO INFINITY. BUT THERE WAS ONLY ONE CYMBAL.

GEMARA. But the continual and the additional sacrifices were larger in number?¹³ — The Tanna refers to average days, and only to continual daily offerings. As for SUFFICIENT FOR A SABBATH AND THE [TWO] FESTIVAL DAYS OF THE NEW YEAR, that is to serve only as a mnemotechnical note, and this is what he says: There were never less than six inspected

(1) V. Ta'an, 27a.

(2) And thereby reintroduced into force the laws of the Years of Release and Jubilee.

(3) Ezra IV, 24.

(4) Ibid. VI, 15.

(5) Ibid. VII, 8. R. Ashi holds that the statement ‘the same happened with the second Temple’ refers also to the termination of the jubilee and explains it by deducting six years from the total of 420.

(6) Jos. XIV, 7.

(7) Ibid. 10.

(8) Allowing forty years for the sojourn of Israel in the wilderness.

(9) Two lambs each were required for the continual daily morning and evening sacrifice. The Gemara infers below that just as with the paschal lamb, which was ordered on the tenth of Nissan to be slaughtered on the fourteenth, the lambs for the continual daily sacrifices too had to be examined four days before the actual slaughtering for any blemish which would render them invalid. Whenever the two lambs were taken out for the daily need, at least six other examined ones had to be left at the same time, so that the lambs, newly introduced, were actually used only on the fourth day thereafter.

(10) V. Tam. III, 3.

(11) When the three fell on consecutive days, the Gemara described these words as a mnemotechnical expression. Rashi: The number of six is required for Sabbath and the two days of the New Year if they ate consecutive, each needing two.

Maimonides: Six was the necessary number, because the newly introduced lambs had to be inspected for four days before they could be used, four being the number of the days which remain in a week after one has taken off the maximum of festival days that can occur in one week, i.e., the Sabbath and the two days of the New Year. Bartinoro follows Maimonides with this modification: The lambs required inspection four days, just as it would be necessary when the New Year's two days followed the Sabbath, because in that case the lambs to be used the following Tuesday would have to have been provided on the Friday before, in order that they be available early on Tuesday.

(12) There seems to be a contradiction between the Mishnah and the statement in the Gemara that the maximum number of trumpets is one hundred and twenty. As a matter of fact, some editions of the Talmud omit the words 'and their number could be increased, etc.'.

(13) On these three days, the Sabbath and the two days of the New Year Festival.

lambs in the cell of lambs, [having thus been inspected] four days before they were actually slaughtered. Whose view is this? That of Ben Bag Bag, for it was taught: Ben Bag Bag said, Whence do we know that it [the lamb destined for the continual daily offering] requires to be inspected four days before the slaughtering? The text states: Shall ye observe [tishmru] to offer unto Me in its due season,¹ and there it is said: And ye shall keep it [le-mishmereth] until the fourteenth day of the same month;² just as there³ it was required that it [the animal] be inspected four days before the slaughtering, so here, too, is it required that it be examined four days before the slaughtering. That⁴ may also be inferred from [the wording]: SUFFICIENT FOR A SABBATH, not 'for a Sabbath'. That inference is conclusive.

NEVER LESS THAN TWO TRUMPETS AND THEIR NUMBER COULD BE INCREASED INTO INFINITY. How far? — R. Huna b. Zabdi (or, according to others, R. Zabdi said in the name of R. Huna): Up to one hundred and twenty. And it is said: And with them a hundred and twenty priests sounding with trumpets.⁵

NEVER LESS THAN NINE LYRES . . . BUT ONLY ONE CYMBAL. Whence do we know that? — R. Ashi said: Scripture said: And Asaph with cymbals, sounding aloud.⁶ But 'cymbals' implies two? — Since they both perform one function and are played by one man, he [the Tanna] called them one.

MISHNAH. THERE WERE NEVER LESS THAN TWELVE LEVITES⁷ STANDING ON THE PLATFORM⁸ AND THEIR NUMBER COULD BE INCREASED INTO INFINITY. NO MINOR COULD ENTER THE COURT OF THE SANCTUARY TO TAKE PART IN THE SERVICE EXCEPT WHEN THE LEVITES STOOD UP TO SING.⁹ NOR DID THEY¹⁰ JOIN IN THE SINGING WITH HARP AND LYRE, BUT WITH THE MOUTH ALONE, TO ADD FLAVOUR TO THE MUSIC, R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAID: THEY DID NOT HELP TO MAKE UP THE REQUIRED NUMBER, NOR DID THEY STAND ON THE PLATFORM. BUT THEY WOULD STAND ON THE GROUND, SO THAT THEIR HEADS WERE BETWEEN THE FEET OF THE LEVITES. AND THEY WOULD BE CALLED THE TORMENTORS OF THE LEVITES. GEMARA. To whom did these correspond? — To the nine lyres, two harps, and the one cymbal, as it is said: He and his brethren and sons were twelve.¹¹

NO MINOR COULD ENTER THE COURT OF THE SANCTUARY etc. Whence do we know that? — R. Johanan said: Because Scripture said, Then stood Jeshua with his sons and his brethren, and Kadmiel and his sons, the sons of Judah together, to have the oversight of the workmen in the house of God.¹²

NOR DID THEY JOIN IN THE SINGING WITH THE HARP AND LYRE, BUT WITH THE MOUTH ALONE etc. One would say therefore that harp and lyre are different instruments. Is this to say that our Mishnah is not in accord with R. Judah, for it was taught: R. Judah said, The harp of the Sanctuary had seven cords, as it is written: In Thy presence is fitness [soba'] of joy;¹³ read not, fulness [soba'], but seven [sheba']! The harp of the messianic days has eight cords, as it is said: For the leader on the Sheminith,¹⁴ [i.e., the eighth string]. The harp of the world to come has ten cords, as it is said: With an instrument of ten strings, and with the psalter; with a solemn sound upon the harp.¹⁵ Furthermore, it is said: Give thanks unto the Lord with harp, sing praises unto Him with the psalter of ten strings. Sing unto Him a new song; play skilfully midst shouts of joy.¹⁶ You could say also that [our Mishnah will be] in accord with R. Judah: Since, in the world to come, it will have more cords and its sound will be stronger, like that of a harp, he calls it 'harp'.

R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAID: THEY DID NOT HELP TO MAKE UP THE REQUIRED NUMBER etc. A Tanna taught: They were called assistants to the Levites. Our Tanna, however, called them tormentors of the Levites because their voice was high, the voice of the others low: they could sing high. whereas the others could not do so.

MISHNAH. THE LAW OF VALUATION IS AT TIMES IN THE DIRECTION OF LENIENCY, AT OTHERS IN THE DIRECTION OF STRINGENCY. THE LAW OF THE FIELD OF POSSESSION¹⁷ IS AT TIMES MORE LENIENT, AT OTHERS MORE STRINGENT. THE LAW CONCERNING A MU'AD¹⁸ OX THAT HAS KILLED A SLAVE IS AT TIMES MORE LENIENT, AT OTHERS MORE STRINGENT. Meir said he may be made the subject of valuation, but he may not evaluate!²⁴ You may say also that it is in accord With R. Meir, and that the same law would apply to idolaters, but

[our Mishnah] informs us incidentally¹ of a teaching in accord with Rab Judah, Who said in the name of Rab: One should not say, How beautiful is this Canaanite!² Then let it teach: 'Whether a man has dedicated the fairest in Israel or the ugliest among Canaanites'? It deals with one nation, not With two nations. But does it not? Surely it teaches: 'Of the noblest among the priests, and the humblest in Israel'³ — There it is one nation, except that the priests are holier. And if you like, say: Since it is about to teach, in the second part of the Mishnah, concerning a field of possession which applies only to Israel, not to idolaters, because they do not possess fields [by inheritance in the Land],⁴ therefore it teaches also [in the first part of the Mishnah] with reference to Israel alone.

MISHNAH. 'THE LAW OF THE FIELD OF POSSESSION IS AT TIMES MORE LENIENT, AT OTHERS MORE STRINGENT. HOW IS THAT? IT IS ALL ONE WHETHER A MAN DEDICATES A FIELD IN THE SANDY PLAIN OF MAHUZ⁵ OR IN THE GARDENS OF SEBASTE, [IF HE WOULD REDEEM IT] HE MUST PAY FIFTY SHEKELS OF SILVER FOR [EVERY PART OF THE FIELD SUFFICIENT FOR] THE SOWING OF A HOMER OF BARLEY,⁶ BUT IF IT WAS A FIELD WHICH HE HATH BOUGHT',⁷ HE MUST PAY WHAT IT IS WORTH. R. ELIEZER SAYS: IT IS ALL THE SAME WHETHER IT BE A FIELD OF POSSESSION OR ONE THAT HE HATH BOUGHT. THE ONLY DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE FIELD OF POSSESSION AND THAT WHICH HE HATH BOUGHT LIES THEREIN: FOR A FIELD OF POSSESSION HE MUST PAY THE [ADDED] FIFTH, WHEREAS FOR A FIELD THAT HE HATH BOUGHT HE NEED NOT PAY THE ADDED FIFTH.'⁸

GEMARA. R. Huna said: If a man had dedicated a field full of trees, he must, when he comes to redeem them, redeem the trees for what they are worth, and then redeem the ground at [the rate of] fifty shekels of silver for [every part of the field sufficient for] 'the sowing of a homer of barley'. We see thus that R. Huna tells one Who dedicated, dedicates with a generous eye.⁹ R. Nahman raised the following objection to R. Huna: IT IS ALL ONE WHETHER A MAN DEDICATES A FIELD IN THE SANDY PLAIN OF MAHUZ OR IN THE GARDENS¹⁰ OF SEBASTE, HE MUST PAY FIFTY SHEKELS OF SILVER FOR [EVERY PART OF THE FIELD SUFFICIENT FOR] THE SOWING OF A HOMER OF BARLEY? — He answered: He [the Tanna] means: Such as are fit to be gardens.¹¹

He raised a further objection: 'Field for the sowing':¹² from this I know only [the rule] in the case of a field for sowing. whence do we know it concerning a field of vines, or a field of reeds, or a field of trees? Therefore Scripture says: Field,¹³ i.e., as long as it is a field! — R. Huna replied: Here, too, he redeems, and then redeems again!

He raised a further objection: If one dedicates three trees of a plantation in which ten were planted in a field sufficient for the sowing of one se'ah,¹⁴ then he also dedicates the soil as well as the trees between them.¹⁵ When he redeems them, he redeems them at the rate of fifty shekels of silver for every piece of the field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley.¹⁶ If they are planted more thickly or less thickly than this, or if he dedicates them one after the other, then he does not dedicate thereby either the soil or the trees between them;¹⁷ therefore, when he redeems them he redeems the trees at their value; and even more, if he first dedicates his trees¹⁸ and afterwards dedicates the ground, when he comes to redeem them, he must redeem the trees at their value, and then he must redeem the ground again, at the rate of fifty shekels of silver for [every part of the field sufficient for] the sowing of a homer of barley!¹⁹ And, if you were to say: Here²⁰ too, he redeems and then must redeem again; but surely since the second clause expressly mentions 'he must redeem and redeem again', it follows that in the first clause this is not so! Rather, say: According to whom is this [teaching]?¹⁹ It is in accord with R. Simeon, who holds that one who dedicates does so 'with an ungenerous eye', for it was taught: If one dedicates a field, he dedicates the whole of it.²¹ R. Simeon says: He does not dedicate anything [together with the field] save the full grown carob tree and the cropped sycamore tree. If this be in accord with R. Simeon, consider the second part: 'And not only that, but if he dedicates the trees and afterwards the ground, when he comes to redeem, he must redeem the trees at their value, and then must redeem the ground again at the rate of fifty shekels of silver for [every part of the field sufficient for] the sowing of a homer of barley'! Now if it were in accord with R. Simeon, one should be guided only by the circumstances²² at the time of redemption, and hence they should be redeemed [automatically] with the ground, for we have heard from R. Simeon to be guided by circumstances at the time of redemption. For it was taught: Whence do we know that if one buys a field from his father and dedicates it, and the father died afterwards, that that field is considered a 'field of possession'? Because the text states: And if he sanctify unto the Lord a field which he hath bought, which is not of the field of his possession,²³ i.e., a field which could not become a field of possession,²⁴ that excludes [such a field as] this, which would have become his field of possession. This is the view of R. Judah and R. Simeon. R. Meir said: Whence do we know that if one buys a field from his father, and his father died, and he thereupon dedicated it, that it is considered a field of possession?

(1) By not teaching 'the fairest among Canaanites', because one should not attribute any beauty to those indulging in the cruelty and immorality of idolaters.

(2) This was Rab Judah's teaching (v. A.Z. 20a). for which the Mishnah offers authoritative endorsement by implication.

(3) V. infra 15a.

(4) An idolater could not, by Biblical law, redeem his field of possession for the payment of fifty shekels; he would have to repay its value.

(5) Mahuz may be the term tech. for 'place', 'circle', or the name of an unidentified locality. 'The desert, sandy wilderness of Mahuz' would be a good contrast to the rich, developed gardens of Sebaste, the city built by Herod on the ruins of Samaria. According to Rashi the reference in Mahuz is to a field in the environs of a town the ground of which is continually trodden on and thus has become sterile.

(6) Lev. XXVII, 16. A field sufficient for the sowing of a 'homer of barley', according to 'Er. 23b would hold 75,000 square cubits.

(7) V. Lev. XXVII, 22.

(8) For the field of possession as well as for the field bought, the price of redemption is fifty silver pieces for every part of the field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley. But with the field of possession, the owner must pay the additional fifth, whereas with a field bought he need but pay what it is worth.

(9) He dedicated the tract and in addition thereto, the trees, hence when he comes to redeem, he must redeem the tract after having redeemed the trees.

(10) The gardens of Sebaste were planted vineyards, nevertheless the Mishnah states they can be redeemed with fifty silver pieces etc., which shows that the trees were redeemed with them, thus disproving the view of R. Huna. The latter says the sum mentioned refers only to the field; as for the trees, they must be redeemed at their value, the redemption of one following the other.

(11) Without being actually planted with trees.

- (12) The reference is probably to Lev. XXVII, 16, although the word 'field' (lit., 'house') does not occur in the Biblical text.
- (13) Ibid.
- (14) One se'ah is the thirtieth part of a homer; the field corresponding would contain 2,500 square cubits.
- (15) Small trees.
- (16) This would be contra R. Huna.
- (17) The usual way of planting trees is to plant ten in a field sufficient for the sowing of one se'ah. The whole tract is needed for these trees, hence if they are dedicated, the tract and the small trees between them are dedicated too. If the trees are planted either more or less thickly, only the trees are considered dedicated, and only they need be redeemed.
- (18) Planted more or less thickly.
- (19) V. B.B. 72a.
- (20) In the first clause from which an objection is raised against R. Huna.
- (21) All that it contains. (9) Which are old and large. and derive their sustenance from the ground more than any other tree, v. B.B., Sonc. ed., p. 282 notes.
- (22) At the moment of the redemption the trees are on the ground, and the question as to whether they were dedicated together with or after the tract is then irrelevant.
- (23) Lev. XXVII, 22.
- (24) Since he bought it from a stranger, from whom he would not inherit it.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 14b

— Because the text states: 'And if he sanctify unto the Lord a field which he hath bought, which is not the field of his possession', i.e., a field which is not a field of possession, excluding one that is his field of possession. Now according to R. Judah and R. Simeon, even if he dedicated it and his father died subsequently, it is still considered a field of possession. What is the reason therefore? It is on account of the Scriptural text?¹ But that is in favour of R. Meir's view!² Rather must you say because one is guided by the circumstances at the redeeming!³ Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: R. Judah and R. Simeon found a Scriptural verse and expounded it. If it were so [as R. Meir holds], the Divine Law should have written: 'If he sanctify . . . a field which he hath bought, which is not his possession'. But since it says: Which is not of the field of his possession, [it means:] A field which is not fit⁴ to be the field of his possession.

R. Papa said: If one dedicates stony ground. he must redeem it at its value. Why? — The Divine Law speaks of a 'field for the sowing', and this ground cannot be sown. If he has not redeemed it. then in the jubilee year, it goes forth to the priests.⁵ Why? — Because the Divine Law speaks of a 'field'. no matter of what kind. If he sold stony ground, it can be redeemed even within two years.⁶ Why? 'According to the number of the years of the crops'. says the Divine Law, and it [stony ground] is incapable of having crops. If he has not redeemed it, it returns in the jubilee year to the owners. Why? And he shall return into his possession,⁷ the Divine Law says, and this, too, is possession. If he dedicates trees he redeems them at their worth. What is the reason? — The Divine Law says: 'a field for sowing', but not trees. If he did not redeem them they do not go forth in the jubilee year to the priest. What is the reason? — The Divine Law says, 'and the field shall be', but not trees. If he sold trees they are not redeemed before two years. What is the reason? — 'According to the number of the years of the crops', says the Divine Law, and these are productive of crops. If he has not redeemed them they do not return to the owner at Jubilee. What is the reason? — 'And he shall return unto his possession says the Divine Law, but not trees.

The Master said: If he dedicates trees he redeems them at their worth [etc.]. But why? — Let them become sacred [property] through the ground and be redeemed together with it and return to their owners [at Jubilee] together with the ground? And if you were to argue: He dedicated trees, but not ground, but did not the Nehardeans say: If one sells to his neighbour a [date] palm, the latter acquires it from the base⁸ to the furthest depth? — But it was taught in connection therewith: Only if he came with such a claim.⁹

BUT IF IT WAS A FIELD WHICH HE HATH BOUGHT HE MUST PAY WHAT IT IS ACTUALLY WORTH: Our Rabbis taught: The worth,¹⁰ what does that teach us? Since it is said: 'Fifty shekels of silver for every piece of the field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley', I might have thought the same applied also to a field which he bought, therefore the text states 'the worth'.¹¹ R. Eliezer says: Here it is said: [The priest] shall reckon,¹⁰ and above it is said: [The priest] shall reckon.¹² Just as there a definite [sum], so here, also, a definite [sum]. The following question was asked: Do the Rabbis accept this gezerah shawah,¹³ and hence they infer also the additional fifth,¹⁴ or do they not accept this gezerah shawah and neither the fifth? — Said Raba: It seems logical that they do not accept this gezerah shawah. For the Divine Law revealed [taught] concerning the fifth, both in connection with a field of possession, and also with one who dedicated his house;¹⁵ we have thus two Scriptural verses teaching the same thing and 'whenever two Scriptural verses teach the same thing, they do not serve as illustrations for other cases'.¹⁶ But what according to him who says 'they do serve as illustrations for other cases'? — Since the Divine Law revealed about a fifth in connection with the tithe of pure and impure cattle, it is a teaching occurring frequently, and hence they do not serve as illustrations in other cases. It was taught in accord with Raba, but not for the reason he advanced:¹⁷ It was taught: 'The worth of thy valuation', herewith Scripture compares it to valuation: just as no fifth is added in connection with valuation, so no fifth is added in connection with a field that he has bought.

MISHNAH. THE LAW CONCERNING A MU'AD OX THAT HAS KILLED A SLAVE,¹⁸ IS AT TIMES IN THE DIRECTION OF LENIENCY, AT OTHERS IN THE DIRECTION OF STRINGENCY. HOW IS THAT? IT IS ALL ONE WHETHER IT KILLED THE FINEST SLAVE OR THE UGLIEST SLAVE, HE MUST PAY THIRTY SELA'S. IF IT KILLED A FREE MAN HE MUST PAY WHAT HE IS WORTH. IF IT WOUNDED HIM. WHETHER THE ONE OR THE OTHER, HE MUST PAY THE DAMAGE IN FULL.¹⁹

GEMARA. This²⁰ then applies only to a mu'ad,²¹ but not to a tam?²² Shall we say that our Mishnah will not be in accord with R. Akiba? For it was taught: R. Akiba said, Even with a tam which injured a man, the larger²³ damage must be paid in full! — You can even say that it is in accord with R. Akiba, for it applies to a tam too; but since he wishes to teach in the latter part the case where IT KILLED A SLAVE OR A FREE MAN, which applies only to a mu'ad, but not to a tam, therefore it speaks of mu'ad.

MISHNAH. 'THE LAW OF THE VIOLATOR AND SEDUCER IS AT TIMES IN THE DIRECTION OF LENIENCY, AT OTHERS IN THE DIRECTION OF STRINGENCY.' HOW IS THAT? IT IS ALL ONE WHETHER A MAN VIOLATED OR SEDUCED A WOMAN FROM AMONG THE NOBLEST OF THE PRIESTLY STOCK OR THE HUMBLEST IN ISRAEL, HE MUST PAY FIFTY SELA'S.²⁴ BUT COMPENSATION FOR SHAMING AND FOR BLEMISH IS IN ACCORD WITH THE [CIRCUMSTANCES] OF HIM WHO SHAMES AND OF HER WHO SUFFERS THAT SHAME.²⁵

GEMARA. But why? Perhaps the Divine Law means: Fifty sela's for all the things together? — R. Ze'ira replied: People would say, How should one who has lain with a king's daughter pay fifty, and one who has lain with the daughter of a commoner pay fifty! — Abaye replied to him: If that be right, one could argue in the case of a slave too: why for a slave who perforates pearls thirty, and for one who does needlework also thirty?²⁶ Rather said R. Ze'ira:

(1) 'Which is not the field of his possession'.

(2) The text quoted may not mean to exclude a field which he has dedicated before the father died; rather does it support the interpretation of R. Meir: to exclude the case where his father died and he afterwards dedicated it.

- (3) And since at the redemption the father was dead, it is a field of possession.
- (4) The argument is based on the mem privative. v. B.B. Sonc. ed., p. 285ff notes.
- (5) Lev. XXVII, 20-21.
- (6) Normally a field cannot be redeemed before two years (v. infra 29b). The stony ground is a field and therefore falls into some part of the law, but since it is an abnormal field, it is not affected by such regulations as apply to the usual type. Lev. XXV. 15 covers the ordinary field, bearing crop.
- (7) Lev. XXV, 27.
- (8) And can therefore plant a new one when this one withered, B.B. 37b, which teaching indicates that he who owns the tree owns the land on which it stands, whence the dedication of a tree implied the dedication of such ground.
- (9) That he had bought the ground with the tree. That renders it an exceptional case, not a general rule, v. ibid.
- (10) Lev. XXVII, 23.
- (11) I.e., only the actual worth not the amount imposed by the Torah on the field of possession.
- (12) With reference to a field of possession: Lev. XXVII, 18: arguing hence from analogy of expression, the fixed sum is fifty shekels.
- (13) I.e., the inference based on the similarity of expression. v. Glos.
- (14) The consequence of the inference from analogy would be that with regard to other items too, hence with regard to the fifth additional in case of redemption, a field which is bought shall be governed by the rules applicable to a field of possession.
- (15) V. Lev. XXVII, 14.
- (16) Lit., 'they do not teach'. The Torah does not repeat itself. A general law would be stated once. The very fact that it appears twice indicates that it applies only to those detailed situations and that no general rule may be inferred from them for others.
- (17) His argument came from the fact that the rule was stated too often to be considered one generally applicable, whereas this teaching is based on an analogy with valuation, as explained.
- (18) Ex. XXI, 29. The owner must pay the damage caused by his ox, for which he is responsible.
- (19) The value which he would have had as bond-servant.
- (20) The ruling in the last clause that full damage must be paid by the owner in case the ox has wounded either a free man or slave.
- (21) As is indicated by the introductory words of our Mishnah.
- (22) Lit., 'simple', 'innocuous', i.e., an ox whose owner had not been forewarned (v. Glos.).
- (23) Lit., 'the difference (between the two damages)'. If ox and man injured each other, then if the owner of the ox had not been forewarned, he need pay but one half of the greater damage. R. Akiba held he must pay in full, even though the ox was a tam, v. B.K. 33a.
- (24) V. Deut. XXII, 29.
- (25) In addition to the fifty sela's the violator as well as the seducer must pay damages for the shame and the blemish caused. V. Keth. 40a.
- (26) Just as the shame suffered by a king's daughter is greater than that suffered by one of common descent, so is the damage suffered in the loss of a skilled slave much greater than that suffered in the loss of an unskilled one.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 15a

[Argue thus,] If two men had intercourse with her, the one in a natural way, the other in an unnatural manner,¹ people will say: He who has lain with a blemished [woman pays] fifty, and he who has lain with a sound [woman]² fifty! Said Abaye to him: But with regard to a slave they would equally say: For [the death of] a healthy slave thirty, and for one afflicted with boils also thirty? Rather, said Abaye: [This is his answer,] Scripture said: Because he hath humbled her,' from this it is evident that there is also indemnification for shame and blemish. Raba said: Since Scripture said, Then the man that lay with her shall give,³ it indicates that for the enjoyment of lying with her [he must pay] fifty shekels, from which we infer that there are other things [to pay for], viz., shame and blemish.

MISHNAH. THE LAW OF HIM THAT HATH BROUGHT UP AN EVIL NAME⁴ IS AT TIMES IN THE DIRECTION OF LENIENCY, AT OTHERS IN THE DIRECTION OF

STRINGENCY. HOW IS THAT? IT IS ALL ONE WHETHER A MAN HATH BROUGHT UP AN EVIL NAME AGAINST A WOMAN FROM THE NOBLEST OF PRIESTLY STOCK OR OF THE HUMBLEST IN ISRAEL. HE MUST PAY A HUNDRED SELA'S. THUS IT IS FOUND THAT HE WHO SPEAKS WITH HIS MOUTH SUFFERS MORE THAN HE THAT COMMITS AN ACT.⁵ THUS WE DO ALSO FIND THAT THE JUDGMENT AGAINST OUR FATHERS IN THE WILDERNESS WAS SEALED ONLY BECAUSE OF THEIR EVIL TONGUE, AS IT IS WRITTEN: YET HAVE PUT ME TO PROOF THESE TEN TIMES etc.⁶

GEMARA. Whence do we know that?⁷ Perhaps it is due to the fact that he wanted to bring about her death, as it is written: But if this thing be true . . . then they shall bring out the damsel . . . and stone her with stones that she die!⁸ — Raba answered: Scripture said, Because he hath brought up an evil name,⁹ i.e., [only] because of the evil name that he has brought up.

THUS DO WE ALSO FIND THAT THE JUDGMENT etc. Whence do we know that? Perhaps it was due to the fact that their measure [of guilt] was not full yet. for R. Hamnuna said: The Holy One, blessed be He, does not punish man until his measure is full, as it is said: In the fulness of his sufficiency he shall be in straits!¹⁰ — Resh Lakish replied: Scripture said, 'Yet have put Me to proof these ten times', i.e., because of 'these' was the judgment against them sealed,

It was taught: R. Eleazar b. Perata said, Come and see how great the power of an evil tongue is! Whence do we know [its power]? From the spies: for if it happens thus to those who bring up an evil report against wood and stones, how much more will it happen to him who brings up an evil report against his neighbour! But whence [follows] that? Perhaps it is as explained by R. Hanina b. Papa; for R. Hanina b. Papa said: A stark thing did the spies say in that hour, as it is written: For they are stronger than we'.¹¹ Do not read: 'than we' but 'than He': as it were, even the Master of the house cannot remove his utensils from here!¹² Rather, said Rabbah in the name of Resh Lakish: Scripture said, Even those men that did bring up an evil report against the land, died by the plague against the Lord,¹³ i.e., [they died just] because of the evil report which they had brought up.

It was taught: R. Judah said, With ten trials did our forefathers try the Holy One, blessed be He: two at the sea, two because of water, two because of manna, two because of the quails, one in connection with the golden calf, and one in the wilderness of Paran, 'Two at the sea': one at the going down, the other at the coming up. 'At the going down', as it is written: Because there were no graves in Egypt [hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness]?¹⁴ 'At the coming up': That is in accord with what R. Huna taught, for he said: The Israelites of that generation were among those of little faith; as Rabbah b. Mari expressed it; for Rabbah b. Mari said: It is written: But they were rebellions at the sea, even at the Red Sea; nevertheless He saved them for His name's sake.¹⁵ This teaches that Israel were rebellious at that very hour, saying: Just as we go up from this side, so will the Egyptians go up from the other side. The Holy One, blessed be He, said to the Prince of the Sea: Cast them out on the dry land! He answered: Sovereign of the Universe, is there a slave to whom his Master gives a gift and then takes it away from him again? He said to him: I shall give you [afterwards] one and a half times as many of them.¹⁶ He said before Him: Sovereign of the Universe, is there any slave who can claim anything against his master? He said: The brook of Kishon shall be surety. At once he cast them on the dry land, as it is written: And Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the sea-shore.¹⁷ 'Twice because of water': at Marah, and at Refidim. 'At Marah', as it is written: And when they came to Marah, they could not drink,¹⁸ and it is written: And the people murmured against Moses.¹⁹ 'At Refidim', as it is written: They encamped in Refidim and there was no water to drink,²⁰ and it is also written: Wherefore the people strove with Moses.²¹ 'Twice because of the manna as it is written:

(1) So that she remained a virgin still and could obtain the fifty shekels, compensation in case of another attack or seduction. Thereupon she suffered the second violation.

- (2) I.e., he who had intercourse with her without blemishing her shall pay fifty sela's, and he who had intercourse with her when she was blemished shall pay the same. Hence the additional indemnifications.
- (3) Deut. XXII, 29.
- (4) Ibid. 13-19.
- (5) Because he must pay a hundred sela's for bringing up an evil name against her, whereas if he himself had committed that act (before she was married), he would have to pay but fifty sela's. (If she was betrothed and he violated or seduced her, he suffers the penalty of death, she only in case of seduction, not of course if she was violated).

'Do not go out',¹ whereas they did go out. Do not leave over,² but they did leave over. Twice because of the quails': of the first and second quails. With the first: When we sat by the fleshpots;³ with the second quails: And the mixed multitude that was among them.⁴ 'With the golden calf': as it happened.⁵ 'In the wilderness of Paran': As it happened.⁶ R. Johanan said in the name of R. Joseph b. Zimra: What is the meaning of: What shall be given unto thee, and what shall be done more unto thee, thou deceitful tongue.⁷ The Holy One, blessed be He, said to the tongue: All members of the human body⁸ are standing, you are lying; all members of the human body are outside, you are guarded inside; not only that, but I surrounded you with two walls, one of bone and one of flesh; 'What shall be given unto thee, what shall be done more unto thee, thou deceitful tongue'! And R. Johanan said in the name of R. Joseph b. Zimra: One who bears evil tales almost denies the foundation⁹ [of faith].¹⁰ as it is said: Who have said: Our tongue will we make mighty; our lips are with us; who is lord over us?¹¹ — Further did R. Johanan say in the name of R. Joseph b. Zimra: Any one who bears evil tales will be visited by the plague of leprosy, as it is said: Whoso slandereth his neighbour in secret, him azmith [will I destroy].¹² And there it is said: La-zemithuth [in perpetuity],¹³ which we translate as: 'absolutely' [permanently],¹⁴ and we learnt: The leper that is shut up differs from the leper that is certified unclean only in respect of unkempt hair and rent garments.¹⁵ Resh Lakish said: What is the meaning of: This shall be the law of the leper?¹⁶ [It means,] 'This shall be the law for him who brings up an evil name'. Further, said Resh Lakish: What is the meaning of the Scriptural verse: If the serpent bite before it is charmed, then the charmer hath no advantage?¹⁷ — At some future time all the animals will assemble and come to the serpent and say: The lion attacks and devours; the wolf tears and consumes; but what profit hast thou? But he will answer: What benefit has he who uses his tongue? Further said Resh Lakish: One who slanders makes his sin reach unto heaven, as it is said: They have set their mouth against the heavens, and their tongue walketh through the earth.¹⁸

R. Hisda said in the name of Mar 'Ukba: One who slanders deserves to be stoned with stones. It is written here: 'Him azmith [will I destroy]', and it is written there: zamethu [they have cut off] my life in the dungeon, and have cast stones upon me.¹⁹ Further did R. Hisda say in the name of Mar 'Ukba: Of him who slanders, the Holy One, blessed be He, says: He and I cannot live together in the world, as it is said: Whoso slandereth his neighbor in secret, hint will I destroy; whoso is haughty of eye and proud of heart, him will I not suffer.²⁰ Do not read: 'Otho [him] will I not suffer', but 'Itto [with him] can I not suffer [to be together]'. Some refer this to the arrogant.

Further said R. Hisda in the name of Mar 'Ukba: About one who slanders, the Holy One, blessed be He, says to the prince of Gehinnom: I shall be against him from above, you be against him from below, and we shall condemn him, as it is said: Sharp arrows of the mighty, with coals of broom.²¹ 'Arrow' means nothing else but the evil tongue, as it is said: Their tongue is a sharpened arrow, it speaketh deceit;²² and 'mighty' means only the Holy One, blessed be He, as it is said: The Lord will go forth as a mighty man;²³ and 'coals of broom' is Gehinnom.

R. Hama b. Hanina said: What is the remedy for slanderers? If he be a scholar, let him engage in the Torah, as it is said: The healing for a tongue is the tree of life,²⁴ and 'tongue' here means the evil tongue, as it is said: 'Their tongue is a sharpened arrow', and 'tree [of life]' means only the Torah, as it is said: She is a tree of life, to them that lay hold upon her.²⁵ — But if he be an ignorant person, let him become humble, as it is said: But perverseness therein is a wound to the spirit.²⁶ R. Aha b. R. Hanina said: If he has slandered already, there is no remedy for him, for King David, in his holy spirit, has cut him off already, as it is said: May the Lord cut off all flattering lips, the tongue that speaketh great [proud] things!²⁷ Nevertheless, what shall be his remedy so that he may not come to [utter] evil speech? If he be a scholar, let him engage in the Torah, and if he be an ignorant person, let him humble himself, as it is said: 'But perverseness therein is a wound to the spirit'.

The School of R. Ishmael taught: Whoever speaks slander increases his sins even up to [the degree of] the three [cardinal] sins: idolatry, incest,²⁸ and the shedding of blood. It is said here: 'The tongue that speaketh great things', and it is written in connection with idolatry: Oh, this people have sinned a great sin.²⁹ Touching incest Scripture said: How then can I do this great wickedness?³⁰ And in connection with the shedding of blood it is written: My punishment is greater than I can bear.³¹ Perhaps 'great things' refers to two [sins of the three]? Which of them would you exclude? In the West [Palestine] they say: The talk about third [persons]³² kills three persons: him who tells [the slander], him who accepts it, and him about whom it is told. R. Hama b. Hanina said: What is the meaning of: Death and life are in the hand [power] of the tongue?³³ Has the tongue 'a hand'? It tells you that just as the hand can kill, so can the tongue. One might say that just as the hand can kill only one near it, thus also the tongue can kill only one near it, therefore the text states: 'Their tongue is a sharpened arrow'. Then one might assume that just as an arrow kills only within forty or fifty cubits, thus also the tongue kills only up to forty or fifty cubits, therefore the text states: 'They have set their mouth against the heavens, and their tongue walketh through the earth'. But since it is written already: 'They set their mouth against the heavens', why was it necessary to state also: 'Their tongue is a sharpened arrow'? — This is what we are informed: That [the tongue] kills as an arrow. But once it is written: 'Their tongue is a sharpened arrow', why was it necessary to state: Death and life are in the hand of the tongue'? — It is in accord with Raba; for Raba said: He who wants to live [can find life] through the tongue;³⁴ he who wants to die [can find death] through the tongue.

What constitutes evil speech? — Rabbah said: For example [to say] there is fire in the house of So-and-so.³⁵ Said Abaye: What did he do? He just gave information? — Rather, when he utters that in slanderous fashion: 'Where else should there be fire if not in the house of So-and-so? There is always meat and fish'.³⁶ Rabbah said: Whatsoever is said in the presence of the person concerned is not considered evil speech. Said Abaye to him: But then it is the more impudence and evil speech! — He answered: I hold with R. Jose, for R. Jose said: I have never said a word and looked behind my back.³⁷

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 16a

Rabbah son of R. Huna said: Whatsoever is said before three is not considered slander. Why? Your friend has a friend, and your friend's friend has a friend.¹ When R. Dimi came [from Palestine]. he said: What is the meaning of the verse: He that blesseth his friend with a loud voice, rising early in the morning, it shall be counted a curse to him?² It refers, for example, to the case of one who happened to stay in a house where they laboured much on his behalf, and next morning he goes out into the street and says: May the Merciful One bless So-and-so, who laboured so much on my behalf. Whereupon people will hear it and come and plunder him.³

R. Dimi, brother of R. Safra, learnt: Let no man ever talk in praise of his neighbour, for through [talking in] his praise he will come⁴ to disparage him. Some there are who say: R. Dimi, brother of R. Safra, was ill. R. Safra entered to inquire about his state of health. He said, May it come [home] to me⁵ that I have kept whatever the Rabbis have enjoined. He said to him: Hast thou also kept [their command]: Let no man ever talk in praise of his neighbour. for through talking in his praise he will come to disparage him? He answered: I have not heard it, for had I heard it, I would have kept it.

R. Samuel b. Nahmani said in the name of R. Johanan: Because of seven things the plague of leprosy is incurred: [These are:] slander, the shedding of blood, vain oath,⁶ incest, arrogance, robbery and envy. Because of slander, as it is written: Whoso slandereth his neighbour in secret, him will I destroy.⁷ For 'blood-shed', as it is written: And let there not fail front the house of Joab one ... hath an issue or that is a leper.⁸ For a vain oath', as it is written: And Naaman said: be content, take two talents,⁹ and it is written: The leprosy therefore of Naaman shall cleave unto thee.⁹ For 'incest', as it is written: And the Lord plagued Pharaoh . . . with great plagues.¹⁰ Because of 'arrogance'. as it is written: But when he was strong, his heart was lifted up so he did corruptly, and he trespassed against the Lord, his God . . . and the leprosy broke forth in his forehead.¹¹ Because of 'robbery', as it is written: And the priest shall command that they empty the house,¹² in connection with which a Tanna taught: Because he had gathered money that was not his own, the priest comes and scatters it. And because of 'envy', as it is said: Then he that owneth the house shall come,¹³ referring to which the school of R. Ishmael taught: He who would reserve his house for himself.¹⁴ But that is not so, for R. 'Anani b. Sason said: Why is the portion about the priestly garments¹⁵ placed next to the portion about the sacrifices? It is to tell you that just as sacrifices procure atonement, so do the priestly garments. The tunic procures atonement for bloodshed, as it is written: And they dipped the coat in the blood.¹⁶ The breeches procure atonement for incest, as it is written: And thou shalt make them linen breeches to cover the flesh of their nakedness.¹⁷ The mitre procures atonement for those of arrogant mind, in accord with what R. Hanina taught; for he said: Let that which is [placed] high procure atonement for acts of haughtiness. The girdle procures atonement for sinful thoughts of the heart, [for it atones] where it is [worn].¹⁸ The breastplate procures atonement for [error in] legal decisions, as it is written: And thou shalt make a breastplate of judgment.¹⁹ The ephod procures atonement for idolatry, as it is written: And without ephod or teraphim.²⁰ The robe procures atonement for slander, for the Holy One, blessed be He, said: Let that which emits a sound,²¹ procure atonement for an act of sound [the voice]. The [golden] plate procures atonement for impudent deeds, for there it is written: And it shall be upon Aaron's forehead,²² and it is written there: Yet thou hadst a harlot's forehead!²³ — This is no contradiction: The one results when his actions were effective, the other when they were not effective. If his acts were effective, the plague of leprosy visits him, if his actions were not effective, the robe procures atonement.²⁴ But R. Simeon said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi: For two things we do not find any atonement through sacrifices, but we do find atonement for them through something else, [viz.,] bloodshed and slander. Bloodshed through the heifer whose neck is to be broken, and slander through incense. For R. Hanina taught: We have learnt that the incense procures atonement, as it is written: And he put oil the incense and made atonement for the people.²⁵ And the School of R. Ishmael taught: For what does incense procure atonement? For slander. The Holy One, blessed be He, said: Let that which is [offered]²⁶ in secret [come and] procure atonement for what was done in secret. Now we have a contradiction from [one teaching concerning] bloodshed as against another [teaching touching] bloodshed; and a contradiction from [one teaching about] slander against [another about] slander? — There is no contradiction between the two teachings about bloodshed; one speaks of the case where it is known who has killed him, and the other where it is unknown. But where it is known who has killed him, he ought to be executed? — It speaks of a case where he did it deliberately, but without having been forewarned.²⁷ Neither is there a contradiction between the two teachings about slander; the one was committed in secret,

the other in public.¹

R. Samuel b. Elnadab asked of R. Hanina, or as others say. R. Samuel b. Nadab, the son-in-law of R. Hanina, asked of R. Hanina; or, according to still others, asked of R. Joshua b. Levi: Wherein is the leper different that the Torah said: He shall dwell alone; without the camp shall his dwelling be?² He separated a husband from his wife, a man from his neighbour, therefore said the Torah: 'He shall dwell alone'. R. Joshua b. Levi said: Wherein is the leper different that the Torah said: Two living clean birds³ [he should bring] so that he may become pure again? The Holy One, blessed be He, said: He did the work of a babbler, therefore let him offer a babbler as a sacrifice.⁴

Our Rabbis taught: Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart.⁵ One might have believed one may only not smite him, slap him, curse him, therefore the text states: 'In thy heart'; Scripture speaks of 'hatred in the heart'. Whence do we know that if a man sees something unseemly in his neighbour, he is obliged to reprove him? Because it is said: Thou shalt surely rebuke.⁶ If he rebuked him and he did not accept it, whence do we know that he must rebuke him again? The text states: 'surely rebuke' all ways. One might assume [this to be obligatory] even though his face blanched, therefore the text states: 'Thou shalt not bear sin because of him'.⁶

It was taught [in a Baraita]: R. Tarfon said, I wonder whether there is any one in this generation who accepts reproof, for if one says to him: Remove the mote from between your eyes, he would answer: Remove the beam from between your eyes! R. Eleazar b. Azariah said: I wonder if there is one in this generation who knows how to reprove! R. Johanan b. Nuri said: I call heaven and earth to witness for myself that often was Akiba punished⁷ through me because I used to complain against him before our Rabban, Gamaliel Beribbi,⁸ and all the more he showered love upon me, to make true what has been said: Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee; reprove a wise man and he will love thee.⁹

R. Judah son of R. Simeon b. Pazzi asked of R. Simeon b. Pazzi: What is preferable: reproof with honest purpose or false modesty?¹⁰ — He answered: Won't you agree that true modesty is better,¹¹ for a Master said: Modesty is the greatest of them all? Thus also is false modesty preferable. For Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: By all means let a man engage in the study of the Torah and in good deeds, even if not for their own sake, because through the work for an ulterior purpose he will arrive at the stage of doing [good] for its own sake.¹² What is honest reproof and what is false modesty? — For instance the case of R. Huna and Hiyya b. Rab who were sitting before Samuel, when Hiyya b. Rab said: Sir, look how he is vexing me greatly. He [R. Huna] undertook not to vex him any more. After he [the former] left, he [R. Huna] said: He did this and that [unseemly] thing. Whereupon Samuel said: Why did you not tell him that to his face? He replied: Forbid that the seed of Rab should be put to shame through me!¹³

How far shall reproof be administered? Rab said: Until he [the reprover] be beaten. Samuel said: Until he be cursed. R. Johanan said: Until he be rebuked. This is a point at issue between Tannaim. R. Eliezer said: Until he be beaten. R. Joshua said: Until he be cursed. Ben 'Azzai said: Until he be rebuked. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: All the three expounded one Scriptural verse; [It is written:] Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan and he said unto him: Thou son of perverse rebellion, do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own shame, and unto the shame of thy mother's nakedness?¹⁴ And it is written: And Saul cast his spear at him to smite him.¹⁵ The one who said [above] 'Until he be beaten' [said so] because it is written: 'to smite him'; the other who said: 'Until he be cursed' [said so] because it is written: 'to thine own shame and to the shame of thy mother's nakedness'; the other, who said: 'Until he be rebuked' [said so] because it is written: 'Then Saul's anger was kindled'. But according to him who says: 'Until he be shouted at', does not Scripture mention 'beating' and 'cursing'? — That was different, because for his great love of David, Jonathan risked his life even further. How far shall a man suffer before changing his lodging? — Rab said: Until he is beaten, Samuel said: Until they throw his bundles over his shoulder. Where he himself is beaten there is no dispute [that it is proper for him to leave]; similarly if they threw his bundles over his shoulder, there is likewise no dispute. They are of conflicting opinion only in case his wife is beaten, one holding: 'As long as he himself is not vexed what difference does it make'?¹⁶ The other's view being: 'It will end in a quarrel [ultimately]'. Why all that [deliberation]?¹⁷ — Because a Master said: A boarder [constantly changing his lodging] discredits others and himself.¹⁸ R. Judah in the name of Rab said: Whence is derived from the Torah the view that a man should not change his lodging? Because it is said: [And he went] unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning.¹⁹ R. Jose b. Hanina said: [It is derived] from here: And he went on his [former] journeys.²⁰ What is the practical difference between them? — There is this difference: the case of a casual lodging.

R. Johanan said: Whence do we know that a man should not change his occupation and that of his forebears? As it is said: And King Solomon sent and fetched Hiram out of Tyre. He was the son of a widow of the tribe of Naphtali,²¹ and his father was a man of Tyre, a worker in brass;²² and a Master said: His mother was of the house of Dan;²³ and it is written: And I behold I have appointed him with Ohaliab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan.²⁴

At what stage do [Divine] visitations commence?²⁵ — R. Eleazar said: If a man had, for example, a garment woven for him to wear and it does not fit him. Raba the younger (or, as others say. R. Ze'ira; or again. as others say. R. Samuel b. Nahmani) demurred to this: But more than that was said. 'Even if it had been intended to serve him [the wine] hot, and it was served cold to him; or it was intended to be served cold, and it was served hot to him [is accounted as a divine visitation]', and you say [only] at that stage? Mar, the son of Rabina, said: Even if his shirt gets turned inside out. Raba (or, as others say, R. Hisda, or again, as some say. R. Isaac, or as it was said, it was taught in a Baraitha): Even if he puts the hand into his pocket to take out three [coins] and he takes out but two. Now this is only in the case [where he intended to take out] three, and [took out] two, but not if [he meant to take] two and three came into his hand, because it is no trouble to throw it back. But why all this [information]? — Because the School of R. Ishmael taught: Anyone upon whom forty days have passed without [divine] visitation, had received his world. In the West [Palestine] they say:

- (1) If he slandered in private the incense procures atonement, as it, too, functions in private. If he slandered in public the robe, emitting sound, procures atonement for the act of sound which is his sin.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 17a

Retribution is prepared for him.

It was taught: R. Eliezer the great said: If the Holy One, blessed be He, wished to enter in judgment with Abraham, Isaac or Jacob, not [even] they could stand before His reproof! As it is said: Now therefore stand still, that I may plead with you before the Lord concerning all the righteous acts of the Lord, which He did to you and to your fathers.¹ [It is written:] Such is the generation of them that seek after Him, that seek Thy face, even Jacob. Selah.² R. Judah Nesi'ah³ and the Rabbis differ [as to the meaning]: One says, as the leader, so the generation; the other: as the generation, so the leader. For what practical purpose [is this discussion]? Would you say: It refers to virtue so that one holds: if the generation is virtuous, so is the leader; the other's view being: if the leader is virtuous, so is the generation; but surely there is Zedekiah who was virtuous, whereas his generation was not so; and there is Jehoiakim who was not virtuous, whilst his generation was so. For R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: What is the meaning of: In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah?⁴ The Holy One, blessed be He, wanted to reduce the world to formlessness and emptiness because of Jehoiakim, but when He considered His generation. His anger subsided.⁵ The Holy One, blessed be He, wanted to reduce the world to formlessness and emptiness because of the generation of Zedekiah, but when he considered Zedekiah, his anger subsided? — Rather, it refers to anger and gentleness respectively.⁶

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. AS TO THE SUFFICIENCY OF MEANS,⁷ THIS SHALL BE DONE ACCORDING TO THE ABILITY OF HIM WHO VOWS. AND [WHEN ACCORDING TO] THE YEARS OF HIS AGE, THIS SHALL BE ACCORDING TO HIM WHO IS THE SUBJECT OF THE VOW. AS FOR VALUATIONS,⁸ THIS SHALL BE ACCORDING TO HIM WHO IS THE SUBJECT OF THE VALUATION. AND THE VALUATIONS [SHALL BE PAID ACCORDING TO THE RATE PRESCRIBED] AT THE TIME OF THE VALUATION. AS TO THE SUFFICIENCY OF MEANS, THIS SHALL BE ACCORDING TO THE MAN WHO VOWS'. HOW IS THAT? IF A POOR MAN EVALUATED A RICH MAN, HE SHALL PAY ONLY THE VALUATION OF A POOR MAN.⁹ BUT IF A RICH MAN EVALUATED A POOR MAN, HE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF A RICH MAN. BUT IT IS NOT SO WITH OFFERINGS. IF A MAN SAID: I TAKE UPON MYSELF THE OFFERING OF THIS LEPER, AND THE LEPER WAS POOR, HE BRINGS THE OFFERING OF A POOR MAN.¹⁰ BUT IF THE LEPER WAS RICH, HE MUST BRING THE OFFERING OF A RICH MAN.¹¹ RABBI SAYS: I SAY THE SAME APPLIES WITH REGARD TO A VALUATION.¹² WHY IS A POOR MAN WHO EVALUATED A RICH MAN OBLIGED TO PAY ONLY THE VALUATION OF A POOR MAN? BECAUSE THE RICH MAN HAD NOT INCURRED ANY LIABILITY WHATSOEVER. BUT IF THE RICH MAN SAID: I EVALUATE MYSELF' AND THE POOR MAN, HEARING THAT, SAID: WHAT THIS MAN HAS SAID, I TAKE UPON MYSELF, THEN HE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF A RICH MAN.

GEMARA. Surely 'sufficiency of means' is written only in connection with valuation?¹³ As it is written: According to the means of him that vowed shall the priest value him.¹⁴ But is [payment according to] the years of his age with regard to one [whose worth has been] vowed, is it not only [stated] with regard to one who has been subject to valuation? — Since he [the Tanna] had spoken of 'sufficiency of means' in connection with 'one who vows', he speaks, touching the years, also of one who had been the subject of a vow.

AS TO SUFFICIENCY OF MEANS, THIS SHALL BE ACCORDING TO THE MAN WHO VOWS'. HOW IS THAT? IF A POOR MAN EVALUATED A RICH MAN HE SHALL PAY

ONLY THE VALUATION OF A POOR MAN. But why? Scripture said: 'According to the means of him that vowed', i.e., the Divine Law made it dependent upon him who 'vowed'.

BUT IT IS NOT SO WITH OFFERINGS. IF A MAN SAID: I TAKE UPON MYSELF THE OFFERING OF THIS LEPER. AND THE LEPER WAS POOR, HE BRINGS THE OFFERING OF A POOR MAN. This means although he who vowed is rich! But did not the Divine Law say: And if he be poor,¹⁵ and he [who vowed] is not poor? Said R. Isaac: This refers to the case where he who vowed [too] was poor. But perhaps the All Merciful spared only [the leper] himself, but not him who vowed, as it is written: [If] he [be too poor]?¹⁶ — Said R. Adda b. Ahabah: 'And his means suffice not',¹⁷ includes him who vows. But if he who vows were a rich man, would he indeed have to bring the offering of a rich man? If so, what means BUT IT IS NOT SO WITH OFFERINGS?¹⁸ —

(6) The temperament of the leader, gentle or otherwise, depends upon the spirit of his time.

(7) V. Lev. XXVII, 8.

(8) Explained in Mishnah infra 18a.

(9) I.e., according to his means.

(10) Lev. XIV, 21-32.

(11) Ibid. 10.

(12) There are two views as to what Rabbi means: (i) Rabbi disagrees with the Tanna, for according to the former, a poor man would under all circumstances incur no liability beyond that of a poor man's valuation, i.e., according to his means; even though he heard the rich man vow his own valuation and thereupon he (the poor man) said: I take upon myself what this man has said. According to Rabbi, however, in such a case the poor man would be liable to pay the rich man's (i.e., the normal) valuation, since in saying: 'I take upon myself what this man has said' he deliberately assumes the full liability, and he would owe the sum until able to pay it. (ii) Maimonides interprets Rabbi's attitude to be in accord with the first Tanna's, opposing only the suggestion that it is not so with offerings'. because if the same conditions which prevail at the leper's vow prevailed in the case of a valuation, the same rules would apply, according to the view of the Tanna which Rabbi holds.

(13) Our Mishnah uses the term 'vows' instead of 'evaluates', whereas the rule of paying according to one's means applies not to the vower (of a man's market value), but to the valuations.

(14) The Torah uses in this particular case 'vowing' in its general meaning, which includes also the vowing of one's valuation, that is why the Mishnah, too, uses the same term, not in the stricter but in the general sense. (Lev. XXVII, 8).

(15) Lev. XIV, 21.

(16) The suggestion is that the Torah, out of pity for a poor leper, would allow him to bring the lesser sacrifice, but might not be willing to extend the same consideration to a healthy poor man, who without any compulsion assumed his liability.

(17) Ibid.

(18) When the same regulation applies to them too.

One refers to a poor leper. when the person who vowed [his sacrifice] was poor; the other to a rich leper when he who vows is poor.¹ One might have believed that since he was included, he was completely included,² therefore we are informed [that it is not so]. even as it was taught: Since we find in case of valuation that a poor man who evaluated a rich man need pay but the valuation of a poor man, one might have assumed that the same applied also to this [case], therefore the text states: And if he be poor'. But according to Rabbi who said: I SAY THE SAME APPLIES ALSO WITH REGARD TO A VALUATION which shows that we are guided by the liability of the person,³ so that no Scriptural verse is necessary to exclude,⁴ what then does: '[If] he [be too poor]' exclude? — It excludes the case of a poor leper whilst he who vowed was rich. I might have assumed that since Rabbi said: We are guided by the liability of the person, we shall here too be guided by the liability of the person, therefore we are informed [that we are not so guided here].

MISHNAH. IF HE WAS POOR AND THEN BECAME RICH⁵ OR RICH AND THEN BECAME POOR, HE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF A RICH MAN. R. JUDAH SAYS: EVEN IF HE WAS POOR AND BECAME RICH AND THEN AGAIN BECAME POOR HE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF A RICH MAN. BUT IT IS NOT SO WITH OFFERINGS. EVEN IF HIS FATHER WAS DYING [WHILST A MAN VOWED] AND LEFT HIM TEN THOUSAND, OR IF HE HAD A SHIP ON THE SEA AND IT BROUGHT TO HIM TEN THOUSAND, THE SANCTUARY HAS NO CLAIM AT ALL ON THEM.⁶

GEMARA. IF HE WAS POOR AND THEN BECAME RICH etc., [as it is written,] According to the means of him that vowed.⁷ OR RICH AND THEN BECAME POOR [etc.]. [as it is written,] According to the means of him that vowed.⁷

R. JUDAH SAID: EVEN IF HE WAS POOR AND BECAME RICH AND THEN AGAIN BECAME POOR etc. What is the reason of R. Judah's view? — Scripture said: But if he be too poor for thy valuation,⁷ i.e., only if he remains in his poor state from the beginning to the end. But if that be so [consider that]: 'If he be too poor'.⁸ [Would you say] here, too, 'only if he remains poor from the beginning to the end'? And if you were to say, 'Indeed so'! Have we not learnt: If a leper offered up [part of] his offering as a poor man and became rich, or as a rich man and became poor, all should be guided by what the sin-offering was. These are the words of R. Simeon. R. Judah says: Everything should be guided by [what he was when he brought] the guilt-offering.⁹ And it was taught: R. Eleazar b. Jacob says. All should be guided by what [he was when he brought] the birds?¹⁰ — But surely it was said with regard thereto; R. Judah said in the name of Rab: All the three inferred it from one Scriptural verse: Whose means suffice not for that which pertaineth to his cleansing.¹¹ R. Simeon holds: [The reference is to] the thing that procures atonement, that is, the sin-offering. R. Judah holds: It is to the thing which renders him fit, that is, the guilt-offering.¹² R. Eleazar b. Jacob says: The thing which causes his cleansing, that is, the birds. But then why is it said: '[If] he [be too poor]'? According to Rabbi, as he explains it, and according to the Sages, as they explain it.¹³

But then,¹⁴ [when it is written:] He being a witness,¹⁵ would you here, too, say that he must be a fit [witness] from beginning to end? And if you will say: Indeed so! Surely it was taught: If a man knew testimony [to give] for another before he became his son-in-law, and then became his son-in-law; or if he then could hear and now became deaf; could see and now became blind; was of sound mind then and now became stupid, then he is disqualified [as witness]. But if he knew testimony [to give] for him before he became his son-in-law, then became his son-in-law,

(1) In one respect it does apply, in the other it does not. It does not apply to the case of a poor man vowing a rich leper's sacrifice, therefore the remark, 'But it is not so with offerings', is justified. But it does apply to the case of a poor man vowing a poor leper's sacrifice.

(2) One might have assumed that since on the basis of the Scriptural 'And his means suffice not', we include the poor man vowing a poor leper's sacrifice in the consideration due to a poor man's dedicating a rich man, that therefore we might extend the same consideration even to a poor man vowing a rich leper's sacrifice, therefore we need the exclusive meaning of, 'If he be too poor', i.e., only a poor leper's sacrifice is reduced, but a rich leper's sacrifice, even if vowed by a poor man, is not reduced.

(3) Whose valuation has been vowed, not by the ability of the person who vows it.

(4) I.e., the case of a poor man who vows the offering due from a rich leper; since on Rabbi's view the law can be derived from valuations, we are guided by the liability of the leper and not by the means of him that vowed.

- (5) If he became rich either before he had paid the valuation (Rashi); or (Tosaf. Yomtob) before he had been assessed by the priest as to his means.
- (6) Again the meaning of the Mishnah is disputed. Rashi holds, 'But it is not so with offerings' refers to the difference between the rules governing them, and those governing valuations; the second part of the Mishnah, however, applies evenly to both. Maimonides, on the other hand, sees the two parts forming one whole. The difference between offering and valuation lies in this: with regard to the former, everything depends on the sufficiency of means of him from whom the offering is due at the moment when the offering is due, which, according to R. Simeon and the other Tannaim (v. infra) means the time when the sin- and guilt-offerings respectively are offered up. and according to R. Eliezer b. Jacob, the time when he brings the birds into the Sanctuary. If at that moment he is poor, then he need bring but the sacrifice of a poor leper, even though his father be dying. or his boat be on the way back and thus promising him an increase in his sufficiency of means. Tosaf. has valid objections to this interpretation. s.v. אבא.
- (7) Lev. XXVII, 8.
- (8) With reference to a leper.
- (9) [The leper had to bring a guilt-offering, a sin-offering and a whole-offering (Lev. XIV, 19, 22). the latter two varying according whether he be poor or rich. If his condition changed after having brought his sin-offering, the whole-offering which he subsequently brings must be a bird if the sin-offering he had brought as a poor man was a bird, or a he-lamb if the sin-offering he had brought as a rich man had been an ewe lamb].
- (10) Lev. XIV, 4. He had to bring these birds alive into the Sanctuary.
- (11) Lev. Xlv, 32.
- (12) It is the guilt-offering which renders him fit to enter the Sanctuary and to eat of the holy meat, after the priest had applied the blood thereof on the tip of his right ear and great toe of his right foot and thumb of the right hand. Lev. XIV, 14.
- (13) Supra p. 99, n. 6.
- (14) In view of the interpretation of the verse 'If he be too poor'. taking the 'he' to denote that there has been no change of condition all the time.
- (15) Lev. V, 1.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 18a

and after that his daughter [the father-in-law's. i.e., his wife] died; or if he could hear, became deaf, and now regained his hearing; or if he could see, lost his sight, and now recovered it; or was of sound mind, lost his mind, and now recovered it, then he is eligible [as witness]. This is the general rule: Whosoever was capable at the beginning and, again, at the end, is eligible?¹ — It is different there because Scripture says: If he do not utter it, then he shall bear his iniquity.² the Divine Law has made the matter dependent on seeing and hearing, and that is found here.³ But then what is the need of: 'He being a witness'? — Because of what has been taught: If he saw a company of men standing, among whom are his witnesses, and he says: I adjure you that if you know a testimony on my behalf you come and testify for me, one might have assumed that they then are obliged [to do so], therefore the text states: 'He being a witness', whilst he has not singled out his witnesses. One might assume that [the same applies] even if he said: Whosoever [of you knows a fact to testify to. etc.], therefore the text states: 'He being a witness', and he has singled them out.⁴

BUT IT IS NOT SO WITH OFFERINGS: IF HIS FATHER DIED AND LEFT HIM TEN THOUSAND etc. But then he is a rich man? R. Abbuha said: Say, He was leaving him ten thousand.⁵ But that is self-evident? — It means that his father lies in a dying condition. You might have said: Most of the people in a dying condition really die, therefore we are informed [that the Sanctuary has nevertheless no claim].

IF HIS BOAT IS ON THE SEA RETURNING TO HIM WITH TEN THOUSAND. But then he is a rich man? R. Hisda said: It refers to a case when he had rented out or hired it out to others. But there is the rent? — Rent is not payable before the end [of the contracted period]. But derive [his richness] from his boat alone? This is in accord with the view of R. Eliezer, for it was taught: If he was a farmer, they must leave him his yoke of oxen, and if he was an ass-driver, they must leave him his ass.⁶

MISHNAH. 'AS FOR THE YEARS THIS SHALL BE [VALUED] ACCORDING TO [THE AGE OF] HIM WHO IS VOWED'? IF A CHILD EVALUATES AN OLD MAN. HE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF AN OLD MAN. AND IF AN OLD MAN EVALUATES A CHILD. HE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF A CHILD. AS FOR VALUATION: THIS SHALL BE ACCORDING TO HIM WHO IS THE SUBJECT OF THE VALUATION. HOW IS THAT? IF A MAN EVALUATED A WOMAN, HE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF A WOMAN. AND IF A WOMAN EVALUATED A MAN, SHE MUST PAY THE VALUATION OF A MAN. 'AND THE VALUATION DEPENDS UPON THE TIME OF THE VALUATION'. HOW IS THAT? IF HE EVALUATED ONE WHO WAS LESS THAN FIVE YEARS OF AGE, AND HE BECAME [MEANTIME] OLDER THAN FIVE YEARS OF AGE; OR [HE EVALUATED ONE] WHO WAS LESS THAN TWENTY YEARS OF AGE AND HE BECAME TWENTY YEARS OLD. HE MUST PAY [ONLY] IN ACCORD WITH THE AGE AT THE TIME OF THE VALUATION.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: You have compared vows [of market value] to valuations, both with regard to [the valuation of] pearls for the poor,⁷ and to the rule that the value of a limb be judged in accord with its importance.⁸ One might have assumed that we shall compare valuations with vows of market value also with regard to the rule that there, too, he shall have to pay its value according to the time of the payment,⁹ therefore it is said: According to thy valuation it shall stand,¹⁰ i.e., [in the case of valuation] he shall pay only as much as it was worth at the time of the valuation.

MISHNAH. THE THIRTIETH DAY IS ACCOUNTED UNDER THIS AGE. THE FIFTH YEAR OR TWENTIETH YEAR IS ACCOUNTED UNDER THIS AGE. FOR IT IS WRITTEN: AND IF IT BE FROM SIXTY YEARS OLD AND UPWARD.¹¹ WE LEARN THUS WITH REGARD TO ALL OTHERS FROM WHAT IS SAID ABOUT SIXTY YEARS: JUST AS THE SIXTIETH YEAR IS ACCOUNTED UNDER THIS AGE. SO ALSO THE FIFTH AND TWENTIETH YEARS ARE ACCOUNTED UNDER THIS AGE. WHAT! BECAUSE [THE TORAH] HAS RECKONED THE SIXTIETH YEAR TO BE UNDER THIS AGE, THEREBY BEING MORE STRINGENT, SHALL THE FIFTH OR THE TWENTIETH YEAR BE CONSIDERED UNDER THIS AGE. WHEREBY IT WOULD BE MORE LENIENT?¹² TO TEACH US THAT, IT IS SAID: 'YEARS', 'YEARS' TO SET FORTH THIS ANALOGY: JUST AS WITH THE SIXTIETH YEAR THE WORD 'YEARS' MEANS THAT IT BE RECKONED UNDER AGE, SO THE WORD 'YEARS' WITH THE FIFTH AND WITH THE TWENTIETH YEAR MEANS THAT IT IS TO BE RECKONED UNDER AGE, NO MATTER WHETHER IT BEARS LENIENTLY OR STRINGENTLY. R. ELEAZAR SAYS: [THIS RULE HOLDS GOOD] UNTIL THEY ARE A MONTH AND A DAY BEYOND THE YEARS CONCERNED.

GEMARA. Now this is superfluous,¹³ for were that not the case, it could be refuted as we did. For [the fact is that] the words 'years', 'years' are written superfluously.

Shall we say that our Mishnah is not in accord with Rabbi; for if it were in accord with Rabbi, surely he said: 'Until' is meant to be inclusive. For it was taught: [It is written:] From the first day until the seventh day.¹⁴ One might have assumed [this to mean]: 'From the first day on' but the first not included, and 'until the seventh day' but the seventh day not included,

(1) Whereas above the condition was made that he must be of one quality or condition from the beginning to the end.

(2) Lev. V, 1.

(3) The Torah here insists that it is sufficient if he be fit at the time of seeing and telling, rendering his condition at any other time irrelevant.

(4) He must single out those whom he adjures to give testimony on his behalf, because the Biblical 'He being a witness' indicates that a definite person must be involved. When the adjurer says: If someone among you knows etc., he speaks in general terms, hence does not affect those few who know among the majority who do not. But if he said: Whosoever of you knows, then he is addressing himself individually to each who does, hence he does oblige those who can give testimony on his behalf, to do so.

(5) He has not left him the money yet. He is still living, although in a dying condition. Yet, as long as he is alive, the Sanctuary has no claim whatsoever on the son, because the general experience that people in a dying condition die, does not, for the purpose of the law, assume that the person is dead, that the inheritance is available, but we say that the son now has no money yet.

(6) Just as the farmer's yoke of oxen are his 'tools' wherewith he earns his living; just as the ass-driver's ass for that reason may not be taken in pledge, so is this man's boat, a tool wherewith he earns his living and must not be taken either.

(7) If a poor man owned a pearl which in his place of residence, for lack of demand, is worth but thirty sela's, whereas in a large town where there are many buyers, it would be worth fifty-one must assume that it is worth only what the poor man can get for it now, in his place of residence. The poor man who vowed his own valuation would hence not have to pay fifty sela's (if he were between twenty and fifty years of age), although the pearl might fetch that price elsewhere. Now the same rule applies to the case of one who said: 'I take it upon myself to pay to the Sanctuary the value of this pearl'. Here, too since we compared valuation to vow of market-value, the vower would have to pay the lower price. The comparison, based on analogy of expression, is found supra 2a.

(8) V. supra 4b,

(9) When the worth of the person who is the subject of the vow is valued.

(10) Lev. XXVII, 17.

(11) Lev. XXVII, 7.

(12) The valuation from twenty to sixty is fifty shekels. From sixty up it is fifteen. From five to twenty, twenty shekels. Now the Torah in considering one of sixty years to be under age, imposes upon the vower the highest payment — a stringency. Would one stretch the analogy so far as to do just the opposite: to lower the payment by considering one of twenty to be nineteen, which would mean reducing the sum due from fifty shekels to twenty?

(13) 'Mufneh'; lit., 'free, empty, disengaged'. It means that the identical expression, the gezerah shawah (v. Glos.) occurring in two different texts, has not been engaged for any deduction or interpretation, thus is 'free' and legitimately a source of comparison for the case in question. The repetition of the word 'years'. which has no meaning in the context, and which suggests no other teaching. thereby justifies the inferences made here from the analogous expression.

(14) Ex. XII, 15.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 18b

, in the same manner as it is said: From his head even unto his feet,¹ where it means, '[from] his head [on]', but his head is not included; and '[unto his] feet', but his feet are not included;² therefore it is said: Until the one and twentieth day of the month at even.³ — Rabbi said: This was not necessary: 'first' [itself] means the first inclusive, and 'seventh' the seventh inclusive! You might even say that our Mishnah is in accord with Rabbi. Here, however, the Scriptural verses are balanced. For it is written: From a month old even unto five years old,⁴ why then [state] From five years old even unto twenty years old?⁵ Therefore they are balanced.⁶

The Master has said: 'his head'. but his head is not included; 'his feet', but the feet are not included. Whence do we know that? — If you like, say: Because the signs [of leprosy] on the body are different from those on the head;⁷ or, if you like, say: As far as appeareth to the priest.⁸

R. ELIEZER SAYS: [THIS RULE HOLDS GOOD] UNTIL THEY ARE A MONTH AND A DAY BEYOND THE YEARS CONCERNED. It was taught: R. Eliezer said, Here it is said, 'and upward', and there it is said, 'and upward';⁹ just as there the meaning is 'from a month and one day', so here a month and one day. But say perhaps: Just as there 'one day' so here, too. 'one day'?¹⁰ — Of what value would the analogy then be?

Our Rabbis taught: The year mentioned in connection with consecrated animals, the year stated in connection with dwelling houses in a walled city,¹¹ the two years in connection with the field of possession,¹² the six years of the Hebrew slave,¹³ as well as those of a son or daughter,¹⁴ are to be understood as from hour to hour.¹⁵ Whence do we know that with regard to consecrated animals? — R. Aha b. Jacob said: Scripture said, A lamb ben shenato [of the first year],¹⁶ i.e., of 'its own first year', not that of the calendar.¹⁷ As to the year mentioned in connection with dwelling houses in a walled city. Scripture said: Within a whole year mimkaro [after it is sold],¹⁸ i.e., of its [own year after the] sale, not of the calendar. With regard to the two years of the field of possession, it is written: According unto the number of years of the crops he shall sell unto thee,¹⁹ implying that a man eats [the fruit of] three crops in two years. With regard to the six years of a Hebrew slave, Scripture said: Six years he shall serve, and in the seventh,²⁰ implying that at times in the seventh year, too, he may be working.²¹ 'As well as those of a son or daughter', for what practical purpose is the rule? — R. Giddal in the name of Rab said: With regard to valuations.²² R. Joseph said: With regard to [the subject of] the chapter on the foetus extracted by means of a caesarean section.²³

Said Abaye to R. Joseph: Are you [two] of conflicting opinion? — He replied: No, I say one thing, and he said another. Thus also does it seem logical. For if you should think they are disputing, and he who said [the practical purpose] concerns valuations, should not hold it to be also with regard to the chapter about the foetus extracted by means of a caesarean section, has not Rab said that the decision was with regard to all [cases in that] chapter: that [the years] were to be understood as from hour to hour? Then why does he who said [the practical purpose] concerned valuations not say it concerns the chapter on a caesarean extraction? — Because it²⁴ is to be analogous to those [mentioned previously]:²⁵ Just as these are written [in the Torah], so does this refer to what is written [in the Torah].²⁶ And the other? — If you think [that the reference is to] what is written, then the expression 'With a son or daughter' — ought it not to state 'with male or female'?²⁷

(1) Lev. XIII, 12 in connection with the signs of leprosy.

(2) V. infra.

(3) Ex. XII, 18, the words 'at even', at the end of the day, include the seventh, and 'at even' is also written in connection with the first day in the same verse.

(4) Lev. XXVII, 6.

(5) Ibid. v. 5.

(6) The fifth year as well as the twentieth (vv. 3 and 5) could be counted as belonging to either of the periods. Therefore the verses are suspended in meaning, indeterminate, and it is only the inference from analogy of expression which establishes the correct meaning.

(7) The signs on the head are yellow thin hair, whereas the signs on the body are white hair, and spreading in the skin.

(8) Ibid. XIII, 12. The priest could not see the sign on the head because of the hair, nor between the toes, in one view, as required.

(9) Num. III, 43. with reference to the counting of the Levites. Any Levite of over one month old, even if it be but one day, was included in the counting.

(10) Since here the addition is but one day, perhaps it ought to be exactly alike with the years in the case of valuations.

(15) As lasting one year from the hour of its birth, or sale, or service, to the very same hour a year later on the very same day, independent of the calendar year. In a calendar year Tishri would commence the New Year.

(16) Lev. XII, 6. The text might have read: ben shanah, which would have suggested an ordinary year. 'Ben shenato', (lit., 'an animal its year old') suggests that it shall be its own year, from hour to hour.

(17) Lit., 'world'.

(18) Lev. XXV, 29. Again the word 'mimkaro' suggests its own year. i.e., from hour to hour.

(19) Ibid. v. 15. the double plural 'years of crops' suggesting that the regular counting would not be satisfactory. There may be more than two crops in two years.

(20) Ex. XXI, 2.

(21) The second part of the verse is taken here in conjunction with the first.

(22) I.e., with regard to the age which determines the rate of payment.

(24) The reference to a son and daughter.

(25) I.e., the consecrated animals, etc.

(26) Viz., valuations.

(27) Just as the Torah in this connection (Lev. XXVII) speaks of 'male' and 'female'.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 19a

Why is a female, when she is old, valued only at one third, whereas a man at not even a third?¹ — Said Hezekiah: people say, An old man in the house is a burden in the house, an old woman in the house is a treasure in the house!²

CHAPTER V

MISHNAH. IF A MAN SAID: I VOW MY WEIGHT, THEN HE MUST PAY HIS WEIGHT, IN SILVER [IF HE HAD SAID IN] SILVER, OR IN GOLD [IF HE HAD SAID IN] GOLD. IT HAPPENED WITH THE MOTHER OF YIRMATIA,³ WHO HAD SAID, 'I VOW MY DAUGHTER'S WEIGHT': SHE WENT UP TO JERUSALEM AND WEIGHED HER AND THEN PAID HER WEIGHT IN GOLD. [IF A MAN SAID: I VOW] THE WEIGHT OF MY HAND, R. JUDAH SAYS: LET HIM FILL A BARREL WITH WATER AND PUT IT [HIS HAND] IN UP TO THE ELBOW. THEN LET HIM WEIGH THE FLESH, BONES AND SINEWS OF AN ASS AND PUT IT INTO THE BARREL UNTIL IT IS FILLED UP AGAIN. SAID R. JOSE: BUT HOW IS IT POSSIBLE TO ACCOUNT EXACTLY ONE KIND OF FLESH AGAINST ANOTHER KIND OF FLESH, AND ONE KIND OF BONES AGAINST ANOTHER KIND OF BONES? RATHER: ONE ESTIMATES WHAT THE HAND IS LIKELY TO WEIGH.

GEMARA. What does it mean IF SILVER, SILVER, IF GOLD, GOLD? — Rab Judah said: If he had said [my weight] in silver, then [he must pay it] in silver, if gold. gold. But that is self-evident? — This is what he is teaching us: The reason⁴ is because he has mentioned expressly [the precious metal], but if he has not mentioned expressly, he can free himself of the obligation with anything;⁵ in accord with Rehabah, for Rehabah said: In a place where [they sell] pitch by the weight, he can free himself even with pitch. But that is self-evident? — No, it is necessary to mention that for the case that some weigh and others measure it. You might say since not all [sell it] by weight [he may] not [free himself by paying his weight in pitch], therefore we are informed [that he may].

R. Papa said: In a place where [they sell] onions by the weight, he can acquit himself [of his vow] even with onions. But that is self-evident? — It is necessary to mention that because after weighing it [the seller] would add two or three. Therefore you might have said: thereby it should be excluded from the rule of things [sold] by weight. Therefore we are informed [that it is not so excluded].

IT HAPPENED WITH THE MOTHER OF YIRMATIA. An accident [is reported] to contradict [the law just stated]? — Something is missing here and thus it ought to read: 'But if it be a prominent person, then although he has not expressly stated, we estimate it in accordance with his dignity; and IT HAPPENED WITH THE MOTHER OF YIRMATIA WHO HAD SAID, 'I VOW MY DAUGHTER'S WEIGHT': SHE WENT UP TO JERUSALEM AND THEY WEIGHED HER, AND THEN SHE PAID HER WEIGHT IN GOLD'.⁶

Rab Judah said: If one says, I vow my stature, he must give a staff which cannot be bent. [If he said:] I vow my full stature, he may give a staff which can be bent.⁷ They raised the following objection: [If one said:] 'I vow my stature', or [if he said, 'I vow] my full stature', he must give a staff which cannot be bent? He holds with R. Akiba, who pays close attention to redundant speech. For we learnt: Nor [has he thereby sold]⁸ the cistern or the walled cellar, even though he wrote [in the document of sale], 'the depth and the height', but he [the seller] must acquire for himself a way thereto. These are the words of R. Akiba. The Rabbis taught: He does not need to do so. R. Akiba, however, agrees that if he had said, 'With the exception of these', he need not buy himself a way thereto.⁹ Thus we see that since he did not have to say anything and nevertheless did make a statement, he meant to add something thereby; therefore here, too, since he did not have to say anything and he spoke nevertheless, he wanted to add something.¹⁰

The following question was raised [in the Academy]: If he said, 'My stand', what is [the law]?

- (1) A woman under sixty is to be valued at thirty, above sixty at ten, which is one third; a man under sixty at fifty, over sixty at fifteen, which is less than a third.
- (2) A woman is never too old to be useful in the house, whereas in popular opinion, an old man in the house may be termed 'an obstacle', 'a burden', 'a weak vessel'.
- (3) Var. lec.: Domitia.
- (4) That he was to pay his weight in silver or gold.
- (5) However base a metal or material.
- (6) According to which one is bound only by express statement as to that metal is meant, whereas the mother of Yirmatia, on the basis of a general vow, is reported to have made a payment of the weight in gold.
- (7) In the first case the stature of the metal, whichever he mentioned, should be paid. In the second, he has stressed only the height, therefore a staff, however thin and easy to be bent, will redeem the pledge. In the first it must be solid, as his figure, in the second it must be high, but need not be of any minimum thickness.
- (8) I.e., if one who has sold a house.
- (9) V. B.B. 64a.
- (10) The seller should not have mentioned a self-evident clause: that cistern and cellar are not sold with the house. Having mentioned that, he must have added something to the contract not implicit therein, viz., the right to the cellar. In similar manner here, 'full' is a superfluous phrase, stature implies the full height. Hence the additional suggestion: It is only as to the full height that I assume obligation, but as to thickness, that may be as slender as possible.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 19b

'My breadth, what is [the law]? 'My sitting', or 'My thickness', what is [the law]? 'My circumference', what is [the law]?¹ — The questions remain unanswered.

I VOW THE WEIGHT OF MY HAND. Our Rabbis taught: [If one said:] 'I vow the weight of my hand and the weight of my foot', R. Judah says: Let him bring a barrel, fill it with water, place his hand therein up to the elbow, and his foot up to the knee; then let him weigh the flesh, bones and sinews of an ass and put it in [to the barrel] until it is filled up. And although there is no proof for it [in the Bible],² there is a mnemonical allusion: Whose flesh is as the flesh of asses.³ R. Jose said to him: How is it possible to account exactly one kind of flesh as against another kind of flesh, one kind of bones as against another kind of bones, and one kind of sinews as against another kind of sinews? R. Judah answered him: They estimate [the weight of the flesh, bones and sinews].⁴ Said R. Jose to him: If you must estimate, estimate the hand [itself]? And R. Judah? As far as possible we do it by weight.

'The hand up to the elbow'? An objection was raised: The hands and feet in the Sanctuary were washed up to the joint [of the palm]? In [the language of] the Torah [hand means] up to the joint, but with regard to vows, go after human parlance!

But according to the Torah [language, does it mean] up to the joint? What then of tefillin with regard to which thy hand⁵ is written; and the School of Mennaseh taught: 'thy hand', that means on the biceps muscle? [Rather say thus,] In the Torah [it means] the whole biceps-muscle, but with regard to vows, go after human parlance, and as to washing the hands and feet in the Sanctuary. that⁶ is a traditional teaching.

'The foot up to the knee'? But there is a contradiction against this. [It is written,] Feet,⁷ that excludes people with wooden legs?⁸ — With regard to vows, go after human parlance. But in the Torah does [the term] foot exclude people with wooden legs? What of halizah where it is written: his foot,⁹ and yet it was taught if she drew off his shoe [that was strapped] from the knee below, her halizah [ceremony] is valid?¹⁰ — It is different there, because Scripture says: From off his foot.⁹ If that be so, then even if [the shoe was strapped] above the knee, it should also be [valid]? — It reads: from above', not 'from over above'.

R. Papa said: It is evident therefrom¹¹ that what is called istawira¹² goes down to the ground.¹³ For if you should think it is divided [into two], then the istawira would be 'above the foot' and the thigh¹⁴ 'over above' [the foot].¹⁵ — R. Ashi said: You may even say that it is divided [into two], yet whatsoever is horizontally with the foot¹⁶ is [like] the foot.

MISHNAH. [IF SOMEONE SAID] I VOW THE WORTH OF MY HAND, THEY ESTIMATE HIS WORTH WITH HIS HAND AND [WHAT IT WOULD BE] WITHOUT HIS HAND. IN THIS RESPECT VOWS OF WORTH ARE MORE STRINGENT THAN VALUATIONS.¹⁷

GEMARA. How do we estimate him? — Raba said: We estimate him as one estimates in the case of injury.¹⁸ Said Abaye: Are the two cases alike? There the man is reduced in value, here he is in physical integrity! — Rather, said Abaye: They estimate how much a man would give for a slave who does his work with but one hand as against what he would give for a slave who does his work with both hands. [You say,] 'With one hand'? What does that imply? That the other is cut off? But that is the very case [of damage just mentioned]. Rather [say, How much a man would give . . . as against the case] where one of his hands is assigned to the first master.¹⁹

Raba asked: If they have estimated him in a case of injury and he said: 'I vow my worth', what is [the law]? Do we say, 'surely they have estimated him once already', or is an estimate by ten different from an estimate by three?²⁰ And if you find a reason for saying that the estimate by ten is different from one by three, what is [the law] if he said: I vow my worth and he was estimated, whereupon he said again. I vow my worth? Is it here definite since ten have estimated him, or perhaps he may have increased in value meantime!²¹ [And if you were to say that he has increased in value meantime,] what is [the law] if he said: I vow my worth, and they did not estimate him, and then he again said: I vow my worth? [Do we say] in this case he is surely

(1) 'My stand' may mean my height; 'my breadth' may mean a staff as long as I am broad, or a staff as broad as I am; 'my thickness', too, is ambiguous; 'my circumference' may imply a staff, crooked and of the same circumference as myself, or one as thick as my circumference.

(2) That the weight of flesh, bones and sinews of an ass correspond to those of men.

(3) Ezek. XXIII, 20.

(4) Probably the meaning is that the weighing demanded by R. Judah is but to serve as an aid to estimating the weight of the hand itself].

(5) Ex. XIII, 9.

(6) The limit of the joint of the palms.

(7) Ex. XXIII, 14.

- (8) Men with artificial feet are not obliged to go 'on foot', i.e., on pilgrimage to the Temple on the three festivals, v. Hag. 3a. This shows that the foot does not stretch to the knee.
- (9) Deut. XXV, 9.
- (10) V. Yeb. 101a.
- (11) Since a halizah performed with a shoe strapped below the knee is valid.
- (12) I.e., the ankle (in an anatomical sense).
- (13) I.e., the entire length of the foot from the ankle.
- (14) I.e., that part of the leg up to the knee joint from the ankle upward.
- (15) And consequently the halizah should be invalid.
- (16) I.e., the whole istawira is regarded as part of the foot.
- (17) Because one cannot vow the valuation of the hand or any other non-vital organ.
- (18) V. B.K. 83b. He is looked upon as if he were a slave to be sold in the market, and they assess how much he was worth (before the injury) and how much he is worth now.
- (19) He must not do work with it for the second master at all. He is therefore physically of full integrity and the analogy is warranted.
- (20) One who vows his market-value must be estimated by a body of ten with the case of our Mishnah, whereas one's assessment in the case of injuries can be determined by a court of three (v. Sanh. 2a).
- (21) And consequently he must be assessed anew.

to be estimated once [only],¹ or perhaps since he vowed one time after the other, he is [formally] to be estimated twice? And if you find a reason for saying that because he vowed one time after the other he is to be estimated twice, what is [the law] if he said, 'Twice my worth do I vow'? [Do we say] he has definitely vowed only once and hence he should be estimated only once, or perhaps since he said, 'Twice' it is to be as if he had vowed one time after the other? And if you find a reason for saying that since he said, 'Twice' it is to be as if he had vowed one time after the other, what is [the law] if they had estimated him incidentally?² Do we say. Behold he stands estimated, or do we require intention for an estimation [to be valid]? — Solve at least one [of these questions], for we learnt: [If one said,] 'I vow my worth' and died, the heirs need not give anything', because a dead man has no worth.³ Now if you were to say that if they had estimated him incidentally the estimate would be considered valid, then he, too, stands estimated already; for is there a person who is not worth four zuz [at least]? — [No,] one estimated incidentally has been estimated at any rate, but one who merely said: 'I vow my worth', has not reached [the stage of] estimation at all.

MISHNAH. VALUATIONS ARE IN THE DIRECTION OF MORE STRINGENCY THAN VOWS OF WORTH. HOW IS THAT? IF ONE SAID: I VOW MY VALUATION AND THEN HE DIES. HIS HEIRS MUST PAY IT. [BUT IF HE SAID:] I VOW MY WORTH AND THEN HE DIES, THEN HIS HEIRS NEED NOT PAY ANYTHING BECAUSE DEAD PERSONS HAVE NO WORTH [MARKET-VALUE]. [IF HE SAID,] 'THE VALUATION OF MY HAND OR FOOT I VOW', HE HAS SAID NOTHING, [BUT IF HE SAID,] 'I VOW THE VALUATION OF MY HEAD OR OF MY LIVER', HE MUST PAY HIS WHOLE valuation. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: [WHENEVER HE VOWED THE VALUATION OF ANY] THING ON WHICH HIS LIFE DEPENDS. HE MUST PAY HIS VALUATION IN FULL. [IF HE SAID:] 'I VOW. HALF MY VALUATION', HE MUST PAY HALF HIS VALUATION, [BUT IF HE SAID,] 'THE VALUATION OF ONE HALF OF ME HE MUST PAY HIS WHOLE VALUATION. [IF HE SAID] 'HALF OF MY WORTH I VOW', HE MUST PAY HALF HIS WORTH. [IF HE SAID,] 'I VOW THE WORTH OF ONE HALF OF ME, HE MUST PAY HIS WHOLE WORTH. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: [IF HE VOWED] THE WORTH OF ANYTHING ON WHICH HIS LIFE DEPENDS, HE MUST PAY HIS WHOLE WORTH. IF HE SAID: I VOW THE VALUATION OF SO-AND-SO', AND BOTH THE VOWER AND THE SUBJECT OF THE VOW DIED, THEN THE HEIRS MUST PAY IT. [IF HE SAID,] 'THE WORTH OF SO-AND-SO I VOW', AND THE VOWER DIED, THE HEIRS MUST PAY IT. BUT IF THE SUBJECT OF THE VOW DIED, THE HEIRS NEED NOT PAY ANYTHING BECAUSE DEAD PERSONS HAVE NO WORTH.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Vows of worth are in the direction of greater stringency than vows of valuations, for vows of worth apply to cattle, game and birds, and are not estimated according to sufficiency of means, whereas it is not so with valuations. Valuations are in the direction of greater stringency than vows of worth. How is that? If one said: 'I vow my valuation' and then died, his heirs must pay it; [but if he said,] 'I vow my worth' and then died, his heirs need not give anything, for dead persons have no worth [market-value].

'If he said: "I vow my valuation" and then died, his heirs must pay.' We infer therefrom that an oral debt may be collected from the heirs?⁴ — It is different here because it is a debt arising from the law of the Torah. Then we may infer from here that a debt arising from the law of the Torah has the force of one acknowledged in a document of indebtedness? — Here we speak of the case where he stood before the court.⁵ Then, in the same situation where he had said: 'I vow my worth', if he stood before the court, why should the heirs not have to pay? — Because in the case of where he says, 'I vow my worth', he still lacked estimate, whilst in the case where he had said, 'I vow my valuation', he lacked nothing.⁶

I VOW THE VALUATION OF MY HAND OR OF MY FOOT etc. R. Giddal in the name of Rab said: And he must pay its worth [market-value]. But it was said, He has said nothing? — He has said nothing according to the Rabbis, but he must pay according to R. Meir.⁷ But he [R. Giddal] has said that once already, for R. Giddal had said in the name of Rab: [If someone said:] 'I vow the valuation of this vessel', he must pay its market-value?⁸ You might have said: There [he must pay the market-value] because a man knows that a vessel is not subject to valuation, therefore he had made up his mind to [use the phrase meaning, however, its] worth. But here he was really mistaken, in that he believed that just as there is valuation to 'my hand or liver', there is one to 'my foot or hand', but he never meant the market-value; therefore he informs us [that he must pay the market-value nevertheless].

THE VALUATION OF MY HEAD OR MY LIVER', HE MUST PAY HIS WHOLE VALUATION. Why? — The Divine Law said: souls.⁹

THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: [WHENEVER HE VOWED THE VALUATION OF] ANYTHING ON WHICH HIS LIFE DEPENDS, HE MUST PAY HIS VALUATION IN FULL. That includes [his saying: I vow the valuation of anything] from the knee upwards.¹⁰

HALF OF MY VALUATION etc.' Our Rabbis taught: [If a man said:] 'I vow half my valuation', he must pay half his valuation. R. Jose son of R. Judah says: He receives punishment and must pay his full valuation.¹¹ Why [should he be punished]? — Said R. Papa: He receives the punishment of having to pay the full valuation. What is the reason? — [It means,] We are stringent about the vow, 'Half of my valuation' because [of its possible confusion with] 'The valuation of one half of him', and the valuation of the half of oneself is tantamount to [the valuation of] something on which one's life depends.

HALF OF MY WORTH DO I VOW etc. [BUT IF HE SAID:] 'I VOW THE WORTH OF ONE HALF OF ME, HE MUST PAY THE WHOLE OF HIS WORTH. What is the reason? — Scripture said: A vow of persons [souls] according to thy valuation.¹² THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: [WHENEVER HE VOWED THE VALUATION OF] ANYTHING ON WHICH LIFE DEPENDS, HE MUST PAY HIS WHOLE VALUATION. That includes his vowing the worth of anything from the knee upwards.¹³

Our Rabbis taught: If one vows half the valuation of a vessel, then R. Meir says he must pay its market-value, whereas the Sages say he need not pay anything. Rabbah was ill. Abaye and the Rabbis entered his home. They were sitting and saying: That is right according to R. Meir for he holds that 'no man utters his words in vain [without purpose]', there being no difference whether one half or the whole is concerned. But [the difficulty is with] the Rabbis. What is their view? If they hold a man does utter his words in vain, then he should be free from any obligation to pay even if he said, [I vow the valuation] of a whole vessel; and [if they hold] that a man does not utter his words in vain, then he ought to pay even though he vowed half of its valuation? — Rabbah answered them: The Rabbis here hold with R. Meir and with R. Simeon: They hold with R. Meir that no man utters his words in vain, and they agree with R. Simeon who said [that he¹⁴ is exempt] because he did not make a freewill-offering in the manner proper to those that make freewill-offerings. Now it would make a full gift for one to vow a whole [vessel], but it is not usual to vow only half [a vessel].¹⁵

IF SOMEONE SAID: 'I VOW THE VALUATION OF SO-AND-SO AND THEN THE VOWER DIED etc. How is this [case] to be explained? presumably that he stood before the court?¹⁶ But that is the same as the other?¹⁷ — It is necessary [to state that] because of the second clause: [If he said,] 'I vow the worth of So-and-so'. and he who vowed died, then the heirs must pay it

(1) Making, of course, a twofold payment.

(2) I.e., not with any particular purpose in view.

(3) V. next Mishnah.

(4) And elsewhere it was left an undecided question.

(5) To have his payment enforced.

(6) The payment being determined according to age and sex by the law in Lev. XXVII.

(7) V. supra 5a.

(8) R. Giddal holds with R. Meir (supra 5a) that no man utters his words in vain, hence, whilst careless as to technical terms, he has something definite in mind. A vessel not being subject to valuation, he must have had in mind its market-value.

(9) Persons, souls (life), all members or parts of the body upon which life depends can be dedicated, their value being equal to the valuation of the whole person.

(10) The suggestion is that the removal of any part of the body above the knee would constitute a danger to life, hence would mean the valuation of the person. just as if somebody said: I 'vow my liver, or my heart'.

(11) 'Lakah', the term, tech. for the thirty-nine stripes, means literally to suffer', 'to be at a disadvantage'; hence R. Papa's interpretation. Cf. B.M. 43a.

(12) Lev. XXVII, 2. The same interpretation as to vitality of the organ concerned applies to both vows of worth and valuations.

(13) V. supra p. 118, n. 4.

(14) Who vowed to bring a meal-offering of barley. v. Men. 103a.

(15) Therefore, if he had evaluated a whole object on the principle that no man utters words in vain, he would have been considered liable. But an unusual gift made in the additionally abnormal form of half of an object must have been meant 'in vain', not seriously. hence the Rabbis decide that he need not pay anything at all.

(16) To be assessed.

(17) Above, exactly the same case was reported, and interpreted also as one in which he stood before the court. Why then this repetition?

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 20b

. Now you might have said: Since there has been no estimate,¹ his possessions are not subject [to payment], therefore we are informed that since he stood before the court, his possessions have [automatically] become liable [for the vow], the estimating being a mere statement of fact [as to the monetary value].

MISHNAH. [IF SOMEONE SAID:] THIS OX SHALL BE A BURNT-OFFERING. OR THIS HOUSE SHALL BE AN OFFERING,² AND THE OX DIED OR THE HOUSE FELL DOWN, HE IS FREE FROM PAYING [THEIR WORTH]. [BUT IF HE SAID:] 'I VOW THIS OX AS A BURNT-OFFERING' OR 'THIS HOUSE AS AN OFFERING AND THE OX DIED, OR THE HOUSE FELL DOWN. THEN HE IS OBLIGED TO PAY [THEIR WORTH].³

GEMARA. R. Hiyya b. Rab said: This has been taught only for the case where he said: 'I vow⁴ the worth of this ox for a burnt-offering', but if he said: 'I vow this ox as a burnt-offering', since he had said 'this' and [this one] died, he is not obliged [to make restitution for it], for he [merely] meant: '[I vow] to bring him'.⁵

An objection was raised: [If he said,] 'This ox shall be a burnt-offering', then the ox is sacred property and the law of sacrilege applies to it.⁶ If it die or be stolen, he is not obliged to make restitution. [But if he said:] 'I vow this ox as a burnt-offering', the ox becomes sacred property and the law of sacrilege applies to it. If it died or is stolen, he is obliged to make restitution! — Is this [teaching] any stronger than our Mishnah? There we assumed it refers to the case where he said: 'I vow its worth', thus here too, the reference is to the case where he said: 'I vow its worth'. But since the second part speaks of the case where he said 'the worth', the first must needs speak of the case where he did not say 'the worth'! For the second part reads: [If he said:] The money of the ox shall be a burnt-offering, then the ox remains profane, and the law of sacrilege does not apply to it. If it die or be stolen, he is not obliged to make restitution. But he is obliged to make restitution for his money?⁷ — Both the first and the second part speak of the case where he said: 'Its money value'; but in the first case he said: 'The ox be sanctified in respect of its money', in the second he said: 'The money thereof be sanctified when realized'. But how can a man sanctify a thing that is non-existent?⁸ Said Rab Judah in the name of Rab, This is in accord with R. Meir who said: A man may sanctify a thing that is non-existent.

Some say. R. Papa said to Abaye (or, according to others, Rama b. Hama said to R. Hisda): According to whom will [this teaching be]? According to R. Meir, who holds a man may consecrate a thing that is non-existent? He replied: According to whom else [will it be]?

Some refer it to the following: If a man rents a house to his neighbour and it became leprous, then although the priest has declared it definitely leprous, he could say to him: Behold. before you lies your own!⁹ If the priest has broken it down, he is obliged to place another one at his disposal;¹⁰

(1) Sc. of the worth of the one who has been vowed.

(2) For the repair of the Sanctuary. v. Num. XXXI, 50. where such gifts, too, are called korban, 'offering'.

(3) Tosaf, interprets this Mishnah thus (s.v. אומר): If someone used the expression. 'this ox' or 'this house' shall be an offering. and the ox died or the house fell down, then he is not obliged to pay because he made the vow contingent upon these objects or upon their value when extant. But if he said: 'I vow (lit., "(I take) upon me") this ox or house', then he makes the payment depending on none but himself, and he must redeem his pledge independent of the condition or existence of the objects (referred to). Maimonides makes this distinction: The preceding Mishnah taught: Dead persons have no market-value. This applies only to human beings. Oxen, however, have value even when dead.

(4) V. supra p. 120, n. 5.

(5) I.e., if possible, to make every effort to do so. But his obligation extended only to this ox; he assumed no responsibility for any accident (like death) that would render his effort futile.

(6) V. Lev. V, 15ff.

(7) If it is sold and the money obtained as proceeds is lost.

(8) Lit., 'that has not come into the world'. How then can the consecration operate at all in the second clause?

(9) The owner can say to him who rented it: The house I rented to you is here. That it became leprous is your misfortune.

if he consecrated it, then he who dwells therein must pay rent to the Sanctuary. [It says,] 'If he consecrated it, then he who dwells therein must pay the rent to the Sanctuary'. But how could he have consecrated it; does not the Divine Law say. And when a man shall sanctify his house,¹ i.e., just as his house is in his possession, so [can he sanctify only] such things as are in his possession? — This is what it means: If he who leases it consecrates it, then he who dwells therein must pay rent to the Sanctuary. You say, 'If he who leases it consecrated it', but how could he dwell therein? Surely he is committing sacrilege? Furthermore [it says]: 'He must pay rent to the Sanctuary'? Once sacrilege has been committed its rent becomes profane? — It speaks of the case where he said: 'As soon as the rent comes in, it shall be sanctified'. But no man can sanctify anything that is non-existent? — That is in accord with R. Meir who said: A man may sanctify a thing that is non-existent.

Some say R. Papa said to Abaye (others, that it was Rama b. Hama said to R. Hisda). According to whom [will this teaching be]? According to R. Meir. who said. A man may sanctify a thing that is non-existent? — He replied: According to whom else [will it be]?

MISHNAH. A PLEDGE IS TO BE TAKEN FROM THOSE WHO OWE [MONEY DUE FROM] VALUATIONS, BUT NOT FROM THOSE WHO OWE SIN-OFFERINGS OR GUILT-OFFERINGS.² A PLEDGE MUST BE TAKEN FROM THOSE WHO OWE BURNT-OFFERINGS OR PEACE-OFFERINGS AND ALTHOUGH NO ATONEMENT IS OBTAINED FOR HIM UNTIL HE AGREES, AS IT IS SAID: LIRZONO, HE IS TO BE COERCED UNTIL HE SAYS: I AGREE.³ THUS ALSO IS IT THE CASE WITH A DOCUMENT OF DIVORCE: THEY COERCE HIM UNTIL HE SAYS: I AGREE.

GEMARA. R. Papa said: It may happen that a pledge is taken from those who owe sin-offerings, and that none is taken from those who owe burnt-offerings. A pledge is taken of those who owe a sin-offering, that is in the case of a Nazirite. For since a Master said: If he shaved his hair after having offered one of the three sacrifices due,⁴ he has fulfilled his duty, and if the blood of one of them has been sprinkled, he is permitted to drink wine and to defile himself with a dead person; therefore he might be negligent about it⁵ and not bring it, [therefore one compels him to do so]. No pledge is taken from those who owe burnt-offerings: this refers to the burnt-offerings due from a woman who has given birth. Why is that? [presumably] because Scripture cites it first?⁶ But did not Raba say: It is only in the reading [in the text] that Scripture has placed it first but not in respect of the offering itself? — Rather, it refers to the burnt-offering due from a leper, for it was taught: R. Johanan b. Beroka said: Just as his sin-offering and his guilt-offering are indispensable for [his becoming clean again], so is his burnt-offering indispensable.

AND ALTHOUGH NO ATONEMENT IS OBTAINED FOR HIM UNTIL HE AGREES. Our Rabbis taught: He shall offer it,⁷ that teaches that one forces him to do so. One might have thought, against his will? Therefore the text states: Lirzono.⁸ How is that? He is coerced until he says. 'I will'. Samuel said: A burnt-offering requires his agreement, for it is said: 'Lirzono'. What is he teaching Us, we have learnt already: ALTHOUGH HE CANNOT OBTAIN ATONEMENT UNTIL HE AGREES, AS IT IS SAID: LIRZONO? — It is necessary [for Samuel to mention it] for the case where his fellow put one aside for him. You might have said: We need his agreement only in the case of an offering from his own [possession] but not from his fellow's, therefore we are informed that [it may happen] at times it may not please him to obtain atonement through something not of his own.

An objection was raised: [If he said,] 'I vow the sin-offering or guilt-offering due from So-and-so'

(1) Lev. XXVII, 14.

(2) In the latter case the person will make every effort to obtain atonement through offering the sacrifice. In the former, where but the redemption of a pledge is involved, he might be negligently delaying it. The exceptions to each rule the Gemara mentions and explains.

(3) Lirzono, 'with his agreement' (E.V. that he may be accepted).

(4) Num. VI, 14. The Nazirite must offer up a burnt-offering, a sin-offering and a peace-offering. Thereupon he may (ibid. 18) shave his hair, at the end of his Naziriteship.

(5) I.e., the sin-offering. if he happened to have brought the others first.

(6) Lev. XII, 6. The woman shall bring a lamb . . . for a burnt-offering, . . . and a young pigeon for a sin-offering, implying that the burnt-offering is indispensable to her cleansing. Actually, however, the sin-offering is offered up first.

(7) Lev. I, 3.

(8) Lirzono, 'with his agreement' (E.V. that he may be accepted).

then if it is with the latter's [knowledge and] agreement, he has fulfilled his duty, but without his [knowledge and] agreement he has not fulfilled it. [If he said,] 'I vow the burnt-offering or peace-offering of So-and-so', then he has fulfilled his obligation, whether it was done with his knowledge or not?¹ — Samuel will answer you: This was taught with regard to the time of the [obtainment of] atonement,² he having agreed at the time the sacrifice was [designated] separated [for his purpose]; whereas I refer to [his agreement necessary] at the time of its being separated. Now this is in conflict with the view of 'Ulla; for 'Ulla said: They have made no distinction between burnt-offering and sin-offering except in this: the sin-offering requires the agreement [of the one who has to bring it] at the time of its designation, whereas the burnt-offering needs no such agreement. But as for the time of the atonement, in the case of either: If with his agreement he has fulfilled his duty, if not with his agreement, he has not fulfilled his duty.

An objection was raised: [If he says:] 'I vow the sin-offering, guilt-offering, burnt-offering, or peace-offering due from So-and-so' then [if they are offered] with the latter's agreement, he has fulfilled his obligation. without the latter's agreement. he has not done so? — Samuel refers this teaching to the time of the designation. 'Ulla to that of the atonement.

R. Papa said: The two Baraithas³ do not contradict one another; one refers to the time of the atonement, the other to that of the designation. Nor do they contradict the Amoraim, Samuel interpreting the first as referring to the time of the atonement, and the second as dealing with the time of the designation; whereas 'Ulla interprets them inversely. The Amoraim, however, surely differ. But that is self-evident? You might have said: When Samuel says that he refers it to 'the time of the designation',⁴ he means, 'Also to the time of the designation', although thereby the first Baraitha would be contradicting him,⁵ therefore we are informed [otherwise].⁶

THUS ALSO IS IT THE CASE WITH A DOCUMENT OF DIVORCE: ONE COERCES HIM etc. R. Shesheth said: If one utters a protest with regard to a document of divorce,⁷ then his protest is valid. Is not that self-evident? — No. It is necessary to state that for the case where he was first coerced and then agreed thereto. You might have said he has [by his agreement] cancelled his protest, therefore we are informed his protest stands. For [if it were not so] let [the Mishnah] state: [One coerces him] 'Until he gives it'. What is the meaning of UNTIL HE SAYS? [Hence it means,] Until he cancels his protest [expressly].

CHAPTER VI

MISHNAH. [THE PROPERTY] OF ORPHANS WHICH HAS BEEN VALUED⁸ [MUST BE

PROCLAIMED FOR] THIRTY DAYS, AND [THE PROPERTY OF] THE SANCTUARY WHICH HAS BEEN VALUED [FOR] SIXTY DAYS; THE PROCLAMATION MUST BE MADE IN THE MORNING AND IN THE EVENING.

GEMARA. Why in the morning and in the evening? — Rab Judah said in the name of Rab: At the time when the labourers leave [work] and at the time when they enter [upon their work]. ‘At the time when the labourers leave’, for there may be someone desirous of buying, who would say to them: ‘Go and examine it for me’. ‘At the time when they enter [upon their work]’, so that he may remind himself of what he had told them and ask them. Thus was it also taught: [The property] of orphans which has been valued [must be proclaimed] for thirty days, that of the Sanctuary for sixty days, the proclamation to be made in the morning and in the evening, at the time when the labourers leave, and at the time when they enter. [The proclaimer] says, The field of So-and-so, of these characteristics and boundaries, is of such and such quality,⁹ and is valued at so much. Let whosoever wants to buy it come and buy it for the purpose of paying a woman her kethubah¹⁰ or a creditor his debt. Why is it necessary to state ‘for the purpose of paying a woman her kethubah or a creditor his debt’? Because there are some who would prefer dealing with a creditor who is lenient with regard to the coins,¹¹ while others prefer dealing with a woman, who will take it also in instalments.

(1) Contra Samuel.

(2) I.e., the time of the actual sacrifice, through which atonement is being obtained.

(3) The one teaching that if one vowed the burnt-offering and peace-offering of someone else, the latter fulfilled his duty whether that offering had come with or without his knowledge; and the other teaching that in every case knowledge of him on whose behalf they were offered was indispensable.

(4) I.e., that at all times agreement of the person on whose behalf the burnt-offering is sacrificed is necessary.

(5) Which said that the person on whose behalf the burnt-offering was offered up fulfilled his duty whether he knew (and agreed) or not.

(6) I.e., that Samuel requires no agreement at the time of the atonement.

(7) To the effect that he does not give it out of his free will, but calls upon the people present to be his witnesses to the fact that he is forced to give it. Such a protest would invalidate the document.

(8) By the court, for the purpose of providing payment for the creditors, either the marriage settlement of the widow, or the debt contracted by the father.

(9) It produces so much crop.

(10) V. Glos.

(11) The merchant (creditor) will take even imperfect coins, which in the absence of base metal, would after some time become thin. Such would be looked upon with misgiving by the widow, but not by the merchant, who would know whether the depreciation is too serious for him to accept them. On the other hand, he will insist on full payment, whilst the widow, who uses the money for her own needs, rather than for investment in business enterprise, will be willing to accept payment by instalments, thus allowing the purchaser to use the capital for himself in the interval.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 22a

Our Rabbis taught: [The property] of orphans which has been valued [must be proclaimed for thirty days], and [that] of the Sanctuary which has been valued, for sixty days. This is the view of R. Meir. R. Judah says: [The property] of orphans that has been valued must be proclaimed for sixty days and [that] of the Sanctuary which has been valued for ninety days. But the Sages say: Both of them for sixty days. R. Hisda said in the name of Abimi: The halachah is: [The property] of orphans that has been valued must be proclaimed for sixty days. R. Hiyya b. Abin sat and reported this law. Said R. Nahman b. Isaac to him: Did you say ‘sixty’ or ‘thirty’? He replied: ‘Sixty’. ‘Of the orphans or of the Sanctuary?’ He answered: ‘Of the orphans’. ‘In accord with R. Meir or with R. Judah’? He replied: ‘With R. Meir’. ‘But R. Meir said "thirty days"?’ He answered: Thus did R. Hisda say: Many a beating did I receive from Abimi because of this [teaching]: If he is to proclaim on consecutive days, then [the period of proclamation] is thirty days; if on Mondays and Thursdays alone, then it is sixty days.¹ And although if you, Sir, were to count the days [of actual proclamation] it will be only eighteen,² still, since the matter is drawn out [over sixty days], people hear about it.

Rab Judah said in the name of R. Assi: One must not distraint upon the property of orphans except if interest was consuming it. R. Johanan says: Either because of a document of indebtedness bearing interest, or because of the kethubah of a woman [so as to save from further payment] on account of her.³ Why does not R. Assi say. 'Because of a woman's kethubah'? — Because the Rabbis have arranged for them⁴ to receive the work of her hands.⁵ And the other? — At times that may not be sufficient. We learnt: [THE PROPERTY] OF ORPHANS WHICH HAS BEEN VALUED [MUST BE PROCLAIMED FOR] THIRTY DAYS, AND [THE PROPERTY OF] THE SANCTUARY WHICH HAS BEEN VALUED [FOR] SIXTY DAYS; THE PROCLAMATION MUST BE MADE IN THE MORNING AND IN THE EVENING. What case are we dealing with? Would you say one with a heathen creditor? Would he agree [to wait]?⁶ Hence it is self-evident that we are dealing with a case of an Israelite creditor. [But then] if he were to consume interest,⁷ would we permit him to do so? — Rather must you say that he is not consuming interest, and yet it is taught: We distraint upon [the orphans' property]. Now this will be right in accord with R. Johanan who will interpret it as referring to the case of a woman's kethubah; but according to R. Assi it is a difficulty? — R. Assi will answer you: But even according to R. Johanan, is it in order? How do we continue to allow her the alimony,⁸ which definitely causes them loss, and take up the proclamation, concerning which we do not know if it will show profit or not?⁹ — This is no difficulty: the case speaks of one who demands her kethubah in court,¹⁰ in accord with Rab Judah in the name of Samuel. For Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: One who claims her kethubah before the court receives no more alimony. If so, we should not attend to her at all? — Since we attended to her at the beginning, we attend to her at the end as well.¹¹ But at any rate, on the view of R. Assi [our Mishnah] presents a difficulty? [No!] Indeed I can maintain that the case is one of a heathen creditor, but the reference is to one who accepted to have his case dealt with in accord with Israelite law.¹² If that is so, let him not take interest. He accepted [Jewish Law] in the one respect, but not in the other.¹³

Come and hear: One may not collect from the property of orphans except the worst land. What case are we dealing with here? Would you say that the creditor is a heathen, he surely would not agree to this!¹⁴ Hence you must say it deals with an Israelite creditor. [But then] if he consumes interest, how could we permit him to do so? Hence you must say that he did not consume interest; and nevertheless we are taught that we distraint upon [the orphans' property]? It will be right for R. Johanan, for he will interpret it as referring to a woman's kethubah. But according to R. Assi, it will present a difficulty? — R. Assi will tell you: But even according to R. Johanan is it right? If it refers to a kethubah, why does he speak of [the property of] orphans, even if it were his own, it could be collected only from the worst land? — That is no difficulty. It will be in accord with R. Meir who holds that a woman's kethubah is collectable from a land of average quality, but if from orphans' property, only from worst land.¹⁵ At any rate, according to R. Assi, the difficulty stands! [No,] indeed I can maintain that we deal with the case of a heathen creditor, but it refers to one who has accepted upon himself that the case be dealt with according to Jewish law. Then let him not take interest either? — The case is that he accepted [the law] in respect of the one thing, but not in respect of the other.

Come and hear: 'For the purpose of paying a woman her kethubah or a creditor his debt'. Now this will be right in the case of a creditor, whether according to one Master or to the other Master,¹⁶ as we have answered it.¹⁷ But as for the case of the kethubah, that will be right according to R. Johanan. but on the view of R. Assi it will present a difficulty! — [We speak here of the case] where the debtor¹⁸ admitted [the debt]. Now that you have come to this [explanation], all the other [teachings]¹⁹ may also be explained as referring to the case that the debtor admitted it.

Meramar collected the kethubah of a divorced woman from the orphans' property, whereupon Rabina said to him: But Rab Judah has said in the name of R. Assi: One must not distraint upon the property of orphans, except if interest was consuming it. R. Johanan says: Either because of a document of indebtedness bearing interest, or because of the kethubah of a woman [so as to save from further payment] on account of her alimony. And even R. Johanan was including only [the case of] a widow, because her alimony causes them loss, but not in the case of a divorce?²⁰ — He replied: [The reason for] that ruling of R. Johanan²¹ we explain to be ‘for favour's sake’.²² R. Nahman said: At first I would not distraint upon the property of orphans. But when I heard the statement of our colleague, R. Huna in the name of Rab: As for orphans who enjoy what does not belong to them, let them follow him who left them! from that time on I distraint upon it. Why not at first? — R. Papa said: The paying of a debt is a commandment and [minor] orphans are not obliged to fulfil the commandment. R. Huna the son of R. Joshua said: We say he might have left bundles as security.²³ What is the [practical] difference between them?²⁴ — When he who owes admitted the debt, or if he was excommunicated and dies in the state of excommunication.²⁵ They sent from there [Palestine]: [The reference is]²⁶ to one excommunicated who died in the state of excommunication. And the law is in accord with R. Huna the son of R. Joshua.

We learnt:

- (1) Until I learnt to understand its apparent contradictions. Abimi taught him that the property of orphans must be proclaimed on the view of R. Meir for sixty days. The disciple, however, knew the above cited Baraitha, that R. Meir limited it to thirty days and thus raised an objection against his Master's teaching. He had forgotten, however, the instruction offered by the same Master, according to which ‘thirty days’ referred to consecutive ones, whereas ‘sixty days’ were required if the proclamation took place only on Mondays and Thursdays. He could thus appreciate his colleague's bewilderment from his own experience of the difficulty.
 - (2) In sixty days there are eight weeks, containing together sixteen Mondays and Thursdays. If the first week started with a Monday, the four remaining days would include one Monday and Thursday again, which would together amount to the eighteen days, during which the news of such proclamation is made.
 - (3) Which likewise consumes the orphans’ property. As long as the widow does not collect her kethubah she receives her maintenance from the property of the orphans.
 - (4) [So R. Gershom. Cur. edd.: for him, i.e., the husband].
 - (5) So that the alimony does not constitute a loss, the earning of the widow making up for it.
 - (6) For the end of the period of the proclamation and forego in the meantime his charge of interest.
 - (7) I.e., he charged interest on the property.
 - (8) During the period.
 - (9) Whether it will fetch a higher price than that valued. Why not then sell the property immediately without waiting for the period of proclamation to expire?
 - (10) She loses her alimony on making such a claim, therefore the orphans suffer no loss during the period of waiting for the payment of her kethubah, due to the effort to sell their property through proclamation.
 - (11) It is but fair that since we took care to see that as a consequence of her having presented her claim for the kethubah, she loses her alimony, thus benefitting the orphans, we should also help her in obtaining her kethubah, because of the claim of which she lost the alimony.
 - (12) And consequently be willing to wait for the end of the proclamation period.
 - (13) I.e., in regard to the taking of interest.
 - (14) To collect his debt only from the worst property.
 - (15) V. supra 21b.
 - (16) I.e., R. Assi or R. Johanan.
 - (17) I.e., the reference is to a heathen creditor who charges interest. Therefore both agree that to protect the orphans we sell their property.
 - (18) The father of the orphans admitted the debt on his deathbed and charged the children to pay it.
 - (19) Cited above in objection to R. Assi.
 - (20) Who does not receive any alimony. so that the orphans suffer no loss.
 - (21) That the property of orphans is distrainted upon for the sake of the kethubah.

(22) I.e., to render men attractive to women, so that the latter will agree to marry them.

(23) The father gave the creditor bundles of valuables as security, whereof his orphans would not, or need not, know.

(24) I.e., whether we accept the reason of R. Papa or R. Huna's.

(25) The court excommunicated the orphans' father for failure to pay his debts, he died whilst still excommunicated. There is no reason for suspecting his having secured the creditor's debt with a bundle of valuables, for if he had been willing to pay he would rather have done it through the court in order to win cancellation of his excommunication. The orphans in this case would have to pay, though on the first reason they would still be exempt.

(26) In all the teachings cited above, the rule that the property of orphans is distrained upon.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 22b

[THE PROPERTY] OF ORPHANS WHICH HAS BEEN VALUED [MUST BE PROCLAIMED FOR] THIRTY DAYS, AND [THE PROPERTY OF] THE SANCTUARY WHICH HAS BEEN VALUED [FOR] SIXTY DAYS; THE PROCLAMATION MUST BE MADE IN THE MORNING AND IN THE EVENING. Now what case are we dealing with? Would you say with that of a heathen creditor; would he agree [to wait]? Hence it is obvious that it is with that of an Israelite creditor. This then will be in accord with the view of R. Huna the son of R. Joshua, for he will interpret it as referring to the case where he who admitted [the debt]. But according to R. Papa this will present a difficulty? — R. Papa will tell you: If you like, I can tell you the reference is to a kethubah, the reason being 'for favour's sake'! Or if you like, I can tell you the reference is to a heathen creditor who accepted upon himself to have his case dealt with in accord with Israelite law. But if he accepted that upon himself, let him agree to wait until they are of age? — He accepted the law in the one respect, but he did not accept it in the other respect.¹

Come and hear: For the purpose of paying a woman her kethubah or a creditor his debt. Now what case are we dealing with? Would you say that of a heathen creditor, but would he agree? Hence it is evident that we deal with that of an Israelite creditor. That then will be right on the view of R. Huna the son of R. Joshua. for he will interpret it as referring to the case where the debtor admitted [his debt]. But according to R. Papa: Granted that in the case of a kethubah, where the reason may be 'for favour's sake', but the case of the creditor would present a difficulty? — [No,] [Indeed] I can maintain it deals with a heathen creditor, but in the case where he accepted upon himself to be judged in accord with the laws of Israel. But if he accepted that, let him accept to wait until they are of age? — He accepted upon himself the one thing, but not the other.

Raba said: [We do not distrain upon the orphans' property] because of [a possible] quittance.² R. Huna the son of R. Joshua said to Raba: But do we consider [the possibility of] a quittance? Did we not learn: If a woman³ collects [her kethubah] in his absence, she can do so only by means of an oath. And R. Aha, Commander of the Fortress, said: A case came before R. Isaac the Smith in Antiochia, and he decided, We have learnt⁴ that only in the case of a kethubah 'for favour's sake', but not in the case of a creditor. Raba, however, in the name of R. Nahman, said: Also in the case of a creditor.⁵ Now, if we should consider the [possibility] of a quittance, let us consider it there too? — There the reason is as we have stated it: Lest anyone take his neighbour's possession and depart for maritime provinces.⁶

Raba said: The law is. We do not distrain upon the property of orphans, but if he [the father] said: 'Give', then we distrain upon it. If he said, '[Give] this field', or 'this mina', we distrain upon it without appointing a guardian.⁷ But if he said, '[Give] a field', or 'a mina', we distrain upon it and appoint a guardian. The Nehardeans say: In each case we distrain upon it and appoint a guardian, except if it be found that the field does not belong to him,⁸ for we do not assume that the witnesses⁹ testified falsely. R. Ashi said: Therefore we do not distrain [upon the property of orphans];¹⁰ for Raba said: The law is that we do not distrain upon [the property of orphans]. But where we distrain upon it, we appoint a guardian for the Nehardeans said. In every case¹¹ we distrain upon [the property of orphans] and appoint a guardian. except in the case where it be found that the field does not belong to him, because we do not assume that the witnesses have testified falsely.

- (1) I.e., he agreed to wait till after the proclamation. but not till they would come of age.
 - (2) The father may have obtained a quittance, of which the orphans do not know, stating that he had paid the debt.
 - (3) To whom the husband had sent a divorce from 'a maritime province'.
 - (4) We extend such consideration only to a woman because of the social implications of such benefit, but not in the purely commercial case of a creditor. Therefore the latter must await the debtor's return,
 - (5) V. Keth. 88a.
 - (6) Hence the rule of Raba.
 - (7) To see that the interest of the orphans is taken care of, that the collection of debt is made from the worst land they hold at the proper price. etc.
 - (8) In which case the field is forthwith taken away from the orphans without appointing first a guardian.
 - (9) The witnesses who testify that a field believed to be his property in reality had been stolen or acquired by force.
 - (10) Wherever there is the possibility of the father having given 'bundles' to the creditor (Tosaf.).
 - (11) I.e., if he said, 'Give this field', or 'this mina' (Tosaf.).

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 23a

MISHNAH. IF A MAN DEDICATES HIS POSSESSIONS TO THE SANCTUARY WHILST STILL LIABLE FOR HIS WIFE'S KETHUBAH, R. ELIEZER SAYS WHEN HE DIVORCES HER HE MUST VOW¹ THAT HE WILL NOT DERIVE ANY FURTHER BENEFIT FROM HER. R. JOSHUA SAYS, HE NEED NOT DO SO. LIKEWISE SAID RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL: ALSO IF ONE GUARANTEES A WOMAN'S KETHUBAH AND HER HUSBAND DIVORCES HER, THE HUSBAND MUST VOW TO DERIVE NO BENEFIT FROM HER. LEST HE MAKE A CONSPIRACY² AGAINST THE PROPERTY OF THAT MAN [THE GUARANTOR] AND TAKE HIS WIFE BACK AGAIN.³ GEMARA. Wherein do they differ? R. Eliezer holds: A man will engage in a conspiracy against the Sanctuary. But R. Joshua holds that a man will not engage in a conspiracy against the Sanctuary. But what of the ruling of R. Huna: If a person dangerously ill dedicated all his possessions to the Sanctuary and said, I owe So-and-so a maneh, he is believed, because of the presumption that nobody will engage in a conspiracy against the Sanctuary. Shall we say that he gave a ruling concerning which Tannaim are conflicting? — No! They dispute only the case of a healthy person, but with regard to one dangerously ill all agree that he would not engage in a conspiracy against the Sanctuary. Why? Because no man will sin where he does not stand to benefit [thereby].

Some there are who say: With regard to a healthy person there is a general agreement that one [he] would engage in a conspiracy against the Sanctuary; but here they differ with regard to a vow made in the presence of many, one Master [R. Joshua] holding such a vow can be annulled,⁴ while the other Master [R. Eliezer] holds it cannot be annulled. Or, if you like, say: All agree that a vow made in the presence of many can be remitted, and they differ here as to a vow made on the authority of many.⁵ But then what of Amemar's statement that 'A vow made in the presence of many can be annulled. whereas one made on the authority of many cannot be annulled', are we to say that he made a statement concerning which Tannaim are of divided opinion? Furthermore how explain: R. JOSHUA SAYS: HE NEED NOT DO SO. He should have said: 'It would be useless'?⁶ — Rather, they are disputing here on the principle as to whether absolution from consecration of an object may be obtained;⁷ and thus it was taught: If a man dedicates his possessions to the Sanctuary whilst still liable for his wife's kethubah, R. Eliezer says. When he divorces her he must vow that he will not derive any further benefit from her, whilst R. Joshua says: He need not do so. And R. Eleazar b. Simeon said: These are [respectively] the very views of Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel, for Beth Shammai holds: A consecration [to the Sanctuary] made in error is [valid] consecration, whilst Beth Hillel holds it is not valid consecration.

LIKEWISE DID RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAY etc. Moses b. Azri was the guarantor for [the kethubah of] his daughter-in-law. Now R. Huna, his son, was a young scholar but in strait circumstances. Said Abaye: Is there no one to advise R. Huna to divorce his wife so that she might claim her kethubah from her father-in-law, and he [R. Huna] might then take her back? Said Raba to him: But we learnt: HE MUST VOW THAT HE WILL NOT DERIVE ANY FURTHER BENEFIT FROM HER? And Abaye?⁸ — Does every one who divorces his wife do so before a court?⁹ In the end it became known that he [R. Huna] was a priest.¹⁰ Whereupon Abaye exclaimed: poverty pursues the poor!¹¹ But how could Abaye say thus?¹² Did not Abaye say: ‘Who is a cunningly wicked man? He who offers advice to sell property in accord with Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel’?¹³ — It is different in the case of one's son, and it is different also in the case of a young scholar.¹⁴ But derive it from the fact that the guarantor for a kethubah is not held responsible?

- (1) Lest the divorce was a collusion of husband and wife for the purpose of depriving the Sanctuary of certain property on which the kethubah had the first lien.
- (2) R. Joshua does not assume that a man would go to such lengths to defraud the Sanctuary.
- (3) After the kethubah had been paid out to her. Kinunia, the Greek Koinonia, ‘partnership’, then joint fraud, collusion.
- (4) Consequently the vow would be of no effect.
- (5) Lit., ‘by the knowledge’. ‘the will of’, i.e., they say to him: We administer his vow to you on our responsibility.
- (6) Because such a vow could always be revoked, thus rendering the precautionary measure unavailing.
- (7) R. Eliezer holds that no vow to the Treasury can be nullified by a plea of error, hence he might resort to a conspiracy by divorcing his wife. But R. Joshua holds that a plea of error would be admitted, whence there is no need for him to engage in a conspiracy wherefore he need not deny himself by vow the benefit of her company.
- (8) How did he meet this objection?
- (9) Only in court would such a vow be enforced. But the divorce could be given outside of court.
- (10) Who is forbidden to marry a divorcee, even his own divorced wife.
- (11) V. B.K. 92a.
- (12) I.e., offer such advice.
- (13) V. Keth. 95b. If some one said whilst dying. ‘My property (I give) to you, and after you, to So-and-so’, and the first went and sold or consumed it, then according to Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, the second may have only what the first left over. That kind of trick Abaye denounced, how then could he offer kindred advice?
- (14) A son would anyway inherit his father's possessions. And a young scholar's support is a mizwah (good deed, command, to enable to study), hence Abaye had two legitimate reasons for what otherwise would have been improper advice.

— He¹ was a kabbelan.² That will be right according to him who holds that a kabbelan is held responsible, although the debtor had no property [at the time of contracting the debt]. But what can be said on the view that he is held responsible only if the debtor had property, but if he has no property the kabbelan is not responsible?³ If you like say: R. Huna had property,⁴ but it was struck with blast; and if you like say: A father, where his son is concerned, will always hold himself responsible. For it was stated: As to a guarantor for a kethubah, all agree he is not held responsible; the kabbelan for a creditor, all agree is held responsible. [In the case however of] a guarantor for a creditor and a kabbelan for a kethubah, there is a dispute. There is one authority who holds that if the debtor had property he [the kabbelan] is held responsible, but if he had none he is not held responsible: whereas there is another authority who holds that even if the debtor had no property he is also held responsible. The law with regard to all cases is that though the debtor has no property the guarantor is responsible, with the exception of the guarantor for a kethubah who, even though [the husband] had property, is not held responsible. For what reason? He performed a mizwah,⁵ and he caused her no loss.⁶ There was a man who sold his possessions and divorced his wife. R. Joseph son of Raba sent her to R. Papa [with the following question]: We learnt [in our Mishnah] about A

GUARANTOR. about CONSECRATED PROPERTY, what about a purchaser?⁷ — He replied: Shall the Tanna go on enumerating like a pedlar?⁸ The Nehardeans said: What we learnt we learnt, and what we did not learn we did not learn!⁹ Said R. Mesharshaya: What is the reason of the Nehardeans? — With regard to consecrated property the teaching is in order to safeguard the profit of the Sanctuary; also with regard to a guarantor, [the reason is] because he performed a mizwah and did not cause her any loss;¹⁰ but as for a purchaser, since he must have known that upon everyone's possessions there is a kethubah as lien, why did he go and buy? It is he [the buyer] who caused damage to himself!

MISHNAH. IF A MAN DEDICATES HIS POSSESSIONS TO THE SANCTUARY WHILST STILL LIABLE FOR HIS [DIVORCED] WIFE'S KETHUBAH OR IN DEBT TO A CREDITOR,¹¹ THEN THE WIFE CANNOT COLLECT HER KETHUBAH FROM THE CONSECRATED PROPERTY,¹² NOR THE CREDITOR HIS DEBT, BUT HE WHO REDEEMS THEM MUST REDEEM FOR THE PURPOSE OF PAYING THE WIFE HER KETHUBAH OR THE CREDITOR HIS DEBT. IF HE HAD DEDICATED NINETY MINAS WORTH OF PROPERTY, WHILST OWING A HUNDRED MINAS. THEN HE¹³ [THE CREDITOR] MUST ADD ONE DENAR MORE AND HE REDEEMS THE PROPERTY FOR THE PURPOSE OF PAYING THE KETHUBAH TO THE WIFE OR THE DEBT TO THE CREDITOR.

GEMARA. Why is it necessary to state: He who redeems must redeem?¹⁴ — That is because of the teaching of R. Abbuha, for R. Abbuha said: Lest people say consecrated property goes out [of the Sanctuary] without any redemption.

Our Mishnah will not be in accord with R. Simeon b. Gamaliel, for it was taught: R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said, If his debt correspond, with [the value of] the consecrated property. then he redeems it, but if not, then he cannot redeem it.¹⁵ And as for the Rabbis, to what extent [must the debt correspond to the consecrated property]? — R. Huna b. Judah in the name of R. Shesheth said: Up to one half.¹⁶

MISHNAH. ALTHOUGH IT WAS SAID: PLEDGES MUST BE TAKEN FROM THOSE WHO OWE VALUATIONS, ONE ALLOWS¹⁷ HIM FOOD FOR THIRTY DAYS, GARMENTS FOR TWELVE MONTHS, BED AND BEDDING, SHOES AND TEFILLIN¹⁸ FOR HIMSELF, BUT NOT FOR HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN. IF HE WAS A CRAFTSMAN, ONE LEAVES HIM TWO TOOLS OF EVERY KIND; IF HE WAS A CARPENTER, ONE LEAVES HIM TWO AXES AND TWO SAWS. R. ELIEZER SAYS, IF HE WAS A FARMER, ONE LEAVES HIM HIS YOKE [OF OXEN]. IF AN ASS-DRIVER, ONE LEAVES HIM HIS ASS. IF HE HAD MANY [TOOLS] OF ONE KIND, AND FEW OF ANOTHER KIND, ONE DOES NOT THEN TELL HIM TO SELL OF THE MANY AND BUY SOME OF THE FEW, BUT ONE LEAVES HIM TWO OF THE KIND OF WHICH HE HAS MANY AND ALL THAT HE HAS FROM THEM OF WHICH HE HAS FEW. IF ONE CONSECRATES [ALL] HIS POSSESSIONS TO THE SANCTUARY, THEN ONE VALUES¹⁹ HIS TEFILLIN.

GEMARA. What is the reason?²⁰ — Scripture said:

(1) R. Huna's father.

(2) 'An acceptor'. i.e., one who assumes another man's obligation unconditionally, even though the debtor has property.

(3) Since R. Huna was poor he could not have had any property, and his father consequently, though a kabbelan, could not have become liable for the payment of the kethubah.

(4) At the time his father undertook to be a kabbelan.

(5) v. Glos. To cause the two to get married and establish a house.

(6) The woman did not advance the husband any money on the strength of the guarantee. For fuller notes v. B.B.. Sonc. ed., pp. 769ff.

- (7) Do we suspect that the purchaser may be victimized by similar conspiracy between husband and wife? Should we therefore similarly insist that if the wife wishes to collect her kethubah from the field bought by an outsider that here, too, the husband takes a vow that he will not in future derive any benefit from his wife, so as to prevent his receiving the kethubah from her, and thereupon remarrying her.
- (8) Who, praising each piece of merchandise separately, enumerates every item. The Tanna, however, need not do that. He states a principle in one or several instances, allowing for application of the precedent to new situations. Thus the case of the purchaser is covered by the first two.
- (9) The Nehardeans would not derive the latter from the former.
- (10) As explained supra.
- (11) This is a case where the divorce or the debt were effected before the consecration, so that the question of conspiracy does not arise.
- (12) Without a formal redemption of the property with a small sum, v. infra.
- (13) He, i.e., the creditor, lends the debtor another denar, since he had consecrated his whole possessions to the Sanctuary.
- (14) Why should not the woman and creditor collect their dues from the Sanctuary without any redemption, seeing that they had a prior lien on the property?
- (15) If the debt and the property consecrated are of the same value, then the owner can redeem it for a little sum, for the creditor had extended the loan with that property as security in his mind. But if the sum was larger than the value of the property, then obviously the creditor has not relied on that property but upon the character of the debtor. Therefore that property cannot be considered encumbered by the debt, and hence cannot be re-obtained from the Sanctuary.
- (16) Rashi: If the value of the consecrated property be less than one half of the debt, the creditor receives nothing, because, as stated in n. 1, the security was the debtor's character, and he should await the latter's ability to repay the debt, but must not collect from the Sanctuary its rightful (because hitherto unencumbered) property. For another interpretation v. Tosaf.
- (17) Lit., 'one gives him', i.e., of his own possessions; one permits him to retain these necessities or the means whereby to purchase them.
- (18) V. Glos. This is the difference between vows of valuation and the case where one consecrates his possessions. In the former case his tefillin as his spiritual tools are left to him, in the latter not; v. infra.
- (19) The meaning of 'ma'alim' is debated. It is either; put up to auction so that the Sanctuary obtains a maximum benefit (Rashi); or, 'remove' i.e., take away, as included in his dedication (R. Gershom). He must redeem them as one of his possessions which, in their totality, he had consecrated to the Sanctuary.
- (20) For the allowance made in the Mishnah.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 24a

But if [me'erkeka] he be too poor from thy valuation,¹ implying, sustain him from thy valuation.²

BUT NOT FOR HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN etc. What is the reason? — 'He [must be sustained] from thy valuation', but his wife and children [are not sustained] 'from thy valuation'.

R. ELIEZER SAYS: IF HE WAS A FARMER, ONE LEAVES HIM HIS YOKE [OF OXEN] etc. And the Rabbis? — These are not his tools, but his possessions.

IF HE HAD MANY OF ONE KIND etc. But that is self-evident. Whatever has been enough until now, must be enough now as well? — You might have said: Until now, when he was in a position to lend [tools to others], others would have lent [tools] to him, too, but now since there is none to lend him, [these shall] not be [considered sufficient], therefore we are informed [that he is not told to sell the many and buy some more of the few].

IF ONE DEDICATES [ALL] HIS POSSESSIONS, THEN ONE VALUES EVEN HIS TEFILLIN. There was a man who sold all his possessions. He came before R. Yemar. He said to them: Take his tefillin away. What is he teaching us? It is [taught in] our Mishnah: IF ONE

DEDICATES HIS POSSESSIONS, THEN ONE VALUES HIS TEFILLIN? — You might have said: There he thought that he was fulfilling a religious act,³ but in the case of a sale [you might say] no one sells that wherewith he performs a personal commandment, therefore he teaches us [otherwise].

MISHNAH. IT IS ALL ONE WHETHER A MAN CONSECRATES HIS GOODS OR EVALUATES HIMSELF. HE⁴ HAS NO CLAIM TO HIS WIFE'S GARMENT OR HIS CHILDREN'S GARMENT, NOR TO THE DYED CLOTHES⁵ WHICH HE HAD DYED FOR THEIR USE. NOR TO THE NEW SANDALS WHICH HE HAS BOUGHT FOR THEIR USE. ALTHOUGH IT WAS SAID: 'SLAVES SHOULD BE SOLD WITH THEIR GARMENTS TO INCREASE THEIR VALUE', BECAUSE WHEN A GARMENT FOR THIRTY DENARS IS BOUGHT FOR HIM HIS VALUE IS INCREASED BY A MINA. [LIKEWISE WITH A COW, IF IT BE KEPT WAITING TO THE MARKET-DAY⁶ IT INCREASES IN VALUE, AS ALSO A PEARL, IF BROUGHT TO A BIG CITY INCREASES IN VALUE]. BUT THE SANCTUARY CAN CLAIM THE VALUE OF ANYTHING ONLY IN ITS OWN PLACE AND AT ITS OWN TIME.⁷ GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: And he shall give thy valuation in that day,⁸ that means, one should not delay [the sale] of a pearl for poor people. As a holy thing⁹ unto the Lord:⁸ i.e., general [unspecified] consecration belongs to the [fund for] repairs of the Sanctuary.

CHAPTER VII

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT CONSECRATE [THE FIELD OF HIS POSSESSION]¹⁰ LESS THAN TWO YEARS BEFORE THE YEAR OF JUBILEE,¹¹ NOR REDEEM IT LESS THAN ONE YEAR AFTER THE YEAR OF JUBILEE.¹² ONE MAY NOT RECKON ANY MONTHS TO [THE DISADVANTAGE OF] THE SANCTUARY,¹³ BUT THE SANCTUARY MAY RECKON MONTHS¹⁴ [TO ITS OWN ADVANTAGE].¹²

GEMARA. The following contradiction was raised: One may consecrate both before or after the year of Jubilee, but in the year of Jubilee itself one should not consecrate. And if one consecrated, it is not consecrated! — Rab and Samuel both say: [This is what our Mishnah means]. One cannot consecrate and then redeem at a deduction less than two years [before the year of Jubilee], and since one cannot consecrate to redeem at any reduction within less than two years, let a man be careful with his possessions and let him not consecrate anything within less than two years [of the Jubilee year].

It was stated: If one consecrates his field in the year of Jubilee itself, said Rab, It is consecrated and he must pay fifty [shekels].¹⁵ But Samuel said: It has not acquired any sanctity whatsoever. To this R. Joseph demurred: It is right that Samuel conflicts with Rab in matters of a sale, for there is an argument a fortiori: If [a field] that had been sold returns now to its former owner,¹⁶ how much more so that one that had not been sold yet should not be saleable now. But, here,¹⁷ what argument a fortiori can be made? Surely we learnt, If the Jubilee year has arrived and it was not yet redeemed, the priests enter into possession of it and they pay its value. So R. Judah?¹⁸ — Samuel holds with R. Simeon who said: They enter into possession but they do not pay [anything].

(1) So literally. Lev. XXVII, 8.

(2) The mem of me'erkeka here is interpreted as having its own meaning: If he be too poor, leave him something to live on 'from' your valuation of his possessions.

(3) In consecrating all his possessions to the Sanctuary, therefore he includes all of them in his vow.

(4) The consecrator, in paying his vow or redeeming what he had dedicated. Aliter: It, viz., the treasurer of the Sanctuary (R. Gershom).

(5) The garments of wife or children cannot be touched by any consecration. He would not, according to the previous Mishnah, be allowed funds for buying them new ones, but those which they have are regarded as their own.

- (6) A cow will fetch a higher price on market-day, when the demand is greater, just as the pearl will find more buyers in a metropolis than in a village.
- (7) I.e., the value at the time it comes into the Sanctuary's possession and in the place of dedication.
- (8) Lev. XXVII, 23.
- (9) If a poor man had vowed his own valuation and he possesses a pearl, then the Sanctuary's treasurer may not tell him: Take it to a big city and then pay according to the price fetched there, but it should be valued now and accordingly the Sanctuary should be paid, and no matter how high the ultimate price obtained, the Sanctuary receives no more than the price obtainable here, i.e., at the place where the pearl is at the time of the dedication, and at the price it fetches now, at the moment of dedication.
- (10) Lev. XXVII, 16ff.
- (11) If someone would redeem a field which he had consecrated to the Sanctuary immediately after the year of Jubilee, then he must redeem it by paying fifty shekels for every piece of a field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley, for every year of the next forty-nine years. If he fails to redeem it by then, the priests will possess it. Every year this sum is diminished by one forty-ninth of the fifty shekels, exactly one shekel and one pondion (the latter being the forty-eighth part of a shekel), the remaining pondions being considered the exchange fee as the pondions are changed into shekels. The sum of redemption, then, consists of as many shekels and pondions as the number of years up to the next year of Jubilee. But there must be at least two years before the next year of Jubilee, because Scripture said: According to the years which remain unto the year of Jubilee, the minimum of 'years' being two. Hence, if there be not at least two years before that of jubilee, the sum whereby the field is redeemed cannot be deducted from at all, and the owner must then pay the complete fifty shekels for every piece of field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley. which sum is very much more than the field's crop, until the year of Jubilee, will be worth.
- (12) This will be explained in the Gemara.
- (13) E.g., two years and three months may not be reckoned as two years to the disadvantage of the Temple treasury.
- (14) E.g., one year and eleven months before the Jubilee is not reckoned as two full years and the redemption price must be the full fifty shekels, v. n. 2.
- (15) A shekel for every piece of field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley.
- (16) In the year of Jubilee.
- (17) Here one cannot analogously argue: If a field, already consecrated before the Jubilee year, goes back in the year of Jubilee, how much less could not one consecrate in that year, for in truth a field consecrated before the Jubilee year, if not redeemed by the owners, must be redeemed by the priests.
- (18) V. supra 25b.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 24b

Rab, however, holds,¹ at any rate, it does eventually not return to the owners, it is to the priests that it goes, and the priests obtain it from the table of the Most High.

What is the reason of Rab's view? — Scripture said: If from the year of Jubilee [he shall sanctify his field],² the year of Jubilee being included. And Samuel? — Is it written: If in the year of Jubilee? It is written: If from the year of Jubilee, i.e., from the year after the year of Jubilee. It is all well according to Rab, hence it is written: 'If from the year of Jubilee', [and also], 'and if after the Jubilee';³ but according to Samuel what means: 'and if after the Jubilee'?⁴ — It means, After after.⁵

An objection was raised: One may consecrate [a field] both before and after the year of Jubilee. But in the year of Jubilee itself one should not consecrate, and if one has consecrated, no sanctity attaches [to the field].⁶ Rab will tell you: [It means] it acquires no sanctity so as to be redeemable at a deduction, but it is consecrated and one must pay the full fifty shekels [for the redemption]. This implies that [if one consecrates] before the Jubilee year it would be sanctified and redeemable at a deduction; but have not Rab and Samuel both declared: One cannot consecrate to redeem at a deduction less than two years before the Jubilee? — Rab will tell you: This is the view of the Rabbis, but I hold with Rabbi, who said: The first⁷ [day] includes the first day; the seventh [day]⁷ includes the seventh day.⁸ So here, too, 'from the year' [of Jubilee] includes the year of Jubilee.⁹ But if [this is the view of] Rabbi, where does the pondion come in?¹⁰ And if you were to say, he ignored the pondion: surely we learnt: If a man consecrated two or three years before the Jubilee. said Rabbi: I hold that he must pay a sela' [shekel] and a pondion? — Rabbi is of the view of R. Judah who said: The fiftieth year is counted both ways.¹¹

Shall we say then that Samuel¹² holds Rabbi to be in accord with the Rabbis?¹³ For if his [Rabbi's] view were in accord with that of R. Judah, it should read: 'one sela' and two pondions'!¹⁴ Hence we must say that on the view of Samuel, Rabbi¹⁵ agrees with the Rabbis.

Come and hear: NOR REDEEM IT LESS THAN ONE YEAR AFTER THE YEAR OF JUBILEE. This will be right for Samuel's view,¹⁶ for one cannot indeed redeem it less than one year after the year of Jubilee;¹⁷ but according to Rab, what means 'Not less than a year after the Jubilee'? — Do you think that 'after the year of Jubilee' is to be taken literally? [No]. 'After the year of Jubilee' means in the midst of the Jubilee

(1) Even on the view of R. Simeon.

(2) Lev. XXVII, 17.

(3) Ibid. 18. [The former verse indicating that if the consecration took place on Jubilee year the redemption price must be the full fifty shekels, and the second verse teaches the redemption at a reduction where the consecration took place after the Jubilee.]

(4) [Since the former verse also refers to a consecration after the Jubilee year.]

(5) [I.e., two or three years after the Jubilee, when there the redemption is at a reduction, whereas if the consecration took place earlier the redemption price must be the full fifty shekels.]

(6) Contra Rab!

(7) Ex. XII, 15.

(8) V. supra 18a q.v. notes.

(9) [Whilst the cited Baraita must certainly be explained that no consecration is effective in the Jubilee year, Rab does not stand refuted in view of Rabbi's support of his interpretation of the verse.]

(10) If Scripture refers to the second year after the Jubilee, so that fifty shekels are payable for forty-eight years. the redeemer must add one pondion to each shekel (v. supra p. 142 n. 2); but according to Rabbi, Scripture speaks of the year of Jubilee itself, so that fifty shekels are payable for fifty years, i.e., just a sela' per year; how then does the pondion come in?

(11) The year of Jubilee is the last of the last cycle and the first of the new one, so that there are forty-nine years for each of which a shekel and a pondion are due from the redeemer.

(12) [Who holds that the redemption at a reduction can only begin with the year after the Jubilee.]

(13) That the Jubilee year is not included in the cycle of forty-nine years, so that there are full forty-nine years between one Jubilee and another apart from the Jubilee year itself.

(14) For on the view of R. Judah there are only forty-eight years between one Jubilee and another, which would make the payment per year amount to one shekel and two pondions.

(15) Who speaks of 'one pondion'.

(16) Who said that if one consecrated property in the year of Jubilee, it is not consecrated.

(17) Since any consecration in the year of Jubilee is not valid.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 25a

for as long as a year is not complete it cannot be deducted.¹ What is he teaching us? That one does not reckon months to the disadvantage of the Sanctuary? But that was [expressly] taught [in the Mishnah]: ONE MAY NOT RECKON ANY MONTHS TO THE [DISADVANTAGE OF] THE SANCTUARY? — He gives the reason: Why is it ruled: NOR REDEEM IT LESS THAN ONE YEAR AFTER THE YEAR OF JUBILEE? Because one does not reckon the months to [the disadvantage] of the Sanctuary.

Our Rabbis taught: Whence do we know that one does not reckon months to the [disadvantage of] the Sanctuary? The text states: Then the Priest shall reckon unto him the money according to the years that remain,² i.e., you may reckon years but not months. Whence do we know that if you desire to add the months [so as] to consider them one year, you can do so; as e.g., if he consecrated [the field] in the middle of the forty-eighth year?³ Therefore the text states: Then the priest shall reckon unto him, in any case.⁴

MISHNAH. IF A MAN CONSECRATED HIS FIELD AT THE TIME WHEN THE LAW OF THE JUBILEE IS IN FORCE,⁵ HE MUST PAY FIFTY SHEKELS FOR [EVERY PIECE OF FIELD SUFFICIENT FOR] THE SOWING OF A HOMER OF BARLEY. IF THE FIELD CONTAINED RAVINES TEN HANDBREADTHS DEEP OR ROCKS TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH, THEY ARE NOT INCLUDED IN THE MEASURE. BUT IF LESS THAN THIS, THEY ARE INCLUDED. IF HE CONSECRATED IT TWO OR THREE YEARS BEFORE THE JUBILEE, THEN HE MUST PAY ONE SELA' [SHEKEL] AND ONE PONDION FOR EACH YEAR. IF HE SAYS: 'I SHALL PAY FOR EACH YEAR AS IT COMES ONE DOES NOT LISTEN TO HIM, BUT HE MUST PAY FOR ALL THE YEARS TOGETHER. IT IS ALL THE SAME WHETHER THE OWNER OR ANYONE ELSE [REDEEMS THE FIELD]. WHEREIN THEN DOES THE OWNER DIFFER FROM ANY OTHER MAN? IN THAT THE OWNER MUST ADD ONE FIFTH, WHEREAS ANY OTHER MAN NEED NOT ADD ONE FIFTH.

GEMARA. A Tanna taught: [A field requiring] one kor⁶ seed, but not one [yielding] a kor crop. Strewn with the hand, not with oxen!⁷ Levi taught: Neither too thick, nor too thin, but in average manner!

IF THE FIELD CONTAINS RAVINES etc. But let them be treated as if they had been consecrated separately? And if you were to say that since they are not sufficient for [the sowing of] a kor, they cannot become consecrated; surely it was taught: Field.⁸ What does that mean to teach? Because it is said: the sowing of a homer of barley shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver;⁸ from this I know only [the law] if he consecrated it in this manner. Whence [do I know] to include also a lethek, half a lethek, a se'ah, or half a se'ah, a tarkab, or half a tarkab?⁹ Therefore Scripture says 'Field', of any size! Mar Ukba b. Hama replied: Here the reference is to ravines full of water which cannot be sown. Infer that also [from the fact] that [the clefts] were mentioned in an analogous position to that of rocks.¹⁰ This proves it. But then also smaller [areas than ten handbreadths] too [ought not to be included]? — Those are called small 'clefts of the earth' or 'spines of the earth'.¹¹

IF HE CONSECRATED IT TWO OR THREE YEARS etc. Our Rabbis taught: And an abatement shall be made from thy valuation,¹² also from the Sanctuary; so that if the Sanctuary enjoyed the property for two or three years, or even if it did not enjoy it, but had it in its possession, one may deduct one sela' and one pondion for each year.

IF HE SAYS: I SHALL PAY EACH YEAR etc. Our Rabbis taught: Whence do we know, that if the owner said, 'I shall pay for each year as it comes' that we do not listen to him? Therefore the text says: 'Then the priest shall reckon unto him the money', i.e., until the whole sum is together. It is all the same whether it be the owner or someone else, except that the owner must add one fifth, whereas any other man need not add the fifth.

MISHNAH. IF A MAN CONSECRATED [HIS FIELD] AND THEN REDEEMED IT, IT DOES NOT GO OUT OF HIS POSSESSION IN THE JUBILEE.¹³ IF HIS SON REDEEMED IT, IT REVERTS TO HIS FATHER IN THE JUBILEE. IF ANOTHER, OR A RELATIVE REDEEMED IT, AND HE¹⁴ REDEEMED IT FROM HIS HAND, IT GOES OUT TO THE PRIESTS.¹⁵ IF ONE OF THE PRIESTS REDEEMED IT,¹⁶ AND IT WAS STILL IN HIS POSSESSION,¹⁷ THEN HE CANNOT SAY: 'SINCE IT GOES OUT TO THE PRIESTS IN THE YEAR OF JUBILEE, AND

SINCE IT IS NOW IN MY POSSESSION, THEREFORE IT BELONGS TO ME', BUT IT GOES OUT OF HIS POSSESSION TO BE DISTRIBUTED AMONG ALL HIS BRETHREN THE PRIESTS.¹⁸

(1) From the total of remaining years to the next Jubilee, and he who redeems must pay for the incomplete year a full shekel with its pondion, The Mishnah thus means that after the Jubilee all redemptions must be made on the basis of complete years.

(2) Lev. XXVII, 18.

(3) And by adding the months that have already elapsed to the preceding years, there are left less than two years to the Jubilee, in which case the redemption price is the full fifty shekels.

(4) I.e., the priest must always so reckon as it should be to the advantage of the Sanctuary.

(5) V. infra 32b, when the law of Jubilee is not in force the redemption price is fixed according to the value of the field,

(6) A homer.

(7) We assess the value of the field by the quantity of the seed required (not by the yield of the crop) when strewn with the hand, but not when strewn from a perforated bag or wagon drawn by oxen.

(8) Lev. XXVII, 16.

(9) Two letheks are one kor; one kor is thirty se'ahs; one se'ah is six kabs. Tirkab. lit., 'two kabs', has come later on to be used as the term. tech. for three kabs.

(10) In which sowing is impossible.

(11) And treated as part of the field.

(12) Lev. XXVII, 18. Just as when he consecrated a field in, for example, the tenth year after the Jubilee and came to redeem it in the twentieth, he would deduct the ten years during which he had it, so if the Sanctuary had had the benefit of the field for a number of years he would deduct from the sum wherewith he redeems the field all the years the Sanctuary owned, or derived benefit from it.

(13) As would be the case if another man had redeemed it, when it would go out on Jubilee to the priests; v. Lev. XXVII, 19.

(14) The original owner.

(15) The printed edd. of the separate Mishnah read: ' . . . it does not go out of his possession in the year of Jubilee'; v. Maim. Mishnah Commentary.

(16) From the treasurer of the Sanctuary.

(17) At the commencement of the year of Jubilee. His argument would be: If another (i.e., not the owner) Israelite had redeemed it, I and my colleagues would have received it anyhow in the year of Jubilee; now that I have it in my possession, I have the best claim to it.

(18) I.e., to the group officiating as the year of Jubilee commences.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 25b

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: And if he will not redeem the field,¹ i.e., the owner. Or if he have sold the field,¹ i.e., the treasurer [of the Sanctuary]. To another man,¹ I.e., to another man but not to his son.² You say, 'to another man' [means] not to his son! But perhaps, 'to another man' [means] not to his brother? Since Scripture says, 'man', the brother is included, hence how explain [the word] 'other', [it means to] exclude the son. Why do you choose to include the son and exclude the brother? — I include the son because he arises in his father's place, for the purpose of 'designation',³ and in regard to a Hebrew slave.⁴ On the contrary! I would include the brother because he arises in his brother's place in regard to the levirate duty?⁵ [This is no argument.] For is there any levirate duty in any condition but where there be no son? Surely if there is a son, no levirate duty is involved.⁶ But infer it from the fact that here [in the son's case] there are two points [in his favour], whereas there [in the brother's case] there is only one! — [The preference for a son in the case of] a Hebrew slave is similarly inferred from the same refutation: Is there any levirate duty in any other condition but where there be no son?⁷

Rabbah b. Abbuha asked: Could a daughter preserve a field for her father? [Shall I say,] Since with regard to the levirate obligation, both son and daughter alike effect exemption,⁸ she therefore can preserve [the field], or perhaps, since in respect of inheritance the daughter, where there is a son, is considered an outsider,⁹ she cannot preserve [the field]? — Come and hear, for the School of R. Ishmael taught: ‘Whosoever is considered an outsider where there is a son cannot preserve [the field]’, and she, too, is considered an outsider where there is a son.

R. Zeirah asked: Who can preserve the field for a woman? [Shall I say,] The husband can preserve it for her, since he inherits here, or perhaps the son can preserve it for her, because he takes of what is coming due [to the estate] as he does of what is held in actual possession?¹⁰ — The question remains unanswered.

Rama b. Hama asked of R. Hisda: If one dedicates [his field] less than two years before the year of Jubilee, does it go out to the priests?¹¹ He replied: What do you think? Because: ‘An abatement shall be made from thy valuation . . . but the field when it goeth out in the Jubilee’¹² [from which you would infer] that [the law¹³ applies] only to [a field] subject to the law of deduction, but not to one which is not subject to the law of deduction? On the contrary! [Scripture says:] And if he will not redeem the field . . . the field, when it goeth out in the Jubilee, etc.,¹⁴ and this field too is subject to redemption.

IF ONE OF THE PRIESTS REDEEMED IT. Our Rabbis taught: The possession thereof shall be the priest's,¹⁵ what does that come to teach? [The following:] Whence do we know that if a field is to go out on Jubilee to the priests and one of the priests redeems it, that he cannot say: Since it would go out to a priest [anyway] and it is in my possession now, let it belong to me, on an argument ad majus: ‘If I can acquire title to something belonging to others, how much more to something belonging to myself’, therefore the text reads: ‘[his] possession’;¹⁶ a possession which is his, but this one is not his. How then [do we deal with such a field]? It goes out of his hand and is distributed among his brethren the priests.

MISHNAH. IF THE YEAR OF JUBILEE ARRIVED AND IT WAS NOT YET REDEEMED THEN THE PRIESTS ENTER INTO POSSESSION THEREOF AND PAY ITS VALUE.¹⁷ THESE ARE THE WORDS OF R. JUDAH. R. SIMEON SAYS: THEY ENTER [INTO POSSESSION] BUT THEY DO NOT PAY [ITS VALUE]. R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY NEITHER ENTER [INTO POSSESSION] NOR PAY [ITS VALUE]. BUT IT IS CALLED AN ABANDONED FIELD UNTIL THE SECOND JUBILEE. IF THE SECOND JUBILEE HAS ARRIVED AND IT WAS NOT YET REDEEMED, IT IS CALLED A ‘TWICE ABANDONED FIELD’¹⁸ UNTIL THE THIRD JUBILEE. THE PRIESTS NEVER ENTER INTO POSSESSION THEREOF UNTIL SOMEONE ELSE HAD REDEEMED IT.¹⁹

GEMARA. What is the reason of R. Judah's view? — He derives it from [the analogous]: ‘holy’, ‘holy’ [written] with the consecration of a house.²⁰ Just as there [a redemption is impossible without] payment of money, so here also payment of money [is mandatory]. And R. Simeon? — He derives it from [the analogous]: ‘holy’, ‘holy’ [written] with the lambs of the Feast of Weeks.²¹ Just as there [the priest obtains them] without money, so here, too, without money. But let R. Judah, too, infer it from the lambs of the Feast of Weeks? — One may make inference for objects consecrated to repairs of the Sanctuary

(1) Lev. XXVII, 20.

(2) If the son redeems it, the field reverts to his father at Jubilee.

(3) Ex. XXI, 9. The designation i.e., betrothal of a Hebrew handmaid to her master. There the son automatically enters into his father's rights.

(4) In the case of a Hebrew slave, whose master dies, the son is entitled to the remaining ones of the six years' service due to his father.

- (5) Deut. XXV, 5 If brethren dwell together and one of them die and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not be married abroad unto one not of his kin. Her husband's brother shall go in unto her, and take her to him to wife.
- (6) Any child, son or daughter, of the dead brother renders the levirate duty impossible, and indeed prohibits it as incestuous. Hence the brother plays a role only when there is no son.
- (7) The preference for a son in the case of a Hebrew slave is not based on the Biblical text, but is inferred from this very argument, v. Kid. 17b; therefore in reality there is but one point in the son's favour, so that the balance between brother and son is restored, each of them having but one point in his favour.
- (8) Just as in the case of her father's death, the daughter like the son, cancels the possibility of the levirate obligation, so should she be able to preserve the field for her father by redeeming it so that in the year of Jubilee it would revert to her father.
- (9) Lit., 'another' since she cannot inherit.
- (10) The son inherits from his mother property which will be due after her death, as well as such already in her possession, whereas the husband does not obtain those still due, as he does those in her possession already. V. B.B. 113a.
- (11) If another man redeems as is required, not at a deduction but with the payment of the full fifty shekels.
- (12) Lev. XXVII, 18 and 21.
- (13) That the field on Jubilee goes out to the priests.
- (14) Ibid. 20, 21.
- (15) Ibid. 21. Unless he redeems it, the field will go out to the priests.
- (16) 'His' is here interpreted as suggesting only that the priest's own field of possession, i.e., that inherited from his father, may belong exclusively to him, but not someone else's field of possession.
- (17) Fifty shekels for each piece of the field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley, payable to the treasurer of the Sanctuary; thereupon the field becomes their field of possession.
- (18) This designation serves at the same time as a notice to the would-be buyers, who for practical or sentimental reasons might redeem the field for its original owner.
- (19) When the next Jubilee arrives, the priests enter into possession of the field without the obligation of paying its value to the Sanctuary, for the latter has already received such value from the person who redeemed the field.
- (20) Lev. XXVII, 14 uses the term in referring' to the consecration of a house, and v. 23 to that of a field of possession.
- (21) V. Lev, XXIII, 20.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 26a

from other objects dedicated to repairs of the Sanctuary, but one may make no inference for objects dedicated to Temple repairs from such as are dedicated to the altar. But let R. Simeon, too, derive it from 'one who consecrated his house'? — One may make inference for things given as a gift to the priests from others which are a gift unto priests, but one may not make inference for things which are a gift to the priests from others which are not a gift to the priests.¹

R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY NEITHER ENTER [INTO POSSESSION] NOR PAY [ITS VALUE]. Rabbah said: What is the reason for R. Eliezer's view? Scripture said: And if he will not redeem the field . . . it shall not be redeemed any more . . . or if he have sold the field to another man [then] . . . the field, when it goeth out in the Jubilee.² Said Abaye: A sharp knife to cut Scriptural verses [to pieces]! Rather, said Abaye, this is the reason for R. Eliezer's view, as it was taught: 'It shall not be, redeemed any more'. One might have assumed that [means]: It shall not be redeemed [by the owners], i.e., even to be considered [to him] a field acquired by purchase,³ therefore Scripture says, 'any more', which means: it cannot be redeemed so as to be considered [again] what it was before [a field of possession]⁴ but it can be redeemed to become to him like a field acquired by purchase.⁵ Now to when does this refer? Will you say, To the first Jubilee? Why can it not be redeemed? It is still a field of possession. Hence is it obviously to the second Jubilee [that we refer]. But according to whom [is this teaching]? Would you say according to either R. Judah or R. Simeon; surely it goes out to the priests [at the first Jubilee]!⁶ You must hence say it is in accord with R. Eliezer, which proves that R. Eliezer infers his reason from here.⁷ But is that how you think? How then do R. Judah and R. Simeon interpret that ‘any more’. Rather we speak here of a field [of possession] that went out to the priests [at Jubilee],⁸ and which the priests thereupon consecrated,⁹ and now the [original] owner comes to redeem it. You might have assumed that it cannot be redeemed [by the owner]¹⁰ not even to be regarded as a field acquired by purchase, therefore the text states ‘any more’; [meaning] it cannot be redeemed so as to be considered as before [a field of possession], but it can be redeemed to be considered a field acquired by purchase. And then indeed was it taught: In the year of Jubilee the field shall return unto him of whom it was bought.¹¹ One might have assumed that it shall go back to the treasurer from whom he bought it, therefore the text states: Even to him to whom the possession of the land belongeth.¹¹ Now Scripture should [only] have said: ‘Even to him to whom the possession of the land belongeth’ For what purpose does it say: ‘Unto him of whom it was bought’? [It refers to the case of] a field that had gone out to the priests, whereupon the priest sold it and the purchaser consecrated it, and another person came and redeemed it. One might have assumed that it shall revert to the original owners, therefore it is said: ‘Unto him of whom it was bought’.¹² And it was necessary to state]: ‘Unto him of whom it was bought’ and it was necessary to state: ‘It shall not be redeemed any more’. For if the Divine Law had written [only]: ‘It shall not be redeemed any more’ [one would have said that this applied only to the former case] where it does not come back at all [to the one who consecrated it],¹³ but here where it reverts [to the one who consecrated it],¹⁴ [I might have said,] it shall revert to the owner; therefore the Divine Law wrote: ‘Unto him of whom it was bought’. And if the Divine Law had written [only]: ‘Unto him of whom it was bought’ [one would have said that this applies to the latter case] where the owner does not pay its value,¹⁵ but here [in the former case] where he pays its value, [I might say] it shall be placed in his possession, therefore the Divine Law wrote: ‘It shall not be redeemed’. And if the Divine Law had written: ‘It shall not be redeemed’, but had not written, ‘any more’, I would have thought: It cannot be redeemed at all, therefore the Divine Law said, ‘any more’, i.e., it cannot revert to its original status again, but it can be so redeemed as to be regarded a field acquired by purchase. Now what of it?¹⁶ — Raba said: Scripture said, ‘But the field when it goeth out in the Jubilee [etc.]’, [implying] when it goeth out [on Jubilee] of the hand [possession] of another.¹⁷

- (1) The field of possession as well as the lambs of the Feast of Weeks both are a gift to the priest (v. Lev. XXIII, 20 and XXVII, 21); that is not the case with the consecration of a house, the value of which goes to the fund for Temple repairs.
 - (2) V. Lev. XXVII, 20-21. The two verses are combined to mean thus: If he does not redeem it, it shall not be redeemed any more, but if he (the treasurer of the Sanctuary) sells it, then the field goes out on Jubilee to the priests. This implies that if the treasurer does not sell it the priests do not enter into possession of the field.
 - (3) I.e., the owner can no longer redeem it to have the use of the field at least to the next Jubilee.
 - (4) I.e., to be his permanently after the redemption.
 - (5) This laborious combination of verses for a forced ad hoc elicits Abaye's merited reproach.
 - (6) As stated in our Mishnah.
 - (7) R. Eliezer holds that after the first Jubilee year the field if unredeemed belongs to the Sanctuary and not the priests, and consequently the field can still be redeemed, hence the exposition of the cited verse.
 - (8) Because it had been redeemed by another man.
 - (9) Who received it on Jubilee.
 - (10) Since he did not redeem it on the first Jubilee year.
 - (11) Lev. XXVII, 24 with reference to a field of purchase.
 - (12) One might have assumed that it reverts to the man who originally consecrated it, therefore the Scriptural verse comes to teach us that since it was not bought from him but was acquired from the Sanctuary it reverts to the priest, from whom the purchaser had acquired it before consecrating the field. And similarly in the case of a field of possession, once another redeems it and it gets into the possession of the priest at Jubilee, the owner can no longer redeem it as his field of possession.
 - (13) I.e., when the priest consecrated it after having received it on Jubilee, the owner having failed to redeem it. In this case the field on the next Jubilee goes out to all the priests and not to the priest who consecrated it, and similarly the original owner cannot claim it as a field of possession.
 - (14) I.e., where the priest sold and the purchaser consecrated it, in which case it is a field acquired by purchase, which if someone redeems it from the Sanctuary does not go out to the priests on Jubilee, but reverts to the consecrator.

(15) Since another redeemed it.

(16) We do not yet know the reason for R. Eliezer's view that the priests cannot enter into possession until someone has redeemed it.

(17) I.e., when it goes out of the possession of another who had redeemed it from the treasurer before the year of Jubilee, then shall it go out to the priests as their field of possession.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 26b

The question was asked: Is the owner in the second Jubilee cycle considered like someone else or not?¹ — Come and hear: 'It shall not be redeemed any more'. One might have assumed it shall not be redeemed [by the owners] even to be considered before him like a field acquired by purchase, therefore it is said: 'Any more, i.e., it cannot be redeemed so as to be considered again what it was before, but it can be redeemed so as to become to him like a field acquired by purchase. Now to what does this refer? Will you say to the first Jubilee? Why should it not be redeemed? It is still regarded a field of possession! Hence the reference is obviously to the second Jubilee. But according to whose view [is this teaching]? If according to R. Judah or R. Simeon, surely it goes out to the priests [at the first Jubilee]? one must rather say therefore, it is in accord with R. Eliezer, which proves that [according to him]² the owner in the second Jubilee is considered as if he were another person. But do you think so? How then would R. Judah and R. Simeon interpret 'any more'? — Rather do we deal here with the case of a field [of possession] that went out [at Jubilee] to the priests, and which the priest consecrated, and now the original owner comes to redeem it. You might have thought: It cannot be redeemed [by the owner] so as to become like a field acquired by purchase, therefore it is said: 'any more', I.e., it cannot be redeemed so as to be considered what it was before, but it can be redeemed so as to become to him a field acquired by purchase. Thus also was it taught: 'The field shall return unto him of whom it was bought'. One might have assumed it shall return to the treasurer from whom he had bought it, therefore the text states: 'Even to him unto whom the possession of the land belongeth'. Now Scripture should have said: 'Unto whom the possession of the land belongeth'. For what purpose does it say: 'Unto him of whom the field was bought'? It refers to a field that had gone out to the priests and a priest sold it, whereupon the purchaser consecrated it and another person came and redeemed it. One might have assumed that it shall revert to the original owner, therefore it is said: 'Unto him of whom it was bought'. And it was necessary to write: 'It shall not be redeemed any more', as it was necessary to write: 'Unto him of whom it was bought'. For had the Divine Law written [only], 'It shall not be redeemed any more', [one would have said that applies only in the former case] where it does not come back at all, [to the one who consecrated it], but here where it does revert [to him], I might have said it shall revert to the owner, therefore the Divine Law wrote: 'Unto him of whom it was bought'. And if the Divine Law had written [only]: 'Unto him of whom it was bought' [one would have said this applies to the latter case] where the owner does not pay its money-value, but here [in the former case] where he pays its money-value, it shall be placed in his possession, therefore the Divine Law wrote: 'It shall not be redeemed'. And if the Divine Law had written [only]: 'It shall not be redeemed', but had not written any more', I might have said that it cannot be redeemed at all, therefore the Divine Law wrote 'any more'; i.e., it cannot revert any more to its original status [as a field of possession], but it can be redeemed so as to be considered a field acquired by purchase. Now what of it?³ — Come and hear: R. Eliezer said, If the owner redeemed it in the second Jubilee [cycle] it goes out to the priest in the [next] Jubilee.⁴ Said Rabina to R. Ashi: But did we not learn thus: R. ELIEZER SAID, THE PRIESTS NEVER ENTER INTO POSSESSION THEREOF UNTIL SOMEONE ELSE HAS REDEEMED IT? — He replied: The owner is considered as someone else in the second Jubilee [cycle]. Others say, R. Eliezer said: If he [the owner] redeems it during the second Jubilee [cycle], it does not go out to the priests at the Jubilee. Whereupon Rabina said to R. Ashi: We also learnt likewise: R. ELIEZER SAID, THE PRIESTS NEVER ENTER INTO POSSESSION THEREOF UNTIL SOMEONE ELSE HAS REDEEMED IT. — He replied: If we [knew it only] from our

Mishnah, I might have assumed that the owner during the second Jubilee [cycle] is considered like someone else, therefore we are informed [otherwise].⁵

MISHNAH. IF ONE BOUGHT A FIELD FROM HIS FATHER,⁶ AND HIS FATHER DIED AND AFTERWARDS HE CONSECRATED IT, IT IS CONSIDERED A FIELD OF POSSESSION.⁷ IF HE CONSECRATED IT AND AFTERWARDS HIS FATHER DIED, THEN IT IS CONSIDERED A FIELD ACQUIRED BY PURCHASE.⁸ THESE ARE THE WORDS OF R. MEIR. R. JUDAH AND R. SIMEON SAY: [EVEN IN THE LATTER CASE] IT IS CONSIDERED A FIELD OF POSSESSION, AS IT IS SAID: ‘AND IF A FIELD WHICH HE HATH BOUGHT, WHICH IS NOT A FIELD OF HIS POSSESSION, I.E., A FIELD WHICH IS NOT CAPABLE OF BECOMING A FIELD OF HIS POSSESSION, THUS EXCLUDING A FIELD WHICH IS CAPABLE OF BECOMING A FIELD OF POSSESSION.’⁹ A FIELD ACQUIRED BY PURCHASE DOES NOT GO OUT TO THE PRIESTS IN THE YEAR OF JUBILEE, FOR NO MAN CAN CONSECRATE AN OBJECT NOT BELONGING TO HIM.¹⁰ PRIESTS AND LEVITES MAY CONSECRATE [THEIR FIELDS] AT ANY TIME AND REDEEM AT ANY TIME, BOTH BEFORE AND AFTER THE JUBILEE.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Whence do we know that if one bought a field from his father and consecrated it, and thereupon his father died, that it is to be considered his field of possession? Therefore it is said: ‘A field which he hath bought, which is not a field of his possession’, i.e., field which is not capable of becoming a field of his possessions excluding this, which is capable of becoming a field of his possession. These are the words of R. Judah and R. Simeon. R. Meir says: Whence do we know that if one bought a field from his father and his father died, and he thereupon consecrated it, that it be considered to him a field of his possession? Therefore it is said: ‘A field which he hath bought which is not a field of his possession’, i.e., a field which is not a field of his possession, excluding this, which is a field of his possession. Shall we say that they are conflicting about this [principle], R. Meir holding that the acquisition of usufruct is like the acquisition of the capital itself, whereas R. Judah and R. Simeon hold that the acquisition of usufruct is not like the acquisition of the soil itself?¹¹ — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: As a rule R. Simeon and R. Judah hold that the acquisition of usufruct is like the acquisition of the soil itself

(1) According to R. Eliezer who says that in the second Jubilee cycle, too, the field can be redeemed, the question is asked: Is the owner in the second cycle considered like someone else, so that when he redeems it the field will in the third Jubilee go out to the priests; or is he still considered the owner so that in the third Jubilee the field will revert to him, as it would have reverted to him had he redeemed it before the end of the first Jubilee.

(3) The question propounded above.

(4) Which proves that the owner, during the second Jubilee cycle, is considered like someone else, the field in the Jubilee reverting to the priests.

(5) That the owner is not considered another, during the second Jubilee cycle, and if he redeems it the field remains with him at Jubilee.

(6) If he consecrated it after it had become, through his father's death, his field of possession. it remains in the status of a field of his possession. But if he consecrated it whilst his father was alive, it had not yet become his field of possession and remains therefore his field acquired by purchase. The difference is that a field acquired by purchase must be redeemed at its full value (instead of the fifty shekels for each piece of field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley. due in the case of a field of his possession); and, if he who consecrated it has not redeemed it, then when the year of Jubilee arrives, it does not go out to the priests but reverts then to its original owner. In our case It would revert to the father, and since he died, to his heirs.

(7) V. Lev. XXVII, 16.

(8) Lev. XXVII, 22.

(9) Even if it was not yet a field of his possession at the time he consecrated it, but was (one of) ‘from’ the fields of his (potential) possession, it is considered his field of possession. But when he comes to redeem it, it must be his field of possession already, or else it will be regarded as a field acquired by purchase. 'A field acquired by purchase' is the term. techn. for any property acquired in any manner, as long as it was not inherited by its present owner.

(10) If someone buys a field, he has bought only the usufruct up to the year of Jubilee, in that year it reverts automatically. without any fee payable, to its original owner. Hence its purchase could not legally consecrate it, consecration being unlimited in time, whereas his limited rights are also limited by the year of Jubilee. Hence that field will not go out to the priests, but will revert to the original owner, whose field of possession it was, by inheritance.

(11) As long as his father lived the son had but the usufruct of the field he had purchased from the former. He did not really own the soil, because in the year of Jubilee the soil would have reverted to his father, the original owner. R. Meir, however, would hold that the acquisition of the usufruct is like the acquisition of the soil itself. Therefore when he consecrated it in his father's lifetime, it was to be regarded as a field acquired by purchase, the soil belonging to him with the usufruct, whence it could no more acquire the status of a field of possession, with the rules relevant thereto. R. Judah and R. Simeon, on the other hand, hold that the acquisition of usufruct is not like the acquisition of the soil, hence it could become a field of possession only if the father died before the son consecrated it. This being a very obvious rule, no Scriptural law was necessary to teach what applies here. What required the Scriptural guidance was the case of his having consecrated the field before his father died to teach that although at the time of its consecration the field was one acquired by purchase, nevertheless since the father died before its being redeemed, it is considered a field of his possession. For the original purchase did not include the field, only the usufruct.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 27a

, but here they found a Scriptural verse which they interpreted [as follows]:¹ The Divine Law should have said: 'If from the field acquired by purchase which is not his field of possession', or 'which is not a field of possession', what does 'from the field of his possession'² mean? [It means] a field incapable of becoming a field of possession, [thus] excluding this which is capable of becoming a field of possession.

CHAPTER VIII

MISHNAH. IF ONE CONSECRATED HIS FIELD AT A TIME WHEN THE [LAW OF THE] JUBILEE WAS NO LONGER VALID,⁷ THEY SAY TO HIM: MAKE THOU THE FIRST BEGINNING!' BECAUSE THE OWNER MUST PAY AN ADDED FIFTH WHEREAS NO OTHER PERSON NEED PAY AN ADDITIONAL FIFTH.⁸ IT HAPPENED THAT ONE CONSECRATED HIS FIELD BECAUSE IT WAS BAD. THEY SAID TO HIM: MAKE THOU THE FIRST BEGINNING!' HE SAID: 'I WILL ACQUIRE IT FOR AN ISSAR'.⁹ R. JOSE SAID: HE DID NOT SPEAK THUS, BUT 'FOR AN EGG', BECAUSE CONSECRATED OBJECTS MAY BE REDEEMED BY EITHER MONEY OR MONEY'S WORTH.¹⁰ HE SAID TO HIM: IT HAS BECOME THINE.¹¹ THUS HE WAS FOUND TO HAVE LOST AN ISSAR AND THE FIELD WAS HIS AGAIN.

GEMARA. IF ONE CONSECRATED HIS FIELD AT A TIME WHEN etc. THEY SAY: but was it not taught. 'They compel him'? — What THEY SAY means is 'they compel him'. Or, if you like say, At first, they speak to him. If he obeys, he obeys. If not, they compel him.

FOR THE OWNER MUST PAY AN ADDED FIFTH. Why argue from the fact that the owner is obliged to pay an added fifth, infer it from the fact that since it is dear to him he will pay more to redeem it? And furthermore, the obligation to redeem it rests upon the owner?¹² — He gives one reason and then another. One reason, that since it is dear to him he will pay more to redeem it; and another, that the obligation to redeem it rests upon the owner, and furthermore, the owner is obliged to pay an added fifth.

IT HAPPENED THAT ONE CONSECRATED HIS FIELD etc. Shall we say they are disputing this principle: R. Jose holds that money's worth is like money, whilst the Rabbis are of the opinion that money's worth is not like money? But then we have an established principle that money's worth is like money!¹³ — [No.] All agree that money's worth is like money, but here they are disputing whether one may redeem by an object the fifth of which is not worth one perutah; the first Tanna holding only with an issar, the fifth of which is worth one perutah, may one redeem [but not by less],¹⁴ whilst R. Jose holds with an egg too one may redeem.

HE SAID TO HIM: IT HAS BECOME THINE! THUS HE WAS FOUND TO HAVE LOST AN ISSAR AND THE FIELD WAS HIS AGAIN. This anonymous statement is in accord with the view of the Rabbis.¹⁵

MISHNAH. IF ONE SAID: 'I WILL ACQUIRE IT FOR TEN SELA'S, AND ANOTHER '[FOR] TWENTY', AND ANOTHER 'FOR THIRTY', AND ANOTHER 'FOR FORTY', AND ANOTHER 'FOR FIFTY', AND HE [THAT BID] FIFTY RECANTED, THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS PROPERTY UP TO TEN SELA'S.¹⁶ IF HE [THAT BID] FORTY¹⁷ RECANTED, THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS POSSESSION UP TO TEN SELA'S. IF HE [THAT BID] THIRTY RECANTED, THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS POSSESSIONS UP TO TEN SELA'S. IF HE THAT BID TWENTY RECANTED THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS POSSESSION UP TO TEN SELA'S. IF HE THAT BID TEN RECANTED THEY SELL [THE FIELD] FOR WHAT IT IS WORTH, AND COLLECT WHAT REMAINS FROM HIM WHO BID TEN.¹⁸ IF THE OWNER BID TWENTY AND ANY OTHER MAN BID TWENTY,¹⁹ THEN THE OWNER COMES FIRST, BECAUSE HE MUST ADD ONE FIFTH. IF ONE SAID 'I WILL ACQUIRE IT FOR TWENTY-ONE SELA'S'

(1) As excluding the field under question, quite independent of the discussion as to whether acquisition of usufruct is like acquisition of the soil itself.

(2) מִשְׁרָה 'men privativum'. For further notes v. B.B. Sonc. ed., pp. 285ff.

(3) V. supra 24a.

(4) V. ibid.

(5) In which Israelites may not consecrate.

(6) V. supra 24a.

(7) The law of the year of Jubilee was valid only as long as all Israel lived in the Holy Land, with the tribes inhabiting the portions of the land allocated to them by Joshua, v. infra 32b.

(8) For as long as it was valid, the price to be paid was fixed (fifty shekels for every piece of the field sufficient for the sowing of a homer of barley) and did not depend upon any offer of the owner. But after the validity of the Jubilee was lost, the field of possession, too, had to be redeemed at its value, hence the question here.

(9) The expense was greater than its produce.

(10) Eight perutahs.

(11) The treasurer said to the owner: It is yours.

(12) V. Lev. XXVII, 23.

(13) V. B.K. 7a.

(14) The disagreement is in detail, not on principle, both holding that redemption may be achieved by either money or money's worth. An issar is the smallest coin containing five perutahs.

(15) Which speaks of his losing an issar.

(16) Through his recanting the Sanctuary lost ten sela's, the difference between his bid and that of the next lower bidder. As a rule, some definite act is necessary before any purchase is legally binding, but with regard to any transaction touching the Sanctuary an oral undertaking has the force of a legal act.

(17) This is explained in the Gemara.

(18) The difference between what he bid (ten sela's) and what after his retraction was actually paid by the lowest bidder.

(19) After the owner offered twenty.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 27b

THEN THE OWNER MUST PAY TWENTY-SIX. [IF ONE BID] TWENTY-TWO, THE OWNER MUST PAY TWENTY-SEVEN. IF TWENTY-THREE, THE OWNER MUST PAY TWENTY-EIGHT. IF TWENTY-FOUR, THE OWNER MUST PAY TWENTY-NINE. IF TWENTY-FIVE, THE OWNER MUST PAY THIRTY, FOR THEY NEED NOT ADD ONE FIFTH TO WHAT THE OTHER BIDS MORE. IF ONE SAID: 'I WILL ACQUIRE IT FOR TWENTY-SIX',¹ AND IF THE OWNER WAS WILLING TO PAY THIRTY-ONE AND ONE DENAR IN ADDITION,² THE OWNER COMES FIRST. AND IF NOT, WE SAY TO THE OTHER: 'IT HAS BECOME THINE.

GEMARA. R. Hisda said: This³ was taught only if he who bid forty stands by his bid, but if he who bid forty does not stand by his bid, then we divide it among them.⁴ We learnt: IF HE THAT BID FORTY RECANTED, THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS POSSESSIONS UP TO TEN SELA'S. But why so? Let him who bid fifty pay with [alike] him [the ten sela's which he outbid]? — It refers to the case where there was no one who bid fifty. IF HE WHO BID THIRTY RECANTED, THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS POSSESSIONS UP TO TEN SELA'S. But why so? Let him who bid forty pay together with him [the ten sela's which he outbid]? — It refers to the case where there was no one who bid forty. IF HE WHO BID TWENTY RECANTED, THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS POSSESSIONS UP TO TEN SELA'S. But why so? Let him who bid thirty pay with him? — It refers to the case where there was no one who bid thirty. But if that be so, read the last part: IF HE THAT BID TEN RECANTED THEY SELL IT FOR WHAT IT IS WORTH, AND COLLECT WHAT REMAINS FROM HIM WHO BID TEN. But let him who bid twenty pay with him [the ten sela's]? And if you would say. Here, too, it refers to the case where there was no one who bid ten, then instead of teaching AND COLLECT WHAT REMAINS FROM HIM WHO BID TEN, it should state: 'And collect from him'?⁵ — Rather, said R. Hisda, this is no difficulty. One case refers to their recanting simultaneously, the other, if they do so one after the other.⁶ Thus was it also taught: If all of them recanted simultaneously, one distributed it among them. But we were taught: THEY TAKE PLEDGES FROM HIS POSSESSION UP TO TEN SELA'S? Hence it is evident therefrom that the explanation is like R. Hisda. That is evident. Some put it in the form of a contradiction. We learnt: IF HE WHO BID TEN RECANTED, THEY SELL IT FOR WHAT IT IS WORTH, AND COLLECT WHAT REMAINS FROM HIM WHO BID TEN. But it was taught: 'We divide it among them'? — R. Hisda said: This is no contradiction, one case speaks of their recanting simultaneously, the other, if they do so one after the other.

IF THE OWNER BID TWENTY AND ANY OTHER MAN BID TWENTY etc. Shall we say that the added fifth has preference? But I will point out a contradiction. 'If a householder⁷ bid a sela' and another bid a sela' and an issar, he who bid a sela' and an issar has preference, since he adds to the principal value'? — Here where the fifth is the profit of the Sanctuary, the fifth has preference, but there, where the fifth is the profit⁸ of the householder, a goodly capital sum is preferable [for redemption], but the fifth does not concern us.

IF ONE SAID: I WILL ACQUIRE IT FOR etc. IF TWENTY-FIVE, THE OWNER MUST PAY THIRTY. But let the owner say: A man has come in our stead'?⁹ — Said Ze'ira:¹⁰ It speaks of the case where the owner had bid one denar [over twenty].¹¹ Then let [the Mishnah] mention that denar? — He [the Tanna] was not particular to mention [a mere denar]. But [yet] it teaches: If the owner was willing to pay thirty-one sela's and one denar, the owner has preference? — Rather, said Raba, it was a case where the owner bid an additional perutah and [the Tanna] was not particular [to mention it].

FOR THEY NEED NOT ADD ONE FIFTH TO WHAT THE OTHER BIDS MORE. R. Hisda said: This was taught only [for the case] where the consecrated object was not yet valued by three,¹² but if the consecrated object was valued by three, he must add [the fifth]. It was also taught thus: Beth Shammai say: They¹³ must add, whilst Beth Hillel Say: They need not add. Now how shall we imagine this case? If it [the consecrated object] has not yet been valued, what is the reason for the view of Beth Shammai? Rather must we take it that it has been valued. Shall we, then, assume that R. Hisda is of the view of Beth Shammai?¹⁴ In reality [assume] that it has not been valued, but Beth Shammai are nevertheless stringent. Or if you like, say: Indeed, it was valued and [the Baraita] is to be reversed: Beth Shammai say. They need not add [etc.]. But then let it be taught among the cases in which Beth Shammai are less stringent and Beth Hillel are more stringent?¹⁵ — Rather, Indeed it was not valued, but Beth Shammai are nevertheless stringent.

IF ONE SAID: I WILL ACQUIRE IT FOR TWENTY-SIX etc. If he [the owner] is willing, good, if not, [we do] not compel him, for he can say: 'A man has come in my stead'. What is the function of the [one] denar?¹⁶ — R. Shesheth said: This is what it means. If the owner originally wanted to give a sum amounting [with the extra addition of the last bid] to thirty-one [sela's] and one denar

(1) Thereby outbidding the owner's original bid plus the added fifth.

(2) One sela' contains four denars, so that the full fifth of twenty-six is thirty-one sela's and one denar.

(3) That if the bidder of fifty recanted they take pledges from his property up to (no more than) ten sela's.

(4) The loss divided among the bidders of fifty and forty, the former becoming responsible for fifteen (sharing the loss in the difference between forty and thirty), the latter for five sela's.

(5) Since the text reads: 'From him who bid ten', the inference is justified that there is one who bid twenty too, yet we are not taught that the sum lost is to be collected from both. This is a refutation of R. Hisda's view.

(6) When all recanted simultaneously the charge is distributed among them, but if one after the other recants, one imposes upon each the difference between his bid and the next highest bid.

(7) With reference to the second tithe which can be converted into money to be taken to Jerusalem there to be expended on food. V. Lev. XXVII, 31.

(8) In the case of the second tithe, both the original sum and the added fifth remain the possession of the householder, the only restriction upon him being the obligation to consume the whole sum in Jerusalem, after having redeemed the second tithe in the country. In that case we allow the preference to a bidder who goes, by even one issar, above the bid of the householder, even though the householder adds one fifth, since that fifth as well as the whole sum, remains his private property the Sanctuary's interest not being involved at all. But when the consecrated field is to be redeemed, the fifth added by the owner is the profit of the Sanctuary, both the original amount and the addition being received by its treasurer, therefore the preference is with him who offered the additional fifth.

(9) Who is willing to make a payment that includes the sum plus the added fifth from the owner. Hence no loss will be sustained by the Sanctuary. Why compel him then to give thirty?

(10) Inserted with Sh. Mek.

(11) Which, with the added fifth, would make his offer amount to more than twenty-five.

(12) On the basis of the last bid. Although, as a rule, valuations for the Sanctuary require the presence of ten (Sanh. 2a). here an exception is de facto recognized.

(13) The owners.

(14) The ultimate decision in a matter of conflict between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel is, as a general rule, in accord with the latter. How then could R. Hisda, an Amora, adhere to the view of Beth Shammai?

(15) These are recorded in 'Ed. and assumed to be all the rare cases in which the Schools reverse their usual role, the Hillelites being more stringent, and the Shammaites more liberal. The fact that the Mishnah in 'Ed. does not include this case indicates that the report here of such an additional unusual decision must be erroneous.

(16) Since the Mishnah stated: They need not add one fifth to what the other bid.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 28a

. And how is this to be imagined? If he offered twenty-one;¹ then the owner has the preference. If not [the treasurer] says to him [the bidder]: 'It is yours'.

MISHNAH. A MAN MAY DEVOTE² [PART] OF HIS FLOCK OR OF HIS HERD, OF HIS CANAANITE MANSERVANTS OR MAID SERVANTS OR OF HIS FIELD OF POSSESSION. BUT IF HE DEVOTED THE WHOLE OF THEM, THEY ARE NOT CONSIDERED [VALIDLY] DEVOTED. THIS IS THE VIEW OF R. ELIEZER. R. ELEAZAR B. AZARYAH SAID: IF, EVEN TO THE HIGHEST, NO ONE IS PERMITTED TO DEVOTE ALL HIS POSSESSIONS, HOW MUCH MORE SHOULD ONE BE [CAREFUL ABOUT] SPARING IN REGARD TO ONE'S POSSESSIONS.

GEMARA. Whence do we know these things? — Because our Rabbis taught: Of all that he hath,³ i.e., but not 'all that he has'; of man,³ but not 'all man'; or [of] beast,³ but not 'all beast'; of the field of his possession,³ but not 'all the field of his possession'. One might have assumed that he may not at the outset devote [the whole], but if he had done so, it should be [considered validly] devoted, therefore it is said: Notwithstanding.³ These are the words of R. Eliezer. R. Eleazar b. Azaryah said: If, even to the highest, no one is permitted to devote all his possessions, how much more should one be sparing in regard to his possessions! And all [the details] are necessary. For if the Divine Law had but written: 'Of all that he hath', I might have said: He may not devote all that he has but of one kind he may devote all [objects]. Therefore the Divine Law said: 'Of man', i.e., but not 'all man'. And if the Divine Law had but written: 'of man', [I would have said]: Because without labour none can manage,⁴ but [in the case of] a field he can still make a living by working as a serf, [therefore it stated: 'of the field of his possession']. And if [the Divine Law] had taught us about these two, [I would have said: The reason in both these cases] is that each is vitally necessary, but as for movable property, let him be allowed to devote it all,' therefore it was necessary [to teach about that as well]. Why was 'or beast' necessary? — In accordance with what was taught: One might have assumed that a man may devote his son or daughter, his Hebrew manservant or his field or purchase, therefore it is said: 'or beast', i.e., just as the beast is something he may sell, so [may he devote] only such things as he is permitted to sell. But as he is permitted to sell his minor daughter, I might therefore think that he can devote her as well, therefore it is said: 'or beast', i.e., just as a beast is something which he may sell for ever, [so can he devote only such objects] as he is permitted to sell for ever.⁵

R. ELEAZAR B. AZARYAH SAID: IF EVEN TO THE HIGHEST NO ONE IS PERMITTED etc. But that is exactly what the first Tanna has said? — The difference between them is implied in what R. Ela said; for R. Ela said: In Usha they ordained that one who would distribute [his possessions] must not go beyond one fifth [of them].⁶ It happened that one wanted to distribute more than one fifth, and his colleagues would not permit him to do so. Who was that? R. Yeshebab. Some say, it was R. Yeshebab who [wanted to distribute it] and his colleagues would not let him do so. Who was [chief among them]? — R. Akiba.

MISHNAH. IF ONE DEVOTES HIS SON OR HIS DAUGHTER⁷, OR HIS HEBREW MANSERVANT OR MAIDSERVANT, OR THE FIELD WHICH HE ACQUIRED BY PURCHASE, THEY ARE NOT CONSIDERED [VALIDLY] DEVOTED, FOR NONE CAN DEVOTE A THING WHICH DOES NOT BELONG TO HIM. PRIESTS AND LEVITES CANNOT DEVOTE [THEIR BELONGINGS]. THESE ARE THE WORDS OF R. JUDAH. R. SIMEON SAYS: THE PRIESTS CANNOT DEVOTE, BECAUSE THINGS DEVOTED BELONG TO THEM. BUT LEVITES CAN DEVOTE, BECAUSE THINGS DEVOTED DO NOT FALL TO THEM. RABBI SAYS: THE WORDS OF R. JUDAH ARE ACCEPTABLE IN CASES OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY AS IT IS SAID: FOR THAT IS THEIR PERPETUAL POSSESSION,⁸ AND THE WORDS OF R. SIMEON IN CASES OF MOVABLE PROPERTY, SINCE THINGS DEVOTED DO NOT FALL TO THEM.

GEMARA. According to R. Judah, it is quite right that priests cannot devote, because all objects devoted fall to them. But, touching Levites, granted they cannot devote immovable property, because it is written: 'For that is their perpetual possession but let them devote movable property? — Scripture said: 'Of all that he hath . . . or of the field of his possession', thus comparing movable property on the same level with immovable property. Now according to R. Simeon it is quite right [what he rules] about the priests, as we have [just] said. But touching the Levites, granted they can devote movable property, because he does not draw the [above] analogy; but why should they be able to devote immovable property; Surely it is written: 'For that is their perpetual possession'? What he means when he says LEVITES CAN DEVOTE is [that they can devote] movables. But surely the last part [of this Mishnah] reads: RABBI SAYS: THE WORDS OF R. JUDAH ARE ACCEPTABLE IN CASES OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY, AND THE WORDS OF R. SIMEON IN CASES OF MOVABLE PROPERTY; it follows that R. Simeon refers to immovable property too? — This is what he means: Rabbi said, The words of R. Judah are acceptable to R. Simeon in cases of immovable property, for R. Simeon disputes his view only in cases of movable property, but in cases of immovable property he consents.

R. Hiyya b. Abin said: If one had devoted movable property he may give it to any priest he pleases, as it is said: Everything devoted in Israel

(1) Which with the extra fifth amounts to twenty-six sela's and one denar (approximately).

(2) V. Lev. XXVII, 28. Whatever was devoted was considered most holy, whilst still in the owner's house, but became profane as soon as it reached the priests. Anything devoted could be neither redeemed nor sold. Ibid. 29.

(3) V. p. 165, n. 5.

(4) Without servants, who do one's work, one cannot live. But one may rent out fields for labour, with part of the crop belonging to the tiller thereof.

(5) Excluding his daughter, whom he may sell only whilst she is a minor.

(6) V. Keth. 50a.

(7) The minor children could be sold by their father only whilst they are minors. The Hebrew slave, manservant or maidservant, are the property of their owner only during a limited number of years. The field acquired by purchase, too, can be held only for a limited time, reverting, as it does to its original owner, in the year of Jubilee. Hence all these things or persons cannot be devoted, devotion implying in perpetuity.

(8) Lev. XXV, 34.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 28b

shall be thine.¹ If he devoted his field he must give it to a priest of the then officiating guard,² as it is said: As a field devoted,' the possession thereof shall be the priest's,³ making the inference from the analogy of [the term] 'the priest's, sin case of robbery of a stranger. And whence do we know it for that case? For it was taught: The Lord's, even the priest's,⁴ i.e., the Lord acquired it and gave it to the priest in that guard. You say, To the priest in that [particular] guard; but perhaps it means to any priest it pleases him [to give it to]? When it says, Besides the ram of the atonement, whereby atonement shall be made for him,⁴ hence Scripture speaks of the priests in that guard.⁵ The field which goes out to the priests in the year of Jubilee is [also] given to the priests of that [particular] guard.

The following question was raised: How if it⁶ fell on a Sabbath? — R. Hiyya b. Ammi in the name of Hulfana said: It is to be given to the departing guard.⁷ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: Thus was it also taught: It is to be found,⁸ then, that both the year of Jubilee and the seventh year effect [respectively] the release [of debts and land] at the same time, except that the year of Jubilee [effects it] in its beginning and the seventh year at its end.⁹ On the contrary! It was just because of this! — Say: Because the year of Jubilee, etc. Granted that the seventh year [effects release] at the end, as it is written: At the end of every seven years, thou shalt make a release,¹⁰ but how does the year of Jubilee [effect release] at the beginning? That takes place on the Day of Atonement, as it is written: In the day of atonement shall ye make proclamation with the horn throughout all your land.¹¹ This is the view of R. Ishmael, the son of R. Johanan b. Beroka, who said that the year of Jubilee commenced from the New Year already.

Hezekiah son of Biloti heard it,¹² and he went and reported it to R. Abbahu. [The latter asked:] But let him compare movable property to immovable property? — But is it not a matter of dispute among Tannaim, there being some who compare the one to the other,¹³ whilst some there are who do not?¹⁴ And he [R. Hiyya b. Abin] holds with the view that we do not make that comparison.

MISHNAH. THINGS DEVOTED FOR [THE USE OF] THE PRIESTS CANNOT BE REDEEMED BUT ARE TO BE GIVEN TO THE PRIESTS. EVEN AS TERUMAH.¹⁵ R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA SAYS: THINGS DEVOTED GENERALLY¹⁶ FALL TO [THE FUND FOR] TEMPLE REPAIRS, AS IT WAS SAID: EVERY DEVOTED THING IS MOST HOLY UNTO THE LORD.¹⁷ BUT THE SAGES SAY: THINGS DEVOTED GENERALLY FALL TO THE PRIESTS, AS IT IS SAID: AS A FIELD DEVOTED: THE POSSESSION THEREOF SHALL BE THE PRIEST'S.¹⁸ IF SO, WHY IS IT SAID: 'EVERY DEVOTED THING IS MOST HOLY UNTO THE LORD'? [THAT IS TO TEACH] THAT IS APPLIES TO THE MOST HOLY AND THE LESS HOLY THINGS.

A MAN MAY DEVOTE WHAT HE HAS ALREADY CONSECRATED, WHETHER THEY BE MOST HOLY THINGS OR LESS HOLY THINGS. IF [THEY HAD BEEN] CONSECRATED AS A VOW, HE MUST GIVE THEIR VALUE,¹⁹ IF AS A FREEWILL-OFFERING, HE MUST GIVE WHAT IT IS WORTH TO HIM.²⁰ [IF, E.G., HE SAID:] LET THIS OX BE A BURNT-OFFERING, ONE ESTIMATES HOW MUCH A MAN WOULD PAY FOR THE OX TO OFFER IT AS A BURNT-OFFERING, WHICH HE WAS NOT OBLIGED [TO OFFER]. A FIRSTLING, WHETHER UNBLEMISHED OR BLEMISHED, MAY BE DEVOTED. AND HOW CAN IT BE REDEEMED? THEY [WHO REDEEM IT] ESTIMATE WHAT A MAN WOULD GIVE FOR THIS FIRSTLING IN ORDER TO GIVE IT TO THE SON OF HIS DAUGHTER OR TO THE SON OF HIS SISTER.²¹

(3) Lev. XXVII, 21. (5) Num. V, 8. There being no heir to this stranger, his property falls to the priests. As in Lev. XXVII, 21 the words 'The possession thereof shall be the priest's' occur here. Hence the inference from analogy of expression.

(6) If the year of Jubilee fell on the Sabbath day on which the guards are changed, to which, the incoming or the outgoing guard, shall the field etc. be given?

(7) The Jubilee started on the eve before the Day of Atonement. Therefore the outgoing guard is entitled to the privilege.

- (8) Since the end of the seventh year (the 49th year in the cycle) coincides with the beginning of the Jubilee.
- (9) The wording is incorrect. It is because the end of the seventh year coincides with the beginning of the Jubilee that both effect the release at the same time. What meaning is there then to the 'except that'.

- (19) If he vowed to bring an offering and after designating an animal for the purpose he devoted it, since if that animal died or was stolen he would be liable to replace it, the animal is still regarded as being in his possession and the animal is devoted. As, however, an animal once designated as an offering may never be used for any other purpose, the devoter must pay its full value to the priest, whilst the animal itself is to be sacrificed for the purpose to which it originally had been designated by its owner. The same would apply if the sacrifice in question had not been vowed but obligatory.
- (20) If without vow or earlier liability he designated an animal as a freewill-offering, then he must pay the amount at which he valued his satisfaction with the fact that he was able to bring this offering.
- (21) A firstling, by reason of being a firstling, is a sacrifice due, which the owner is obliged to hand to the priest. And if the owner, before bringing this animal to the priest had devoted it, he can redeem it by estimating how much a man would give to him to have that firstling given to his relatives, who are priests. A priest must not pay to an Israelite with the view of being favoured as to the latter's priestly gifts. V. Bek. 27a.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 29a

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Things devoted to the priests cannot be redeemed, but must be given to the priests. Things devoted, as long as they are in the house of their owners, are in every respect as objects consecrated, as it is said: 'Every devoted thing [in Israel] is most holy unto the Lord'. Once given to the priests, they are in every respect profane, as it is said: 'Every devoted thing in Israel shall be thine'.¹

R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA SAID: THINGS DEVOTED GENERALLY FALL TO [THE FUND FOR] TEMPLE REPAIRS. It is all right as to the Rabbis, for they have explained their own reason as well as [the verse] adduced by R. Judah b. Bathyra. But what does R. Judah b. Bathyra do with 'as a field devoted'? — He needs it for what has been taught: 'As a field devoted, the possession thereof shall be the priest's'. What does that teach us? Whence do we know that if a priest consecrates his field which he derived from 'devotion',² he may not say: Since it falls to the priests [at Jubilee] and is now in my possession, it shall remain mine; and it is arguable a minori: If I acquire title to what belongs to others, how much more [can I do so] with what belongs to me! Therefore it is written: 'As a field devoted, the possession thereof shall be the priest's'. What, now, is it that we learn from 'a field devoted'? This comes to throw light and it itself illumined: His field which he derived from 'devotion' is compared with an Israelite's field of possession: just as an Israelite's field of possession goes out of his hand and is distributed among the priests [at Jubilee], thus also his field which he derived from 'devotion' goes out of his hands and is distributed among his brethren the priests. And the other?³ [They derive this from the fact that instead of] 'devoting thing' [is written] the devoted thing.⁴ And the other? — [The argument from] 'devoted', 'the devoted' does not convey [any inference] to him. Whence does R. Judah b. Bathyra know that it applies to the most holy and to less holy things?⁵ — He holds as does R. Ishmael.⁶

Rab said: The halachah is like R. Judah b. Bathyra. But will Rab leave aside the Rabbis and act in accord with R. Judah b. Bathyra? — A Baraita teaches the reverse.⁷ But will he leave aside a Mishnah and act in accord with a Baraitha? — Rab teaches also our Mishnah in the reverse manner. Why do you find it right to teach to reverse our Mishnah in view of the Baraitha? Why not reverse the Baraitha in view of our Mishnah? — Rab had a tradition [on this matter]. If that be the case,⁸ why does he say: [the halachah is like] R. Judah b. Bathyra? He should rather say, 'Like the Rabbis'? — This is what he means: Given your teaching in the reverse manner, the halachah is like R. Judah b. Bathyra.

There was a man who devoted his possessions in Pumbeditha. He came before Rab Judah, who said to him: Take four zuz, redeem them thereby, throw them into the river, and then they will be allowed to you. This shows that he holds that things devoted generally go to [the fund for] Temple repairs. In accord with whom will that be? In accord with Samuel, who said: If one re deemed an object worth a mina with an object worth a perutah, it is redeemed. But R. Samuel said that only for the case where he had already done so, but did he at all say one may do so at the outset? — That [reservation] applied only to the time when the Sanctuary was still standing, because of the loss of consecrated property, but now one may do so even at the outset. If so, a perutah ought to do as well?⁹ — It is necessary in order to make the matter public.¹⁰ 'Ulla said: 'If I had been there,¹¹ I would have given all to the priests'. This shows that 'Ulla holds that things devoted generally fall to the priests.

An objection was raised: The law of the Hebrew slave applies only as long as the Jubilee applies, as it is said: He shall serve with thee unto the year of Jubilee.¹² Neither does the law concerning a devoted field apply except at the time when the law of the Jubilee applies, as it is said: And in the Jubilee it shall go out, and he shall return unto his possessions.¹³ The law touching houses in walled cities applies only as long as the law of the Jubilee applies, as it is said: It shall not go out in the Jubilee.¹⁴ R. Simeon b. Yohai said: The law concerning a devoted field applies only at the time in which the law of the Jubilee applies, as it is said: But the field, when it goeth out in the Jubilee, shall be holy unto the Lord, as a field devoted.¹⁵ R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: The law concerning the resident alien¹⁶ applies only at the time when the law of the Jubilee applies. Said Bibi, what is the reason? Because it is inferred from the analogous 'well', 'well'. Here it is written: Because he fareth well with thee,¹⁷ and there it is written: Where it liketh him well, thou shalt not wrong him.¹⁸ — This is no difficulty: the one refers to immovable property,¹⁹ the other to movable property. But the case of Pumbeditha referred also to immovable property? — Immovable property outside the Land is like movable property in the land of Israel.²⁰ MISHNAH. R. ISHMAEL SAID: ONE VERSE SAYS, [ALL THE FIRSTLING MALES] THOU SHALT SANCTIFY,²¹ AND ANOTHER VERSE SAYS: [THE FIRSTLINGS AMONGST BEASTS] NO MAN SHALL SANCTIFY.²² IT IS NOT POSSIBLE TO SAY: THOU SHALT SANCTIFY', SINCE IT WAS SAID ALREADY: NO MAN SHALL SANCTIFY'. AND IT IS NOT POSSIBLE TO SAY: ONE SHALL NOT SANCTIFY', SINCE IT IS ALSO WRITTEN: THOU SHALT SANCTIFY'? HOW THEN? YOU MAY SANCTIFY IT BY CONSECRATING ITS VALUE [TO THE OWNER], BUT YOU MAY NOT SANCTIFY IT BY CONSECRATING ITSELF TO THE ALTAR.²³

GEMARA: And the Rabbis?²⁴ 'No man shall sanctify' is required to [render such consecration for the altar transgression of a] prohibition; 'thou shalt sanctify' is necessary in accord with what was taught: Whence do we know that if one had a firstling born to him among his flock, that he is commanded [formally] to sanctify it? Because it is said: 'The firstling thou shalt sanctify'. And R. Ishmael? — If he did not sanctify it, would it not be sacred? It is sacred from his dam's womb! Since, therefore, it is holy even if it be not [specially] sanctified, there is no need to sanctify it. [

CHAPTER IX

MISHNAH. IF ONE SOLD HIS FIELD [OF POSSESSION] AT THE TIME WHEN THE LAW OF THE JUBILEE WAS IN FORCE, HE MAY NOT REDEEM IT UNTIL AFTER [A TIME OF LESS THAN] TWO YEARS, AS IT IS WRITTEN: ACCORDING TO THE NUMBER OF THE YEARS OF THE CROPS HE SHALL SELL UNTO THEE.¹ IF [AMONG THE TWO] THERE WAS A YEAR OF BLIGHT OR MILDEW, OR A SEVENTH YEAR, IT IS NOT INCLUDED IN THE RECKONING. IF HE ONLY BROKE THE GROUND [WITHOUT PLANTING] OR LEFT IT FALLOW [FOR A YEAR], THAT YEAR IS INCLUDED IN THE RECKONING. R. ELEAZAR SAYS: IF HE SOLD IT TO HIM BEFORE THE NEW YEAR, WHILST IT WAS STILL FULL OF FRUIT, HE ENJOYS THREE CROPS IN TWO YEARS.

GEMARA. IF ONE SOLD HIS FIELD AT THE TIME WHEN THE LAW OF THE JUBILEE WAS IN FORCE, etc. It does not state: He cannot redeem,² but 'he may not redeem'; this shows that it is even prohibited. so that it is forbidden even to clapper zuz to him [to rouse his love of money]. And it is not necessary [to state] that the seller [in redeeming it] acts against a positive command, as it is written: 'According to the number of the years of the crops he shall sell unto thee',¹ but even the purchaser transgresses a positive commandment, as we require: [According to the number of] the years thou shalt buy,¹ which was not done here.³

It was stated: If one sells his field in the year of Jubilee itself, Rab said, It is sold but goes out [immediately]. whilst Samuel said, It is not sold at all. What is the reason of Samuel's view? It is an argument a minori. If [a field] that was already sold goes out [in the Jubilee] it is not logical that one which is not sold yet cannot be sold [now]! — But according to Rab, do we not argue a minori in such a case? Was it not taught: One might have assumed that a man can sell his daughter when she is a na'arah⁴ lass, therefore one argues a minori: If she who was sold already goes out [free],⁵ is it not logical that if not sold yet, she cannot be sold now? — There she cannot be sold again, but here it [the field] can be sold again.⁶

An objection was raised: Years after the Jubilee thou shalt buy,⁷ that teaches that one may sell immediately after the year of the Jubilee. Whence [do we know] that one may sell [at a period] removed from the year of Jubilee? Therefore it is said: According to the multitude of the years . . . and according to the fewness of the years.⁸ In the year of Jubilee itself one may not sell, and if he has sold [a field], it is not [validly] sold!⁹ Rab will answer you: [It means,] It is not sold 'according unto the number of the years of the crops', but it is sold and goes out [immediately]. But if it is legally sold, let it remain in his possession until after the year of the Jubilee, and after the Jubilee let him enjoy the [two] years of the crops, and thereupon return it; for was it not taught: If he enjoyed it one year before the Jubilee, one lets him complete [the two years by] one year after the Jubilee? — There he has started¹⁰ enjoying it, but here he has not started to enjoy it.¹¹

R. 'Anan said: I heard from Mar Samuel two things; one in relation to this point, and the other in relation to the statement: If one sells his slave to an idolater or outside the Land [of Israel], he goes out free. In one case [he said] the purchase money is returned,¹² and in the other it is not returned, and I do not know which is which. Said R. Joseph: Let us see. It was taught in a Baraitha: If one sells his slave outside the Land [of Israel], he goes out free, and he requires a document of manumission from his second master. Now since he refers to the second as his master, it is evident that the purchase money is not returned, and it is therefore here that Samuel said it is not sold and the purchase money is returned.

(1) Lev. XXV, 15.

(2) I.e., against the wish of the buyer.

(3) He did not fulfil the obligation to buy them for a minimum period of two years. thus disregarding the positive commandment to that effect.

(4) V. Glos.

(5) V. Kid. 4a.

(6) After the daughter has once been sold for servitude, she cannot be sold for servitude again, but the field could be sold after the year of Jubilee.

(7) Lev. XXV, 15.

(9) Contra Rab.

(10) Lit., 'he descended (into the field)'.

(11) Having started before the Jubilee, lawfully.

(12) To the purchaser.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 30a

And R. 'Anan?¹ — As to the Baraitha, he had not heard it and as far as Samuel's [teaching] is concerned, whence [the evidence that it means] that it is not sold and the money is returned? Perhaps [it means]: 'It is not sold and the money is [to be considered] a gift'; just as is the case of one who betroths his sister; for it was stated: If one betroths his sister, Rab said the [betrothal] money is to be returned, and Samuel holds that the money is regarded as a gift!²

Abaye said to R. Joseph: Why do you find it proper that we penalize the purchaser. let us penalize the seller!³ — He answered: 'Not the mouse has stolen, the hole has stolen. But if there were no mouse, whence would the hole [have its theft]? — It is reasonable that we penalize him with whom the forbidden stuff is [found].⁴

IF THERE WAS A YEAR OF BLIGHT, etc. If it is included in the reckoning even when he left it fallow [for a year], is it necessary to state that [it is included] if he broke the ground?⁵ — It is necessary. For you might have thought: We say to him,⁶ pay him the money [which the breaking of the ground cost] and he will go;⁷ therefore we are informed [that we do not say so].

R. ELEAZAR SAID: IF HE SOLD IT TO HIM, etc. It was taught: R. Eleazar said, Whence do we know that if he sold him [the field] before the New Year whilst it was full of fruit, that he cannot say to him: 'Leave it before me as I have left it before you',⁸ therefore it is said: 'According to the number of years of the crops he shall sell unto thee', i.e., it may happen that a man enjoys three crops in two years.⁹

MISHNAH. IF HE SOLD IT TO THE FIRST FOR ONE HUNDRED [DENARS]. AND THE FIRST SOLD IT TO THE SECOND FOR TWO HUNDRED, THEN HE NEED RECKON ONLY WITH THE FIRST,¹⁰ FOR IT IS WRITTEN: [THEN LET HIM COUNT THE SALE THEREOF] . . . UNTO THE MAN TO WHOM HE SOLD IT.¹¹ IF HE SOLD IT TO THE FIRST FOR TWO HUNDRED, AND THE FIRST SOLD IT TO THE SECOND FOR A HUNDRED, THEN HE NEED RECKON ONLY WITH THE SECOND, FOR IT IS SAID: THEN LET HIM COUNT THE YEARS OF THE SALE THEREOF AND RESTORE THE OVERPLUS UNTO THE MAN TO WHOM HE SOLD IT.¹¹ I.E., UNTO THE MAN WHO IS IN POSSESSION THEREOF.¹² ONE MAY NOT SELL A DISTANT FIELD IN ORDER TO REDEEM A NEARER ONE, NOR REDEEM A POOR FIELD IN ORDER TO REDEEM ONE THAT IS GOOD. NOR BORROW [MONEY] IN ORDER TO REDEEM IT, NOR REDEEM IT BY HALVES, BUT IN THE CASE OF OBJECTS CONSECRATED ALL THESE THINGS ARE PERMITTED. IN THIS RESPECT MORE STRINGENCY ATTACHES TO COMMON PROPERTY THAN TO CONSECRATED OBJECTS.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: If he sold it to the first one for one hundred, and the first sold it to the second for two hundred, whence do we know that he need reckon but With the first? There fore it is said: 'Unto the man to whom he sold it'. If he sold it to the first for two hundred, and the first sold it to the second for a hundred, whence do we know that he need reckon but with the second? Therefore it is said: 'Unto the man' in whose possession it is. These are the words of Rabbi. R. Dosethai b. Judah said: If he sold it to him for one hundred and he improved it so that it[s value] amounted now to two hundred, whence, do we know that he need reckon it only as worth one hundred? Therefore it is said: 'Let him restore the overplus', i.e., the overplus which is left in his hand. If he sold it to him for two hundred and it depreciated and is worth now only one hundred, whence do we know that he need reckon it only as worth one hundred? Therefore it is said, 'Let him restore the overplus', i.e., the overplus that is in the soil.¹³ What is the practical difference between these two [authorities]?¹⁴ — If it was more valuable, then became less valuable, then more valuable again.¹⁵ But whence do we know that [the counting] is in the direction of leniency.¹⁶ Perhaps it is to be on the side of stringency? — Do not think so! For we infer it from 'redemption' [written here]¹⁷ and 'redemption' [written] in connection with the Hebrew slave.¹⁸ But whence do we know it there? For it was taught: If he was sold for a hundred and appreciated in value and stood at two hundred, whence do we know that he is assessed only at one hundred?¹⁹ Therefore it is said: [He shall give back the price of his redemption] out of the money that he was bought for.²⁰ If he was sold for two hundred and depreciated and stood at a hundred, whence do we know that he is assessed only at a hundred? Therefore it is said: According unto his years shall he give back the price of his redemption.²¹ Now I know only for the case of a slave sold to an idolater that since he may be redeemed [by his own kinsmen] his [the slave's] hand is uppermost. Whence do I know it for the case of one who is sold to an Israelite? Therefore it is said: 'A hired servant', 'a hired servant',²² for the purpose of a gezerah shawah.

Abaye said:

- (1) What was his doubt?
- (2) Everyone knows that he cannot betroth his sister, hence his form of betrothal was a humorous manner of giving her a gift. V. Kid. 46b.
- (3) The question refers to the case of a man who sold his slave outside Palestine. Why punish the purchaser? Why not punish the seller by decreeing that he should return the money to the would-be purchaser and imposing upon the seller the duty of manumitting him?
- (4) The penalty is inflicted where the corpus delicti, here the unlawfully sold slave, is to be found.
- (5) Where he made some use of the land.
- (6) To the seller.
- (7) Return you the field.
- (8) When I sold it to you.
- (9) 'Years of crops' suggests years with all their crops, no matter how many. If two crops' only were intended, Scripture would have chosen another expression, such as 'number of years' or 'number of crops'.
- (10) The field is at present in the possession of the second, from whom its original owner desires to redeem it. The latter need reckon only according to the purchase money he himself received from the first buyer. From that sum he would deduct the amounts due for the years during which the field was in the buyer's possession.
- (11) Lev. XXV, 27.
- (12) 'Ish' here is interpreted as ba'al, 'owner', 'master', i.e., whosoever is now in possession. 'To whom he sold it' means then to whom the first purchaser sold it. These interpretations in both instances favour the owner.
- (13) We interpret the law in a manner favourable to the owner who wishes to redeem it.
- (14) Since both Rabbi and R. Judah favour the redeeming owner.
- (15) Where it was first sold, say, for two hundred and then resold for one hundred and it appreciated again to two hundred in the possession of the second buyer. According to Rabbi the reckoning is on the basis of one hundred, the price paid by the second buyer, who is the man who is in possession. But on the view of R. Dosethai, the reckoning is on the basis of two hundred.
- (16) I.e., more favourable to the owner who wishes to redeem it.
- (17) Lev. XXV, 26.
- (18) Ibid. 51.
- (19) For the purpose of redemption.
- (20) Ibid. 51.
- (21) Lev. XXV, 52.
- (22) Ibid. 40 (with reference to a slave sold to a Jew), and ibid. 50 with reference to one sold to a heathen.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 30b

Behold I am like Ben 'Azzai in the streets of Tiberias!¹ One of the Rabbis said to Abaye: Since these verses may be interpreted both leniently and stringently. Why do you interpret them leniently, perhaps say they should be interpreted stringently?² — Let not that enter your mind, since the All Merciful was lenient to him. For it was taught: Because he fareth well with thee,³ i.e., he must be with [like] thee in food, with thee in drink, that thou shouldst not eat fine bread and he coarse bread, thou drink old wine and he drink new wine, thou sleep on a soft bed and he on straw. Hence it was said: Whosoever buys a Hebrew slave almost buys a master of himself. But on the contrary, let us deal more stringently with him, in accordance with what R. Jose b. Hanina said. For R. Jose b. Hanina said: Come and see how hard is the very dust⁴ of [violating the laws of] the seventh year. For a man who sells and buys the produce of the seventh year ultimately must sell his movable property, as it is said: In this year of Jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession;⁵ and it is said: And if thou sell aught unto thy neighbour. or buy of thy neighbour's hand,⁶ i.e., something which is acquired from hand to hand.⁷ If he does not perceive this,⁸ he eventually must sell his fields, as it is said: If thy brother be waxen poor, and sell some of his possessions.⁹ He has no opportunity [of amending his ways]¹⁰ until he sells his house, as is added: And if a man sell a dwelling-house in a walled city.¹¹ Why state there: 'If he does not perceive'. and here 'He has no opportunity'? — This is in accord with R. Huna, for R. Huna said: Once a man has committed a transgression and repeated it, it is permitted to him. 'Permitted to him', how could you think so? Say, rather, it becomes as permitted to him.¹² It is not brought home to him¹⁰ until he sells his daughter, as it is said: And if a man sell his daughter to be a maidservant,¹³ and although the [sale of] the daughter is not mentioned in this section, he teaches us that a man should rather sell his daughter than borrow on usury; for in the former case she goes on making deductions [and goes out free], whereas here [the debt] becomes ever larger.¹⁴

It is not brought home to him until he sells himself, as it is said: And if thy brother be waxen poor with thee and sell himself to thee.¹⁵ And not even 'unto thee', but unto a proselyte, as it is said: Unto the proselyte,¹⁶ and not even to a proselyte of righteousness, but to a resident alien, as it is said: Or unto the resident alien.¹⁷ 'A prose lyte's family', i.e., an idolater. When it is said, 'to the stock', it means one who sells himself to become a servant to an idol itself! — He replied: But Scripture restores him [to his brethren's regard]. For the School of R. Ishmael taught: Since this one went and sold himself to the service of idol worship, [I might have said] let us cast a stone after the fallen?¹⁸ Therefore it is said: After that he is sold, he shall be redeemed, one of his brethren shall redeem him.¹⁹ But perhaps 'he shall be redeemed' means, he shall not be absorbed by the idolaters, but as far as redemption is concerned, we should indeed deal stringently with him? — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: It is written, If there be yet increases in the years,²⁰ and if there remain but little in the years:²¹ are there then prolonged years and shortened years?²² But [the meaning is this]. If his value increased, [then his redemption shall be paid] Out of the money that he was bought for;²³ and if his value decreased [the basis of the redemption shall be] According unto his [remaining] years! But perhaps [the meaning is this]: If he served two years, with four remaining, let him repay him for four years 'out of the money that he was bought for'; while if he served four years, with two remaining, let him repay two years 'according unto his years'?²⁴ — If that were the meaning, let Scripture write: 'If there be yet [shanim] many years'. Why 'in years [he-shanim]'? [It means:] If his value increased [in these] years [then his redemption shall be paid] 'out of the money that he was bought for'; and if his value decreased, in [these] years [the basis of the redemption shall be] 'according unto his [remaining] years'. R. Joseph said: R. Nahman interpreted these verses [with authority] as of Sinai.

HE MAY NOT SELL A DISTANT FIELD etc. Whence do we know these things? For our Rabbis taught: And his hand shall reach,²⁵ i.e., his own hand, [implying] that he must not borrow to redeem; 'and find' excludes that which he possessed already. He must not sell a remote [field] to redeem a nearer one; nor a bad one to redeem a good one; 'sufficient means to redeem it', i.e., he may redeem it [wholly], but not by halves. Shall we say that [the phrase] 'and he find' means that which is here already? Against this I will raise a contradiction: 'and findeth',²⁶ that excludes the case where he [the victim] brought himself [within the range of the missile]. Hence R. Eliezer said: If after the stone had left his hand the other put out his head and received it [the blow], he [the former] is free.²⁷ This shows that 'he find' refers to something that had been [here already before]? — Raba replied: [Here] in our case [we consider] the context of Scripture, and there, too, [we consider] the context of Scripture. Here it corresponds to 'and his hand reaches'; just as 'his hand reaches' means only now, thus also 'and find' means just now. And there, too, 'and findeth' corresponds to 'the forest': just as the forest was here before, so does 'and findeth' means that he [the neighbour] was here already before.

IN THE CASE OF OBJECTS CONSECRATED, etc. Whence do we know these things? — Because our Rabbis taught: And if he [that sanctified the field] will indeed redeem it:²⁸ that teaches that he can borrow and redeem and redeem by halves. Said R. Simeon: What is the reason? Because we find in the case of one who sells a field of possession that [since] his privilege is strengthened in that if the Jubilee arrives and it has not been redeemed it reverts to the owner, his rights are weakened in [so far] that he cannot borrow and redeem, or redeem by halves, whereas he who consecrates a field of possession, since his rights are weakened in that if the Jubilee comes and it is not redeemed, it goes out to the priests, therefore his privilege is strengthened, in [so far] that he may borrow and redeem as well as redeem by halves.

- (1) In an expansive mood he challenged all comers. Ben 'Azzai was famous for his scholarship. and for his eagerness to be challenged on any point of Jewish law. Abaye does not suggest that he is as complacent in his judgment on all other Sages as Ben 'Azzai, but that like the latter he is eager to hear questions and to answer them. Cf. Bek. 58a.

A real transgression of the law of the seventh year would consist of his storing up fruit for speculation; 'dust' suggests 'shade', something akin to, here, an occupation indirectly related to those forbidden in the seventh year. Selling its produce is such indirect transgression. nevertheless the consequences are as serious as described (R. Gershom).

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 31a

One [Baraita] taught: 'He may not borrow and redeem. and may not redeem by halves'? — This is no difficulty: one is in accord with the Rabbis. the other with R. Simeon.¹

MISHNAH. IF ONE SOLD A HOUSE AMONG THE HOUSES IN A WALLED CITY. HE MAY REDEEM IT AT ONCE AND AT ANY TIME DURING TWELVE MONTHS.² IT IS A KIND OF [RECEIVING] INTEREST, AND YET NOT INTEREST.³ IF THE SELLER DIED, HIS SON MAY REDEEM IT. IF THE PURCHASER DIED, IT MAY BE REDEEMED FROM HIS SON. ONE CAN RECKON THE YEAR ONLY FROM THE TIME THAT HE SOLD IT, AS IT IS SAID: WITHIN THE SPACE OF A . . . YEAR.⁴ SINCE IT SAYS: A 'FULL' [YEAR] THE INTERCALARY MONTH IS INCLUDED THEREIN.⁵ RABBI SAYS: HE IS ALLOWED A YEAR AND ITS INTERCALARY [DAYS].⁶ IF THE [LAST] DAY OF THE TWELVE MONTHS HAS ARRIVED AND IT WAS NOT REDEEMED. IT BECOMES HIS ABIDING [POSSESSION], NO MATTER WHETHER HE BOUGHT IT OR RECEIVED IT AS A GIFT, AS IT IS SAID: IN PERPETUITY.⁷

GEMARA. Our Mishnah will not be in accord with Rabbi, for it was taught: Rabbi said, Yamim⁸ [days] that means no less than two days! How do the Rabbis explain 'yamim'? — They need it for [the indication]: From the day to the day.⁹ And whence does Rabbi know the rule 'from the day to the day'? — He derives it from: 'Within a whole year after it is sold'. And the Rabbis? — This [verse] is needed to teach that one considers only the year after his sale and not the universal [calendar] year, and the word yamim indicates that twenty-four astronomical hours are meant.¹⁰ For if [we had only] 'within a whole year after it is sold' [to go by], one might have assumed that it must be [a full year] from day to day, but need not be from [exact] hour to [exact] hour, therefore the Divine Law wrote: 'Yamim'. Whence does Rabbi know that it must be from 'hour to hour'? — He derives that from 'full' [year]. And the Rabbis? — That is necessary for [the inclusion of] its intercalary [days]. But Rabbi, too, requires that for its intercalary [days]? — That indeed is so, but that [the year must be full] from day to day and from hour to hour he derives from: 'Within a whole year after it is sold'.

IT IS A KIND OF INTEREST, etc. But was it not taught: This is real interest, except that the Torah has permitted it [in this case]? — R. Johanan said: This is no difficulty: One [teaching] is in accord with R. Judah, the other with the Sages. For it was taught: If one had a creditor's claim of one maneh against his neighbour and the latter pledged unto him the sale of his field,¹¹ then, if the seller has the usufruct, it is permitted, but if the purchaser has the usufruct, it is forbidden.¹² R. Judah says: Even if the purchaser has the usufruct, it is permitted.¹³ Said R. Judah; It happened with Boethus b. Zunin that with the approval of R. Eleazar b. Azariah he pledged his field's sale, and the purchaser had the usufruct. They said to him, [Would you adduce] evidence from there? The seller had the usufruct, not the purchaser. Wherein do they differ? — They differ with respect to one-sided usury.¹⁴ The first Tanna holds one-sided usury to be forbidden, whilst R. Judah is of the opinion that one-sided usury is permitted

(1) R. Simeon holds that any impairment of rights of any person in one direction must have as its compensating aspect a strengthening of his rights in another direction. He finds this principle verified not only in the case of him who sells his field of possession, or his field acquired by purchase, but also in the case of one who sells a house in the walled city (v. Tosaf.). The Rabbis, however, dispute his view. V. Kid. Sonc. ed., p. 97 n. 3.

(2) By paying to the purchaser the full sum of the sale, Lev. XXV, 29.

(3) Since the purchaser may inhabit the house free of rent. For, on redelivering it, the owner must refund the exact sum of the purchase without any deduction for rent. Yet it is not interest, for if the owner does not exercise his right of redemption, the buyer has inhabited what is his house in perpetuity.

(4) Lev. XXV, 30.

(5) I.e., he need not redeem before thirteen months.

(6) The first Tanna holds 'a full year' to mean a complete calendar year up to the very same day of the year to come, hence the intercalary month is included. Rabbi, however, holds 'a full year' to be the solar year, consisting of 365 days, which is composed of the 354 days of the lunar year of the Jewish calendar, plus the eleven days difference between the lunar and the solar year.

(7) Lev. XXV, 30. The present owner acquires it in perpetuity, independent of the way he acquired it.

(8) Ibid. 29. 'Yamim', lit., 'days'. (E.V. 'a full year'). On Rabbi's view the purchaser would have had it for at least two days before the seller could redeem it. Our Mishnah, however, taught that redemption is permitted without any delay.

(9) From e.g., the tenth of Adar to the tenth of Adar next year, and not as one might have thought, from the tenth of Adar to the end of the calendar year. It is the whole year after the purchase that the Torah stipulates.

(10) Not only the day, but the hour. It would allow the seller, who had sold it at 5 p.m. on Adar 10th to re-purchase it up to that very hour, the hour included.

(11) Saying, 'If I do not repay a certain date the field is sold unto you'.

(12) Because if he repays the debt, the usufruct would rank as interest for the money advanced.

(13) Because it is not certain that the field will be redeemed, in which case there is no usury. Hence it is regarded as none-sided interest which is permitted.

(14) V. previous note.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 31b

. Raba said: All agree that one-sided usury is forbidden, here they are disputing [the principle of] usury [received] on condition that it shall be returned,¹ one holding it to be forbidden, the other to be permitted.

IF THE SELLER DIED, HIS SON MAY REDEEM IT. But that is self-evident? — You might have said: The Divine Law said, And if a man sell a dwelling house,² and this one [the son] did not sell it, therefore we are informed, then he may redeem it,² which means any way.

IF THE PURCHASER DIED, IT MAY BE REDEEMED FROM [THE HAND OF] HIS SON. But that is self-evident? — You might have said: The Divine Law said, To him that bought it,³ but this one did not buy it, therefore we are informed, 'then he may redeem it', which means anyway.

ONE CAN RECKON THE YEAR ONLY FROM THE TIME THAT HE SOLD IT, etc. Our Rabbis taught: [It Is written:] 'year';⁴ I would not know whether this year is to be counted to the first or the second [purchaser], but as it says, 'with the space of a full year',⁵ it must mean to the first. Whose abiding [possession] does it become? — R. Eleazar said: It becomes the abiding possession of the first one. R. Johanan said: It becomes the abiding possession of the second. This is quite right according to R. Eleazar, since we reckon also according to him, but what is the reason for R. Johanan's view? — R. Abba b. Memel said: What did the first sell to the second? All the rights that may accrue to him therefrom.

R. Abba b. Memel said: If one sold two houses in a walled city, one on the fifteenth day of the first Adar, and the other on the first day of the second Adar, then as soon as the first day of Adar in the next year has arrived, the year is complete for the sale of the first day of the second Adar, but for the sale of the fifteenth of Adar the year does not become complete before the fifteenth Adar in the next year. Rabina demurred: But could he not say unto him: I lighted a fire before you!⁶ — [That would not be effective] because he could reply: You have chosen the intercalated month!⁷

Furthermore said R. Abba b. Memel: If two lambs were born to one,⁸ one on the fifteenth of the first Adar, and the other on the first of the second Adar, then the one born on the first of the second Adar has its year completed as soon as the first day of Adar of the next year has arrived, whereas to the one born on the fifteenth day of the first Adar the year is not complete before the fifteenth day of Adar in the next year. Rabina demurred: But [the first] could say to the [second] other: I have eaten grass before you! [That would not be effective] because it could reply: You have come down [to life] in the intercalated month, I have not arrived in the intercalated month! For what purpose was that second [case] taught? Is it not identical with the first? — You might have said: There [the reason for the change] is that it is written: ‘a full [year]’, but here, in connection with which ‘full’ is not written, it does not apply; therefore we are informed that there is an inference from the analogous ‘year’, ‘year’.⁹

SINCE IT SAYS A ‘FULL’ [YEAR], etc. RABBI SAYS, HE IS ALLOWED A YEAR AND ITS INTERCALARY [DAYS]. Our Rabbis taught: [It is written], ‘a full year’: Rabbi Says. He counts three hundred and sixty-five days according to the number of days in the solar year; but the Sages say: He counts twelve months from day to day, and if the year is intercalated it is intercalated to his advantage!

IF THE [LAST] DAY OF THE TWELVE MONTHS HAS ARRIVED AND IT WAS NOT REDEEMED, etc. Our Rabbis taught: ‘La-zemithuth’,¹⁰ i.e., permanently. Another explanation: La-zemithuth’. that includes the gift. What is the reason? — [Since instead of] zamith [it says] zemithuth.¹¹ — The scholars said before R. Papa: According to whom is this? [Evidently] not in accord with R. Meir; for if according to R. Meir, surely he said: ‘A gift is not treated like a sale’!¹² — R. Papa answered: You may even say that it is in accord with R. Meir, but here it is different. because the Divine Law, in saying ‘la-zemithuth’ has included [the field by gift]. The scholars said to R. Papa, or as some say. R. Huna the son of R. Joshua said to R. Papa: But in connection with the Jubilee touching which it is said: Ye shall return¹³ includes the gift. yet R. Meir does not include [a gift]?¹⁴ — Hence indeed it is not in accord with R. Meir.

Our Rabbis taught: If one consecrated a house among the houses In a walled city, he may redeem it at once, and redeem it any time in the future. If someone else redeemed it from the Sanctuary. and the [last] day of the twelve months¹⁵ has arrived and the [original owner] did not redeem it [from him who redeemed it] then it is his in perpetuity. Whence do we know this? — Said Samuel: Because Scripture said: To him that bought it, i.e., even out of the possession of the Sanctuary. But let it become the permanent possession of the Sanctuary? — Scripture said: Throughout his generations;¹⁶ that excludes the Sanctuary which has no generations.¹⁷ Why [is it written]: It shall not go out in the Jubilee?¹⁸ — Said R. Safra: That was necessary only for the case of one who sold a house among the houses in a walled city, and the Jubilee arrived within the [first] year. One might have assumed: It shall go out on the Jubilee, therefore we were taught: ‘It shall not go out in the Jubilee’.

MISHNAH. BEFORETIME HE [THE BUYER] USED TO HIDE HIMSELF ON THE LAST DAY OF THE TWELVE MONTHS, SO THAT [THE HOUSE] MIGHT BECOME HIS PERMANENT [POSSESSION]. BUT HILLEL ORDAINED THAT HE [THAT SOLD IT] COULD DEPOSIT HIS MONEY IN A CHAMBER¹⁹ AND BREAK DOWN THE DOOR AND ENTER, AND THAT THE OTHER, WHENEVER HE WANTED, MIGHT COME AND TAKE HIS MONEY.

GEMARA. Raba said: [One may deduce] from the ordinance of Hillel that [if a husband said to his wife]: Here is thy bill of divorce on condition that you give me two hundred zuz, and she gave it to him, then she is divorced if she did so with his consent; but if against his will, she is not divorced.

(1) The case is one in which the purchaser undertakes that if the seller redeems the field within three years, he would return to him the value of the usufruct. The Rabbis hold even this is forbidden, for when he enjoys the usufruct it is actually interest on money lent, whilst R. Judah said: Since by this arrangement the infringement of usury is precluded. V. B.M. Sonc. ed., p. 376. n. 9.

(2) Lev. XXV, 29.

(3) Ibid. 30.

(4) Ibid. 29.

- (5) Lit., 'until a full year has been completed for him'.
- (6) I.e., I have kindled fire and used the house before you! Why should it become your abiding possession before the one I used became mine?
- (7) Having chosen that month, you indicated that you are satisfied to abide by the regulations of the intercalated year. hence your year is completed later.
- (8) These lambs, being firstlings, must be offered up before they are one year old.
- (9) Lev. XXV. 30. (with reference to a dwelling house) and Deut. XV, 20 (with reference to firstlings).
- (10) E.V. 'In perpetuity'. Lev. XXV, 30.
- (11) The shorter form would have been sufficient. The redundancy of the longer form includes something, hence possession by gift, to which the same rule applies as does to possession by purchase.
- (12) V. Bek. 52b.
- (13) Lev. XXV, 10.
- (14) In the law of the Jubilee.
- (15) After redeeming it from the Sanctuary.
- (16) Lev. XXV, 30.
- (17) I.e., offspring.
- (18) Ibid. This is apparently superfluous in view of the preceding 'in perpetuity'.
- (19) What chamber? Not, as most commentators have it, in the Sanctuary. No house in Jerusalem could fall to the purchaser, and for an inhabitant of the province the procedure of bringing that money to Jerusalem on the particular day might be very burdensome. R. Gershom suggests it was a chamber constructed ad hoc, in any court of justice, in the city wherein the case arose.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 32a

For, since it was necessary for Hillel to ordain that [in this case] giving against [the recipient's will] is considered valid giving, the inference is that elsewhere such giving is not considered valid giving. To this R. Papa, or as others say, R. Shimi b. Ashi, demurred: But perhaps Hillel had to ordain this only in his absence, but in his presence it would be considered a valid gift both with his consent or without it? Others reported: Raba said, From the ordinance of Hillel [one can infer that if a husband said]: Here is your bill of divorce on condition that you give me two hundred zuz, and she thereupon gave them to him, whether that was given with his consent or against his will, it is a valid gift. For Hillel's ordinance was necessary in the case of the recipient's absence; but where he was present, whether [given] with his consent or against his will, the gift is valid. To this R. Papa, or as some say, R. Shimi b. Ashi, demurred: But perhaps whether it was in his presence or absence, it is [valid] only [if it was given] with his consent, but not if without his consent, and as to Hillel, he ordained what was required [by the circumstances of the case].¹

MISHNAH. WHATSOEVER IS WITHIN THE [CITY] WALL IS REGARDED AS THE DWELLING HOUSES IN A WALLED CITY, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF FIELDS. R. MEIR SAYS: ALSO FIELDS. IF A HOUSE IS BUILT INTO THE WALL, R. JUDAH SAYS: IT IS NOT CONSIDERED A HOUSE WITHIN A WALLED CITY. R. SIMEON SAYS: ITS OUTER WALL IS REGARDED AS ITS [CITY] WALL.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: [It is written] 'house',² hence I know only about a house, whence [do I learn] to include the building for the oil-press, bath-houses, towers, dove-cotes, pits, trenches and caves? Therefore the text states: that is in the city.³ One might have assumed that fields are also included, therefore it is said: 'house'. So R. Judah. R. Meir says, 'house', hence I know only about a house. Whence [do I learn] to include the buildings for the oil-press, bath-houses, towers, dove-cotes, pits, trenches and caves, and also fields? Therefore the text states: 'that is in the city'. But surely it is written: 'house'? — R. Hisda in the name of R. Kattina said: The practical difference between them applies in the case of a sand-mound and a glen.⁴ Thus also was it taught: Concerning a sand-mound and a glen. R. Meir said: They are as houses, R. Judah: They are as fields.

IF A HOUSE IS BUILT INTO THE WALL, R. JUDAH SAYS: IT IS NOT CONSIDERED A HOUSE WITHIN THE WALLED CITY, etc. R. Johanan said: And both expound the same Scriptural verse: Then she let them down by a court through the window; for her house was upon the side of the wall, and she dwelt upon the wall.⁵ R. Simeon [explains it] according to the simple meaning of the text,⁶ whilst R. Judah holds: She dwelt upon the wall, not in a walled city.

MISHNAH. [A HOUSE WITHIN] A CITY WHOSE HOUSEROOFS⁷ FORM ITS WALL, OR THAT WAS NOT ENCOMPASSED BY A WALL IN⁸ THE DAYS OF JOSHUA B. NUN, IS NOT CONSIDERED A DWELLING HOUSE IN A WALLED CITY. [A HOUSE IN ANY OF] THE FOLLOWING IS ACCOUNTED A HOUSE IN A WALLED CITY: [THOSE IN A CITY] OF NO LESS THAN THREE COURTYARDS, HAVING TWO HOUSES EACH, WHICH HAVE BEEN ENCOMPASSED BY A WALL IN THE DAYS OF JOSHUA B. NUN, SUCH AS THE OLD CASTLE OF SEPPHORIS,⁹ THE FORT OF GUSH-HALAB.¹⁰ OLD YODPAT,¹¹ GAMALA,¹² GADUD,¹³ HADID,¹⁴ ONO,¹⁵ JERUSALEM AND THE LIKE.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: [It is written,] 'a wall',¹⁶ but not a line formed by joining roofs; round about,¹⁷ that excludes Tiberias whose wall is the lake. R. Eliezer b. Jose says: asher lo homah,¹⁸ even though it has none now, as long as it had one before.

[A HOUSE IN ANY OF] THE FOLLOWING IS ACCOUNTED IN WALLED CITIES etc. It was taught: Gamala was in Galilee, Gadud in Transjordan, Hadid, Ono and Jerusalem in Judaea. What does he mean to say?¹⁹

'that is in the walled city'); the kethib is spelt כִּשׁ (not), meaning lit., 'which has no wall' and the kere, כִּי (to it), i.e., 'which has a wall to it', hence the combination of the meanings: Even if it has no wall now, as long as it had one in the long ago it is, for the purposes of these laws, considered a walled city.

(19) Surely not that there were no walled cities in Galilee save Gamala, or in Transjordan save Gadud!

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 32b

Abaye said: This is what he means, [All the cities] up to Gamala in Galilee. up to Gadud in Transjordan, and Hadid, Ono and Jerusalem in Judaea.¹ Raba said: Gamala in Galilee [is mentioned so as] to exclude [any city called] Gamala in other countries; Gadud in Transjordan to exclude Gadud in any other countries; but with regard to the others, since there are none of the same name [like them], no [statement as to their location] was necessary.

But is [any house in] Jerusalem liable to become irredeemable? Was it not taught: Ten special regulations were applied to Jerusalem: first, that a house sold there should not be liable to become irredeemable [etc.]. R. Johanan said: [The Mishnah means] like Jerusalem, that was encompassed by a wall in the days of Joshua b. Nun, [yet] not like Jerusalem,² for in Jerusalem no house sold there was liable to become irredeemable, but here³ a house sold is liable to become irredeemable. R. Ashi said: Did not R. Joseph say. There were two [different cities called] Kadesh? Thus also were there two [cities called] Jerusalem.⁴

It was taught: R. Ishmael b. Jose said: Why did the Sages enumerate those [in the Mishnah]? Because when the exiles [from Babylon] went up [to Palestine] they found these [cities] and sanctified them, but former [cities] lost [their holiness] as the sanctity of the land was lost. He holds, therefore, that as to the first consecration, he⁵ consecrated it only for the time being, but not for the future. I will raise a question of contradiction against this: R. Ishmael b. Jose said: Were there only these [mentioned in the Mishnah], surely it has been said: Three score cities, all the region of Argob . . . all these were fortified cities?⁶ Why then did the Sages enumerate but these? Because when the exiles came up they found these and consecrated them anew. ('And consecrated them'! Surely we said above that it was not necessary to consecrate them anew? — Rather [read]: 'They found those and enumerated them'.) And not only these [are walled cities], but any one concerning which you have a tradition from your fathers that it was encompassed by a wall since the days of Joshua b. Nun, then all these laws apply to it, because as to the first consecration, he consecrated it not only for the time being, but for the future?⁷ — If you like, say: There were two Tannaim in conflict about the view of R. Ishmael. Or, if you like, say: One of them was R. Eleazar b. Jose, for it was taught: R. Eleazar b. Jose said, ‘Asher lo homah’, even though it is not encompassed by one to-day, as long as it was walled before.⁸ What is the reason of the one who holds: ‘As to the first consecration, he consecrated it only for the time being, but not for the future’? — Because it is written: And all the congregation of them that were come back out of the captivity made booths, and dwelt in the booths; for since the days of Joshua the son of Nun had not the children of Israel done so. And there was very great gladness.⁹ Is it possible that when David came, they made no booths, [when Solomon came, they did not make booths] until Ezra came?¹⁰ Rather, he compares their arrival in the days of Ezra to their arrival in the days of Joshua: just as at their arrival in the days of Joshua they counted the years of release and the Jubilees, and consecrated cities encompassed by walls, thus also at their arrival in the days of Ezra they counted the years of release and the Jubilees. and consecrated walled cities.¹¹ And it says also: And the Lord thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it;¹² thus comparing your possession thereof with that of your fathers: just as your forefathers’ possession thereof brought about a renewal of all these things, so shall your possession thereof bring about a renewal of all these things.

And the other?¹³ — He [Ezra] had prayed for mercy because of the passion for idolatry and he removed it, and his merit then shielded them even as the booth. That is why Scripture reproved Joshua, for in all other passages it is spelt: Jehoshua, but here, Joshua.¹⁴ It was quite right that Moses did not pray for mercy, because the virtue [power] of the Holy Land was absent [to support his plea], but why did Joshua, who had the power of the Holy Land [to assist him], fail to pray for mercy?¹⁵ But it is written: ‘which thy fathers possessed and thou shalt possess it’?¹⁶ — This is what is meant: Since they fathers possessed it, you also possess it.¹⁷

But did they count the years of release and Jubilees [after the return from Babylon]? If even after the tribe of Reuben, the tribe of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh went into exile, the Jubilees were abolished, should Ezra in connection with whom it is said: The whole congregation together was forty and two thousand three hundred and three score,¹⁸ have counted them? For it was taught: When the tribe of Reuben, the tribe of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh went into exile, the Jubilees were abolished as it is said: And ye shall proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof,¹⁹ i.e., [only] at the time when all the inhabitants thereof dwell upon it, but not at the time when some of them are exiled. One might have assumed that if they were there, but intermingled, the tribe of Benjamin with that of Judah and the tribe of Judah with that of Benjamin, that even the [laws of the] Jubilee should apply, therefore it is said: ‘unto all the inhabitants thereof’, which means, only at the time when its inhabitants are there as [where] they ought to be, but not when they are intermingled! — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: They counted the Jubilees to keep the years of release holy.²⁰ [

(1) All the cities up to Gamala etc. were encompassed with walls in the days of Joshua, and have no less than three courtyards of two houses each.

(2) He compares them to Jerusalem which was a walled city in the days of Joshua, but they are not as Jerusalem, for in that city no house sold could become irredeemable, Jerusalem belonging to all Israel.

(3) I.e., in the other places mentioned.

(4) Perhaps the distinction is made between the Greater Jerusalem and Jerusalem proper, as between New York City and Greater New York, the latter including very many and widely scattered communities. In Jerusalem proper no house could fall to the purchaser in perpetuity because of the seller's failure to redeem it within the year. But this restriction would have no validity in the expanded Greater Jerusalem, evidence as to which has of late been presented.

- (9) Neh. VIII, 17.
- (10) Inserted with Sh.Mek. The mentioning of David alone is insufficient, surely with Solomon, the Temple-builder, Sukkoth was celebrated, too.
- (11) The words For since the days of Joshua . . . had not . . . done so, do not refer to the booths but to the renewed formal rites of sanctification.
- (12) Deut. XXX, 5.
- (13) How does he who holds that he consecrated for all the future explain the passage from Nehemiah? 'Booths' here as symbolic meaning: they enjoyed the protection 'as of booths', because Ezra through his prayer had achieved the destruction of idolatrous tendencies among the people, and this achievement protected them. In this sense they 'had booths', when they returned.
- (14) For his failure to implore the Lord to remove the passion for idolatry from the heart of the people. Just as with Abram the enlargement of his name into 'Abraham' was an expression of divine approval, so did this diminution of Jehoshua into Joshua express divine disapproval. The reason for Joshua's failure to implore the Lord to remove the passion for idolatry was his assumption that he possessed the land in its pristine holiness, so that it would in itself help Israel to overcome its idolatrous tendencies.
- (15) Hence the implied censure of Joshua.
- (16) Which would show that renewed sanctification was required.
- (17) Without the need of a renewed sanctification.
- (18) Ezra II, 64.
- (19) Lev. XXV, 10.
- (20) Though the Jubilees had been abolished, years of release were still observed, consequently they had to count the Jubilees in order to be able to observe the years of release in their proper time. For the year of Jubilee was not included in the seven years cycle. They therefore had to know when the year of Jubilee arrives to be able to fix the next year of release, which was to be the eighth year following the year of Jubilee.

Talmud - Mas. Arachin 33a

That will be right in the view of the Rabbis who hold that the fiftieth year is not included,¹ but according to R. Judah who holds that the fiftieth year counts both ways,² why was that necessary [to count the Jubilees]? It would have been enough if the years of release alone had been counted! Hence [we must say], this is not in accord with the view of R. Judah.

But did they not count years of release and the Jubilees?³ Is it not written: At the end of seven years ye shall let go every man his brother that is a Hebrew, that hath been sold unto thee,⁴ and when we asked: Why 'at the end of seven years'? is it not written: He shall serve thee six years?⁵ and to this R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: Six for one who had been sold and seven for one who had his ear pierced?⁶ — This is written in connection with the threat of punishment, for the prophet said: 'Did you set them free [when you should have done so]?⁷ But it is said: They hearkened and let them go'⁸ — Rather, said R. Johanan: Jeremiah brought them back, and Josiah son of Amon ruled over them. Whence do we know that they returned? — Because it is written: For the seller shall not return to that which is sold.⁹ Now is it possible that the Jubilee was abolished already and the prophet would prophesy concerning it that it will be abolished? This therefore teaches that Jeremiah had brought them back. Whence do we know that Josiah ruled over them? — Because it is written: Then he said: What monument is that which I see? And the men of the city told him: It is the sepulchre of the man of God, who came from Judah, and proclaimed these things that thou hast done against the altar of Beth-El.¹⁰ Now what had Josiah to do at Beth-El?¹¹ Hence [we must say]. When Jeremiah had brought them back, Josiah ruled over them. R. Nahman b. Isaac derived it from here: Also, O Judah, there is a harvest [katsir] appointed for thee!¹²

MISHNAH. HOUSES IN COURTYARDS¹³ HAVE THE PRIVILEGES BOTH OF HOUSES IN A WALLED CITY. AND THE PRIVILEGES GIVEN TO FIELDS: THEY CAN BE REDEEMED AT ONCE, AND AT ANY TIME WITHIN THE TWELVE MONTHS LIKE HOUSES [IN A WALLED CITY], AND THEY GO OUT [TO THE OWNERS] IN THE YEAR OF JUBILEE OR [AT AN EARLIER TIME] BY [PAYMENT OF A] LESSENER PRICE¹⁴ LIKE FIELDS.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: [It is written:] [But the houses in courtyards which have no wall about them] shall be reckoned with the fields of the country:¹⁵ Scripture compares them with a field of possession: just as a field of possession goes out in the Jubilee and by payment of a lessened price, so do houses in courtyards go out in the year of Jubilee and by payment of a lessened price. [One might have assumed that similarly:] Just as a field of possession may not be redeemed before two years, thus may houses in courtyards not be redeemed before two years, therefore it is said: they may be redeemed,¹⁵ i.e., at once. Since you have given them the privileges of fields, as well as those of houses in walled cities, one might assume that they do not go out in the year of Jubilee, therefore it is said: And they shall go out in the Jubilee.¹⁵ What does he mean to say?¹⁶ — Said R. Huna: This was necessary [to be stated] only for the case of one who consecrates a house among the houses in a courtyard, and someone else redeemed it from the Sanctuary, and the year of Jubilee came in its second year.¹⁷ With what, now, will you compare it? If you compare it to a house in a walled city, it becomes the perpetual [possession] of the purchaser;¹⁸ if you compare it to a field of possession, it goes out to the priests. For this case it was necessary to say: ‘And they shall go out in the Jubilee’.¹⁹ To this R. Ze’ira demurred: Why speak about someone else redeeming it? Even if no-one redeemed it the same [law would apply]?²⁰ — Said Abaye: [This is not so] lest people say: Consecrated property goes out without redemption. Whence do we know that? — [It is derived] from a Levite: If a Levite whose privilege is strengthened where he sold property²¹ has his rights weakened where he consecrated an object,²² how much more shall an Israelite whose rights are weakened where he sold property, have his rights weakened with regard to an object which he consecrated himself! And whence do we know it there?²³ — Because it was taught: And if a man purchase of the Levites, then shall go out [in the Jubilee] that which was sold.²⁴ From this I might infer that [the law applies] even to his slaves, his movable property, and his documents, therefore it is said: Of a house [in the] city of his possession. What then does ‘that which was sold’ mean? What he sold goes out without payment, but no consecrated object goes out without payment but [requires] redemption. Now this²⁵ conflicts with R. Oshaia, for R. Oshaia said: All was included in the general statement: Then shall he add [the fifth part of] the money . . . and it shall be assured to him,²⁶ and when Scripture specified with regard to the field of possession: But the field when it goeth out in the Jubilee shall be holy unto the Lord,²⁷ [as a field devoted], [it teaches] only a field if redeemed goes out [from the one who redeemed it] to the priests, but all other [objects redeemed from the Sanctuary] remain where they are.²⁸

For what purpose [then]²⁹ is it said: ‘And they shall go out in the Jubilee’? — R. Papa said: This is necessary but for the case of one who sells a house among the houses in courtyards, and the Jubilee came in the second year. With what now will you compare it? If you compare it to a house in a walled city, it becomes the perpetual [possession] of the purchaser; if you compare it to a field of possession, it needs the completion [of two years in the purchaser's possession],³⁰ for this case it was necessary to state: ‘And they shall go out in the Jubilee’.

It was taught in accord with R. Huna and in refutation of R. Oshaia: If one consecrates a house among the houses in courtyards, then he may redeem it at once, and redeem it for ever. If someone else redeemed it from the Sanctuary, and the Jubilee arrived and it had not been redeemed [by the original owner] it reverts in the year of Jubilee to the owner.

MISHNAH. THE FOLLOWING ARE CONSIDERED HOUSES IN [OPEN] COURTYARDS: [A CITY IN WHICH ARE] TWO COURTYARDS, EACH HAVING TWO HOUSES, EVEN THOUGH THEY HAVE BEEN ENCOMPASSED BY A WALL SINCE THE DAYS OF JOSHUA B. NUN, ARE THEY ACCOUNTED HOUSES IN [OPEN] COURTYARDS.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: By mere implication of the text: 'Houses of the courtyards',¹ would I not know that they are not encompassed by walls, why then is it stated: 'Which have no wall around them'? [To teach us] that even if they were encompassed by a wall, they would still be considered as not being so encompassed.²

And how many [houses and courtyards must there be]? — 'Houses' [denotes] two; 'courtyards', also two: i.e., two courtyards having two houses each. But perhaps one house in one courtyard? Then the Divine Law should have written, [only] 'courtyards'. And if you were to say: If the Divine Law had written only courtyards', it would have been understood as a courtyard without a house, but such a one is called an enclosure [and not a courtyard].

MISHNAH. IF AN ISRAELITE INHERITED [A HOUSE IN A WALLED CITY OF THE LEVITES] FROM HIS MOTHER'S FATHER WHO WAS A LEVITE, HE CANNOT REDEEM IT ACCORDING TO THE ORDER HERE PRESCRIBED.³ ALSO IF A LEVITE INHERITED [A HOUSE IN A WALLED CITY OF ISRAELITES] FROM HIS MOTHER'S FATHER WHO WAS AN ISRAELITE, HE CANNOT REDEEM IT ACCORDING TO THE ORDER HERE PRESCRIBED, AS IT IS WRITTEN: FOR THE HOUSES OF THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES.⁴ [THIS ORDER THUS DOES NOT APPLY] UNLESS HE IS A LEVITE AND IN THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES. THESE ARE THE WORDS OF RABBI. THE SAGES SAY: THESE THINGS APPLY ONLY TO THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES.⁵

GEMARA. Then like whom [does he redeem]?⁶ Like a Levite? But then it teaches UNLESS HE IS A LEVITE AND IN THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES? — Say: HE CANNOT REDEEM IT except ACCORDING TO THE [FOREGOING] ORDER HERE PRESCRIBED, UNLESS HE IS A LEVITE AND IN THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES. THESE ARE THE WORDS OF RABBI. It is quite right as to [UNLESS HE IS IN] THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES, as it is written: For the houses of the Levites. But whence do we know that [these foregoing rules do not apply UNLESS HE IS] A LEVITE? — Because it was written: And if a man redeem of the Levites.⁷ It was [likewise] taught: 'And if a man redeem [re-purchases] of the Levites'. One might assume that a Levite could re-purchase from an Israelite, because the privileges of the former are strengthened, whereas the rights of the latter are weakened,⁸ but a Levite could not re-purchase from a Levite because the privileges of both are strengthened, therefore it is said: '[And if a man] redeem of the Levites'. 'Of the Levites, i.e., but not all the Levites, excluding a Levite who is a bastard or a nathin.⁹ The Sages, however, say: 'These things apply only to the cities of the Levites'. But we do not say that he must be a Levite.¹⁰

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT TURN A FIELD INTO A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS,¹¹ NOR A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS INTO A FIELD.¹² NOR A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS INTO A CITY,¹³ NOR A CITY INTO A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS.¹⁴ R. ELEAZAR SAID: THIS APPLIES ONLY TO THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES, BUT IN THE CITIES OF THE ISRAELITES ONE MAY TURN A FIELD INTO A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS, BUT NOT¹⁵ A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS INTO A FIELD. [ONE MAY TURN] A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS INTO A CITY, BUT NOT A CITY INTO A CITY'S OUTSKIRTS, THAT THEY DESTROY NOT THE CITIES OF ISRAEL. THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES MAY SELL [A HOUSE] AT ANY TIME AND REDEEM IT AT ANY TIME, AS IT IS SAID: THE LEVITES SHALL HAVE A PERPETUAL RIGHT OF REDEMPTION.¹⁶

GEMARA. R. ELEAZAR SAID: THIS APPLIES ONLY TO THE CITIES OF THE LEVITES. BUT IN THE CITIES OF THE ISRAELITES ONE MAY TURN etc. But, at any rate, all are of the opinion that in [the cities of] the Levites one may not effect any change. Whence do we know that? — R. Eleazar said: Because Scripture said, But the fields of the open land about their cities may not be sold.¹⁷ What does 'may not be sold' mean? Shall I say that it may not be sold at all? But since it is written, 'The Levites shall have a perpetual right of redemption' it is evident that they must be selling; rather must 'may not be sold' mean that they may not be changed [as above].

THE PRIESTS AND LEVITES MAY SELL AT ANY TIME AND REDEEM AT ANY TIME. Our Rabbis taught: 'The Levites shall have a perpetual right of redemption'; what does that teach us? Because it is said: According unto the number of years of the crops he shall sell unto thee,¹⁸ one might have assumed that shall apply also here, therefore it is said: 'The Levites shall have a perpetual right of redemption'. And because it is said: But the field, when it goeth out in the Jubilee, shall be holy unto the Lord,¹⁹ one might have assumed the same applies here: therefore it is said:

‘The Levites shall have a perpetual right of redemption’. And because it is said: ‘Then the house that is in the walled city shall be made sure in perpetuity to him’,²⁰ one might have assumed that shall apply also here: therefore it is said: ‘The Levites shall have a perpetual right of redemption’. Granted that one could assume that with regard to the first, but how do Levites come to have houses in walled cities? Was it not taught: These cities [of the Levites] may not be either little villages nor large walled cities, but cities of average size?²¹ — R. Kahana said: This is no contradiction: one refers to a city first inhabited and then encompassed.²² But would it in that case be considered a walled city? Was it not taught: ‘And if a man sell a dwelling house in a walled city’,²³ i.e., one that was first walled, and then inhabited. One might have assumed [that law applies] even if the Israelites had walled it [after the conquest of the Land]: therefore it says here: ‘wall’ and elsewhere it says, too, ‘wall’;²⁴ just as there it refers to one built by idolaters, so here also. One might have assumed [it would be considered a walled city] if the idolaters had walled it at a later date: therefore it says here, ‘wall’, and there too it says ‘wall’: just as there the idolaters had done so before [the conquest]. so here too [the wall must have been there before the conquest]! — R. Joseph, son of R. Sala the Pious interpreted it before R. Papa: We suppose that they [the cities] had fallen to them [the Levites] together with their outskirts.²⁵

But they as well as their outskirts are to be torn down?¹ — R. Ashi said: It is necessary to teach [the law] for one might have assumed that before they are torn down, if any [of the houses] therein have been sold, they should become perpetual possessions, therefore we are informed [that is not so].

Our Rabbis taught: As a field devoted the possession thereof shall be the priest's:² what does that teach? Whence do we know that if a priest consecrated a field obtained by him as [a field of] devotion that he cannot say: Since it anyway goes out to the priests [in the Jubilee year] and now is in my possession, it shall be my own, a fortiori: If I acquire title to what belongs to others, how much more [can I acquire title] to what belongs to me, therefore it is said: 'As a field devoted the possession thereof shall be to the priest'.³ Now what are we learning from [the words]: 'As a field devoted'? Behold the text came to teach and now it itself is illuminated thereby: we compare the field acquired [by the priest] as [a field of] devotion to an Israelite's field of possession. Just as an Israelite's field of possession goes out of his hand and is distributed among the priests, so also does the field which he acquired as [a field of] devotion go out of his hand to be distributed among his brethren the priests.

The Master said: 'If I acquire title to what belonged to others'. But how can that be compared? There he simply acquires title to it, but here he takes himself? — Rami b. Hama said: It is necessary [to state that]: You might have assumed since it is written: And every man's hallowed things shall be his,⁴ that this also is like his 'hallowed things'. But how can you compare these? His hallowed things are not in his possession,⁵ whereas this is in his possession!⁶ Rather said R. Nahman: It is necessary to teach this, for you might have assumed since it is written: For that is their perpetual possession.⁷ that this too,⁸ is his possession;⁹ therefore the text 'his possession' informs us that [the law applies] only to his possession but not to anything obtained by him as devotion.

(1) Since the cities of the Levites may not be big walled cities.

(2) Lev. XXVII, 21.

(3) V. supra 29a.

(4) Num. V, 10 referring to the sacrifices which a priest offers on his own behalf.

(5) I.e., he received them from God as a gift for his service.

(6) He obtains them only after the sacrifice has been offered, as his God-appointed portion of the sacrifice, whereas here he keeps it back for himself without any authority.

(7) Lev. XXV, 34.

(8) The field once acquired by him as a field of devotion.

(9) In perpetuity.

Mishna - Mas. Avoth Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. MOSES RECEIVED THE TORAH¹ AT² SINAI AND TRANSMITTED IT TO JOSHUA,³ JOSHUA TO THE ELDERS,⁴ AND THE ELDERS TO THE PROPHETS, AND THE PROPHETS TO THE MEN OF THE GREAT SYNAGOGUE.⁵

THE LATTER USED TO SAY THREE THINGS:⁶ BE PATIENT IN [THE ADMINISTRATION OF] JUSTICE, REAR MANY DISCIPLES AND MAKE A FENCE ROUND THE TORAH.⁷

MISHNAH 2. SIMEON THE RIGHTEOUS⁸ WAS ONE OF THE LAST OF THE MEN OF THE GREAT SYNAGOGUE. HE USED TO SAY: THE WORLD IS BASED UPON THREE THINGS: THE TORAH, DIVINE SERVICE, AND THE PRACTICE OF KINDLINESS.⁹

MISHNAH 3. ANTIGONUS¹⁰ (A MAN) OF SOCHO¹¹ RECEIVED [THE ORAL TRADITION] FROM SIMEON THE RIGHTEOUS. HE USED TO SAY: BE NOT LIKE UNTO SERVANTS WHO SERVE THE MASTER IN THE EXPECTATION OF RECEIVING A GRATUITY,¹² BUT BE LIKE UNTO SERVANTS WHO SERVE THE MASTER WITHOUT THE EXPECTATION OF RECEIVING A GRATUITY, AND LET THE FEAR OF HEAVEN¹³ BE UPON YOU.¹⁴

MISHNAH 4. JOSE¹⁵ B. JO'EZER (A MAN) OF ZEREDAH,¹⁶ AND JOSE B. JOHANAN [A MAN] OF JERUSALEM RECEIVED [THE ORAL TRADITION] FROM THEM [I.E. SIMEON THE RIGHTEOUS AND ANTIGONUS].

JOSE. B. JO'EZER¹⁷ USED TO SAY: LET THY HOUSE BE A HOUSE OF MEETING FOR THE SAGES AND SUFFER THYSELF TO BE COVERED BY THE DUST OF THEIR FEET,¹⁸ AND DRINK IN THEIR WORDS WITH THIRST.

MISHNAH 5. JOSE B. JOHANAN (A MAN) OF JERUSALEM USED TO SAY: LET THY HOUSE BE WIDE OPEN, AND LET THE POOR BE MEMBERS OF THY HOUSEHOLD,¹⁹ ENGAGE NOT IN TOO MUCH CONVERSATION WITH WOMEN. THEY²⁰ SAID THIS WITH REGARD TO ONE'S OWN WIFE, HOW MUCH MORE [DOES THE RULE APPLY] WITH REGARD TO ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE. HENCE HAVE THE SAGES SAID:²¹ AS LONG AS A MAN²² ENGAGES IN TOO MUCH CONVERSATION WITH WOMEN, HE CAUSES EVIL TO HIMSELF, [FOR] HE GOES IDLE FROM [THE STUDY OF] THE WORDS OF THE TORAH, SO THAT HIS END WILL BE THAT HE WILL INHERIT GEHINNOM.²³

MISHNAH 6. JOSHUA B. PERAHIAH²⁴ AND NITTAI²⁵ THE ARBELITE²⁶ RECEIVED [THE ORAL TRADITION] FROM THEM [I.E. THE FOREGOING].

JOSHUA B. PERAHIAH USED TO SAY: APPOINT FOR THYSELF A TEACHER²⁷ AND ACQUIRE FOR THYSELF A COMPANION²⁸ AND JUDGE ALL MEN IN THE SCALE OF MERIT.²⁹

MISHNAH 7. NITTAI THE ARBELITE USED TO SAY: KEEP AT A DISTANCE³⁰ FROM AN EVIL NEIGHBOUR, DO NOT MAKE THYSELF AN ASSOCIATE OF A WICKED MAN,³¹ NEITHER DO THOU ABANDON FAITH IN [DIVINE] RETRIBUTION.³²

MISHNAH 8. JUDAH B. TABBAI AND SIMEON B. SHETAH³³ RECEIVED [THE ORAL TRADITION] FROM THEM [I.E. THE FOREGOING].

JUDAH B. TABBAI SAID: DO THOU NOT [AS-A JUDGE] PLAY THE PART OF AN ADVOCATE;³⁴ WHILST THEY [I. E. THE PARTIES IN A LAWSUIT] ARE STANDING

BEFORE THEE, LET THEM BE REGARDED BY THEE AS IF THEY WERE [BOTH OF THEM] GUILTY, AND WHEN THEY LEAVE THY PRESENCE, [AFTER] HAVING SUBMITTED TO THE JUDGMENT³⁵ LET THEM BE REGARDED BY THEE AS IF THEY WERE [BOTH OF THEM] GUILTLESS.

MISHNAH 9. SIMEON B. SHETAÏ³⁶ USED TO SAY: BE THOROUGH IN THE INTERROGATION OF WITNESSES, AND BE CAREFUL IN THY WORDS, LEST FROM THEM [I. E. FROM YOUR WORDS] THEY LEARN TO UTTER FALSEHOOD.³⁷

MISHNAH 10. SHEMAIAH AND ABTALION³⁸ RECEIVED [THE ORAL TRADITION] FROM THEM [I.E. THE FOREGOING]. SHEMAIAH USED TO SAY: LOVE WORK, HATE ACTING THE SUPERIOR, AND DO NOT BRING THYSELF TO THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE RULING AUTHORITY.

MISHNAH 11. ABTALION USED TO SAY: YE SAGES BE CAREFUL WITH YOUR WORDS,³⁹ LEST YE BE CONDEMNED TO EXILE,⁴⁰ AND YE BE EXILED TO A PLACE OF EVIL WATERS,⁴¹ AND THE DISCIPLES WHO FOLLOW YOU⁴² DRINK AND DIE,⁴³ WITH THE RESULT THAT THE NAME OF HEAVEN BECOMES PROFANED.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 12. HILLEL AND SHAMMAÏ⁴⁵ RECEIVED [THE ORAL TRADITION] FROM THEM [I.E. THE FOREGOING].

HILLEL USED TO SAY: BE THOU OF THE DISCIPLES OF AARON, LOVING PEACE AND PURSUING PEACE,⁴⁶ [BE THOU⁴⁷] ONE WHO LOVETH [ONE'S FELLOW.] CREATURES AND BRINGETH THEM NIGH TO THE TORAH.

MISHNAH 13. HE [ALSO] USED TO SAY: A NAME THAT IS WIDESPREAD LOSES ITS FAME; ONE WHO DOES NOT ADD [TO HIS KNOWLEDGE] CAUSES [IT] TO CEASE;⁴⁸ WHOEVER DOES NOT STUDY⁴⁹ [THE TORAH] DESERVES DEATH; WHOEVER MAKES [UNWORTHY] USE OF THE CROWN⁵⁰ [OF LEARNING] PASSETH AWAY.

MISHNAH 14. HE [ALSO] USED TO SAY: IF I AM NOT FOR MYSELF, WHO IS FOR ME, BUT IF I AM FOR MY OWN SELF [ONLY],⁵¹ WHAT AM I, AND IF NOT NOW, WHEN?⁵²

MISHNAH 15. SHAMMAÏ USED TO SAY: MAKE THY [STUDY OF THE] TORAH [A MATTER OF] ESTABLISHED [REGULARITY];⁵³ SPEAK LITTLE, BUT DO MUCH; AND RECEIVE ALL MEN WITH A PLEASANT COUNTENANCE.⁵⁴

MISHNAH 16. RABBAN GAMALIEL⁵⁵ USED TO SAY: APPOINT A TEACHER FOR THYSELF AND AVOID DOUBT,⁵⁶ AND MAKE NOT A HABIT OF TITHING BY GUESSWORK.⁵⁷

MISHNAH 17. SIMEON, HIS SON,⁵⁸ USED TO SAY: ALL MY DAYS I GREW UP AMONG THE SAGES, AND I HAVE FOUND NOTHING BETTER FOR A PERSON⁵⁹ THAN SILENCE. STUDY IS NOT THE MOST IMPORTANT THING, BUT DEED; WHOEVER INDULGES IN TOO MANY WORDS BRINGS ABOUT SIN.⁶⁰

MISHNAH 18. RABBAN SIMEON, SON OF GAMALIEL⁶¹ USED TO SAY: ON THREE THINGS DOES THE WORLD STAND:⁶² ON JUSTICE, ON TRUTH AND ON PEACE, AS IT IS SAID: JUDGE YE TRUTHFULLY AND A JUDGMENT OF PEACE IN YOUR GATES.⁶³

(3) IARN, Ch. I, 'Joshua received from Moses'. The transmission and reception were done orally. All evidence goes to show that there was a continuous succession of 'schools' headed by the Elders, prophets and scribes of their respective generations, which maintained and developed the theoretical study and practical application of the Torah. (7) The Torah is conceived as a garden and its precepts as precious plants. Such a garden is fenced round for the purpose of obviating wilful or even unintended damage. Likewise, the precepts of the Torah were to be 'fenced' round with additional inhibitions that should have the effect of preserving the original commandments from trespass.

(8) Son of Onias. According to the older authorities, also Frankel, Graetz and Halevy, it was Simeon b. Onias I (ca. 300 B.C.E.) referred to in Sirach, Ch. L, and Josephus Ant. XII, 2, 5; 4, 1. Others (e.g. Krochmal, Brull) say it was Simeon b. Onias II (219-199 B.C.E.). Halevy says it could not have been the latter, as he could not have been designated ha-Zaddik (the Righteous), and that, in fact, the elder Simeon b. Onias (I) was not so designated until later times, when it became necessary to distinguish the worthy grandfather from the unworthy grandson.

(9) Some commentators cite Ps. LXXXIX, 3 עולם חסד יבנה (the usual translation of which is forever is Mercy built) taking עולם as meaning world, and rendering the world is built on kindness. גמילות חסדים is enumerated in another old Mishnah (Pe'ah I, 1) among 'the things the fruits of which a man enjoys in this world, while the stock remains intact for him for the world to come'.

(10) The first noted Jew known to have had a Greek name. First half of the third century B.C.E.

(11) Josh. XV, 35. I Sam. XVII, 1.

(12) 'Gratuity' rather than 'reward' (for which שכר would have been used and not פרם) since a servant may rightly and without reproach expect and accept his wage (v. M.).

(13) The term was used before the Persian and Greek periods (Marmorstein, A., The Old Rabbinic Doctrine of God, p. 14 and pp. 105-6), as against the view that 'Heaven' for God, in Jewish literature is an expression derived from the Greek, as Bousset, Die Religion des Judentums, p. 359, n. 3).

(14) 'Antigonus' trilogy was directed against Epicurean teachings; the first and second sayings against the eudaemonist doctrine that all action, even specifically moral action, should be undertaken for the purpose of creating happiness for oneself; the third, against the Epicurean doctrine that whereas there are gods, these gods do not concern themselves with the doings of men,' (Frankel, op. cit. pp. 8-9).

(15) Short form of Joseph.

(16) I Kings XI, 26.

(17) Called Hasid shebikehunnah, 'the most saintly man in the Priesthood'. Hag. II, 7.

(18) Either: let the dust of the feet of the Sages, as they walk, cover you (i.e., follow them closely), or, sit in the dust (on the ground) at their feet whilst they teach. The two Jose's were the first of the Zugoth, GR. 'pairs' of scholars (one a Nasi, Prince, President, Patriarch; the other Ab-Beth-din, Father of the Court) referred to in Pe'ah II, 6 (as Zugoth) and Hag. II, 2 (by their names as here). How did the Zugoth arise? Weiss, op. cit. p. 103: it is a reversion to an earlier practice, the first sign of which (v. ob. p. 35) is the dual appointment in II Chron. XIX, 5-11. Bacher, op. cit. p. 48 ff. points out that there were Zugoth from Moses onwards. Frankel, op. cit., p. 32: When Hellenistic High Priests rose to power and became a menace to Judaism, it was felt that two leaders would be able to cope with the situation better than one. Halevy, op. cit., p. 199: Simeon the Righteous was succeeded by his brother Eleazar, as High Priest, but not as Head of Sanhedrin. This dignity devolved on Antigonus who was followed by Jose b. Johanan. Eleazar was followed (in the High Priesthood) by Onias II (another son of Simeon the Righteous) who handed over the civil power to the Tobiads. The latter disregarded the Sanhedrin and, exercising a powerful influence over the court of the King of Egypt, carried on in a high-handed way. The Sanhedrin then found it necessary to appoint, in addition to the Ab-Beth-din, a Nasi who should represent the Sanhedrin vis-a-vis the people, and as first Nasi they appointed Jose ben Jo'ezer, a younger disciple of Antigonus, who was both a scholar and of eminent priestly descent.

(19) Either: treat the poor as members of your own family or, employ poor men (rather than slaves) as servants (so Rashi and Maim.). The commentary Ez Joseph renders: 'let the members of thy family be poor', i.e. content themselves with poorer fare, so that you may be able to keep an open door and hospitable table for strangers.

- (20) What follows is the addition of the Redactor of the Mishnah. Herford, p. 24 reads אָמַר 'He (Jose) said it.'
- (21) The term מִכְּאֵן אָמְרוּ חֲכָמִים points to an ancient Mishnah. (Frankel, op. cit., p. 305.) For a full examination of the term see Bacher, op. cit. p. 160 and p. 171 ff.
- (22) The P. B. version has 'whoever'.
- (23) V. infra V, 20, notes.
- (24) According to Sotah 470 (ed. Amsterdam), also MS. Brit. Mus. Or. 1389 (a collection of Haggadic writings) fol. 158a, line 28 ff, he fled to Alexandria owing to Sadducee hostility but was recalled later by Simeon b. Shetah (v. Mish. 8) when 'peace' was restored. But J. Hag. 77d reports this of Judah b. Tabbari.
- (25) נְתַאי or נְתִי, J. Hag. 76d has מַטַּי Mattai.
- (26) Arbel. Hosea XI, 14. In Galilee, v. I Mace. IX, 2.
- (27) Cf. Mish. 16. II ARN, Ch. XVIII. רַב לְחֻמָּה, explained as a master to supply one with knowledge already existing.
- (28) II ARN, ibid. חֵבֶר לְמִשְׁנָה, explained as a companion for studying together, so that one may be able to note what the other misses, or to supply information not known to the other.
- (29) Frankel, op. cit. p. 35, says Joshua b. Perahiah said this when John Hyrcanus was still with the Pharisees, with whom he later broke after Eleazar b. Po'irah made mischief over the demand made by the Pharisees, that John Hyrcanus should content himself with the crown, and relinquish the High Priesthood, for which, they said, he was unfit on account of his mother having been (as they alleged) once taken captive at Modin. The allegation was disproved and the king turned against the Pharisees. (Sotah 47a. Frankel and Weiss take נִינְאִי there to be John Hyrcanus rather than Alexander Jannaeus.) II ARN attributes the sayings given here as Joshua b. Perahiah's to Nittai.
- (30) II ARN, 'Run away'.
- (31) As one might be tempted to do should one see the wicked prosper.
- (32) Wickedness will not succeed in the end. Frankel ibid.: Nittai said this after John Hyrcanus joined the Sadducees. In ARN this is attributed to Joshua b. Perahiah.
- (33) J. Hag 77d states that in later times there was disagreement as to whether Judah b. Tabbari was Nasi, and Simeon b. Shetah Ab-Beth-din, or vice-versa. Frankel, op. cit. p. 37, says: 'at first Judah was Nasi, but after his mistaken decision in the case of a false witness ('Ed Zomen v. Mak. 5b) he resigned in favour of Simeon and thus they changed posts.' These scholars lived in the reigns of John Hyrcanus, Alexander Jannaeus and Queen Salome. II ARN attributes Judah's sayings to Simeon and vice-versa.
- (34) I.e., do not suggest to either party a line of argument. For a case involving the question of the applicability of this principle see J. B.B. IX, 6; J. Keth. IV, 10. A woman came before R. Johanan with a claim on her husband (or her late husband's heirs) for the cost of medical attention during her illness, and R. Johanan said to her: 'If the sum has been previously agreed upon with the physician you cannot recover it from your husband (or from his estate), but it must come out of your marriage-settlement.' Otherwise it is included in the husband's alimentary obligation to the wife, v. Epstein, M., Marriage Contract, 163. Objection was taken to R. Johanan for having said this, as being at variance with the dictum here in Aboth, which had been interpreted by R. Haggai in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi as: 'It is prohibited (for a judge) to reveal to any one litigant the law as it applies to his case.' This objection is answered thus: R. Johanan knew that this applicant was a woman of high principles who would not take unfair advantage of that knowledge, but tell the truth as to whether the sum of the physician's fee had been a pre-arranged one or not. I and II ARN take this in a quite different sense, viz. advice against allowing oneself to be prejudiced by any considerations, and against treating one party differently to the other. ARN seems to understand עוֹרְכֵי הַדִּינִים to mean judges who estimate' and make up their minds by conjecture before they have heard the whole case.
- (35) This is the best translation of בְּשֶׁקֶבֶל, and gives the best sense; it is only when a litigant has submitted to the decision that he can be considered guiltless, but not if he is recalcitrant. (V. Buchler, op. cit. p. 53, n. 4.)
- (36) Brother of Queen Salome. He reinstated the Pharisees in the Sanhedrin which had, for some time, been dominated by the Sadducees.
- (37) It is suggested that the tragic episode that led to the execution of his own son, which had been due to reliance on evidence which (when it was too late) proved to have been false (v. J. Sanh. 23b), prompted this dictum.
- (38) Said to have been descendants of proselytes, themselves descendants of Sennacherib.
- (39) II ARN, ch. XXIII, amplifies 'lest you teach anything not in accordance with the teachings of the Torah'. M.: Inexact language would give heretics an opportunity for misrepresenting your teaching. Halevy: Abtalion supplemented Shemaiah's advice: be careful even in your words, so as not to embroil yourselves with the rival sides.

- (40) By the Sadducees and Hellenists (who had regained power at the Court), as had already happened in the cases of Joshua b. Perahiah and Judah b. Tabbai.
- (41) A place of heretical teachings (e.g. Alexandria).
- (42) Into exile.
- (43) Spiritual death.
- (44) By reason of the spiritual disaster that will have overtaken students of the Torah, faith in, and reverence for, God would wane.
- (45) Identified by Halevy, op. cit. p. 40 ff. (and others) with Sameas and Pollion of Jos. Ant. XIV, 9, 4; XV, 1, 1; XV, 10, 4. V. Bacher, Tradition, pp. 51-2, who identifies similarly but, owing to chronological difficulties created by the Josephus passages, he suggests that on account of the similarity, especially in Greek pronunciation, of Shemaiah and Shammai, Josephus did not keep the two pairs (Shemaiah-Abtalion and Hillel-Shammai) sufficiently distinct.
- (46) For the qualities of the ideal priest, v. Mal. II, 6.
- (47) So MV, p. 473. i.e. this is not a continuation of the description of Aaron, or of Aaron's disciples, but a further admonition by Hillel.
- (48) Or, (himself) ceases (to be).
- (49) Another reading 'teach', i.e., one who refuses to impart the knowledge he has.
- (50) 1. The Shem ha-meforash, the Name of God in its full form (I ARN, Ch. XII). 2. 'The Crown of God', i.e., a man who claims divine honours and prerogatives (II ARN, Ch. XXVII).
- (51) One must be self-reliant and not accustom oneself to depend on others; but, being exclusively for oneself is an unworthy attitude for a human being. M.: If I do not rouse my soul to higher things who will rouse it? Rashi: If I do not acquire merit for myself who should do it for me, and when I have already achieved that, have I even then done the whole of my duty? L.: If my ego is not mine (i.e. under my control) over whom can I exercise influence, and when I have myself to myself (and I examine myself) I am led to ask myself, what am I?
- (52) If I do not act in accordance with these reflections now that I realize them (or now whilst I am young, or alive), then, when? Later it may be too late.
- (53) L.: Ideal conditions for study are fixity of purpose, regularity of habits and stability of temperament on the part of the student, as well as an habitual locale and students' accessories of suitable and standard types. B. cites another rendering, viz., 'Make thy (decisions in) Law consistent'.
- (54) This advice on the part of Shammai is the more noteworthy in view of his own impatient nature (as compared with Hillel's at any rate).
- (55) Son of Simeon (who was Nasi after his father Hillel, according to Graetz for 20 years, but according to Halevy only a very short time), known as Rabban Gamaliel Ha-zaken (the Elder). Although here he follows Hillel and Shammai, he is not said to have received' (the oral teaching) from them (that is said of Rabban Johanan b. Zakkai, supra II, 5) and this leads some to say that he was not a Nasi. Hoffmann (Erste Mishnah, p. 26) says the dictum here is by R. Gamaliel II (of Jabneh). Geiger adheres to Gamaliel I. It is probably the same Gamaliel ('a doctor of the Law') as in Acts V, 34; XXII, 3.
- (56) According to M. and others this is advice to one who is himself a Rabbi, that he should choose another scholar whom he is to respect as a greater authority, and whom he should consult in cases of difficulty and doubt before giving a decision.
- (57) L.: To be too strict is one's decision (a course a Rabbi would be likely to take when he is in doubt) is a fault, even as it is wrong to give more than is due in tithes by tithing by conjecture instead of by measure.
- (58) I.e., the son of R. Gamaliel I. He was slain at the time of the fall of Jerusalem. He is not called Rabban here, because he said this before he was Nasi.
- (59) Heb. גוף body, person, cf. IV, 6.
- (60) Cf. Prov. X, 19.
- (61) Son of Gamaliel II of Jabneh and grandson of the Simeon in the foregoing Mishnah. Others say it is that same Simeon but one dictum was uttered before, and the other (here) after, he became Nasi (hence the title Rabban here).
- (62) Is its stability founded; cf. Mishnah 2.
- (63) Zech. VIII, 16. Rashi says that in the Mishnah of Tiberias (MV, 'in careful texts') the Scriptural quotation is not given.

Mishna - Mas. Avoth Chapter 2

Mishna - Mas. Avoth Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. RABBI¹ SAID: WHICH IS THE RIGHT WAY THAT A MAN SHOULD CHOOSE UNTO HIMSELF? ONE WHICH IS [ITSELF] AN HONOUR TO THE PERSON ADOPTING IT,² AND [ON ACCOUNT OF WHICH] HONOUR [ACCRUES] TO HIM FROM MEN.³ AND BE THOU CAREFUL WITH A LIGHT PRECEPT⁴ AS WITH A GRAVE ONE, FOR THOU KNOWEST NOT THE GRANT OF REWARD [FOR THE FULFILMENT] OF PRECEPTS.⁵ ALSO, RECKON THE LOSS [THAT MAY BE SUSTAINED THROUGH THE FULFILMENT] OF A PRECEPT AGAINST THE REWARD [ACCRUING] THEREFROM, AND THE GAIN [THAT MAY BE OBTAINED THROUGH THE COMMITTING] OF A TRANSGRESSION AGAINST THE LOSS [ENTAILED] THEREBY.⁶ APPLY THY MIND⁷ TO THREE THINGS AND THOU WILT NOT COME INTO THE POWER OF SIN:⁸ KNOW WHAT⁹ THERE IS ABOVE THEE:¹⁰ AN EYE THAT SEES,¹¹ AN EAR THAT HEARS,¹² AND ALL THY DEEDS WRITTEN IN A BOOK.¹³

MISHNAH 2. RABBAN GAMALIEL THE SON OF R. JUDAH THE PATRIARCH¹⁴ SAID: EXCELLENT IS THE STUDY OF THE TORAH TOGETHER WITH A WORLDLY OCCUPATION,¹⁵ FOR THE ENERGY [TAKEN UP] BY BOTH OF THEM KEEPS SIN OUT OF ONE'S MIND; AND [AS FOR] ALL [STUDY OF THE] TORAH WHERE THERE IS NO WORLDLY OCCUPATION, THE END THEREOF [IS THAT] IT COMES TO NOUGHT¹⁶ AND BRINGS SIN IN ITS TRAIN;¹⁷ AND ALL WHO LABOUR WITH THE COMMUNITY, LET THEM LABOUR WITH THEM FOR THE [SAKE OF THE] NAME OF HEAVEN,¹⁸ FOR THE MERIT OF THEIR¹⁹ FATHERS SUSTAINS THEM²⁰, AND THEIR RIGHTEOUSNESS ENDURES FOR EVER;²¹ AND AS FOR YOU, [GOD²² IN SUCH CASE SAYS] I ACCOUNT YOU WORTHY OF MUCH REWARD, AS IF YOU [YOURSELVES] HAD [ACTUALLY] ACCOMPLISHED [IT ALL].²³

MISHNAH 3. BE YE CIRCUMSPECT [IN YOUR DEALINGS] WITH THE RULING AUTHORITIES²⁴ FOR THEY SUFFER NOT A MAN TO BE NEAR THEM EXCEPT IT BE FOR THEIR OWN REQUIREMENT; THEY SHOW THEMSELVES AS FRIENDS WHEN IT IS TO THEIR OWN INTEREST, BUT THEY DO NOT STAND BY A MAN IN THE HOUR OF HIS DISTRESS.²⁵

MISHNAH 4. HE USED TO SAY: DO HIS WILL AS [THOU WOULDST DO]²⁶ THINE OWN WILL,²⁷ SO THAT HE MAY DO THY WILL AS [HE DOES] HIS [OWN] WILL.²⁸ SET ASIDE THY WILL IN THE FACE OF HIS WILL,²⁹ SO THAT HE MAY SET ASIDE THE WILL OF OTHERS³⁰ BEFORE THY WILL.

HILLEL SAID: SEPARATE NOT THYSELF FROM THE COMMUNITY,³¹ NEITHER TRUST THOU IN THYSELF UNTIL THE DAY OF THY DEATH,³² MOREOVER JUDGE NOT THY FELLOW-MAN UNTIL THOU HAST REACHED HIS PLACE.³³ SAY NOT A THING THAT CANNOT BE UNDERSTOOD³⁴ [AT ONCE], [TRUSTING] THAT IN THE END IT WILL BE UNDERSTOOD. SAY NOT: WHEN I SHALL HAVE LEISURE I SHALL STUDY;' PERHAPS THOU WILT NOT HAVE LEISURE.³⁵

MISHNAH 5. HE USED TO SAY: AN UNCULTURED³⁶ PERSON IS NOT SIN-FEARING,³⁷ NEITHER IS AN IGNORANT³⁸ PERSON PIOUS; [IT IS] NOT A SHAMEFACED PERSON [WHO IS APT TO] LEARN, NOR [IS IT] AN IMPATIENT PERSON [WHO IS FITTED TO] TEACH, NOR [IS IT] EVERYONE³⁹ WHO ENGAGES MUCH⁴⁰ IN BUSINESS [THAT] BECOMES WISE.⁴¹ IN A PLACE WHERE THERE ARE NO MEN, STRIVE THOU TO BE A MAN.⁴²

MISHNAH 6. HE ALSO SAW A SKULL FLOATING ON THE FACE OF THE WATER. HE

SAID TO IT: BECAUSE THOU DIDST DROWN [OTHERS] THEY⁴³ DROWNED THEE, AND THE END OF THOSE THAT DROWNED THEE [WILL BE THAT] THEY WILL BE DROWNED.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 7. HE USED TO SAY: THE MORE FLESH,⁴⁵ THE MORE WORMS;⁴⁶ THE MORE PROPERTY, THE MORE ANXIETY;⁴⁷ THE MORE WIVES, THE MORE WITCHCRAFT;⁴⁸ THE MORE BONDWOMEN THE MORE LEWDNESS;⁴⁹ THE MORE SLAVES, THE MORE ROBBERY;⁵⁰ [BUT] THE MORE [STUDY OF THE] TORAH, THE MORE LIFE;⁵¹ THE MORE SITTING DOWN⁵² [TO STUDY AND CONTEMPLATE], THE MORE WISDOM;⁵³ THE MORE COUNSEL, THE MORE UNDERSTANDING;⁵⁴ THE MORE RIGHTEOUSNESS,⁵⁵ THE MORE PEACE. ONE WHO HAS ACQUIRED UNTO HIMSELF A GOOD NAME,⁵⁶ HAS ACQUIRED [IT] FOR HIMSELF;⁵⁷ ONE WHO HAS ACQUIRED UNTO HIMSELF WORDS OF TORAH, HAS ACQUIRED FOR HIMSELF THE LIFE OF THE WORLD TO COME.⁵⁸

MISHNAH 8. RABBAH JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI RECEIVED [THE ORAL TRADITION] FROM HILLEL AND SHAMMAI.⁵⁹ HE USED TO SAY: IF THOU HAST LEARNT⁶⁰ MUCH TORAH, DO NOT CLAIM CREDIT UNTO THYSELF, BECAUSE FOR SUCH [PURPOSE] WAST THOU CREATED.⁶¹

RABBAN JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI HAD FIVE [PRE-EMINENT] DISCIPLES AND THEY WERE THESE: R. ELIEZER B. HYRCANUS, R. JOSHUA B. HANANIAH, R. JOSE, THE PRIEST, R. SIMEON B. NETHANEEL AND R. ELEAZAR B. 'ARACH. HE [I. E. R. JOHANAN] USED TO RECOUNT THEIR [FOREMOST] QUALITIES:⁶² R. ELIEZER B. HYRCANUS IS A PLASTERED CISTERN WHICH LOSES NOT A DROP;⁶³ R. JOSHUA B. HANANIAH — HAPPY IS SHE THAT BARE HIM;⁶⁴ R. JOSE, THE PRIEST, IS A PIOUS MAN;⁶⁵ R. SIMEON B. NETHANEEL IS ONE THAT FEARS SIN,⁶⁶ AND R. ELEAZAR B. 'ARACH IS LIKE UNTO A SPRING THAT [EVER] GATHERS FORCE.⁶⁷

HE [I.E. R. JOHANAN] USED TO SAY: IF ALL THE SAGES OF ISRAEL WERE IN ONE SCALE OF THE BALANCE AND ELIEZER B. HYRCANUS IN THE OTHER SCALE, HE WOULD OUTWEIGH THEM ALL. ABBA⁶⁸ SAUL SAID IN HIS⁶⁹ NAME: IF ALL THE SAGES OF ISRAEL WERE IN ONE SCALE OF THE BALANCE, AND R. ELIEZER B. HYRCANUS ALSO WITH THEM, AND R. ELEAZAR B. ARACH IN THE OTHER SCALE, HE WOULD OUTWEIGH THEM ALL.⁷⁰

MISHNAH 9. HE [R. JOHANAN] SAID UNTO THEM: GO FORTH⁷¹ AND OBSERVE WHICH IS THE GOOD WAY UNTO WHICH A MAN SHOULD CLEAVE? R. ELIEZER SAID, A GOOD EYE;⁷² R. JOSHUA SAID, A GOOD ASSOCIATE;⁷³ R. JOSE SAID, A GOOD NEIGHBOUR;⁷⁴ R. SIMEON SAID, ONE WHO LOOKS [AHEAD TO SEE] WHAT [CONSEQUENCES] SHALL BE BROUGHT FORTH [BY HIS OWN ACTIons].⁷⁵ R. ELEAZAR SAID, A GOOD HEART.⁷⁶ SAID HE [R. JOHANAN] UNTO THEM: I PREFER THE WORDS OF ELEAZAR B. 'ARACH TO YOUR WORDS, FOR WITHIN THE COMPREHENSIVE CHARACTER OF HIS WORDS, ARE YOUR WORDS [INCLUDED].

HE [FURTHER] SAID UNTO THEM: GO FORTH AND OBSERVE WHICH IS THE EVIL WAY FROM WHICH A MAN SHOULD REMOVE HIMSELF FAR?⁷⁷ R. ELIEZER SAID, AN EVIL EYE;⁷⁸ R. JOSHUA SAID, AN EVIL ASSOCIATE; R. JOSE SAID, AN EVIL NEIGHBOUR; R. SIMEON SAID, ONE WHO BORROWS AND REPAYS NOT⁷⁹ — [IT IS ALL] ONE [WHETHER] ONE BORROWS FROM MAN OR ONE BORROWS FROM THE ALL-PRESENT⁸⁰ — AS IT IS SAID: THE WICKED BORROWS AND PAYETH NOT; BUT THE RIGHTEOUS DEALETH GRACIOUSLY AND GIVETH⁸¹. R. ELEAZAR SAID, AN EVIL HEART. SAID HE [R. JOHANAN] UNTO THEM: I PREFER THE WORDS OF ELEAZAR B.

ARACH TO YOUR WORDS, FOR WITHIN THE COMPREHENSIVE CHARACTER OF HIS WORDS ARE YOUR WORDS [INCLUDED].

MISHNAH 10. THEY [EACH] SAID THREE THINGS. R. ELIEZER SAID: LET THE HONOUR OF THY FRIEND BE AS DEAR TO THEE AS THINE OWN;⁸² AND BE NOT EASILY PROVOKED TO ANGER;⁸³ AND REPENT ONE DAY BEFORE THY DEATH,⁸⁴ AND [HE ALSO SAID:] WARM THYSELF BEFORE THE FIRE OF THE WISE,⁸⁵ AND BEWARE OF THEIR GLOWING COALS,⁸⁶ THAT THOU MAYEST NOT BE SINGED,⁸⁷ FOR THEIR BITE IS THE BITE OF A FOX,⁸⁸ AND THEIR STING IS THE STING OF A SCORPION,⁸⁹ AND THEIR HISS IS THE HISS OF A SERPENT,⁹⁰ AND ALL THEIR WORDS ARE LIKE COALS OF FIRE.⁹¹

MISHNAH 11. R. JOSHUA SAID: AN EVIL EYE, THE EVIL INCLINATION,⁹² AND HATRED FOR [ONE'S FELLOW.] CREATURES PUT A MAN OUT OF THE WORLD.⁹³

MISHNAH 12. R. JOSE SAID: LET THE PROPERTY OF THY FELLOW BE AS PRECIOUS UNTO THEE AS THINE OWN;⁹⁴ FIT THYSELF TO STUDY TORAH⁹⁵ FOR IT IS NOT [A THING THAT COMES] UNTO THEE [AS] AN INHERITANCE;⁹⁶ AND LET ALL THINE ACTIONS⁹⁷ BE FOR [THE SAKE OF] THE NAME OF HEAVEN⁹⁸.

MISHNAH 13. R. SIMEON SAID: BE CAREFUL WITH THE READING OF SHEMA⁹⁹ AND WITH PRAYER,¹⁰⁰ AND WHEN THOU PRAYEST, MAKE NOT THY PRAYER A SET TASK,¹⁰¹ BUT [AN APPEAL FOR] MERCY¹⁰² AND AN ENTREATY BEFORE THE ALL-PRESENT,¹⁰³ FOR IT IS SAID: FOR HE IS GRACIOUS AND COMPASSIONATE, LONG-SUFFERING AND ABUNDANT IN MERCY, AND REPENTETH HIM OF THE EVIL;¹⁰⁴ AND BE NOT WICKED IN THINE OWN ESTEEM.¹⁰⁵

MISHNAH 14. R. ELEAZAR SAID:¹⁰⁶ BE EAGER¹⁰⁷ TO STUDY THE TORAH;¹⁰⁸ AND KNOW¹⁰⁹ WHAT ANSWER THOU SHOULDST GIVE TO THE EPICUREAN,¹¹⁰ AND KNOW BEFORE WHOM THOU TOLLEST,¹¹¹ AND WHO¹¹² IS THINE EMPLOYER¹¹³ WHO WILL PAY THEE THE REWARD OF THY LABOUR.

MISHNAH 15. R. TARFON¹¹⁴ SAID: THE DAY¹¹⁵ IS SHORT, AND THE WORK¹¹⁶ [TO BE PERFORMED] IS MUCH;¹¹⁷ AND THE WORKMEN¹¹⁸ ARE INDOLENT,¹¹⁹ BUT THE REWARD IS MUCH;¹²⁰ AND THE MASTER OF THE HOUSE¹²¹ IS INSISTENT.¹²²

MISHNAH 16. HE [I.E., R. TARFON] USED TO SAY: IT IS NOT [INCUMBENT] UPON THEE TO FINISH THE WORK, BUT NEITHER ART THOU A FREE MAN SO AS TO [BE ENTITLED TO] REFRAIN THEREFROM;¹²³ IF THOU HAST STUDIED MUCH TORAH, THEY¹²⁴ GIVE THEE MUCH REWARD, AND FAITHFUL IS THINE EMPLOYER TO PAY THEE THE REWARD OF THY LABOUR;¹²⁵ AND KNOW THAT THE GRANT OF REWARD UNTO THE RIGHTEOUS IS IN THE TIME TO COME.¹²⁶

(1) Rabbi Judah ha-Nasi (the Prince, the Patriarch) also called רבינו הקדוש 'Our holy Master'. All the best qualities characteristic of the righteous were combined in him (J. Sanh. 30a). Son of Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel (supra I, 28) ca. 200 C.E. He is famous as the one who, either orally (so Rashi), or in writing (so M.). compiled, or reduced to order, previously collected material (so Tosaf.), consisting of the authoritative opinions of the Tannaim on legal, ritual, ethical and related matters, and forming our Mishnah (v. L.). Among the modern historians, Weiss (II, p. 183) says that R. Judah collected, arranged and reduced to writing. Halevy (II, pp. 829, 858, 866) says the original Mishnah was the work of the Great Synagogue. That 'Ur,' Mishnah was sifted and clarified progressively by Hillel and Shammai and their successors. The Mishnah was all but complete before the end of the days of R. Simeon b. Gamaliel. As the latter held office for a very short time only, it fell to his son R. Judah to add the final touches. Actual additions made in R. Judah's own time were very few.

(2) לעשה or לעשיה. R. Jonah, Elijah Wilna, and others understand 'to Him who made it (the way)', i.e. God. They seem to have taken דרך ישרה to have been suggested by ישרים דרכי ה' the ways of the Lord are right (Hos. XIV, 10), cf. Prov. XVI, 9. A man's heart deviseth his way; but the Lord directeth his steps. Taylor, Sayings of the Jewish Fathers, a.l. cites an interpretation of R. Isaac bar Shelomo which, rejecting the possibility of applying the verb עשה to דרך (Taylor says 'but see Judg. XVII, 8.' However, there the expression is used in quite a different sense), assumes a reading לעשהו 'to his (man's) Maker'. The passage would in that case express the idea in for them that honour Me [will honour (I Sam. II, 30), cf. infra IV, 1.

(3) Elijah Wilna quotes Prov. III, 4, So shalt thou find grace and good favour in the sight of God and Man.

(4) A precept, compliance with which does not entail any, or much, exertion or cost, or the reward (where known), or punishment for which is slight (L.).

(5) I.e., positive precepts; the penalties for non-compliance with negative precepts are known. II ARN, Ch. XXXII, adds, 'and flee from a light transgression as from a grave one for thou knowest not what are the penalties for transgressions' (sc. of positive precepts).

(6) Does this metaphor, taken evidently from commercial life, not indicate the principle of the 'double-entry' system of book-keeping, which is usually stated to have been devised in the 16th century?

(7) הסתכל denom. vb. from שכל sense, mind.

(8) Lit., 'into the hands,' into the grip of sin, out of which there may be no escape.

(9) Lowe's MS. (used by Taylor) omits מה.

(10) MV understands 'in Heaven'. L.: 'beyond thy comprehension'.

(11) Cf. Job XXXIV, 21, 22. For His eyes are upon the ways of a man, and He seeth all his doings.

(12) For God's ear, cf. II Kings XIX, 16, Incline Thine ear, O Lord, and hear; Ps. CXVI, 2, He hath inclined his ear unto me.

(13) V. Job XXXVII, 7, He sealeth up the hand of every man, that all men whom He hath made may know it. This is rendered 'By the hand of every man is a seal (or signature) affixed so that He may know the deeds of all men (or, so that every man may know his own deeds). For the idea of a Heavenly Book of Records, cf. Mal. III, 16, also Ex. XXXII, 32. Dan. VII, 10. For the amplification of this idea and its implications, v. R.H., 16b ff.

(14) 'Rabbi' of the foregoing Mishnah.

(15) Cf. Ps. CXXVIII, 2, then thou eatest the labour of thy hands, happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee. L. takes דרך ארץ in its sense of correct and unassuming conduct. However, the words immediately following. 'the energy (lit. labour) of both of them,' precludes such a rendering.

(16) L.: Since, on account of not having an occupation by which to earn a steady livelihood, he has to seek the latter at random, he thus uses up time which he could otherwise have devoted to the study of the Torah.

(17) Unable to procure a livelihood by honest means, he would be tempted, or driven to, dishonest means of obtaining it.

(18) I.e., disinterestedly and devotedly, not for the sake of self-aggrandisement or of exercising authority over others. Or, even if your actions are unpopular with the community.

(19) The community's.

(20) The community. L.: the communal workers.

(21) Even if the community do not readily support, or even if they oppose the labours of those who are doing the communal work for the sake of Heaven, the merit of the community's fathers, i.e., the traditional righteousness and charitableness of the Israelite character, being everenduring, will sustain the workers (or the community as a whole) and help them to acquit themselves of their duty, in the end, creditably. even if for the time being the community may be doing it unwillingly (after an alternative in B.). Another interpretation: One should take up the communal burden disinterestedly and not take credit for what one does; rather put it down to the merit of the community as a whole, as it is their inherited qualities which are mainly responsible for the consummation of the good work.

(22) Baer suggests it may mean the Tanna himself (Rabban Gamaliel) addressing these words to the communal leaders of his own generation.

(23) Rashi: Even if you have not completed the task (cf. Mishnah 16). Some explain: If in the course of public duty you have unavoidably neglected a precept. I account it to you as if you had fulfilled it.

(24) R. Gamaliel had much experience of intercourse with the (Roman) powers-that-be as his father, R. Judah ha-Nasi, was on intimate and friendly terms with one of the Antonines. B. and others: This caution was particularly intended for the communal leaders addressed in the preceding Mishnah.

(25) This is generally taken as a reflection upon corrupt and grasping officialdom. It also reflects the conception prevailing among the ruling classes of antiquity as to their own raison d'être; they took it for granted that they might make whatever use they could of their subjects, but they did not consider it an integral part of their duty to be of service to their subjects.

(26) As willingly and as joyfully.

(27) So B., L. and R. Jonah who further develop the idea, 'make thy will identical with God's will'. Rashi: 'even when thou doest thine own business do it for the sake of Heaven' but this would presuppose reading עשה רצונך כרצונו

(28) Cf. Ps. CXLV, 19, He will fulfill the desire of them that fear Him.

(29) When they conflict.

(30) Who will things against your interests. MV and B. also give an alternative explanation, viz., that 'the will of others' is an euphemism for His (God's) will, i.e., that he may annul any punishment decreed by Him against you. (V. Jast. s.v. בטל.)

(31) Identify yourself with the community in everything except wrong-doing. (i) Participate in its sorrows as well as its joys, cf. Isa. LXVI, 10. (ii) Do not lead a selfish life or that of a recluse. (iii) Do not act independently of, or contrary to, what is the norm accepted by the community as a whole. L.: The Mishnah having given R. Gamaliel's dictum on duty towards the community quotes also Hillel on the subject.

(32) Do not rely upon the material or spiritual position you have attained. Unless one is constantly on one's guard these may only too easily be lost. Or construe the Mishnah thus: 'Separate not thyself from the Community, neither trust thou in thyself, until the day of thy death,' i.e., do not, ever in your life, rely on your own powers to the extent of deliberately remaining detached from the community. Cf. I, 24.

(34) Lit., 'heard'. 'that cannot . . .'; according to the reading of M., whose explanation is adopted in this translation. Others (adopting the same reading) 'do not reveal secrets (or secret, esoteric, doctrines) that should not be revealed to all and sundry, because in the end, they will become public.' Another reading: 'that can be heard' is explained by MV, Rashi, B.: 'When you have the opportunity of hearing Torah do not say there is yet time to hear it later.' Cf. the next sentence.

(35) Cf. prov. XXVII, 1, Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.

(36) בור Originally: a piece of ground altogether uncultivated. Of a person: one devoid of knowledge as well as of ethical principles (M. and others).

(37) He may avoid sin by unreasonably following the accepted standards of conduct, or out of a fear of the consequences, but not out of a conscious and deliberate abhorrence of sin itself (after L.).

(38) עם הארץ A man devoid of mental attainments but possessing some moral qualities (M.). He may act with propriety but, lacking a knowledge of the Torah and the advantage of association with scholarly and saintly men, he is not equipped for rising to the plane of Hasiduth, which is conduct of a standard higher than that strictly required, and a striving for progressive self-perfection. (MV, L.)

(39) כל. So Tosaf. Yom Tob.

(40) And leaves little or no time for study (R. Jonah).

(41) Even though business is, admittedly, a valuable factor in the development of the mind, it is not, except perhaps in rare cases, in itself sufficient. Cf. infra VI, 5, where among the qualifications for the acquisition of the Torah, some texts have מיעוט סחורה moderation in business. מחכים L., relying on the causative (Hif'il) conjugation of the word: 'makes himself and others wise'.

(42) In Ber. 63a there is an Aramaic version גבר תמן הוי גבר באתר דלית Hillel used both Hebrew and Aramaic, cf. supra I, 12, 13, 14.

(43) The impersonal use of 'they'. Though this usage is not uncommon in English, a passive construction might be preferable.

(44) The underlying idea is that divine retribution operates by way of 'measure for measure', cf. Ob. 15, As thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee. Ps. VII, 16, 17, He hath digged a pit and hollowed it, and is fallen into the ditch which he made. His mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violence shall come down upon his own pate. Ez Joseph lays stress on סוף 'even if these people die a natural death, a time will come when their skulls will float about on water.' However, the version in the Talmud (Suk. 53a) has not got סוף.

(45) One puts on by over-indulgence in food.

(46) In the grave.

(47) Cf. Eccl. II, 22, 23. For what hath a man of all his labour . . . for all his days are pains . . . yea, even in the night his heart taketh no rest.

(48) Wives in their jealous rivalry for their husband's attentions will resort to seeking charms from witches whose occupation will prosper and spread (V.).

(49) A well-known feature of female slavery.

(50) They will combine to rob their master, or to rob others without their master's knowledge, but implicating him nevertheless. B. notes the sequence, (i) Flesh: the more one feels well-fed and 'pleased' with himself, the more one strives to amass (ii) wealth. The wealthier he is the more (iii) wives he will take, each of whom requires a large number of (iv) serving maids. The household grows to such proportions that he requires a large retinue of (v) slaves.

(51) prov. III, 1, 2. My son, forget not my teaching (Torah) but let thy heart keep my commandments; for length of days, and years of life, will they add to thee. Cf. ibid. IX, II, and Deut. XXX, 20.

(52) ישיבה some render 'academy', 'school(ing)' i.e., the more opportunities given to disciples for corporate study, the greater the ingenuity developed.

(53) Some versions מרבה חכמה מרבה ישיבה 'the greater the wisdom of the teacher, the better attended will be his school' (v. R. Jonah and B.).

(54) Cf. Prov. XII, 15, rendered, he that hearkeneth to counsel is wise.

(55) Cf. Isa. XXXII, 17, and the work of righteousness shall be peace. Some render צדקה 'charity' which makes for sympathy and understanding, and counteracts the bitterness often felt by the poor towards the rich, and which, by thus ensuring goodwill all round, preserves peace.

(56) Cf. Prov. XXII, I, A 'good name is rather to be chosen than great riches; Eccl. VII, 1, A good name is better than precious oil.

(57) It is peculiarly his own in the sense that, unlike any other possession, one man's good name can never become another's.

(58) Cf. Prov. VIII, 35. Wisdom (Torah) says: Whoso findeth me, findeth life, and obtaineth favour from the Lord; cf. Deut. XXX, 20.

(59) The chain of 'tradents' and 'recipients' interrupted at the end of I, 15, is continued here. It is suggested that when it came to Hillel, a 'progenitor' of a 'dynasty', the Mishnah continued with the descendants of Hillel till R. Judah ha-Nasi and his son R. Gamaliel (then adduced Hillel, by the way, on a topic dealt with by R. Gamaliel son of R. Judah, see Mishnah 4, n. 7), and then resumed here the chain of discipleship (see L.).

(60) למדת Lowe's MS., I ARN, Ch. XIV, R. Jonah. MV read עשית 'thou hast accomplished'. V. Taylor, a.l.

(61) The idea that man, and especially an Israelite, is created for the purpose of giving himself to the study of the Word of God and obedience thereto, is deeply rooted in Biblical and Rabbinic literature, cf. Micah VI, 8: It hath been told thee, O man, what is good, and what the Lord doth require of thee: only to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God. Cf. Deut. X, 12. L.: If you have acquired more than the average knowledge of the Torah, do not attribute it to your own superior abilities, for it is God who has endowed you with special talents in that direction.

(62) Lit. 'their praise'.

(63) ARN I, Ch. XXIX, adds, 'a vessel lined with pitch that retains the wine,' i.e., he had a very retentive memory. In Suk. 28a, he is reported to have claimed that he had never said anything that he had not heard from his own teachers. Frankel, op. cit. p. 78, argues that this statement cannot be upheld.

(64) I.e., to his mother was due most of the credit for his scholarship and she therefore had real cause to be proud of him. She is said to have taken him, in his cot, to the Beth-ha-Midrash so that from his infancy his ears might become attuned to the sound of the study of the Torah. ARN XIV has, instead, 'a threefold cord (that) is not quickly broken.' (Eccl. IV, 12.)

(65) I ARN (Ch. XIV) and II (Ch. XXIX): 'the most pious man in his generation.' V. Mishnah 5, n. 5, for the meaning of Hasid.

(66) V. Mishnah 5, n. 4. I ARN ibid. gives ערוגה שבמדבר שמחזקת מימיה 'a garden-bed in the wilderness which retains its water,' (II ARN, XVI, to the same effect) as R. Johanan's description of R. Simeon b.

Nethaneel.

(67) I.e., noted for an independent, keen and vigorous critical faculty, and thus differentiated from R. Eliezer b. Hyrcanus whose greatness consisted in assiduously gathering in and faithfully preserving all that he heard. I ARN adds 'whose waters swell and flow abroad as it is said (Prov. V, 16), let thy springs be dispersed abroad, and courses of water in the streets.'

(68) Title for a scholar less than that of 'Rabbi' (v. Jast.).

(69) R. Johanan's. II ARM ibid. 'on the authority of R. Akiba who used to say it in his (R. Johanan's) name.' Rashi, 'in the name of R. Gamaliel in the name of R. Johanan b. Zakkai.'

(70) There was a difference of opinion as to whether the scholastic quality known as סיני ('Sinai', an erudite scholar) which was that of R. Eliezer, or the one termed עוקר הרים ('an uprooter of mountains', a dialectician), which distinguished R. Eleazar, is to be preferred. V. Ber. 64a, where the conclusion is that the former is the better, as even the scholar who is ingenious in arguing the merits of various opinions, is himself dependent on the material made available by the scholar who accumulates the teaching of his predecessors and contemporaries. The 'First Tanna' (תנא קמא) of this Mishnah understood Rabban Johanan to have preferred the 'Sinai', whilst Abba Saul ascribed to Rabban Johanan a predilection for the 'uprooter of mountains'. Some versions omit 'Rabbi' given here with the names of Eliezer, etc. as at that time they were still disciples and not yet independent scholars.

(71) Leave your immediate environment, and go among men of all classes (v. L.).

(72) Generosity. Cf. Prov. XXII, 9, He that hath a bountiful (lit. 'good') eye shall be blessed, for he giveth of his bread to the poor. Maim. Contentment with what one has.

(73) One should seek and cultivate a good friend. R. Jonah: One should oneself be a good friend.

(74) One should seek and cultivate a good neighbour. As a good friend is not necessarily with you very often, it is even more important to have someone who is constantly near at hand. R. Jonah: One should oneself be a good neighbour.

(75) Or, by time, v. Prov. XXVII, 1, What the day may bring forth.

(76) The heart being the generator of all physical, mental and emotional processes (after Maim.). R. Jonah: A good heart means patience and goodwill. Perhaps, however, לב טוב is to be taken in the only sense in which it is used in the Bible, viz. 'a joyous heart', which puts one in a good humour with, and ensures the right kind of disposition towards everybody and all things. ARN ibid. appears to have understood it so. 'A good heart towards Heaven, (a good heart towards the commandments,) a good heart: towards all creatures' (cf. Elijah Wilna and L.).

(77) He had to ask this question instead of inferring the answer to it from the answers to the previous question, because the negative of a good quality is not always an evil quality which should be shunned.

(78) A grudging nature; cf. Prov. XXIII, 6, Eat thou not the bread of him that hath an evil eye.

(79) Apart from the dishonesty of such conduct, he does not think that he is not likely to be trusted again with a loan; in this he is the antithesis of the man who looks ahead to see the consequences of his conduct.

(80) For מקום (lit., 'Place') as an appellation for God see Marmorstein, Old Rabbinic Doctrine of God, pp. 14, 92, 142. It was used in the earliest Rabbinic sources.

(81) Ps. XXXVII, 21. M. and others understand 'the righteous', in this connection, in the Midrashic sense, viz. 'the Righteous One', i.e., God (v. Marmorstein, op. cit., p. 95). If a borrower fails to repay, God will repay the kindly lender. Thus the borrower (even if he is released, say by bankruptcy, from the obligation of repaying to man [so R. Jonah]) remains a debtor to God, and continued neglect to repay renders him a רשע. For the idea that help given to the needy is a loan to God, v. Prov. XIX, 17. He that is gracious unto the poor, lendeth unto the Lord; his good deed will He repay unto him. If R. Simeon himself really understood צדיק in this case as referring to God, we have an earlier authority for the idea than the one referred to by Marmorstein ibid. (viz., Bar-Kappara).

(82) On the principle of Love thy neighbour as thyself (Lev. XIX, 18).

(83) Cf. Eccl. VII, 9, Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry.

(84) I ARN, Ch. XV; II Ch. XXIX, Koh. Rab. Ch. IX, Shab. 153a report that when R. Eliezer's disciples asked him: Does any man know what day he is to die? he replied: All the more reason for him to repent every day of his life in case he should die on the morrow. ARN, Maim., R. Jonah take the foregoing to constitute the 'three things' referred to in the heading of this Mishnah, and what follows ('Warm thyself,' etc.) as an addition. This scheme is adopted in this translation. However, Rashi, MV, B., L. take 'let the honour . . .' and 'be not easily provoked . . .' as one dictum, 'repent etc. as the second, and 'warm thyself . . .' as the third.

(85) The Torah which is called אור (i.e. light or flame) v. Prov. VI, 23, The teaching (Torah) is light. Elijah Wilna cites Isa. II, 5, O house of Jacob, come ye and let us walk in the light (אור which also flame) of the Lord.

- (86) The commentators regard this as a warning against behaving towards the Sages in a manner incompatible with the dignity which should be theirs as exponents of the Torah.
- (87) Their fire, the fire of the Torah, being a divine fire (cf. Deut. XXXIII, 2, At his right hand was a fiery law), is an ever potent one, even when the Sages are, as it were, not aflame but only resembling glowing coals.
- (88) The bite, even a slight one, of a fox was thought particularly hurtful because its teeth were said to be crooked.
- (89) The sting alone of a scorpion is poisonous.
- (90) The very hiss of a serpent was believed to be deadly. Some render 'the murmuring (of incantations) over them (i.e. the scholars or their 'bites' and 'stings') is (as ineffective) as the murmuring (of incantations) over a fiery serpent.' cf. Ps. LVIII, 6 (of an asp) which hearkeneth not to the voice of charmers (מלחשים).
- (91) Their mere words, even if they seem unimportant, should be heeded as they, too, are aglow with the Divine fire of the Torah. Or, the mere words of the Sages even when not intended to be 'burning' are like coals of fire, which, if approached or dealt with, without due care, will burn one. For the action of the fire of God upon those who take up the wrong attitude towards Him, i.e. upon the wicked, v. Mal. III, 19, 20. For, behold, the day cometh, it burneth as a furnace; and all the proud, and all that work wickedness, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall set them ablaze, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name shall the sun of righteousness arise with healing in its wings. Herford sees in these words of R. Eliezer a piece of self-revelation expressive of the deep suffering he endured as a result of the severe ban of excommunication which the Rabbis pronounced against him, v. B.M. 59b.
- (92) For a full treatment of the subject, v. Schechter, Some aspects of Rabbinic Theology, p. 24.
- (93) II ARN. Ch. XXX, 'out of this world and out of the world to come'. A man who hates everybody will draw upon himself the hatred of all others and this is likely to bring him to a premature and unnatural end (v. B.). Maim.: Greed for wealth (= the evil eye), a surfeit of lustfulness (= the evil inclination) and a bad disposition (= hatred of one's fellows), which is melancholia, have the effect of making one loathe the world and of inducing him to take up the life of a recluse not out of ascetic piety, but because he is insatiably envious of, and grudging towards, his fellow-men. This would no doubt also have deleterious physical effects, and cause his premature death.
- (94) Cf. Mishnah 10, n. 6. R. Jonah understands, 'when the other person's property is in your charge, deal with it in accordance with the owner's wish.'
- (95) Put yourself in a proper frame of mind so that you approach the Torah with due reverence and Zest (v. MV and Ez Joseph). ARN, B., in view of the following clause, lay stress on 'thyself'.
- (96) ARN cites the case of the sons of Moses who did not follow in their father's footsteps. MV says this clause is not an authentic part of R. Jose's dictum and should be omitted.
- (97) Even the most elementary bodily functions. II ARN, Ch. XXX, relates the anecdote of Hillel who looked upon the taking of a bath as a Mizwah (religious duty), inasmuch as by that one cleansed the body which God made in his own image.
- (98) On 'Heaven', cf. supra I, 3, n. 6.
- (99) The liturgical unit comprising the passages Deut. VI, 4 — 9, XI, 13 — 21, Num. XV, 37 — 41, considered by the Rabbis to contain the principles of the Decalogue, and ordained for recital twice daily, 'when thou liest down, and when thou risest up' (Deut. VI, 7). The admonition here is that it should be 'read' or 'recited' (the verb קרא may mean either) at the proper hours (Rashi, V., B.).
- (100) Prayer תפלה par excellence is the 'Amidah, (P.B. p. 44 etc.) to be recited thrice daily at defined times.
- (101) L.: Since these prayers are regularly repeated, there is the danger of their recital deteriorating into one by rote, hence 'be careful'.
- (102) רחמים omitted in Lowe's MS., R. Jonah, and MV.
- (103) V. Mishnah 9, n. 6.
- (104) Joel II, 13. Possibly the Scriptural quotation was introduced later. R. Jonah quotes Jonah IV, 2, which is very similar to Joel II, 13.
- (105) So R. Tam (quoted in MV.), R. Jonah and M. The latter adds 'and thus set yourself a low standard of conduct.' MV: Do not do anything which you understand to be wrong, even if others do not realize it. Or (preferred by MV), do not be wicked by imagining and behaving as if you were the only person in the world, and therefore refusing to associate in friendship with your fellow-men.
- (106) Much depends on the division of this Mishnah into the three dicta. MV and R. Jonah: 1) Be eager . . . that thou mayest know what . . . 2) Know before whom . . . 3) Who is thine Employer . . . Rashi's division is not quite clear.

Though we would expect him to agree with V., it nevertheless seems that he divided 1) Be eager . . . 2) Know what answer . . . 3) Know before whom . . . and who is thine Employer . . . B.'s arrangement was: 1) Be eager . . . 2) Know what answer . . . and before whom thou toilest, 3) Who is thine Employer. M.'s division (though not interpretation) seems to have been the same as B.'s, but may, on the other hand, have agreed with the one given here as the probable one of Rashi.

(107) שָׂקוֹד the passive instead of the active mood of the verb used in the Bible suggests 'be actuated by an eagerness' (v. L.).

(108) It may be that R. Eleazar's advocacy of eagerness and enthusiasm in the study of Torah, was due to the lesson he had learnt from his own experience, when after the death of his master (R. Johanan b. Zakkai) he refused to join his fellow-disciples and went to reside in Emmaus (?) because it was a pleasant resort, and in the course of a short time he forgot his learning. V. infra IV, 14, where R. Nehorai is thought to be another name for R. Eleazar b. 'Arak.

(109) MV., R. Jonah: in order that thou mayest know. Maim.: Get to know, study, other religious systems.

(110) A term applied to heretics in general, v. Sanh. (Sonc. ed.) p. 244, n. 10.

(111) M.: 'but know . . .' Whilst you are studying the creeds of others, know, keep in mind, that He whom you are serving knows your innermost thoughts and so take care to prevent false doctrines from influencing you.

(112) וְיָמִי הוּא so MV, Rashi, R. Jonah, Lowe's MS. The other reading וְנֶאֱמָן ('and faithful'), which is specifically ruled out by MV, is evidently due to that phrase in the next Mishnah.

(113) I.e., God, v. Marmorstein, op. cit., p. 79. Lowe's MS. stops here. The clause which follows in our Version may also be due to the next Mishnah. v. Bacher, Agada der Tannaiten, I, p. 77.

(114) A younger (?) contemporary of the above-mentioned disciples of Rabban Johanan b. Zakkai.

(115) I.e., man's earthly life, cf. Job VIII, 9, For we are but of yesterday . . . because our days upon earth are a shadow.

(116) MV, R. Jonah, B.: 'Study of the Torah'. L.: 'man's duties towards God and man.'

(117) Therefore do not waste any time away from your task. cf. Job XI, 8, 9 (of the study of the ways and purposes of God). It is as high as heaven . . . deeper than the nether-world . . ., the measure thereof is longer than the earth, and broader than the sea.

(118) Human beings (v. M. and R. Jonah and others). The faculties which man has at his service (L.).

(119) Naturally so; some more and some less, but all are so inclined; therefore you should deliberately overcome that sluggishness.

(120) Prov. VIII, 10, 11, Receive my instruction and not silver, and knowledge rather than choice gold; for wisdom is better than rubies, and all things desirable are not to be compared with her ('Instruction', 'Knowledge', 'Wisdom' are taken to mean the Torah). 'Reward' here would, accordingly, mean that the very knowledge of the Torah is the reward acquired by the diligent work put into the study thereof.

(121) The Master of the World, i.e., God; v. Marmorstein, op. cit., p. 77.

(122) In that Scripture repeatedly urges the study of the Word of God and the fulfilment of His precepts, and, even if you should renounce the desire for the reward, you must carry out your task because your Master insists that you should.

(123) MV has an interesting alternative interpretation, viz., 'You were not made a free man (i.e. delivered from Egyptian bondage) so that you might remain exempt from Torah and Precepts.' The divine purpose of the Redemption was that Israel might accept God's Law. Ex. XIX, 4, 5, Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians . . . Now therefore, if ye will hearken unto My voice indeed, and keep my covenant. Deut. IV, 37 — 40, . . . and brought thee . . . out of Egypt . . . and thou shalt keep His statutes and his commandments. ibid. VI, 23, 24, And He brought us forth from thence . . . and he commanded us to do all these statutes.

(124) V. Mishnah 6, n. 1.

(125) L. says the פְּעֻלָּה means labour accomplished, work perfected. The passage would thus mean: You can trust God to reward you if you have carried out His commandments to the highest perfection of which you are capable.

(126) Lit., 'for the future (that is) to come,' or 'for (the time) that is due to come,' i.e., the Hereafter or the Messianic future.

Mishna - Mas. Avoth Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. AKABIAH B. MAHALALEEL¹ SAID: APPLY THY MIND² TO THREE³ THINGS AND THOU WILT NOT COME INTO THE POWER OF SIN: KNOW WHENCE THOU CAMEST, AND WHITHER THOU ART GOING, AND BEFORE WHOM THOU ART

DESTINED TO GIVE AN ACCOUNT AND RECKONING. WHENCE CAMEST THOU? — FROM A FETID DROP. WHITHER ART THOU GOING? — TO A PLACE OF DUST,⁴ OF WORM AND OF MAGGOT.⁵ BEFORE WHOM ART THOU DESTINED TO GIVE AN ACCOUNT AND RECKONING?⁶ — BEFORE THE KING OF THE KINGS OF KINGS,⁷ THE HOLY ONE,⁸ BLESSED BE HE.⁹

MISHNAH 2. R. HANINA, THE VICE-HIGH PRIEST,¹⁰ SAID: PRAY FOR THE WELFARE OF THE GOVERNMENT, FOR WERE IT NOT FOR THE FEAR THEREOF, ONE MAN WOULD SWALLOW UP ALIVE HIS FELLOW-MAN.¹¹ R. HANANIAH B. TERADION¹² SAID: [WHEN] TWO SIT TOGETHER AND THERE ARE NO WORDS OF TORAH [SPOKEN] BETWEEN THEM, LO, THIS [CONSTITUTES] A SESSION OF SCORNERS, AS IT IS SAID: NOR SAT HE IN THE SEAT OF THE SCORNFUL;¹³ BUT [WHEN] TWO SIT TOGETHER AND THERE ARE WORDS OF TORAH [SPOKEN] BETWEEN THEM, THE SHECHINAH¹⁴ ABIDES AMONG THEM, AS IT IS SAID: THEN THEY THAT FEARED THE LORD SPOKE ONE WITH ANOTHER;¹⁵ AND THE LORD HEARKENED AND HEARD, AND A BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE WAS WRITTEN BEFORE HIM, FOR THEM THAT FEARED THE LORD AND THAT THOUGHT UPON HIS NAME¹⁶. — I HAVE NO [SCRIPTURAL PROOF FOR THE PRESENCE OF THE SHECHINAH] EXCEPT [AMONG] TWO, WHENCE [IS THERE PROOF THAT] EVEN [WHEN THERE IS ONLY] ONE [PERSON]. THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, APPOINTS UNTO HIM A REWARD? — SINCE IT IS SAID: THOUGH HE SIT ALONE AND [MEDITATE] IN STILLNESS, YET HE TAKETH [A REWARD] UNTO HIMSELF.¹⁷

MISHNAH 3. R. SIMEON¹⁸ SAID: IF THREE HAVE EATEN AT ONE TABLE¹⁹ AND HAVE NOT SPOKEN THEREAT WORDS OF TORAH, [IT IS] AS IF THEY HAD EATEN SACRIFICES [OFFERED] TO THE DEAD,²⁰ FOR [OF SUCH PERSONS] IT IS SAID, FOR ALL TABLES ARE FULL OF FILTHY VOMIT, [THEY ARE] WITHOUT THE ALL-PRESENT.²¹ BUT, IF THREE HAVE EATEN AT ONE TABLE, AND HAVE SPOKEN THEREAT WORDS OF TORAH, [IT IS] AS IF THEY HAD EATEN AT THE TABLE OF THE ALL-PRESENT, BLESSED BE HE, AS IT IS SAID, THIS IS THE TABLE BEFORE THE LORD.²²

MISHNAH 4. R. HANINA B. HAKINAI²³ SAID: HE WHO KEEPS AWAKE AT NIGHT, AND HE WHO WALKS ON THE WAY ALONE²⁴ AND MAKES ROOM²⁵ IN HIS HEART FOR THAT WHICH IS FUTILE,²⁶ LO, THIS [MAN] INCURS GUILT [EXPIABLE] BY HIS LIFE.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. R. NEHUNIA²⁸ B. HAKKANAH²⁹ SAID: WHOEVER TAKES UPON HIMSELF THE YOKE OF THE TORAH,³⁰ THEY REMOVE FROM HIM THE YOKE OF GOVERNMENT³¹ AND THE YOKE OF WORLDLY CONCERNS,³² AND WHOEVER BREAKS OFF FROM HIMSELF³³ THE YOKE OF THE TORAH, THEY PLACE UPON HIM THE YOKE OF GOVERNMENT AND THE YOKE OF WORLDLY CONCERNS.

MISHNAH 6. R. HALAFTA³⁴ [A MAN] OF KEFAR HANANIA³⁵ SAID: [WHEN THERE ARE] TEN SITTING TOGETHER AND OCCUPYING THEMSELVES WITH TORAH, THE SHECHINAH ABIDES AMONG THEM, AS IT IS SAID: GOD STANDETH IN THE CONGREGATION OF GOD.³⁶ AND WHENCE [DO WE INFER THAT THE SAME APPLIES] EVEN [WHEN THERE ARE] FIVE? [FROM] THAT WHICH IS SAID: AND HE HATH FOUNDED HIS BAND UPON THE EARTH.³⁷ AND WHENCE [DO WE INFER THAT THE SAME APPLIES] EVEN [WHEN THERE ARE THREE?] [FROM] THAT WHICH IS SAID: IN THE MIDST OF THE JUDGES HE JUDGETH.³⁸ AND WHENCE [DO WE INFER THAT THE SAME APPLIES] EVEN [WHERE THERE ARE] TWO? [FROM] THAT WHICH IS SAID: THEN THEY THAT FEAR THE LORD SPOKE ONE WITH ANOTHER, AND THE LORD HEARKENED, AND HEARD ETC.³⁹ AND WHENCE [DO WE INFER THAT THE SAME SAME APPLIES] EVEN [WHEN THERE IS] ONE? [FROM] THAT WHICH IS SAID: IN EVERY

PLACE WHERE I CAUSE MY NAME TO BE MENTIONED I WILL COME UNTO THEE AND BLESS THEE.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 7. R. ELEAZAR⁴¹ (A MAN) OF BERTOTHA⁴² SAID: GIVE UNTO HIM OF THAT WHICH IS HIS, FOR THOU AND WHAT THOU HAST ARE HIS; EVEN SO [WE FIND IT EXPRESSED] IN [THE CASE OF] DAVID, [WHEN] HE SAID: FOR ALL THINGS COME OF THEE, AND OF THINE OWN HAVE WE GIVEN THEE.⁴³

R. SIMEON⁴⁴ SAID: WHEN ONE, WALKING ON THE ROAD, REHEARSES⁴⁵ [WHAT HE HAS LEARNT], AND BREAKS OFF⁴⁶ FROM HIS REHEARSING, AND SAYS, 'HOW FINE IS THIS TREE!' [OR] 'HOW FINE IS THIS NEWLY PLOUGHED FIELD!' SCRIPTURE⁴⁷ ACCOUNTS IT TO HIM AS IF⁴⁸ HE HAD INCURRED GUILT [EXPIABLE] BY HIS LIFE.⁴⁹

MISHNAH 8. R. DOSTAI⁵⁰ B. R. JANNAI⁵¹ SAID IN THE NAME OF⁵² R. MEIR: WHOEVER FORGETS ONE [SINGLE] WORD⁵³ OF HIS STUDY, SCRIPTURE ACCOUNTS IT UNTO HIM AS IF HE HAD INCURRED GUILT [EXPIABLE] BY HIS LIFE, AS IT IS SAID, ONLY TAKE HEED TO THY SELF AND KEEP THY SOUL DILIGENTLY, LEST THOU FORGET THE THINGS WHICH THINE EYES SAW⁵⁴. ONE COULD [HAVE INFERRED THAT THIS IS THE CASE] EVEN WHEN HIS STUDY PROVED [TOO] HARD FOR HIM; [THERE IS, THEREFORE] SOMETHING [FURTHER] TAUGHT [IN SCRIPTURE], SAYING: AND LEST THEY DEPART FROM THY HEART ALL THE DAYS OF THY LIFE.⁵⁵ THUS, HE DOES NOT INCUR GUILT EXPIABLE BY HIS LIFE UNLESS HE DELIBERATELY⁵⁶ SUFFERS THEM TO DEPART⁵⁷ FROM HIS HEART.

MISHNAH 9. R. HANINA B. DOSA⁵⁸ SAID: ANYONE WHOSE FEAR OF SIN⁵⁹ PRECEDES⁶⁰ HIS WISDOM, HIS WISDOM IS ENDURING,⁶¹ BUT ANYONE WHOSE WISDOM PRECEDES HIS FEAR OF SIN, HIS WISDOM IS NOT ENDURING.⁶² HE [ALSO] USED TO SAY: ANYONE WHOSE DEEDS EXCEED HIS WISDOM, HIS WISDOM IS ENDURING, BUT ANYONE WHOSE WISDOM EXCEEDS HIS DEEDS, HIS WISDOM IS NOT ENDURING.⁶³

MISHNAH 10. HE [ALSO] USED TO SAY: ANYONE FROM WHOM THE SPIRIT OF [HIS FELLOW-] CREATURES DERIVES SATISFACTION, FROM HIM THE SPIRIT OF THE ALL-PRESENT [TOO] DERIVES SATISFACTION.⁶⁴ BUT ANYONE FROM WHOM THE SPIRIT OF [HIS FELLOW-] CREATURES DERIVES NO SATISFACTION, FROM HIM THE SPIRIT OF THE ALL-PRESENT [TOO] DERIVES NO SATISFACTION.

R. DOSA B. HARKINAS⁶⁵ SAID: MORNING SLEEP,⁶⁶ MIDDAY WINE,⁶⁷ CHILDREN'S TALK⁶⁸ AND SITTING IN THE ASSEMBLIES OF THE IGNORANT⁶⁹ PUT A MAN OUT OF THE WORLD.⁷⁰

MISHNAH 11. R. ELEAZAR OF MODI⁷¹ SAID: ONE WHO PROFANES THINGS SACRED,⁷² AND ONE WHO SLIGHTS THE FESTIVALS, AND ONE WHO CAUSES HIS FELLOW-MAN'S FACE TO BLANCH⁷³ IN PUBLIC, AND ONE WHO NULLIFIES THE COVENANT OF OUR FATHER ABRAHAM,⁷⁴ PEACE BE UPON HIM,⁷⁵ AND HE WHO EXHIBITS IMPUDENCE TOWARDS THE TORAH,⁷⁶ EVEN THOUGH HE HAS TO HIS CREDIT⁷⁷ [KNOWLEDGE OF THE] TORAH⁷⁸ AND GOOD DEEDS, HE HAS NOT A SHARE IN THE LIFE OF THE WORLD TO COME.⁷⁹

MISHNAH 12. R. ISHMAEL SAID: BE QUICK⁸⁰ [TO RENDER SERVICE] TO A SUPERIOR⁸¹ AND EASY [OF APPROACH] TO A SUPPLIANT [FOR THY SERVICES],⁸² AND RECEIVE ALL MEN WITH CHEERFULNESS.⁸³

MISHNAH 13. R. AKIBA SAID: JESTING AND LIGHT-HEADEDNESS⁸⁴ LEAD A MAN ON⁸⁵ TO LEWDNESS;⁸⁶ TRADITION⁸⁷ IS A FENCE TO THE TORAH;⁸⁸ TITHES [FORM] A FENCE TO WEALTH,⁸⁹ VOWS A FENCE TO SELF-RESTRAINT;⁹⁰ A FENCE TO WISDOM IS SILENCE.⁹¹

MISHNAH 14. HE [ALSO] USED TO SAY: BELOVED IS MAN⁹² IN THAT HE WAS CREATED IN THE IMAGE [OF GOD]. [IT IS A MARK OF] SUPERABUNDANT LOVE [THAT] IT WAS MADE KNOWN TO HIM THAT HE HAD BEEN CREATED IN THE IMAGE [OF GOD], AS IT IS SAID: FOR IN THE IMAGE OF GOD MADE HE MAN.⁹³

BELOVED ARE ISRAEL IN THAT THEY WERE CALLED CHILDREN OF THE ALL-PRESENT. [IT WAS A MARK OF] SUPERABUNDANT LOVE [THAT] IT WAS MADE KNOWN TO THEM THAT THEY WERE CALLED CHILDREN OF THE ALL-PRESENT, AS IT IS SAID: YE ARE CHILDREN OF THE LORD YOUR GOD.⁹⁴ BELOVED ARE ISRAEL IN THAT A DESIRABLE INSTRUMENT⁹⁵ WAS GIVEN TO THEM. [IT WAS A MARK OF] SUPERABUNDANT LOVE [THAT] IT WAS MADE KNOWN TO THEM THAT THE DESIRABLE INSTRUMENT, WHEREWITH THE WORLD HAD BEEN CREATED,⁹⁶ WAS GIVEN TO THEM, AS IT IS SAID: FOR I GIVE YOU GOOD DOCTRINE FORSAKE NOT MY TEACHING.⁹⁷

MISHNAH 15.⁹⁸ EVERYTHING IS FORESEEN⁹⁹ BUT THE RIGHT [OF CHOICE]¹⁰⁰ IS GRANTED, AND THE WORLD IS JUDGED WITH GOODNESS,¹⁰¹ AND EVERYTHING IS IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PREPONDERANCE OF [MAN'S] DEED[S].¹⁰²

MISHNAH 16. HE¹⁰³ [ALSO] USED TO SAY: EVERYTHING¹⁰⁴ IS GIVEN AGAINST A PLEDGE,¹⁰⁵ AND A NET IS SPREAD OUT OVER ALL THE LIVING;¹⁰⁶ THE STORE¹⁰⁷ IS OPEN AND THE STOREKEEPER¹⁰⁸ ALLOWS CREDIT, BUT THE LEDGER¹⁰⁹ IS OPEN AND THE HAND WRITES,¹¹⁰ AND WHOEVER WISHES TO BORROW MAY COME AND BORROW; BUT THE COLLECTORS¹¹¹ GO ROUND REGULARLY EVERY DAY AND EXACT DUES FROM MAN, EITHER WITH HIS CONSENT OR WITHOUT HIS CONSENT,¹¹¹ AND THEY HAVE THAT ON WHICH THEY [CAN] RELY [IN THEIR CLAIMS], SEEING THAT THE JUDGMENT IS A RIGHTEOUS JUDGMENT,¹¹² AND EVERYTHING IS PREPARED FOR THE BANQUET.¹¹³

MISHNAH 17. R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH¹¹⁴ SAID: WHERE THERE IS NO TORAH¹¹⁵ THERE IS NO GOOD BREEDING;¹¹⁶ WHERE THERE IS NO GOOD BREEDING THERE IS NO TORAH.¹¹⁷ WHERE THERE IS NO WISDOM THERE IS NO FEAR [OF GOD]; WHERE THERE IS NO FEAR [OF GOD] THERE IS NO WISDOM.¹¹⁸ WHERE THERE IS NO UNDERSTANDING¹¹⁹ THERE IS NO KNOWLEDGE;¹²⁰ WHERE THERE IS NO KNOWLEDGE THERE IS NO UNDERSTANDING. WHERE THERE IS NO MEAL¹²¹ THERE IS NO TORAH;¹²² WHERE THERE IS NO TORAH THERE IS NO MEAL.¹²³ HE USED TO SAY: ONE WHOSE WISDOM EXCEEDS HIS DEEDS¹²⁴ UNTO WHAT IS HE [TO BE] COMPARED? UNTO A TREE THE BRANCHES WHEREOF ARE MANY AND THE ROOTS FEW, SO THAT WHEN THE WIND COMES, IT UPROOTS IT AND OVERTURNS IT UPON ITS FACE, AS IT IS SAID, FOR HE SHALL BE LIKE A TAMARISK IN THE DESERT, AND SHALL NOT SEE WHEN GOOD COMETH; BUT SHALL INHABIT THE PARCHED PLACES IN THE WILDERNESS, A SALT LAND AND NOT INHABITED.¹²⁵ BUT ONE WHOSE DEEDS EXCEED HIS WISDOM, UNTO WHAT IS HE [TO BE] COMPARED? UNTO A TREE THE BRANCHES WHEREOF ARE FEW AND THE ROOTS MANY, SO THAT EVEN IF ALL THE WINDS IN THE WORLD COME AND BLOW UPON IT, THEY MOVE IT NOT OUT OF ITS PLACE, AS IT IS SAID, FOR HE SHALL BE AS A TREE PLANTED BY THE WATERS AND

THAT SPREADETH OUT ITS ROOTS BY THE RIVER, AND SHALL NOT SEE WHEN HEAT COMETH, BUT ITS FOLIAGE SHALL BE LUXURIANT, AND SHALL NOT BE ANXIOUS IN THE YEAR OF DROUGHT, NEITHER SHALL CEASE FROM YIELDING FRUIT.¹²⁵

MISHNAH 18. R. ELIEZER HISMA¹²⁶ SAID: KINNIM [I. E. 'NESTS']¹²⁷ AND PITHEHE NIDDAH [I.E. 'THE STARTING TIMES OF A MENSTRUOUS WOMAN']¹²⁸ ARE ESSENTIAL ORDINANCES;¹²⁹ [THE STUDY OF THE] 'REVOLUTIONS' [OF THE HEAVENLY BODIES]¹³⁰ AND ARITHMETIC¹³¹ ARE AFTER COURSES¹³² OF WISDOM.

(1) Frankel, op. cit. pp. 57-8: he lived in Temple times and was a contemporary of Hillel. On Shammai's death he was invited to become Ab-Beth-din on condition that he should first withdraw opinions adhered to by him against his colleagues, but he refused. ('Eduy. V, 6.)

(2) V. supra II. 1.

(3) I and II ARN p. 69: four things, viz. (i) and (ii) as here, (iii) what is to become of thee? (iv) who is thy judge? This form of the admonition is ascribed in D.E.R. Ch. III to Simeon b. 'Azzai. V. Schechter's notes to ARN.

(4) Cf. Gen. III, 19, for dust thou art, and to dust shalt thou return.

(5) Cf. Job XXV, 6, . . . man that is a worm and the son of man, that is a maggot!

(6) V. Eccl. XI, 9, But know thou, that for all these things, God will bring thee unto judgment.

(7) An early appellation of God which has parallels in the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha. V. Marmorstein, op. cit. p. 90.

(8) A synonym for God introduced in the third century. Marmorstein, op. cit., p. 97 and pp. 216-17: at that period saint-worship spread in Christianity, and Judaism reacted by calling God הַקָּדוֹשׁ (and variations), implying that He is the only Holy Being. Here, therefore, in an early Tannaitic dictum, הַקָּדוֹשׁ must be by a later hand. It is not in Lowe's MS. From Tanhuma Gen. (ed. Buber, p. 120) Marmorstein concludes that the original reading was הַמָּקוֹם בְּרוּךְ הוּא, v. op. cit., p. 109, n. 13.

(9) Marmorstein, op. cit., p. 90, points out that בְּרוּךְ הוּא is an early adjunct to various names of God, and refers to Jub. XXII, 27, and the Book of Enoch. Consideration of the first point will induce humility; of the second, will prevent too strong a craving for worldly pleasures; of the third, will result in a fuller appreciation of the majesty and power of God. (After M., R. Jonah and B.)

(10) סֹגֵן הַכֹּהֲנִים cf. II Kings XXIII, 4, כֹּהֲנֵי הַמִּשְׁנָה the priests of the second rank, which Targum renders סֹגְנֵי כֹהֲנֵי. The 'Segan' was appointed to take the place of the High Priest on the Day of Atonement in the event of some occurrence preventing the latter from performing the offices of the Day, since those offices were strictly obligatory and might be performed by none except a properly constituted High Priest, v. Sanh. (Sonc. ed.) p. 97 n. 1.

(11) V. Jer. XXIX, 7, And seek ye the welfare of the city whither I have carried you away captive, and pray unto the Lord for it; for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace. For the expression 'swallow alive', cf. Prov. I, 12 (the wicked say.) Let us swallow them (i.e. the innocent) up alive.

(12) Father of Beruriah, the wife of R. Meir.

(13) Ps. I, 1, לִצִּים the plural, according to a Rabbinic exegetical rule, denotes a minimum of two. The following verse, but his delight is in the Law of the Lord shows, by contrast, that a session of the scornful means one at which there is no conversation on Torah.

(14) שְׂכִינָה the Divine Immanence, from the root שָׁכַן 'to dwell'. It has been thought that GR. (sc. GR.) in N.T. is a transliteration of שְׂכִינָה. This identification is however by no means established; v. Abelson, The Immanence of God in Rabbinic Literature, p. 80. He rejects the identification except in one case (John I, 14), where he admits only a 'seeming probability'. Marmorstein, op. cit., pp. 103-4, says, 'It is by no means impossible that שְׂכִינָה stands in the Aramaic versions for מָקוֹם, both of which point to the dwelling-place of God.' He also refers to the statement of Landau, Synonyma fur Gott, to the effect that שְׂכִינָה is the latest of God's names to be used before the period of the redaction of the Mishnah.

(15) Obviously two persons conversing.

(16) Mal. III, 16.

(17) Lam. III, 28. The rendering given here is one that was probably in the mind of the Sage who used the quotation here. Lowe's MS. has a different version of this section of the Mishnah, viz., 'as for one who sits and studies, Scripture accounts it unto him as if he fulfilled the whole Torah, as it is said, then one sitteth alone (and meditateth) in stillness, it - is as he hath taken (the yoke of the Torah) upon himself.' R. Jonah cites a similar version. 'I have no etc.' is omitted according to MV, p. 506, in the text of Ephraim of Regensburg and other 'careful texts', but M. and R. Jonah had it.

- (18) R. Simeon b. Yohai, a disciple of R. Akiba. In II ARN, Ch. XXXIV, the first part of the Mishnah is attributed to R. Eleazar son of Zadok.
- (19) Three males over the age of thirteen constitute a quorum for a corporate form of the Opening of Grace after Meals. This rule possibly has its origin in the custom reflected here, as the recital of Grace after meals was in certain circumstances considered as covering also the desirable custom of speaking words of Torah at the table.
- (20) I.e., idols, v. Ps. CVI, 28, They joined themselves also to Ba'al-Pe'or, and ate the sacrifices of the dead. Cf. Isa. VIII, 19.
- (21) Isa. XXVIII, 8. The second half is translated here in accordance with the Aggadic rendering of בלי מקום (in the Versions, and no place [is clean]), viz., to the effect that God is not present at such a table; and inasmuch as God comes wherever His name is mentioned or Torah studied (v. Mishnah 6), God's absence can only be due to the absence of words of Torah. Elijah Wilna draws attention to the verse following, Whom shall one teach knowledge etc. as indicating that what was lacking at those tables was Torah.
- (22) Ezek. XLI, 22, where it refers to the Altar. By designating the Altar as 'table', the text is taken to convey that there are times when the table of man can become as hallowed even as the altar — when it is consecrated by words of Torah spoken thereat.
- (23) A disciple of R. Akiba.
- (24) MV., B., L.: 'alone' is also to be understood with 'he who keeps awake at night'.
- (25) For this meaning of the Pi'el of פנה cf. Gen. XXIV, 31.
- (26) Most commentators take this to qualify the two preceding clauses, as there is nothing wrong with keeping awake at night (according to some, even alone) as long as one is occupied with worthy thoughts, e.g., with prayer (cf. Ps. CXIX, 62, at midnight I will rise to give thanks unto Thee . . .), or with Torah (cf. Josh. I, 8, This book of the Law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night. Ps. LXIII, 7, When I remember Thee on my couch, and meditate on Thee in the night-watches). Nor is there moral danger in walking alone when similarly occupied, cf. Deut. VI, 7, and thou shalt talk of them (i.e., the words commanded by God) . . . when thou walkest by the way. Some versions 'and he who makes room in his heart . . .' thus making three categories of men who endanger their own lives.
- (27) Or 'incurs guilty responsibility for his life'.
- (28) Probably a form of הוניה (Onias), or of יוחנן (Johanan). He was a contemporary of R. Johanan b. Zakkai and a teacher of R. Ishmael.
- (29) Some read ha-Kanah. The meaning and derivation of the name is obscure. קנה Kanah occurs in Josh. XVI, 8, XVII, 8, as the name of a brook or wadi, and ibid. XIX, 28, as the name of a place. Geiger, relying on a reading הקנה, conjectures 'the zealot', v. Bacher Agada d. Tannaiten I, p. 58. n. 1.
- (30) V. Schechter, Some Aspects, Chapters V-VII and XIV. Buchler, Sin and Atonement, pp. 88ff., says the 'yoke of the Torah' is not exactly synonymous with the 'yoke of the Kingdom of Heaven,' and refers particularly to the duty of the study of Torah.
- (31) Jast. s.v. מלכות 'the yoke of secular government, i.e. the burden of office.' Buchler, op. cit., 89-91; the yoke of the Imperial Government.
- (32) The strain imposed by the struggle for existence and striving for wealth and by various forms of temptation; cf. Buchler, op. cit., pp. 89 and 91, n. 3, 'worldly occupation'. In the 13th century this and similar passages were assumed to mean that poor scholars were supported by the communities.
- (33) V. Schechter, op. cit., pp. 220-221.
- (34) A contemporary of R. Akiba. P.B. versions add 'b. Dosa'.
- (35) The present Kefr Anan, a village in Galilee.
- (36) Ps. LXXXII, I. A 'congregation' consists of a minimum of ten, as the term 'Edah is used in Num. XIV, 27, for ten men, v. Sanh. 2a. A 'congregation of God' is obviously one that is constituted in honour of God.
- (37) Amos IX, 6. For אגדתו A.J.V. (following BDB) gives vault. R. Halafta however understood it as band (A.V. troop). M. says אגדה means a number of things held together by the five fingers of the hand, as well as the hand itself, consisting as it does of five separate fingers knit together.
- (38) Ps. LXXXII, 1. The smallest Jewish Court consisted of three judges. In some versions (e.g. MV, R., B., Lowe's MS.) this Scriptural text is quoted for five (counting the two litigants in addition to the three judges), and Amos IX, 6, is cited for three as אגוד means a bundle of three, cf. M.; B. M. I, 8, [Of] how many [does] an 'Aguddah' of Shetaroth (= documents) [consist]? — [Of] three tied one to another. The term is also used for the binding of the ceremonial palm branch, myrtle, and willow twigs (Lev. XXIII, 40) (M. Sukkah III, 8). An 'Aguddah' of hyssop (Ex. XII, 22) consists of three stalks (M. Parah XI, 9). Tosaf. to Sukkah, 13a, referring to our Mishnah, upholds the allocation of Biblical texts adopted in the versions used for this translation, since (a) in Ber. 6a, where the subject is the Divine Presence among ten (at prayer), three (sitting as judges), and two (studying Torah), the verse quoted for three is as here, viz., Ps. LXXXII, 1, In the midst of judges etc. (there is no reference there to five); and (b) a comparison with Isa. XLVIII, 13, suggests that אגוד in Amos IX, 6, may be understood to mean a hand and would thus be appropriate as an allusion to five.

(39) Mal. III, 16. 'One with another' indicates the presence of two.

(40) Ex. XX, 21. 'Thee' indicates one person only who is responsible for mentioning God's Name.

(41) Some versions: b. Judah; a contemporary of R. Akiba.

(42) In Upper Galilee. Baer thinks it is identical with Berotha (Ezek. XLVII, 16), and Berothai (II Sam. VIII, 8), the precise location of which is uncertain (v. BDB).

(43) I Chron. XXIX, 14.

(44) Some versions: R. Jacob (b. Korshai); one of the teachers of Rabbi.

(45) This rendering is preferred because (a) the root bears that meaning, and (b) it is only recapitulation of that which has already been learnt that is recommended for wayfarers (v. Ta'an. 10b).

(46) ומפסיק seems to imply a deliberate act.

(47) Rashi omits this, as no scriptural text is quoted here. Lowe's MS. has the impersonal form מעלין עליו 'They account it to him'. It may be that the verse intended here is omitted because it is quoted in the next paragraph.

(48) MV and R. emphasize 'as if' because actually he does not thereby forfeit his life, as, after all, exclaiming 'how fine, etc.' is a form of adoration of God. It is only because learning is so much more important that the breaking off therefrom deserves severe condemnation.

(49) V. supra 4, n. 5.

(50) A Greek name, GR. **

(51) Probably a graecized form of Johanan.

(52) To say a thing in the name of him who said it, was a point of honour among the Rabbis (v. infra VI, 6), even as it was of the essence of a tradition of learning.

(53) Point, detail or subject.

(54) Viz., the 'righteous statutes and judgments, etc.' of the previous verse. Deut. IV, 9.

(55) Ibid.

(56) Lit. 'he sits down and . . .'

(57) Or 'turns them away' or 'removes them'.

(58) A disciple of R. Johanan b. Zakkai.

(59) I.e., his moral convictions and conduct.

(60) Takes precedence in his estimation (B.); or, precedes in order of acquisition. If one already possesses firmly acquired moral habits, wisdom will strengthen his attachment to them and this practical result, gained through wisdom, will encourage him to seek more wisdom (M.).

(61) I ARN, Ch. XXII, cites Ps. CXI, 10, The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Cf. Prov. I, 7, The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge, and ibid. III, 7, Be not wise in thine own eyes; Fear the Lord, and depart from evil.

(63) I ARN, ibid. cites Ex. XXIV, 7, All that the Lord hath spoken we shall observe and hearken (rendered in accordance with the Rabbinic interpretation which regards this as a declaration promising observance of the commandments, made by Israel before they had even heard the commandments). The general sense seems to be that one's observance of commandments should not depend on one's having achieved, by one's own wisdom, a full understanding of them. The more precepts one practises, the more will one seek to extend one's knowledge as to their meaning, purpose, and manner of observance. If, however, one acquires wisdom which he does not apply to his daily conduct, he will see no use in his wisdom and drop it.

(64) V. Prov. III, 4, So shalt thou find grace and good favour in the sight of God and man.

- (65) The names are said to be Greek, GR. and GR. Maim. Introduction to 'Zera'im', Ch. 4, says he was a contemporary of Simeon the Righteous and lived on till the days of R. Akiba. Hyman, A., Toledoth, suggests that Maim. relies on J. Yeb. I and Yeb. 16a. If these passages be taken literally, R. Dosa actually knew also Ezra and Haggai, but, the reference to the seat once occupied by Haggai may easily have been to a seat so designated by a tradition known to R. Dosa (so already Hyman). He was a contemporary of R. Johanan b. Zakkai and a rich man. His dictum here reflects conduct prevailing in his social stratum. V. Bacher, Tradition, p. 29. AT I, p. 157.
- (66) Late sleeping is decried in Prov. XXVI, 14, The door is turning upon its hinges, and the sluggard is still upon his bed. Early rising is, by implication, recommended, e.g. Ps. CXIX, 62, At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee; ibid. 147-8, I rose early at dawn and cried, I hoped in Thy word. Mine eyes forestalled the night-watches, that I might meditate in Thy word. Some take it to mean morning sleep that makes one late for the proper time for reciting the Shema', v. supra p. 22, n. 8.
- (67) Because it makes one unfit for meditation or study.
- (68) R. Jonah points out that just because of its pleasantness, which is due to love for children, one is likely to be tempted to listen to it for too long, and thus lose time that should be given to the study of Torah.
- (69) Not necessary or casual intercourse with them is condemned here, but habitual and prolonged stay in the society of the characteristically ignorant and boorish, involving participation in their inane pursuits.
- (70) For the phrase cf. supra II, 11.
- (71) A contemporary of R. Johanan b. Zakkai whose disciple he may have been. His aggadic interpretations were much sought after (v. Shab. 55b). He met his death through the treacherous cunning of a Samaritan informer who denounced him to Bar-Cochba during the siege of Bethar, ca. 135.
- (72) קדשים. Objects belonging or due to the sanctuary, either absolutely, in accordance with scriptural enactments, or by virtue of having been voluntarily dedicated thereto.
- (73) I.e., puts him to shame. MV. reads המאדים 'he who causes etc . . . to redden.' המלבין is explained in B.M. 58b: 'the blush subsides and whiteness takes its place.' .
- (74) 'Of our father Abraham' not found in the parallels where the original reference is apparently to setting at naught God's covenant (with Israel) in general, e.g., Sifre to Num. XV, 22, ed. Friedman, א III, p. 31b, where the covenant is identified with the Torah. In J. Sanh. XI, p. 27c, however, the phrase is explained: 'one stretching the foreskin' (to disguise circumcision). It seems that originally מפר ברית meant nullifying the covenant in general and that R. Eleazar of Modin applied it specifically to the covenant of circumcision. V. Buchler, op. cit., pp. 97ff.
- (75) Not found in most editions.
- (76) Omitting (as do parallels cited supra n. 5) שלא כהלכה not according to the Halachah'. R. Hillel (a commentator on Aboth) quoted by Friedmann, Sifre, ibid. explains מועיו פניו מחציף פניו R. Jonah מועיו פניו, which explanations presuppose the absence of שלא כהלכה, in their versions. Geiger, retaining כהלכה, understands by the phrase the allegorical interpretation of the Torah not in accordance with Halachah, (i.e., the authoritative rulings of the Law), with special reference to the Christians who taught that it is only the ideas symbolized by the precepts that mattered, but not their actual observance. Bacher (ערכי המדרש (תנאים) p. 101, says שלא כהלכה was added by one who took פנים in the sense of 'interpretations' or 'meanings' (v. MV. p. 512), thus making the phrase mean 'publishing interpretations of the Torah'; as this could not, in itself, be considered a sin at all, much less such a grave one as contemplated here, he felt bound to add כהלכה i.e., interpretations opposed to Halachah. But פנים in the sense of 'meanings' is not found in Tannaitic sources, its earliest use being by the Amora R. Jannai. V. Buchler, op. cit., p. 103. Guttman בחינת קיום המצוות (in Bericht jud.-Theol. Seminar, Breslau 1930), pp. 62-4, understands the allegorizers of the Alexandrian school who rejected the literal sense of the commandments and accepted only the symbolic.
- (77) Lit., 'in his hand'.
- (78) MV. says 'we do not read תורה', which word is also omitted in Lowe's MS. (rightly so according to Guttman, op. cit., p. 64, n. 4.)
- (79) Sifre to Num. XV, 31: 'he deserves to be pushed out of the world.' R. Eleazar's stricture certainly refers to the antinomian teachings of Jewish Gnostics. V. Buchler, op. cit., p. 100. Guttman, op. cit., p. 64, points out that the first results of the allegorizing methods of Hellenistic Jews were the rejection of 1) circumcision (and obliteration of its effects), (v. I Macc. XVII); 2) sacrifices קדשים (v. particularly the Sibylline Oracles); 3) the holy days מועדות (cf. Philo, who denounces those who honour the Sabbath idea on account of the allegorical significance of the number seven, yet do not observe the Sabbath).

(80) So B. קל often occurs in the Bible in the sense of 'swift', cf. infra V, 20.

(81) קל ראש often so in Bible. The reading, in Lowe's MS., קל ראש which, if correct, would have the meaning (unparalleled elsewhere) of 'pliant' (as opposite to 'strong-headed') is to some extent borne out by MV. a.l.: הקל את ראשך

(82) תשחורת a difficult word. Its meaning here can only be surmised. There are various renderings of the word and these affect the meaning of the dictum. Some deriving it from שחור, translate 'a black-haired, i.e. young, man' (as in Ekah Rab. to I, 2) which would make the whole mean 'be deferential to your seniors and condescending to your juniors.' Others connect it with שחורר 'officer' (v. Sifre Deut. 6, p. 66b); the sense would thus be 'be submissive to a ruler and pleasant even to a lesser official.' Another translation is 'press-gang' (as in Seder Elijah R. Ch. 1), making the saying a piece of advice to accommodate oneself to supreme authority and its executive representatives however oppressive. The rendering adopted here derives תשחורת from שחר 'to seek', 'and appears to give, in conjunction with the context, the best sense.

(83) Cf. supra I, 15.

(84) Levity, irresponsibility. Some (e.g. R. Jonah) 'jesting when combined with light-headedness.'

(85) Lit. 'cause (someone's) feet to move', cf. Hos. XI, 3.

(86) According to Buchler. Some Types of Jewish Palestinian Piety, pp. 62-7, 'Jesting' שחוק denotes trifling with sexual modesty. The verb (in the form צחק) has already in Biblical Hebrew (Gen. XXXIX, 14, 17) the meaning of immoral advances. שחוק is often clearly so used in Rabbinic Hebrew. In ARN I and II this part of the dictum is brought into line with the parts following, viz. 'a fence (safeguard) for honour is not to jest (or, act immodestly).'

(88) Cf. supra I, 1.

(89) Omitted in Lowe's MS. and in ARN. The commentators explain the saying by quoting, from Shab. 119a, the play on the words עשר בשביל שתתעשר (Deut. XIV, 22), viz. עשר בשביל שתתעשר, 'Give tithes in order that thou mayest be made rich' (by R. Johanan, 3rd cent.). Our dictum would thus mean that the giving of tithes is a fence which protects, and even makes for an increase in, wealth. L., however, interprets 'tithes are A fence against (v. end of next note) the dangers attending the possession of wealth; wealth is liable to make its possessor too proud, and lead him to attribute his success to himself alone and to discount or disregard the factor of God's help, but the giving of tithes is a safeguard against such a notion, as it is bound to bring to his mind the truth that the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof (Ps. XXIV, 1). Cf. Deut. VIII, 13-18, lest when thy silver and gold is multiplied . . . then thy heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God . . . and thou say in thy heart: 'My power and the might of my hand hath gotten me this wealth.' But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth.

(90) פרישות Perishuth. The manner of life of the פרושים (Pharisees); v. M. a. l. and more fully Nahmanides to Lev. XIX, 2, who says, 'separating oneself, withdrawing and keeping away, restraining oneself, from going to the full length of permitted conduct, when taking such advantage is likely to conduce to something unseemly, e.g. gluttony, insobriety, unbecoming language, sexual over-indulgence. Such self-restraint is the standard of the conduct of the פרושים (Pharisees).' Vows can be helpful to Perishuth, inasmuch as when one has made vows with regard to particular things, he has thereby acquired the capacity for a general self-discipline and a more complete aloofness from everything improper. I ARN, Ch. XXVI and II ARN, Ch. XXXIII, invert the saying סייג לנדרים פרישות 'A fence to vows is self-restraint'. As we know that R. Akiba discouraged vows (I ARN, Ch. XXVI, v. Buchler, op. cit., p. 64, n. 1), this reading may be the correct one and the dictum would mean, Perishuth is a fence (guard, defence) against vows, i.e., a life of Perishuth makes it unnecessary to indulge in vows, which in themselves are not wholly commendable. v. Schechter, Some Aspects, pp. 199-218, Buchler, op. cit., pp. 62-5.

(91) Cf. supra I, 17. Buchler, op. cit., p. 72, contends that as safeguards for Torah and Hokma are given, the admonitions in this Mishnah were intended, in the first place, for scholars. The reference to Perishuth bears out this contention.

(92) L. utilizes this passage to controvert the notion prevailing in some quarters, that the Rabbinic conception of God's fatherly love was narrow and chauvinistic. It is inconceivable, he says, that one should deny the merits of eminent Gentiles who have rendered great humanitarian services, such as Jenner, the pioneer in vaccination, Guttenberg, the inventor of printing, Drake, who introduced into Europe the potato which has often averted the worst consequences of famine, Reuchlin, the great humanist who at the beginning of the 16th century defended the Talmud against the machinations of the apostate Pfefferkorn, who instigated Emperor Maximilian I to order the confiscation and destruction of the Talmud.

(93) Gen. IX, 6 is quoted and not I, 26, 27, because whilst in the latter passage the fact is just recorded, in the one quoted we are told that God informed man (to wit Noah) of the fact.

(94) Deut. XIV, 1 is quoted and not Israel is my first-born son, Ex. IV, 22, because the latter was addressed to Pharaoh; the first occasion the Israelites were told that they were God's children was in the passage quoted, v. Buchler, Sin and Atonement, p. 80; Kohler, Theologie des Judentums, p. 195.

(95) I.e., the Torah, cf. Ps. XIX, 11, More desired are they (the Ordinances of the Lord) than gold, yea than much fine gold.

(96) The idea that the Torah (or Wisdom) pre-existed creation, and 'assisted' thereat, or formed the 'architect's plan' thereof, is said to go back to such passages as Prov. III, 19, The Lord by wisdom founded the earth; ibid. VIII, 22-32. (Wisdom says), The Lord made me as the beginning of his way, the first of His works of old . . . When there were no depths . . . no fountains . . . before the mountains, before the hills was I brought forth . . . While as yet He had not made the earth . . . when He established the heavens, I was there . . . then was I by him a nursling . . . The Hebrew for nursling אִמּוֹן was understood as אִמּוֹן a craftsman' or 'architect'.

(97) Prov. IV, 2.

(98) Cf. I ARN, Ch. XXXIX; II Ch. XLIV. In the latter this Mishnah and the following are in the name of R. Eliezer son of R. Jose the Galilean.

(99) MV., 'seen'. i.e., God sees all. The verb צָפָה often means looking ahead in time or distance. When this is said of God, 'foreseen' is, strictly speaking, not applicable or admissible, as God is independent of time and space, i.e., there is with Him neither past nor future nor distance, and he 'sees' everything at once. Marmorstein, The Old Rabbinic Doctrine of God, p. 159, points out that the idea of God's prescience in Rabbinic literature goes back to Simeon b. Shetah (or Judah b. Tabbari) who called God בעל מחשבות (Master of Thoughts); Sanh. 37b, Schechter, Some Aspects, p. 285, refers to ARN (Addenda), pp. 75a and 81b, from which it would seem that צָפוּי was taken by some to refer to man. In one case (p. 75a) 'everything is seen by man: by means of the keys of wisdom' granted to him, man can learn what the heavenly likeness is, and choose the right way.' The other reference (p. 81b) takes צָפוּי to mean 'covered', 'hidden' (from the root צָפָה which in the Pi'el form means 'cover', 'hide') and explains: since man sinned, the light of wisdom was hidden from him and he knows not what will happen in the future.' MV., p. 514, and Aruch s.v. סַעַד quote a reading צָפוּן 'hidden'.

(100) Or 'Authority (over self)' i.e., free-will. v. Oesterley, The Sayings of the Jewish Fathers a.l. Commentators quote Deut. XXX, 19, I have set before thee life and death, the blessing and the curse; therefore choose life . . . as the basis for the doctrine of free-will in Judaism. Kohler, op cit. p. 175, cites Gen. IV, 7, and the Midrash thereto. Schechter, op. cit., p. 284 ff. says the parallels in ARN make it doubtful whether R. Akiba here really meant the antithesis of predestination and free-will. Kohler, op. cit., Ch. XXXVII, points out that Judaism teaches free-will in matters of ethical conduct.

(101) Cf. Ps. CXLV, 9, The Lord is good to all; and his tender mercies are over all his works. This, according to the Rabbis, includes even the wicked.

(102) Readings differ here. Some omit רוב e.g., Lowe's MS., v. Taylor a.l. The version in Aruch ibid. and M. instead of והכל read אבל לא 'but not according to. . .' M. explains: Divine goodness is exercised towards man not by reason of the greatness of a deed, but according to the number of deeds, i.e., repeated and ever new good deeds. But see L. The Version in Aruch explains: Men are judged by God's goodness and not in accordance with their doings. Bacher AT. I, p. 275, n. 2, refers to R. Akiba's saying in Koh. R. to X, 1, 'Man is adjudged in accordance with the preponderance of his deeds; he should always consider himself half guilty and half innocent; one more good deed and it is well with him, one more evil deed, woe to him.' Some seem to understand by העולם mankind as a whole; and by הכל all men in their individual capacities. Others: 'In this world (העולם) all are judged with kindness (else sinners would be condemned outright); but in the hereafter, everybody (והכל) is judged according to (the Preponderance of) his (good or bad) deeds.'

(103) V. supra, p. 38, n. 4.

(104) Life and all its benefits.

(105) A guarantee of good conduct. MV.: the soul.

- (106) All are liable to be caught if they attempt to evade the pledge. For the expression, cf. Ezek. XXXII, 3.
- (107) The divine store of gifts intended for man.
- (108) God.
- (109) פנקס == GR. writing-tablet, list, register, account-book.
- (110) Cf. supra II, 1.
- (111) The agents for the execution of divine justice, e.g. suffering, calamity, sickness. (12) Or (lit.) 'knowledge', i.e., whether or not he realizes, or acknowledges, that the visitations coming upon him are in punishment for his sins. Our translation means: whether he willingly undergoes penance for his sins, or he unrepentantly resents the punishment.
- (112) There is no vindictiveness in it.
- (113) The reward of those who discharge their obligations is assured in the hereafter. B.: 'everybody is fitted for the banquet,' i.e., all men are ab initio intended to have a share in the spiritual feast of the world to come. R. Meshullam b. Kalonymos quoted in Aruch s.v. סעד and in MV., says 'banquet', here is an expression for death, and explains thus (after Shab. 152a): Just as all enter for a banquet by one entrance, but are allotted seats at the banquet according to their status, so at death, it is true, all go through the same door, but once they have entered the hereafter they are treated severally in accordance with their merits. R. Jonah: 'The purpose of all this is to make ready for the banquet of the future life.' Incidentally this Mishnah reflects the traders' methods of those days.
- (114) A younger contemporary of R. Gamaliel II, R. Joshua b. Hananiah etc. He was chosen Nasi at a very young age when R. Gamaliel, who had become unpopular, was forced to vacate the Patriarchate. When the latter was restored, R. Eleazar b. Azariah retired to the second office of Ab-Beth-din. He used his great wealth to facilitate the approaches made by the Rabbis to the Roman authorities on behalf of the Jews.
- (115) Used here for religion in general, any religion that postulates divine authority for moral conduct (L.).
- (116) Or 'cultured behaviour', Derech Eretz. Unless rooted in religion (in the above sense), moral and cultured conduct lacks the source which feeds and sustains it perennially.
- (117) Conversely, religious belief is sterile when it does not express itself in ethical conduct and becoming behaviour.
- (118) V. supra 9 and notes.
- (119) בינה Binah, The ability to make logical deductions (v. B.).
- (120) דעת Da'ath, The ability to arrive at the reasons for things (v. B.). Perhaps better rendered '(capacity for) thinking.'
- (121) קמח flour v. infra V. 15 p. 69 n. 10.
- (122) Lack of food impairs one's mental powers. Or, if Torah is understood here as earlier in the paragraph, starvation is liable to have an adverse effect on one's moral faculties.
- (123) Cf. Deut. VIII, 3, Man doth not live by bread only, but by everything that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live.
- (124) Cf. supra Mishnah 9.
- (125) Jer. XVII, 6 and 8. Both quotations are omitted in Lowe's MS. In the context, the first refers to 'the man that trusteth in man,' the second to 'the man that trusteth in the Lord.' Placing wisdom before deeds means relying on unaided human abilities. The practice of deeds commanded by God, whether or not one's mind comprehends them fully, means placing implicit trust in Him.
- (126) A disciple of R. Akiba: In ARN I and II only the second half of this Mishnah is attributed to him; the first half is in the name of R. Johanan b. Nuri.
- (127) The name for a section of laws dealing with bird. sacrifices (v. Lev. XII, 8; XIV, 4, 22, 49; XV, 14, 29).
- (128) A term for the regulations whereby the times of commencement, and the duration, of 'uncleanness of women, by reason of menstruation, are calculated and determined.
- (129) גופי הלכות . Lowe's MS. גופי תורה .
- (130) Astronomy.
- (131) So MV, also Jastrow, who derives it from GR. From this the term גמטריא could have acquired its better known meaning, viz. the use, for exegetical purposes, of the letters of alphabet in their numerical value, or as initials of words. Another derivation is from GR.; the word then meaning 'mensuration' in its various forms. V. Sanh. (Sonc. ed.) p. 121, n. 4.
- (132) Desirable but not essential. Some: 'appetizers' that create a desire for further knowledge. Others derive from GR. 'the outer circle' (of wisdom) as opposed to גופי הלכות, the core and essence of learning. The reason for this differentiation is that the former consist of positive commandments, i.e. 'deeds', 'works', whilst the latter are typical of 'wisdom'. The particular instances of the former appear to have been chosen for the following reasons: In one case, (kinnim), the precepts concerned are operative only when the Temple in Jerusalem exists and functions, and in the other, (Pithehe Niddah, they deal with unpleasant details; and yet, the inference is, even these precepts, apparently of lesser moment and of lesser attractiveness, form part of the essence of knowledge for the Israelite. The instances in the latter category are singled out, because in one case (astronomy), it is the most comprehensive branch of wisdom and is, in addition, calculated to increase our adoration of God by giving man a fuller conception of His wonderful Universe, and in the other case (arithmetic or mensuration) it is a science of great mind-exercising, as well as of highly utilitarian, value. Even so, the inference is, these sciences are of secondary importance to the study of the practical precepts of the Torah.

Mishna - Mas. Avoth Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. BEN ZOMA¹ SAID: WHO IS HE THAT IS WISE? HE WHO LEARNS FROM EVERY MAN, AS IT IS SAID: FROM ALL WHO TAUGHT ME HAVE I GAINED UNDERSTANDING, WHEN THY TESTIMONIES WERE MY MEDITATION.² WHO IS HE THAT IS MIGHTY?³ HE WHO SUBDUES HIS [EVIL] INCLINATION,⁴ AS IT IS SAID: HE THAT IS SLOW TO ANGER IS BETTER THAN THE MIGHTY; AND HE THAT RULETH HIS SPIRIT THAN HE THAT TAKETH A CITY.⁵ WHO IS HE THAT IS RICH?⁶ HE WHO REJOICES IN HIS LOT, AS IT IS SAID: WHEN THOU EATEST OF THE LABOUR OF THY HANDS, HAPPY SHALT THOU BE, AND IT SHALL BE WELL WITH THEE.⁷ HAPPY SHALT THOU BE — IN THIS WORLD, AND IT SHALL BE WELL WITH THEE — IN THE WORLD TO COME. WHO IS HE THAT IS HONOURED? HE WHO HONOURS HIS FELLOW-MEN, AS IT IS SAID: FOR THEM THAT HONOUR ME I WILL HONOUR, AND THEY THAT DESPISE ME SHALL BE LIGHTLY ESTEEMED.⁸

MISHNAH 2. BEN 'AZZAI⁹ SAID: RUN¹⁰ TO [PERFORM] AN EASY PRECEPT,¹¹ AS [YOU WOULD] IN [THE CASE OF] A DIFFICULT ONE,¹² AND FLEE¹³ FROM TRANSGRESSION; FOR [ONE] PRECEPT DRAWS [IN ITS TRAIN¹⁴ ANOTHER] PRECEPT, AND [ONE] TRANSGRESSION DRAWS [IN ITS TRAIN ANOTHER] TRANSGRESSION;¹⁵ FOR THE RECOMPENSE FOR [PERFORMING] A PRECEPT IS A PRECEPT, AND THE RECOMPENSE FOR [COMMITTING] A TRANSGRESSION IS A TRANSGRESSION.

MISHNAH 3. HE USED TO SAY:¹⁶ DESPISE NOT ANY MAN, AND DISCRIMINATE NOT¹⁷ AGAINST ANY THING,¹⁸ FOR THERE IS NO MAN THAT HAS NOT HIS HOUR, AND THERE IS NO THING THAT HAS NOT ITS PLACE.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. R. LEVITAS (A MAN) OF JABNEH²⁰ SAID: BE EXCEEDING²¹ LOWLY OF SPIRIT,²² FOR THE EXPECTATION OF MORTAL MAN IS [THAT HE WILL TURN TO] WORMS.²³

R. JOHANAN B. BEROKAH²⁴ SAID: WHOEVER PROFANES THE NAME OF HEAVEN²⁵ IN SECRET,²⁶ THEY²⁷ EXACT THE PENALTY FROM HIM IN THE OPEN.²⁸ [IN THIS RESPECT, IT IS ALL] ONE [WHETHER ONE HAS ACTED] IN ERROR, AND [IT IS ALL] ONE²⁹ [WHETHER ONE HAS ACTED] WITH PRESUMPTION, IN [A CASE WHERE THE RESULT IS] THE PROFANATION OF THE NAME.³⁰

MISHNAH 5. R. ISHMAEL³¹ SAID: HE WHO LEARNS IN ORDER TO TEACH,³² THEY AFFORD HIM³³ ADEQUATE MEANS TO LEARN AND TO TEACH; AND HE WHO LEARNS IN ORDER TO PRACTISE,³⁴ THEY AFFORD HIM ADEQUATE MEANS TO LEARN AND TO TEACH³⁵ AND TO PRACTISE.

R. ZADOK³⁶ SAID: MAKE THEM³⁷ NOT A CROWN WHEREWITH TO MAGNIFY

THYSELF, NOR A SPADE³⁸, WHEREWITH TO DIG;³⁹ EVEN SO WAS HILLEL WONT TO SAY, 'AND HE WHO MAKES [UNWORTHY] USE OF THE CROWN [OF LEARNING] PASSETH AWAY.'⁴⁰ LO, [HENCE] THOU HAST LEARNT: ANYONE WHO DERIVES WORLDLY BENEFIT⁴¹ FROM THE WORDS OF THE TORAH, REMOVES HIS LIFE FROM THE WORLD.⁴²

MISHNAH 6. R. JOSE⁴³ SAID: WHOEVER HONOURS THE TORAH⁴⁴ IS HIMSELF⁴⁵ HONoured BY MEN, AND WHOEVER DISHONOURS THE TORAH IS HIMSELF DISHONoured BY MEN.

MISHNAH 7. R. ISHMAEL⁴⁶ SAID: HE WHO REFRAINS HIMSELF FROM JUDGMENT,⁴⁷ RIDS HIMSELF OF ENMITY⁴⁸ AND ROBBERY⁴⁹ AND VAIN SWEARING;⁵⁰ BUT HE WHOSE HEART IS OVER-CONFIDENT IN GIVING A JUDICIAL DECISION,⁵¹ IS FOOLISH,⁵² WICKED⁵³ AND OF UNCOUTH SPIRIT.⁵⁴

MISHNAH 8. HE USED TO SAY: JUDGE NOT ALONE,⁵⁵ FOR NONE MAY JUDGE ALONE SAVE ONE;⁵⁶ AND SAY NOT ACCEPT MY VIEW', FOR THEY ARE FREE BUT NOT THOU.⁵⁷

MISHNAH 9. R. JONATHAN⁵⁸ SAID: WHOEVER FULFILS THE TORAH OUT OF [A STATE OF] POVERTY,⁵⁹ HIS END [WILL BE] TO FULFIL IT OUT OF [A STATE OF] WEALTH;⁶⁰ AND WHOEVER DISCARDS THE TORAH OUT OF [A STATE OF] WEALTH,⁶¹ HIS END [WILL BE] TO DISCARD IT OUT OF [A STATE OF] POVERTY.⁶²

MISHNAH 10. R. MEIR⁶³ SAID: DO [RATHER] LESS BUSINESS, AND BUSY THYSELF [MAINLY] WITH THE TORAH,⁶⁴ AND BE LOWLY OF SPIRIT BEFORE ALL MEN.⁶⁵ IF THOU HAST [ONCE] BEEN IDLE IN [REGARD] TO] THE TORAH, THOU WILT HAVE MANY [MORE] OCCASIONS FOR IDLENESS BEFORE THEE,⁶⁶ BUT IF THOU HAST LABOURED AT THE TORAH, THERE IS⁶⁷ MUCH REWARD TO GIVE UNTO THEE.⁶⁸

MISHNAH 11. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB⁶⁹ SAID: HE WHO PERFORMS ONE PRECEPT ACQUIRES FOR HIMSELF ONE ADVOCATE,⁷⁰ AND HE WHO COMMITS ONE TRANSGRESSION ACQUIRES FOR HIMSELF ONE ACCUSER.⁷¹ REPENTANCE⁷² AND GOOD DEEDS ARE AS A SHIELD⁷³ AGAINST PUNISHMENT.⁷⁴

R. JOHANAN⁷⁵ HA-SANDELAR SAID: EVERY ASSEMBLY WHICH IS FOR THE NAME OF HEAVEN,⁷⁶ [WILL IN] THE END THEREOF BECOME [OF] PERMANENT [VALUE]; AND EVERY ASSEMBLY WHICH IS NOT FOR THE NAME OF HEAVEN, [WILL IN] THE END THEREOF NOT BECOME [OF] PERMANENT [VALUE].⁷⁷

MISHNAH 12. R. ELEAZAR⁷⁸ B. SHAMMUA'⁷⁹ SAID: LET THE HONOUR OF THY DISCIPLE BE AS DEAR TO THEE AS THINE OWN,⁸⁰ AND THE HONOUR OF THY COLLEAGUE AS THE REVERENCE⁸¹ FOR THY TEACHER,⁸² AND THE REVERENCE FOR THY TEACHER AS THE FEAR OF HEAVEN.⁸³

MISHNAH 13. R. JUDAH⁸⁴ SAID: BE CAREFUL IN STUDY,⁸⁵ FOR AN ERROR IN STUDY AMOUNTS TO PRESUMPTION.⁸⁶ R. SIMEON⁸⁷ SAID: THERE ARE THREE CROWN⁸⁴.⁸⁸ THE CROWN OF TORAH,⁸⁹ THE CROWN OF PRIESTHOOD,⁹⁰ AND THE CROWN OF ROYALTY; BUT THE CROWN OF A GOOD NAME EXCELS⁹¹ THEM ALL.⁹²

MISHNAH 14. R. NEHORAI⁹³ SAID: GO AS A [VOLUNTARY] EXILE TO A PLACE OF TORAH⁹⁴ — AND SAY NOT THAT IT WILL COME AFTER THEE⁹⁵ — FOR [IT IS] THY

FELLOW[-STUDENT]S WHO WILL MAKE IT PERMANENT IN THY KEEPING⁹⁶ AND LEAN NOT UP ON THINE OWN UNDERSTANDING.⁹⁷

MISHNAH 15. R. JANNA⁹⁸ SAID: IT IS NOT IN OUR POWER [TO EXPLAIN THE REASON] EITHER OF THE SECURITY OF THE WICKED,⁹⁹ OR EVEN OF THE AFFLICTIONS OF THE RIGHTEOUS.¹⁰⁰

R. MATHIA B. HERESH¹⁰¹ SAID: BE FIRST IN [ENQUIRING AFTER] THE PEACE¹⁰² OF ALL MEN; AND BE THOU A TAIL UNTO LIONS, AND NOT A HEAD UNTO FOXES.¹⁰³

MISHNAH 16. R. JACOB¹⁰⁴ SAID: THIS WORLD IS LIKE UNTO A VESTIBULE¹⁰⁵ BEFORE THE WORLD TO COME; PREPARE THYSELF¹⁰⁶ IN THE VESTIBULE, SO THAT THOU MAYEST ENTER THE BANQUETING-HALL.¹⁰⁷

MISHNAH 17. HE USED TO SAY: MORE BEAUTIFUL IS ONE HOUR [SPENT] IN REPENTANCE AND GOOD DEEDS¹⁰⁸ IN THIS WORLD, THAN ALL THE LIFE OF THE WORLD TO COME;¹⁰⁹ AND MORE BEAUTIFUL IS ONE HOUR OF THE EVEN-TEMPERED SPIRIT OF THE WORLD TO COME¹¹⁰, THAN ALL THE LIFE OF THIS WORLD.¹¹¹

MISHNAH 18. R. SIMEON B. ELEAZAR¹¹² SAID: PACIFY¹¹³ NOT THY FELLOW IN THE HOUR OF HIS ANGER;¹¹⁴ NOR COMFORT HIM IN THE HOUR WHEN HIS DEAD LIES BEFORE HIM,¹¹⁵ NOR QUESTION HIM AT THE TIME OF HIS VOW;¹¹⁶ NOR STRIVE TO SEE HIM IN THE HOUR OF HIS DISGRACE.¹¹⁷

MISHNAH 19. SAMUEL HA-KATAN¹¹⁸ SAID [QUOTING FROM SCRIPTURE]: REJOICE NOT WHEN THINE ENEMY FALLETH AND LET NOT THY HEART BE GLAD WHEN HE STUMBLETH.¹¹⁹ LEST THE LORD SEE IT, AND IT DISPLEASETH HIM, AND HE TURN AWAY HIS WRATH FROM HIM.¹²⁰

MISHNAH 20. ELISHA B. ABUYAH¹²¹ SAID: HE WHO LEARNS [WHEN] A CHILD, UNTO WHAT IS HE [TO BE] COMPARED?¹²² — UNTO INK WRITTEN UPON A NEW WRITING SHEET;¹²³ AND HE WHO LEARNS [WHEN] AN OLD MAN,¹²⁴ UNTO WHAT IS HE LIKE? — UNTO INK WRITTEN ON A RUBBED WRITING SHEET.¹²⁵

R. JOSE B. JUDAH (A MAN) OF KEFAR HA-BABLI¹²⁶ SAID: HE WHO LEARNS FROM THE YOUNG, UNTO WHAT IS HE [TO BE] COMPARED? UNTO ONE WHO EATS UNRIPE GRAPES, AND DRINKS WINE FROM HIS VAT;¹²⁷ AND HE WHO LEARNS FROM THE OLD, UNTO WHAT IS HE [TO BE] COMPARED? UNTO ONE WHO EATS RIPE GRAPES, AND DRINKS OLD WINE.¹²⁸

RABBI¹²⁹ SAID: REGARD NOT THE CONTAINER¹³⁰ BUT THAT WHICH IS THEREIN: THERE IS A NEW CONTAINER FULL OF OLD [WINE], AND AN OLD [CONTAINER] IN WHICH THERE IS NOT EVEN NEW [WINE].¹³¹

MISHNAH 21. R. ELEAZAR HA-KAPPAR¹³² SAID: JEALOUSY,¹³³ CUPIDITY¹³⁴ AND [THE DESIRE FOR] HONOUR PUT A MAN OUT OF THE WORLD.¹³⁵

MISHNAH 22. HE USED TO SAY: THE BORN [ARE DESTINED] TO DIE, THE DEAD TO BE BROUGHT TO LIFE,¹³⁶ AND THE LIVING¹³⁷ TO BE JUDGED; [IT IS, THEREFORE, FOR THEM¹³⁸] TO KNOW AND TO MAKE KNOWN, SO THAT IT BECOME KNOWN,¹³⁹ THAT HE IS GOD, HE THE FASHIONER,¹⁴⁰ HE THE CREATOR, HE THE DISCERNER,¹⁴¹ HE THE JUDGE, HE THE WITNESS,¹⁴² HE THE COMPLAINANT,¹⁴³ AND THAT HE IS OF A

CERTAINTY¹⁴⁴ TO JUDGE, BLESSED BE HE,¹⁴⁵ BEFORE WHOM THERE IS NO UNRIGHTEOUSNESS, NOR FORGETTING, NOR RESPECT OF PERSONS, NOR TAKING OF BRIBES,¹⁴⁶ FOR ALL IS HIS.¹⁴⁷ AND KNOW THAT ALL IS ACCORDING TO THE RECKONING.¹⁴⁸ AND LET NOT THY [EVIL] INCLINATION¹⁴⁹ ASSURE THEE THAT THE GRAVE IS A PLACE OF REFUGE FOR THEE;¹⁵⁰ FOR WITHOUT THY WILL¹⁵¹ WAST THOU FASHIONED, WITHOUT THY WILL WAST THOU BORN, WITHOUT THY WILL LIVEST THOU, WITHOUT THY WILL WILT THOU DIE,¹⁵² AND WITHOUT THY WILL ART THOU OF A CERTAINTY¹⁵³ TO GIVE AN ACCOUNT AND RECKONING¹⁵⁴ BEFORE THE KING OF THE KINGS OF KINGS, BLESSED BE HE.

(1) Simeon b. Zoma, a disciple of R. Joshua b. Hananiah. His own name is omitted as also that of his colleague, Simeon b. Azzai (v. infra, Mishnah 2). because they both died at an early age, before ordination (R.); their scholarship was nevertheless highly esteemed. After his death he was praised as the last of the (great) homileticians (Sotah IX. 15). though not many examples of his Aggadic exegesis are preserved. He was a devotee of mystical studies which, according to some, affected his mind. (V. Bacher AT I, p. 422ff.)

(2) Ps. CXIX, 99. This translation is in accordance with the interpretation presupposed here. The second part of the quotation is not given in all editions.

(3) I ARN 'the mightiest among the mighty'.

(4) יֵצֵר Yezer. V. A.Z. (Sonc. ed.) p. 22, n. 7.

(5) Prov. XVI, 32.

(6) I ARN 'the richest among the rich'. In addition to the questions as to the mightiest and richest, I ARN has, 'Who is the most unpretentious (עֲלֹוּב) among persons of unpretentious disposition? He who is as unpretentious as Moses', but no question as to who is honoured.

(7) Ps. CXXVIII, 2.

(8) 1 Sam. II, 30. Real honour comes from God, and the measure in which we honour man, created in the image of God, is the measure of the honour we give to God: if we honour God by honouring man, God will honour us. R.: God says: Them that honour Me, by honouring men (who are entitled to honour, e.g. parents. the aged. the learned), I shall honour. R. Jonah: If God honours those who honour Him, notwithstanding that all His creatures, by their mere existence and without deliberate or conscious effort, bring Him honour (cf. Isa. XLIII, 7), it follows, with greater force, that human beings (who are not entitled to honour automatically or to the same degree as God is), should reciprocate by honouring those who honour them.

(9) Cf. supra, p. 43. n. 1. Ben 'Azzai was first a disciple of R. Joshua b. Hananiah, and later stood towards R. Akiba in the alternating relationships of disciple and younger colleague. His death is attributed to his having 'peered into the Garden' of theosophic speculation (which some identify with Gnosticism), though in some sources he is named among the first victims of the Hadrianic persecutions. (V. Bacher, AT., I, pp. 408-9.)

(10) Show eagerness, seize the opportunity. cf. infra V, 20.

(11) Cf. P5. CXIX, 60. One is more liable to be slack and procrastinating with regard to an easy task, and thus forget it entirely; to obviate this one should hasten to perform it as soon as it presents itself.

(12) This clause is not in all versions.

(13) Not merely avoid, but as quickly as you can, put as long a distance as possible between transgression and yourself (L.). In both cases (i.e. of fulfilment of a precept and of avoidance of transgression) Ben 'Azzai advocates quickness of resolve and action (Buchler, Sin and Atonement, p. 309).

(14) Automatically (Buchler, ibid).

(15) This saying has been explained variously: (i) Virtue is its own reward, and sin its own penalty. (ii) The spiritual joy one derives from the performance of a divine precept, (Mizwah) is in itself a Mizwah, i.e., a valuable religious experience. (iii) The practical gain from the carrying out of a precept, is the new precept which it automatically brings in its train. See Buchler, ibid., for a fine analysis of the dictum.

(17) מַפְלִיג a difficult word variously interpreted: 'place at a distance,' 'consider far off and unimportant, or impossible,' 'treat slightly,' 'despise,' 'cavil, or carp at'. The translation given here combines the literal meaning of the verb with the general sense of the dictum, as indicated by the context and adopted by commentators.

(18) Or 'word' or 'matter'. ARN adds: 'For it is said: Whoso despiseth the word shall suffer thereby, but he that feareth the commandment shall be rewarded (Prov. XIII, 13).’ evidently taking דבר in the Mishnah to mean ‘word (of God)’. This citation suggests that ARN took the whole dictum as a parallel to Mishnah 1 and 2 thus: Who is wise? He who learns from every man — there is no man that has not his hour. Run to perform an easy (seemingly unimportant) commandment-Discriminate not against any word (of divine command). . . for there is no word (precept), however abstruse or unimportant it may seem, that has not its place.

(19) The sense in which this Mishnah is generally understood is: No person or object or matter is so unimportant that you can be sure that you will not have to reckon with it, either for good or for evil, at some time or in some place or in some circumstances.

(20) A contemporary of R. Akiba, of whom we know only this saying in our Mishnah, and some passages attributed to him in Pirke di R. Eliezer.

(21) מאד מאד M. (followed by B. and R. Jonah) explains: Why this accentuated deviation from the advocacy of a middle course? Because, man being naturally over-inclined to pride, it is necessary to over-emphasize the quality of self-depreciation.

(22) Some editions add, ‘before all men’. The whole dictum is missing from Lowe’s MS. where the following saying is in the name of R. Levitas instead of that of R. Johanan b. Broka.

(23) V. supra III, 1.

(24) A disciple of R. Joshua.

(25) V. supra p. 3, n. 2, also p. 7, n. 10.

(26) How can any secret misdeed be a profanation of the Name, which necessarily implies a knowledge of the sin by at least one other than the guilty person? Tosaf. Yom Tob says: When the sin can be committed only together with another person, e.g. prohibited sexual intercourse. L.: There are two kinds of ‘profaners of the Name’: (a) one who commits a sin, making it clear to others that he contemptuously disregards the divine commandments; (b) one who transgresses secretly. not because he is concerned for the Glory of the Name of God, but for his own reputation among his fellow men, by whom he wishes to be regarded as a pious man. The latter is profaning the Name in secret, and it is this duplicity that is to be exposed by punishment in public. V.: A sin committed in secret which, should it become known, would cause a profanation of the Name.

(27) Used impersonally.

(28) חלול השם (Profanation of the Name) was considered so grave that R. Akiba taught that a person guilty thereof is not entitled to divine forgiveness.

(29) Lit., one . . . one’, cf. supra II, 9.

(30) M. insists that only in respect of being punished openly is there no difference between one who commits profanation of the Name in error and one who does so wilfully. In respect of the actual nature of the punishment (as is the case with reference to all sins), the Torah clearly distinguishes between the unwitting and presumptuous sinner (Lev. IV and V).

(31) Some texts add ‘his son’, i.e. of R. Johanan b. Berokah.

(32) Cf. supra p. 22, n. 5.

(33) II ARN, Ch. XXXII, ‘they do not afford him’, so also R. who explains: If his only object in learning is that he might become a teacher, i.e., be addressed as ‘Rabbi’, his efforts at learning do not enjoy the favour of Heaven. I ARN, Ch. XXVII, has our version.

(34) Cf. supra I, 17, ‘Study is not the most important thing, but deed.’

(35) Some texts insert here ‘to observe’.

(36) Probably the one who was contemporary of R. Johanan b. Zakkai. First century.

(37) I.e., the words of the Torah. Some texts ‘it’.

(38) In I Sam. XIII, 20, and Ps. LXXIV, 5, קרדם == axe. It may have been two tools in one, one side being a broad blade for a hatchet, and the other a pointed one for breaking up ‘ground. V. fast. s.v. and Oesterley, ‘Sayings’, ad loc.

(39) Lowe’s MS. and R. לאכל מהן lit., ‘to eat of them’ which Taylor translates, ‘an axe, to live by them’, evidently taking אכל in the sense of ‘enjoy’, ‘have the use of’, ‘have benefit from’, as e.g. in Pe’ah I, 1. R. Jonah has לחתוך ‘to cut’.

(40) V. supra I, 13.

(41) Cf. the reading preserved in R.

(42) Our translation is In accordance with the maxim of Hillel which gave rise to this thought. R. however understood ‘takes his reward in this world’. Seemingly he translated ‘takes his life (i.e. all the benefits to which he may be entitled) out of this world.' Tosaf. Yom Tob 'removes himself from the life of the world to come. M. bases on R. Zadok's dictum a vigorous defence of his view that it is strictly forbidden to make a living out of the Torah and that none of the early Rabbis ever made such use of it. A scholar who happens to be poor, or afflicted and physically helpless, should of course be helped. It is, indeed, a duty of congregations to pay the levies and taxes on behalf of scholars (v. supra III, 5, and note). but that is because they are, in this respect, looked upon as Kohanim' (Aaronides) who were by Biblical law exempt from tithes, etc.

(43) b. Halafta. 2nd century.

(44) Honouring the Torah consists in zeal and alacrity in carrying out its precepts, in the proper and reverent care for books of, or appertaining to, the Torah, and in respectful bearing towards scholars (M.).

(45) גופו lit., 'his body'. 'his person'. V. supra I, 17.

(46) Some texts add 'his son'. II ARN, Ch. XXXIV, has R. Eliezer son of R. Eleazar ha'Kappar. R. had a reading. R. Eliezer, son of R. Jose.

(47) Either, (a) a judge who refrains from imposing a judgment, and strives to induce parties to come to an agreement; or (b) any person who avoids entering into litigation, and seeks a friendly settlement of differences.

(48) Which disappointed litigants might feel towards the judge, or towards the other side.

(49) The virtual robbery which a judge might commit if, however honestly, he gave a decision in favour of the wrong party; or which might result when a party in the heat of dispute puts in an exaggerated claim or denial and succeeds therein.

(50) The oath which a judge imposes, in accordance with the Torah, but which he may quite conceivably impose in error, though in good faith, on the wrong party (see L.); or, untrue statements which a litigant may, in the stress of the judicial proceedings, make under oath. The expression here used שבועת שוא (an oath taken in vain) differs, in its technical use, from שבועת שקר (a false oath), v. Shebu. 25b. Some (e.g., B.) think שוא ש is used here not in the technical sense, but as synonymous with שקר ש L. insists that שקר ש is inapplicable here, and that שוא ש is to be taken in its precise meaning.

(51) I.e., he looks upon the judicial position as one that confers on him the opportunity for exercising authority, rather than one that demands self-effacing objectivity, involving infinite pains in the sifting of evidence (v. supra I, 9), deliberate impartiality towards parties (v. I, 5), a deep and lifelong study of the Law, and patience in coming to a decision (v. I, 1), cf. infra VI, 6.

(52) He is too sure of his own wisdom and Seest thou a man wise in his own eyes? There is more hope of a fool than of him. (Prov. XXVI, 12.)

(53) Because he is indifferent to the possible injustice that may result from his actions.

(54) גם גם רוח = bulky, oversized, uncouth, gross. The same word with לב (heart) is translated 'over confident' earlier in the sentence.

(55) The Jewish judiciary system provided for the Great Sanhedrin of seventy-one members, a Lesser Sanhedrin of twenty-three, and the smallest court of three laymen or of one accredited expert (מומחה Mumhe) in the Law. But even this expert, although permitted to 'sit' alone, is advised here not to take unnecessary advantage of the permission but, if at all possible, to obtain the assistance of (two) others (so M.).

(56) I.e., God.

(57) Either, 'they are free to concur, but not thou to force them to concur,' or, 'they are entitled to say to thee, accept our opinion' (as they are in the majority), but not thou (as you are only one against two).' Some point out that an 'expert' who has called in lay assistance might be tempted to force his opinion by over-emphasizing his own superior learning, or even by pointedly reminding his cojudges that he could, had he chosen, have 'sat' and decided alone, and that he had called them in only as a matter of grace. The proper procedure is that whilst the expert's voice prevails on a point of law, that of a majority of the court is decisive in matters dependent on 'the weighing of opinions' (שקול הדעת).

(58) b. Jose(ph) as in II ARN, Ch. XXXV (where the wording of the dictum differs). I ARN, Ch. XXX has, R. Nathan b. Joseph. A disciple of R. Akiba and R. Ishmael. Frankel, Parke ha-Mishnah, p. 155, says his name, like that of his colleague R. Joshiah, does not occur in Mishnah or Tosef. or Torath Kohanim. The inclusion of the name here is due to the fact that in Aboth are mentioned many Tannaim of the sixth generation whose names occur otherwise only in Baraitas, v. Oesterley, a.l.

(59) I.e., whilst he is in etc. For a similar use of מ v. Deut. XXVIII, 47, מרב כל מעני. Others: 'by means of poverty', i.e., by sacrificing time he could use for improving his material lot, in order to study and practise the Torah. Others: 'despite poverty'.

(60) With which he will be rewarded.

(61) Though it enables him to devote more time to the study of the Torah, and Increases his opportunities for observing its precepts. Or, because the thought and anxiety he expends on his possessions and concerns, occupy his mind to the exclusion of Torah.

(62) Which will be his punishment, and which might indeed make it impossible for him to devote himself to the Torah even if by that time he is desirous of making good his former omissions. For the latter half of the dictum cf. Deut. XXVIII, 47-8: Because thou didst not serve the Lord thy God with joyfulness and with gladness of heart, by reason of the abundance of all things; therefore shalt thou serve thine enemy whom the Lord shall send against thee, in hunger and in thirst, and in nakedness, and in want of all things.

(63) The greatest of R. Akiba's disciples; deserved the name מאיר because 'he threw light' on the meaning of Scripture.

(64) Cf. supra II, 5, and infra VI, 5.

(65) Cf. Mishnah 4.

(66) Conditions conducive to idleness which will militate against your becoming learned in the Torah. Cf. the quotation from Megillath Hasidim in J. Ber., end, 'If thou forsakest it (the Torah) one day, it will forsake thee two days. 'a saying otherwise known from Sirach. V; also Sifre, Ekeb. ed. Friedmann, p. 84a. I ARN, Ch. XXIX: 'idlers (במלנין) (such as robbers, thieves, lions, bears, etc.) against thee.' Others: 'idlers like thee'.

(67) Some texts 'He (God) has.'

(68) Cf. supra II, 14 and 16.

(69) Disciple and colleague of R. Akiba. There was an earlier scholar of the same name who lived towards the end of Temple times. V. Frankel, op. 'it., p. 76ff. Hyman Toledoth s.v.

(70) פרקליט Gr. **.

(71) קטיגור, Gr. **.

(72) Lit., 'Return'.

(73) תרים some identify with the Greek  = Gr.  'door', or its derivative Gr.  'an oblong shield'; others with Gr.  breastplate. In both cases it would denote something that serves as a protection. V. fast. for an attempted Hebrew derivation.

(74) If transgressions have outnumbered fulfilments of precepts, then divine punishment can be averted by Repentance (in the case of a person about to die), and by (that together with) good deeds (in the case of one who lives on).

(75) One of the youngest of R. Akiba's disciples. His cognomen is said to be due either to his occupation as a sandal-maker, or to his having been a native of Alexandria. Another opinion is that he was a piercer of gems, called in Aramaic סנדלכון (which may be identical with the Greek **).

(76) Or, for the 'sake of Heaven'. Lowe's MS. also some edd. of ARN (v. Schechter's ed. I ARN, Ch. XL, p. 129 note 23), 'In the name of duty (מצוה).'

(77) Frankel, op. cit., p. 187, suggests that R. Johanan had in mind the distinction between the Palestinian schools and the Alexandrian schools (known to him who had come from Alexandria). In the latter they followed the allegorical method of exegesis, which led to negative and even antinomian results. Hyman, Toledoth s.v. suggests that R. Johanan said this with reference to the assembly of Rabbis, in which he himself took part, in the Valley of Beth-Rimmon after the fall of Bethar, for the purpose of encouraging his colleagues who had met for a worthy purpose under conditions that were precarious and with prospects that were extremely unpromising.

(78) Some: Eliezer.

(79) In II ARN, Ch. XXXIV, p. 76, this dictum is in the name of R. Nathan. R. El. b. Shammua' was a disciple of R. Akiba.

(80) I ARN (Ch. XXVII, p. 84) and II ARN (Ch. XXXIV, p. 76) cite Ex. XVII, 9: Moses 'bracketed' himself with his disciple Joshua by saying, 'choose unto us men'. Lowe's MS. and an alternative in R. MV. Aruch (v. Baer, Siddur Abodath Israel, a. I.) have 'as the honour of thy colleague' which produces an apparently smoother sequence. R. Jonah has a composite reading כשלך ככבוד חברך which he tries to explain (v. Schechter, I ARN p. 85, n. 17).

(81) מורא the same word is translated 'fear', in 'fear of Heaven'.

(82) I ARN cites Num. XII, 11. Aaron said to Moses: 'I pray thee, my master.' Although Aaron was the elder brother, he acknowledged Moses as his master. II ARN cites Ex. VII, 2.

(83) I ARN cites Num. XI, 28, where Joshua addresses Moses, 'My Lord Moses.' II ARN cites Ex. IV, 16, 'And thou (Moses, the Master) shalt be unto him (Aaron) in God's stead.'

- (84) b. Il'a'i, a contemporary of R. Eleazar b. Shammua'. L.: This dictum is a complement to the foregoing and the advice is meant for the teacher.
- (85) In view of the foregoing note perhaps best render תלמוד as 'teaching'. Some texts have למוד but that too could have the meaning of 'teaching'.
- (86) If the error is due to carelessness; because one error leads to further errors, and is liable to result in breaches of the law not only on one's own part but on that of one's hearers or disciples.
- (87) b. Yohai, v. supra III, 4, and infra VI, 8, p. 87, n. 8.
- (88) Which one should try to attain; or, to which one should show deference.
- (89) Cf. Prov. I, 9: For they (instruction and teaching, תורה) shall be a chap let unto thy head.
- (90) Cf. Ex. XXIX, 6: And thou shalt set the mitre upon his (Aaron's) head, and put the holy crown upon the mitre.
- (91) For the verb עלה in this sense, cf. Prov. XXXI, 29.
- (92) Because without it the other crowns do not command deference. Cf. Eccl. VII, I; Prov. XXII, I.
- (93) Identified in this case with R. Eleazar b. 'Arach. V. supra II, 14 note.
- (94) B.: If there are no scholars in your own place. L.: Even if there are scholars in your own locality; the very experience of 'exile' — the strange surroundings, the privations it entails (cf. infra VI, 4) and the self-reliance it calls forth — is conducive to the better study of the Torah. The understanding of this passage in this sense has been the motive power of the deep-rooted custom among Jews, rife even in recent, and by no mean extinct in modern, times, of sending one's sons away from home to 'learn Torah'.
- (95) R. Eleazar b. 'Arach (v. p. 51, n. 14) had probably learnt this from personal experience, v. supra II, 14, n. 8.
- (96) The advantages of corporate study are frequently stressed. A companion in one's studies is not less important than a teacher (cf. supra I, 6).
- (97) Prov. III, 5. Some think that the stress intended is on the necessity for a teacher to give authoritative guidance to the student, and render 'and say not that it will come after thee or that thy equals (in learning) will help you to acquire a complete and sound knowledge; nor do thou lean on thine own understanding'.
- (98) Probably Jannai the father of R. Dosthai mentioned in III, 8; a contemporary of R. Meir.
- (99) Perhaps rather 'the secure feeling of . . .' cf. Jer. XII, 1, Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? Wherefore are they all secure that deal very treacherously?
- (100) 'Even (אף) . . .' The afflictions of the righteous might appear easier to account for, e.g., by alleging the man's righteousness may be a sham, and that he is being punished for hidden sins; even so we cannot know the real reason.
- (101) After the vocalization in I Chron. IX, 15. Others vocalize Harash v. Bacher AT. I, p. 380. R. Mathia (or Mattithiah) lived in Rome in the middle of the second century.
- (102) After II ARN, Ch. XXXIV לשאול בשלום cf. I ARN. Ch. XXIX end, or, 'Be first with the (greeting of) Shalom ('Peace') to all men.' It is reported of R. Johanan b. Zakkai that never did anyone anticipate him in the salutation of Peace, not even a heathen in the market-place (Ber. 17a).
- (103) Frankel, op. cit., p. 238, suggests that this dictum was intended against the proverb, attributed to Julius Caesar, to the effect that it is better to be the first in a small village, than second in a large city. There is much in this suggestion, as the latter proverb is all very well for a mentality that idealizes temporal power, but not for those who recognise the supremacy of the spirit (cf. Zech. IV, 6). V. Bacher op. cit., p. 384. For a Rabbinic reversal of R. Mathia's advice: 'Be a head to foxes rather than a tail to lions,' v. J. San. IV, 10, p. 22b.
- (104) Probably R. J. b. Kurshai (or Kudshai), a tradent of R. Meir and of R. Simeon b. Yohai.
- (105) פרוזדור Gr.  'the space before the door', 'porch'.
- (106) With repentance and good deeds.
- (107) מרקלין Gr.  A room with three couches for reclining at meals; among Romans, the triclinium was the dining room.
- (108) By means of which one wins one's way to the world to come.
- (109) When one's goal is attained. The energy and enthusiasm of the striving are more spiritually exhilarating than the final achievement.
- (110) The state of perfect and enduring balance, evenness and temperateness of spirit characteristic of the existence after death (cf. Eccl. IX, 10).
- (111) In which satisfaction is never complete, and joy never unalloyed. This world, whilst in the end not comparable to the world to come, has its compensations — the very striving in this world for the perfection that is possible only in the world to come, is something greater than the perfection itself, since the repentance and good deeds of this world can only be achieved by dint of conscious avoidance of evil, and of positive well-doing, the former superfluous and the latter not requiring deliberate effort, in the world to come.

(112) b. Shammua' (v. Mish. 12). R. Simeon was a disciple of R. Meir.

(113) תרצה The Pi'el of רצה is once used in the Bible, Job XX, 10, as 'seek the favour of . . . 'appease'.

(114) Your efforts are likely to be worse than useless.

(115) The Jewish custom is, therefore, not to offer condolence to mourners until after the interment of their dead.

(116) If one is closely questioned at the time he makes a vow, as to its precise scope etc., he is liable-either through overzeal or foolhardiness-to extend its scope and over-particularize its applicability, and thus undertake more than he intended, or impose upon himself uncalled for commitments or inhibitions; he is also likely to be led into expressing the vow in such terms as would make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for him ever to obtain release therefrom (as one can, in many cases, be released from a vow by a competent 'court'). V. I ARN, Ch. XXVI, R. Akiba said, . . . be not free with vows.'

(117) Whether due to his own fault, or caused by others. He is liable to think that you are gloating over him (v. supra III, 11). The advice here is not that one should deliberately avoid seeing him, but that one should not seek opportunities for seeing him. Noticeable avoidance would be almost as undesirable.

(118) First century, called ha-Katan, the Small, on account of his humility, or (according to others) because he was less only than Samuel the Prophet. On his chronology, v. Herford, a.I.

(119) It may be that this dictum was placed here because it happens to illustrate and emphasize the advice immediately preceding. Even over an enemy one should not gloat, how much less over others. Bacher AT, I, p. 370, n. 8, cites a conjecture that דשמואל הקטן אמר is a mistaken amplification of the letters ש'ה'א which actually were the initial letters (ראשי תיבות) of the words שהרי הכתוב אומר 'even as Scripture says' introducing a Biblical authority for the last section of the foregoing sentence.

(120) Prov. XXIV, 17-18. Samuel ha-Katan did not adopt or advocate too pacific an attitude towards Israel's enemies; on the contrary, he played a leading part in the insertion into the daily 'Amidah Prayer of a special Blessing directed against Israel's external and (chiefly) internal enemies, the Minim. However, he quite conceivably felt that Israel by rejoicing at the fallings and stumblings of their enemies, and thus exhibiting an unworthy feeling. would incline God, who is ever on the side of the wronged, to favour their adversaries, not for the latter's merits but because of Israel's failings, and that thus would Israel, by their own fault, hold up their final and complete salvation from their enemies, for which he prayed. In the light of this consideration, the inclusion of verse 18, which is omitted in some Aboth texts, is necessary as supplying the main point to Samuel's favourite quotation.

(121) Second century. A disciple of R. Meir. He became a great scholar, but having entered too deeply into esoteric speculation, he eventually apostasized from Judaism, probably to Gnosticism. Thereafter he was referred to as אחר 'another'. Abuyah אבויה is the usual reading. Lowe's MS. has אביה Abiyah, a name occurring in I Kings XIV, 1.

(122) הלומד תורה לילד So all old texts except R. Jonah who has לילד הלומד תורה a reading adopted later by some. The reading followed here is borne out by I ARN, Ch. XXIV p. 77 and II ARN, Ch. XXXV, p. 88.

(123) Which is smooth and clean. נייר is derived by Jast. from נור 'to (be) clear,' i.e., a blank surface. Krauss derives from ניר 'warp', i.e., (originally) the fibre from which the writing material was prepared. In modern Hebrew, נייר is used for paper.

(124) I and II ARN. בזקנותו

(125) The rough surface causes spluttering and 'running' of the ink, rendering legibility difficult, if not impossible.

(126) A contemporary of Rabbi Judah ha-Nasi, as evident from the end of this Mishnah.

(127) New and unmaturing. One learning from the young can expect to obtain only immature knowledge.

(128) One who learns from the old gets the benefit of ripe knowledge and mature judgment.

(129) V. supra II, 1. The P.B. text has מאיר ר which is incorrect (v. Baer, Siddur, 'Abodath Israel a.I.).

(130) קנקן, fast. 'a cylindrical vessel let into the ground of the cellar, in general a wine- or oil-vessel'. 'Aruch Kohut suggests an Arabic derivation.

(131) Rabbi disputes R. Jose b. Judah's opinion. In Rabbi's experience, a man's age was by no means a reliable index to his learning.

(132) A contemporary of Rabbi and the teacher of the celebrated Aggadist R. Joshua b. Levi.

(133) קנאה Taylor rightly points out that the word is also used in a good sense, viz. 'emulation'.

(134) תאווה '(keen) desire', 'lust'.

(135) Any one of the undesirable characteristics mentioned have this effect, since they necessarily negate the religious teachings of the Torah, and render one unreceptive of the mental and moral excellences. (M.) For the phrase cf. supra II, 11.

(136) לַהֲחַיִּיתָ vocalize לַהֲחַיִּיתָ as a Nif'al. A polemic against those who denied resurrection (e.g. the Gnostics).

(137) M. and others, 'those living again (after their death)'.

(138) I.e., the living.

(139) I.e., to the end that, eventually, men might naturally and spontaneously, become aware that God is the creator etc. Cf. Jer. XXXI, 34, prophesying of the 'days that come', and they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying: 'Know the Lord'; for they shall all know Me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord. (cf. R; Jonah).

(140) V. next note.

(141) הַמְבִּין and הַיּוֹצֵר . Cf. Ps. XXXIII, 15: He that fashioneth (הַיּוֹצֵר) the hearts of them all, that considereth or discerneth (הַמְבִּין) all their doings.

(142) Cf. Mal. III, 5: And I will come near to you in judgment, and I will be a swift witness

(143) בַּעַל דֵּין the opposite party in a lawsuit. Cf. Job XXXI, 35.

(144) עֵתִיד Oesterley. 'in the hereafter'. The sentence is, of course, so understood; but, grammatically. עֵתִיד with the Infinitive (used in Mishnaic Hebrew to express the future tense) generally, as here, expresses the certainty and inevitability of that which, it is said, is to happen. When used with regard to human beings one can render 'destined' as in supra III, 1.

(145) Omitted in some versions. For the expression. v. supra III, 1, note. perhaps it is inserted here in view of the reference to God as Judge. Cf. בְּרוּךְ דֵּין הָאֵמֶת Blessed be the righteous Judge' prescribed in Ber. IX, 1, to be said on hearing evil tidings, but capable, of course, of general application. Note 'in whom there is no unrighteousness' which immediately follows here.'

(146) Taken from II Chron. XIX, 7: For there is no iniquity (or, unrighteousness) with the Lord our God, nor respect of persons, nor taking of bribes. Cf. Deut. XXXII, 4: Ps. XCII, 16; 'nor forgetting' appears to have been added so as to declare every conceivable departure from justice as impossible with God; not only is He certain not to do an injustice deliberately, but even an unwitting miscarriage of justice through forgetting (either a man's good or evil deeds) cannot occur with Him. 'Nor taking of bribes'; M. says this must not be taken in the usual sense of the expression, because such a thing is positively unthinkable of God. What it means is that even if a man has a thousand good deeds to his credit to one evil one, the thousand do not 'influence' God to overlook the one. The latter must be expiated, while for the former there is reward.

(147) Apparently added by someone who took 'taking of bribes' in the ordinary sense. In view of M.'s interpretation (v. previous note) these words ('for all is His') are meaningless and superfluous.

(148) The account which a man must give of his life.

(149) V. supra II, 11.

(150) A polemic against the heretics who denied reward and punishment in the hereafter. V. p. 56, n. 4. Perhaps it is also intended as against the idea of suicide, which the Roman Stoics (e.g. Seneca) extolled as 'a way out'.

(151) The phrase is used mostly in the sense of 'against one's will'.

(152) This supports the suggestion in note 5 as to a possible polemic against suicide.

(153) V. p. 56, n. 12.

(154) V. supra III, 2.

Mishna - Mas. Avoth Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. WITH TEN [DIVINE] UTTERANCES¹ WAS THE WORLD CREATED.² AND WHAT IS THIS [SCRIPTURAL] INFORMATION [MEANT] TO TELL, FOR SURELY IT COULD HAVE BEEN CREATED WITH³ ONE UTTERANCE? BUT IT IS THAT PENALTY MIGHT BE EXACTED FROM THE WICKED WHO DESTROY THE WORLD THAT WAS CREATED WITH TEN UTTERANCES,⁴ AND TO GIVE A GOODLY REWARD TO THE RIGHTEOUS WHO MAINTAIN THE WORLD THAT WAS CREATED WITH TEN UTTERANCES.⁵

MISHNAH 2. [THERE WERE] TEN GENERATIONS FROM ADAM TO NOAH,⁶ IN ORDER

TO MAKE KNOWN HOW LONG-EXTENDED IS LONG-SUFFERING WITH HIM; FOR ALL THOSE GENERATIONS WERE REPEATEDLY ACTING PROVOKINGLY,⁷ UNTIL HE BROUGHT UPON THEM THE WATERS OF THE FLOOD.

[THERE WERE] TEN GENERATIONS FROM NOAH TO ABRAHAM,⁸ IN ORDER TO MAKE KNOWN HOW LONG-EXTENDED IS LONG-SUFFERING WITH HIM; FOR ALL THOSE GENERATIONS WERE REPEATEDLY ACTING PROVOKINGLY, UNTIL ABRAHAM, OUR FATHER, CAME AND RECEIVED THE REWARD OF ALL OF THEM.⁹

MISHNAH 3. WITH TEN TRIALS WAS ABRAHAM, OUR FATHER, PROVED,¹⁰ AND HE STOOD [FIRM]¹¹ IN THEM ALL; TO MAKE KNOWN HOW GREAT WAS THE LOVE OF ABRAHAM,¹² OUR FATHER (PEACE BE UPON HIM).

MISHNAH 4. TEN WONDERS WERE WROUGHT FOR OUR FATHERS IN EGYPT,¹³ AND TEN AT THE [RED] SEA.¹⁴ TEN PLAGUES DID THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, BRING UPON THE EGYPTIANS IN EGYPT AND TEN AT THE [RED] SEA.¹⁵

[WITH] TEN TEMPTATIONS DID OUR FATHERS PUT TO PROOF THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE,¹⁶ AS IT IS SAID, YET HAVE THEY PUT ME TO PROOF THESE TEN TIMES, AND HAVE NOT HEARKENED TO MY VOICE.¹⁷

MISHNAH 5. TEN WONDERS WERE WROUGHT FOR OUR FATHERS IN THE SANCTUARY: [i] NO WOMAN MISCARRIED FROM THE ODOUR OF THE HOLY [I.E.. SACRIFICIAL] FLESH;¹⁸ [ii] THE HOLY FLESH NEVER BECAME PUTRID;¹⁹ [iii] NO FLY WAS SEEN IN THE SLAUGHTERHOUSE;²⁰ [iv] NO PERSONAL UNCLEANNESS OCCURRED TO THE HIGH PRIEST ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT;²¹ [v] THE RAINS DID NOT EXTINGUISH THE FIRE OF THE WOOD OF THE PILE;²² [vi] THE WIND DID NOT PREVAIL AGAINST THE COLUMN OF SMOKE;²³ [vii] NO DISQUALIFICATION WAS FOUND IN THE OMER,²⁴ OR IN THE TWO LOAVES,²⁵ OR IN THE SHEWBREAD;²⁶ [viii] THEY STOOD SERRIED,²⁷ YET PROSTRATED THEMSELVES [WITH] WIDE SPACES [BETWEEN THEM]; [ix] NEVER DID A SERPENT OR A SCORPION DO INJURY IN JERUSALEM; [x] AND NO MAN SAID TO HIS FELLOW: THE PLACE IS TOO STRAIT FOR ME TO LODGE OVERNIGHT²⁸ IN JERUSALEM.

MISHNAH 6. TEN THINGS WERE CREATED ON THE EVE OF THE SABBATH²⁹ AT TWILIGHT, AND THESE ARE THEY: [i] THE MOUTH OF THE EARTH,³⁰ [ii] THE MOUTH OF THE WELL,³¹ [iii] THE MOUTH OF THE SHE-ASS,³² [iv] THE RAINBOW,³³ [v] THE MANNA, [vi] THE ROD [OF MOSES],³⁴ [vii] THE SHAMIR,³⁵ [viii] THE TEXT,³⁶ [ix] THE WRITING,³⁷ AND [x] THE TABLES.³⁸ AND SOME SAY: ALSO THE SEPULCHRE OF MOSES, OUR TEACHER,³⁹ AND THE RAM OF ABRAHAM, OUR FATHER,⁴⁰ AND SOME SAY: ALSO THE DESTROYING [SPIRITS],⁴¹ AND TONGS TOO, MADE WITH TONGS.⁴²

MISHNAH 7. [THERE ARE] SEVEN THINGS [CHARACTERISTIC] IN A MAN OF IMPERFECTLY DEVELOPED MIND,⁴³ AND SEVEN IN A WISE MAN: A WISE MAN SPEAKS NOT BEFORE ONE WHO IS GREATER THAN HE IN WISDOM,⁴⁴ AND ENTERS NOT INTO⁴⁵ THE MIDST OF THE WORDS OF HIS FELLOW; AND IS NOT HASTY TO ANSWER;⁴⁶ HE ASKS IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE SUBJECT-MATTER,⁴⁷ AND HE ANSWERS⁴⁸ IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE ACCEPTED DECISION;⁴⁹ AND HE SPEAKS OF THE FIRST [POINT] FIRST, AND OF THE LAST [POINT] LAST; AND CONCERNING THAT WHICH HE HAS NOT HEARD, HE SAYS:⁴⁵ HAVE NOT HEARD;⁵⁰ AND HE ACKNOWLEDGES THE TRUTH.⁵¹ AND THE REVERSE OF THESE [ARE CHARACTERISTIC] IN A MAN OF IMPERFECTLY DEVELOPED MIND.

MISHNAH 8. SEVEN KINDS OF PUNISHMENT COME TO THE WORLD⁵² FOR SEVEN CATEGORIES OF TRANSGRESSION:⁵³ WHEN SOME OF THEM [I. E., THE PEOPLE] GIVE TITHES, AND OTHERS DO NOT GIVE TITHES, A FAMINE FROM DROUGHT⁵⁴ COMES, AND SOME GO HUNGRY, AND OTHERS HAVE PLENTY; WHEN THEY HAVE ALL DECIDED NOT TO GIVE TITHES, A FAMINE FROM TUMULT⁵⁵ COMES; [WHEN THEY HAVE, IN ADDITION, DECIDED] NOT TO SET APART THE DOUGH[-CAKE],⁵⁶ A FAMINE OF EXTERMINATION COMES. PESTILENCE COMES TO THE WORLD⁵⁷ FOR [SINS] THE DEATH-PENALTIES [FOR] WHICH ARE PRONOUNCED IN THE TORAH, BUT WHICH HAVE NOT BEEN REFERRED TO A [HUMAN] TRIBUNAL;⁵⁸ AND ON ACCOUNT OF [THE TRANSGRESSION OF THE LAWS REGARDING] THE PRODUCE OF THE SEVENTH YEAR.⁵⁹

THE SWORD COMES TO THE WORLD⁶⁰ FOR THE RETARDATION OF JUDGMENT,⁶¹ AND FOR THE PERVERSION OF JUDGMENT, AND ON ACCOUNT OF THOSE WHO INTERPRET THE TORAH NOT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE ACCEPTED LAW.⁶²

MISHNAH 9. WILD BEASTS COME TO THE WORLD⁶³ FOR VAIN SWEARING,⁶⁴ AND FOR THE PROFANATION OF THE NAME.⁶⁵ EXILE COMES TO THE WORLD⁶⁶ FOR IDOLATRY, FOR INCEST AND FOR BLOODSHED,⁶⁷ AND FOR [TRANSGRESSING THE COMMANDMENT OF] THE [YEAR OF THE] RELEASE OF THE LAND.⁶⁸ AT FOUR PERIODS PESTILENCE INCREASES: IN THE FOURTH [YEAR], IN THE SEVENTH [YEAR] AND AT THE CONCLUSION OF⁶⁹ THE SEVENTH [YEAR], AND AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE FEAST [OF TABERNACLES]⁷⁰ IN EVERY YEAR. IN THE FOURTH [YEAR], ON ACCOUNT OF [DEFAULTING WITH] THE TITHE OF THE POOR WHICH IS [DUE] IN THE THIRD [YEAR];⁷¹ IN THE SEVENTH [YEAR], ON ACCOUNT OF [DEFAULTING] WITH THE TITHE OF THE POOR WHICH IS [DUE] IN THE SIXTH [YEAR]; AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE SEVENTH [YEAR], ON ACCOUNT OF [TRANSGRESSING THE LAWS REGARDING] THE PRODUCE OF THE SEVENTH [YEAR];⁷² AND AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE FEAST [OF TABERNACLES] IN EVERY YEAR, FOR ROBBING THE GIFTS [ASSIGNED BY THE TORAH] TO THE POOR.⁷³

MISHNAH 10. [THERE ARE] FOUR TYPES OF CHARACTER⁷⁴ IN MEN: HE THAT SAYS: 'MINE IS MINE, AND THINE IS THINE': THIS IS A NEUTRAL TYPE SOME SAY THIS IS A SODOM-TYPE⁷⁵ OF CHARACTER: [HE THAT SAYS:] 'MINE IS THINE AND THINE IS MINE' IS AN UNLEARNED PERSON;⁷⁶ [HE THAT SAYS:] MINE IS THINE AND THINE IS THINE,' IS A PIOUS MAN;⁷⁷ [HE THAT SAYS:] 'MINE IS MINE, AND THINE IS MINE,' IS A WICKED MAN.⁷⁸

MISHNAH 11. [THERE ARE] FOUR TYPES OF CHARACTER IN [RESPECT OF] TEMPERAMENTS: EASY TO BECOME ANGRY, AND EASY TO BE PACIFIED: HIS GAIN DISAPPEARS IN HIS LOSS;⁷⁹ HARD TO BECOME ANGRY, AND HARD TO BE PACIFIED: HIS LOSS DISAPPEARS IN HIS GAIN; HARD TO BECOME ANGRY AND EASY TO BE PACIFIED: [HE IS] A PIOUS MAN;⁸⁰ EASY TO BECOME ANGRY AND HARD TO BE PACIFIED: [HE IS] A WICKED MAN.

MISHNAH 12. [THERE ARE] FOUR TYPES OF CHARACTER AMONG DISCIPLES: QUICK TO COMPREHEND,⁸¹ AND QUICK TO FORGET:⁸² HIS GAIN DISAPPEARS IN HIS LOSS; SLOW TO COMPREHEND, AND SLOW TO FORGET: HIS LOSS DISAPPEARS IN HIS GAIN: QUICK TO COMPREHEND, AND SLOW TO FORGET: [HE IS] A WISE MAN;⁸³ SLOW TO COMPREHEND, AND QUICK TO FORGET, THIS IS AN EVIL PORTION.⁸⁴

MISHNAH 13. [THERE ARE] FOUR TYPES OF CHARACTER IN [RESPECT OF] ALMSGIVING.⁸⁵ HE WHO DESIRES THAT HE [HIMSELF] SHOULD GIVE, BUT THAT OTHERS SHOULD NOT GIVE: HIS EYE IS EVIL⁸⁶ TOWARDS THAT WHICH APPERTAINS TO OTHERS;⁸⁷ [HE WHO DESIRES] THAT OTHERS SHOULD GIVE, BUT THAT HE [HIMSELF] SHOULD NOT GIVE: HIS EYE IS EVIL TOWARDS THAT WHICH IS HIS [OWN]; [HE WHO DESIRES] THAT HE [HIMSELF] SHOULD GIVE, AND THAT OTHERS SHOULD GIVE: [HE IS] A PIOUS MAN; [HE WHO DESIRES] THAT HE HIMSELF SHOULD NOT GIVE AND THAT OTHERS [TOO] SHOULD NOT GIVE: [HE IS] A WICKED MAN.⁸⁸

MISHNAH 14. [THERE ARE] FOUR TYPES OF CHARACTER IN [REGARD TO REGULAR] ATTENDANCE⁸⁹ AT THE HOUSE-OF-STUDY: HE WHO ATTENDS BUT PRACTISES⁹⁰ NOT, THE REWARD FOR ATTENDING IS IN HIS HAND;⁹¹ HE WHO PRACTISES BUT ATTENDS NOT,⁹² THE REWARD FOR PRACTISING IS IN HIS HAND; HE WHO ATTENDS AND PRACTISES, HE IS A PIOUS MAN;⁹³ HE WHO ATTENDS NOT AND PRACTISES NOT: HE IS A WICKED MAN.⁹⁴

MISHNAH 15. [THERE ARE] FOUR TYPES OF CHARACTER AMONG THOSE WHO SIT BEFORE THE SAGES:⁹⁵ [THEY ARE, SEVERALLY, TYPIFIED BY] A SPONGE, A FUNNEL, A STRAINER AND A SIEVE:⁹⁶ A SPONGE, WHICH ABSORBS ALL; A FUNNEL, WHICH LETS IN AT ONE END AND LETS OUT AT THE OTHER; A STRAINER, WHICH LETS OUT THE WINE AND RETAINS THE LEES; A SIEVE, WHICH LETS OUT THE COARSE MEAL AND RETAINS THE CHOICE FLOUR.⁹⁷

MISHNAH 16. ALL LOVE THAT DEPENDS ON A [TRANSIENT] THING,⁹⁸ [WHEN THE] THING CEASES, [THE] LOVE CEASES; AND [ALL LOVE] THAT DEPENDS NOT ON A [TRANSIENT] THING, CEASES NOT FOR EVER. WHICH IS THE [KIND OF] LOVE THAT DEPENDS ON A [TRANSIENT] THING? SUCH AS WAS THE LOVE OF AMNON FOR TAMAR;⁹⁹ AND [WHICH IS THE KIND OF LOVE] THAT DEPENDS NOT ON A [TRANSIENT] THING? SUCH AS WAS THE LOVE OF DAVID AND JONATHAN.¹⁰⁰

MISHNAH 17. EVERY CONTROVERSY THAT IS IN THE NAME OF HEAVEN,¹⁰¹ THE END THEREOF IS [DESTINED] TO RESULT IN SOMETHING PERMANENT;¹⁰² BUT ONE THAT IS NOT IN THE NAME OF HEAVEN, THE END THEREOF IS NOT [DESTINED] TO RESULT IN SOMETHING PERMANENT.

WHICH IS THE [KIND OF] CONTROVERSY THAT IS IN THE NAME OF HEAVEN? SUCH AS WAS THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN HILLEL AND SHAMMAI;¹⁰³ AND WHICH IS THE [KIND OF] CONTROVERSY THAT IS NOT IN THE NAME OF HEAVEN? SUCH AS WAS THE CONTROVERSY OF KORAH AND ALL HIS CONGREGATION.¹⁰⁴

MISHNAH 18. WHOEVER CAUSES THE MANY¹⁰⁵ TO BE RIGHTEOUS,¹⁰⁶ SIN OCCURS NOT THROUGH HIM;¹⁰⁷ AND WHOEVER CAUSES THE MANY TO SIN, THEY DO NOT AFFORD HIM THE FACULTY¹⁰⁸ TO REPENT.¹⁰⁹ MOSES WAS RIGHTEOUS AND CAUSED THE MANY TO BE RIGHTEOUS, [THEREFORE] THE RIGHTEOUSNESS OF THE MANY WAS [CONSIDERED] DEPENDENT ON HIM,¹¹⁰ AS IT IS SAID, HE EXECUTED THE RIGHTEOUSNESS OF THE LORD AND HIS ORDINANCES WITH ISRAEL.¹¹¹ JEROBOAM, THE SON OF NEBAT, SINNED AND CAUSED OTHERS TO SIN, [THEREFORE] THE SIN OF THE MANY WAS [CONSIDERED] DEPENDENT ON HIM, AS IT IS SAID, FOR THE SINS OF JEROBOAM WHICH HE SINNED, AND WHEREWITH HE MADE ISRAEL TO SIN.¹¹²

MISHNAH 19. WHOEVER POSSESSES THESE THREE THINGS, HE IS OF THE DISCIPLES OF ABRAHAM, OUR FATHER; AND [WHOEVER POSSESSES] THREE OTHER THINGS, HE

IS OF THE DISCIPLES OF BALAAM, THE WICKED.¹¹³ THE DISCIPLES OF ABRAHAM, OUR FATHER, [POSSESS] A GOOD EYE,¹¹⁴ AN HUMBLE SPIRIT¹¹⁵ AND A LOWLY SOUL.¹¹⁶ THE DISCIPLES OF BALAAM, THE WICKED, [POSSESS] AN EVIL EYE,¹¹⁷ A HAUGHTY SPIRIT¹¹⁸ AND AN OVER-AMBITIOUS SOUL.¹¹⁹ WHAT IS [THE DIFFERENCE] BETWEEN THE DISCIPLES OF ABRAHAM, OUR FATHER, AND THE DISCIPLES OF BALAAM, THE WICKED. THE DISCIPLES OF ABRAHAM, OUR FATHER, ENJOY¹²⁰ [THEIR SHARE] IN THIS WORLD, AND INHERIT THE WORLD TO COME, AS IT IS SAID: THAT I MAY CAUSE THOSE THAT LOVE ME¹²¹ TO INHERIT SUBSTANCE AND THAT I MAY FILL THEIR TREASURIES,¹²² BUT THE DISCIPLES OF BALAAM, THE WICKED, INHERIT GEHINNOM,¹²³ AND DESCEND INTO THE NETHERMOST PIT, AS IT IS SAID: BUT THOU, O GOD, WILT BRING THEM DOWN TO THE NETHERMOST PIT; MEN OF BLOOD AND DECEIT¹²⁴ SHALL NOT LIVE OUT HALF THEIR DAYS; BUT AS FOR ME, I WILL TRUST IN THEE.

MISHNAH 20. JUDAH B. TEMA¹²⁵ SAID: BE BOLD AS A LEOPARD,¹²⁶ AND SWIFT AS AN EAGLE,¹²⁷ AND FLEET AS A HART,¹²⁸ AND STRONG AS A LION,¹²⁹ TO DO THE WILL OF THY FATHER WHO IS IN HEAVEN.¹³⁰

HE USED TO SAY: THE BOLD-FACED¹³¹ IS [DESTINED] FOR GEHINNOM¹³² AND THE SHAME-FACED¹³³ FOR THE GARDEN OF EDEN.¹³⁴

MAY IT BE THE WILL [EMANATING] FROM THY PRESENCE, O LORD OUR GOD,¹³⁵ THAT THY CITY¹³⁶ BE [RE]BUILT SPEEDILY IN OUR DAYS AND GRANT THOU [THAT] OUR PORTION [BE]¹³⁷ IN THY LAW.¹³⁸

MISHNAH 21. HE USED TO SAY:¹³⁹ FIVE YEARS [IS THE AGE] FOR [THE STUDY OF] SCRIPTURE,¹⁴⁰ TEN-FOR [THE STUDY OF] MISHNAH,¹⁴¹ THIRTEEN-FOR [BECOMING SUBJECT TO] COMMANDMENTS,¹⁴² FIFTEEN-FOR [THE STUDY OF] TALMUD,¹⁴³ EIGHTEEN- FOR THE [BRIDAL] CANOPY,¹⁴⁴ TWENTY — FOR PURSUING,¹⁴⁵ THIRTY-FOR [FULL] STRENGTH,¹⁴⁶ FORTY — FOR UNDERSTANDING, FIFTY- FOR [ABILITY TO GIVE] COUNSEL,¹⁴⁷ SIXTY-FOR MATURE AGE, SEVENTY-FOR A HOARY HEAD,¹⁴⁸ EIGHTY [IS A SIGN OF SUPERADDED] STRENGTH,¹⁴⁹ NINETY [IS THE AGE] FOR [A] BENDING [FIGURE],¹⁵⁰ AT A HUNDRED, ONE IS AS ONE THAT IS DEAD, HAVING PASSED AND CEASED FROM THE WORLD.¹⁵¹

MISHNAH 22,¹⁵² BEN BAG BAG¹⁵³ SAID: TURN IT¹⁵⁴ OVER, AND [AGAIN] TURN IT OVER, FOR ALL IS THEREIN.¹⁵⁵ AND LOOK¹⁵⁶ INTO IT; AND BECOME GREY AND OLD THEREIN;¹⁵⁷ NEITHER MOVE THOU AWAY THEREFROM,¹⁵⁸ FOR THAN IT THOU HAST NO BETTER STANDARD OF CONDUCT.¹⁵⁹

MISHNAH 23. BEN HEHE¹⁶⁰ SAID: ACCORDING TO THE LABOUR IS THE REWARD.¹⁶¹

(1) מאמרות with reference to the phrase וַיֹּאמֶר אֱלֹהִים and God said, which, in Gen. I, introduces the several phases of creation, and to the original utterance which brought the universe as a comprehensive whole into being, as implied in Ps. XXXIII, 9, for he spoke, and it was.

(2) In Gen. 1,3-29. 'and God said' occurs nine times (וַיֹּאמֶר) in v. 28b is looked upon as introducing a command or a blessing and not some new act of creation. V. Elijah Wilna's commentary to Aboth). As to which is the tenth 'utterance', opinions differ. Some think in view of Ps. XXXIII, 6, By the word of the Lord were the heavens waded, that an 'utterance' is implied in Gen. I, 1. P.R.E ch. III designates 'and he said' in Gen. II,18 (introducing the creation of woman) as the tenth. (The Epstein MS. of P.R.E. speaks of the ten utterances but does not enumerate them. V. G. Friedlander's Edition, a.i.) V. also II ARN ch. XXXVI, where one authority is reported as substituting Gen. I, 22, (the creation of the sea-monsters) where there is no 'and he said' but 'and he created' which term is held to imply a separate act of creation and therefore to have involved a separate 'utterance'. Gen. R. ch. XXVII enumerates eight times ויאמר up to Gen. I, 26, and in addition Gen. I, 1. (בראשית) and I, 2 'and the breath of God hovered over the face of the waters,' cf. the use of רוח breath in Ps. XXXIII, 6, as a parallel to word.

(3) מה תלמוד לומר v. supra III, 8, note.

(4) If the world had been created by one single fiat, men, judging by the little they can themselves achieve by one act only, would think lightly of the world, and have little compunction about 'spoiling' a 'cheap' thing that can be so easily made. The fact that God took, as it were, extraordinary and, in view of his omnipotence, apparently unnecessary pains in its creation, should serve to warn would-be wicked men — potential destroyers of the world — that God will by no means allow anyone to go scot free who by his conduct tends to destroy the world in the creation of which He has taken so much trouble, as it were.

(5) 'The implied relationship between ethical and cosmic processes' (Oesterley) is an important factor in Jewish theology.

(6) Viz., (i) Adam; (ii) Seth; (iii) Enosh; (iv) Kenan; (v) Mahalaleel; (vi) Jered; (vii) Enoch; (viii) Methuselah; (ix) Lamech; (x) Noah; (Gen. V. 3-29).

(7) מכעיסין ובאין so also I ARN ch. XXXII, but in the parallel to the latter half of this Mishnah (ibid Ch. XXXIII) מכעיסין לפניו 'acting provokingly before Him' which Lowe's MS., MV., R. Jonah and others have in both instances.

(8) Viz., (i) Shem; (ii) Arpachshad; (iii) Shelah; (iv) Eber; (v) Peleg; (vi) Reu; (vii) Serug; (viii) Nahor; (ix) Terah; (x) Abraham; (Gen. XI, 10-26).

(9) I.e., the reward which had been in store for the people of those ten generations and would have been given them had they not by their wickedness angered God and forfeited their share.

(10) I ARN Ch. XXXIII amplifies: Two trials at the time he was bidden to leave Haran, two with his two sons, two with his two wives, one in the wars of the Kings, one at the covenant 'between the pieces' (Gen. XV). one in Ur of the Chaldees (where, according to a tradition, he had been thrown into a furnace whence he came out unharmed). II ARN Ch. XXXVI speaks of ten trials, but names only nine: (i) at Ur; (ii) Get thee out of thy land. ' (Gen. XII, 2); (iii) The famine when he left Haran (Ibid. v. 10); (iv) Sarah at Pharaoh's palace; (v) Sarah at Abimelech's; (vi) Circumcision; (vii) The covenant 'between the pieces'; (viii) With Isaac; (ix) With Ishmael. p.R.E. contains numbers II,III (the latter as two separate trials), IV, VI-IX of the above list and adds his hiding underground from Nimrod for thirteen years, and the wars of the Kings (including the plight of Lot).

(11) I ARN, 'he was found perfect'.

(12) Cf. Isa. XLI, 8, Abraham that loved Me; II Chron. XX, 7, Abraham that loved Thee.

(13) That the ten plagues did not harm the Israelites is looked upon as constituting ten miracles.

(14) These ten are enumerated in I ARN ch. XXXIII (ed. Schechter, p. 96). Mekilta, Bshallah (ed. Weiss, p. 36). Tanhuma ib. (but not in ed. Buber), M. to Aboth summarizes: (i) the Sea cleft (Ex. XIV, 21); (ii) An arched tunnel ('tube') was formed through the water (Hab. III, 15); (iii) The sea-bed became hard (Ex. XIV, 29); (iv) it turned back to its muddy and clogging condition when the Egyptians attempted to use it (Hab. III, 14); (v) Separate paths were formed for each of the twelve tribes (Ps. CXXXVI, 13); (vi) The water congealed and hardened (Ps. LXXIV, 13); (vii) However not as one whole mass, but in separate blocks (ibid. Thou didst break the sea in pieces); (viii) The water-partitions between the parallel paths of the tribes were translucent (Ps. XVIII 12, 13); (ix) From the congealed (and salty) sea water, 'sweet' water flowed for the Israelites to drink, but (x) that which they did not drink, congealed again in its flow before it reached the ground (Ex. XV, 8).

(15) This paragraph not in all versions. The ten at the Red Sea are implied in the following expressions in Ex. XV: (i) v. I, . . . hath he thrown; (ii) v. 4, . . . hath he cast; (iii) ib. are sunk; (iv) v. 5, The deeps cover them; (v) ib. They went down into the depths; (vi) v. 6, . . . dasheth in pieces the enemy; (vii) v. 7. Thou overthrowest those that rise up against Thee; (viii) ib. . . it consumeth them as stubble; (ix) v. 10, The sea covereth them; (x) ib. They sank as lead. M., basing himself on Mekilta, has one variation.

(16) In some edd. of ARN (ch. XXXIV) 'with ten trials did the Holy One, blessed be He, put Israel to proof and in all of them they were found not perfect'. A list of the ten is given in 'Ar. 15a, b. (i) Because there are no graves in Egypt hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? (Ex. XIV, 11); (ii) Not till they had seen the Egyptians washed up dead, did the Israelites believe (ib. 30-31); (iii) At Marah (Ex. XV, 24); (iv) At Rephidim (ib. XVII, 2 ff); (v) Gathering manna on the Sabbath (ib. XVI, 27); (vi) Leaving it till the morning (ib. 20); (vii) The first lust for flesh which was satisfied by the quails that came with the Manna (ib. 3, 12-13); (viii) The second lust for flesh followed by a surfeit of quails at Kibroth ha-Ta'avah (Num. XI, 4. 18-20,34); (ix) The Golden calf (which was not only a transgression of the prohibition against idols, but a sign of lack of faith); (x) The evil report of the ten spies 'accepted' by the people. M. varies some items of the above list: for (v) he gives the murmuring which preceded the Manna (Ex. XVI, 2, 3), and for (vii) the murmuring at Taberah (Num. XI, 1.3). For the latter as well as for (iv) and (viii) cf. Deut. IX, 22, And at Taberah, and at Massah and at Kibroth ha-Ta'avah ye wade the Lord's wrath.

(17) Num. XIV, 22. This also exemplifies God's long-suffering: hitherto the punishments for each act due to lack of faith had been ad hoc; it was only after the tenth 'trial', that God finally doomed that generation to perish in the wilderness.

(18) Through a longing that could not have been satisfied to partake of it, (but v. L.).

(19) Though it could be, and often was, kept at the altar-head for two or three days. R. Jonah and MV had התליע, a denominative of תולעה 'worm'.

(20) It was fitted with marble tables.

(21) Which would not only disqualify him from carrying through the service of the Day, but would make him feel exceedingly self-conscious, as everybody would be bound to get to know of it. I ARM Ch. XXXV adds, 'except R. Ishmael b. Kimhith' who was accidentally rendered unclean through the uncleanness of another person (v. Yoma 47a). In the case of another High priest who is reported to have become unclean on the Day of Atonement (ib. 12b), it is held by some authorities that that, too, was caused by an external impurity. Others say this miracle operated only in the First Temple, whereas the cases mentioned occurred in the Second.

(22) Laid on the altar, which was under the open sky. The Hebrew word translated 'pile' (מערכה) is from the root ערך 'to set (or lay) in order' which is used for laying a fire on an altar (e.g.. Gen. XXII, 9; Lev. I, 7,12).

(23) Some: A column of smoke from the altar-fire broken up or deflected by wind denoted an unacceptable sacrifice. L. explains quite prosaically: so that the smoke was not blown downward, thus causing discomfort to the priests in the performance of the service. L. is probably right as the first interpretation does not tally with the fact known from the Prophets. etc. that there had been sacrifices offered up in the Temple that were unacceptable to God.

(24) Lev. XXIII, 9ff. A sheaf of new barley freshly cut during the night following the First Day of passover, brought to the Temple courtyard, threshed, parched, spread on the courtyard floor to be dried by the wind, milled, sifted through thirteen sieves, a tenth part of an epha taken off and given to the priests who offered it up in the manner prescribed for meal-offerings (Men. X, 3-5). This 'released' the new grain for reaping (ib. 7). Should some disqualifying defect have rendered the omer unfit for the altar, it would have been impossible to prepare another sheaf in time for the offering (v. B.).

(25) Baked of the 'First Fruits' of the wheat-harvest and offered up on the Feast of Weeks (Pentecost) (Lev. ibid. 15ff.). The baking had to be done before the commencement of the festival, and was not among those Temple ritual occupations which overrode the prohibition of work on Sabbath and Festival. If, therefore, by reason of any defect, the Two Loaves would have had to be disqualified, others could not have been 'brought'.

(26) Ex. XXV, 30; Lev. XXIV, 5-7. It was changed weekly, on the Sabbath, but had to be baked before the Sabbath. If there had been some disqualifying cause, they could not have changed the shewbread for another week. The last three miracles are treated in our Mishnah as one, but they are enumerated as separate in Yoma 21a, where the rain and wind miracles are not given among the ten.

(27) Or 'pressed together'.

(28) אדון Another reading is אדון 'dwell' and, according to some, it means that everybody who lived in Jerusalem was able to obtain a livelihood. Our reading refers to the large number of pilgrims who came to Jerusalem for the Three Festivals (Passover, Pentecost, Tabernacles). all of whom found accommodation in Jerusalem.

(29) בין השמשות; Nahmanides to Ex. XII, 6, on בין הערבים (which Onkelos translates בין שמשא and Targum Jonathan' ביני שמשות) renders it 'between the suns', between the sun in the East and the sun in the West: till midday the sun is in the East, after that in the West. At midday it shines in both directions (which explains the dual form of צהרים noon). After noon the sun's light gradually diminishes as from both directions (hence the dual ערבים) until it sinks. The Rabbinic phrase בין השמשות would thus mean the period between the sun leaving the East and the sun leaving also the West. According to Ibn Ezra (v. Ex. ib. and Gen. I, 18) בין השמשות (or בין הערבים) would mean the period between the disappearance of the sun's disc beneath the horizon and the disappearance of its light which is still reflected in the clouds. Jastrow s.v. 'between the services' sc. of day and night, relying on Nahmanides' interpretation of לממשלת היום not as 'to rule by day' but as 'to rule over the day etc.' According to this interpretation, the day and the night are the servants of the sun and the moon, and the durations of day and night may be termed their respective periods of service. Ibn Ezra says of בין הערבים that it is מלה קשה 'a difficult term', which applies similarly, of course, to בין השמשות).

(30) Num. XVI, 30, And if the Lord shall (be found to) have created a (special) creation and the ground open her mouth, and swallow them (i.e. Korah and his confederates) up, with all that appertain unto them . . .

(31) פי הבאר Either the mouth of the well in the rock which Moses opened by striking the rock (Num. XX, 7-11), or the mouth of the Well of Miriam which followed the Israelites in the wilderness and which halted when they encamped, and which is taken by some to be the well referred to in Num. XXI, 16-18.

(32) V. Num. XXII, 28, And the Lord opened the mouth of the ass, and she said unto Balaam . . .

(33) V. Gen. IX, 13ff.

(34) V. Ex. IV, 17.

(35) שמיר In Bibl. Heb. thorn, also flint used for engraving. In Rabbinic literature it also denotes a legendary worm or insect which by passing over stones could make an incision for an engraving or split them through completely. Such an assumption was deemed necessary in view of the command that no iron tool be lifted at the building of an altar to God (Ex. XX, 22) and, of the report in I Kings VI, 7, that in fact no such tool was heard during the building of Solomon's Temple.

(36) So M. and R. Jonah. And the Lord said unto Moses: Come up to Me into the mount, and be there; and I will give thee the tables of stone, and the law and the commandment which I have written. . — (Ex. XXIV, 12.) i.e., God had already once written the Law before he called Moses into the mount. B. and others, 'the shape of the written characters' on the Tables which were held to have been of an unique nature in that the letters having been cut right through the stone, were not only equally readable on both sides, but a letter such as the ancient 'Ayin which was O-shaped-could, in such circumstances, have been possible only by miracle (v. Shab. 104a). This belief was based on Ex. XXXII, 15: tables that were written on both their sides; on the one side and on the other were they written.

(37) מכתב Ex. XXXII, 16, and the writing (מכתב) was the writing of God. Others (e.g. Rashi) vocalize, here in the Mishnah, מכתב or מכתב the writing or engraving instrument.

(38) Ibid. And the tables were the work of God.

(39) Deut. XXXIV, 6.

(40) I.e., It was ordained on the eve of the First Sabbath at twilight that a certain ram in Abraham's time should be 'ownerless' (hefker), so that when Abraham should require one as a surprise-substitute for Isaac, he might find one ready at hand which he could rightfully (i.e. without robbing anyone) appropriate for a sacrifice (L.).

(41) מוזיקין from root נזק suffer injury, Est. VII, 4 (also Dan, VI, 3; Ezra IV, 13, 15, 22, Aramaic) i.e., those who cause injury, do harm, destroy. Demons. Souls unfinished before the First Sabbath set in.

(42) The idea is: There must have been tongs to hold the iron from which the first man-made tongs were forged. V. Pes. 54a, where it is suggested that the first tongs could have been cast in a mould. The parallels mention some other Sabbath-eve creations such as the rod of Aaron (Num. XVII, 16 ff), the garment of Adam (Gen. III, 21), the cave in which Moses and Elijah stood when God revealed himself to them. (Ex. XXXIII, 22; I Kings XIX, 9 ff.) With reference to the things enumerated in the Mishnah, Singer (P.B. p. 200) remarks: 'All phenomena that seemed to partake at once of the natural and the supernatural were conceived as having had their origin in the interval between the close of the work of creation and the commencement of the Sabbath.' It is generally held that what is meant is that these things were created on the Sabbath eve at twilight, in posse, to become available in esse when the right time for their use would arrive.

(43) גלם in Ps. CXXXIX, 16, means the yet undeveloped embryo. Its use here as an antithesis to חכם proves that it has reference to a man's mental powers.

(44) Some versions add ובמנין 'and in number' which means either in number of years, i.e., age, or in the number of scholars who agree with the opinion of the other man, if they be in the majority.

(45) I.e., does not break in or interrupt.

(46) Cf. the advice in I,1. patience is required of a Rabbi, teacher or judge in giving a considered reply.

(47) Cf. Shab. 3b: R. Hiyya said to Rab: 'When Rabbi is definitely occupied with one tractate, do not ask him a question relating to another . . . were it not that Rabbi is a great man (scholar) you would have confounded him and he would have given you an inappropriate reply.'

(48) B . . . and (consequently) the teacher answers, etc.

(49) Others: 'to the point'.

(50) I.e., learnt it. He admits not knowing. Cf. Ber. 4a. DEZ ch. III, 'teach thy tongue to say I know not . . . Others: When he gives an answer, either an interpretation or a decision, which has not been handed down to him by his own

- teachers, he deliberately makes a clear statement to that effect, so that his hearers might not be misled into taking for granted that this teaching of his too is from tradition. Some render 'understood' instead of 'heard'.
- (51) R. Jonah: When in discussion he recognizes as true the solution propounded by another man, he acknowledges it as correct, though he may think of clever counter-arguments, and he does not consider it inconsistent with his dignity to admit defeat.
- (52) I.e., upon mankind, more particularly upon Israel.
- (53) Cf. MV. Others (e.g. Singer, P.B.), 'important transgressions'.

- (57) Cf. Lev. ibid. 25; Deut. ibid. 21.
- (58) Either, because the Torah expressly, or impliedly, excludes those matters from the competency of a human court, or, because the sins, though committed, have not come to the knowledge of the judicial authorities, or, at a time when a Jewish tribunal is not able to promulgate or enforce capital punishment.
- (59) The Sabbatical year (Shemittah); v. Lev. XXV, 6-7.
- (60) Cf. Lev. XXVI, 25.
- (61) Lit., 'oppression (better, suppression) of judgment', a term used of deliberate methods of unduly prolonging proceedings and of general interference with the course of justice calculated to delay the ultimate decision. It is also used of unnecessarily postponing an execution (Sanh. XI, 4).
- (62) V. supra III, 11.

- (73) Viz., Leket (gleaning), Pe'ah (the corner sc. of the field), v. Lev. XIX, 9. and Shikehah ('forgotten' sc. sheaves) v. Deut. XXIV, 19, which were to be left to the poor. With the end of Succoth, the Festival of Ingathering, i.e., the completion of the agricultural year, the failure to carry out those observances in the past year, brings in its wake Divine punishment. V. Buchler, Sin and Atonement, p. 383.
- (74) מדה מדות := a measure (quantitative or qualitative), a standard by which one judges or is judged, characteristic, quality, type.
- (75) The attitude of a 'self-contained', smug, selfishness is unethical and immoral, wicked from the highest point of view (the Hasid's), though one cannot call it an illegitimate one (v. Buchler, Some Types, p. 38). Anyone might say, 'if I am not for myself, who will be for me?' but a Hillel (who is often called a Hasid) adds, 'but if I am for myself only, what am I?' Commentators quote Ezek. XVI, 49 Behold thy sister Sodom: . . . she strengthened not the hand of the poor and needy.
- (76) 'Am ha-arez:, v. note to II, 6. L. understands 'mine is thine', as 'on condition that thine is mine.'
- (77) Hasid, v. supra II, 6.
- (78) According to Hoffmann, Erste Mischna, p. 28, this was the last paragraph in the Tractate Aboth underlying ARM. (V. Buchler op. cit., p. 41.)
- (79) Cf. supra II, 1.
- (80) הסיד He is not free from the tendency, common to all men, to become angry, but by his self-control he reduces that inclination to the least proportions. (Cf. supra IV, 1), v. M. The designation of such a man as a Hasid would account for the epithet of הסיד given to Hillel after his death, Sotah 48b, cf. Buchler op. cit., p. 39.
- (81) Lit., 'to hear'.
- (82) Lit. 'lose'.

- (83) MV and others (including p.B. versions), 'a goodly portion', clearly in contrast to the next category.
- (84) Commentators remark that the terms חַסִּיד and רָשָׁע (i.e., 'pious' and 'wicked') are not used here, because these refer to moral qualities, whereas this dictum deals with intellectual ability.
- (85) Lit., 'the givers of alms'. צְדָקָה = righteousness, applied in Rabbinic phraseology to helping those in need, which is viewed as an act of social justice.
- (86) I.e., grudging; v. supra II, 9.
- (87) He thinks the poor have enough with what he has given, and grudges them the additional help they might get from others. B and others: He grudges other would-be donors the credit that would accrue to them for their charitableness.
- (88) Seeking to cut off all possible sources of help from the poor man is tantamount to a deliberate attempt to starve him.
- (89) Lit., 'those who go to.'
- (90) Lit., 'does.' Buchler, op. cit. p. 40f. has shown that it must refer to practising (the moral and ethical teachings of the school).
- (91) Even though his attendance has not yet had the desired result. 'Great is Midrash (learning) in that it brings one to Ma'aseh (deed).'
- (92) He practises the precepts and leads a good-life by following the example of others, but does not take the trouble to acquire for himself a first hand knowledge of the Torah.
- (93) As Hasid refers to a man's conduct towards his fellowman, its use here can only be explained by supposing that the Beth ha-Midrash for the ordinary man was not a place for academic instruction but for the imparting of ethical and religious guidance for every-day life. (V. Buchler, ibid.)
- (94) Not only does he fail to perform the precepts, for which there may be the excuse of lack of knowledge, but by keeping away from the school he wilfully precludes his ever acquiring the knowledge, or coming under the influence, which could in time enable him to lead a worthier life.
- (95) Mishnah 12 dealt with qualities of memory among 'disciples', our Mishnah with the capacity of advanced students ('those who sit before the wise') for examining knowledge acquired from one's teachers and arriving at one's own conclusions, (cf. B. and L.).
- (96) Taylor, 'bolt-sieve' v. note below.
- (97) If קִמָּחַ means coarse flour and no fine flour, as they are usually translated, then what should one understand by נֶפֶחַ? What we know as a sieve would, contrary to the description of the Mishnah, let through the סֵלֶת (fine flour) and retain the קִמָּחַ (coarse flour). According to M., R., and B, נֶפֶחַ is an ordinary sieve but קִמָּחַ is the very fine part of the ground corn which forms a kind of superfine dust or powder of almost useless quality. It is the part which is thicker than this, and remains in the sieve, that is סֵלֶת. Taylor renders 'bolt-sieve' which he describes: 'It sifts the ground corn at once into three sorts. The corn in the bolter descends an incline, passing first over a fine cloth, and then over a coarse cloth: the former lets through the fine flour, which is caught in a receptacle attached to the machine: the process is repeated at the second cloth: the third quality, coarse bran, passes out at the end of the bolter.' This description tallies with the function of נֶפֶחַ as described in II ARM Ch. XLV, q.v. What types of students are intended by these similes? M. says: The Sponge: He absorbs, and mostly retains, all he is taught without any discrimination whatsoever. The Funnel: He takes all the knowledge poured into him, but he lets it escape him almost as quickly as he gets it. The Strainer: He retains the least useful and lets out the best. The Sieve: Retains the best and discards the inferior. L. explains differently: The Sponge: Absorbs all, the good and the inferior, indiscriminately, and is unable to give out his mixed knowledge unless he is pressed by many insistent questions. The Funnel: Also allows everything in indiscriminately. but can and does easily pass on what he has learnt to others, though, again, indiscriminately. The Strainer: Takes all but separates the pure from the dregs, passes the former on to others, and retains, but eventually discards, the latter. (This is the best type of scholar.) The Sieve: Solely being (according to L.) the very finest flour-dust or powder which the sieve retains (because it adheres to the sieve), this (would-be) scholar 'feeds' others with the inferior and leaves the best altogether. (This is the scholar of a perverted mind, the worst type.)
- (98) So 13. followed by Oesterley; M. (followed by Singer. P.B.): 'material cause'.
- (99) Reading according to a suggestion by Baer בְּתָמָר. The usual reading וְתָמָר 'and Tamar' cannot be right because Tamar did not love Amnon, v. II Samuel XIII. (Even verse 13 suggests no more than a mere possibility that she was not actually averse to him.)
- (100) V. I Sam. XVIII, 1; Ibid. XX, 17; II Sam. I, 26.
- (101) V. supra I, 11, notes.
- (102) Cf. supra IV, 11.

- (103) According to 'Er. 13b, a Bath Kol (Heavenly Voice) declared, 'Both these (the words of Hillel) and these (the words of Shammai) are the words of the Living God.'
- (104) V. Num. XVI. For the phrase Korah and all his congregation v. ibid 6 and passim.
- (105) The public, the people in general.
- (106) Or 'to have merit.'
- (107) So that he be not punished whilst his disciples or followers are rewarded (ARM).
- (108) For the phrase cf. supra IV, 5.
- (109) Lit., 'to do repentance.' Perhaps לעשות should be translated to attain, achieve'. Cf. the use of the verb in Deut. VIII, 17. The door of repentance is closed to him 'since the sins of others are beyond the remedial action of his repentance' (Singer, P.B.). Also, if his repentance were accepted, he would escape punishment, whilst those whom he had misled would be undergoing it (ARM).
- (110) I.e., attributed to him; he is given credit therefor.
- (111) Deut. XXXIII, 21.
- (112) 1 Kings XV, 30.
- (113) So designated in Jewish literature, as' his wickedness is proved by his own willingness, even eagerness, to go with Balak's messengers, and his 'apologies' for not being able to curse Israel; it is he, too, who is said to have counselled the seduction of the Israelites by the Moabite women.
- (114) V. supra II, 9. Abraham demonstrated his generous and ungrudging nature in his dealings with the King of Sodom (Gen. XIV, 22f.) and with Ephron the Hittite (Gen. XXIII).
- (115) Abraham's humility is evident from his words: . . . I . . . ' who am but dust and ashes (Gen. XVIII, 27).
- (116) נפש (soul) is used here of 'desire', 'appetite', a meaning which it has already in Biblical Hebrew. שפלה would thus mean 'kept low', 'subdued'. Cf. Abraham's dealing with Lot, Gen. XIII. The three above qualities are among those sought for when appointing judges. v. J. Sanh. I, 4.
- (117) Balaam's avarice is clear from his own words; v. Num. XXII, 18; XXIV, 13.
- (118) A reference to Balaam's claim that he was one that . knoweth the knowledge of the Most High (Num. XXIV, 16).
- (119) Balaam's 'handling' of Balak, and his attempts at 'outwitting' God, reveal an insatiable desire for power.
- (120) Lit., 'eat', cf. Pe'ah 1,2.
- (121) This is taken as a reference to Abraham of whom God said, Abraham who loved me (Isa. XLI, 8).
- (122) Prov. VIII, 21. It seems that 'to inherit substance' is intended as a reference to that which the disciples of Abraham receive in this world and 'that I may fill their treasuries' to their reward in the world to come. Cf. the treatment of Ps. CXXVIII, 2, supra IV. 1. Some take the whole quotation to refer to the reward in the hereafter, the word for 'substance' ש' ' being aggadically explained (in 'Uk. III, 12) as a Gematria (v. supra 111,18) equalling three hundred and ten, sc. worlds, which God allots to the righteous.
- (123) Cf. supra 1,5; v. note on next Mishnah.
- (124) Ps. LV, 24. This twofold designation fits Balaam who by his evil counsel (v. p. 72, n. 1) brought about the death of 24,000 Israelites, v. Num. XXV, 9.
- (125) Mentioned in the Mishnah only here (though it is held by some that this paragraph, too, is a later addition, v. note to Mishnah 10), but a few times in Tosef. In Hag. 14a he is referred as one of the בעלי משנה 'Masters of the Mishnah'. As we do not find him mentioned together with any particular Tanna we cannot determine in which generation he lived (Frankel Darke ha-Mishnah, p. 213).
- (126) I.e., (negatively) fearless, and (positively) challenging. For this quality in the service of God v. Isa. L, 6-7; Ps. XL, 10-11; CXIX, 46.
- (127) Cf. II Sam. I, 23.
- (128) Cf. Ps. CXIX, 60. I made haste, and delayed not, to observe Thy commandments. Cf. supra IV, 2.
- (129) Cf. II Sam. ibid. They were stronger than lions.
- (130) 'Father' is a characteristic appellation of God in the Hebrew Bible, e.g., Deut. XXXII, 6,15 not He thy father . . .? Jer. III, 4, Didst thou not just now cry unto Me: 'My father' . . . ' Mal. II, 10, Have we not all one Father? Hath not one God created us. V. also Jer. ibid, 29; Mal. I, 6. The God in, or of, Heaven, too, is frequent, e.g., Gen. XXIV, 3, 7, etc. The Biblical passage which is most probably the source of (if not itself to be traced to) the combined expression 'Our Father in Heaven' is Isa. LXIII, 15,16, Look down from heaven . . . even from Thy holy habitation . . . for Thou art our Father . . . Thou, O Lord, art our Father. V. Marmorstein, The old 'tabb. Doctrine of God, p. 56ff. MV notes here 'Tractate Aboth is Ended' and then gives the dictum about man's successive ages.

(131) עו פנים Deut. XXVIII, 50, 'fierce of countenance' synonymous with insolence ('that shall not regard the person of the old') and callousness ('nor show favour to the young') cf. Dan. VIII, 23. In Eccl. VIII, 1, עו פניו 'the boldness of his face' means (according to 13DB.) 'impudence'. In Rabbinic Hebrew the expression stands for supineness and impudence in general; as a characteristic it is looked upon among the most undesirable. Rabbi Judah ha-Nasi was wont to offer up a private prayer that he be spared from meeting 'Azzuth Panim in other people, and from being himself tainted there with (Ber. 16b). This private prayer has since been incorporated among the statutory daily prayers (P.B. p. 7).

(132) גיהנום interchangeably with גִּי בֶן הַנֶּם in Josh. XV, 8, and elsewhere is the Valley of (the son of) Hinnom S.S.W. of Jerusalem. According to II Kings XXIII, 20; Jer. VII, 31f; XIX, 6, 9, etc., etc., it was the place where children were sacrificed, by burning, to Moloch. It was also known as תפת (Topheth) or the Valley of Slaughter. The revolting associations of the place evidently led to the transference of its name to the most horrifying place in human imagination, the place of punishment of the wicked in the hereafter. Some Rabbinic traditions place Gehinnom of the hereafter below the valley of that name, but there are also other supposed locations. The Moloch worship in the actual valley of Hinnom together with Isa. LXVI, 24, (. . . the carcasses of the men that have rebelled against me; for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched . . .) which suggests that the punishment of the wicked is to be by fire, has invested the Gehinnom of the hereafter with the characteristics of 'hell'. The methods and duration of punishment in Gehinnom are also matters on which opinions differ. V. f.E.

(133) Cf. Yeb. 79a: A sense of shame (i.e., the opp. to insolence and self-assertiveness) compassion, and the practice of disinterested kindness are the characteristics of Israel.

(134) גן עדן The :celestial Garden of Eden, 'paradise' — the abode of the righteous — of which the terrestrial one, spoken of in Gen. II and III, is the model (v. also Ezek. XXXI which speaks of the trees in Eden in the garden of God) or (according to some) vice-versa. In the popular conception the two are not kept separate. Views as to its location, dimension, appearance, etc. differ in the Midrashic and Talmudic references, It is often used as synonymous with 'Olam habba, 'the world-to-come.' Some distinguish between Eden and the Garden of Eden. The Garden, they say, is but a part of Eden; Adam and Eve were only in the Garden, but no mortal eye has yet perceived the real, unspeakably more wonderful, Eden. V. J.E. Articles 'Eden, Garden of' and 'Paradise'. Taylor: This part of the Mishnah is probably a later addition borrowed from Tractate Kallah.

(135) Many edd. add 'and God of our Fathers.'

(136) P.B. versions 'the Sanctuary.'

(137) Taylor (followed by Oesterley) 'grant us our portion.'

(138) Elijah Wilna says this paragraph should be at the end of the chapter. In MV it is at the end of Chapter VI.

(139) MV, also other texts, attribute this dictum to Samuel the Little. In some versions it is preceded by the dictum which is also found in the latter's name in IV, 19. By some, our Mishnah is credited to Ben He-He, whose name occurs in the next Mishnah.

(140) מקרא (v. Meh. VIII, 8), lit., that which was (to be) read sc. from a written text (synonymous with 'The Law in Writing'), as distinguished from משנה 'that which was (to be) recited sc. from hearing and memory' (synonymous with 'The Law which was (transmitted) by (word of) mouth'). The five years here are said to be based on the analogy of the newly planted tree, the fruit of which becomes available for general consumption in the fifth year (Lev. XIX, 25).

(141) משנה v. previous note. The age of ten in this connection is explained thus: In Num. IV, 3' etc. the period of a Levite's service is commanded to begin 'from thirty years old', but ibid. VIII, 24, 'from twenty-five years old.' The discrepancy is explained by allotting five years for the Levite's training before he becomes proficient for his sacred duties (v. Hui. 24a). Five years is, thus, an accepted period for the first phase of education. Commencing Scripture at five, one is ready for Mishnah at ten.

(142) In connection with many precepts, references to the committing of sins and penalties, the term איש — 'man' — is used; hence the age at which one becomes subject to Mizwoth and penalties is thirteen, when the boy is said to have matured into a 'man' (v. Elijah Wilna to this Mishnah). This, of course, underlies the Bar-Mizwah institution, which, however, in the present usage of the term, appears to be of much later origin. V. Schechter, Studies in Judaism (First Series), p. 378ff.

(143) תלמוד Used here, apparently, in the special sense of study based on the Mishnah or Oral Learning (though not, of course, in the specific sense that we use it), rather than study in general. At the age of fifteen, he will have completed the second five years' stage of his studies.

(144) Eighteen was the age recommended at which a man should marry so that he may fulfil the precept, When a man taketh a new wife, he shall not go out in the host . . . ' one year, and shall cheer his wife whom he hath taken (Deut. XXIV, 5) and yet be ready to undertake military service at the age of twenty (Num. I, 3 passim).

(145) Some: For military service which began 'from twenty years old' (Num. ibid.). Most commentators: for pursuing, seeking, a livelihood. This will have given him a further five-year period (from fifteen to twenty) for devoting himself to Talmud before setting out in earnest on a worldly career. Others explain 'for pursuing' to mean for quickness, zest, impetuosity, in the pursuit of one's desires or ideals (so Abrabanel, v. Taylor).

(146) Thirty was the age at which a Levite entered upon his full duties which comprised the work of service and the work of bearing burdens (Num. IV, 47); these duties being so comprehensive and arduous required the possession of full physical faculties ע כח Scripture thus considers thirty the age for strength. V. also ibid. VII, 9.

(147) According to Num. VIII, 25f.: from the age of fifty years they (the Levites) shall return from the service of the work, and shall serve no more; but shall minister with their brethren in the tent of meeting, to keep the charge, but they shall do no manner of service. As their ministrations were not in the nature of actual work, they must then have served in the capacity of responsible counsellors. Hence fifty must be the age when a man becomes fitted for giving counsel.

(148) V. II Sam. V, 4: David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years. i.e., he lived seventy years; and I Chron. XXIX, 28, And he (David) died in a good old age (שיבה = hoary head). Thus שיבה is reached at the age of seventy.

(149) Cf. Ps. XC, 10.

(150) לשונה The Bibl. root שׁוה means 'sink down' and its cognates שחה and שחה 'bend', 'bow down'. Others take שׁוה here as a noun which in the Bible occurs in a feminine form שוחה 'pit', 'grave'.

(151) Elijah Wilna cites Isa. LXV, 20, There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the youth shall die one hundred years old, and points out that the context there shows that this is intended as a blessing. Thus the extreme limit up to which life is a blessing is a hundred years; and one who exceeds that limit is as one who no more belongs to the world. Exceptions to this are very rare; and in the case of Moses, Scripture found it necessary to say: his eye was not dim nor his natural force abated (Deut. XXXIV, 7).

(152) MV has this passage at the end of Chapter VI, together with the prayer in Mishnah 20.

(153) His full name, Johanan b. Bag Bag, occurs in J. Keth. V: 4. Tos. V, as a contemporary of R. Judah b. Bathyra. Tosaf. Yom Tob a.l. says the name is omitted here, as also in Ben He-He's case, because they did not live long (cf. Ben Zoma and Ben 'Azzai supra IV beginning), and quotes Rashbam to the effect that Ben Bag Bag and Ben He-He were proselytes, and בין הא הא means a son of Abraham and Sarah, to whose respective names God had, as a sign of favour, added the letter ה and whose spiritual 'parenthood' is assumed for all proselytes; בג (in Ben Bag Bag) is the numerical equivalent of ה (five). He was so called to distinguish him from b. He He (v. Tosaf. to Hag. 9b). Bacher AT, I, p. 10f. suggests the following explanation of the two names: In Shab. 31a, etc. we have the story of the would-be proselyte who desired to learn Torah, but only the written and not the oral (traditional). Hillel cured him of his contempt for the oral tradition by letting him see that the knowledge of the very names of the letters of the Alphabet depended on oral tradition, e.g., he pointed out to him that we know ב is Beth and ג is Gimmel and not vice-versa only by means of oral instruction. Such a disciple might well have earned for himself the name בן ב'ג ב'ג or הי הי (the one who learnt that ה is He). They, or (if they are identical) he, may have derived the sayings given here in the two names from Hillel himself as in I ARM XII, both sayings are in the name of Hillel (in II ARM XXVII the first in Hillel's name, the second in that of בן הא הא as in our text). There is also a suggestion that בג is formed from the initial letters of בן ברים 'son of proselytes,' (v. MV).

(154) The Torah.

(155) Lowe's MS. adds בה וכולך 'and thy all is therein,' for which Taylor adduces Eccl. XII, 13, and this (i.e., fearing God and observing his commandments) is the whole of wan.

(156) Look deeply, contemplate. MV: ובה תהוי 'and therein (thou shouldst) have thy being.'

(157) Cf. Ps. XCII, 15.

(158) Cf. the frequent admonitions not to turn aside from the Law to the right or to the left.

(159) מדה v. p. 67, n. 3.

(160) V. p. 76, n. 7.

(161) A proverb of general application, but here it has special reference to the labour and energy devoted to the study of the Torah.

Mishna - Mas. Avoth Chapter 6

THE SAGES TAUGHT IN THE STYLE¹ OF THE MISHNAH;² BLESSED BE HE WHO HAS APPROVED³ THEM AND THEIR TEACHING.⁴

BARAITHA 1. R. MEIR SAID: WHOEVER OCCUPIES HIMSELF WITH THE TORAH FOR ITS OWN SAKE, ACQUIRES BY MERIT MANY THINGS, NAY MORE, THE WHOLE OF THE WORLD IS WORTH WHILE FOR HIS SAKE. HE IS CALLED A FRIEND,⁵ A BELOVED,⁶ ONE THAT LOVES THE ALL-PRESENT, ONE THAT LOVES [HIS FELLOW-] CREATURES.⁷ ONE THAT GLADDENS GOD,⁸ ONE THAT GLADDENS MAN;⁸ AND IT [I. E. THE TORAH] CLOTHES HIM⁹ WITH MEEKNESS AND FEAR,¹⁰ AND FITS¹¹ HIM TO BE RIGHTEOUS, PIOUS, UPRIGHT AND FAITHFUL; IT ALSO KEEPS HIM FAR FROM SIN, AND BRINGS HIM NEAR TO MERIT [ORIOUS CONDUCT]; AND MEN BENEFIT FROM HIM BY [WAY OF] COUNSEL, SOUND KNOWLEDGE, UNDERSTANDING AND STRENGTH, AS IT IS SAID, COUNSEL IS MINE AND SOUND WISDOM; I AM UNDERSTANDING, POWER IS MINE;¹² AND IT GIVES HIM SOVEREIGNTY¹³ AND DOMINION,¹⁴ AND [THE FACULTY TO BE] SEARCHING IN JUDGMENT;¹⁵ AND THEY REVEAL TO HIM¹⁶ THE SECRET MEANINGS¹⁷ OF THE TORAH, AND HE IS MADE AS A WELL THAT EVER GATHERS FORCE,¹⁸ AND LIKE A STREAM THAT NEVER CEASES;¹⁹ AND HE BECOMES MODEST, LONG-SUFFERING AND FORGIVING OF INSULT TOWARDS HIMSELF; AND IT MAKES HIM GREAT, AND EXALTS HIM ABOVE ALL THE WORKS [OF GOD].

BARAITHA 2. R. JOSHUA B. LEVI²⁰ SAID: EVERY DAY A BATH KOL²¹ GOES FORTH FROM MOUNT HOREB, AND MAKES PROCLAMATION AND SAYS: WOE UNTO MEN ON ACCOUNT OF [THEIR] CONTEMPT TOWARDS THE TORAH,²² FOR WHOEVER OCCUPIES HIMSELF NOT WITH THE [STUDY OF] TORAH IS CALLED: '[THE] REBUKED [ONE]'²³ AS IT IS SAID, AS A RING OF GOLD IN A SWINE'S SNOUT, SO IS A FAIR WOMAN THAT TURNETH AWAY FROM DISCRETION,²⁴ AND IT SAYS, AND THE TABLES WERE THE WORK OF GOD, AND THE WRITING WAS THE WRITING OF GOD, GRAVEN UPON THE TABLES.²⁵ READ NOT HARUTH [WHICH MEANS 'GRAVEN'] BUT HERUTH [WHICH MEANS 'FREEDOM'].²⁶ FOR THERE IS NO FREE MAN FOR THEE BUT HE THAT OCCUPIES HIMSELF WITH THE STUDY OF THE TORAH; AND WHOEVER REGULARLY OCCUPIES HIMSELF WITH THE STUDY OF THE TORAH, LO, HE IS EXALTED, AS IT IS SAID, AND FROM MATTANAH TO NAHALIEL; AND NAHALIEL TO BAMOTH.²⁷

BARAITHA 3. HE WHO LEARNS FROM HIS FELLOW ONE SINGLE SECTION,²⁸ OR ONE SINGLE RULE,²⁹ OR ONE SINGLE VERSE,³⁰ OR ONE SINGLE EXPRESSION,³¹ OR EVEN ONE SINGLE LETTER,³² IS UNDER OBLIGATION TO TREAT HIM WITH HONOUR; FOR SO WE FIND WITH DAVID, KING OF ISRAEL, WHO LEARNT FROM AHITOPHEL TWO THINGS ONLY,³³ [YET] CALLED HIM HIS MASTER, HIS COMPANION AND HIS FAMILIAR FRIEND, AS IT IS SAID, BUT IT WAS THOU, A MAN MINE EQUAL, MY COMPANION³⁴ AND MY FAMILIAR FRIEND.³⁵ IS THIS NOT [AN INSTANCE OF THE ARGUMENT] 'FROM THE LESS TO THE GREATER'?³⁶ WHAT [WAS IT IN THE CASE OF] DAVID, KING OF ISRAEL? [IT WAS] THAT HE HAD LEARNT FROM AHITOPHEL TWO THINGS ONLY, [YET] HE CALLED HIM HIS MASTER, HIS COMPANION AND HIS FAMILIAR FRIEND; [THEN IN THE CASE OF] ONE WHO LEARNS FROM HIS FELLOW A SECTION, A RULE, A VERSE OR AN EXPRESSION OR EVEN ONE LETTER, THERE ARE FOR [EVERY] ONE [REASON IN THE FORMER CASE] EVER SO MANY [REASONS IN THE LATTER CASE, FOR CONCLUDING] THAT HE IS UNDER OBLIGATION TO TREAT HIM [I.E. HIS FELLOW] WITH HONOUR. AND 'HONOUR' MEANS NOTHING BUT TORAH, AS IT IS SAID, THE WISE SHALL INHERIT HONOUR,³⁷ AND THE PERFECT SHALL INHERIT GOOD,³⁸ AND IT IS [ALSO] SAID, FOR I GIVE YOU GOOD DOCTRINE; FORSAKE YE NOT MY TEACHING [TORAH].³⁹

BARAITHA 4. SUCH IS THE WAY [OF LIFE CONDUCTIVE TO THE STUDY] OF THE TORAH: A MORSEL OF BREAD WITH SALT⁴⁰ THOU SHALT EAT, AND WATER BY MEASURE THOU SHALT DRINK,⁴¹ AND UPON THE GROUND THOU SHALT SLEEP, AND A LIFE OF PRIVATION THOU SHALT LIVE, AND IN THE TORAH SHALT THOU LABOUR.⁴² IF THOU DOEST THUS, HAPPY SHALT THOU BE, AND IT SHALL BE WELL WITH THEE.⁴³ HAPPY SHALT THOU BE IN THIS WORLD, AND IT SHALL BE WELL WITH THEE IN THE WORLD TO COME.

SEEK NOT GREATNESS FOR THYSELF, AND COVET NOT HONOUR MORE THAN THY LEARNING;⁴⁴ NEITHER CRAVE THOU FOR THE TABLE OF KINGS,⁴⁵ FOR THY TABLE IS GREATER THAN THEIR TABLE, AND THY CROWN IS GREATER THAN THEIR CROWN,⁴⁶ AND FAITHFUL IS THINE EMPLOYER TO PAY THEE THE REWARD OF THY LABOUR.⁴⁷

BARAITHA 5. GREATER IS THE TORAH THAN THE PRIESTHOOD AND THAN THE KINGSHIP, SEEING THAT THE KINGSHIP IS ACQUIRED IN [THE FORM OF]⁴⁸ THIRTY⁴⁹ DISTINCTIONS,⁵⁰ AND THE PRIESTHOOD IN [THE FORM OF] TWENTY-FOUR,⁵¹ BUT THE TORAH IN [THE FORM OF] FORTY-EIGHT THINGS,⁵² AND THESE THEY ARE IN: [THE FORM OF] STUDY, ATTENTIVE LISTENING,⁵³ ORDERED PRESENTATION [OF ONE'S STUDY-MATTER] WITH [ONE'S] LIPS,⁵⁴ REASONING OF THE HEART,⁵⁵ INTELLIGENCE OF THE HEART,⁵⁶ AWE,⁵⁷ FEAR,⁵⁸ HUMILITY,⁵⁹ JOYOUSNESS,⁶⁰ MINISTERING UNTO THE SAGES,⁶¹ PAINSTAKING EXAMINATION [OF A SUBJECT,] TOGETHER WITH [ONE'S] COLLEAGUES,⁶² FINE ARGUMENTATION OF DISCIPLES,⁶³ SE DATENESS,⁶⁴ [KNOWLEDGE OF] SCRIPTURE, [KNOWLEDGE OF] THE ORAL LEARNING, MODERATION IN SLEEP,⁶⁵ MODERATION IN GOSSIP,⁶⁶ MODERATION IN [WORLDLY] PLEASURE,⁶⁷ MODERATION IN HILARITY,⁶⁸ MODERATION IN WORLDLY INTERCOURSE,⁶⁹ LONG-SUFFERING, A GOOD HEART,⁷⁰ THE CONSCIENTIOUSNESS OF THE SAGES,⁷¹ [UNCOMPLAINING] ACCEPTANCE OF [DIVINE] CHASTISEMENTS.⁷²

BARAITHA 6. [THE POSSESSOR OF TORAH IS ONE] WHO RECOGNIZES HIS PLACE,⁷³ WHO REJOICES IN HIS PORTION,⁷⁴ WHO MAKES A FENCE⁷⁵ TO HIS WORDS,⁷⁶ WHO CLAIMS NO CREDIT FOR HIMSELF,⁷⁷ IS LOVED, LOVES THE ALL-PRESENT, LOVES [HIS FELLOW] CREATURES,⁷⁸ LOVES RIGHTEOUS WAYS,⁷⁹ WELCOMES⁸⁰ REPROOFS [OF HIMSELF],⁸¹ LOVES UPRIGHTNESS,⁸² KEEPS HIMSELF FAR FROM HONOUR[S],⁸³ LETS NOT HIS HEART BECOME SWELLED ON ACCOUNT OF HIS LEARNING, DELIGHTS NOT IN GIVING LEGAL DECISIONS,⁸⁴ SHARES IN THE BEARING OF A BURDEN⁸⁵ WITH HIS COLLEAGUE,⁸⁶ USES HIS WEIGHT WITH HIM ON THE SCALE OF MERIT,⁸⁷ PLACES HIM UPON [A GROUNDWORK OF] TRUTH,⁸⁸ PLACES HIM UPON [A GROUNDWORK OF] PEACE,⁸⁹ COMPOSES HIMSELF⁹⁰ AT HIS STUDY,⁹¹ ASKS AND ANSWERS,⁹² LISTENS [TO OTHERS], AND [HIMSELF] ADDS [TO HIS KNOWLEDGE],⁹³ LEARNS IN ORDER TO TEACH,⁹⁴ LEARNS IN ORDER TO PRACTISE,⁹⁴ MAKES HIS TEACHER WISER,⁹⁵ NOTES WITH PRECISION THAT WHICH HE HAS HEARD,⁹⁶ AND SAYS A THING IN THE NAME OF HIM WHO SAID IT. LO, THOU HAST LEARNT: EVERYONE THAT SAYS A THING IN THE NAME OF HIM WHO SAID IT, BRINGS DELIVERANCE INTO THE WORLD, AS IT IS SAID: AND ESTHER TOLD THE KING THEREOF IN MORDECAI'S NAME.⁹⁷

BARAITHA 7. GREAT IS TORAH FOR IT GIVES LIFE, UNTO THOSE 'THAT PRACTISE IT, IN THIS WORLD, AND IN THE WORLD TO COME, AS IT IS SAID: FOR THEY⁹⁸ ARE LIFE UNTO THOSE THAT FIND THEM, AND HEALTH TO ALL THEIR FLESH,⁹⁹ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: IT⁹⁸ SHALL BE HEALTH TO THY NAVEL, AND MARROW TO THY BONES,¹⁰⁰ AND IT SAYS [ALSO] SHE¹⁰¹ IS A TREE OF LIFE TO THEM THAT LAY HOLD UPON HER, AND HAPPY IS EVERYONE THAT HOLDETH HER FAST,¹⁰² AND IT SAYS [ALSO]:

FOR THEY¹⁰¹ SHALL BE A CHAPLET OF GRACE UNTO THY HEAD, AND CHAINS ABOUT THY NECK,¹⁰³ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: SHE¹⁰¹ WILL GIVE TO THY HEAD A CHAPLET OF GRACE; A CROWN OF GLORY WILL SHE BESTOW ON THEE,¹⁰⁴ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: LENGTH OF DAYS IS IN HER¹⁰¹ RIGHT HAND; IN HER LEFT HAND ARE RICHES AND HONOUR,¹⁰⁵ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: FOR LENGTH OF DAYS, AND YEARS OF LIFE, AND PEACE, WILL THEY¹⁰¹ ADD TO THEE.¹⁰⁶

BARAITHA 8. R. SIMEON B. JUDAH¹⁰⁷ SAID IN THE NAME OF R. SIMEON B. YOHAI:¹⁰⁸ COMELINESS, STRENGTH, RICHES, HONOUR, WISDOM, OLD AGE, HOARY AGE, AND CHILDREN¹⁰⁹ ARE BECOMING TO THE RIGHTEOUS, AND BECOMING TO THE WORLD, AS IT IS SAID: THE HOARY HEAD IS A CROWN OF GLORY, IT IS FOUND IN THE WAY OF RIGHTEOUSNESS,¹¹⁰ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: THE CROWN OF THE WISE IS THEIR RICHES,¹¹¹ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: CHILDREN'S CHILDREN ARE THE CROWN OF OLD MEN; AND THE GLORY OF CHILDREN ARE THEIR FATHERS,¹¹² AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: THE GLORY OF YOUNG MEN IS THEIR STRENGTH; AND THE BEAUTY OF OLD MEN IS THE HOARY HEAD,¹¹³ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: THE MOON SHALL BE CONFOUNDED, AND THE SUN ASHAMED; FOR THE LORD OF HOSTS WILL REIGN IN MOUNT ZION, AND IN JERUSALEM, AND BEFORE HIS ELDERS SHALL BE GLORY.¹¹⁴

BARAITHA 9. R. SIMEON B. MENASYA¹¹⁵ SAID: THESE SEVEN QUALITIES,¹¹⁶ WHICH THE SAGES HAVE ENUMERATED [AS BECOMING] TO THE RIGHTEOUS, WERE ALL OF THEM REALIZED IN RABBI AND HIS SONS.¹¹⁷

R. JOSE B. KISMA¹¹⁸ SAID: ONCE I WAS WALKING BY THE WAY WHEN A MAN MET ME, AND GAVE ME [THE SALUTATION OF] 'PEACE',¹¹⁹ AND I RETURNED HIM [THE SALUTATION OF] PEACE'. SAID HE TO ME, RABBI, FROM WHAT PLACE ART THOU?' SAID I TO HIM, 'FROM A GREAT CITY OF SAGES AND SCRIBES AM I.' SAID HE TO ME, 'RABBI, [SHOULD IT BE] THY PLEASURE THAT THOU DWELL WITH US IN OUR PLACE, I WILL GIVE THEE A THOUSAND THOUSAND DENARII OF GOLD,¹²⁰ AND PRECIOUS STONES AND PEARLS.' SAID I TO HIM: 'IF THOU SHOULDST GIVE ME ALL THE SILVER AND GOLD, PRECIOUS STONES AND PEARLS THAT ARE IN THE WORLD, I WOULD NOT DWELL [ANYWHERE] EXCEPTING IN A PLACE OF TORAH; FOR IN THE HOUR OF THE DEPARTURE OF A MAN [FROM THE WORLD], THERE ACCOMPANY HIM NEITHER GOLD NOR SILVER, NOR PRECIOUS STONES NOR PEARLS, BUT TORAH AND GOOD DEEDS ALONE, AS IT IS SAID, WHEN THOU WALLEST, IT SHALL LEAD THEE, WHEN THOU LIEST DOWN, IT SHALL WATCH OVER THEE; AND WHEN THOU WAKEST, IT SHALL TALK WITH THEE.¹²¹ WHEN THOU WALLEST, IT SHALL LEAD THEE — IN THIS WORLD, WHEN THOU LIEST DOWN, IT SHALL WATCH OVER THEE — IN THE GRAVE,¹²² AND WHEN THOU WAKEST, IT SHALL TALK WITH THEE¹²³ — IN THE WORLD TO COME; AND THUS IT IS WRITTEN IN THE BOOK OF PSALMS BY DAVID, KING OF ISRAEL, THE LAW OF THY MOUTH IS BETTER UNTO ME THAN THOUSANDS OF GOLD AND SILVER,¹²⁴ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: MINE IS THE SILVER, AND MINE THE GOLD, SAITH THE LORD OF HOSTS.¹²⁵

BARAITHA 10. FIVE¹²⁶ POSSESSIONS HAS THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, [SPECIFICALLY] DECLARED HIS OWN IN HIS WORLD, AND THESE THEY ARE: THE TORAH, ONE POSSESSION, THE SANCTUARY, ONE [OTHER] POSSESSION,¹²⁷ HEAVEN AND EARTH, ONE [MORE] POSSESSION, ABRAHAM, ONE [OTHER] POSSESSION,¹²⁸ ISRAEL, ONE [MORE] POSSESSION.

THE TORAH IS ONE¹²⁹ POSSESSION. WHENCE [DO WE INFER THIS]? SINCE IT IS WRITTEN, THE LORD POSSESSED ME¹³⁰ AT THE BEGINNING OF HIS WAY, BEFORE HIS

WORKS OF OLD.¹³¹ HEAVEN AND EARTH ARE ONE POSSESSION. WHENCE [DO WE INFER THIS]? SINCE IT IS SAID:¹³² THUS SAITH THE LORD: THE HEAVEN IS MY THRONE, AND THE EARTH IS MY FOOTSTOOL; WHERE IS THE HOUSE THAT YE MAY BUILD UNTO ME? AND WHERE IS THE PLACE THAT MAY BE MY RESTING PLACE ?¹³³ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: HOW MANIFOLD ARE THY WORKS, O LORD! IN WISDOM HAST THOU MADE THEM ALL, FULL IS THE EARTH, THY POSSESSION.¹³⁴ ABRAHAM IS ONE POSSESSION. WHENCE [DO WE INFER THIS]? SINCE IT IS WRITTEN: AND HE BLESSED HIM AND SAID: BLESSED BE ABRAM OF GOD THE MOST HIGH, MAKER OF HEAVEN AND EARTH'.¹³⁵ ISRAEL IS ONE POSSESSION. WHENCE [DO WE INFER THIS]? SINCE IT IS WRITTEN: TILL THY PEOPLE PASS OVER, O LORD, TILL THE PEOPLE PASS OVER THAT THOU HAST MADE THINE OWN,¹³⁶ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: AS FOR THE HOLY THAT ARE IN THE EARTH, THEY ARE THE EXCELLENT IN WHOM IS ALL MY DELIGHT.¹³⁷ THE SANCTUARY IS ONE POSSESSION. WHENCE [DO WE INFER THIS]? SINCE IT IS SAID: THE SANCTUARY, O LORD, WHICH THY HANDS HAVE ESTABLISHED,¹³⁸ AND IT IS SAID [ALSO]: AND HE BROUGHT THEM TO HIS HOLY BORDER, TO THE MOUNTAIN, WHICH HIS RIGHT HAND HAD POSSESSED.¹³⁹

BARAITHA 11. WHATEVER THE HOLY ONE, BLESSED BE HE, CREATED IN HIS WORLD, CREATED HE NOT BUT FOR HIS GLORY, AS IT IS SAID: AND [AS FOR] EVERYTHING THAT IS CALLED BY MY NAME, INDEED [IT IS] FOR MY GLORY [THAT] I HAVE CREATED IT, I HAVE FORMED IT, YEA I HAVE MADE IT,¹³⁹ AND IT SAYS [ALSO]: THE LORD SHALL REIGN FOR EVER AND EVER.¹⁴⁰

(1) Lit., 'tongue', 'language', v. n. 2.

(2) The whole of this paragraph is introductory. The chapter that follows is not actually a part of the Mishnah, but consists almost exclusively of Baraithas i.e., dicta of Tannaitic authorship not included in the Mishnah of R. Judah ha-Nasi (v. supra p. II, n. 1), the exception being a saying by R. Joshua b. Levi an early Palestinian Amora. The chapter is otherwise known as פרק קנין תורה 'The Chapter on the Possession of Torah,' its subject being the praise of the Torah, or as פרק ר' מאיר 'The Chapter of A. Meir,' from its opening words, and forms the eighth chapter of Tractate Kallah. It was attached to Aboth (which consists of five chapters) as a sixth chapter, apparently after it had become customary to read the chapters of Aboth in their order on the successive Sabbaths between Passover and Pentecost, of which there are six (v. Introduction). The choice of this chapter to fill the gap is to be explained by its being in style and subject matter close to Aboth, and by its being appropriate, by reason of its praise of the Torah, for the Sabbath preceding the festival celebrating, inter alia, the Giving of the Torah on Sinai.

(3) Lit., 'chosen'.

(4) Some translate 'their Mishnah'.

(5) רע companion, friend, sc. of God, so explained by MV and others who quote Ps. CXXXIX, 17 which they understand as, How precious are (רעיד) Thy friends (A.V. thoughts) to me, O God (Rashi a.l.). For the righteous as God's friends (אוהב) cf. Isa. XLI, 8; Prov. VIII, 17; Ps. XCVII, 10; Ex. XX, 6; Deut. V, 10.

(6) One that loves God is himself beloved of God. v. Prov. VIII, 17, I love them that love me, cf. I Sam. II, 30.

(7) Cf. supra I, 12.

(8) The expression was probably suggested by Judges IX, 13.

(9) Cf. Job XXIX, 14; Isa. LXI, 10.

(10) Sc. of God.

(11) מכשרתו Hif'il of כשר to be proper, fit, suitable, cf. Est. VIII, 5. In Rabbinic Hebrew it is mostly used in the technical sense of being legally valid or ritually fit.

(12) Prov. VIII, 14.

(13) L. 'kingly appearance'.

(14) L. 'personality that commands obedience'.

(15) Cf. Prov. ibid. 15, (Wisdom-Torah speaking). By me princes rule and nobles, even all the judges of the earth.

(16) MV adds 'from Heaven'.

(17) Cf. Ps. XXV, 14, The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him; Amos III, 7. He hath revealed his secret to his servants the prophets.

(18) V. supra II, 8. R. Johanan b. Zakkai's characterisation of R. Eleazar b. 'Arach.

(19) The quality attributed in some texts to the well.

(20) One of the first generation of Palestinian Amoraim (middle third century). A prolific and popular Aggadist.

(21) בת קול lit., 'the daughter of a voice, or of a sound,' a secondary sound caused by the reverberation of an original sound, used of (i) an echo, (ii) a sound caused by a sound that was originally divinely uttered, and intended for human hearing. Man cannot endure hearing the direct voice of God, v. Deut, V, 22, if we hear the voice of God any more, then we shall die.

(22) Through neglecting its study and practice.

(23) Tanhuma ibid, 'rebuked of the Holy One, blessed be He.' The verb נזף means to rebuke, censure, reprimand, and is also used of a form of excommunication. MV. adduces Deut. XXVII, 26, Cursed be he that confirmeth not the words of this Law . . . and quotes Shebu. 36a to the effect that 'cursed' there has, inter alia, the meaning of excommunication.

(24) Prov. XI, 22. The Hebrew rendered 'a ring of gold in the snout', viz. Nenem Zahab be'af is taken as pointing to the opprobrious appellation 'Nazuf' i.e., the rebuked one. This form of play on words is called נוטריקון notaricon (from Latin, notarius, a shorthand writer) a mode of cypher-writing; טעם 'discretion' as used in the Wisdom literature is taken as one of the synonyms for Torah. The meaning intended here is in the nature of the following: One who has capacity for Torah ('a fair woman') and turns his back on it ('turning away from discretion') is like a swine that has a gold ring in its snout (Nes'em Zahab be'af) and burrows with it in the mud and dirt, and therefore incurs divine censure.

(25) Ex. XXXII, 16.

(27) Treating the Hebrew place-names as if they were common nouns, the passage may be taken to mean 'Through (God's) gift (to Israel) (i.e. the Torah) (one attains) a heritage of God; from the heritage of God (one is raised) to high places.' MV adds: 'But if he cultivates overweening pride, God brings him low, as it is said, And from Bamoth (i.e. high places) to the valley (Num. XXI, 20, the continuation of the quotation in our text). V. 'Er. 54a.

(28) פרק an old term for a Psalm, also used for a section of the oral law (Mishnah), v. Bacher, op. cit. s.v.

(29) הלכה an accepted or decided law. V. Bacher op. cit. s.v.

(30) פסוק a rather shorter division of Scripture, synonymous with הכתוב v. Bacher op. cit. s.v. The division of the Bible into chapters and verses (called פסוקים in neo-Hebrew) is a much later device.

(31) דבור (a) divine speech, (b) Biblical expression. (c) saying. V. Bacher op. cit. s.v.

(32) אות . lit., 'sign'. letter (of the Alphabet), word, a name of God, etc. v. Bacher op. cit. s.v. The 'Gemara' to Kallah VIII says 'one single letter' refers to the correct spelling of words in which one is in doubt about one letter only, e.g. whether-to use א or ע .

(33) The 'Gemara' to Kallah VIII in the name of Raba defines the two things as: (i) The principle that study in the company of a fellow-student is preferable to solitary study; and it is to this that David referred when he said (Ps. LV, 15) together we sweetened counsel (which- [study of the] Torah) with the emphasis on 'together'. (ii) The lesson that it is proper to proceed to the House of Prayer not alone and leisurely. but in company and eagerly; and it is this that David meant when he said (ibid). In the house of God we walked with the throng (ברגש), which may also mean with eagerness, enthusiasm). Yalkut, Samuel, 142, reproduces two different lessons which Ahitophel is supposed to have imparted to David. (i) When the fatality of 'Uzza's death occurred in connection with the conveying of the Ark on a cart (II Sam. VI). Ahitophel drew David's attention to Num. VII, 9. according to which the Ark was to be borne on the shoulder. (Sifre, Num. 46, p. 14a; J. Sanh. X. 2.) (ii) When David was digging the foundations for the Temple, he dislodged a stone that had stopped up the depths, the floods of which then threatened to overwhelm the earth. David enquired whether it be permissible to write the Divine name on a potsherd and throw it into the water, knowing that the water would obliterate the writing. Ahitophel drew a comparison with the instance of the Sotah (the wife suspected of unfaithfulness). There it is ordained, the priest shall write these curses in a scroll and he shall blot them with the waters of bitterness (Num. V, 23) and the passage containing those curses contains also the Divine name which, too, the priest has in such a case to blot out. If, argued Ahitophel, in the hope of re-establishing peace in one household, the Divine name may be obliterated, surely the same may be done for the sake of the well-being of the whole world (Mak. 11a, cf. I. Sanh. ibid). Hertz in JQR. N.S. Vol. X (1919). pp. 109ff. argues strongly in favour of an anonymous suggestion that instead of שני דברים בלבד (two things only) we should read שנדברים בלבד, which = they merely spoke to one another, conversed.

(34) So the Versions, but the author of the Baraitha evidently thought of the word לִמְדָּן as derived from the root לָמַד meaning 'to learn' and understood it as 'teacher', or, in accordance with the use of the word in Gen. XXXVI as 'chief', 'superior'.

(35) מִידְעִי Ps. LV, 14. It appears not impossible that the word was understood as 'my man of knowledge'.

(36) Hal wa-Homer (v. Glos.). The Hal wa-Homer here is certainly not a very evident one. If our text is correct (v. however p. 81, n. 6) we must assume that the argument intended is: If David who was a King referred in such respectful terms to Ahitophel who was only an ordinary person (and not an exemplary one at that), because he had learnt from him only two things, how much more should a person who has learnt something from his equal or from his superior, accord the latter respect.

(37) Prov. III, 35.

(38) Ibid. XXVIII, 20.

(39) Ibid. IV, 2. The process of reasoning here resembles an equation. Prov. III,35 {the wise == the perfect shall inherit shall inherit Honour == Good } Prov. XXVIII, 10. and, since Good=Torah (Prov. IV, 2) Honour=(Good=) Torah.

(40) The proverbial meal of a poor man. V. Ber. 2b.

(41) Cf. Ezek. IV, 11.

(42) This saying is to be found in Tanh. נָחַ beginning (but not in ed. Buber) where it is clear that it means that one who wishes to study Torah in earnest should deliberately adopt these measures of self-discipline. Rashi, however, says it does not mean that a wealthy person should reduce himself to a life of penury, but that even if a man be so poor as to be able to afford no more than bread with salt, etc., study of the law is nevertheless expected of him; if one is rich, his duty to engage in the study of the Torah is all the greater (MV).

(43) Ps. CXXVIII, 2. Cf. ibid. CXIX, 71. Cf. supra IV, 1.

(44) Consider learning the greatest of all honours (v. infra Bar. 5) or 'covet not more honour than that to which your learning entitles you.' Some texts: 'Covet not honour. More than thy learning (shouldst thou) practise' which is reminiscent of supra I, 16, and III, 9. The reading adopted is more in keeping with the Baraitha as a whole.

(45) With its luxuries and dainties.

(46) V. supra IV, 13.

(47) V. supra II, 14 and 16.

(48) For this use of ב v. BDB. s.v. ב I, 7 d. The better-known usage of בְּ קִנְיָה (Beth pretii) e.g. Gen. XXXIII, 19, has evidently misled translators and commentators of this Baraitha, where that construction is impossible, since the fact is not that either the kingship or the priesthood are acquired at the price of, or in return for, or by means of, the respective ma'aloth, but rather that the ma'aloth are acquired in virtue of the kingly or priestly office.

(49) One enumeration can be traced in I Sam. VIII, 11-17 (v. Elijah Wilna to our Barai tha), and another is detailed in Sanh. II, Rashi says that on investigation both lists prove identical.

(50) מַעֲלֹת, raised positions (steps), excellences, preferments, prerogatives, distinctions.

(51) V. Num. XVIII, 8, to the end (v. Elijah Wilna ibid.) and the list in Tanhuma Bamidbar, 29.

(52) I.e., (more or less) specific qualities which when present in a man show him to be a possessor of the Torah in a comprehensive and complete sense.

(53) Lit., 'the hearing of the ear'.

(54) 'Thinking out aloud' one's learning, likewise articulate rehearsing of the expositions of others, are now, as ever, characteristic of, even if not exclusively peculiar to, the Jewish Torah-student, Rabbinic pedagogics insist upon audible study, probably because for a learning that was exclusively oral, audible study was almost a sine-qua-non. Cf. 'Er. 53b-54a.

(55) 'Heart' means the seat of the reasoning faculties, now termed 'mind'.

(56) שְׂכָלֹת (שְׂכֹל) הֶלֶב, Rashi says, 'I cannot see any difference between this and the former quality.' L. however says, the former means understanding in the sense of deriving conclusions by means of logical processes, the latter-deep (intuitive) insight into the hidden meanings of the Torah.

(57) In his bearing towards his master (L.).

(58) Sc. of God.

(59) V. Baraitha 1.

(60) Cf. the phrase שְׂמֵחָה שֶׁל מִצְוָה, The joy expended on, and experienced in, the performing of a divine precept.

- (61) Personal attendance on scholars, constituting 'apprenticeship' to them, is considered superior even to study itself (v. Ber. 7b), cf. Prov. XIII, 20. Every serious student of Rabbinics, especially if he aspires to the Rabbinical Degree, submits to a course of שמוש
- (62) דקדוק הברים Meticulous and objective examination of the subject of one's study in collaboration with fellow-students, i.e. one's equals. MV reads דקדוק הברים 'attachment to colleagues.'
- (63) התלמידים פלפול from פלפל, 'a pepper-grain' with reference to its extreme fineness, and to the sharpness of its taste and aroma. In the case of disciples, credit is given for sheer ingenuity in theoretical reasoning without strict regard to its immediate objectivity. As an exercise developing the mental faculties, 'Pilpul' is intended to serve in good stead when with a fuller store of knowledge and a maturer appreciation of the realities, the erstwhile Talmid, now a Haber or Hakam, is called upon to apply his knowledge in practical fashion.
- (64) Calculated and purposeful approach to problems confronting one.
- (65) Cf. supra III, 10.
- (66) Cf. supra I, 5.
- (67) Cf. supra Baraitha 4 and III, 10.
- (68) 'Laughter', cf. ibid. 13, though it cannot be understood here in so extreme a sense as it is suggested to have there.
- (69) Cf. supra II, 2 et al.
- (70) Cf. supra ibid. 9.
- (71) Their moral steadfastness and intellectual honesty. Most commentators render 'Trust or faith in the wise.'
- (72) So that suffering does not deflect him from the study and practice of the Torah. The man of Torah is able to 'take things philosophically' and to derive salutary moral gain from evil and painful experiences.
- (73) Realises the comparative lowliness of man's estate, cf. supra III, 1, IV, 4, or, knows his own place vis-a vis other, and greater, scholars. Cf. supra IV, 12; V, 7. MV: He knows his place in the house-of-study, even though he always arrives there so early in the morning, that it is too dark to distinguish with one's eyes one seat from another.
- (74) Torah makes him so contented that worry does not interfere with his further study (v. MV).
- (75) Cf. supra I, 1.
- (76) Cf. ibid. 11.
- (77) Cf. supra II, 8.
- (78) Cf. Baraitha 1.
- (79) For the phrase cf. Ps. XI, 7.
- (80) Lit., 'loves'.
- (81) Cf. Prov. IX, 8, Reprove a wise man and he will love thee.
- (82) For a similar phrase cf. I Chron. XXIX, 17.
- (83) MV adds, 'and he runs not after honour.' Cf. 'Whoever goes around seeking greatness, greatness flees from him, and, Whoever runs away from greatness, greatness follows him.' ('Er. 13b).
- (84) Cf. supra IV, 7.
- (85) He considers judicial office as a burden and a weighty responsibility, and not as an opportunity of exhibiting authority.
- (86) Disliking the 'ipse dixit' he shares the burden of giving a decision with his co-judge who may be a layman, or with some greater scholar whom he consults. Cf. supra IV, 7, 8.
- (87) Or, 'causes him to incline towards . . .' Induces his colleague to take a lenient view.
- (88) He guides and directs his legal assessors so that they reach a true understanding of the case, and a correct knowledge of the relevant law.
- (89) Peace must be allied to Truth, in judgment, v. supra I, 18. Most commentators and translators take 'Shares in the bearing . . . peace' as denoting qualities that should characterize the relationship of the possessor of Torah towards all men. This may well be so, but here, it appears, his attitude towards his (lay) court assessors is, in the first place, meant.
- (90) Some versions, 'his heart'.
- (91) Or 'his teaching', which is perhaps better as 'sedateness' (ישוב) (presumably, mainly, in learning) has already been given in this list.
- (92) Some read as in supra V, 7, q.v.
- (93) Cf. supra I, 13.
- (94) Cf. supra IV, 5.
- (95) Cf. ibid. I. Or render 'Acknowledges his teacher to be superior to himself in wisdom' (L.).

- (96) Sc. from his teachers.
- (97) Est. II, 22. This dictum is attributed in Meg. 15a to R. Hanina.
- (98) The subject in all cases is (Words of) Wisdom, which is identified with Torah,
- (99) Prov. IV, 22.
- (100) Ibid. III, 8.

- (105) Ibid, III, 16.
- (106) Ibid. III, 2.
- (107) So in Tosef. Sanh. XI, 4, but J. Sanh. XI, 3, R. Simeon b. Menasya, who was a contemporary of R. Simeon b. Judah. The latter, however, is not only one of the 'tradents' par excellence, but the main tradent of R. Simeon b. Yohai (v. Bacher, Tradition, pp. 80 and 82).
- (108) One of the foremost disciples of R. Akiba. Whilst his father appears to have been persona grata with the Roman authorities, R. Simeon himself was their bitter enemy, on account of the selfish mercenary and immoral motives that prompted even their apparently good actions. Eventually he had to flee them and, together with his son R. Eleazar, hide in a cave for thirteen years. (Shab. 33b.) During that time his knowledge of both legal and mystical lore increased phenomenally. In the Mishnah the name R. Simeon (without further description) denotes R. Simeon b. Yohai.
- (109) This list contains, apparently, eight items, whereas the next Baraitha refers to 'the above seven qualities.' Heidenheim (quoted in Baer's Siddur Abodath Israel and in MV, p. 561), pointing out there is no Biblical citation in support of comeliness, which shows that it is not intended to rank as a separate and distinct accomplishment, renders 'Comeliness, consisting in strength etc.' — only seven qualities. Heidenheim was, however, apparently unaware of Elijah Wilna's comment in which the latter points out that there is no Scriptural quotation for 'wisdom' which he, accordingly, deletes. This, too, leaves only seven. As for 'comeliness', he points out that Prov. I, 9 and IV, 9, cited in the previous Baraitha, offer apposite Scriptural authority. In J. Sanh. loc. cit. 'old age' is omitted and only 'hoary age' is given. L. says there is obviously no need for proof that strength, riches, honour and wisdom are 'good things, and is of opinion that all the Scriptural texts here, are given, as they are required, in support of the claims made on behalf of old age and hoary age (treating them as one) and children, as these are liable to be disputed on the grounds that hoary age, entailing physical weakening, and the possession of children, owing to the uncertainty as to how they will grow up, appear to be not unmixed blessings.

(132) Elijah Wilna deletes from here onwards and continues from 'And he blessed him etc.', thus eliminating the incongruous introduction of the reference to Abraham, and providing a suitable scriptural authority for 'heaven and earth' as a 'possession', viz. (139) Ps, LXXVIII, 54. As the first quotation Ex. XV, 17 did not employ the term 'possess', the latter is provided by adducing, as a complement the verse from Psalms. Rashi criticizes the reference to the Sanctuary as a 'possession' on the ground that the proof is indirect.

CHAPTER I

MISHNAH . [IF] AN EGG IS LAID ON A FESTIVAL-DAY, BETH SHAMMAI¹ SAY: IT MAY BE EATEN [ON THE SAME DAY], BUT BETH HILLEL¹ MAINTAIN: IT MAY NOT BE EATEN [UNTIL THE DAY IS OVER]. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [THE QUANTITY OF] LEAVEN² IS OF THE SIZE OF AN OLIVE³ AND LEAVENED BREAD IS OF THE SIZE OF A DATE,⁴ BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN: BOTH⁵ ARE OF THE SIZE OF AN OLIVE. HE WHO SLAUGHTERS GAME ON POULTRY ON A FESTIVAL-DAY, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MAY DIG UP [EARTH] WITH A SHOVEL⁶ AND COVER [THE BLOOD],⁷ BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN: ONE MAY NOT SLAUGHTER⁸ UNLESS HE HAS [LOOSE] EARTH PREPARED FROM THE DAY BEFORE [THE FESTIVAL];⁹ BUT THEY AGREE THAT IF HE HAS [ALREADY] SLAUGHTERED, HE MAY DIG UP [EARTH] WITH A SHOVEL AND COVER [THE BLOOD], BECAUSE¹⁰ THE ASHES OF THE HEARTH ARE MUKAN [CONSIDERED AS HAVING BEEN PREPARED].¹¹

GEMARA. What¹² are we discussing? If one should say about a hen kept¹³ for food, what is the reason of Beth Hillel,¹⁴ [seeing that] it is food which has been separated;¹⁵ and [if] about a hen kept for laying eggs, what is the reason of Beth Shammai,¹⁶ [seeing that] it is mukzeh?¹⁷ — But what objection is this? Perhaps Beth Shammai do not accept [the prohibition of] Mukzeh? (We are of the opinion that even he who permits mukzeh forbids nolad;¹⁸ what then is the reason of Beth Shammai?) — R. Nahman replied: In table [we are debating] about a hen kept for laying eggs; but he who accepts [the prohibition of] mukzeh accepts [the prohibition of] nolad, and he who rejects [the prohibition of] mukzeh rejects [the prohibition of] nolad.¹⁹ Beth Shammai is [of the same opinion] as R. Simeon²⁰ and Beth Hillel is [of the same opinion] as R. Judah.²¹ But did R. Nahman say thus? Surely we have learnt: Beth Shammai say: One may remove²² [on the Sabbath] from the table [with the hand] bones and nutshells;²³ but Beth Hillel maintain: One lifts off the whole table-top and shakes it.²⁴ And R. Nahman²⁵ said: As for us, we only hold that Beth Shammai [follow the view] of R. Simeon! — R. Nahman can reply to you: With reference to the Sabbath where the Tanna teaches anonymously²⁶ according to [the opinion of] R. Simeon as we have learnt: You may cut up gourds²⁷ for cattle and a carcass²⁸ for dogs²⁹ Beth Hillel is made to represent the opinion of R. Simeon; but

(8) On a Festival-day.

(9) In the three cases here mentioned Beth Shammai is more lenient than Beth Hillel. Hence they are taught together though not all are relevant to the subject.

(10) The sentence introduced by because has no casual relation with what precedes, and infra 8a, the letter ׀ == because, is emended to ׀ == and.

(11) 'Mukan', 'set in readiness'; v. Glos. The wood having been kindled on the previous day, the ashes accumulated during the Festival are considered as if they were prepared before the Festival, as the house-holder had in his mind that there would be ashes which he could use for covering the blood.

(12) Kind of hen that laid the egg.

(13) Lit., 'standing'.

(14) Who say the egg may not be eaten.

(15) From the hen. Since the hen was kept to be killed for food, the egg laid is regarded as a separated edible part of the hen. Cf., however, נרשום Hul. 14b who takes the word אפרת in the sense of פרו ורבו.

(16) Who say the egg may be eaten.

(17) A thing not mentally intended or set in readiness before the Festival to be used on the Festival is called mukzeh; v. Glos. Since the hen was not 'set in readiness' before the Festival the egg should therefore be forbidden to be eaten or handled on the Festival.

(18) Lit., 'born'; i.e., an object which has only come into existence in its present form on a Festival. Such is forbidden to be used on a Festival.

(19) There is no fundamental difference between mukzeh and nolad, only temporal.

(20) Who rejects the prohibition of mukzeh, cf. Shab. 44b.

(21) The opponent of R. Simeon, ibid.

(22) Because they do not accept the prohibition of mukzeh.

(23) Bones and nutshells are regarded as refuse and by the law of mukzeh may not be handled.

(24) Beth Hillel accept the prohibition of mukzeh and therefore rule that one may not remove the bones and nutshells with his hand but gets rid of them by lifting the table-top. Shab. 143a.

(25) R. Nahman, wishing to follow the standard rule that in disputes between Shammai and Hillel the law prevails as Hillel, and also to follow the rule that the law prevails according to the opinion expressed in an anonymous Mishnah, here reverses the teaching of the two Schools.

(26) A Mishnah taught anonymously without mention of its author indicates that the teaching is the prevailing law.

(27) The cutting up of gourds is not regarded as unnecessary labour on Sabbath, for the animals are then better able to feed.

with reference to Festivals, where the Tanna teaches anonymously according to [the Opinion of] R. Judah as we have learnt: You may not [on a Festival] chop up firewood from rafters¹ nor from a beam which was broken on a Festival² — Beth Hillel is made to represent the opinion of R. Judah.

Now who taught our Mishnah anonymously, [was it not] Rabbi?³ Why then is it that with reference to the Sabbath he teaches the Mishnah anonymously according to [the opinion of] R. Simeon, whereas with reference to Festivals he teaches the Mishnah anonymously according to R. Judah? — I will answer. With respect to the Sabbath which is stringent so that people will not come to treat it lightly, he taught the Mishnah anonymously according to R. Simeon who is lenient; [with respect to] a Festival which is less stringent⁴ so that people might come to treat it lightly, he taught the Mishnah anonymously according to R. Judah who is strict.

How have you explained it [the Mishnah]? With respect to a hen kept for laying eggs [the prohibition is] on account of mukzeh! If so, then instead of disputing about an egg,⁵ let [the Mishnah state that] they dispute about the hen [itself]!⁶ — It is in order to inform you of the extent of the opinion⁷ of Beth Shammai that [even] nolad is permitted. Then let them, dispute about the hen [itself] to show you the extent [of the opinion] of Beth Hillel that they forbid [even] mukzeh! And if you reply that information with respect to the extent of the opinion of permitting is to be preferred,⁸ then let them dispute about it both,⁹ thus: 'A hen and its egg [laid on a Festival] may be eaten; but Beth Hillel maintain: They may not be eaten'!¹⁰ — Therefore, said Rabbah: In reality, it [the Mishnah] refers to a hen kept for food; but we are discussing a Festival which fell on a Sunday,¹¹ and [the prohibition¹² is] on account of preparation [on a Sabbath].¹³ For Rabbah is of the opinion that every egg laid now was completely formed the day before. And Rabbah is consistent with his view;¹⁴ for Rabbah said: What is [the teaching of] that which is written,¹⁵ and it shall come to pass on the sixth day that they shall prepare that which they bring in?¹⁶ [It is that] a weekday may prepare¹⁷ for Sabbath, and a weekday may prepare for a Festival; but a Festival may not prepare for Sabbath and Sabbath may not prepare for a Festival.¹⁸ Said Abaye to him [Rabbah]: But if it is so,¹⁹ let [the egg laid on] a Festival in general²⁰ be permitted!²¹ — It is a preventive measure out of consideration for a Festival falling on a Sunday.²² Let [the egg laid on] a Sabbath in general²³ be permitted!²¹ — It is a preventive measure out of consideration for a Sabbath [immediately] following a Festival.²⁴ But do we enact a preventive measure [in such a case]? Surely it was taught: If one slaughters a hen²⁵ and finds therein eggs completely formed, they may be eaten on the Festival.²⁶ Now if this be so,²⁷ let them²⁸ be prohibited on account of those [eggs] laid on the same day!²⁹ — He answered him: [The case of] there being in a hen eggs completely formed is a rare occurrence, and the Rabbis do not decree a prohibition with regard to a rare occurrence.

R. Joseph said: It³⁰ is a preventive measure on account of [the eating of] fruit fallen [from a tree].³¹ Said Abaye to him: What is the reason [that] fruit fallen from a tree [on a Festival] is forbidden?

(1) Stacked for building purposes.

(2) Before the Festival the beam was not intended to be used for firewood, hence it may not be so used on account of mukzeh, infra 31a, Shab. 157b.

(3) Rabbi Judah ha-Nasi.

(4) Cf. Ex. XII, 16.

(5) Which is forbidden on account of its hen.

(6) Whether it may be eaten or slaughtered on the Festival, since it was specifically kept for laying eggs.

(7) Lit., 'power'; i.e., how far Beth Shammai maintain their view.

(8) Because It is an evidence of courage of conviction, while the more rigid opinion may be the outcome of doubt.

(9) The hen and its egg. Granted that information respecting the power of permission is preferable, but where, by a slight addition, more information could be given, this addition should be made.

(10) And since the Mishnah does not state this, R. Nahman's explanation of the Mishnah cannot be accepted.

(11) Lit., '(immediately) after the Sabbath'.

(12) According to Beth Hillel.

(13) Though the egg was here prepared by nature, it is none the less forbidden.

(14) Expressed elsewhere. 'Er. 38b. V. Tosaf. s.v. אמר.

(15) This clause is omitted in 'Er.; for such an expression is only used in haggadic passages, cf. D.S.

(16) Ex. XVI, 5.

(17) The preparation needs only be by word of mouth, or even by thought alone.

(18) [As a day of rest, a festival is included in the term Sabbath and requires also 'preparation'; but such 'preparation' may not take place on the Sabbath and consequently the egg is prohibited].

(19) Lit., 'from now', where now refers to what Rabbah has just stated as the reason for Hillel's view.

(20) Except that falling on a Sunday.

(21) To be eaten the same day.

(22) If it should be permitted in the one case it will be thought that it is also permitted in the other.

(23) Except when a Festival falls on a Friday.

(24) V. p. 4, n. 15.

(25) On a Festival.

(26) No matter whether the Festival falls on a Sunday or on any other day, infra 7b.

(27) That a measure is enacted in such a case.

(28) The eggs found in the hen killed on a Festival falling on a Sunday.

(29) Which are forbidden.

(30) The prohibition of the egg according to Beth Hillel.

(31) On a Festival, which is forbidden. Not eating the egg laid on a Festival is fencing the law of not eating fruit fallen on a Festival.

It is a preventive measure lest one climbs [a tree] and plucks [its fruit];¹ but this² is itself [only] a preventive measure: should we then come and enact one preventive measure to safeguard [another] preventive measure! — Both³ are one preventive measure.⁴

R. Isaac said: It is a preventive measure on account of [the consuming of] juices exuding [from fruit].⁵ Said Abaye to him: What is the reason that juice exuding [from fruit on a Festival] is forbidden? It is a preventive measure lest one [purposely] squeezes out [the juice];⁶ [thus] this is itself [only] a preventive measure; should we then come and enact one preventive measure against [the breach of] another preventive measure! — Both⁷ are one preventive measure.⁸

All [the other Rabbis] do not explain⁹ as R. Nahman does, in accordance with our objection.¹⁰ Likewise they do not explain as Rabbah, because they do not accept [his rule of] Hakanah.¹¹ But why does not R. Joseph explain as does R. Isaac? — He will answer you: An egg is food and fruit is food, excluding juice which is not food [but a beverage]. And why does not R. Isaac explain as does R. Joseph? — He will answer you: An egg is enclosed [in the hen] and juice is enclosed in the fruit, excluding fruit which is exposed all the time.

R. Johanan also is of the opinion that it is a preventive measure on account of [the consuming of] juices exuding [from fruit]. For R. Johanan pointed out a contradiction between one statement of R. Judah and another statement and [also] reconciled it: We have learnt: You may not squeeze fruit¹² to bring out juice, and [even] if the juice exuded of itself it is [still] forbidden. R. Judah says: If [the fruit was intended] as an eatable, what exudes is permitted; but if [it was kept] for its juice, then what exudes is forbidden.¹³ So we see that according to R. Judah [what exudes from] anything [kept] as eatables is [regarded] as food separated.¹⁴ But contrast this with the following: R. Judah further said:¹⁵ One may stipulate on the first day of the [New Year] Festival with respect to a basket of fruit¹⁶ and eat it on the second [day];¹⁷ similarly an egg laid on the first [day] may be eaten on the second.¹⁸ Only 'on the second', but not on the first!¹⁹ And R. Johanan answered: The statement must be reversed.²⁰ Now since he [R. Johanan] contrasts them with each other, infer from this that there is one and the same reason.²¹

(1) An act Biblically forbidden on a Sabbath or Festival, being in the nature of reaping.

(2) Prohibition of eating fallen fruit on a Festival.

(3) The prohibition of eating the egg laid on a Festival and the fruit fallen from a tree on a Festival.

(4) Against the same prohibition of climbing and gathering fruit. In the enactment of the measure against fallen fruit the egg was included, being regarded as a fallen fruit.

(5) On a Festival. Not eating the egg laid on a Festival is fencing the law of not consuming juice exuding from fruit on a Festival.

(6) An act Biblically forbidden on a Sabbath or Festival, being in the nature of threshing.

(7) The prohibition of eating the egg and the juice.

(8) Against the same prohibition of squeezing juice from fruit on a Festival. In the enactment of the measure against exuding juice the egg was included.

(9) Our Mishnah.

(10) Supra 2b.

(11) V. Glos.

(12) On a Sabbath or Festival.

(13) Shab. 143b.

(14) I.e., a part of the whole.

(15) With respect to the New Year Festival which even in Palestine was observed for two days.

(16) Not yet tithed.

(17) It is forbidden to separate the Levitical tithe on a Festival (v. infra 36b). But since, according to R. Judah, only one of the two days is holy, the owner can make a conditional statement on the first day as follows: if to-day is not the Festival, then let this specified portion be the tithe for the rest; if, on the other hand, to-day is the Festival, then let what I have just said be void. On the second day he says likewise: If to-day is not the Festival, then let the specified portion be the tithe; if to-day is the Festival, then the specified portion is already tithe. By means of these two conditional statements the owner can, on the second day, proceed to eat the fruit, for it has been tithed either on the first or second day. V. 'Er. 39b.

(18) For if the first day when the egg was laid was the holy day of the two days, then it can be eaten on the following day; and if the first day was not the holy day then the egg may also be eaten on the second day because it was not laid on a Festival. 'Er. 39b.

(19) Because the egg is not regarded as food separated from the hen, and this is contradictory to his statement above with respect to the juice being permitted to be consumed on the Festival itself. At present it is assumed that the reference here is to a hen kept for food.

(20) To remove the contradiction, R. Johanan suggests, that in the quoted Mishnah, it is not R. Judah who permits the juice to be consumed but his opponent, the anonymous Tanna.

(21) For prohibiting both the egg and the self-exuded juice, viz., it is a preventive measure against the breach of the prohibition of squeezing juice from fruit on a Festival.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 3b

Rabina says: In reality you need not reverse [the authorities] for R. Judah was speaking from the point of view of the Rabbis,¹ thus: According to my view [the egg] is permitted even on the first day, because it is food separated [from the hen]; but according to your opinion, you should at least agree with me that it is permitted on the second day, for they² are two distinct days of holiness.³ And the Rabbis answered him: No, [the two days] are one [continuous day of] holiness. Rabina, the son of R. 'Ulla, says: [We are dealing] here with a hen kept for laying eggs, and R. Judah⁴ is consistent with his view, for he holds [the interdict of] mukzeh.⁵

An objection was raised: Both an egg laid on a Sabbath and an egg laid on a Festival may not be moved to cover therewith a vessel,⁶ nor to support therewith the leg of a bed;⁷ but a vessel may be placed over it so that it should not be broken; and if in doubt,⁸ it is forbidden; and if it got mixed up with [even] a thousand [eggs], they are all forbidden.⁹ This is well, according to Rabbah, who says [that it is] 'on account of preparation',¹⁰ [then it is a] doubt with respect to a Biblical prohibition, and every doubt with respect to a Biblical prohibition [must be decided] with stringency. But according to R. Joseph and R. Isaac, who say [that it is] 'a preventive measure', then it is a doubt with respect to a Rabbinical enactment, and every doubt with respect to a Rabbinical enactment [is resolved] with leniency!¹¹ — The last clause [of the text] deals with a doubt of trefa.¹² If so, consider the latter clause; 'and if it got mixed up with a thousand [eggs] they are all forbidden'. Now if you say that the doubt is whether [the egg was laid on] a Festival or on a weekday,¹³ it is well, because [the egg] is an object which can become [otherwise] permitted,¹⁴ and any object which can become [otherwise] permitted is not neutralized even in a thousand [times its quantity].¹⁵ But if you say that it is a doubt of trefa, then [the egg] is an object which cannot become [otherwise] permitted and should therefore be neutralized by a greater number [than itself].¹⁶ And if you answer 'an egg is valuable and is not neutralized by a greater number,' this¹⁷ would be correct according to him who says that we learnt 'whatsoever one is wont to count'.¹⁸ But according to him who says that we learnt 'that which one is wont to count', what is to be said?¹⁹ For we have learnt:²⁰ If one had trusses of fenugreek of kil'ayim of a vineyard²¹ they are to be burnt;²² if they got mixed up with others²³ and these [again with others],²⁴ they are all to be burnt. This is the opinion of R. Meir. But the Sages say: [The forbidden trusses] are neutralized in [a majority of the proportion of] one in two hundred. For R. Meir used to say: That which one is wont to count [when selling] disqualifies.²⁵ But the sages say: Only six things²⁶ render [the whole] prohibited — R. Akiba says: seven — and they are as follows: The nuts of Perek,²⁷ and the pomegranates of Baden,²⁷ casks spigoted, beetroot-tops,²⁸ cabbage stalks²⁹ and Greek gourds. R. Akiba adds also the loaves of a householder.³⁰ Those mixtures which are subject to the law of 'Orlah, [impart the prohibition of] 'Orlah,³¹ and those which are subject to the law of Kil'ayim of a vineyard [impart the prohibition of] Kil'ayim of a vineyard.³² And it was stated thereon that R. Johanan said: We learnt,³³ ‘that which one is wont to count [when selling]’; and Resh Lakish said: We learnt: ‘whatsoever one is wont to count [when selling].’ [Now the text]³⁴ would be well according to the opinion of Resh Lakish; but according to the opinion of R. Johanan, what can be said? R. Papa replied: This Tanna³⁵ is the author [of the teaching] concerning the ‘litra of dried figs’, who says that anything which [is sold] by number, even though [its prohibition is] a Rabbinical enactment, is not annulled, how much more so when it is Biblical.³⁶ For we have learnt:³⁷ If a litra of dried figs³⁸ was pressed upon the top of a jar³⁹ and he does not know on which jar it was pressed, or on the top of a barrel and he does not know on which barrel it was pressed, or on top of a basket⁴⁰ and he does not know on which basket it was pressed, R. Meir maintains [that] R. Eliezer said: We regard the upper [layers] as if they are dispersed [among each barrel] and the lower¹ neutralize the upper [litra of figs]; [while] R. Joshua says: If there were there a hundred tops [of barrels] they neutralize, but if not, then [all] the top layers are forbidden and [all] the remainders are permitted. [But] R. Judah maintains² [that] R. Eliezer said: If there are a hundred upper layers they neutralize, but if not then [all] the top layers are forbidden and [all] the remainders are permitted; [while] R. Joshua Says: Even if there are three hundred tops of barrels they do not neutralize.³ If it⁴ was pressed in a jar and he does not know in which jar he pressed it, all agree that they neutralize. [You say], All agree? [Why] this is the point they are disputing! Said R. Papa: This is what he says: If it was pressed in a jar and he does not know it, which part of the jar it was pressed, whether northward or southward, all agree that it is neutralized.⁵

R. Ashi said: In reality the doubt is whether [the egg was laid] on a Festival-day or on a weekday,⁶ [but] it [the egg] is a forbidden] object which will become permitted,⁷ and anything [forbidden] which will become permitted, even though [forbidden] by a Rabbinical enactment⁸ is not neutralized.⁹

It was taught: Others say in the name of R. Eliezer: The egg [laid on a Festival] and the hen may be eaten. About what are we discussing? If about a hen kept for food, it is self-evident that the egg and the hen are permitted;¹⁰ and if about a hen kept for laying eggs, then the egg and the hen are forbidden!¹¹ — Answered R. Zera: [It means,] it [the egg] may be eaten in virtue of the hen.¹² What are the circumstances?¹³ — Said Abaye: For example when he bought it [the hen] without specifying [for what purpose]; if it is killed then it is [retrospectively] clear that it was intended to be kept for food;¹⁴ if it is not killed, then it is evident that it was intended to be kept for laying eggs.¹⁵ R. Mari says: He states an exaggeration.¹⁶ For it was taught: Others say in the name of R. Eliezer: The egg may be eaten, it and its hen, and its chicken and its shell. What is meant by 'its shell'? Shall I say [it means] literally 'shell', is then the shell [fit for] food?¹⁷ Again, if it should [mean] a chicken in its shell, surely the Rabbis dispute with R. Eliezer b. Jacob¹⁸ only when the chicken is actually hatched, but when it has not yet been hatched they do not dispute!¹⁹ Therefore 'the chicken and its shell' is an exaggeration,²⁰ so also here 'it and its hen may be eaten' is an exaggeration.

It was stated: A Sabbath and a Festival [following one another]. Rab says: [An egg] laid on the one is forbidden on the other, but R. Johanan maintains: [The egg] laid on the one is permitted on the other. Shall we say that Rab holds that they [a Sabbath and a Festival immediately following] are regarded as one [continuous day of] holiness? But Rab said: The halachah is according to the four elders who decided according to the opinion of R. Eliezer who says [the Sabbath and the Festival] are two [distinct days of] holiness! — Rather they differ here in Rabbah's [law of] Hakanah;²¹ Rab accepts Rabbah's law of Hakanah and R. Johanan rejects Rabbah's law of Hakanah.

The same is disputed by Tannaim: If it [an egg] is laid on a Sabbath, it may be eaten on a Festival;²² [if it is laid] on a Festival it may be eaten on a Sabbath.²³ R. Judah says in the name of R. Eliezer: The dispute still continues; for Beth Shammai say: It may be eaten; whereas Beth Hillel maintain: It may not be eaten.²⁴ The host of R. Adda b. Ahabah had some eggs from a festival [which he wished to prepare] for the Sabbath.²⁵ He came before him, and asked: Is it permitted to roast them to-day²⁶ that we may eat their to-morrow? He answered him: What is in your mind: [in a dispute between] Rab and R. Johanan the halachah Is as R. Johanan? But even R. Johanan only allows [the egg] to be quaffed on the morrow, but not on the same day [it was laid];²⁷ even as it was taught: Whether an egg was laid on a Sabbath or on a Festival, one may not move it to cover therewith a vessel nor to support therewith the leg of a bed.²⁸

The host of R. Papa — some say it was another man who came before R. Papa — had some eggs from a Sabbath [which he wished to prepare] on the [immediately following] Festival. He came, asking him: Is it permitted to eat them to-morrow?²⁹ He answered him: Go away now and come to-morrow: for Rab would not appoint an interpreter for himself from [the first day of] the Festival until [the termination of] its companion³⁰ on account of inebriety.³¹ When he came on the morrow, he said to him:

(1) Layers of each barrel.

(2) R. Meir and R. Judah differ with respect to the dispute between R. Eliezer and R. Joshua.

(3) The litra of figs, for the top layers of figs are in the category of things that are also sold by number and therefore the quantity of vessels is immaterial. Cf. J. Ter. IV, 7.

(4) The litra of terumah figs.

(5) Because not being a complete layer now, it is no longer in the category of being numbered. R. Joshua is then the Tanna who held that anything which is often sold by number is not annulled, and he will be the author of the teaching regarding the mixed egg.

(6) And as for the suggestion that in any doubt with respect to a prohibition based on a Rabbinical enactment leniency is required, v. supra 3b.

(7) After a certain time. The egg will in any case be permitted after the Festival.

(8) Concerning which leniency is usually preferred.

(9) And we are to proceed with stringency even in the case of doubt.

(10) That is, in the view of Beth Shammai; and if R. Eliezer intends to rule like Beth Shammai, why mention the hen-mother at all? Rashi.

(11) On account of mukzeh. V. infra 34a.

(12) If the hen is eaten on the Festival so may also the egg be eaten.

(13) When it is the actual eating of the hen that renders also the egg permissible.

(14) And therefore the egg, being part of the hen, may also be eaten.

(15) And therefore the egg is not permitted.

(16) He uses the figure of speech called hyperbole for the sake of emphasis; i.e., he states the law very emphatically, mentioning more than is necessary.

(17) All that was necessary to be said was 'the chicken', for the shell is not classed as food.

(18) And say that a chicken just hatched may be eaten even though its eyes were not open. V. infra 6b.

(19) I.e., they all agree that it may not be eaten. Hence it cannot mean in its shell.

(20) Saying more than is required.

(21) Supra 2b. V. Glos.

(22) Immediately following the Sabbath.

(23) Immediately following the Festival.

(24) So that the anonymous Tanna supports R. Johanan and R. Judah supports Rab.

(25) Immediately following the Festival, and he was doubtful.

(26) On Friday, the day they were laid.

(27) When it is forbidden even to move it.

(28) Supra 3b. q.v.

(29) I.e., on the Sunday.

(30) I.e., the second day of the Festival.

(31) Rab was in the habit of appointing an interpreter who would enlarge and expand the teachings he would communicate to him. Rab was so scrupulous that he refrained from communicating teachings and decisions to his interpreter on a feast day lest he should risk giving less than his best through the influence of drinking wine on the Festival. R. Papa would not give on a Sabbath a decision for the same reason.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 4b

If [I had given my decision] forthwith, I would have erred, and told you that [in a dispute between] Rab and R. Johanan the halachah is as R. Johanan; whereas Raba has said: In these three [cases]¹ the law is as Rab, both when he is lenient and when he is stringent.

R. Johanan said: If branches fell off a palm tree on a Sabbath, it is forbidden to burn them [for firewood] on the Festival [immediately following it], and do not seek to refute me [by referring to the case] of the egg.² What is the reason? Because the egg is fit to be taken raw on the [Sabbath] day [it was laid],³ and since you do not permit it [to be eaten] until the following day, one will surely know that on the same day [that it was laid] it is prohibited.⁴ [But in the case of the] branches which are not fit for the [Sabbath] day [on which they fell],⁵ if you permit them to be used on the morrow,⁶ one might say that even on the [same] day [they fell off]⁷, they are also permitted, while [their prohibition] the day before was on account of the Sabbath, when they were not fit for burning.

R. Mattenah said: If branches fell off a palm tree on a Festival into an oven, one may add thereto a larger amount of wood kept in readiness⁸ and burn them [together]. But is he not handling a prohibited object?⁹ Since the greater part consists of that which is permitted, when he is handling, he is handling that which is permitted. But he neutralizes a prohibited object at the outset, and we have learnt: One may not [directly] neutralize a prohibited object at the outset!¹⁰ — This applies only [where the object is prohibited] according to the Biblical law, but [where it is only] Rabbinical] [prohibited] one may [directly] neutralize.¹¹ But how is it to be explained according to R. Ashi, who says that an object [forbidden] which will become permitted is not neutralized even though [forbidden] by a Rabbinical enactment?¹² — this applies only where the prohibited object remains intact, but here the thing forbidden is indeed burnt up.¹³ It was stated: [With reference to] the two Festival-days of the Diaspora,¹⁴ Rab says: [The egg] laid on the one¹⁵ is permitted on the other,¹⁶ and R. Assi maintains: [The egg] laid on the one is forbidden on the other. Shall it be said that R. Assi holds the opinion that [both days] have one continuous holiness? But R. Assi recited the habdalah¹⁷ [blessing] between the first and second Festival-days?¹⁸ — R. Assi himself was in doubt, hence he acted in both cases with stringency.¹⁹

R. Zera said: Logic supports R. Assi; for we are now well acquainted with the fixing of the new moon and, nevertheless, we do observe two days.²⁰ Abaye said: Logic supports Rab; for we have learnt: In early times they used to light bonfires,²¹ but on account of the mischief of the Samaritans²² the Rabbis ordained that messengers should go forth.²³ Now if the [mischief of the] Samaritans ceased²⁴ we would [all] observe only one day; and [even during the Samaritan mischief] wherever the messengers arrived²⁵ they observed [only] one day.²⁶ But now that we are well acquainted with the fixing of the new moon,²⁷ why do we observe two days? — Because they sent [word] from there [Palestine]:²⁸ Give heed to the customs of your ancestors which have come down to you; for it might happen that the government might issue a decree²⁹ and it will cause confusion [in ritual].

It was stated: [With respect to] the two Festival-days of the New Year, Rab and Samuel³⁰ both say: [An egg] laid on the first day is forbidden on the second day. For we have learnt:³¹ In early times they [the Sanhedrin] admitted the testimony about new moon throughout the [whole]³² day.³³ Once, however, the witnesses were late in arriving

- (14) Outside Palestine every Festival which Biblically is to be observed for day is kept for two days because of doubt. Since the Festival is fixed for a certain day of the month (for example passover on the 15th Nisan) it is Important to know the exact day the New Moon appears. For the consecration of the New Moon was determined not only by mathematical calculation but by the confirmation of witnesses who had seen it. This applied only to the 30th, but on the 31st, the day would be consecrated even without witnesses, because it would be known that after the 30th the moon should become new even if it were not seen, for the moon renewed itself about every 292 days. therefore those in Palestine could easily be informed whether the new moon was consecrated by the Sanhedrin in Jerusalem on the 30th day or on the 31st, thus making the month just passed either full or defective. But those in the Diaspora, not being able to be informed in time whether the new moon was consecrated on the 30th or on the 31st, kept the appointed Festival-day for two days in order to be sure of observing it (for example, in the case of Passover, they kept both the 15th and 16th of Nisan as the 1st day of Passover). Hence the two Festival-days of the Diaspora.
- (15) I.e., the first day.
- (16) Because only one of the two days is holy.
- (17) V. Glos.
- (18) He would not have recited the habdalah had he regarded the two Festival-days as one continuous day of holiness. V. Rashi.
- (19) The observance in the Diaspora of two days instead of one as in Palestine can be regarded from two points of view: (a) It was an enactment of the Rabbis that for all time in the Diaspora two days should be kept for each Festival-day (v. supra n. 1). From that point of view the two days are regarded as one long day of holiness and the egg might not be eaten on the second day. (b) The people in the Diaspora have taken upon themselves the observance of two days instead of one because of their uncertainty; for those however, who were well acquainted with the fixing of the new moon, the first day only is regarded as really holy and the second day as of a minor holiness, requiring the recitation of the habdalah between the two, and the egg would be permitted to be eaten on the second day.
- (20) Presumably because the Rabbis have so enacted for us to keep the two days as one continuous day of holiness and it is their ordinances that we observe.
- (21) They indicated the new moon outside Jerusalem by means of firesignals whether the day just elapsed was the 30th of the past month or the 1st of the coming month.

- (24) And we reverted to the lighting of fire-signals.
- (25) The distance covered by the traveling messengers was relative, dependent on what day in the month a festival fell, so that sometimes they would cover more territory than at others.

- (26) Evidently the observance of two days was not an enactment for all time.
- (27) The calendar was fixed about the beginning of the fourth century. [This has been ascribed to Hillel II, v. Graetz IV, pp. 316-318.]

and the Levites erred in the chant.¹ [In consequence] they enacted that they should only receive witnesses until Minhah,² but if witnesses came from Minhah onwards³ they observed [the remainder of] that day⁴ and the following day as holy.⁵

Rabbah said: Since the enactment of R. Johanan b. Zakkai, the egg is permitted;⁶ for we have learnt:⁷ After the destruction of the Temple⁸ R. Johanan enacted that testimony [concerning the appearance of new moon] should be admitted the [whole] day.⁹ Said Abaye to him: But have not Rab and Samuel both said that the egg is forbidden [on the second day]? — He replied to him: I quote to you R. Johanan b. Zakkai, and you tell me about Rab and Samuel!¹⁰ But for Rab and Samuel our Mishnah is a difficulty! — There is no difficulty. This [ruling] applies to us [Babylonians], but that [ruling] applies to them [the Palestinians].¹¹ But R. Joseph¹² says: Even from [the time of] the enactment of R. Johanan b. Zakkai and onwards the egg is prohibited [on the second day]. What is the reason? It¹³ is a matter which was decided by a majority vote¹⁴ and whatever was [forbidden] by a majority vote, requires another majority vote to permit it.¹⁵ Said R. Joseph: Whence do I infer this?¹⁶ From what is written: 'Go say to them, return ye to your tents'.¹⁷ And [Scripture] further says: 'When the trumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount'.¹⁸ And we have further learnt:¹⁹ The fourth [year] vineyard [fruit] was to be brought to Jerusalem [from all places] within a radius of one day's journey [from Jerusalem], and the following are its boundaries: Elath²⁰ on the South,²¹ Akrah²² on the North, Lydda²³ on the West, and the Jordan on the East.²⁴ And 'Ulla said — others say Rabba b. Bar Hana in the name of R. Johanan — What is the reason? [It is] in order to decorate the streets of Jerusalem with fruits. And it was [further] taught: R. Eliezer had trees of the fourth year in a vineyard to the east of Lydda near Kefar Tabi²⁵

(1) They sang the psalm for ordinary days at the eventide sacrifice and it turned out after the arrival of witnesses that it was actually New Year's day. V. Tamid VII, 3-4.

(2) The time of the offering of the eventide sacrifice. V. Glos. Cf. Schurer II, I pp. 286ff.

(3) When there was still some part of the day to run, though their testimony would not be accepted for consecrating the 30th as New Year's day, yet.

(4) The end of the 30th from the arrival of the witnesses to the close of the day was also considered holy.

(5) Hence it was seen that the Sanhedrin itself under such conditions observed the New Year's Festival for two days even where there was no uncertainty; and the people outside Jerusalem would need to observe both the 30th and the 31st of Ellul as New Year in case of such a contingency, so that the observance of two days for the New Year's Feast was an enactment of the Rabbis from the very beginning making two days one continuous day of holiness, and, therefore, an egg laid on the first day is prohibited even on the second.

(6) To be eaten on the second day.

(7) R.H. 30b.

- (8) Since the Temple no longer existed the reason for the previous enactment falls away.
- (9) So that the observance of the two days at the present time could only be on account of doubt, since only one of the two days is holy. For, even if witnesses came towards the end of the 30th, the whole of the 30th would be regarded as New Year and the 31st would be regarded as a weekday. But if no witnesses came on the 30th, the 31st would be New Year's day and the 30th, though observed as a holy day, was in reality an ordinary day; and therefore the egg laid on the 30th in such a case would be permitted on the 31st.
- (10) R. Johanan b. Zakkai was the greater authority.
- (11) The enactment of R. Johanan b. Zakkai could only affect Palestine, where only one day, viz., the 30th, would now be regarded as New Year, however late the messengers came on that day. But in Babylon and all places outside Palestine, the observance of the two days was not affected by the enactment of R. Johanan, for there the two days were kept holy by the early Rabbinical enactment, and were regarded as one continuous day of holiness.

V. Sanh. 59b. It is pointed out infra 5b that the vote of Assembly was not directly dealing with the egg but with the making of the two days one continuous day of holiness.

- (19) M.Sh. V, 2; R.H. 31b. (9) Fruit of the first three years of a tree may not be eaten, and the fruit of the fourth year must be eaten before the Lord in Jerusalem, Lev. XIX, 23. If, however, the journey was too great, the fruit might be redeemed and the money expended in Jerusalem. V. Deut. XIV, 24-25. The Rabbis, however, ordained that for a radius of one day's journey from Jerusalem the fruit could not be redeemed but must be brought to Jerusalem.

and he wished to renounce [the vineyard] for the poor.¹ But his disciples said to him: Master, thy colleagues have already taken a vote with respect to your case and permitted it.² Who are meant by 'thy colleagues'? R. Johanan b. Zakkai [and his school]. Now the reason [why the fruit may be redeemed] is only because they had taken a vote; but if they had not taken a vote, it would not [have been permitted].³

What is meant by 'And [Scripture] further says'?⁴ — He means thus: Consider: It is written: Be ready against the third day, come not near a woman.⁵ Then what is the purpose of 'Go say to them, Return ye to your tents'? Infer therefrom that every prohibition decided by a majority vote requires another majority vote to rescind it. And should you reply, it comes as a command concerning conjugal duties,⁶ [then] come and hear: 'When the trumpet soundeth long they shall Come up to the mount.’ Now consider: It is written: ‘Neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that Mount.’⁷ Then what is the purpose of?’ When the trumpet soundeth long they shall come up to the Mount’. Conclude therefrom that what has been prohibited by a majority vote requires another majority vote to rescind it.⁸ And should you argue, this only applies to the case of a Biblical [prohibition] but not to the case of a Rabbinical [prohibition],⁹ [then] come and hear: ‘The fourth [year vineyard] fruit, etc.’ Now the law concerning the fourth [year vineyard] fruit is a Rabbinical enactment, and yet they said to him: ‘Thy colleagues have already taken a vote respecting your case and permitted it!’ And if you say¹⁰ that R. Johanan b. Zakkai allowed also a vote to be taken concerning an egg and permitted it, [I will reply]: They only took a vote concerning testimony, but concerning the egg they did not take a vote. Said Abaye to him: Has there been then at all a vote taken [at any time] concerning the egg [itself]?¹¹ The egg is dependent on [the acceptance of] testimony: If the testimony of the witnesses is disallowed, then the egg is forbidden¹² but if the testimony of the witnesses is permitted then the egg is [a automatically] permitted,¹³

R. Adda and R. Salmon, both of Be Kelohith¹⁴ say: Even [from the time of] the enactment of R. Johanan b. Zakkai and onwards the egg is prohibited. Why? The Temple may very soon be rebuilt,¹⁵ and people would say: ‘Did we not eat last year on the second day [of the New Year] the egg [laid on the first day]? Now too, we shall continue to eat it;’ and they will not know that in the previous year¹⁶ they [the two days] were of two distinct forms of holiness¹⁷ whereas now¹⁸ they are one [continuous day of] holiness.¹⁹ If so, we should not even accept [the] testimony [of witnesses the whole day]! What is the reason? For the Temple may very soon be rebuilt, and people might say: ‘Did we not accept last year testimony concerning the New Moon during the whole day [long]? Now too, we shall [continue to] accept [their testimony]!’? — Where [is the comparison] in this? [The acceptance of] testimony is entrusted to the Beth din²⁰ [only], but [the case of] the egg is entrusted to all.²¹

Raba Says: Even since the enactment of R. Johanan b. Zakkai and onwards, the egg is forbidden; [for] does not R. Johanan b. Zakkai agree that if witnesses arrive after Minhah, the remainder of that day and the following day is observed as holy?²² Raba further said: The law [is as] Rab in the foregoing three cases²³ whether he is lenient or stringent. [

(1) In order not to have to bring the fruit himself to Jerusalem, but that the poor might gather the fruit for themselves and bring it to Jerusalem. Although R. Eliezer lived after the fall of Jerusalem when the reason for decorating its streets no longer existed, yet he adhered to the ruling that the fruit being within the radius of one day's journey, could not be redeemed but had to be brought to Jerusalem.

(2) I.e., the authority you are holding to has been rescinded by another authority and you can therefore redeem the fruits and bring only the money to Jerusalem.

(3) [Which proves that whatever has been decided by a majority vote requires another majority vote to abrogate the decision, even where the reason for the original decision no longer operates].

(4) The question here is: How do you infer from the first passage of Scripture the principle that a prohibition once made is absolutely binding until it has been rescinded; and if the inference is satisfactory, why is it necessary to have a second Scripture text? Rashi.

(5) Ex. XIX, 15.

(6) But not a cancelling of the previous prohibition of Ex. XIX, 15.

(7) Ibid. XXXIV, 3. The expression ‘before that Mount’ is interpreted as meaning ‘that Mount covered with the cloud of the Divine presence’, from which it might be inferred that only as long as the cloud of the Divine presence remained over the mountain no man or beast could draw near, but when the cloud was removed the people might, by their own inference, have thought that they might now ascend the mountain.

(8) The reason for the ‘trumpet sounding long’ was to indicate that the Divine presence was removed from the mountain.

(9) As our case of the egg.

(10) R. Joseph resumes here the thread of his remarks which were interrupted by quoting the source of his principle.

(11) And if no vote was directly taken, the question of requiring another vote rescinding it does not arise.

- (21) The question of the egg is a matter about which anyone may feel he can decide, and decide to eat the egg on the second day after the Temple had been rebuilt as he did before the Temple was rebuilt.
- (22) In which case the two days of New Year would be regarded as one continuous day of holiness. According to this view, the object of R. Johanan's enactment of accepting witnesses throughout the 30th day was for the purpose of fixing the days of the Festivals following New Year; i.e., if witnesses came any time on the 30th, that day would be the first of Tishri, from which the days of the month would be computed.
- (23) (a) When a Festival-day falls on Friday or on a Sunday; (b) The two Festival-days of the Diaspora; (c) The two days of New Year.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 6a

Raba said: On the first day of a Festival, [only] Gentiles may busy themselves with a corpse,¹ [but] on the second day, Israelites may busy themselves with a corpse, and² even on the two Festival-days of the New Year, which however is not the case with respect to an egg.³ The Nehardeans⁴ say: The same holds good even with respect to an egg; for what is in your mind: Perhaps [the month of] Ellul will be intercalated?⁵ Surely R. Hinena b. Kahana said in the name of Rab: From the days of Ezra⁶ and onward we do not find Ellul ever intercalated.⁷

Mar Zutra said: This⁸ was said only when [the corpse] had already been lying for some time,⁹ but if it had not lain for a long time, we let it remain.¹⁰ R. Ashi says: Even if it had not lain for a [good] long time we do not let it remain [unburied]. What is the reason? With regard to a dead body the Rabbis have made the second day of a Festival as a weekday even with respect to cutting for it a shroud and cutting for it a [branch of] myrtle.¹¹ Rabina said: But nowadays when there are Guebers¹² we apprehend.¹³

Rabina was once sitting in the presence of R. Ashi on [one of] the two Festival-days of the New Year,¹⁴ [and] noticing that he was troubled, he said to him: Why is the Master troubled? He [R. Ashi] replied: I have not set an 'erub tabshilin.¹⁵ Said he to him: Let the Master prepare an 'erub tabshilin now. For did not Raba say: A man may set an 'erub tabshilin on the first day of a Festival for the second and stipulate?¹⁶ — He replied: Granted that Raba [indeed] said so with respect to the two Feast-days of the Diaspora.¹⁷ But did he then say this also with respect to the two days of the New Year's Festival?¹⁸ But the Nehardeans maintain that even an egg is permitted!¹⁹ — R. Mordecai observed to him [to Rabina]: The Master²⁰ distinctly told me that he does not accept this [teaching] of the Nehardeans.

It was stated: If a chicken was hatched out on a Festival, Rab says: It is forbidden,²¹ but Samuel — some say, R. Johanan — maintains: It is permitted. Rab says it is forbidden [because] it is mukzeh;²² but Samuel — some say, R. Johanan — maintains it is permitted, since it makes itself permitted through shechitah.²³ R. Kahana and R. Assi said to Rab: What difference is there between this and a calf born on a Festival?²⁴ — He replied to them: [The case of the calf is different] since it was [regarded as] mukan²⁵ by virtue of its mother.²⁶ And what difference is there between this and a calf born [on a Festival] from a Trefa?²⁷ Rab remained silent. Said Rabbah — some say [it was] R.

Joseph — Why was Rab silent? He should have replied to them: [This calf is permitted] since it is mukan for dogs through its [trefa] mother.²⁸ — Abaye replied to him:

- (1) E.g., the making of a shroud and the digging of a grave.
- (2) The same holds good.
- (3) I.e., an egg laid on the first day of the New Year is not permitted on the second day.
- (4) The scholars of Nehardea, i.e., the School of Samuel. V. Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 42.
- (5) I.e., Beth din will insert an extra day in the month of Ellul, in which case the New Year Festival would begin on the second day.
- (6) Cf. Neh. VIII, 13, where 'second day' refers to New Year.
- (7) The only exception was when the witnesses arrived late.
- (8) Law that Israelites may busy themselves with a dead body on a Festival.
- (9) And is decomposing and becoming offensive.
- (10) Until after the Festival.
- (11) The funeral trappings and the myrtle placed on the coffin were to honour the dead.
- (12) The fanatical sect of Persian fireworshippers, v. Git., Sonc. ed. p. 63, n. 2. This probably refers towards the close of the Sassanid rule marked by the persecution of the Jews. V. J.E. p. 648, c. 1. The Jews had to render to the Guebers compulsory service from which they were exempt on a Festival.
- (13) Lest through allowing Jews to bury on the second day of a Festival the Guebers might regard that day as an ordinary working day and compel them to work.
- (14) The New Year Festival fell on Thursday and Friday.
- (15) V. Glos. It is a symbolical act by which meals may be prepared on a Festival occurring on a Friday for the following Sabbath. The method is to prepare a dish on the Thursday for the Sabbath which enables all the cooking done on the Friday to be regarded as a continuation of the cooking begun on the Thursday.
- (16) If the first of the two days is the real feast-day, then the preparation of the food on the second day should be permitted; and if the second day is the proper feast-day, then preparation of the 'erub is permissible on the first day, which is not a Festival but a weekday.
- (17) I.e., observed only in the Diaspora where two days are observed on account of doubt.
- (18) Which are observed also in Palestine where the two days of the New Year are regarded as one continuous holy day. Surely not!
- (19) On the second day, if laid on the first day of the New Year's Festival thus indicating that only one of the two days is holy.
- (20) R. Ashi who was R. Mordecai's teacher, v. Sot. 46b.
- (21) To be eaten on the day of the Festival.
- (22) V. supra, p. 2, n. 5.
- (23) V. Glos. Before the chicken is hatched, the act of slaughtering does not permit it to be eaten. It is only when born that the chicken can be eaten through ritual slaughter. And since the hatching out of the chicken (on the Festival) enables it to be eaten through slaughtering, it also frees it from mukzeh; i.e., since it gains permission for itself to be eaten through ritual slaughter, it also gains permission for itself to be free from mukzeh.
- (24) Which may be eaten on the same day, v. infra.
- (25) V. Glos.
- (26) The calf found in a ritually slaughtered cow may be eaten through the slaughtering of its mother. The calf therefore is valid for provision even before its birth.
- (27) V. Glos. This calf when found within the mother is not permitted for use by the slaughtering of its trefa mother. It must itself be ritually slaughtered before it can be permitted; and yet we do not find anyone prohibiting the eating of a calf born of a trefa on a Festival.
- (28) Immediately before the Festival the mother-cow as trefa was intended as food for dogs, and this included the calf within it. The cow and the calf would thus become mukan for dogs and therefore the law of mukzeh should not apply to the calf. The same, however, cannot be said of the chicken in the egg.

Seeing that that which is mukan for human consumption is not mukan for dogs — for we have learnt: One may cut up¹ gourds for cattle and a carcass for dogs;² R. Judah says: If [the animal] was not yet nebelah³ on the eve of the Sabbath it is forbidden,⁴ for it was not mukan⁵ — can that which is mukan for dogs be considered mukan for human beings? — He said to him: It is even so; that which is mukan for human consumption is not mukan for dogs, for that which is useable for man one does not throw to dogs. [But] that which is mukan for dogs is [also] mukan for human consumption, for the mind of man is directed to everything which may be fitting for him. [A Baraitha] was taught in accordance with Rab [and a Baraitha] was taught in accordance with Samuel, or as some say, R. Johanan. [A Baraitha] was taught in accordance with Rab: A calf which is born on a Festival is permitted;⁶ [but] a chicken which is hatched on a Festival is forbidden. And what difference is there between the one and the other? [The calf] is mukan by virtue of its mother through shechitah,⁷ but [the chicken] is not mukan by virtue of its another.⁸ [A Baraitha] was taught in accordance with Samuel, or as some say, R. Johanan: A calf which is born on a Festival is permitted; a chicken which is hatched on a Festival is permitted. Why? [The calf] is mukan by virtue of its mother and [the chicken] makes itself permitted through slaughter.

Our Rabbis taught: A chicken which is hatched on a Festival is forbidden. R. Eliezer b. Jacob says: It is forbidden even on a weekday since its eyes are not yet open. With whose opinion does the following passage agree: Even all creeping things that creep upon the earth,⁹ this includes chickens whose eyes are not yet opened?¹⁰ With whose opinion? The opinion of R. Eliezer b. Jacob.

R. Huna said in the name of Rab: An egg is completed on its issue [from the fowl]. What is meant by 'completed on its issue'? If we say, [it means] it is completed on its issue, so that [the egg] may be eaten with milk;¹¹ [which implies] when it is still within the hen [the egg] may not be eaten with milk? But surely we have learnt: If one kills a hen and finds therein completely formed eggs, these may be consumed with milk! And if [it means] it is completed on its issue so that [the egg] may be eaten on a Festival;¹² [which implies] when [the egg] is still within the hen,¹³ it may not be eaten on the Festival?¹⁴ But surely we have learnt: If one kills a hen and finds therein eggs completely formed they are permitted to be eaten on the Festival.¹⁵ And if you say that he informed us in the Baraitha what we do not learn in the Mishnah?¹⁶ This too¹⁷ we have learnt [in a Mishnah]: If an egg is laid on a Festival, Beth Shammai say: It may be eaten [on the same day], but Beth Hillel maintain: It may not be eaten [until the day is over].¹⁸ Now Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel dispute thus only about [the egg] that is laid; but if [the egg] is in the hen, all agree that it is permitted! And if you maintain that Beth Hillel prohibit [the egg] even when it is within the hen, and the reason he [the author of the Mishnah] quotes [their dispute with respect to an egg] 'laid' is in order to manifest to you the extent of the opinion of Beth Shammai that even if it is laid it is permitted; then as to that which we have learnt: If one slaughtered a hen and found therein eggs completely formed they are permitted to be eaten on the Festival — who will its author be? Neither Beth Shammai nor Beth Hillel!¹⁹ Therefore 'it is completed on its issue' [means] that [the egg] can hatch chickens, [but the egg found] in the body of the hen cannot hatch chickens. What is its practical bearing? — with respect to buying and selling.²⁰ As once happened when someone called out [to the salesmen]: Who has eggs

(1) On the Sabbath.

(2) V. supra p. 3 and notes.

(3) V. Glos.

(4) To be given to the dogs.

(5) For dog's consumption before the Sabbath.

(6) [The prohibition of nolad (V. Glos.) does not apply to living beings. V. Tosaf. s.v. עגל.]

(7) The owner of the mother-cow could have intended to kill the cow on the Festival and the cow and the calf that was within it would be mukan. The same however cannot be said of a chicken, because the owner could never conceive of an egg within the fowl ready to be hatched, so that in the case of the chicken there is no case of mukan.

(8) Because no egg is ever upon the point of being hatched when the hen is killed.

(9) Lev. XI, 42.

(10) Hul. 64a.

(11) And is not regarded as part of the flesh of the fowl. The Biblical rule not to eat meat together with milk (based on Ex. XXIII, 19) is extended by the Rabbis to include fowls. Eggs, however, may be eaten with milk.

(12) If the egg was laid before the Festival.

(13) Which was slaughtered on the Festival.

(14) On account of the law of Hakanah, v. supra 2b.

(15) Supra 2b.

(16) I.e., the Baraitha finds no support in the Mishnah, and therefore the Baraitha is not authoritative, so that R. Huna could rule that when the egg is still in the hen it may not be eaten on the Festival.

(17) The ruling of the Baraitha.

(18) Supra 2a.

(19) For Beth Shammai permit even the laid egg and Beth Hillel, according to this theory, prohibit the egg even though it is in the body of the hen.

(20) If one sells eggs for hatching then they must be eggs that are really laid and fertile.

of a cackling hen? When they gave him eggs [found] in a slaughtered hen, he came to R. Ammi [complaining], who said to them: It is an erroneous sale and he can withdraw [from it]. [But] this is self-evident!¹ — You might say that this [buyer] really wanted [the eggs] for eating, and the reason he asked [for eggs] of a cackling hen is that [such eggs] are hard-shelled; and that the practical outcome [of] his claim² is that he must refund him the difference,³ so he informs us [that this is not so].⁴

There was once one who said to [the salesmen], ‘Who has mated eggs⁵ [for sale]? Who has mated eggs?’ [When] they gave him unmated eggs,⁶ he came to R. Ammi who said to them: It is an erroneous sale and he can withdraw [from the transaction]. [But] this is self evident! — You might say that he needed [the eggs] only for eating,⁷ and the reason he asked for mated eggs is that they are richer; and that the practical bearing of this is that they must refund him the difference,⁸ so he informs us that the whole transaction is fraudulent].

Alternatively: What is meant, ‘it is completed on its issue’? [It means] it is completed with the coming forth of its greater part, and it is accordance with R. Johanan. For R. Johanan said: If the greater part of an egg issued on the day before the Festival and went back, it may be eaten on the Festival-day.⁹ There are some [scholars] who say: What is meant, ‘it is completed on its issue’? [It means] it is completed with the [coming forth] of the whole of it. Only with the coming forth of the whole of it, but not with its greater part,¹⁰ and this is to reject the opinion of R. Johanan.

[To revert to] the main text: If one slaughtered a hen and found therein completely formed eggs, these may be taken with milk.¹¹ R. Jacob says: If [the eggs] were attached [to the hen] by sinews they are forbidden.¹² Who is the author of that which our Rabbis taught: He who eats of a carcass¹³ of a clean bird, of its cluster of eggs, or of its bones, or of its veins, or of its flesh torn off while alive¹⁴ is clean;¹⁵ [but he who eats] of its ovary or of its crop or of its entrails, or if he melted its fat and swallowed it,¹⁶ he is unclean.¹⁷ — Who is the author [of the teaching], ‘[He who eats] of its cluster of eggs is clean’? — Said R. Joseph: It is not in accordance with R. Jacob. For if it were in accordance with R. Jacob, lo, he says: If [the eggs] were attached by sinews they are forbidden [to be taken with milk]!¹⁸ Said Abaye to him: Whence [do you say this]? Perhaps R. Jacob regards [these eggs as flesh] only with respect to a prohibition¹⁹ but not with respect to defilement? And if you say that we should enact a preventative measure also in respect to defilement?²⁰ [I would reply], This would be an extension of [the scope of] defilement, and we do not extend [the scope of] defilement by Rabbinical enactment.²¹

There are some [scholars] who say [thus]: Who is the author [of the teaching that if one eats] ‘of its ovary he is unclean’?²² Said R. Joseph: It is R. Jacob: For he says, ‘If [the eggs] were attached [to the hen] by sinews they are forbidden [to be taken with milk]’. Said Abaye to him: Whence [do you understand] that by the term ovary is meant [the eggs] that are attached to the ovary? Perhaps it means the ovary itself!²³ And if you object: What need is there to say this with respect to the ovary? [I would reply]: It is analogous to the crop and the inwards; for although these are [really] flesh,²⁴ [yet] since there are people who do not eat them, it is therefore necessary to state these; so also here [with respect to the ovary] since there are people who do not eat it, it is necessary to teach it. Our Rabbis taught: All creatures which copulate during the day are born during the day; all creatures which copulate during the night are born during the night; all creatures which copulate both by day and by night, give birth both by day and by night. ‘Those which copulate by day are born by day’, this refers to a fowl; ‘those which copulate during the night are born during the night’, this refers to the bat; ‘those which copulate by day and by night give birth by day and by night’, this refers to man and whatever is like him.

The Master said [above]: ‘Those who copulate by day are born by day refers to a fowl’. What is the practical difference? — With respect to the teaching of R. Mari son of R. Kahana. For R. Mari son of R. Kahana said: If one examined a hen-coop on the eve of the Festival and could not find in it an egg, and on the morrow he rose early²⁵ and found in it an egg, it is permitted.²⁶ But did he not examine [the nest]? — I say²⁷ that he did not examine it very carefully, and even if he did examine it very carefully, I would say that [perhaps] the greater part [of the egg] came out [before the Festival] and went back; and [this ruling is] in accordance with [the opinion of] R. Johanan.²⁸

But that is not so; for R. Jose b. Saul said in the name of Rab: If one examined a hen-coop on the eve of the Festival and did not find in it an egg and on the morrow he rose early and found an egg in it, it is prohibited?²⁹ — This [latter passage] refers to eggs laid through friction with the earth,³⁰ If so,³¹ with respect to the teaching of R. Mari, might I not also say [the egg] was laid through friction with the earth? — When there is a cock near her.³² Even when there is a cock [near her] might I not [still] say that the egg was laid through friction with the earth? — Said Rabina: There is a tradition³³ that wherever there is a cock near her she will not fructify [eggs] through friction. And how near [should the cock be]?³⁴ — R. Gamda replied in the name of Rab: Sufficiently near

(1) That it is a fraudulent sale, since he asked for one thing and was given another.

(2) Seeing that he requires them in any case for eating.

(3) Between the value of cackling eggs and the eggs received, but the sale is nevertheless valid and cannot be rescinded.

(4) But we rather assume that when he asked for eggs of a cackling hen he wanted them for hatching, hence the sale is null.

(5) Lit., ‘eggs of (a hen paired with) a cock’.

(6) Lit., ‘eggs produced through friction of the body in the earth’, but not through contact with a male.

(7) And not for hatching.

(8) Between the value of mated eggs and the eggs received, but the transaction would still be valid.

(9) If subsequently laid on the Festival-day, and the law of mukzeh does not apply in this case.

(10) Lit., ‘with the coming . . . yes, but with . . . no’.

(11) V. supra p. 25, n. 4.

(12) Because they are then regarded as flesh.

(13) The carcass of a bird not ritually slaughtered does not defile a person through being carried or touched; it is only the eating of its flesh which defiles. Cf. supra to Lev. XXII, 8 and Nid. 42b.

(14) If any part of the bird is cut off while the bird is still living, although it may not be eaten, it does not defile.

(15) Because the cluster of eggs, the bones and the veins are not considered as flesh.

(16) Drinking is included in this law of defilement.

(17) These are considered as part of the flesh.

(18) Hence they are considered flesh.

(19) Not because he regards the eggs as flesh but as a preventative measure to safeguard the breach of eating flesh and milk together.

(20) I.e., to pronounce the person unclean when eating only the eggs.

(21) The Rabbis did not extend the law of defilement by declaring the man who eats of these eggs unclean, because of the monetary loss that would follow (by his clothes and whatever he touches becoming unclean; v. Lev. XVII, 15). But with respect to the prohibition of eating the eggs with milk, there the eggs themselves are not prohibited; it is only to safeguard the law of eating flesh and milk that the Rabbis instituted a preventive measure, and though the eggs themselves may be eaten, they may not be eaten with milk. In this respect they consider the eggs flesh.

(22) And thus considers the eggs flesh. Cf. Tosaf. Men. 70a. s.v. ביצי.

(23) And that is indeed flesh.

(24) And you would understand that they defile.

(25) Before daybreak.

(26) Because it is assumed that the egg was laid the previous day as, by the nature of the case, it could not have been laid during the night.

(27) אימר Either Imperf. 1. sing., or Imper. 2. sing.

(28) Who regards the egg as having been laid. It may have been deposited during the night of the Festival, but it is not regarded as having been laid during the night.

(29) Because we assume the egg was laid during the night of the Festival.

(30) Which eggs might be laid even at night.

(31) That unmated eggs can be laid at night.

(32) Therefore the egg must have been laid during the day.

(33) Lit., 'they (teachings) are handed down'.

(34) That the hen should not lay eggs through friction.

that [the hen] can hear his crowing in the daytime.¹ R. Mari gave a decision [in a case where the cock was] at a distance of sixty houses.² But if there is a river [between them] she [the hen] does not cross over, but if there is a bridge,³ she crosses over; if there is a plank she does not cross over. It happened once that [a hen] crossed over even a plank.

How have you explained it;⁴ with respect to unmated eggs? Then why particularly teach when he examined [the hen-coop]; even if he had not examined, it should also [be prohibited]! — If he did not examine it, I might say [the egg] was from yesterday. If so, even if he had examined it, I might still say that the greater part [of the egg] came out [yesterday] and went back and [should therefore be permitted] in accordance with R. Johanan! — The contingency stated by R. Johanan is rare.

R. Jose b. Saul further said in the name of Rab: This pulverized garlic is a danger to be left exposed.⁵

BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [THE QUANTITY OF] LEAVEN IS OF THE SIZE OF AN OLIVE, AND LEAVENED BREAD IS OF THE SIZE OF A DATE. What is Beth Shammai's reason? — If so,⁶ the Divine Law should only have written about leavened bread and not about leaven and I should have said: If leavened bread, the acidity of which is not very great, [is forbidden] at the size of an olive, how much more should leaven, the acidity of which is very great [be forbidden] at the size of an olive: then why does the Divine Law need to state leaven? In order to teach that the standard of the one is not like the standard of the other.⁷ And Beth Hillel? — It is necessary [for the Divine Law to state both]. For if the Divine Law had written only about leaven I might have said that the reason [leaven is forbidden to be seen] is that its acidity is very great, but leavened bread, the acidity of which is not great, I might have said is not [forbidden to be seen at all]. It is therefore necessary [to state leavened bread]. And if the Divine Law had stated leavened bread, [I might have said that] the reason [leavened bread is forbidden to be seen] is that it is fit for food, but leaven which is not fit for food, I might have said is not [forbidden to be seen at all]. Therefore both are necessary.

Shall we say that Beth Shammai does not agree with what R. Zera had said? For R. Zera said: The Scripture [verse]⁸ begins with the term 'leaven' and concluded with the term 'leavened bread' in order to teach that 'leaven' and 'leavened bread' are alike? — With respect to eating, no one differs [about the size].⁹ They only differ with respect to the removal [of the leaven from the house]; Beth Shammai is of the opinion that we do not learn [the law of] 'removal' from [that of] 'eating', while Beth Hillel maintains that we do learn 'removal' from 'eating'.¹⁰

Likewise it was stated: R. Jose b. Hanina said: The dispute is only with respect to the 'removal', but with respect to 'eating' all agree that both [leavened bread and leaven] are [forbidden] of the size of an olive. Likewise it was also taught: 'And there shall no leavened bread be seen with thee neither shall there be leaven seen with thee';¹¹ herein lies the dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel, where Beth Shammai say that leaven is the size of an olive and leavened bread is of the size of a date, but Beth Hillel maintain that both are of the size of an olive.

HE WHO SLAUGHTERS GAME OR POULTRY ON A FESTIVAL, etc. HE WHO SLAUGHTERS [implies] only if he has done so,¹² but not [that it may be done] at the very outset. Then consider the subsequent clause: BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN: HE MUST NOT SLAUGHTER [etc.], whence it follows that the first Tanna holds that he may slaughter [at the outset]! — This is no difficulty. He means, 'HE MUST NOT SLAUGHTER AND COVER [etc.]'.¹³ But consider the final clause: BUT THEY AGREE THAT IF HE SLAUGHTERED HE MAY DIG WITH A SHOVEL AND COVER; whence it follows the first clause does not mean '[only] if he has done it'! — Answered Rabbah: This is what [the Mishnah] says: 'The slaughterer who comes to ask advice'¹⁴ how should one answer him? Beth Shammai say: One answers him: Slaughter, dig and cover; but Beth Hillel maintain: he must not slaughter unless he had [loose] earth set in readiness before the Festival'. R. Joseph says: This is what [the Mishnah] says: 'The slaughterer who comes to ask advice, how should one answer him? Beth Shammai say: One answers him: Go [and] dig, slaughter and cover; but Beth Hillel maintain: He may not dig unless he had [loose] earth set in readiness from before the Festival'.

Said Abaye to R. Joseph: Shall it be said that you, Sir, and Rabbah disagree with respect to the teaching of R. Zera in Rab's name? R. Zera said in the name Rab: The slaughterer [of game or poultry] must put earth beneath [to receive the blood] and earth above, for it is said: 'He shall pour out the blood thereof, and cover it with dust'.¹⁵ It does not say earth but 'in earth',¹⁶ teaching that the slaughterer must put earth beneath and earth above. You, Sir, [therefore] accept the teaching of R. Zera and Rabbah rejects the teaching of R. Zera. He answered him: Both I and Rabbah accept the teaching of R. Zera and our dispute here is as follows: Rabbah is of the opinion that he may [only slaughter] if there is [already] earth beneath [to receive the blood]; but if not, he may not slaughter,¹⁷ for we apprehend that he might change his mind and not slaughter.¹⁸ But according to my view, it is better,¹⁹ for if you will not permit him [to dig] he will come to be deprived of the joy of the Festival.²⁰

BUT THEY AGREE THAT IF SOME HAS [ALREADY] SLAUGHTERED, HE MAY DIG UP [EARTH] WITH A SHOVEL AND COVER [THE BLOOD]. R. Zerika said in the name of Rab. Judah: This only holds good when the shovel had [already] been sticking [in the earth] since the previous day.²¹ But does he not cause crumbling of the earth?²² — Answered R. Hiyya b. Ashi in the name of Rab:

(1) The crowing does not reach so far during the daytime as at night.

- (2) The cock was removed sixty houses from the hen yet R. Mari maintained that there was copulation and permitted the egg.
- (3) Or 'ferry'.
- (4) The saying of R. Jose b. Saul.
- (5) Any exposed liquid is forbidden for use lest a snake has drunk therefrom. The same applies to pulverized garlic.
- (6) That the prohibition of both leaven and leavened bread were of the size of an olive.
- (7) I.e., leavened bread is of the size of a date, for food of such a size is estimated by the Rabbis sufficient to make one 'come to', (cf. Yoma 79a), and leaven is of the size of an olive which is the minimum.
- (8) Ex. XII, 19.
- (9) I.e., even Beth Shammai agree that both leaven and leavened bread of the size of an olive are forbidden to be eaten.
- (10) Ex. XII, 19 deals with the prohibition and penalty of eating anything leavened. Ex. XIII, 7 deals with the removal of anything leavened from the house. From the fact that Ex. XIII, 7 mentions both 'leaven' and 'leavened bread' Beth Shammai infer that the size of the 'leavened bread' with respect to removal is not that of an olive but that of a date.
- (11) Ex. Xlii, 7.
- (12) For otherwise, the Mishnah should state that a man may slaughter it. HE WHO SLAUGHTERS, however, implies that the law which follows holds good only if he has already slaughtered.
- (13) Beth Hillel's point is made with reference to the covering of the blood, not with reference to the killing at all; and therefore a deduction as to the view of the first Tanna can likewise be made only with reference to the covering.
- (14) Whether he may slaughter, having no earth.
- (15) Lev. XVII, 13
- (16) The preposition ב here means in rather than with, indicating that dust is to be put on all sides. V. Nachmanides a.l. for reason of covering the blood.
- (17) For he may not dig to obtain the earth to place beneath.
- (18) He would then have dug earth unnecessarily.
- (19) That he should be allowed to dig.
- (20) For he will not be able to slaughter, v. Deut. XVI, 14.
- (21) So that there is no violation of the law of digging on the Festival; for digging requires both the sticking in of the shovel as well as the lifting of it with the earth in it.
- (22) Granted there is not digging, but this crumbling of the earth is also forbidden, being in the nature of grinding.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 8a

[We are dealing with a case] where the soil is loose.¹ But does he not make a hole?² — This is according to R. Abba; for R. Abba said: if one digs a hole on the Sabbath and only requires its soil, he is guiltless in regard to it.³

BECAUSE THE ASHES OF THE HEARTH ARE MUKAN [CONSIDERED AS HAVING BEEN PREPARED]. Who is speaking here of the ashes of the hearth?⁴ Answered Rabbah: Read thus: 'AND⁵ THE ASHES OF THE HEARTH ARE MUKAN'. Rab Judah said in Rab's name: They only taught this⁶ when it [the fire] had been kindled on the day of the Festival; but if it had been kindled on the Festival [itself] it is forbidden;⁷ but if [the ashes] are suitable⁸ to roast an egg therein, it is permitted.⁹ Likewise It was also taught: When they said [that] the ashes of the hearth are mukan, they only said so when it [the fire] had been kindled before the Festival; but if it had been kindled on the Festival it is forbidden; but if they are suitable to roast an egg therein it is permitted. If one had brought earth into his garden or into his waste land [before the Festival] one may cover the blood therewith.¹⁰

Rab Judah further said in the name of Rab: A man may bring a basket-full of earth [into his house] and may use it for whatever is necessary.¹¹ Mar Zutra pointed out in the name of Mar Zutra the Great: This only holds good if he had appointed a special corner for it.¹²

An objection was raised: One may not slaughter a koy¹³ on a Festival, and if he did slaughter it, he may not cover its blood.¹⁴ Now if this were so¹⁵, let him cover it [the blood] in accordance with the opinion of Rab Judah?¹⁶ — But even according to your point of view, let him cover the blood with ashes of the hearth, or with earth in which a shovel was stuck?¹⁷ Therefore you must needs say that we are dealing here with a case where he has not [any of these];¹⁸ so also explain that we are dealing with a case where he has not [a basket-full of earth in the house]. If so¹⁹ then why particularly with respect to [an animal about which there is] a doubt [whether its blood requires covering]; even with respect to an animal about which there is no doubt one also may not [cover the blood by digging]?²⁰ — He uses the expression ‘not only but also’: not only may he not slaughter [in the case of an animal about which there is no doubt],²¹ but even in the case of an animal about which there is a doubt, where I might have said that because of the joy of the Festival he should be allowed to slaughter without covering the blood, he informs us [that he may not slaughter].

(1) As for example gravel or sand.

(2) When he takes it out, which is forbidden, being in the nature of ‘building’.

(3) Since it was not his intention to make the hole, the presence of the hole is only a disfigurement and for such an act of impairing or disfiguring one is not considered guilty of a breach of the Sabbath law; and although such an act is forbidden ab initio, yet for the sake of the joy of the Festival it has been permitted.

(4) Lit., ‘who has mentioned its name previously (that you are referring to it now)?’

(5) Changing the letter ׀ for ׀. V. supra p. 1, n. 10.

(6) That the ashes of the hearth are considered mukan.

(7) On account of mukzeh.

(8) Hot enough.

(9) To use such ashes for covering the blood even though the fire was kindled on the Festival itself, because since the ashes may be used for baking they cannot be regarded as mukzeh and may therefore be used, when in such a state, for any other purpose.

(10) Since it was prepared for any purpose.

(11) And it is not regarded as a part of the earth of the house and thus be prohibited from being handled.

(12) I.e., he did scatter over the ground, thereby indicating that it was for his use.

(13) A bearded deer or antelope (GR. ) Jast. V. however Hul. 79b where it is defined as a cross between a goat and a gazelle. V. also B.K., Sonc. ed. p. 443 n. 6. A doubt prevails regarding this animal whether it is in the category of cattle the blood of which need not be covered, or in the category of game the blood of which is to be covered. Cf. Lev. XVII, 13.

(14) Perchance it is cattle and he would be handling earth unnecessarily. V. Hul. 83b, 79b.

(15) That earth thus brought could be used in any way.

(16) By listing the basket-full of earth. Even if it were definitely cattle, the earth could still be used without infringing the law not to do any work on a Festival.

(17) From before the Festival, which is stated in our Mishnah to be mukan.

(18) Viz., ashes or a shovel of earth.

(19) That we are dealing with a case where he has no earth except through digging.

(20) Since we accept the decision of Beth Hillel according to which it is forbidden to dig earth on a Festival for covering blood.

(21) Since he has no earth in readiness.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 8b

But surely since he teaches at the end [of the clause] ‘and if he did slaughter it, he may not cover its blood’, understand from this that [we are] speaking of a case where he has [earth in readiness]!¹ — Therefore answered Rabbah: The ashes of the hearth² are regarded as mukan for [the covering of blood of] animals about which there is no doubt, but they are not regarded as mukan with respect to animals about which there is some doubt [whether their blood requires covering]. Why are they not [considered mukan in respect of the blood of the animal] about which there is a doubt? because he would be making a hole [in the ashes on the Festival]! Then in the case of an animal [game] about which there is no doubt, he would also be making a hole? But [why would it not be regarded as making a hole in the ashes]? because it is in accordance with R. Abba!³ Than here also it is in accordance with R. Abba!⁴ And if [you say that] the reason [why he may not use them to cover the blood of an animal about which there is] a doubt is that he may cause a crumbling [of the earth],⁵ we should enact a preventive measure on account of crumbling of the earth even in the case of definite [game]? — In the case of [animals] about which there is no doubt, even if he crumbles the earth [it is permitted]; for the positive command [to cover the blood] comes and overrides the negative command.⁶ But when do we say that a positive command overrides⁷ a negative command, [only in cases] like ‘circumcision in leprosy’⁸ or ‘a linen garment with [woolen] fringes’,⁹ where the infringement of the negative command is at the same time as the fulfillment of the of the positive command!¹⁰ — This presents no difficulty, for simultaneously with the crumbling of the earth he covers the blood. But after all, [in] a Festival there exists both a positive and a negative command,¹¹ and a positive command cannot override both a positive and negative command! — Therefore answered Raba: ashes of the hearth [or anything like it] are intended for a definite case of game but not for a doubt.¹² And Raba follows [here] his opinion [expressed elsewhere]. For Raba said: If one brought in earth [before the Festival] to cover therewith excrement [of a child], he may cover therewith the blood of a bird;¹³ [to cover therewith] the blood of a bird he may not cover therewith the excrement [of a child].¹⁴ The Neharbeleans¹⁵ say: Even if one brought in earth to cover therewith the blood of a bird, he may [also] cover therewith the excrement [of a child].¹⁶

In the West¹⁷ they say: R. Jose Hama and R. Zera — some say, Raba the son of R. Jose b. Hama and R. Zera — differ therein; one says: koy is analogous to excrement,¹⁸ and the other says: koy is not analogous to excrement.¹⁹ It may be proved that it was Raba who said that koy is analogous to excrement; for Raba said: If one brought in earth to cover therewith excrement [of a child], he may cover therewith the blood of a bird, [but if he brought it earth to cover therewith] the blood of a bird, he may not cover therewith the excellent [of a child].²⁰ Conclude from this [that it was Raba].

Rami the son of R. Yabba said: The reason why we are not allowed to cover [the blood of] a koy is that it is a preventive measure against permitting the use of its suet.²¹ If it is so, [it should be prohibited] even on a weekday! — On a weekday people will say because he wants to clean his court.²² What is there to be said if he slaughtered [the koy] on a dust-heap?²³ [And further] what will you say if one comes to ask advice?²⁴ — On a weekday even if there is any doubt the Rabbis would tell him: Go, take trouble and cover [the blood]; but on a Festival, if there is a doubt, would the Rabbis tell him: Go, take trouble and cover [the blood]!²⁵ R. Zera learnt: it is not only with respect to a koy that the Rabbis said [thus]; but even if one slaughtered cattle, game and poultry and their blood became mingled, it is [also] prohibited to cover [such mingled blood] on a Festival.²⁶

Said R. Jose b. Jasariah: This was only said when one cannot cover it [the mingled blood] with one thrust of the shovel;²⁷ but if one can cover it with one thrust of the shovel, it is permitted. But is not this self-evident?²⁸ — You might assume that we should prohibit [even] one shovelful lest perchance [he might go on to use] two shovelfuls, so he informs us [that one is allowed]. Rabbah said: If one slaughtered a bird on the eve of the Festival [and omitted to cover the blood], one may not cover it on the Festival;²⁹

(1) For otherwise there would be no point in stating the law, seeing that where no earth in readiness is available he may not cover the blood of an animal which certainly requires covering. The original question therefore remains, viz., why should he not cover the blood of the koy either according to the teaching of Rab Judah or with the ashes of the earth?

(2) The same applies to the basket-full of earth.

(3) Who does not regard this as digging a pit; v. supra 6a.

(4) Therefore the reason cannot be on account of making a hole.

(5) [It is possible that the ashes contain cinders, or the basket-full of earth clods. V. supra p. 33 n. 6].

(6) Not to do any work on a Festival.

(7) Lit., 'positive command comes and overrides etc.'

(8) It is forbidden to remove a Leprous spot by an operation. Deut. XXIV, 8. The command to circumcise however (Gen. XVII, 10ff) has to take place even though a leprous spot is on the foreskin.

(9) Woollen fringes (Deut. XXII, 12) may be inserted in a garment of linen in spite of the prohibition not to wear a garment of heterogeneous materials.

(10) For the act of crumbling the earth precedes the action of covering the blood.

(11) In addition to the negative command 'not to do any work', cf. Lev. XXIII, 7, 8, 21, 35 there is also a positive command of 'resting', cf. ibid. XXIII, 39.

(12) [They are not considered mukdam in respect of animals about which there is a doubt, not because of the infringement of any prohibition involved, but because it is assumed that he had intended to use them only for such animals as definitely require the covering of their blood].

(13) In the case of a child's excrements the need is only a probable one, but with respect to the blood, he decided beforehand to kill on that day. Therefore if he prepared the earth to use for a contingency, how much more should he be permitted to use it for that which he definitely decided.

(14) For the earth was set in readiness only for a certain definitely determined object and therefore cannot be used in case of contingency.

(15) I.e., Rami b. Berabi or Beroki V. Sanh. 17b, Sonc. ed. p. 89. Neharbel identified with Nehar Bil, east of Bagdad, Obermeyer, p. 269.

(16) Because the contingency of the excrement is almost a certainty.

(17) I.e., Palestine. The Babylonians, when alluding to Palestine, called it the West, as Palestine was to the west of Babylon. Cf. Ber. 2b. But V. Sanh. 17b.

(18) I.e., if one brought earth to cover dung, he could cover therewith the blood of the koy, for the contingency of the dung is similar to the uncertainty with respect to the koy.

(19) Because the contingency of the dung is almost a certainty, and is therefore regarded as definite in comparison with koy which is absolutely uncertain.

(20) Hence Raba regards the contingency of requiring the earth for dung as remote and not as almost a certainty

(21) Heleb (V. Glos.). Suet is disallowed in the case of oxen and sheep but not in the case of game. If therefore you allow to cover its blood, people might regard it as game.

(22) And not because the koy is regarded as game. On a Festival work is forbidden with the exception of the preparation of food. The cleansing of a court is no exception.

(23) Where you cannot say that the covering of the blood is in order to keep the dust-heap clean.

(24) Whether, if he slaughters a koy on a weekday he should cover its blood? Is there not the possibility of the one asking the question, on being told that he is to cover its blood, himself coming to the conclusion that he may regard the koy as game and thus eat its suet.

(25) Surely not! Therefore people might come to a wrong inference.

(26) Because in so doing, he would be doing unnecessary work in covering the blood of the cattle.

(27) Which would be sufficient to cover the blood of the game and poultry; so that anything more than one shovelful would be unnecessary work.

(28) The one shovelful is required for the game and poultry, so that no extra work is done on account of the blood of the cattle.

(29) Because that which could be done before the Festival may not be done on the Festival. The bird, however, could be eaten in spite of the breach of the positive command to cover the blood.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 9a

if one prepared dough on the eve of the Festival, he may separate from its hallah¹ on the Festival.² The father of Samuel Says: Even if one Prepared dough on the eve of the Festival, he may not separate from it hallah on the Festival.³ Shall it be said that Samuel disputes with his father? For Samuel said: With respect to hallah outside Palestine, one may go on eating [of the dough] and separate the priestly portion at the end!⁴ — Answered Raba: Does then not Samuel agree that if one designated it by name⁵ that it is forbidden to be eaten by laymen?⁶

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MAY NOT CARRY A LADDER [ON A FESTIVAL] FROM ONE DOVECOTE TO ANOTHER,⁷ BUT HE MAY INCLINE IT FROM ONE PIGEON-HOLE TO ANOTHER. BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT [THIS].

GEMARA. R. Hanan b. Ammi said: The dispute refers only to public ground, when Beth Shammai is of the opinion that whoever sees [him carrying the ladder] might say that he needed it for [plastering his roof];⁸ Beth Hillel hold, his dovecote proves his intention; but in private ground, all agree that it is permitted. But it is not so. For Rab Judah said in the name of Rab:⁹ 'Wherever the sages have forbidden anything because of appearances, it is forbidden even in the most innermost chambers!¹⁰ — It is [a contro versy of] Tannaim. For it was taught: One may spread them out in the sun, but not in the presence of people.¹¹ R. Eleazar and R. Simeon forbid this.¹²

Others say [thus]: R. Hanan b. Ammi said: The dispute refers to private ground; for Beth Shammai accept the teaching of Rab Judah in the name of Rab, and Beth Hillel reject the teaching of Rab Judah in the name of Rab; but on public ground all agree that it is forbidden. Shall it be said that Rab ruled as Beth Shammai?!¹³ — It is [a controversy of] Tannaim.¹⁴ For it was taught: 'He may spread them out in the sun, but not in the presence of people. R Eleazar and R. Simeon forbid this'

(1) The priestly portion of dough. V. Glos.

(2) For the decree of the Rabbis 'not to separate tithes on a Festival' (infra 36b) did not include dough, since it is permitted to make dough, which cannot be eaten until the priestly portion of the dough has been taken.

(3) When the Rabbis permitted the separation of hallah on a Festival, it only referred to a dough that was made on the Festival.

(4) Thus showing that the separation of hallah is not essential, since the eating of the dough does not depend upon the separation of hallah; and since one may eat of the dough before the separation one should be allowed to separate the hallah on the Festival, since the separation cannot be regarded as making the dough legally fit for use; cf. infra 36b.

(5) If one designated the separated part by the name hallah, it automatically assumes the name of terumah (V. Glos.).

(6) Hence such hallah is called terumah and can therefore be included in the Rabbinical enactment forbidding tithing on a Festival.

(7) To bring down the pigeons that are to be slaughtered.

(8) A man must avoid even the appearance of transgression.

(9) The authority of Rab as head of the Babylonian Community was not to be disputed by all Amora like R. Hanan, for he was regarded as enjoying the authority of a Tanna. CF. Sanh. 83b; 'Er. 50b; etc.; cf. also Tosaf. B.M. 46b.

(10) If therefore on public ground it is forbidden because of appearances, It should also be forbidden even on private ground.

(11) This refers to clothes which were accidentally wetted on the Sabbath. For they might say that work had been done in washing. Hence there is an opinion that in private ground where the question of because of appearances does not apply it is permitted.

(12) Shab. 64b; 146b.

(13) This explanation would make Rab appear to side with Beth Shammai against Beth Hillel. But Rab would not go against the standard rule that the halachah prevails according to the opinion of Beth Hillel.

(14) The dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel according to R. Hanan is similar to the dispute between the anonymous Tanna and Rabbis Eleazar and Simeon. Rab, however, must explain the dispute of the Mishnah as in the first stage of the argument, and Beth Hillel, according to him, permit even on public ground because the dovecote proves the intention.

Our Mishnah is not in agreement with the following Tanna. For it was taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel agree that one may carry the ladder from one dovecote to [another] dovecote;¹ they dispute only about bringing it back, Beth Shammai saying: One may not bring it back, and Beth Hillel maintaining: One may even bring it back. R. Judah said: These words apply only to a dovecote ladder;² but with respect to a loft-ladder all agree that it is forbidden.³ R. Dosa says: One may incline it [the ladder] from one pigeon-hole to another. Others say in the name of R. Dosa: One may even move it with [short] hop-like steps.⁴

The sons of R. Hiyya⁵ went out to the Villages [to inspect the fields]. When they came back their father asked them: Has any legal question come before you? They replied to him: A case of [carrying] a loft-ladder came before us and we permitted it. He said to them: Go and forbid what you have permitted. They were of the opinion: Since R. Judah said that they [Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel] do not dispute with respect to a loft-ladder, it follows that the first Tanna holds that they do differ [even there].⁶ But this is not so; R. Judah is only explaining the view of the first Tanna.⁷ Whence [is this known]? — Since [the list Tanna] states: ‘One may carry a ladder from one dovecote to another [dovecote].’ If therefore you maintain that they differ with respect to a loft-ladder [instead of] this [phrase], ‘One may carry a ladder from one dovecote to another dovecote,’⁸ he should say, ‘One may carry a ladder to a dovecote.’⁹ [Evidently] this is what he means: only [the ladder] of a dovecote but not that of a loft. And the other?¹⁰ — Does it then state a ladder of a dovecote? It [only] states ‘from one dovecote to another dovecote’, [indicating] even to any number of dovecotes.¹¹

Others say: A case of inclining a loft-ladder came before us and we permitted it. He said to them: Go and forbid what you have permitted. They were of the opinion that what the first Tanna¹² forbids, R. Dosa permits.¹³ But it is not so. [Rather is it] what the first Tanna permits,¹⁴ R. Dosa forbids.

BUT HE MAY INCLINE IT FROM ONE PIGEON HOLE TO ANOTHER etc. Accordingly [we see] that Beth Shammai is stringent in regard to the joy of the Festival¹⁵ and Beth Hillel is lenient, but the following contradicts this: If one slaughters game or poultry on a Festival, Beth Shammai say: He may dig up [earth] with a shovel and cover [the blood], but Beth Hillel maintain: One may not slaughter unless he has [loose] earth prepared from the day before [the Festival]!¹⁶ — R. Johanan replied: The authorities should be reversed.¹⁷ ‘Whence [does this follow]?¹⁸ Perhaps Beth Shammai say thus there¹⁹ only when there is [already] a shovel sticking in the earth,²⁰ but not where there is no shovel sticking in the earth.²¹ Or perhaps Beth Hillel permit here²² only because the dovecote makes it evident,²³ but there²⁴ it is not permitted!²⁵ Rather, if there is a difficulty,²⁶ the following is the difficulty. Beth Shammai say,²⁷ One may not take [pigeons]²⁸ unless he stirred [them] up²⁹ the day before. But Beth Hillel say: He stands and declares, ‘This one or that one shall I take’.³⁰ Accordingly [we see] that Beth Shammai is stringent in regard to the joy of the Festival and Beth Hillel is lenient; but the following contradicts this: If one slaughters game or poultry on a Festival [etc.]! — R. Johanan replied: The authorities should be reversed. Whence [does this follow]?³¹ Perhaps Beth Shammai [permit] only when there is [already] a shovel sticking in the earth

(1) In order not to be deprived of the joy of the Festival.

(2) As his intention is then unmistakable.

(3) For the sake of appearance, as it may certainly be thought that he wishes to repair the roof.

(4) If the top of the ladder does not reach a particular pigeon-hole otherwise.

(5) Judah and Hezekiah.

(6) And, of course, Beth Hillel's view is law.

(7) Thus none permit the use of the ladder of the loft, since R. Judah does not state a separate view.

(8) Which signifies a ladder only used for dovecotes.

(9) The word משובך should have been omitted.

(10) I.e., R. Hiyya, what was the meaning of the text to him?

(11) The expression from ‘one dovecote to another dovecote’ is not asserting that it was a dovecote ladder, but rather that the ladder may be moved to several dovecotes.

- (12) The first Tanna of R Dosa is R. Judah who forbids the carrying of a loft-ladder.
- (13) The loft-ladder at any rate to be inclined from one pigeon hole to another.
- (14) R. Judah permits the carrying of a dovecote ladder while R. Dosa forbids carrying and only permits inclining the ladder which had been brought to the dovecote before the Festival. But a loft-ladder would be forbidden even to incline.
- (15) Beth Shammai do not give a more lenient decision out of regard for the joy of the Festival.
- (16) Supra 2a. In this case Beth Shammai is more lenient than Beth Hillel.
- (17) Rashi: The authorities in the second Mishnah are to be reversed; Tosaf.: The authorities of the first Mishnah are to be reversed.
- (18) There is no need to change the authorities for the attitude of each school in the second Mishnah can be in harmony with their attitude in the first Mishnah.
- (19) That it is permissible to dig up earth with a shovel.
- (20) Before the Festival when there is no likelihood of breaking any law on the Festival.
- (21) Even if the earth is loose, for in sticking in the shovel it would appear as if he were digging on a Festival. Similarly in the second Mishnah an onlooker might think that he was intending to repair his roof.
- (22) Not out of consideration for the joy of the Festival.
- (23) That no forbidden work is intended to be performed.
- (24) In the first Mishnah.
- (25) To dig even though the shovel was already sticking in the earth because he may cause a crumbling of the earth which is in the nature of grinding and the possibility of an infringement of the law by digging takes precedence over the consideration of the joy of the Festival.
- (26) Which led R. Johanan, to reverse the authorities.
- (27) Infra 10a.
- (28) For slaughtering on a Festival.
- (29) V. infra 10a.
- (30) Preparing then, for the following day.
- (31) So D.S. as supra. Cur. edd. 'perhaps it is not so'.

but not when there is no shovel sticking in the earth;¹ or perhaps Beth Hillel rule thus only here because since it is mukzeh,² it is sufficient if he stands and declares, 'This one or that one shall I take';³ but there [they do] not [rule thus]! Rather, if there is a difficulty, the following is the difficulty: Beth Shammai say: One may not take a pestle⁴ to cut up meat thereon; but Beth Hillel permit [it].⁵ Accordingly [we see] that Beth Shammai is stringent in regard to the joy of the Festival and Beth Hillel is lenient, but the following contradicts this: If one slaughters game or poultry [on a Festival] Beth Shammai etc.! — R. Johanan replied: The authorities should be reversed. 'Whence [does this follow]? Perhaps it is not so? [Perhaps] Beth Shammai rule [thus] only there where there is [already] a shovel sticking in the earth, but not when there is no shovel sticking in the earth. Or perhaps Beth Hillel rule thus only here, because it [the pestle] bears the designation of utensil;⁶ but there [they do] not [rule thus]! Rather, if there is a difficulty, the following is the difficulty: Beth Shammai say: One may not lay out a hide⁷ for treading on⁸ and one may not lift it up unless it has [sticking to it] flesh [as much as] an olive;⁹ but Beth Hillel permit.¹⁰ Accordingly [we see] that Beth Shammai is stringent in regard to the joy of the Festival and Beth Hillel is lenient, but the following contradicts that if one slaughters game or poultry on a Festival etc! — R. Johanan replied: The authorities should be reversed. Whence [does this follow]? Perhaps it is not so; [perhaps Beth Shammai rule thus only there, where there is [already] a shovel sticking in the earth, but not when there is no shovel sticking in the earth. Or perhaps Beth Hillel rule thus only here because it [the hide] is fit for sitting thereon,¹¹ but there [they do] not [rule thus]! Rather, if there is a difficulty, the following is the difficulty: Beth Shammai say: One may not take down shutters¹² on a Festival, but Beth Hillel permit them even to be put back.¹³ Accordingly [we see] that Beth Shammai is stringent in regard to the joy of the Festival and Beth Hillel is lenient, but the following contradicts this: If one slaughters game or poultry on a Festival etc.! It is well [that the rulings of] Beth Shammai are not contradictory: there [it is permitted only] when there is [already] a shovel sticking in the earth but here there is no shovel sticking in the earth.¹⁴ But [the views of] Beth Hillel are contradictory! — Said R. Johanan: The authorities should be reversed. [Why reverse the authorities]?¹⁵ Perhaps Beth Hillel rule thus only here because building and pulling down do not apply to utensils,¹⁶ but there [they do] not [rule thus].

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY:¹⁷ ONE MUST NOT TAKE [PIGEONS] UNLESS HE HAS STIRRED¹⁸ [THEM] UP THE DAY BEFORE [THE FESTIVAL]: BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: HE STANDS AND DECLARES: THIS ONE OR THAT ONE WILL I TAKE. GEMARA. R. Hanan b. Ammi said: The dispute is only with respect to the first brood¹⁹ when Beth Shammai is of the opinion that²⁰ we preventively prohibit,²¹ lest he may come to change his mind,²² whereas Beth Hillel is of the opinion: We do not prohibit as a precautionary measure; but with respect to the second brood all agree that it is sufficient when he stands and declares, ‘This one or that one will I take’.²³

Now according to Beth Hillel, why must he declare, ‘This one or that one will I take’, let him [rather] say, ‘Of these will I take [one] tomorrow’?²⁴ And if you reply that Beth Hillel do not accept [the law of] Bererah,²⁵ surely we have learnt:²⁶ If a corpse [lay] in a room²⁷ which has many doors²⁸ they are all unclean;²⁹ if one of these [doors] was opened,³⁰ it alone is unclean³¹ and all the others are clean.³² If he formed the intention to take it [the corpse] out through one of them, or through a window which [measures] four handbreadths square,³³ this gives protection to all the other doors.³⁴ Beth Shammai say: Providing that he had formed his intention to take it out³⁵ before the person died;³⁶ but Beth Hillel say: [It holds good] even [if his intention was formed] after the person died!³⁷ — But has it not already been stated thereon: Rabbah said: [The statement of Beth Hillel is] with respect to the cleansing of the entrances from now onwards.³⁸ R. Oshaia also said: [The statement of Beth Hillel is] with respect to the cleansing of the entrances from now onwards; only ‘from now onwards’ but not ‘retrospectively’.³⁹ Raba says: In reality [the statement of Beth Hillel is even in respect of cleansing] retrospectively,⁴⁰ and here⁴¹ the reason⁴² is lest he might take up [a pigeon] and put it down again, take up [a pigeon] and put it down again and thus come to take one which is not fit for him.⁴³ But you say it is sufficient if he stands and says this or that will I take!⁴⁴ — This only applies on the eve of the Festival,⁴⁵

(1) Similarly they do not permit to take a pigeon on a Festival unless he had specified before the Festival the particular pigeon he intended to slaughter, for after handling one he might change his mind and decide upon another and thus the handling of the first pigeon would be regarded as unnecessary work on a Festival.

(2) Viz., the prohibition of taking pigeons without previous preparation.

(3) This constitutes sufficient preparation.

(4) Used for the pounding of groats and therefore reserved for work forbidden on a Festival and so must not be handled.

(5) Infra 11a.

(6) Lit., ‘the law of a utensil is upon it’, and one may always handle a utensil on a Festival.

(7) Flayed on the Festival.

(8) Whereby it becomes tanned.

(9) The minimum to be used as a meal and what is needful for food may be carried about on a Festival.

(10) Cf. infra p. 51.

(11) They used to sit cross-legged upon rugs.

(12) For it is of the nature of building and pulling clown. V. infra 54, n. 2.

(13) Although such work is not directly for the sake of the Festival, infra 11b.

(14) I.e., in this case there is nothing corresponding to the shovel sticking in the earth in order to permit.

(15) Cf. MS.M. Cur. ed. ‘or’. [The text is in disorder: D.S. a.l. on the basis of different MSS. reconstructs it as follows: ‘On a Festival etc.’ — Said R. Johanan: The authorities are reversed. But whence (does this follow)? Perhaps Beth Shammai rules thus only there . . . but here there is no shovel . . . earth. Or perhaps Beth Hillel rule thus only here because building etc.’ — following the same line of argument as in the preceding cases].

- (16) The forms of the utensils are not changed but are only used for a different purpose.
- (17) Supra 9b. q.v.
- (18) To stir up, means to examine properly what sort of bird it was.
- (19) It is usual to leave the first brood as company for the parent birds.
- (20) If he did not 'stir' them before the Festival.
- (21) Taking any on the Festival.
- (22) About slaughtering that particular pigeon and put it back. He would thus have handled and moved the pigeon unnecessarily. If, however, he 'stirred' them before the Festival and chose one for slaughter, then he has definitely made up his mind to have that bird.
- (23) For there is no question of putting the bird back, since it is only the first brood that is left with the parent birds.
- (24) Since a verbal preparation is sufficient to remove the prohibition of mukzeh, it should be assumed that the bird chosen on the Festival is retrospectively the same one about which he spoke the day before.
- (25) Retrospective selection. A legal term to denote that a present selection shall have retrospective validity. The selection of a particular dove on the Festival from a number that have been generally designated before the Festival (when it was intended to take one only) shall rank as though that dove itself has been selected before the Festival.
- (26) Infra 37b; 'Er. 68b; Oh. VII, 3.
- (27) A corpse in a room defiles not only the vessels inside the room but even those standing just outside the door beneath the lintel of the entrance through which the corpse is to be carried out. If there is more than one entrance to the room the same rule applies to them all unless it has been specifically determined to carry it through one particular entrance. Such determination protects the other entrances.
- (28) All of which are closed or open.
- (29) The doors themselves and even the vessels outside under the same lintels; because the corpse may be carried out through any one of them.
- (30) After the person's death.
- (31) For it is assumed that the corpse will be taken out through the open door.
- (32) I.e., all vessels placed subsequently in the remaining entrances. With respect to those vessels placed there prior to the opening of the one door v. the immediately following hypothetical dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel.
- (33) The minimum opening through which a whole corpse could be carried out.
- (34) His intention or determination is regarded as if he had actually opened the entrance.
- (35) Through a particular door.
- (36) But if only after death, then those vessels which had been placed in the same entrance prior to his determination would be unclean.
- (37) It ranks as though that door had been designated for that purpose immediately at death; hence we see that Beth Hillel accept the rule of Bererah.
- (38) I. e., from the time subsequent to his determination. According to Beth Shammai, when there has been no determination before the death, all the entrances are unclean and the subsequent determination does not remove the uncleanness except by the actual act of opening. Not so Beth Hillel. But Beth Hillel will not accept the rule of Bererah.
- (39) I.e., those vessels placed in the entrances from the time of death until the forming of his intention all agree are unclean.
- (40) Because Beth Hillel accept the rule of Bererah.
- (41) In our Mishnah.
- (42) That Beth Hillel say that he must specify this or that.
- (43) On account of mukzeh; for his intention was to take only what was necessary' for him. If, however, he said 'this or that I will take,' he will definitely take those designated.
- (44) Why not apprehend here too lest he will pick and choose since he did not 'stir' them before the Festival?
- (45) I.e., If he makes this declaration on the eve of the Festival to remind him that he may not pick and choose on the Festival on account of mukzeh.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 10b

but¹ on the Festival [itself]² it is forbidden;³ for sometimes the [seemingly] fat ones are found [to be] lean, and the [seemingly] lean ones are found [to be] fat, and [thus] he handles [birds] which are not fit for him; or else, sometimes they may all be found lean, and he will leave them and thus come to refrain from the joy of the Festival.⁴

MISHNAH. IF HE DESIGNATED⁵ BLACK [DOVES]⁶ BUT FOUND WHITE, WHITE BUT FOUND BLACK, TWO BUT FOUND THREE, THEY ARE [ALL] FORBIDDEN;⁷ THREE BUT FOUND TWO, THEY ARE PERMITTED. [IF HE DESIGNATED DOVES] INSIDE THE NEST AND FOUND THEM IN FRONT OF THE NEST, THEY ARE FORBIDDEN; BUT IF NONE EXCEPT THESE WERE THERE, THEY ARE PERMITTED.

GEMARA. Is not this self-evident? — Said Rabbah: We are dealing here with a case where he had designated black and white,⁸ and on the following morning he found black ones in the place of the white and white ones in the place of the black; you might say they are the very same [doves] and they had only exchanged [their nests], so he informs us⁹ that those¹⁰ are gone away and these are different ones. Shall it be said that [this Mishnah] supports the view of R. Hanina? for R. Hanina said:¹¹ [If] majority and proximity [are in opposition]¹² you follow the majority?¹³ — As Abaye has explained,¹⁴ when there is a board,¹⁵ likewise also here [explain] when there is a board.

[IF HE DESIGNATED] TWO [DOVES] BUT FOUND THREE THEY ARE [ALL] FORBIDDEN. Whichever way you take it [they are forbidden]; if these¹⁶ are other [doves], then they are indeed others;¹⁷ if they are the same, then there is [another] one mixed up with them.¹⁸

[IF HE DESIGNATED] THREE [DOVES] BUT FOUND TWO THEY ARE PERMITTED. What is the reason? — They are indeed the same¹⁹ and one of them has flown away. Shall it be said that the Mishnah is according to Rabbi and not according to the Sages? For we have learnt: If one deposited one hundred [zuz]²⁰ and found two hundred,²¹ [it is assumed that] there is hullin [money]²² and second tithe [money] mixed together. This is the opinion of Rabbi. But the Sages say: The entire sum is hullin [money].²³ If he deposited two hundred [zuz] and found one hundred, [it is assumed that] one hundred has been left²⁴ and one hundred has been taken away. This is the opinion of Rabbi. But the Sages say: The entire sum is hullin [money].²⁵ — You can even say [that it is] in accordance with the Sages, for It was stated thereon: R. Johanan and R. Eleazar both say:²⁶ Doves are different since they are used to hop about.²⁷ But why is it necessary²⁸ to explain here, ‘doves are different since they are used to hop about’? Surely it has already been stated with respect to this [very Baraitha] that [there is a dispute between] R. Johanan and R. Eleazar; one says: The controversy [between Rabbi and the Sages] is when there were two purses,²⁹ but when there is [only] one purse all agree that the entire sum is hullin.³⁰ And the other says: The dispute is when there is one purse,³¹ but when there are two purses all agree that [we are to assume] one hundred has been left and one hundred taken away! It is well according to the view that the dispute relates to two purses; hence it is necessary to explain here ‘it is different with doves since they are used to hop about.’ But according to the view that ‘the dispute is [only] with respect to one purse but when there are two purses all agree that one hundred had been left and one hundred taken’ why is it necessary to answer it [as above]; surely you have said indeed that they do not dispute with respect to two purses?³² — Said R. Ashi: We are dealing here with doves tied together and with purses fastened together;³³ doves pull themselves apart from one another, but purses do not pull themselves apart from one another.³⁴ And Rabbi?³⁵ — He will answer you: In the case of purses too, it occurs

(1) If he has to make up his mind.

(2) I.e., if he only said ‘of these will I take to-morrow.

(3) To take any bird.

(4) But had he specifically designated which to take, he would not change his mind.

(5) For eating on the Festival.

(6) That were in the nest.

(7) In the first case they are definitely strange doves and in the second case since he cannot recognize the doves he designated they are all forbidden.

(8) In two separated nests.

(9) That we are to suppose.

(10) Doves that have been designated for slaughter on the eve of the Festival.

(11) B.B. 23b.

(12) I.e., If a case can be decided one way on the ground of majority and another way on the ground of nearness. For majority and nearness, cf. Ex. XXIII, 2 and Deut. XXI, 3 respectively. V. also B.B., Sonc. ed. p. 117, n. 2.

(13) Here too it is probable that the doves are the same and that the nests have been exchanged owing to their close proximity. On the other hand it is possible to imagine these doves as part of the great majority of birds which do not belong to him and which had not been predetermined on.

(14) With reference to another case, infra 11a.

(15) In front of the dovecote upon which strange birds settle. Accordingly it is also probable that as soon as the old doves left their dovecote (quitted their nest), these strange doves took their place. The question of proximity therefore applies equally to the strange doves as well as to the doves that were originally in the nest in which case no one disputes that majority decides.

(16) All three.

(17) They are therefore forbidden, for these have not been designated before the Festival.

(18) And since it is not known which is the new one they are all forbidden.

(19) I.e., two of the three previously designated.

(20) I.e., one case of a hundred zuz of the second tithe which had to be taken to Jerusalem, but which owing to the distance was converted into money. This money had to be spent in Jerusalem. V. Deut. XIV, 22-26.

(21) I.e., two one-hundred zuz pieces.

(22) I.e., ordinary, unconsecrated, not of the second tithe.

(23) He must therefore select the finest coin for the second tithe and say: If this was originally the second tithe coin then it is well; if, on the other hand, the other coin was originally the second tithe, then let this one be exchanged for the other.

(24) For he would not have put away hullin money together with second tithe money; and since two coins were found instead of one, it is to be assumed that the one-hundred zuz piece of the second tithe had been taken out and put in another place, while this two-hundred is ordinary money subsequently put in the same place.

(25) Because the owner would not have separated one second tithe coin from the other except to take it to Jerusalem; hence the Sages assume that he had taken out the two hundred zuz which he put somewhere away, replacing them by the hundred zuz of ordinary money, but that he had forgotten the whole matter. Similarly according to the Sages it would follow that the three doves had flown away and two others came in their place. V. Pes. 100.

(26) In explanation of this seeming contradiction.

(27) Therefore one of them may have hopped away and the two left are of the original ones. But the same cannot be said with respect to money.

(28) For both R. Johanan and R. Eleazar.

(29) Each containing one hundred zuzim. It is then that Rabbi says that one hundred was left and one hundred taken away.

(30) For if he took aught of such money he would have taken the lot.

(31) It is then that the Sages assume that the entire two hundred second tithe money had been taken out and placed elsewhere.

(32) The contradiction shown between the Mishnah and the view of the Sages was removed by both R. Johanan and R. Eleazar by explaining that there was a difference between doves and coins. But since one of the same two Rabbis maintains that in the case of two purses each containing one hundred zuzim the Sages agree that the hundred left is part of the original, which is in agreement with the statement in the Mishnah, then why was he a party to that explanation of the contradiction?

(33) The expression 'One purse containing two hundred zuzim' means two purses, each containing one hundred zuzim, tied together and regarded as one purse; likewise 'two purses' would mean when they are not tied together. In the former case the Sages hold that the purse left is not one of the original two that were tied together. This view is contradictory to the Mishnah which says that the two doves found are of the original three that were tied together from which one had torn itself away. This contradiction is overcome by drawing a distinction between live birds and inanimate purses.

(34) And therefore the purse left may not be of the original two tied together.

(35) Surely this is a logical distinction!

that their knot becomes worn out.

WITHIN THE NEST AND FOUND THEM IN FRONT OF THE NEST THEY ARE FORBIDDEN. Shall it be said that this¹ supports the view of R. Hanina? For R. Hanina said:² [If] majority and proximity [are in opposition] you follow the majority? — Said Abaye: When there is a board.³ Raba says: 'We are treating here of two nests one above the other;⁴ and it goes without saying that if he designated [doves] in the lower [nest] and did not designate [those] in the upper, and [on the morrow] finds [doves] in the lower [nest] and none in the upper they are forbidden, for we assume that those of the lower [nest] had flown away and these⁵ had indeed hopped down; but even if he designated [doves] in the upper [nest] and did not designate [those] in the lower and he came and found [some] in the upper and did not find [any] in the lower, these too are forbidden, for we assume that those⁶ had flown away and these had indeed fluttered up.⁷ BUT IF NONE EXCEPT THESE WERE THERE THEY ARE PERMITTED. What are the circumstances? If you say that [this refers] to those which can fly, then it is possible to assume that those had flown away and these are different ones? And if [this refers] to those which can [only] hop,⁸ then if there is [another] nest within fifty cubits, they might indeed have hopped away;⁹ and if there is no [other] nest within fifty cubits, it is obvious that they are permitted, for Mar 'Ukba b. Hama said: 'Whatever hops does not hop more than fifty cubits! — In truth [it means] where there is [another] nest within fifty cubits, but e.g., it is situated round a corner; you might say that they have indeed hopped away,' so it¹⁰ informs us that they only hop along as long as by turning they see their nest,¹¹ but if not,¹² they do not hop away.

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY:¹³ YOU MAY NOT TAKE A PESTLE¹⁴ TO CUT UP MEAT THEREON,¹⁵ BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT [IT]. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MAY NOT PLACE A HIDE¹⁶ FOR TREADING ON¹⁷ NOR MAY HE LIFT IT UP UNLESS THERE IS AS MUCH AS AN OLIVE OF FLESH WITH IT,¹⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT IT.

GEMARA. A Tanna taught: And they [both] agree that if he had already cut up meat thereon, it [the pestle] may not be moved.¹⁹

Abaye said: The dispute is [only] with respect to a pestle, but in the case of a butcher's block²⁰ all agree that it is permitted. This is obvious: we learnt, A PESTLE!²¹ — You might say that the same applies even to a butcher's block²² and the reason it states PESTLE is in order to inform you of the extent of the view of Beth Hillel that even an object specially made for work which is forbidden²³ is also permitted; hence he informs us [that it is not so]. Others state; Abaye [himself] replied:²⁴ It is only necessary [to teach] that even a new butcher's block [is permitted]. You might say: He may change his mind and not cut up [meat] on it,²⁵ so he informs us [that this is not so]. Do then Beth Shammai not fear [the possibility of] one changing his mind?²⁶ Surely it was taught: Beth Shammai say: One may not lead the slaughterer²⁷ and the knife to the animal [to be slaughtered]²⁸ nor the animal to the slaughterer and the knife; but Beth Hillel say: One may bring the one to the other. Beth Shammai say: One may not carry spices or a pestle to the mortar, nor the mortar to the spices or the pestle; but Beth Hillel say: One may bring the one to the other! — What comparison is this? [With respect to] an animal it is well: he may come to change his mind saying, let us leave this lean animal and I will bring another animal which is fatter than this; [with respect to] a dish too he may come to change his mind, saying, let us leave this dish which requires spices and I will bring another [dish] which does not require spices. [But] here what are we to suppose? He will change his mind and not cut up [the meat]? Since he has already slaughtered [the animal], it has to be cut up.

BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MAY NOT PLACE A HIDE. A Tanna taught: And they [both] agree that one may salt upon it meat for roasting.²⁹ Abaye said: It was taught only [when it is] for roasting but not for boiling.³⁰ This is obvious: We learnt³¹ ‘for roasting’? — This he [Abaye] informs us that even for roasting [to salt it almost as much] as for boiling is [also] forbidden.

Our Rabbis taught: One may neither salt³² pieces of suet³³ for turn them about.³⁴ They reported in the name of R. Joshua: One may spread them out in the air on pegs [of wood]. R. Mattenah said: The halachah is as R. Joshua. Others state: R. Mattenah said: The halachah is not as R. Joshua. This is well according to the version, ‘the halachah is as R. Joshua’, [then it is necessary]: For I might say, [when] an individual and a majority [are in dispute] the halachah is as the majority: [hence] he informs us that [here] the halachah is as the individual. But according to the version ‘the halachah is not as R. Joshua’, it is obvious: [for when] an individual and a majority [are in dispute], the halachah is as the majority! — You might think that the opinion of R. Joshua is logical, for if you will not permit him³⁵ he will altogether forbear to slaughter,³⁶ so he informs us.³⁷ And why is this different from the case of placing a hide before the treading place?³⁸

(24) To the question ‘is it not obvious?’

(25) In order to spare it so as not to spoil it; hence it should be forbidden; cf. n. 1.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 11b

— There it is not manifest,¹ since it [the hide] is fit to be used as a mat to sit on. Here [however] he will be led to argue: ‘What is the reason [that] the Rabbis permitted me [to spread it on pegs]: so that it should not become offensive: what difference is there whether I spread them or salt them? Rab Judah in the name of Samuel said: A man may salt [on a Festival] several pieces of meat together even though he needs only one piece.² R. Adda b. Ahabah made use of an artifice and salted piece after piece.³ MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY:⁴ ONE MAY NOT TAKE DOWN SHUTTERS ON A FESTIVAL,⁵ BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT EVEN TO PUT THEM BACK AGAIN.

GEMARA. What [kind of] shutters? — Said ‘Ulla: The shutters of a [shopkeeper's] stall.⁶ ‘Ulla further said: There are three cases where [the Rabbis] allowed the completing [of the action]⁷ on account of its beginning,⁸ and they are as follows: [The placing of] the hide for people to tread on;⁹ [the taking down of] shutters from stalls¹⁰ and the replacing of a plaster¹¹ in the Temple. And Rehaba said in the name of Rabbi Judah:¹² Also he who opens his cask [of wine] or commences [cutting] into his dough for the requirements of the Festival¹³ and according to R. Judah who Says: He may finish [selling them after the Festival].¹⁴

‘[The placing of] the hide for people to tread on’; we have [already] learnt it!¹⁵ — You might say that the reason of Beth Hillel¹⁶ is because it is fit to be used as a mat and therefore even though [the hide was flayed] before the Festival it is also [permitted]; so he informs us [that] they permitted its completion for the sake of the beginning: [therefore if flayed] on the Festival it is [permitted], before the Festival it is not [permitted].

‘[THE TAKING DOWN OF] SHUTTERS FROM STALLS’ we have also learnt, [viz., but Beth Hillel permit even to put them back again]: — You might say that the reason of Beth Hillel is that building or demolishing does not apply to utensils and [therefore] even [the lids of chests in] houses are also permitted,¹⁷ so he informs us that they only permitted its completion on account of the beginning; therefore of stalls only [is it permitted] but not of [chests in] houses.¹⁸

‘The replacing of a plaster in the Temple’ we have also learnt [viz.]:¹⁹ One may replace²⁰ a plaster [on a wound] in the Temple but not in the country:²¹ — You might Say, what is the reason? Because there is no shebuth²² in the Temple and [therefore] even a priest not performing a Temple service [may also replace a plaster], so he informs us that they [only] permitted its completion on account of the beginning, [therefore it is permitted] only in the case of [a priest] performing a Temple service, but not when not performing a Temple service. ‘[The case of] opening a cask’, we have also learnt²³ [viz.]: He who opens his cask [of wine] or commences cutting into his dough for the requirements of the Festival, R. Judah says: He may finish [selling them after the Festival]; but the Sages say: He may not finish! — You might say that the Rabbis regarded the uncleanness of an ‘am ha-arez during the [period of the] Festival as cleanness and [therefore] even though he had not commenced²⁴ it is also [permitted];²⁵ so he informs us that they only permitted its completion on account of the beginning, [therefore] only if he had commenced [to sell them during the Festival] but not if he had not commenced.²⁶ And ‘Ulla: What is the reason that he does not state this?²⁷ — He does not deal with [cases] where there is a dispute. But there is a dispute concerning those too!²⁸ — The [opinion of] Beth Shammai against that of Beth Hillel is regarded as having no authority.²⁹

Our Mishnah³⁰ is not according to the following Tanna; for it was taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel agree that one may take down the shutters on a Festival; they dispute only about replacing, Beth Shammai maintaining: One may not replace [them]; while Beth Hillel rules: One may even replace [them]. When is this said? Where they [the shutters] have hinges,³¹ but if they have no hinges all agree that it is permitted [even to replace them]. But it was taught: This applies only if they have no hinges, but if they have hinges all agree that it is forbidden! — Said Abaye: When they have hinges on the side all³² agree that it is forbidden;³³ they only dispute where there is a hinge in the middle:

(1) That the spreading of the hide is for tanning.

(2) For this is not doing extra work, for there is one act of salting whether it be for one or for several pieces.

(3) After salting one piece for eating on the same day, he took another under the pretence that it was preferable, and so on until the whole was salted. The object was to preserve the meat in better condition for the days following the Festival.

(4) Supra 10a.

(5) For it is of the nature of building and pulling down, work forbidden on a Festival.

(6) Although general trading is prohibited on a Festival, yet things necessary for the full enjoyment of the Festival may be sold on trust, no payment being made on the day of the Festival. One or two shutters were taken down to show that such goods might be obtained.

(7) Which was not necessary for the Festival and in an ordinary way would have been prohibited.

(8) The beginning of the action was necessary for the enjoyment of the Festival and so the ending is permitted for the sake of the beginning. If it were forbidden, it might cause the neglect of beginning certain work which was necessary for the full enjoyment of the Festival.

(9) If he would not be allowed to use the skin in this way he would not kill.

(10) If he will not be allowed to close he will not open to give food.

(11) To apply a plaster on the Sabbath is forbidden. If, however, a priest having a plaster on a wound on his hand by reason of which he may not perform the Temple service (because nothing may adhere to his hand during the Temple service) has removed same, then he may replace it after the Temple service is over.

(12) [The reference is to Rab Judah, whom Rehaba designated as 'Rabbi' ('my teacher') because he was his teacher (Rashi). V. D.S. a.l.]

(13) To retail these to the pilgrims during the Festival among whom may be some of the עמי הארץ who do not observe the law of purification and who may have come into contact with the wine or bread thus rendering them unclean. According to R. Judah, the remainder also may after the Festival be bought by or sold to anyone however scrupulous he may be. V. p. 56, n. 1. Here, too, if we do not allow him to sell after the Festival, he will not commence opening for the Festival.

(14) This is explained infra.

(15) Supra 11a. Then why mention it again?

(16) In permitting the hide to be trodden on.

(17) To be taken off and to be put back again.

(18) I.e., even Beth Hillel hold that building or demolishing with respect to utensils is Rabbinically prohibited, but here they permit only on account of the enjoyment of the Festival.

(19) 'Er. 102b.

(20) On a Sabbath.

(21) מדינה (country) used here as opposed to מקדש (Sanctuary, Temple precincts).

(22) A Rabbinical Statute concerning the true keeping of the Sabbath; an act forbidden by the Rabbis on a Sabbath as being out of harmony with the celebration of the day. The replacing of a plaster on a Sabbath, like other medicinal remedies, is forbidden by the Rabbis as a preventive measure against pounding spices. The prohibition of acts as shebuth, however, did not apply to Temple duties. V. Glos.

(23) Hag. 26b. Wine or dough which has been touched by an 'am ha-arez may not be bought by or sold to persons who are scrupulous about purification, for the 'am ha-arez is suspected of being unclean. If an 'am ha-arez comes into contact with the wine or the dough during the Festival, they are not contaminated and may be bought by or sold to anybody during the Festival, even the most scrupulous. Should any wine or dough remain after the Festival, R. Judah and the Sages dispute whether these may continue to be bought by or sold to scrupulous people. If, however, wine or dough not for sale during the Festival came in contact with an 'am ha-arez, such may not be bought by or sold to the scrupulous after the Festival even according to R. Judah.

(24) To sell during the Festival.

(25) To the most scrupulous according to R. Judah, even though an 'am ha-arez had come into contact with these.

(26) The uncleanness of an 'am ha-arez was regarded as clean only with respect to things that were started to be sold, but if an 'am ha-arez touched a thing that had not been started to be sold, he contaminated them.

(27) Additional case of Rehaba.

(28) For Beth Shammai dispute the three cases he mentions.

(29) Lit., 'Beth Shammai('s view), in the place of Beth Hillel is not a Mishnah', since the halachah is determined according to Beth Hillel. Cf. Ber. 36b, Yeb. 9a.

(30) Which states the dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel with respect to taking down shutters.

(31) In which case replacing appears more in the nature of building.

(32) Both Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel.

(33) Because it is more difficult to put them back.

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MAY NOT CARRY OUT AN INFANT⁵ OR A LULAB⁶ OR A SCROLL OF THE LAW⁷ INTO PUBLIC GROUND,⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT [IT].

GEMARA. A Tanna taught before R. Isaac b. Abdimi: He who slaughters a freewill burnt-offering on a Festival is flagellated.⁹ Said he to him: He who taught you this held the opinion of Beth Shammai who maintain: We do not say, 'Since carrying out is permitted for what is [actually] necessary [for the preparation of food], it is also permitted for that which is not necessary'.¹⁰ For if [he held the opinion of] Beth Hillel, surely they maintain: 'Since carrying out is permitted where it is necessary, it is also permitted where it is not necessary', so also here, since slaughtering is permitted where it is necessary¹¹ it is also permitted where it is not necessary.¹² To this Rabbah demurred: Whence do you know that Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel differ on this [point]; perhaps they differ as to whether [the laws of] 'erub and carrying out apply to Sabbath, but [the laws of] 'erub and carrying out do not apply to a Festival?¹³ One Master is of the opinion, 'Erub and [the laws of] carrying out apply to both the Sabbath and the Festival,¹⁴ and the other Master maintains, 'Erub and [the laws of] carrying out apply to Sabbath but 'erub and [the laws of] carrying out do not apply to the Festival, as it is written, Neither carry forth a burden out of your houses on the Sabbath day,¹⁵ only on the Sabbath day but not on the Festival!¹⁶ To this R. Joseph demurred [in turn]: If so,¹⁷ let them¹⁸ dispute with respect to stones!¹⁹ Since, however, they do not dispute about stones, infer from it that they differ with respect to carrying out [things] that are not necessary [in the preparation of food].²⁰

R. Johanan is also of the opinion that they differ in whether [we say], 'Since carrying out is permitted for what is necessary [in the preparation of food] it is also permitted for what is not necessary [in the preparation of food]'; for a tanna recited before R. Johanan:²¹ He who boils the thigh sinew on a Festival²² in milk and eats it is flagellated on five counts, for [unnecessarily] cooking the sinew on a Festival,²³ for eating the sinew, for boiling meat in milk,²⁴ for eating meat with milk,²⁴ and

- (1) I.e., Beth Shammai.
- (2) If the former is permitted, one will think that the latter, too, is permitted.
- (3) I.e., Beth Hillel.
- (4) And therefore permit even to put them back again. The two Baraita therefore are not contradictory, for each refers to a different case.
- (5) On a Festival, even to circumcise it. The circumcision ceremony was usually performed in a synagogue, hence the need to carry the infant out.
- (6) Lit., 'palm-branch', which bound together with myrtles and willows was carried, together with a citron, during the Feast of Tabernacles. V. Lev. XXIII, 40. Beth Shammai prohibit the carrying out of the lulab even for the purpose of fulfilling this command.
- (7) For the purpose of reading it.
- (8) For only such work as is necessary in the preparation of food may be done on a Festival.
- (9) The only offering which an individual may bring on a Festival is one part of which he may eat. But a burnt-offering is entirely consumed by fire on the altar; hence he does unnecessary work on the Festival. Obligatory (i.e., public) burnt-offerings are however permitted, as are all public sacrifices, both on the Sabbath and on Festivals, but voluntary offerings can be offered after the Festival.
- (10) As follows from our Mishnah.
- (11) For his own food during the Festival.
- (12) As the freewill burnt-offering.
- (13) The carrying of articles from one domain to another is forbidden, yet by means of an 'erub it is permitted. 'Erub is a symbolical act by which is established the legal fiction of joining one private estate with another private estate, thus extending the area in which things could be carried.
- (14) Just as it is not permitted on a Sabbath to carry from one domain to another without an 'erub, so on a Festival.
- (15) Jer. XVII, 22.
- (16) Thus Beth Hillel too may hold that we do not say, 'Since a certain labour is permitted in the preparation of food, it is also permitted in other cases too', their reason in the Mishnah being that they do not regard carrying out as a labour at all vis a vis Festivals.
- (17) That Beth Hillel hold that the prohibition of carrying without an 'erub does not apply to Festivals.
- (18) Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel.
- (19) Which it is altogether unnecessary to carry out; whether these may be carried out on Festivals into a public domain, v. Tosaf. s.v. א ב and R. Hananel.
- (20) But for the carrying out of which there is nevertheless some reason as the examples quoted in the Mishnah, v. loc. cit.
- (21) Mak. 21b; Yes. 47b. In Mak. the reading is slightly different.
- (22) Forbidden in Gen. XXXII, 33.
- (23) Since the sinew may not be eaten, the work of cooking it is unnecessary and consequently punishable by flogging. The same applies to the work of kindling a fire.
- (24) The prohibition of boiling meat with milk or eating of the same as well as making any use thereof is derived from the three passages of Scripture (Ex. XXIII, 19; XXXIV, 26; Deut. XIV, 21) forbidding to seeth a kid in its mother's milk.

for kindling fire.¹ Said he [R. Johanan] to him: Go, teach [this] outside [the Academy]; [what you have said with respect to] kindling and cooking has no authority, and if you say that it has an authority, [that authority] must be Beth Shammai who maintain that we do not say, 'Since carrying out [on a Festival] is permitted for what is necessary² it is also permitted for what is not necessary', likewise [they maintain] here that we do not say, 'Since the kindling of fire is permitted [on a Festival] for what is necessary, it is also permitted for what is not necessary'. For according to Beth Hillel, since they maintain [that we do say] 'Since carrying out is permitted for what is necessary, it is also permitted for what is not necessary', so also they would maintain here [that we say], 'Since the kindling of fire is permitted for what is necessary. it is also permitted for what is not necessary'.³

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: YOU MAY NOT TAKE TO THE PRIEST HALLAH⁴ OR PRIESTLY DUES⁵ ON A FESTIVAL WHETHER THEY WERE SEPARATED ON THE DAY BEFORE OR ON THE SAME DAY. BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT IT. SAID BETH SHAMMAI TO THEM: AN ANALOGY [SUPPORTS OUR VIEW]: HALLAH AND PRIESTLY DUES ARE A GIFT TO THE PRIEST AND TERUMAH⁶ IS [LIKEWISE] A GIFT TO THE PRIEST; JUST AS ONE MAY NOT TAKE [TO THE PRIEST] TERUMAH⁷ SO ONE MAY NOT TAKE [TO HIM] PRIESTLY DUES. BETH HILLEL, REPLIED TO THEM: NO! IF YOU SAY⁸ IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH WHICH HE HAS NOT THE RIGHT TO SEPARATE,⁹ WILL YOU SAY [THE SAME] WITH RESPECT TO PRIESTLY DUES WHICH HE IS PERMITTED TO SEPARATE?¹⁰

GEMARA. Now it was assumed that [the Mishnah means where] they were [both] separated on that day and slaughtered on that day, and [where] they were [both] separated the day before and slaughtered the day before. Who is [the authority for] our Mishnah: It is neither R. Jose nor R. Judah but the 'Others'!¹¹ For it was taught: R. Judah said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel did not differ concerning the dues which were separated on the eve of the Festival, [both agreeing] that you may take them together with the dues which were separated and killed on the same day [viz., the Festival]!¹² They differ only whether one may take them¹³ by themselves, when Beth Shammai say: You may not take [them], and Beth Hillel maintain: You may take [them]. And this is how Beth Shammai argued: Hallah and Priestly Dues are a gift to the priest and terumah is a gift to the priest; just as you may not take terumah, so may you not take Priestly Dues. Beth Hillel replied to them: No! If you say [thus] of terumah which he has not the right to set apart [on a Festival], would you say [the same] of Priestly Dues which he has the right to set apart! R. Jose said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ about the Priestly Dues, [both agreeing] that you may take [them];¹⁴ they dispute only with respect to terumah when Beth Shammai say: You may not take [it],¹⁵ and Beth Hillel maintain: You may take [it]. And this is how Beth Hillel argued: Hallah and Priestly Dues are a gift to the priest and terumah is a gift to the priest; just as you may take the Priestly Dues [to the priest] so may you take terumah [to him]. Beth Shammai replied to them: No! If you say [thus] of Priestly Dues which he has the right to separate [on a Festival], would you say [the same] of terumah which he has not the right to separate! Others say: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ about terumah, [both agreeing] that you may not take [it]; they dispute only with respect to the Priestly Dues, when Beth Shammai say: You may not take [them] and Beth Hillel maintain: You may take [them]. Now shall it be said that it [the Mishnah] is [the ruling of] 'Others' and not [the ruling of] R. Judah?¹⁶ — Said Raba: Does it then say, 'Which were separated that day and killed that day'? It [only] says, 'WHICH WERE SEPARATED [etc.]' but in reality they were slaughtered the day before. [Accordingly] shall it be said that it [the Mishnah] is according to R. Judah and not according to the 'Others'?¹⁷ — You can even say, [It agrees with] the 'Others', for [they speak of Priestly Dues separated on a Festival] from those [animals] slaughtered the day before. If so they are identical with R. Judah! — They differ in respect of being brought together with other Priestly Dues.¹⁸

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: The halachah is as R. Jose.¹⁹ R. Tobi the son of R. Nehemiah had a jug of wine of terumah. He came to R. Joseph asking him: May I carry it now [on the Festival] to the priest? He answered him: Thus did Rab Judah say in the name of Samuel: The halachah is as R. Jose.

The host²⁰ of Rab, son of R. Hanan had bundles of mustard-stalks [and] he asked him: Is it permissible to crush it on the Festival and eat of it?²¹ He could not answer.²² He went to Raba who replied: You may rub ears of corn together²³ and crumble pods²⁴ on a Festival.²⁵ Abaye raised an objection: He who rubs ears of corn on the eve of the Sabbath may winnow them on the following day [Sabbath] from hand to hand and eat, but [he may] not [winnow them] with a reed-basket nor with a dish. He who rubs ears of corn on the eve of a Festival may winnow them on the following day [the Festival] little by little²⁶ and eat, even with a reed-basket and even with a dish, but not with a tray nor with a winnowing fan nor in a sieve.²⁷ [Now] only 'on the eve of the Festival' [is rubbing of corn stated to be permitted] but not on the Festival [itself]!²⁸ — You may even say [that it may be done] on the Festival [itself], but because he states in the first part [of the passage] ‘on the eve of the Sabbath’, he also states in the concluding part ‘on the eve of a Festival’. If so,²⁹ we find that one has the right to separate [on a Festival]³⁰ and we have learnt: NO! IF YOU SAY THAT WITH RESPECT TO TERUMAH WHICH HE HAS NO RIGHT TO SEPARATE etc.! — This is no difficulty:

- (1) V. Ex. XII, 16 and cf. n. 4.
 - (2) As in the preparation of food.
 - (3) This proves that R. Johanan is also of the opinion that the dispute between Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel is whether we say, ‘Since carrying out is permitted etc.
 - (4) Dough-offering. V. Num. XV, 17-21. Although hallah may be taken from the dough in order to enable the dough to be eaten, it may not be carried to the priest.
 - (5) For the different parts of a slaughtered animal which fall to the share of the priest, v. Deut. XVIII, 3.
 - (6) Heave-offering. V. Num. XVIII, 11ff and Glos.
 - (7) To the priest on a Festival, since it could have been taken to the priest before the Festival when it was separated.
 - (8) That one may not bring to the priest on a Festival.
 - (9) On a Festival; cf. infra 36b.
 - (10) Since slaughtering is permitted on a Festival. Surely not!
 - (11) ‘Others’ usually refers to R. Meir; Hor. 13b.
 - (12) He regards the latter as axiomatic, and permits the former because no extra work is involved.
 - (13) The Priestly Dues separated before the Festival.
 - (14) The same holds good with respect to hallah.
 - (15) To the priest on a Festival.
 - (16) The Mishnah can certainly not agree with R. Jose; but can it agree with R. Judah?
 - (17) For according to the present explanation, even Beth Shammai permit taking to the priest the Priestly Dues of animals slaughtered on the Festival. Put the ‘Others’ represent Beth Shammai as prohibiting the bringing of Priestly Dues from both an animal slaughtered before or on the day of the Festival.
 - (18) Which were separated on the Festival itself. In R. Judah's opinion Beth Shammai permit them to be taken in conjunction with similar gifts separated on the day of the Festival.
 - (19) Who hold that Beth Hillel permits even terumah to be taken to the priest on a Festival.
 - (20) I.e., Innkeeper.
 - (21) Is crushing prohibited since it is possible to do this before the Festival?
 - (22) Lit., ‘it was not in his hand’.
 - (23) To separate the grain from the chaff; v. infra 13b.
 - (24) To get the seeds out.
 - (25) Since rubbing ears of corn is different from the usual manner of threshing and does not involve culpability on a Sabbath it is altogether permitted in the case of a Festival.
 - (26) Lit., ‘upon the hand’, v. fast. s.v. ת'.
 - (27) Such vessels are used for large quantities and it would appear as if he was preparing for the following day.
 - (28) Which contradicts Rab b. R. Hanan.
 - (29) That one may rub ears of corn on a Festival.
 - (30) Corn is liable for tithing only after it has been threshed, winnowed and piled up in a heap, after which nothing may be eaten until terumah is taken. But before it is subject to tithe a light meal is permitted. By allowing a man on a Festival to rub ears of corn and eat the grain it follows that he must also be permitted to take terumah which he would not have done before, as terumah is generally not separated in the ears of corn until they have been turned into grain.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 13a

One¹ is [according to] Rabbi and the other² is [according to] R. Jose son of R. Judah.³ For it was taught: If he brought in ears of corn⁴ to make dough therefrom, he may eat a slender repast⁵ thereof and it is exempt [from terumah]; [if however he brought in the ears of corn] in order to rub the in together,⁶ Rabbi declares them liable [to terumah]⁷ and R. Jose son of R. Judah exempts them.⁸ But [even] according to R. Jose son of R. Judah, it⁹ may also occur when, for example, one has brought in ears of corn to make dough therefrom¹⁰ and on the Festival changed his mind [deciding] to rub them,¹¹ so that they become tebel¹² on the day [of the Festival]!¹³ — Rather what does terumah [mentioned in the Mishnah] mean? Terumah [as separated] in most cases.¹⁴

Abaye said: The dispute¹⁵ is only with respect to ears of corn,¹⁶ but in the case of grain of pulse all agree that when in bundles they are tebel.¹⁷ Shall it be said that the following supports him? [For we have learnt]: He who had bundles of fenugreek of tebel, must beat out [the seeds] and estimate how much seed there is in them and separate [terumah] on the seed, but he does not separate [terumah] on the stalks.¹⁸ Is not the author of this R. Jose son of R. Judah who says there¹⁹ that it is not tebel, yet here²⁰ it is tebel?²¹ — No, it is in accordance with the opinion of Rabbi.²² If it is in accordance with Rabbi, [then] why state fenugreek; even ears of corn too [are liable to be tithed]? — What then: [it is according to] R. Jose son of R. Judah? Let [the text] inform us of other kinds of pulse²³ and [I would infer] how much more [is it true of] fenugreek? But he [the Tanna] needs [to teach it about] fenugreek; for I might have thought that since the stalks have the same taste as the fruit, he should also give tithe on the stalks,²⁴ so he informs us [that it is not so].

Others state: Abaye said: The dispute is only with respect to ears of corn,²⁵ but as for grain of pulse all agree that when in bundles they are not tebel.²⁶ An objection is raised: He who had bundles of fenugreek of tebel, he must beat out [the seeds] and estimate how much seed there is in them and separate [terumah] on the seed but not on the stalks. Does not tebel connote that it is tebel in respect of terumah?²⁷ — No, [it means] tebel in respect of the terumah of the tithe,²⁸ and it is in accordance with R. Abbahu's dictum in the name of R. Simeon b. Lakish. For R. Abbahu said in the name of R. Simeon b. Lakish: The first tithe [levitical] which one anticipated while the corn was yet in the ears,²⁹ its designation renders it tebel in respect of the terumah of the tithe.³⁰ Why must he [the Levite] beat out [the seeds]? Let him say [to the priest]: Just as they have given them to me so will I give them to you!³¹ — Said Raba: This is a penalty.³² Likewise has it been taught: A Levite to whom his tithes were given while the corn was still in the ear, must³³ make it [fit for] a barn;³⁴ [if it is] grapes, he must make them into wine; if olives, he must turn them into oil; [only] then does he separate the terumah of [the] tithe and give same to the priest. For just as the great terumah is taken

(1) The Baraitha allowing the corn to be rubbed and eaten on the Festival.

(2) Our Mishnah.

(3) Both agree that rubbing ears of corn on a Festival is allowed. They only dispute whether terumah must then be separated. Rabbi maintains that it is required; consequently terumah may in such a case be separated on a Festival. R. Jose, however, holds that it is unnecessary; hence terumah may never be separated on a Festival. (Rashi). Tosaf: This, i.e., the Mishnah, is according to Rabbi, for since Rabbi holds that the bringing in of the ears for eating raw constitutes the final stage for tithing, terumah could and should have been separated before the Festival; and it is a general rule that whatever could be done before the Festival may not be done on the Festival. But the Baraitha is according to R. Jose b. R. Judah: for since he holds that the bringing in of the ears for eating raw does not constitute the final stage for tithing, there was no obligation to tithe them before the Festival; hence if he decides on the Festival to make a full meal of them, he must first separate terumah; since there was no obligation before, it is regarded as something which could not be done earlier, and therefore it is permitted on a Festival.

(4) Not yet ready for tithing.

(5) V. p. 62, n. 13.

(6) And to eat the grain raw little by little.

(7) According to Rabbi, the bringing in of corn into the house for the purpose of eating raw grain corresponds to the finishing touch of the corn brought into the barn and makes it liable for tithing even for a light meal.

(8) He draws a distinction between the two purposes. For the Biblical expression גָּזַל (Num. XVIII, 27) signifies corn which has been threshed and levelled out in a heap, and as this corn was brought in the ears, it has not had the finishing touch making it ready for tithing.

- (9) The taking of terumah on a Festival.
- (10) After the usual threshing and winnowing.
- (11) And eat them raw. On the interpretation of Tosaf. (v. supra p. 63 n. 3) the question should read, 'But even according to Rabbi . . . therefrom' (when no obligation rested upon him to tithe before the Festival), 'and on the Festivals . . . to rub them', when he may not eat of these except after tithing, so that we find terumah being authorized to be set apart on a Festival.
- (12) Grain from which the priestly and Levitical dues have not been taken. V. Glos.
- (13) The fact that he brought in the ears of corn to make dough therefrom after the normal threshing and winnowing made them liable for terumah, and by changing his mind to rub the ears together to eat them raw not only cannot remove the liability for tithing, but, on the contrary, takes the place of the finishing touch in the barn so that not even a light meal may be had without first taking terumah.
- (14) Viz., when the corn is levelled out in heaps in a barn, as above. But the case which is now discussed is exceptional and therefore generally disregarded. The Mishnah can therefore agree both with Rabbi and R. Jose.
- (15) Between Rabbi and R. Jose b. Judah.
- (16) It is then that R. Jose exempts from tithing.
- (17) V. Glos. Because pulse is frequently tied up in bundles to be threshed in small quantities as required, and consequently the bringing in of a bundle of pulse in the house corresponds to the finishing touch of grain in a barn. (Rashi).
- (18) Ter. X, 6.
- (19) In the case of ears of corn.
- (20) In the case of pulse.
- (21) The statement 'bundles of fenugreek of tebel' presupposes a liability for tithing, because the tying up into bundles is the finishing preparation for tithing.
- (22) Who maintains that even ears of corn are also liable for tithing when brought into the house for use.
- (23) Which are not tied up into bundles, like peas or beans.
- (24) For the stalks together with its fruit are used for seasoning. The Baraitha can therefore on this argument be in accordance with Rabbi, so that it affords no support to Abaye.
- (25) It is then that Rabbi says that they are liable to be tithed, because many take bundles of corn into the house to eat them raw or roasted without having been stored and prepared for tithing in a barn.
- (26) Because pulse becomes liable for tithing only after it has been made into a stack.
- (27) Consequently we see that although yet in bundles they are already liable for tithing.
- (28) The proper order of tithing, after the corn has first been levelled out in the barn, is this: First terumah is separated for the priest (called the great terumah) and one-tenth of the remainder (called tithe) for the Levite, who in turn, separates one-tenth of his tithe for the priest which is designated terumah of the tithe. The great terumah, or simply terumah as it is generally referred to, varies from one-fortieth to one-sixtieth. It is also called the 'great terumah' because this portion is greater than that received from the Levite.
- (29) I.e., the Israelite separated it before separating the great terumah.
- (30) Although had he not separated tithe it would not be regarded as tebel, and a light meal would be permissible. Similarly in the Baraitha, although pulse does not become liable to terumah before it has been made into a stack, once the Levite anticipated and received his share when in bundles, it becomes liable also to terumah of the tithe.
- (31) If it referred to the terumah of an Israelite he would have to beat out the grain because the expression תביל (Num. XVIII, 27) signifies that the priest is to be given tithe only when the corn is threshed; V. Rashi.
- (32) For taking the tithe before the great terumah was rendered, against the prescribed order.
- (33) Before giving his terumah to the priest.
- (34) When it would have received the last preparation for tithing.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 13b

only from the threshing-floor and from the wine-press,¹ so also is the terumah of the tithe to be taken only from the threshing-floor and from the wine-press.

[It is stated above]: 'He estimates!' Surely it requires [exact] measuring!² — The author of this is Abba Eleazar b. Gimal. For it was taught: Abba Eleazar b. Gimal says: 'And your heave-offering shall be reckoned unto you'.³ Scripture speaks of two heave-offerings,⁴ one [being] the great terumah and the other the terumah from the [Levite's] tithe; just as the great terumah may be separated by estimation⁵ and by mental determination⁶ so may the terumah from the [Levite's] tithe be separated by estimation and by mental determination.

The text [above stated]: R. Abbahu said in the name of R. Simeon b. Lakish: The first tithe which one anticipated while the corn was yet in the ears, its designation renders it tebel in respect of the terumah from the [Levite's] tithe. What is the reason? Said Raba: Because it already bears the name tithe.

R. Simeon b. Lakish said: The First Tithe which was anticipated while the corn was yet in the ears is exempt from the great terumah, for Scripture Says: Then ye shall offer up an heave-offering of it for the Lord, a tithe of the tithe;⁷ a tithe of the tithe have I commanded you, but not 'the great terumah and a tithe of the tithe'. Said R. Papa to Abaye: If so, even if he anticipated it⁸ at the barn too? — He replied to him: It is for your sake that Scripture states: Out of all your gifts ye shall offer every heave-offering of the Lord.⁹ What [reason] do you see?¹⁰ — In the one case,¹¹ it is already corn;¹² in the other, it is not already corn.

We have learnt elsewhere:¹³ He who hulls barley,¹⁴ may hull it grain by grain and eat it,¹⁵ but if he hulls [it] and lays [the grains] in his hand, he is liable [to give tithe].¹⁶ Said R. Eleazar: And it is likewise with respect to the Sabbath.¹⁷ But this is not so! For Rab's wife hulled for him cupfuls, and likewise R. Hiyya's wife hulled cupfuls for him! Rather if this [statement of R. Eleazar] has been said, It was said with respect to the second clause: He who rubs ears of wheat may winnow them from one hand to the other and eat them [without tithing]; but if he winnows them and lays them on his lap he is liable. Said R. Eleazar: And it is likewise with respect to the Sabbath. R. Abba b. Mamel demurred to this: And [in] the first clause, [is he liable] in respect to tithe but not in respect to Sabbath? Is there then any action which with respect to the Sabbath does not rank as the final act,¹⁸ whereas with respect to tithe it is regarded as the final act?¹⁹ To this R. Shesheth the son of R. Idi demurred: Is there not? Surely there is [the case of what constitutes] their threshing-floor in respect of tithing;²⁰ for we have learnt,²¹ When is their harvesting time for tithing?²² In the case of cucumbers and gourds after their coils of blossom have dropped,²³ and if they have not dropped, then as soon as they have been made a heap. And we learnt likewise of onions:²⁴ [They are liable for tithing] as soon as he [their owner] sets up a heap. Yet with respect to the Sabbath the setting up of a heap does not involve culpability? Therefore you must needs say that [with respect to the Sabbath] the Torah forbade work of craftsmanship;²⁵ so also here²⁶ [say] the Torah forbade work of craftsmanship.

How should one rub them?²⁷ — Abaye in the name of R. Joseph says: One [finger] against one [finger].²⁸ But R. 'Awia in the name of R. Joseph says: One [finger] against two [fingers].²⁹ Raba [however] says: So long as he does it in an unusual way it is permitted even between the thumb and all the fingers.

How should one winnow [them on a Sabbath]? — Said R. Adda b. Ahabah in the name of Rab: He should winnow

(1) V. Num. XVIII, 27.

(2) If the text referred to the great terumah, the expression 'estimate' would be correct, since according to Scripture no definite percentage is required, for even a single grain can exempt the whole of the crop, while the giving of one-fortieth — one-sixtieth is only a Rabbinical enactment. But now that we explain that it means the terumah from the Levite's tithe, it definitely says (Num. XVIII, 27) that this must be one-tenth.

- (27) On a Festival to distinguish from the rubbing on any other day, which was to rub with the finger of one hand on the palm of the other.
- (28) I.e., between the thumb and the first finger.
- (29) I.e., between the thumb and the two fingers.

from the joints of the fingers upwards.¹ They laughed at it in the West:² so long as he does it in an unusual manner [it is permitted to be done] even with the whole palm! But said R. Eleazar: He should winnow vigorously with one hand.³ MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: SPICES MAY BE POUNDED WITH A WOODEN PESTLE⁴ AND SALT IN A SMALL CRUSE OR WITH A WOODEN LADLE;⁵ BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN: SPICES MAY BE POUNDED AFTER THEIR USUAL FASHION WITH A STONE PESTLE AND SALT WITH A WOODEN PESTLE.⁶

GEMARA. All agree at any rate that [the pounding of] salt must be done in an unusual manner; what is the reason? — R. Huna and R. Hisda [differ]. One says: [Because] all dishes require salt,⁷ but not all dishes require spices; and the other says: [Because] all spices lose their flavour,⁸ but salt does not lose its flavour. Wherein do they differ? — The difference between them is when he knew [on the eve of the Festival] what dish he will cook [on the morrow],⁹ or in the case of saffron.¹⁰

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: Everything which is pounded may be pounded in the usual way, even salt.¹¹ But Surely you have said that salt must be [pounded] in an unusual way! He rules as the following Tanna, for it was taught: R. Meir says: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ over [commodities] which are pounded, [agreeing] that they may be pounded in the usual way, and salt with them;¹² they differ only with respect to pounding it [salt] alone, when Beth Shammai say: Salt [may be pounded] in a small cruse and with a wooden ladle only for roasting¹³ but not for boiling, and Beth Hillel maintain: [It may be pounded] with everything. ‘With everything’! — Can you think so?¹⁴ — Say rather, for everything.¹⁵

R. Aha Bardela said to his son: ‘When you pound [salt], incline [the mortar] sideways and pound. R. Shesheth heard¹⁶ the sound of a mortar and pestle; [then] said he: This is not [coming] from my house. Perhaps it was done sideways?¹⁷ — He heard a shrill noise.¹⁸ Perhaps it was spices?¹⁹ — Spices produce a dull sound.

Our Rabbis taught: One may not prepare pearl-barley²⁰ nor pound anything in a mortar. [You state] two [contradictory rulings]?²¹ — This is what it means to say: ‘What is the reason that you may not prepare pearl-barley? Because you may not pound [anything] in a mortar. Then it should have [only] stated: ‘One may not pound [anything] in a mortar’! — If it stated [only], ‘One may not pound anything in a mortar’, I would say, that is only in a big mortar; but in the case of a small mortar [I would say], It is well; so it informs us [that this is not so]. But it was taught: One may not pound in a big mortar but one may pound in a small mortar! — Said Abaye: ‘When the teaching²² was taught, it too was taught of a large mortar.’²³

(1) But not in his palm.

(2) I.e., the scholars of Palestine. V. Sanh. 17b, Sonc. ed. p. 89.

(3) Not just throw it up a little.

(4) Although the pounding of spices is permitted on a Festival it should be done in a somewhat different way from ordinary days.

(5) The pounding of salt must be done in all entirely unusual way, both with regard to the vessel in which, and also with regard to the vessel with which, it is pounded.

(6) According to Beth Hillel it is sufficient if the vessel with which it is pounded is different.

(7) He should therefore have prepared the salt before the Festival.

(8) Therefore it must be prepared on the day it is required.

(9) According to the first reason, even the pounding of spices must be done in an unusual manner since it could have been prepared on the day it is required.

(10) According to not lose its flavour, so that according to the second reason it is the same as salt.

(11) Or, Even salt! But etc.

(12) I.e., pounding them both on the same occasion, by preparing the salt in immediately after the spices Rashi as explained by Rashal).

(13) When a small quantity only is required.

(14) Even with a utensil which may not be handled at all on the Sabbath?

(15) I.e., for every purpose, whether for roasting or boiling — and that in the usual way Rab Judah thus has a Tanna in support for his ruling.

(16) On a Festival.

(17) In which case it is permissible.

(18) Whereas if the mortar were inclined there would be a heavy, dull noise.

(19) Which may be pounded in the usual way.

(20) On a Festival, because it requires toilsome pounding.

(21) The first ruling forbids toilsome pounding only, whereas the second forbids all pounding.

(22) Introduced by, Our Rabbis taught’.

(23) The two statements are not contradictory. The first statement forbidding the pounding of pearl-barley refers even to a small mortar, and the second statement refers to a big mortar. Only pearl-barley is forbidden to be pounded in a small mortar but other things may be.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 14b

Raba says: There is no difficulty: this [Baraita¹ refers] to us,² and the other [Baraita³ refers] to them.⁴

R. Papa visited Mar Samuel.⁵ They set before him pearl-barley broth and he did not eat of it. Perhaps they prepared it in a small mortar?⁶ — He noticed that it was very fine.⁷ Perhaps they prepared it the day before [the Festival]? — He saw that it [the pearl-barley] was still bearing the polish from the husking.⁸ Or you can say: It is different in the case of the house of Mar Samuel, on account of the laxity of the servants.⁹

MISHNAH. IF ONE SELECTS PULSE ON A FESTIVAL, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MUST SELECT THE EDIBLE PARTS AND EAT [THEM FORTHWITH]; BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: HE MAY PICK OUT AS USUAL¹⁰ [FROM A SMALL QUANTITY] IN HIS LAP OR IN A BASKET OR IN A DISH; BUT NOT ON TO A BOARD OR IN A SIFTER OR IN A SIEVE.¹¹ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS: HE MAY EVEN RINSE THEM [IN WATER] AND SKIM OFF [THE REFUSE].

GEMARA. It was taught: Rabban Gamaliel said: This was [only] stated when the edible part is more than the refuse;¹² but if the refuse is more than the edible part, all agree that he must pick out the edible part and leave the refuse. If the refuse is more than the edible part, is there anyone who permits it [to be picked]?¹³ — This refers to a case where the work [of picking out the refuse] is great though the quantity [of the refuse] is small.¹⁴

RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS: HE MAY EVEN RINSE THEM AND SKIM OFF [THE REFUSE]: It was taught: R. Eleazar son of R. Zadok said: This was the practice in the house of Rabban Gamaliel; they brought a bucket-full of lentils and poured water over them with the result that that which was edible remained below and the refuse [floated] on top. But has not the opposite been taught?¹⁵ — There is no contradiction: The one applies to sand, the other applies to chaff.¹⁶

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MAY SEND [GIFTS TO A NEIGHBOUR] ON A FESTIVAL ONLY PORTIONS [READY FOR EATING],¹⁷ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE MAY SEND CATTLE, GAME AND POULTRY WHETHER ALIVE OR SLAUGHTERED. ONE MAY [ALSO] SEND WINE, OIL, FLOUR OR PULSE BUT NOT GRAIN.¹⁸ BUT R. SIMEON PERMITS [ALSO] GRAIN.¹⁹

GEMARA. R. Jehiel taught: Provided that he does not send it [the present] by a company [of men].²⁰ A Tanna taught: A company consists of not less than three persons. R. Ashi put the question: What [is the law] with respect to three persons with three varieties [of gifts]?²¹ This question is undecided.

R. SIMEON PERMITS [ALSO] GRAIN. It was taught: R. Simeon allows grain: e.g., wheat, to prepare thereof food for gladiators;²² barley, to give to his cattle; [and] lentils to prepare thereof groats.²³

MISHNAH. ONE MAY SEND CLOTHES, WHETHER SEWN UP OR NOT YET SEWN UP EVEN THOUGH THERE IS KIL'AYIM²⁴ IN THEM, PROVIDED THEY ARE NECESSARY²⁵ FOR THE FESTIVAL; BUT [ONE MAY] NOT [SEND] HOB-NAILED SANDALS²⁶ NOR UNSTITCHED SHOES. R. JUDAH SAYS: NOT EVEN WHITE SHOES BECAUSE THEY [STILL] REQUIRE AN ARTISAN [TO BLACKEN THEM]. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHATEVER MAY BE USED ON A FESTIVAL MAY [ALSO] BE SENT [ON A FESTIVAL].

GEMARA. As for sewn [articles] it is well: they are fit for garments; [likewise] unsewn [articles] too, [as] they are fit for a covering. But for what are kil'ayim fit? And if you say they can be used to fold under him,²⁷ surely it was taught: Neither shall there come upon thee [a garment of two kinds of stuff mingled together],²⁸ but you may spread it beneath you. But the Sages said: It is forbidden to do so lest a thread might cling to his body! And if you say [that it is permissible] if there is anything interposing between them,²⁹ surely R. Simeon b. Pazzi said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi, who said in the name of R. Jose b. Saul, who said in the name of Rabbi in the name of the Holy Community at Jerusalem:³⁰ Even if ten mattresses lie one on top of the other and [some material of] kil'ayim is beneath them, it is forbidden to sleep thereon! And if [you say] it refers to a curtain, surely 'Ulla said: Why did [the Sages] say a curtain is unclean³¹ because the attendant warms himself beside it!³²

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 15a

— Rather, [this refers] to hard material;¹ just as R. Huna the son of R. Joshua said: The coarse felt-mattresses [coming] from Naresh² are permitted [to sit on].³ R. Papa said: Slippers⁴ are not [forbidden] on account of kil'ayim. Raba said: These money-bags do not come under [the law of] kil'ayim,⁵ but seed-bags do come under [the law of] kil'ayim.⁶ R. Ashi said: Neither money-purses nor seed-bags are subject to [the law of] kil'ayim, because it is not the usual practice to warm oneself with these.

BUT NOT HOB-NAILED SANDALS: What is the reason that hob-nailed sandals may not [be sent]? Because of the incident that occurred.⁷ Abaye said: Hob-nailed sandals may not be worn [during a Festival] but they may be handled. 'They may not be worn on account of the incident that happened; 'but they may be handled', since it teaches ONE MAY NOT SEND; for if you maintain that it is forbidden to handle, now if it is forbidden to handle, need sending [be taught]?⁸

NOR UNSTITCHED SHOES. This is obvious! — It is necessary even when it is fastened with wooden pins.⁹

R. JUDAH SAYS: NOT EVEN WHITE SHOES. It was taught: R. Judah permits black [sandals] and forbids white because they [still] require a clod containing silicate of iron.¹⁰ R. Jose forbids black [sandals] because they [still] require to be smoothed. And they do not differ, the one Master [ruling] according to his district and the other Master according to his district. In the district of the one Master [the sandal was finished] with the flesh [side of the leather] inside, [and] in the district of the other Master [they finished the sandals] with the flesh [side] outwards.¹¹

THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHATEVER MAY BE USED ON A FESTIVAL R. Shesheth permitted scholars to send tefillin¹² on a Festival. Abaye said to him: But we have learnt: WHATEVER MAY BE USED ON A FESTIVAL MAY HE SENT.¹³ — This is what he means to say: 'Whatever one uses on a weekday¹⁴ may be sent on a Festival.

Abaye said: Since we are now dealing with tefillin, we would say something thereon. If one was on his way [home],¹⁵ wearing tefillin on his head,¹⁶ and the sun was setting upon him, he should place his hand upon them¹⁷ until he reaches his house. If he was sitting in the Academy¹⁸ with tefillin on his head and the holiness of the day [the Sabbath] came in, [then] he must place his hand upon them, until he reaches his house.¹⁹ R. Huna the son of R. Ika raised an objection: If one was on his way [home] with tefillin on his head and the holiness of the day [the Sabbath] came in, [then] he must place his hand upon them until he reaches a house situated near the wall [of the city].²⁰ If he was sitting in the Academy [with tefillin on his head] and the holiness of the day came in, he must place his hand upon them until he reaches the house nearest to the Academy.²¹ There is no contradiction. The one treats of a case when it [the house] is guarded,²² the other when it is not guarded. If it is not guarded, [then] why particularly 'on his head'; even if they [the tefillin] were [found] lying on the ground he should also [be allowed to carry them to this house]: For we have learnt: He who finds tefillin [on a Sabbath] may bring them in in pairs!²³ — This is no difficulty: The one²⁴ treats of a case when it is guarded against thieves and against dogs, the other²⁵ when it is guarded against dogs but it is not guarded against thieves.²⁶ You might think that the majority of robbers [in that district] are Israelites²⁷ who would not handle them disrespectfully; hence he informs us [that it is not so]. [

(1) Which does not warm and upon which it is permitted to sit.

(4) Home-shoes or a kind of socks.

(5) Because the purses become hard through the coins they contain and therefore do not warm.

(6) And therefore may not be placed on one's lap.

(7) The event is recorded in Shab. 60a. This particular sandal could be worn with the heel in front, giving the appearance that the one who had entered had gone out. When men hiding in a cave from the Romans saw what appeared as Signs of someone having left they became panic-stricken lest the Romans should by this means find them in their hiding-place, and in their attempt to escape more were killed through the panic than might have been killed by the Romans.

(14) I.e. a thing that is properly finished, which includes tefillin.

(15) On the eve of the Sabbath.

(16) In Talmudic times tefillin were worn all day and in the street not merely at the morning service as now.

(17) The Sages allowed him to carry the tefillin into the city after the manner of a garment and not to leave them unguarded, out of respect for the tefillin.

(18) Which was in the field, and therefore an unguarded place.

(19) The tefillin could not be left in the Academy for fear of being lost.

(20) And leave the tefillin there, but he may not carry them into the city.

(21) But he may not carry them to his own house.

(22) And therefore the tefillin must be left in the house nearest the city wall or the Academy.

(27) Cf. A.Z. 70b; Tosaf. B.B. 55b, s.v. רבי אליעזר. This refers to large Jewish settlements. The Rabbis were broad-minded enough to realize that in a town containing an overwhelming Jewish population the majority of thieves would be Jewish.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 15b

CHAPTER II

MISHNAH. [IF] A FESTIVAL FELL ON THE EVE OF SABBATH, ONE MAY NOT AT THE OUTSET COOK ON THE FESTIVAL FOR THE SABBATH, BUT HE MAY COOK FOR THE FESTIVAL, AND IF ANY IS LEFT OVER IT REMAINS FOR THE SABBATH; AND HE MAY PREPARE A DISH ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL¹ AND RELY UPON IT [TO PREPARE FOOD] FOR THE SABBATH.² BETH SHAMMAI SAY: TWO DISHES [ARE REQUIRED FOR THIS PURPOSE], WHILE BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE DISH. YET THEY [BOTH] AGREE THAT A FISH AND AN EGG UPON IT ARE [CONSIDERED AS] TWO DISHES. [IF] HE ATE IT³ OR IT WAS LOST, HE MAY NOT IN THE FIRST PLACE COOK [IN RELIANCE] ON IT, BUT IF HE LEFT OVER ANY [SMALL] PORTION OF IT, HE MAY RELY ON IT [TO COOK] FOR THE SABBATH.

GEMARA. Whence do we know this?⁴ — Said Samuel: Because the Scripture Says: Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy,⁵ remember it in view of another⁶ Festival which comes to make it forgotten.⁷ What is the reason [for the institution of the 'erub]?⁸ — Said Raba: In order that he may choose a fine portion for the Sabbath and a fine portion for the Festival.⁹ R. Ashi said: In order that people might say, 'You may not bake on a Festival for the Sabbath, how much the more [is it forbidden] on a Festival for a weekday'.¹⁰

We have learnt: HE MAY PREPARE A DISH ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL AND RELY

UPON IT [TO PREPARE FOOD] FOR THE SABBATH. It is well according to R. Ashi who says, 'In order that people might say you may not bake on a Festival for the Sabbath [etc.]': hence it is only ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL but not on the Festival. But according to Raba, why particularly on the eve of the Festival; even on the Festival [itself] too [let it be permitted]?¹¹ — It is even so, but it is a preventive decree lest he be negligent.¹² Now a Tanna deduces it from the following: Bake that which ye will bake, and seethe that which ye will seethe;¹³ from this R. Eliezer concluded [that] you may bake only [in dependence] upon what is [already] baked and you may cook only [in dependence] upon what is [already] cooked.¹⁴ Herein the Sages found a Biblical support for 'erub tabshilin.¹⁵

Our Rabbis taught: It happened that R. Eliezer was once sitting and lecturing the whole day [of the Festival] on Festival laws. [When] the first group left [the lecture hall] he said: These are people of butts;¹⁶ [when] the second group [left] he said: These are people of casks; [when] the third group [left] he said: These are people of pitchers;¹⁷ [when] the fourth group [left] he said: These are people of flasks; [when] the fifth group [left] he said: These are people of beakers.¹⁸ [When] the sixth group began to go out he said: These are the people of the curse.¹⁹ He cast his eyes at his disciples²⁰ and their faces began to change,²¹ [whereupon] he said to them: My sons, not of you said I this, but of those who have gone out, who put aside life eternal and occupy themselves with the life temporal [or ephemeral]. When they were taking their leave²² he said to them: Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, and send portions unto him for whom nothing is prepared: for this day is holy unto our Lord: neither be ye grieved; for the joy of the Lord is your [strength] stronghold.²³ The Master said: 'Who put aside life eternal and occupy themselves with the life temporal'. But the enjoyment of the Festival is a religious duty! — R. Eliezer is consistent with his [own] view, for he said: Rejoicing on the Festival is optional. For it was taught: R. Eliezer says: On a Festival a man has nought [to do] save either eat and drink or sit and learn. R. Joshua says: Divide it, half of it for the Lord, [and] half of it for yourselves. R. Johanan said: Both drew their inference from the same Scripture verse[s]. One verse states: A solemn assembly to the Lord thy God,²⁴ and another verse reads: Ye shall have a solemn assembly.²⁵ How is this [to be reconciled]? R. Eliezer is of the opinion: Either the whole of it is for the Lord or the whole of it is for yourselves; while R. Joshua is of the opinion: Divide it; half of it is for the Lord and half of it is for yourselves. What means 'for whom nothing is prepared'? — R. Hisda said: For him who did not set [i.e., prepare] an 'erub tabshilin. Others say: He who had not the opportunity to set an 'erub tabshilin; but he who had the opportunity to set an 'erub tabshilin and did not set is a transgressor. What means 'for the joy of the Lord is your strength'? — R. Johanan said in the name of R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon: The Holy One, blessed be He, said unto Israel: My children, borrow on My account and celebrate the holiness of the day, and trust in Me and I will pay. R. Johanan [further] said in the name of R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon: He who desires his property to be preserved for him, should plant therein an adar,²⁶ for it says: The Lord on high is mighty;²⁷ alternatively, adara,²⁸ [implies] what its name [indicates]; for people say: Why [is it called] adara? Because it lasts from generation to generation.²⁹ It was similarly taught: A field in which there is an adar can neither be robbed nor forcibly purchased and its fruits are protected.³⁰

R. Tahlifa, the brother of Rabinai of [Be] Hozae³¹ learnt:

(1) V. supra p. 23, n. 1.

(2) The dish prepared on the eve of the Festival is regarded as the basis upon which the right to cook on the Festival for the Sabbath depends.

(3) The dish intended for the 'erub.

(4) That he may cook for the Sabbath in virtue of a special dish ('erub).

(5) Ex. XX, 8.

(6) Lit., 'from another'.

(7) The interest in the Festival preceding the Sabbath might cause one to forget about the Sabbath. The 'erub counteracts this possibility. [Aliter: 'Remember it since one might forget it' (v. Rashi) — a rendering supported by MS.M. which reads מֵאֲחֶרֶץ for לְאֶחָדָם cf. cur. edd.]

- (8) Actually it is not based upon any Biblical verse, but is only a Rabbinical enactment, the verse being a mere support.
- (9) He will not consume all the good things on the Festival, but will leave some for the Sabbath.
- (10) The 'erub is instituted not in honour of Sabbath but in honour of the Festival.
- (11) For on the Festival itself he can still choose a fine portion for the Sabbath.
- (12) And omit to prepare it altogether.
- (13) Ex. XVI, 23.
- (14) On the Friday which is a Festival, you may bake and cook only in virtue of the baking and cooking of the previous day.
- (15) This phrase indicates that the present deduction too is merely in support, not the actual source of the law, which is Rabbinical only.
- (16) I.e., very rich, counting their wine by butts. They have left thus early because of the large quantities of food and drink waiting for them. These are gluttons.
- (17) I.e., less rich than the second but wealthier than the next group.
- (18) Less keen on their pleasures.
- (19) The emptiness of the Lecture Hall roused his ire.
- (20) Who had remained behind.
- (21) I.e., to turn pale, because they thought he was angry with them for not leaving earlier — apparently they thought that he considered himself bound to go on as long as he had hearers.
- (22) At the close of the lecture.
- (23) Neh. VIII, 10.
- (24) Deut. XVI, 8.
- (25) Num. XXIX, 35. The first verse implies that it may be devoted to God's service, whereas the second intimates that it is meant for man.
- (26) A kind of cedar, high and majestic. Such a tree is known, and in case of his having to go abroad, he will be remembered as possessor, for his name will be coupled with the אֲדָר tree.
- (27) Ps. XCIII, 4. The word אֲדָר is linked with the אֲדָר tree. The planting of the אֲדָר tree will strengthen his claim to the property.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 16a

The entire sustenance of man [for the year] is fixed for him from New Year's [Festival] to the Day of Atonement,¹ except the expenditure for Sabbaths and the expenditure for Festivals and the expenditure for the instruction of his children in the Law; if he [spent] less [for any of these] he is given less and if he [spent] more he is given more. Said R. Abbahu:² What verse of Scripture [supports this]? 'Blow the horn at the new moon at the full moon for our feast-day'.³ Which is the Festival on which the moon is concealed? Say, it is New Year;⁴ and it is written [with respect to this Festival]: 'For it is a statute [hok] for Israel, an ordinance of the God of Jacob'.⁵ How is it implied that [the word] hok connotes sustenance? For it is written: 'And did eat their portion [hukkam] which Pharaoh gave them'.⁶ Mar Zutra says, [It is inferred] from here: 'Feed me with mine allotted [hukki]⁷ bread'. It was taught: They related concerning Shammai, the Elder [that] all his life he ate in honour of the Sabbath. [Thus] if he found a well-favoured animal he said, Let this be for the Sabbath. [If afterwards] he found one better favoured he put aside the second [for the Sabbath] and ate the first.⁸ But Hillel the Elder had a different trait, for all his works were for the sake of heaven,⁹ for it is said: Blessed be the Lord, day by day.¹⁰ It was likewise taught: Beth Shammai say: From the first day of the week [prepare] for the Sabbath;¹¹ but Beth Hillel say: Blessed be the Lord, day by day.¹⁰

R. Hama b. Hanina said: He who makes a gift to his neighbour need not inform him, for it says, 'And Moses knew not that the skin of his face sent forth beams'.¹² An objection was raised: 'That ye may know I am the Lord who sanctify you',¹³ The Holy One, blessed be He, said unto Moses: Moses, I have a precious gift in my treasury and its name is Sabbath and I wish to give it to Israel; go and tell them. Hence R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said: He who gives a child [a piece of] bread must inform its mother! — There is no difficulty. The one treats of a gift which will naturally become known, and the other treats of a gift which does not naturally become known. But the Sabbath too is a gift which would have naturally become known! — Its reward¹⁴ would not naturally be known.¹⁵ The Master said: 'Hence R. Simeon b. Gamaliel said: He who gives a child [a piece of] bread must inform its mother'. What should he do to it [the child]?¹⁶ — He smears it with oil or puts rouge on it. But now that we are afraid of witchcraft, what [is to be done]?¹⁷ — R. Papa said: He must smear it [the child] with some of that very substance [he put on the bread].¹⁸ R. Johanan said in the name of R. Simeon b. Yohai: Every commandment which the Holy One, blessed be He, gave unto Israel, He gave to them publicly, except the Sabbath which He bestowed upon them in secret, for it is said: 'It is a sign between Me and the children, of Israel for ever'.¹⁹ If so, idolators should not be punished on its account!²⁰ — The Sabbath He indeed made known to them [the idolator] but its reward He did not make known to them. Or you can say: Its reward too He made known to them [but] the enlarged soul,²¹ He did not make known to them; for R. Simeon b. Lakish said: On the eve of the Sabbath the Holy One, blessed be He, gives to man an enlarged soul and at the close of the Sabbath He withdraws it from him, for it says: He ceased from work and rested:²² once it [the Sabbath] has ceased²³ woe that the [additional] soul is lost!²⁴

A MAN MAY PREPARE A DISH ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL. Abaye said: They taught this only of a dish²⁵ but not of bread.²⁶ Why is bread different that it is not [fit for an 'erub]? If I were to say something used as a relish is required then what of pearl-barley which is also not a relish — for R. Zera said: These Babylonians are fools for they eat bread with bread²⁷ — and [yet] R. Nahumi b. Zecharaiah said in the name of Abaye: One may set an 'erub of pearl-barley broth! — Rather, we require [for an 'erub dish] something which is not common, and bread is common, whereas pearl-barley broth is not common.²⁸ Others teach: Abaye said: They taught this only of a dish but not of bread. What is the reason? If I were to say something which is not common is required whereas bread is common, then what of pearl-barley broth, which is also not common and [yet] R. Nahumi b. Zecharaiah said in the name of Abaye: One may not set an 'erub with pearl-barley broth! — Rather, something used as a relish is required and bread is not used as a relish and pearl-barley broth too is not used as a relish for R. Zera said: These Babylonians are fools for they eat bread with bread.

R. Hiyya taught: The lentils at the bottom of the pot²⁹ can be relied upon as an 'erub tabshilin, providing that they amount to as much as an olive. R. Isaac son of Rab Judah said: One may scrape off the fat which is upon the knife and rely upon it as an 'erub tabshilin, providing that it amounts to as much as an olive.

R. Assi said in the name of Rab: Small salted fish are not subject to [the interdict against] the cooking of a heathen.³⁰ R. Joseph said: And if a heathen grilled them one may rely upon them as [or for] an 'erub tabshilin,³¹ but if a heathen made them into a pie of fish-hash it is prohibited.³² This is obvious! [that] the fish-hash is the principal element;¹ hence he informs us that the flour is the principal element.

R. Abba said: An 'erub tabshilin² must be the size of all olive.³ The Scholars asked: [Does that mean] one olive for all [the participants together] or an olive for each one separately? — Come and hear: For R. Abba said in the name of Rab: An 'erub tabshilin requires to be the size of an olive whether for one or for one hundred.

We have learnt: [IF] HE ATE IT OR IT WAS LOST, HE MAY NOT IN THE FIRST PLACE COOK [IN RELIANCE] ON IT, BUT IF HE LEFT OVER ANY [SMALL] PORTION OF IT, HE MAY RELY ON IT [TO COOK] FOR THE SABBATH. What does 'ANY' [SMALL] PORTION mean? Does it not mean although it is not as much as an olive?⁴ — No, when it is as much as an olive.

Come and hear: This dish⁵ [can be] grilled or pickled or stewed⁶ or boiled; and the Spanish colias⁷ [can be used] when he had poured hot water over it⁸ on the eve of the Festival; [for] its commencement and its end⁹ there is no standard [in quantity]. Does it not [surely] mean there is no standard [fixed] at all? No, there is no upper [i.e., maximum] standard,¹⁰ but there is a downwards [i.e., minimum] standard.¹¹

R. Huna said in the name of Rab: The 'erub tabshilin requires cognizance.¹² It is certain that the cognizance of him who deposits [the dish] is required but do we require the cognizance of him for whom it is deposited, or do we not require [it]? — Come and hear: For the father of Samuel used to set the 'erub for the whole of Nehardea; R. Ammi and R. Assi used to set the 'erub for the whole of Tiberias.¹³ R. Jacob b. Idi proclaimed: He who has not set an 'erub tabshilin, let him come and rely upon mine. And how far?¹⁴ — R. Nahumi b. Zecharaiah said in the name of Abaye: As far as the Sabbath limit.¹⁵

There was a certain blind man who used to recite Baraithas in the presence of Mar Samuel. When he noticed that he was gloomy he asked him: Why are you gloomy? Because I have not set an 'erub tabshilin,¹⁶ replied he. Then rely upon mine, he rejoined. The following year he [again] noticed that he was gloomy. Said he to him: Why are you gloomy? He answered him: Because I have not set all 'erub tabshilin. [Then] said he to him: You are a transgressor: to everybody else it is permitted,¹⁷ but to you it is forbidden.¹⁸

Our Rabbis taught: If a Festival falls on the eve of Sabbath one may neither set [on the Festival] a boundary 'erub¹⁹ nor an 'erub of courts.²⁰ Rabbi Says: One may set a court 'erub but not a boundary 'erub, for you can forbid him²¹ what is forbidden to him [on a Festival]²² but you cannot forbid him what is allowed to him [on a Festival].²³ It was stated: Rab says: The halachah is as the first Tanna, and Samuel says: The halachah is as Rabbi.

The Scholars asked: Is the halachah as Rabbi [meant] leniently or stringently? — Of course he [Samuel] meant it leniently!²⁴ — [The question was raised] because R. Eleazar sent word to the Diaspora [to wit]; Not as you teach in Babylon that Rabbi permits and the Sages forbid, but [rather] Rabbi forbids and the Sages permit. How is it now?²⁵ — Come and hear: For R. Tahlifa b. Abdimi decided a case according to Samuel, and Rab remarked [thereon:] The first decision of this young scholar is harmful.²⁶ [Now] if you say that he [Samuel] meant [his teaching] to be lenient it is well, hence this is harmful. But if you say [he meant] stringently, what harmful [teaching] is there! — Since many come to error²⁷

(20) Enabling him to carry on the Sabbath from one court to another, because he would thereby join the courts in a legal sense, making them ali as one. This ranks as the repairing of an object and constitutes work.

(21) To effect on a Festival that a certain action should be permitted on the Sabbath.

(22) The prohibition of going from one township to another applies both to Sabbaths and Festivals.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 17a

this is harm.¹ Raba said in R. Hisda's name who said in the name of R. Huna: The halachah is as Rabbi, viz., that it is forbidden.²

Our Rabbis taught: If a Festival fell on a Sabbath, Beth Shammai Say: He must pray eight [benedictions]³ and recite [the benediction] of the Sabbath separately and of the Festival separately; but Beth Hillel say: He must pray seven [benedictions]⁴ beginning with the Sabbath [formula] and ending with the Sabbath [formula],⁵ and he makes mention of the holiness of the day in the middle.⁶ Rabbi says: He should also conclude it [the benediction] 'Who sanctifieth the Sabbath, Israel and the Seasons.' A tanna recited in the presence of Rabina: 'Who sanctifieth Israel and the Sabbath⁷ and the Seasons.' He said to him: Does then Israel sanctify the Sabbath?⁸ The Sabbath has already been sanctified [from the creation] and so continues! Say rather: 'Who sanctifieth the Sabbath, Israel and the Seasons.' R. Joseph said: The halachah is as Rabbi and as Rabina explained it.

Our Rabbis taught: If a Sabbath falls on a New Moon or on the intermediate days of a Festival,⁹ at the evening, morning and afternoon services he prays seven [benedictions]¹⁰ and makes mention of the nature of the day¹¹ in the 'Abodah,¹² and if he did not recite [it], he is made to turn back;¹³ R. Eliezer says: [He alludes to the day] in the Thanksgiving [benediction],¹⁴ while in the Additional Services¹⁵ he begins with the Sabbath [formula] and closes with the Sabbath [formula], and makes mention of the holiness of the day in the middle.¹⁶ R. Simeon b. Gamaliel and R. Ishmael son of R. Johanan b. Beroka say: Whenever one is obliged to say seven benedictions¹⁷ he begins with the Sabbath [formula] and closes with the Sabbath [formula] and mentions the holiness of the day in the middle. Said R. Huna: The halachah is not as that pair [of scholars].¹⁸

R. Hiyya b. Ashi in Rab's name said: A man may prepare a boundary 'erub on the first day of a Festival¹⁹ for the second and stipulate.²⁰ Raba said: A man may prepare an 'erub tabshilin on the first day of a Festival for the second and stipulate.²¹ He who states a boundary 'erub, all the more an 'erub tabshilin' while he who states an 'erub tabshilin, but not a boundary 'erub. What is the reason? Because one may not acquire a [Sabbath] residence on a 'Sabbath'.²²

Our Rabbis taught: One may not bake on the first day of a Festival for the second. In truth they said:²³ A woman may fill the whole pot with meat although she only needs one portion; a baker may fill a barrel with water although he only needs one handful,²⁴ but as for baking he may bake only what he needs. R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: A housewife may fill the entire oven with loaves, because bread is baked better in a full oven. Said Raba: The halachah is as R. Simeon b. Eleazar.

The scholars asked: He who did not set an 'erub tabshilin is he forbidden [to bake for the Sabbath] and [likewise] his flour is forbidden,²⁵ or perhaps only he is forbidden, but his flour is not forbidden? What is the practical difference? — Whether he must give up his flour to others.²⁶ If you say that [both] he is forbidden and [likewise] his flour is forbidden, then he must give his flour to others,²⁷ but if you say, he is forbidden but his flour is not forbidden, [then] he need not give up his flour to others. What [is the law]? — Come and hear: He who has not set an 'erub tabshilin may neither bake nor cook nor store [food] away²⁸ neither for himself nor for others; nor may others bake or cook for him. What should he do? He gives up his flour to others [and these] bake and cook for him — Conclude therefrom that he is forbidden and [likewise] his flour is forbidden. It is thus concluded.

The scholars asked: What if he transgressed and baked?²⁹ Come and hear: He who has not set an 'erub tabshilin what is he to do? He gives up his flour to others and [these] others bake and cook for him.

(1) Had he permitted the 'erub to be set on the Festival they could have carried without transgressing the law.

- (2) To set on a Festival either a boundary 'erub or a court 'erub.
- (3) The first three and the last three are the same as that of the ordinary 'Amidah (v. Glos).
- (4) One middle benediction sufficing for both the Sabbath and the Festival, but must commence and end with the Sabbath formula.
- (5) And no more, not as we end with the additional words 'Israel and the Seasons' cf. P.B. p. 229.
- (6) The middle benediction is from מקדש ישראל to אתה בחרתנו and the allusion to the specific prayer is found in ותתן לנו v. P.B. p. 228.
- (7) Mentioning Israel before Sabbath.
- (8) Festivals are consecrated by Israel in accordance with the fixing of the New Moon, but the sanctity of the Sabbath is independent and absolute.
- (9) Lit., 'the nonsacred portion of the Festival'. In the case of Passover and Tabernacles the first and last days only are holy, the intermediate days enjoying a semi-sanctity.
- (10) As on an ordinary Sabbath.
- (11) Whether it be New Moon "ran intermediary day of a Festival.
- (12) 'Abodah (lit., 'service') is the designation of the benediction commencing with רצה, so called because it is a prayer for the restoration of the sacrificial service. A passage commencing with יעלה ויבא in which specific mention of New Moon or of the Intermediate Days is made, is inserted in the middle of this benediction. Cf. P.B. p. 50.
- (13) I.e., start again at רצה.
- (14) Viz., in the benediction commencing with מודים ('we give thanks'). P.B. p. 51.
- (15) On Sabbaths, Festivals, and New Moons an additional services read after the morning service, corresponding to the additional sacrifices when were offered in the Temple on those days. V. J.E. IX, p. 116.
- (16) In the passage ותתן לנו cf. P.B. p. 233.
- (17) Even in the first-named prayers.
- (18) But as the first Tanna in so far as the nature of day at the evening, morning and afternoon services is to be mentioned in the 'Abodah. His ruling, however, that the close at the Additional Service is only with the Sabbath formula, is not adopted as halachah, for in that respect the halachah is as Rabbi that the conclusion is, 'Who sanctifieth the Sabbath, Israel and the seasons (or the New Moon)' — Rashi.]
- (19) If he forgot to set the 'erub on the eve of the Festival which fell on Thursday and Friday.
- (20) For the Sabbath immediately following the second day. For the condition v. supra p. 23, n. 2.
- (21) V. supra 6a.
- (22) The term שבתא here means Festival. An 'erub tabshilin, however, was allowed in honour of the Sabbath.
- (23) For this expression v. B.M. 60a.
- (24) With the same labour he can fill the entire vessel as well as partly fill it, but with respect to bread every loaf requires extra labour.
- (25) To be baked on the Sabbath, even by others.
- (26) Before they may bake it.
- (27) By giving it to them as a present.
- (28) In such a manner that it retains its heat.
- (29) May he eat it on the Sabbath or not?

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 17b

Now if there is [this possibility],¹ let him state: If he transgressed and baked it is permissible! — Said R. Adda b. Matena: [The Tanna] teaches a legal remedy; an illegal remedy he does not teach.

Come and hear: He who has set an 'erub tabshilin may bake and cook and store, and if he wishes to eat his 'erub he is at liberty to do so. If he ate it [the 'erub] before he had baked [or] before he had stored, then he may not bake nor cook nor store away neither for himself nor for others, nor may others bake or cook for him; but he may cook for the Festival and if he leaves [any thing] he has left it for the Sabbath, provided that he does not [intentionally] resort to an artifice;² and if he has resorted to all artifice it is forbidden!³ — Said R. Ashi: You speak of all artifice? An artifice is different, for the Rabbis have treated it more rigorously than an intentional transgression.⁴

R. Nahman b. Isaac says: This⁵ represents the opinion of Hananiah and according to Beth Shammai. For it was taught:⁶ Hananiah says that Beth Shammai maintain: One may bake only if he set an 'erub of bread, and one may cook only if he set an 'erub of cooked food, and one may store only if he had already warm water stored on the eve of the Festival; but Beth Hillel affirm: One may set an 'erub with one dish and prepare all his requirement [in reliance] thereon.⁷

Come and hear: He who tithed his fruits on the Sabbath,⁸ if [he acted] in error he may eat [of them], if deliberately, he may not eat [of them].⁹ This treats of a case where he has other fruits.¹⁰

Come and hear: If one purified his [unclean] vessels on the Sabbath,¹¹ if in error he may use them, if deliberately he may not use them!¹² — This treats of a case where he has other vessels, or [the reason may be because] it is possible to borrow [vessels from others].

Come and hear: He who has cooked on the Sabbath, if in error he may eat [of it], if deliberately, he may not eat [of it]!¹³ — The prohibition with respect to Sabbath is different.¹⁴

BETH SHAMMAI SAY TWO DISHES. Our Mishnah is not in accordance with the following Tanna; for it was taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel agree that two dishes are necessary;¹⁵ they differ only about a fish and the egg thereon,¹⁶ when Beth Shammai say: Two [separate] dishes [are necessary] and Beth Hillel maintain: [This] one dish [is sufficient]. But they agree that if one crumbles a [hardboiled] egg and puts it inside the fish or if he shreds a head of leek¹⁷ and puts it inside the fish, they [count as] two dishes. Rab said: The halachah is according to our Tanna¹⁸ [in his representation] of the view of Beth Hillel.¹⁹

IF HE ATE IT OR IF IT WERE LOST, HE MAY NOT . . . Abaye said: We have a tradition; if his 'erub was eaten up after he had begun to prepare the dough he may finish it.²⁰

MISHNAH. IF IT [THE FESTIVAL] FELL ON THE DAY AFTER THE SABBATH, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MUST IMMERSE EVERYTHING [UNCLEAN] BEFORE THE SABBATH;²¹ BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN; VESSELS [MUST BE IMMERSED] BEFORE THE SABBATH BUT MEN ON THE SABBATH. THEY AGREE [HOW EVER] THAT ONE MAY EFFECT SURFACE CONTACT FOR [UNCLEAN] WATER IN A STONE VESSEL,²² BUT ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE [IT];²³ AND ONE MAY IMMERSE²⁴ [TO CHANGE] FROM ONE INTENTION TO ANOTHER²⁵ OR FROM ONE COMPANY TO ANOTHER.²⁶

GEMARA. All incidentally agree that a vessel may not [be immersed] on a Sabbath: What is the reason? — Said Rabba: It is a preventative measure

(1) Of being able to eat, viz., by transgressing.

(2) Evasion of the law by purposely cooking much more than he requires.

(3) And presumably the same is true if he transgressed and cooked!

(4) Deliberate transgression is recognized as such and will not entice others whereas all evasion may be regarded as wholly permitted and set an evil example for others too.

(5) The teaching if he has resorted to an artifice it is forbidden. R. Nahman does not admit the possibility that an artifice may be treated more stringently than deliberate transgression, for the latter is certainly a graver fault intrinsically.

(6) Supra 22b.

(7) Consequently we see that Hananiah is very stringent with reference to an 'erub tabshilin, and therefore the same applies to an artifice, but our problem is based on Beth Hillel's more lenient ruling.

(8) This is forbidden by the Rabbis. V. infra 36b.

(9) Ter. II, 3. Hence we may infer that if he deliberately baked without an 'erub, he may not eat of it.

(10) To eat on the Sabbath, so that there is no hindering of the enjoyment of the Sabbath. The problem here is when he has no other provision.

(11) In order to cleanse them, which is forbidden by the Rabbis since it is equivalent to repairing a utensil. V. infra 18a.

(12) Ibid.

(13) V. infra 18a.

(14) Cooking on the Sabbath is Biblically forbidden, the penalty for which may be stoning. Therefore the Rabbis have been rigorous in the treatment of such intentional breach. But with respect to cooking on a Festival without an 'erub, where the prohibition is mere Rabbinical, it is possible that the Rabbis are more lenient and would allow him to eat on the Sabbath.

(15) As an 'erub.

(16) I.e., the egg in which the fish is smeared before cooking.

(17) קפלוטות GR.  == a head of leek. V. Krauss T.A. II, pp. 560-561.

(18) I.e.,

(19) In Mishnah. (7) Viz., that an 'erub may consist of one dish only.

(20) Even to baking it.

(21) But not on the Sabbath, because it is equivalent to repairing or reconditioning the vessel, and the same applies to man.

(22) Which cannot be defiled. The stone vessel containing the unclean water is placed in a mikweh (ritual bath) and immersed until the two waters make contact. Other liquids and foods once unclean cannot be made ritually clean. V. Mik. VI, 8.

(23) Viz., the unclean water in a defiled vessel in order to cleanse the vessel at the same time.

(24) On a Festival.

(25) I.e., if the vessels were immersed before the Festival to be put to a particular use and on the Festival he decided to use them for another purpose which requires higher sanctity, he may immerse them on the Festival, for the second immersion is not regarded as reconditioning the vessels. V. Hag. II, 6, 7.

(26) If he performed an immersion before Passover with the intention of eating the Paschal Lamb with one company, and then determined to join another company which required a higher degree of sanctity, he may immerse again on the Festival itself.

lest he take it in his hand and carry it four cubits in a public ground.¹ Abaye said to him: How is it to be explained when there is a pit² in his courtyard?³ He answered him: A pit in his courtyard is preventively forbidden on account of a pit in public ground. This is well with respect to Sabbath, but with respect to Festivals⁴ how is it to be explained? — They forbade [it on] Festivals on account of [the] Sabbath. Do we then preventively forbid?⁵ Surely we have learnt: THEY AGREE THAT [ON A FESTIVAL] ONE MAY EFFECT SURFACE CONTACT FOR [UNCLEAN] WATER IN A STONE VESSEL BUT ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE [IT]; and if this is so, let us forbid surface contact on account of immersion! — Now is that logical? If he has [other] clean water, then why effect surface contact for this [water]? Therefore [this treats of a case] where he has no [other clean water], and since he has no [other clean water] he will be very careful with it.⁶

He raised an objection to him: One may draw [water] with a [ritually] unclean bucket and it [the bucket] becomes clean;⁷ Now if it is so, let us preventively forbid lest he come to immerse it by itself! It is different there; since he is permitted [to immerse it] by means of drawing water only he will remember.⁸ He raised an objection to him: A vessel which became defiled on the eve of a Festival, one may not immerse it on the Festival; [if it became defiled] on the Festival one may immerse it on the Festival: Now if it is so, let us forbid [that which became defiled] on the Festival on account of [that which became defiled] on the eve of the Festival? — Defilement on a Festival is a rare occurrence and [with regard to] a thing of rare occurrence the Rabbis did not enact a preventative measure.⁹

He raised an objection to him: A vessel which became defiled¹⁰ through a father of uncleanness,¹¹

one may not immerse it on a Festival;¹² [but if it became defiled] through a derivative uncleanness,¹³ one may immerse it on a Festival.¹⁴ Now if it is so, let us forbid one because of the other! — How is a derivative uncleanness possible?¹⁵ [Only] in the case of priests,¹⁶ [and] priests are careful.¹⁷

Come and hear: For R. Hiyya b. Ashi said in Rab's name: A niddah,¹⁸ who has no [ritually clean] clothes,¹⁹ may use guile and immerse herself in her clothes.²⁰ Now if it is so, let us forbid this lest she come to immerse [her clothes] by themselves! — It is different there; since it is permitted to her only in her clothes, she will remember .²¹

R. Joseph says: It²² is a preventive measure on account of wringing [the clothes].²³ Said Abaye to him: This is well [with respect to] apparel, which can be wrung; [but with respect to] vessels, which cannot be wrung, what is there to be said? — He replied to him: These have been forbidden on account of those. He raised all the above mentioned objections and he answered him [the said] as we have answered.

R. Bibi says: It²² is a preventive measure, lest he delay.²⁴ It was taught as R. Bibi: A vessel which became defiled on the eve of the Festival, one may not immerse it on the Festival lest he delay.

Raba Says: [The immersion of vessels is forbidden] because it looks like repairing the vessel.²⁵ If it is so, a man too [should likewise] be forbidden?²⁶ — [In the case of] a man it looks as if he were cooling himself.²⁷ This is well in the case of clear water;²⁸ but what will you say with respect to turbid water? — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: It happens that one comes [home]

(1) The minimum distance involving culpability.

(2) I.e., a mikveh.

(3) When there is no need to carry the vessel out of private ground at all.

(4) When carrying is permitted.

(5) I.e., enact one preventative measure lest another preventative measure be violated.

(6) Not to allow it to become defiled. Accordingly the water becoming defiled is a rare occurrence and such is disregarded; cf. infra.

(7) Because the real purpose of the immersion is not patent, for people would think that his purpose was to draw water.

(8) That immersion itself is forbidden on a Festival.

(9) V. 'Er. 63a.

(10) On the eve of the Festival.

(11) I.e., a primary uncleanness, a person or object that touched a dead body. For the various degrees of defilement v. Pes. 14a.

(12) For a father of uncleanness defiles the vessel by Biblical law, hence the immersion of the vessel would be regarded as reconditioning it on a Festival.

(13) I.e., anything which itself became unclean through contact with a 'father of uncleanness'; which Biblically is incapable of transmitting uncleanness to the vessel.

(14) Since by Biblical law the vessel is still clean, the immersion is not regarded as reconditioning it.

(15) That it should defile a vessel

(16) Who eat consecrated food which would be contaminated by this vessel.

(17) To distinguish between a vessel that became defiled through a primary cause or through a secondary cause. Or, they are careful not to permit their vessels to become unclean, which makes such defilement rare: v. supra.

(18) V. Glos.

(19) To put off after performing tebillah, while, on account of the Festival, she is unable to immerse the clothes she wears.

(20) Which cleanses both herself and her clothes. This is permitted for the same reason that you may draw water in an unclean bucket, as people will think that she is performing it for herself.

(21) As above.

(22) The prohibition of immersing vessels and clothes on Sabbath and Festivals.

(23) Wringing is prohibited both on Sabbath and Festivals.

(24) Their immersion until the Festival when he has more time and in the meantime uses the defiled vessels for consecrated food.

(25) Since this makes it useable.

(26) Since tebillah makes him fit to eat sacred food, such as flesh of sacrifices.

(27) And that he was not taking a ritual bath.

(28) Where one may wash oneself.

in hot weather and bathes even in water used for soaking [dirty linen]. This is well in summer;¹ what will you say of winter? R. Nahman b. Isaac replied: A man sometimes returns [home] from the field besmeared with mud and filth and bathes even in winter. This is well on a Sabbath;² but on the Day of Atonement³ what is there to be said? — Said Raba: Is there then any[thing] which on a Sabbath is permitted⁴ and on the Day of Atonement is forbidden?⁵ But since it [bathing] is permitted on the Sabbath, it is also permitted on the Day of Atonement. Does then Raba accept the argument of 'Since'?⁶ Surely we have learnt: He who has toothache must not rinse them with vinegar⁷ [On the Sabbath],⁸ but he may dip [his food] in vinegar in his usual manner, and if it becomes better, it becomes better.⁹ And we pointed out a contradiction: He must not rinse and expectorate¹⁰ but he may rinse and swallow? And Abaye answered: When we learnt our Mishnah,¹¹ we learnt it also [as referring to] rinsing and expectorating. Raba however answered: You may even say [the Mishnah refers to] rinsing and swallowing, and [still] there is no contradiction: in the one case [it means] before the dipping [of the food into the vinegar]¹² and in the other case [it means] after the dipping [of the food in the vinegar]. Now if it is so¹³ let us say, Since it is permitted before the meal, it is also permitted after the meal! — Raba retracted from that [statement].¹⁴ How do you know that he retracted from that [statement]; perhaps he changed his mind with respect to the present one?¹⁵ — You cannot suppose this, for it was taught: Everyone who is required to take a ritual bath¹⁶ may bathe in the usual way, both on the [fast of the] Ninth of Ab and on the Day of Atonement.⁷ BUT THEY BOTH AGREE THAT [ON A FESTIVAL] YOU MAY EFFECT SURFACE CONTACT FOR [UNCLEAN] WATER IN A STONE VESSEL etc. What does BUT ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE [IT] mean? — Said Samuel: One may not on a Festival immerse the [unclean] vessel on account of its water in order to cleanse it!¹⁷

Who is the author of our Mishnah? It is neither Rabbi nor the Sages! For it was taught: One may not immerse the [unclean] vessel on account of its water in order to cleanse it, nor may one effect surface contact or [unclean] water in a stone vessel in order to cleanse it; this is the opinion of Rabbi. But the Sages say: One may immerse the vessel on account of its water in order to cleanse it, and one may effect surface contact for [unclean] water in a stone vessel in order to cleanse it.¹⁸ Who now is [the author of our Mishnah]? If Rabbi, [the ruling on] surface contact is a difficulty;¹⁹ if the Sages, [the ruling on] immersion²⁰ is a difficulty? — If you like I can say [the author of the Mishnah is] Rabbi; alternatively, it is the Sages. If you like I can say it is Rabbi; the first clause of the Baraita²¹ concerns Festivals and the concluding clause²² concerns the Sabbath, whereas the whole of our Mishnah²³ deals with Festivals.

(1) When one may bathe to cool oneself.

(2) When it is permissible to wash.

(3) When it is forbidden to wash oneself

(4) On the score of work.

(5) Surely not!

(6) As stated, even where there may be a reason for prohibiting it on the Day of Atonement which does not apply to the Sabbath, as in the present instance.

(7) Lit., 'suck vinegar into them'.

- (8) Healing, except in the case of danger, is forbidden, lest he crush the ingredients on the Sabbath. V. Shab. 111a; A.Z. 28a.
- (9) I.e., there is no harm done; he has not broken the law.
- (10) Because it is then evident that he is taking it as medicine.
- (11) On toothache.
- (12) Then he may rinse and swallow for it is regarded as a part of the meal, being his first meal, the aperitif, the hors d'oeuvre.
- (13) That Rab accepts the argument of 'Since'.
- (14) Concerning toothache, and his statement about bathing on the Day of Atonement was made subsequently.
- (15) Viz., re bathing on the Day of Atonement.
- (16) E.g., a woman after menstruation or confinement. (16) When washing oneself is forbidden. V. Ta'an. 13a; Shab. 111a.
- (17) One may not put unclean water [for surface contact in an unclean wooden vessel which itself requires immersion, so that through the surface contact the vessel is automatically immersed.
- (18) For var. lec. v. D.S.
- (19) Whereas Rabbi forbids it our Mishnah permits it.
- (20) Which the Sages allow, while our Mishnah forbids.
- (21) In which Rabbi forbids immersion, implying that surface contact is permitted.
- (22) In which Rabbi forbids even surface contact.
- (23) Which forbids immersion and permits surface contact. For var. lec. v. Rashi and D.S.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 19a

Alternatively, I can say it is the Sages and the whole of our Mishnah deals with the Sabbath.

Our Rabbis taught: A vessel which became defiled on the eve of a Festival one may not immerse at twilight.¹ R. Simeon Shezuri says: Even on a weekday one may not immerse it [then], because it requires [waiting until] sunset.² And does not the first Tanna require [waiting until] sunset?³ Said Raba: I found the disciples of the Academy who sat and said: They differ whether his intention is to be recognized from his acts. How so? If, for example, he is holding a vessel in his hand and running along [about] twilight [time]⁴ to immerse it; one Master is of the opinion that the reason he is running along is that he indeed knows that he requires [to wait until] sunset;⁵ and the other Master is of the opinion that he is running on account of his work.⁶ Then said I to them: None dispute that his intention is recognized from his acts;⁷ they differ [only] when [another] vessel⁸ became defiled through [part of a reptile] less than the size of a lentil,⁹ and he¹⁰ came before the Rabbis to ask whether [having come into contact with part of a reptile] less than the size of a lentil it has become defiled or not.¹¹ One Master is of the opinion: Since he does not know this he also does not know that;¹² and the other Master is of the opinion: This [only] he does not know,¹³ but [with the requirement of] sunset he is well acquainted.¹⁴ AND ONE MAY IMMERSE [TO CHANGE] FROM ONE INTENTION TO ANOTHER. Our Rabbis taught: How is, FROM ONE INTENTION TO ANOTHER, meant? He who wishes to make his wine press out of his olive press¹⁵ or his olive press out of his wine press may do so.¹⁶ What means 'FROM ONE COMPANY TO ANOTHER'? If he intended to eat with one company,¹⁷ and [now] wishes to eat with another company,¹⁸ he may do so.¹⁹

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MAY BRING PEACE-OFFERING²⁰ [ON FESTIVALS] BUT MAY NOT LAY [HANDS] THEREON;²¹ BUT ONE MAY NOT BRING BURNT-OFFERINGS²² [ON A FESTIVAL]; BUT BETH HILLEL MAINTAIN: ONE MAY BRING PEACE-OFFERINGS AND BURNT-OFFERINGS AND ALSO LAY HANDS THEREON.

GEMARA. 'Ulla said: 'The dispute is only with respect to the laying on [of hands] on Festival peace-offerings²³ and the sacrificing of the pilgrimage burnt-offerings,²⁴ when Beth Shammai hold:

‘And ye shall keep [wehagothem] it a Feast [hag] unto to the Lord’,²⁵ implies only Festival peace-offerings [hagigah]²⁶ but not the pilgrimage burnt-offerings; and Beth Hillel maintain: ‘unto the Lord’ [implies] all [sacrifices offered] unto the Lord;²⁷ but all agree that vows and freewill-offerings²⁸ may not be offered on a Festival.²⁹ And thus did R. Adda b. Ahabah say: Vows and freewill-offerings may not be offered on a Festival.

An objection was raised: R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ concerning a burnt-offering which is not for the Festival,³⁰ [both agreeing] that it may not be offered on a Festival,³¹ and concerning peace-offerings of the Festival³² that they may be offered on the Festival;³³ they only differ concerning a burnt-offering which is for the Festival and concerning peace-offerings which are not for the Festival, when Beth Shammai say: He may not bring [them]³⁴ and Beth Hillel maintain: He may bring [them]! — Reconcile it by saying thus: R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ concerning a burnt-offering or peace-offering which are not connected with the Festival that they may not be offered on the Festival and concerning peace-offerings connected with the Festival that they may be offered on the Festival; they differ only concerning a burnt-offering connected with the Festival, when Beth Shammai say: He may not bring [it], and Beth Hillel maintain: He may bring [it]. R. Joseph said:³⁵ You quote Tannaim at random.³⁶ There is a dispute of Tannaim. For it was taught: [As to] peace-offerings which are offered³⁷ on account of the Festival, Beth Shammai say: He lays [hands] on them on the eve of the Festival and slaughters them on the Festival; but Beth Hillel maintain: He lays [hands] on them on the Festival and slaughters their on the Festival,

(1) Because it may already be the Festival. Twilight is a period after sunset which it cannot exactly be determined whether it is day or night.

(2) I.e., if a person is seen to attempt to immerse a vessel at twilight he is stopped: the person immersing the vessel at twilight evidently intends to use it immediately after immersion. But the vessel immersed at twilight would still be unclean until sunset of the following day; cf. Lev. XI, 32.

(3) Before it is ritually clean. Surely a person who has ritually cleansed all unclean vessel by immersion must wait until the sun sets before he may use it.

(4) [I.e., before sunset. The bracketed words must be added if the word ‘twilight’ which MS.M. omits is retained with cur. edd.]

(5) Before he can use it. Therefore on a weekday he is allowed to proceed because when, on reaching the ritual bath, he finds that the sun has already set, he will immerse it and wait until the following sunset before using it. But on the eve of a Festival he may not immerse it in case it is already the Festival. But v. Goldschmidt, n. a.l.

(6) I.e., he is in a hurry to get on with his work. Such action does not show intention and it is therefore to be apprehended lest he will come to use it after immersing it.

(7) We may certainly deduce his intention from his acts.

(8) In addition to the one already defiled, Rashi. V. n. 9.

(9) The minimum size to cause defilement.

(10) This man who was seen running before sunset to immerse the vessel.

(11) R. Hananel reads: ‘Became defiled through (a part of a reptile) of the size of a lentil, and he came before the Rabbis to ask whether a reptile of the size of a lentil defiles’ (he not knowing the law that it does). On this reading the vessel which he was rushing to immerse was the very vessel about which he enquired of the Rabbis and which he was told that it required immersion; v. n. 6.]

(12) Viz., that sunset is required.

(13) For it is not specifically written in Scripture that it must be of the size of a lentil. [On the reading of R. Hananel (note 9): For it is not specifically stated in Scripture that a reptile (or part of it) bigger than a lentil defiles.]

(14) Scripture distinctly states that sunset is required cf. Lev. XI, 32.

(15) If one immersed his defiled vessel in order to use it for his olive press and then changed his mind and wished to use it for his wine press. כַּד is the smaller vessel for oil. [MS.M. reads כַּד ‘Olive press’.]

(16) Without requiring further immersion. If therefore the owner takes it upon himself to immerse again the vessel, such immersion may be performed on a Festival, for he is not thereby reconditioning the vessel.

- (17) And performed immersion with this intention.
- (18) He can only change his mind before the animal is sacrificed.
- (19) Without requiring further immersion. The extra immersion is therefore permissible on a Festival.
- (20) Because part thereof is eaten by their owners.
- (21) Beth Shammai forbid this as a shebuth (v. Glos.), as it was performed with all one's strength and is regarded as being in the nature of riding an animal which is expressly forbidden by the Rabbis (Rashi). [V. however, infra 20a where Beth Shammai are said to hold that the law of laying on of hands does not apply at all to obligatory offerings. Rashi's explanation follows, however, that of R. Johanan, Hag. 16b; v. Tosaf. infra 20a s.v. סוף]
- (22) I.e., private voluntary burnt-offerings.
- (23) Which are obligatory. V. Lev. XXIII, 41, and the eating of meat was considered an essential part of the festival enjoyment.
- (24) V. Ex. XXIII, 15. Lit., 'the appearance (in the Temple before the Lord)'.
- (25) Lev. XXIII, 41.
- (26) We-hagothem being grammatically connected with hag and hagigah.
- (27) Which includes the pilgrimage burnt-offering.
- (28) I.e., private sacrifices.
- (29) Since they do not belong to the Festival and can be offered on any other day.
- (30) E.g., a burnt-offering as a vow or a freewill-offering.
- (31) Because (a) none of the sacrifice is eaten by the owners; and (b) it can be brought after the Festival.
- (32) I.e., the Festival peace-offerings.
- (33) Because (a) They are eaten by the owners, thus increasing the joy of the Festival; (b) They belong to the Festival and cannot be brought after the Festival.
- (34) Thus Beth Shammai maintain that peace-offerings not connected with the Festival may not be brought on the Festival, which contradicts 'Ulla.
- (35) There is no need to amend the Baraitha
- (36) You quote the view of one Tanna (viz., R. Simeon b. Eleazar) while disregarding the possibility that another Tanna may have a different opinion.
- (37) Lit., 'come'.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 19b

but all agree that vows and freewill-offerings may not be offered on a Festival.¹

And the following Tannaim [are engaged in the same controversy]² as these [aforementioned] Tannaim. For it was taught: One may not bring a thank-offering³ on the Feast of Unleavened Bread on account of the leaven which it contains;⁴ nor on Pentecost, because it is a Festival;⁵ but one may bring his thank-offering on the Feast of Tabernacles.⁶ R. Simeon says: Lo, Scripture says, on the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and on the Feast of Weeks, and on the Feast of Tabernacles,⁷ [teaching] whatever may be brought on the Feast of Unleavened Bread may [also] be brought on the Feast of Weeks and on the Feast of Tabernacles, and whatever may not be brought on the Feast of Unleavened Bread may not be brought on the Feast of Weeks and on the Feast of Tabernacles [either]. R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon says: A man may bring his thank-offering⁸ on the Feast of Tabernacles and may therewith fulfil his obligation in respect of the joy [of the Festival],⁹ but does not fulfil his obligation therewith in respect of the Festival sacrifices.¹⁰ The Master said:¹¹ 'One may not bring a thank-offering on the Feast of Unleavened Bread on account of the leaven which it contains. This is obvious! — Said R. Adda son of R. Isaac, some say R. Samuel b. Abba: We are treating here of the fourteenth [of Nisan] and he holds: You must not bring consecrated meat to the place of disqualification.¹² 'Nor on Pentecost, because it is a Festival'; he is of the opinion [that] vows and freewill-offerings may not be offered on a Festival.¹³

'But a man may bring his thank-offering on the Feast of Tabernacles'. When? If it should mean on the Festival itself, but you say, 'Nor on Pentecost because it is a Festival'. — Therefore [it must mean] on the intermediary days of the Festival.

R. Simeon says: Lo, Scripture says: ‘on the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and on the Feast of Weeks, and on the Feast of Tabernacles’, [teaching] whatever may be brought on the Feast of Unleavened Bread may [also] be brought on the Feast of Weeks and on the Feast of Tabernacles, and what may not be brought on the Feast of Unleavened Bread may [also] not be brought on the Feast of Weeks and on the Feast of Tabernacles.¹⁴ To this R. Zera demurred: Seeing that we may [even] gather firewood can there be a question about vows and freewill-offerings!¹⁵ — Said Abaye: None dispute that the offering [of the thank-offering] is permitted:¹⁶ they differ only as to whether he is subject to ‘Thou shalt not delay’¹⁷ on its account. The first Tanna holds: The Divine Law said ‘Three Festivals’,¹⁸ even not in their order of sequence;¹⁹ while R. Simeon is of the opinion; only in their order of sequence [he transgresses] but not when they are not in order of sequence.

‘R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon says: One may bring the thank-offering on the Feast of Tabernacles’ — When? If [it means] on the Intermediary days of the Festival, then it is the same as the first Tanna. Therefore [it means] on the Festival [itself], and he is of the opinion that vows or freewill-offerings may be offered on Festivals.²⁰ And why does he teach this particularly of the Feast of Tabernacles? — R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon follows his view [expressed elsewhere]. For it was taught: R. Simeon Says: Scripture²¹ need not have mentioned ‘the Feast of Tabernacles’ for the passage is dealing with it.²² Why [then] is it mentioned? To teach that this is the last.²³ R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon Says: To teach that this [Festival of Tabernacles alone] brings it about.²⁴

‘And may therewith fulfil his obligation concerning the joy [of the Festival], but does not fulfil his obligation therewith concerning the Festival sacrifices.’ This is obvious; for this is indeed an obligatory sacrifice²⁵ and any obligatory sacrifice can only be brought of unconsecrated [animals or money]!²⁶ — It is necessary to teach this even if he explicitly stipulated.²⁷ As R. Simeon b. Lakish asked R. Johanan: What if one said, ‘I vow a thank-offering that I may therewith fulfil my obligation of hagigah;’ [or] ‘I take upon myself to become a Nazirite

(1) This Tanna corroborates the statement of ‘Ulla.

(2) With respect to vows and freewill-offerings

(3) V. Lev. VII, 12-15.

(4) The thank-offering requires leaven (V. Lev. VII, 13) and naturally cannot be offered on Passover.

(5) And a thank-offering like vows and freewill-offerings may not be offered on a Festival.

(6) I. e., during the Intermediary days of the Festival.

(7) Deut. XVI, 16.

(8) I.e., one which he had previously vowed.

(9) It is obligatory to rejoice on the Festivals (v. Deut. XVI, 14), and this rejoicing requires meat (v. supra p. 97, n. 9). The thank-offering can be brought for this purpose.

(10) These are obligatory and such must be brought from unconsecrated animals (i.e., animals which are not due on account of a previous vow); hence the thank-offering is ineligible for this purpose.

(11) The Talmid proceeds to a discussion of the Baraita in the course of which there emerges the Tannaitic controversy referred to.

(12) For the ten loaves of leaven which accompany the thank-offering could hardly be eaten by about 10 a.m. when leaven becomes forbidden, and the rest would have to be burnt as nothar (v. Glos.).

(13) This is the statement referred to above of the Tanna who differs and maintains that vows and freewill-offerings may not be offered on Festivals.

(14) It was wrongly assumed that the statement forbids the bringing of the thank-offering even on the Intermediary days of the Festival, hence the following objection.

(15) This certainly may be brought.

(16) On the Intermediary Days of the Festival of Tabernacles.

(17) Deut. XXIII, 22.

(18) Ex. XXIII, 14. In R.H. 4b it is deduced that one violates this if three festivals pass without his fulfilling his vow.

(19) If the vow to bring the thank-offering is made before Tabernacles, the first Tanna counsels the vower to bring it at the immediately following Feast of Tabernacles. Because, according to him, the three Festivals just mentioned need not be in order of sequence commencing with Passover. Therefore unless he brings it on the immediately following Tabernacles he will have to make a special journey to Jerusalem to offer it, since he cannot bring it either on Passover or the Pentecost, whilst he must not delay beyond them. R. Simeon, however, maintains that he transgresses only if three Festivals, taken in order of sequence starting from Passover, pass without his fulfilling the vow. Hence this is what he means: Whatever comes 'on the Feast of Unleavened Bread', i.e., whatever was vowed before the Feast of Passover, so that there was already an obligation by Passover, must be brought either at Pentecost or Tabernacles immediately following; but 'Whatever does not come on the Feast of Unleavened Bread, 'i.e., if there was no obligation then, as he vowed after Passover, need not be brought on the immediately following Festivals of Pentecost or Tabernacles, since he will still have till the Tabernacles of the following year without transgressing the prohibition of 'delaying'.

(20) V. supra p. 100, n. 3.

(21) Deut. XVI, 16.

(22) Viz., Tabernacles. V. verse 13.

(23) I.e., that the three Festivals must, for the transgression of 'delaying' follow in that order — Passover, Pentecost and Tabernacles.

(24) The transgression of the Command. If he vowed before Tabernacles and did not fulfil the vow until Tabernacles elapsed he has transgressed. Cf. R.H. 4a.

(25) V. p. 99, n. 11.

(26) But not of second tithe money which is already consecrated, nor of animals already dedicated as vows and freewill-offerings. V. Pes. 71a.

(27) When he vowed the thank-offering he stipulated that it should take the place of the Festival sacrifice.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 20a

[on condition] that I shave with the second tithe money?¹ He replied to him: He is under a vow, but he cannot discharge [his hagiḡah obligation therewith]: he is a Nazirite, but he cannot shave [as he stipulated].²

A certain man declared,³ Give four hundred zuz to So-and-so and let him marry my daughter. R. Papa said: The four hundred zuz he receives, and as for the daughter, if he wishes he may marry [her] [and] if he wishes he need not marry [her].⁴ The reason is because he said: 'Give him and he shall marry;⁵ but if he had said, 'Let him marry and give him', [then] if he marries her, he receives [the money]; but if he does not marry [her], he does not receive [it].

Meremar was sitting and stated this ruling⁶ in his own name. Said Rabina to Meremar: You are teaching this thus,⁷ [but] we teach it as a question directed by Resh Lakish to R. Johanan.

A tanna recited before R. Isaac b. Abba: 'And he presented the burnt-offering; and offered it according to the ordinance',⁸ [i.e.,] according to the ordinance of a freewill burnt-offering;⁹ this teaches that the obligatory burnt-offering requires laying on of hands.¹⁰ Said he to him: He who told you this did so in accordance with Beth Shammai¹¹ who do not learn obligatory peace-offerings from freewill peace-offerings;¹² for it is according to Beth Hillel, since they learn obligatory peace-offerings from freewill peace-offerings, the obligatory burnt-offering too does not require a Scripture text, for they infer it from the freewill burnt-offering.¹³ But whence do you know that Beth Hillel¹⁴ learn obligatory peace-offerings from freewill peace-offerings; perhaps they learn it from the obligatory burnt-offering,¹⁵ while the obligatory burnt-offering itself requires a Scripture text?¹⁶ — Why [would you say that] they do not infer it from freewill peace-offerings: because they are frequent?¹⁷ Then they could not infer it from an obligatory burnt-offering either, since it is wholly consumed!¹⁸ — It is inferred from both of them.¹⁹ But does Beth Shammai maintain that obligatory peace-offerings do not require the laying on of hands. Surely it was taught: R. Joseph said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ about the laying on of hands itself, [both agreeing] that it is necessary;²⁰ they dispute only whether the [act of] slaughtering must immediately follow the laying on of hands, when Beth Shammai hold: It is not necessary,²¹ and Beth Hillel maintain: It is necessary! — He²² teaches according to the following Tanna. For it was taught: R. Jose son of R. Judah said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ that the slaughtering must immediately follow the laying on of hands, they dispute only about the laying on of hands itself,²³ Beth Shammai ruling: It is not necessary, while Beth Hillel maintain: It is necessary.

Our Rabbis taught: It once happened that Hillel the Elder brought his burnt-offering into the Temple Court on a Festival for the purpose of laying hands thereon. The disciples of Shammai the Elder gathered around him and asked: What is the nature of this animal? He replied to them: It is a female²⁴ and I brought it as a peace-offering. [Thereupon] he swung its tail for them²⁵ and they went away. On that day Beth Shammai got the upper hand over Beth Hillel²⁶ and wished to fix the halachah according to their ruling.²⁷ But an old man of the disciples of Shammai the Elder was there named Baba b. Buta, who knew that the halachah is as Beth Hillel²⁸ and he sent

- (1) I.e., that I purchase the sacrifice due on the day that I cut my hair (v. Num. VI, 13ff) with second tithe money.
 - (2) Although the condition on which he made his vow is invalid, he is still bound to fulfil his vow.
 - (3) As his last will and testament.
 - (4) This decision of R. Papa has some analogy with that ruling of the Baraitha that precedes, hence its inclusion here.
 - (5) In this order.
 - (6) Supra 19b bottom and the ruling on same.
 - (7) In your own name.
 - (8) Lev. IX, 16. This verse refers, according to Rashi, to the obligatory burnt-offering brought by Aaron on the eighth day of his consecration (v. Lev. IX, 2), and according to Tosaf. to the communal burnt-offering (v. Lev. IX, 15).
 - (9) For the Bible does not state a rule about the obligatory burnt-offering. Hence this verse must mean that the same rules that apply to a freewill burnt-offering apply to an obligatory burnt-offering. V. Lev. I, 3ff.
 - (10) The law of laying on of hands is prescribed only for freewill-offerings v. Lev. I, 3ff (burnt-offerings), III, 2 (peace-offerings).
 - (11) In our Mishnah 19a.
 - (12) In regard to the necessity of laying on of hands (v. supra note 1). Similarly with respect to burnt-offerings Beth Shammai will not infer obligatory burnt-offerings from freewill burnt-offerings; hence a special Scripture text is required that obligatory burnt-offerings require laying on of hands. V. Lev. III, 2.
 - (13) The inference is as follows: Just as we find that a freewill burnt-offering, because it is a burnt-offering, requires laying on of hands, so also an obligatory burnt-offering, since it is likewise a burnt-offering. This principle of exegesis is called Binyan Ab, v. Glos. Beth Shammai, however, does not admit this difference as there is no analogy between freewill burnt-offerings that can be brought at any time and obligatory burnt-offerings which are only brought at stated times.
 - (14) Who permit the laying of hands on obligatory offerings on a Festival.
 - (15) Perhaps Beth Hillel too reject this inference (v. n. 4) of obligatory from freewill offerings.
 - (16) [I.e., Lev. IX, 16 from which is derived the law that the obligatory burnt-offering requires laying on of hands, so that the cited Baraitha can be in accord with Beth Hillel as well as Beth Shammai.]
 - (17) I.e., they can be brought at any time.
 - (18) V. Lev. I, 9.
 - (19) So that if an objection is raised with regard to one that the rule of laying on hands applies there because of a certain characteristic which is not found in the case of obligatory peace-offerings, reference can be made to the other where the same characteristic is lacking and yet the rule of laying on hands is not dependent on the presence of that characteristic.
 - (20) Save that Beth Shammai maintain that the laying on of hands in the case of obligatory peace-offerings must be performed before the Festival and not on the Festival itself.
 - (21) Hence it can be done before the Festival, and therefore it may not be done on the Festival.
 - (22) The author of our Mishnah.

- (24) And such is not offered as a burnt-offering. V. Lev. I, 3. He wanted to avoid a quarrel and told them what was not true for the sake of peace.
- (25) In order to make them believe it was a female.
- (26) I.e., they forced the majority.
- (27) Viz., that obligatory burnt-offerings do not require laying on of hands.
- (28) I.e., that Beth Shammai's ruling is only a stringency, but not based on Biblical law.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 20b

and fetched all the sheep of Kedar¹ that were in Jerusalem and put them into the Temple Court and said: Whoever wishes to lay on hands let him come and lay on hands; and on that day Beth Hillel got the upper hand and established the halachah according to their opinion and there was no one there who disputed it.²

It happened again with a certain disciple of the disciples of Beth Hillel who brought his burnt-offering into the Temple Court for the purpose of laying hands thereon. A certain disciple of the disciples of Beth Shammai found him and said to him: Why the laying on of hands?³ He replied: Why [not keep] silence? He silenced him with a rebuke and he went away. Said Abaye: Therefore a young scholar to whom his colleague says anything should not answer back more than the former had spoken to him; for the one said to the other, Why the laying on of hands? and the other replied, [correspondingly] Why [not keep] silence?

It was taught; Beth Hillel said to Beth Shammai: If, when it is forbidden [to slaughter to provide food] for a layman,⁴ it is permitted [to slaughter] for the Most High,⁵ then where it is permitted on behalf of a layman,⁶ it is surely logical that it is permitted for the Most High.⁷ Beth Shammai replied to them: Let vows and freewill-offerings prove [the contrary], for they are permitted for a layman and yet forbidden for the Most High.⁸ Beth Hillel said to them: As for vows and freewill-offerings, that is because there is no fixed time for them; will you say [the same] with respect to a pilgrimage burnt-offering seeing that it has a fixed time?⁹ Beth Shammai replied to them: Even [for] this [sacrifice] there is no [strictly] fixed time. For we have learnt:¹⁰ He who did not bring his Festival offering on the first day of the Festival, may bring it during the whole of the remaining days of the Festival, even on the last day. Beth Hillel replied to them: Even [for] this there is indeed a time fixed, for we have learnt:¹⁰ If the Festival passes and he has not brought his Festival offering, he bears no [further] liability [on its account].¹¹ Beth Shammai said to them: Surely it is said '[That only may be done] for you,'¹² [implying] but not for the most High God? Beth Hillel replied to them: Surely it is said: '[And ye shall keep it as a feast] unto the Lord',¹³ [implying] whatever is for the Lord! If so, why then does the text say: 'For you'? for you but not for heathens,¹⁴ for you, but not for dogs.

Abba Saul taught the same in another form: If when thy hearth is closed,¹⁵ the hearth¹⁶ of the Master is open,¹⁷ how much the more must the hearth of thy Master be open when thy hearth is open.¹⁸ And that is logical that thy table should not be full and the table of thy Master empty. In what do they differ?¹⁹ — One Master²⁰ holds: Vows and freewill-offerings may be offered on a Festival and the other Master holds they may not be offered on a Festival.

R. Huna said: On the view that vows and freewill-offerings may not be offered on a Festival, say not, Biblically they are indeed permitted²¹ and only the Rabbis preventively forbade them lest one delay,²² but even Biblically they are not permitted; for the two loaves of bread²³ which are obligatory for that day²⁴ so that we need not apprehend delay, yet [their preparation] does not override either the Sabbath or a Festival.²⁵

The scholars asked: On the view that vows and freewill-offerings may not be offered on a Festival what is the law if one transgressed and did slaughter?²⁶ Raba says: He sprinkles the blood in order to permit the flesh to be eaten for food.²⁷ Rabbah son of R. Huna says: He sprinkles the blood in order to burn their inwards at eventide.²⁸ What [difference] is there between them? — They differ when the flesh was defiled or lost; according to Raba he must not sprinkle [the blood],²⁹ according to Rabbah son of R. Huna he does sprinkle.

An objection was raised: If one slaughters the lambs of the Feast of Weeks³⁰ for another purpose³¹ or if one slaughters them before or after their [fixed] time, the blood is to be sprinkled and the flesh is to be eaten; but if it was the Sabbath, he may not sprinkle³² and if he did sprinkle³³

It is acceptable¹ on condition that the inwards are burnt at eventide.² [Now] 'If he did sprinkle' indicates only if it was [already] done, but [it may] not [be done] at the outset. According to Raba it is well, but on Rabbah b. R. Huna's view there is a difficulty? — That is indeed a difficulty. Alternatively you can answer: The shebuth³ of Sabbath is different from the shebuth of a Festival.⁴

R. Awia the Elder asked R. Huna: Is it permissible to slaughter on a Festival an animal half of which belongs to a heathen and half to an Israelite? — He said to him: It is permitted. The other said: What difference is there between this [case] and the case of vows and freewill-offerings?⁵ — A raven flies,⁶ he retorted. When he left, his son Rabbah said to him: Was this not R. Awia the Elder whom you, sir, have praised as a great man?⁷ — What then was I to do with him? answered he; I am to-day [in the condition of the lover who said] ‘Stay ye me with dainties, refresh me with apples’,⁸ and he asked me things which require reasoning.⁹ And what is [really] the reason?¹⁰ — An animal half of which belongs to a heathen and half to an Israelite may be slaughtered on a Festival, because it is impossible [to eat] as much as an olive of flesh without slaughtering;¹¹ but vows and freewill-offerings may not be slaughtered on a Festival because when the priests receive their portion,¹² they receive it from the table of the Most High.¹³

R. Hisda said: An animal half of which belongs to a heathen and half to an Israelite is permitted to be slaughtered on a Festival, because as much as an olive of flesh is unattainable without slaughtering; [but] dough belonging half to a heathen and half to an Israelite may not be baked on a Festival for it is possible to divide it at the kneading. R. Hana b. Hanilai raised an objection: Dogs’ dough,¹⁴ if the shepherds eat of it, is subject to hallah,¹⁵ and one may prepare an ‘erub¹⁶ therewith, effect a partnership¹⁷ therewith, pronounce a blessing over it,¹⁸ and say grace after it,¹⁹ and it may be baked on a Festival,²⁰ and a man can fulfil his obligation therewith on Passover.²¹ But why [may it be baked on a Festival]? Surely it is possible for him to divide it during the kneading! — Dogs’ dough is different since it is possible to appease them [the dogs] with carrion.²²

Does then R. Hisda accept the argument of ‘Since’?²³ Surely it was stated: He who bakes on a Festival for the weekday, R. Hisda says: He is flagellated; whereas Rabbah maintains: He is not flagellated. R. Hisda says: He is flagellated, [for] we do not say, Since if visitors came to him, it is fit for him [on the festival], it is even now²⁴ [considered] fit for him; Rabbah maintains: He is not flagellated, [for] we do maintain [the argument of] ‘Since’?²⁵ — Rather, do not say, ‘Since it is possible [etc.]’, but when, for example, he [the shepherd] has a carcass, so that it is definitely possible to satisfy them [the dogs] therewith.²⁶ They asked of R. Huna: May the [Jewish] inhabitants of the valley²⁷ who are obliged to supply bread²⁸ for the troops, bake [it] on a Festival? — He replied to them: We see’ If they can give some bread [thereof] to a child and they [the soldiers] do not object, then every [loaf] is fit for a child; hence it is permitted; but if not,²⁹ it is forbidden. But surely it was taught: It once happened that Simeon the Temanite did not come to the Academy on the eve [of the Festival]. In the morning Judah b. Baba found him and asked: Why did you not attend yesterday [evening] at the Academy? He replied to him: A troop of soldiers came into our town and wished to plunder the entire city; so we killed a calf for them and fed them and let them depart in peace. Said [Judah] to him: I should be surprised if your gain is not counterbalanced by your loss,³⁰ for surely the Torah said ‘for you’³¹ but not for heathens. But why so: the [calf] was fit to be eaten [by them]?³² — Said R. Joseph: It was a trefa calf.³³ But it was fit for dogs? — Tannaim differ on this; for it was taught: ‘Save that which every soul³⁴ must eat, that only may be done by you’.³¹ From the implication of the expression ‘every soul’ I might assume also that the soul of cattle is included³⁵ as it is said, ‘And he that smiteth a soul of a beast mortally shall make it good’;³⁶ the text therefore says, ‘for you’

[intimating] but not for dogs. This is the opinion of R. Jose the Galilean. R. Akiba says: Even the soul of cattle is included; if so, then why does the text say 'for you'? For you, but not for heathens — And what reason do you see to include dogs and to exclude heathens? I include dogs, since you are responsible for their food, and I exclude heathens because you are not responsible for their food.¹

Abaye said to R. Joseph: Now according to R. Jose the Galilean who says 'for you' but not for dogs, how can we throw date stones [as fodder] to cattle on a Festival?² — Said he to him: Because they are fit for fuel. This is well when they are dry, but how is it to be explained when they are moist? — They are fit for a big fire.³ This is well on a Festival, but what will you say with respect to the Sabbath.⁴ — We may handle them in virtue of bread,⁵ in accordance with Samuel; for Samuel said: A man may do all he needs in virtue of bread.⁶

But he⁷ disagrees with R. Joshua b. Levi; for R. Joshua b. Levi said: One may invite a heathen [to a meal] on a Sabbath, but one may not invite a heathen on a Festival as a preventive measure, lest he may [cook] more on his [the heathen's] account. R. Aha b. Jacob says: Not even on a Sabbath, on account of what is left at the bottom of the cups.⁸ If so, even [the remains of] our own [wine] too?⁹ — Ours is fit for fowls.¹⁰ Theirs too is fit for fowls? — Theirs is forbidden for any use.¹¹ Let him remove them in virtue of the cups! Did not Raba say: You may remove the brazier on account of the ashes,¹² although it contains fragments of wood!¹³ — There¹⁴ they are not prohibited for use, but here¹⁵ they are prohibited for use. R. Aha b. Difti said to Rabina: Let it be like a vessel for excrement!¹⁶ — He answered him: May we make excrement at the outset?¹⁷ Raba accompanied¹⁸ Mar Samuel who lectured: One may invite a heathen [to a meal] on a Sabbath, but one may not invite a heathen on a Festival as a preventive measure lest he will [cook] more on his account. When a heathen visited Meremar and Mar Zutra on a Festival they would say to him: If you are content with that which we have prepared for ourselves it is well; but if not we cannot take extra trouble for your sake.

MISHNAH. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: A MAN MAY NOT HEAT WATER FOR HIS FEET¹⁹ UNLESS IT IS ALSO FIT FOR DRINKING;²⁰ BUT BETH HILLEL PERMIT IT. A MAN MAY MAKE A FIRE AND WARM HIMSELF AT IT.

GEMARA. The scholars asked: Who taught this [ruling] about fire? Is it the opinion of all, Beth Shammai drawing a distinction between the benefit of the whole body²¹ and the benefit of a single limb,²² or does Beth Hillel teach this, while Beth Shammai do not differentiate?²³ — Come and hear: Beth Shammai say: A man may not make a fire to warm himself at it; but Beth Hillel permit it.

MISHNAH. IN THREE THINGS RABBAN GAMALIEL WAS STRINGENT, IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE RULING OF BETH SHAMMAI: ONE MAY NOT STORE AT THE OUTSET WARM WATER ON A FESTIVAL [FOR THE SABBATH],²⁴ AND ONE MAY NOT SET UP²⁵ A CANDLESTICK ON A FESTIVAL, AND ONE MAY NOT BAKE BREAD IN LARGE LOAVES²⁶ BUT ONLY IN THIN WAFERS. RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID: NEVER DID MY FATHER'S HOUSEHOLD BAKE BREAD IN LARGE LOAVES BUT ONLY IN THIN WAFERS. SAID THEY TO HIM: WHAT CAN WE DO WITH YOUR FATHER'S HOUSEHOLD, WHO WERE STRINGENT TOWARDS THEMSELVES AND LENIENT TO ALL ISRAEL, [PERMITTING THEM] TO BAKE BREAD BOTH IN LARGE LOAVES AND THICK CAKES.

GEMARA. What are the circumstances? If he has set an 'erub tabshilin, what is the reason of Beth Shammai?²⁷ And if he had not set an 'erub tabshilin, what is the reason of Beth Hillel?²⁸ — Said R. Huna: In truth I can say that he did not set an 'erub tabshilin but the Rabbis²⁹ permitted him [to prepare]³⁰ what is necessary for his sustenance; and R. Huna follows his view: for R. Huna said: He who did not set an 'erub tabshilin, others³¹ may bake one loaf for him and cook one dish for him and light [one] candle for him. It was said in the name of R. Isaac: They may also grill a small fish for him. It was taught likewise: He who did not set an erub tabshilin, one may bake one loaf for him and store one dish for him and light [one] candle for him and heat one jug of water for him, while some maintain: They may also grill a small fish for him.¹ Raba says: In truth it treats of a case where he did set [an 'erub tabshilin], but storing [hot water] is different for it is evident that he is doing it for the sake of the Sabbath.² Abaye raised an objection:³ Hananiah says [that] Beth Shammai maintain: One may bake only if he set an 'erub of bread and one may cook only if he set an 'erub of cooked food, and one may store only if he had already warm water stored on the eve of the Festival. But if he had stored water, it is [as implied] at any rate allowed, even though it is evident that he is doing it for the sake of the Sabbath! Therefore said Abaye: [It⁴ treats of a case] when for example he set an 'erub for the one⁵ and did not set an 'erub for the other,⁶ and the author is Hananiah according to Beth Shammai.

(1) Thus R. Akiba permits the preparation of animal's food, while R. Jose forbids it.

AND ONE MAY NOT SET UP A CANDLESTICK: What does he do?⁷ — Said R. Hinena b. Bisna: We are dealing with [a jointed] candlestick composed of parts, [the reason being] because it looks like building;⁸ for Beth Shammai hold:⁹ Building applies [also] to utensils and Beth Hillel maintain: Neither building nor pulling down apply to utensils. 'Ulla visited Rab Judah and his attendant arose and set up the lamp¹⁰ [on the Festival]. Rab Judah raised an objection to 'Ulla: He who puts oil in a [burning] lamp [on a Sabbath] is culpable on account of kindling, and he who draws supplies from it is culpable on account of extinguishing.¹¹ — He replied: I was not paying attention to it.

Rab said: Snuffing [the wick] is permitted [on a Festival]. Abba b. Martha asked Abaye: May one extinguish the lamp for something else?¹² — He replied: It is possible [to take place] in another room. What if he has no other room? — It is possible to make a partition. What if he has nothing wherewith to make a partition? — It is possible to cover it [the light] with a vessel. What if he has no vessel? — He replied: It is forbidden.¹³ He raised an objection: One may not extinguish a log in order to save it,¹⁴ but it is permitted [to extinguish it] so that a room or a pot does not become smoky!¹⁵ — He replied: This is the opinion of R. Judah,¹⁶ but I am speaking according to the view of the Rabbis.¹⁷ Abaye asked Rabbah: May one extinguish a conflagration on a Festival? When danger of life is involved I do not ask, for [this] is permitted even on a Sabbath; I only ask when a loss of money [alone] is involved: What is the law? — He replied: It is forbidden. He raised an objection: One may not extinguish a log in order to save it, but it is permitted [to extinguish it] so that the room or a pot does not become smoky!¹⁸ — This is the opinion of R. Judah, but I am speaking according to the view of the Rabbis.

R. Ashi asked Amemar: May one [medically] paint the eyes on a Festival? When there is a danger, for example of discharge, pricking [pain], congestion, watering, inflammation or the first stages of sickness, I do not ask, for [then] it is permissible even on the Sabbath;¹⁹ I only ask when the sickness is almost cured and it [the painting] is only to give brightness to the eyes.²⁰ What is the law? — He replied: It is forbidden. He raised the objection: ‘You may not extinguish a log [etc.]’ and he answered the same as we have answered.²¹

Amemar permitted the eye to be painted [medically] by a heathen on a Sabbath. Some say: Amemar himself allowed his eye to be painted by a heathen on a Sabbath. R. Ashi said to Amemar: What is your opinion, because ‘Ulla the son of R. Illai said: All that a sick man needs may be performed by a heathen on a Sabbath? And R. Hamnuna [further] said: In all cases where there is no danger one may tell a heathen to do it? But this is only when he does not himself help him, but you, Sir, assist him by closing and opening the eye! — He replied: R. Zebid made the same objection and I answered him: Helping is of no consequence.

Amemar permitted to paint the eyes on the second day of the New Year's Feast. R. Ashi said to Amemar: But Raba said: On the first day of a Festival Gentiles [only] may busy themselves with a corpse, [but] on the second day Israelites may do it, and even on the two Festival days of the New Year which how ever is not the case with respect to an egg?¹ — He replied: I hold as the Nehardeans who say: [The same holds good] even with respect to an egg; for what is in your mind: perhaps [the month of] Elul will be intercalated?² Surely R. Hinena b. Kahana said:³ From the days of Ezra and onward we do not find Elul ever intercalated.

AND ONE MAY NOT BAKE BREAD IN LARGE LOAVES BUT ONLY IN THIN WAFERS: Our Rabbis taught: Beth Shammai say: One may not bake thick bread on Passover,⁴ but Beth Hillel permit it; and how much is regarded as thick bread? — Said Rab Huna: A handbreadth, for so we find with respect to the Shewbread [that the loaves were] a handbreadth [in thickness].⁵ To this Rab Joseph demurred: If they allowed⁶ this for experts,⁷ did they also permit it to non-experts?⁸ If they allowed it in the case of well-kneaded bread,⁹ are they also to allow it with respect to bread which is not well-kneaded?¹⁰ If they allowed it in the case of dry wood,¹¹ would they allow it in the case of moist wood?¹² If they allowed it in the case of a hot oven,¹³ would they allow it in the case of a cold oven?¹⁴ If they allowed it in the case of a metal oven,¹⁵ would they allow it in the case of a clay oven?¹⁶ Said R. Jeremiah b. Abba: I asked my teacher (viz., Rab) privately, what is meant by ‘thick bread’ [and he replied:] a large quantity of bread.¹⁷ Others say: R. Jeremiah b. Abba said in Rab's name: I asked my teacher (viz., Rabbi the Holy),¹⁸ privately, what is meant by ‘thick bread’, [and he replied:] a large quantity of bread. And why do they call it ‘thick bread’? — Because there is more kneading to be done.¹⁹ Alternatively: In the district of this Tanna they called a large quantity of bread thick bread — Consider: [the reason is] that he labours unnecessarily.²⁰ [Then] why teach [particularly] about Passover, this should hold good of other Festivals as well? — It is even so, only the Tanna was dealing with Passover. It was taught likewise: Beth Shammai say: One may not bake a large quantity of bread on a Festival, but Beth Hillel permit it.

MISHNAH. HE²¹ FURTHERMORE GAVE THREE LENIENT RULINGS:²² ONE MAY SWEEP A DINING-ROOM²³ AND PUT THE SPICES²⁴ [ON THE FIRE] ON A FESTIVAL, AND ONE MAY PREPARE A ‘HELMETED’ KID ON PASSOVER NIGHT.²⁵ BUT THE SAGES FORBID THESE.²⁶

GEMARA. R. Assi said: The dispute is [only with respect] to perfuming [clothes],²⁷ but when it is for smelling all agree that it is permitted. An objection was raised: One may not sweep a dining-room on a Festival, but in the house of Rabban Gamaliel they did Sweep. R. Eleazar b. Zadok said: Frequently I accompanied my father to the house of Rabban Gamaliel and [observed that] they did not sweep the dining-room on a Festival but they swept it on the eve of the Festival and covered it with sheets. On the morrow when guests came they removed the sheets with the result that the room was automatically swept. They said to him: If so, it is permitted to do the same even on the Sabbath. And one may not put the spices [on the fire] on a Festival, but in the house of Rabban Gamaliel they did put. Said R. Eleazar b. Zadok: Frequently I accompanied my father to the house of Rabban Gamaliel and [observed that] they did not put the spices [on the fire] on a Festival, but they used to bring in iron censers and fill them with the perfume of the incense on the eve of the Festival and stop up the vent-holes on the eve of the Festival. On the morrow when guests came they opened the vent-holes with the result that the room was automatically perfumed. They said to him: If so, it is permitted to do the same even on a Sabbath.²⁸ But if stated it was thus stated: R. Assi said: The dispute is when it is for smelling, but when it is for perfuming [clothes] it is forbidden. The scholars asked: May one fumigate²⁹ [fruits] on a Festival? R. Jeremiah b. Abba in Rab's name says: It is forbidden;³⁰ but Samuel says: It is permissible. R. Huna says: It is forbidden because he extinguishes [the charcoal].³¹ Said R. Nahman to him: Let the Master say because he kindles³² [the spices]? — He answered him: At first he extinguishes and afterwards he kindles.³³ Rab Judah says: On charcoal fire it is forbidden,³⁴

(6) Lit., ‘said’.

- (7) I.e., priests who were acquainted with the preparation of the Shewbread. Cf. Yoma 38a.
- (8) Inexperienced bakers might allow the thick dough to become leavened.
- (9) Such as was essential for the Shewbread (Men. 76a). Well-kneaded dough does not easily become sour.
- (10) There is no guarantee that the dough in private houses would be well-kneaded.
- (11) Such as was used in the Temple (v. Ta'an 31a) and which gives a clear fire and bakes quickly.
- (12) Which smoulders and does not give forth much heat.
- (13) The oven in the Temple was heated daily and never got quite cold.
- (14) I.e., an oven that was allowed to get cold and afterwards heated.
- (15) Such as was used in the Temple (v. Zeb. 95b) and which gives forth good heat and keeps the heat long.
- (16) Surely not! — In the Temple all these favourable conditions were present but they might be absent elsewhere.
- (17) More than is necessary for the Festival, thus doing more work than he should.
- (18) For this title of Rabbi Judah, the Prince, cf. Shab. p. 118b.
- (19) Lit., 'there is increase in kneading it'.
- (20) And not because the dough might become leaven as previously presumed.
- (21) Rabban Gamaliel.
- (22) Lit., 'said three things for leniency'.
- (23) Lit., 'couches' used as dining tables.
- (24) For the purpose of perfuming the room. V. Ber. (Cohen) p. 279 n. 6.
- (25) I.e., a kid roasted whole with its knees and inwards hanging outside. The Passover-offering was roasted in that manner in the days of the Temple; consequently the Sages forbade this after the destruction of the Temple, since sacrifices might not be brought then. Rabban Gamaliel, however, permits it.
- (26) They forbid sweeping because of the filling up of cavities, and they forbid spices because this only applies to epicureans or to people possessing repugnant odours, cf. Keth. 7a (Rashi).
- (27) It is then that the Sages prohibit because the perfuming of the clothes is not directly one's personal pleasure.
- (28) The Rabbis would never have disagreed in such a case. Since they do disagree, however, R. Gamaliel must have permitted the putting of spices on the fire on the Festival. They must then have assumed either that R. Eleazar b. Zadok's memory was at fault or that R. Gamaliel, while in truth holding that it was permitted, did not act on his view out of deference to the Sages who were in a majority. Incidentally we see that the Sages prohibit it even for smelling.
- (29) For eating purposes, by placing them over spices on burning coals.
- (30) Because it is only an epicurean luxury.
- (31) When sprinkling the spices over it.
- (32) And kindling is forbidden unless it is for the general preparation of food.
- (33) The first effect of his action is to extinguish (i.e. dim) the coals; that is followed by the spices catching fire; R. Nahman quoted the first only.
- (34) For there is both extinguishing and kindling.

on [hot] sherds¹ it is permitted;² but Rabbah maintains: On [hot] sherds it is also forbidden because he generates a fragrance [in the sherd].³ Rabba and R. Joseph both say: It is forbidden to invert a box [of aromatics] on silken garments on a Festival, because he is producing a fragrance [in the garments]. And why is [this case] different from [the Baraitha]: One may rub it [aromatic wood] and smell it and one may nip off a bit of it and smell it?⁴ — There the fragrance is indeed present and one only increases the smell, [whilst] here he produces a fragrance [in the garments].

Raba [however] says: On charcoal too it is permitted, [for it is] just as roasting meat on a charcoal [fire].⁵ R. Gebiha from Be Kathil⁶ expounded at the door of the Exilarch: Kittura⁷ is allowed. Amemar said to him: What [is meant by] Kittura? If it means the plaiting of sleeves, [creasing of garments] then it is a craftsman's work;⁸ and if [it means] to fumigate, it is [surely] forbidden for he indeed extinguishes! — Said R. Ashi to him: In truth [it means] to fumigate, but it is analogous to roasting meat on a charcoal fire. Some teach: Amemar said to him: What is [meant by] Kittura? If it means the plaiting of sleeves, then it is a craftsman's work; and if [it means] to fumigate, it is [surely] forbidden, for he produces a perfume! — Said R. Ashi: I told it to him, and in the name of a great man did I tell it to him: In truth [it means] to fumigate, but it is analogous to roasting meat on a charcoal fire.

AND ONE MAY PREPARE A 'HELMETED' KID: It was taught: R. Jose said Theodosius of Rome introduced among the community of Rome the practice of eating a helmeted kid on Passover night. They [the Rabbis] sent [word] to him: If you were not Theodosius, we would have condemned you to excommunication, for you are causing the children of Israel to eat consecrated [animals] outside of Jerusalem. Do you really mean consecrated [animals]?⁹ — Say rather: [That which is] similar to consecrated [animals].¹⁰

MISHNAH. THREE THINGS R. ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH PERMITTED AND THE SAGES FORBADE: HIS COW WAS LED OUT [ON A SABBATH] WITH A LEATHER STRAP BETWEEN HER HORNS,¹¹ AND [HE ALSO RULED THAT] ONE MAY CURRY CATTLE ON A FESTIVAL,¹² AND ONE MAY GRIND PEPPER IN A PEPPER MILL.¹³ R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE MAY NOT CURRY CATTLE ON A FESTIVAL BECAUSE IT MAKES A WOUND THEREBY, BUT ONE MAY COMB;¹⁴ BUT THE SAGES SAY: ONE MAY NEITHER CURRY NOR COMB.

GEMARA. Shall it be said that R. Eleazar b. Azariah had [only] one cow, surely Rab — some say, Rab Judah in Rab's name — said: R. Eleazar b. Azariah had given as tithe thirteen thousand calves yearly from his herd? — It was taught: It was not his cow but of a neighbouring lady, and because he did not restrain her, it [is referred to as his].¹⁵

AND ONE MAY CURRY CATTLE ON A FESTIVAL. Our Rabbis taught: What is currying and what is combing? Currying is done with a small toothed [comb] and causes wounds; combing is done with a large toothed [comb] and does not cause wounds; and there are three views with respect to this: R. Judah maintains: An unintentional act¹⁶ is forbidden, but currying is done with fine teeth and causes wounds, [while] combing is done with large teeth and does not cause wounds, and we do not preventively prohibit combing on account of currying. The Sages are likewise of R. Judah's opinion that an unintentional act is forbidden, but they preventively prohibit combing on account of currying;¹⁷ and R. Eleazar b. Azariah holds as R. Simeon who says: An unintentional act is permitted, [hence] both currying and combing is allowed.

Raba in the name of R. Nahman in the name of Samuel said: — some say, R. Nahman himself said — the halachah is as R. Simeon, since R. Eleazar b. Azariah agrees with him. Said Raba to R. Nahman: Let the Master say the halachah is as R. Judah since the Sages agree with him? — He replied to him: I hold as R. Simeon, and furthermore R. Eleazar b. Azariah agrees with him.

(1) Lit., 'on a fragment of pottery'.

(2) For extinguishing does not apply here and the kindling is performed in an unusual way, which is not prohibited Biblically (Rashi).

(3) I.e., he creates something new in the sherd which was absent before, and this the Rabbis forbade.

(4) Infra 33b.

(5) Which is permitted, although here too there is extinguishing and kindling while the odour of the meat enters the coals.

(6) On the Tigris, N. of Bagdad. Obermeyer, p. 143.

(7) The word has two meanings (a) plaiting (b) perfuming and he did not specify what he meant.

(8) Which is certainly forbidden.

(9) But they were not consecrated.

(10) V. p. 116, n. 9.

(11) Because he regarded such halter as an ornament. The Sages, however, regarded it as a burden.

- (12) With a fine comb.
- (13) Lit., 'in their mill'.
- (14) Rashi: with a blunt-toothed wooden comb or scraper.
- (15) Lit., 'is called by his name'.
- (16) As the causing of a wound through the combing.
- (17) If the former is permitted, people will do the latter too.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 23b

MISHNAH. A PEPPER-MILL IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO DEFILEMENT ON ACCOUNT OF [IT CONSISTING OF] THREE [SEPARATE] UTENSILS;¹ ON ACCOUNT OF A RECEPTACLE,² ON ACCOUNT OF A METAL UTENSIL³ AND ON ACCOUNT OF A SIFTING UTENSIL.⁴

GEMARA. It was taught: The lower part [becomes defiled] as a receptacle; the middle part as a sifting utensil; the upper part as a metal vessel.

MISHNAH. A CHILD'S GO-CART IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO THE DEFILEMENT OF MIDRAS,⁵ AND IT MAY BE HANDLED ON SABBATH,⁶ AND IT MAY BE PULLED ALONG ONLY ON MATTING.⁷ R. JUDAH SAYS: NO ARTICLES MAY BE DRAGGED [ALONG THE FLOOR] EXCEPT A WAGON BECAUSE IT [ONLY] PRESSES⁸ [THE EARTH] DOWN.

GEMARA. A CHILD'S GO-CART IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO THE DEFILEMENT OF MIDRAS, because he [the child] supports himself thereon;⁹ AND IT MAY BE HANDLED ON SABBATH, because it is considered a utensil;

AND IT MAY BE PULLED ALONG ONLY ON MATTING; only on matting but not on the earth. What is the reason? Because he makes a rut [furrow]:¹⁰ the author of this is [therefore] R. Judah who says: An unintentional act is forbidden; for if it were R. Simeon, surely he maintains: An unintentional act is permitted; for it was taught: R. Simeon says: A man may drag along a bed, stool or bench [on the floor], provided he has no intention of making a furrow. [But] read the last clause: R. JUDAH SAYS: NOTHING MAY BE DRAGGED [ALONG THE FLOOR] ON THE SABBATH EXCEPT A WAGON BECAUSE IT [ONLY] PRESSES [THE EARTH] DOWN; Only because it presses it down but it does not make a furrow? — There are two Tannaim¹¹ who differ as to the opinion of R. Judah.

C H A P T E R I I I

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT CATCH FISH FROM A FISHPOND ON A FESTIVAL¹² NOR GIVE THEM FOOD,¹³ BUT ONE MAY CATCH VENISON OR GAME FROM ANIMAL ENCLOSURES AND ONE MAY PUT FOOD BEFORE THEM. RABBAN SIMEON R. GAMALIEL SAYS: NOT ALL ENCLOSURES ARE ALIKE. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE:

(1) So that even if one part were missing the rest counts as complete utensils and can become unclean (Rashi). Tosaf: if one part became defiled the other parts are not affected.

(2) In contrast to flat wooden vessels which have no hollow for receiving and cannot become unclean. V. Kelim. XI, 1.

(3) V. Kelim. XI, 2. Even a flat metal utensil can become unclean.

(4) V. Kelim. XVI, 3, XVII, 4.

(5) V. Glos.

(6) Since it really is a utensil. That which does not rank as a utensil may not be handled.

(7) In order not to make a rut. Their floors were earthen.

(8) But does not turn it up into a furrow.

(9) It is therefore considered a stool.

(10) I.e., he breaks the surface of the ground, being in the nature of ploughing.

(11) One holds that a go-cart is regarded as any other piece of furniture and may not be dragged along because it may skid and turn up the earth as a plough, and the other holds the wheels only press down the earth but do not make a rut.

(12) Because this could have been done before the Festival.

(13) Because they can look after themselves.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 24a

WHENEVER CHASING IS STILL NECESSARY¹ IT IS FORBIDDEN² BUT WHERE CHASING IS NOT STILL NECESSARY IT IS PERMITTED.

GEMARA. Now the scholars pointed out a contradiction: One may not catch [animals] from enclosures of venison and game on a Festival nor may one put food before them. Thus the rulings on venison are contradictory and those on game are contradictory. As for the rulings on venison, it is well and there is no difficulty, one agreeing with R. Judah, the other with the Sages. For we have learnt: R. Judah says: If [on a Sabbath] one hunts a bird into a tower-trap or a gazelle into a house he is culpable³ — (only [if he drives it] into a house is he culpable but not into an enclosure).⁴ But the Sages say: [If he drives] a bird into a tower-trap or a gazelle [even] into a garden, a court or an enclosure [he is culpable].⁵ But the rulings on game are contradictory! And if you say, this also presents no difficulty, for the one treats of a roofed enclosure and the other of an unroofed enclosure, — surely a house is like a roofed enclosure and [yet] according to both R. Judah and the Sages [he is liable] only [if he drove] a bird into a tower-trap but not into a house! — Said Rabbah b. Huna: We treat here⁶ of a wild bird which does not submit to taming.⁷ For the School of R. Ishmael taught: Why is it called free-bird, because it dwells in the house as in the fields.⁸ Now that you have come to this [explanation],⁹ there is no contradiction in the rulings on venison, [for] the one refers to a small enclosure; the other, to a large enclosure.¹⁰ What is 'a small enclosure' [and] what is 'a large enclosure'? — Said R. Ashi: Whenever one runs after it [the animal] and catches it with one lunge,¹¹ It is a small enclosure, otherwise it is a large enclosure. Alternatively: If there are many corners [whither it can escape] it is a large enclosure, otherwise it is a small enclosure. Alternatively: whenever the shadow of one wall falls upon the other,¹² it is a small enclosure, otherwise it is a large enclosure.

RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: NOT ALL ENCLOSURES ARE ALIKE etc. R. Joseph said in the name of Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: The halachah is as Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel. Abaye said to him: 'The halachah is [etc.],' from which it would follow that they [the Sages] dispute it!¹³ — He said to him: What practical difference does it make to you?¹⁴ — He replied to him: Is a lesson to be recited as a sing-song?¹⁵

THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHENEVER CHASING IS STILL NECESSARY, etc.: What is meant by CHASING IS STILL NECESSARY? Said R. Joseph in the name of Samuel: Whensoever one has to say, 'Bring a trap so that we may catch it'.¹⁶ Said Abaye to him: But what of geese and hens where one [also] says, 'Bring a net so that we may catch it', and yet it was taught: He who catches geese, hens or Herodian doves¹⁷ he is free! Said Rabbah son of R. Huna in the name of Samuel: These come at night into their coops [for roosting],¹⁸ but those do not come at night into their coops. But what of doves of a dovecote and doves of a loft which [likewise] come at night into their coops, and yet it was taught: He who catches doves of a dovecote or doves of a loft or birds nesting in nests¹⁹ or in a residence²⁰ is liable? — Rather, said Rabbah son of R. Huna in the name of Samuel: These come at night into their coops and their feeding is your obligation,²¹ but those come at night into their coops but you are not obliged to feed them. R. Mari says: These are in the habit of fleeing, but those make no attempt to flee. But surely all of them make an attempt to flee! — I mean they are wont to flee to their nests.²²

MISHNAH. IF TRAPS FOR WILD ANIMALS, BIRDS OR FISH WERE SET ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL, ONE MAY NOT TAKE FROM THEM ON THE FESTIVAL UNLESS HE KNOWS THAT THEY WERE [ALREADY] CAUGHT ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL; AND IT ONCE HAPPENED THAT A CERTAIN GENTILE BROUGHT FISH TO RABBAN GAMALIEL WHO SAID: THEY ARE PERMITTED, BUT I HAVE NO WISH TO ACCEPT [THEM] FROM HIM.²³

GEMARA. You quote an incident to contradict [the teaching of the Mishnah]! — There is a lacuna in the text and learn thus: When a doubt prevails whether it is in mukan,²⁴ it is forbidden, but Rabban Gamaliel Permits it: AND IT ONCE HAPPENED THAT A CERTAIN GENTILE BROUGHT FISH TO RABBAN GAMALIEL, WHO SAID: THEY ARE PERMITTED BUT I HAVE NO WISH TO ACCEPT [THEM] FROM HIM.

Rab Judah said in the name of Samuel: The halachah is not as Rabban Gamaliel. Some recited it [the statement of Samuel] with reference to the [following] teaching: When a doubt prevails whether it was mukan, Rabban Gamaliel permits and R. Joshua prohibits. Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: The halachah is as R. Joshua.

Some [again] recite it with reference to the following teaching:

- (1) Lit., 'whenever the hunting is wanting', i.e., if the enclosure is large and great effort in pursuing the game is requisite.
 - (2) Because it is regarded as hunting.
 - (3) For having transgressed the Sabbath because these are now quite caught. Hunting is forbidden on the Sabbath, but liability is not incurred unless the act of hunting is complete and the animal actually caught.
 - (4) For there is still effort required to catch the animal.
 - (5) V. Shab. 106a. Thus all agree that the chasing of a bird into a house does not involve liability, the bird not being regarded as caught.
 - (6) With respect to chasing a bird on Sabbath.
 - (7) Even when chased into a house it cannot easily be captured.
 - (8) Even when in the house it is not domesticated.
 - (9) That the apparent contradiction in the rulings on game may be reconciled without assuming a controversy of Tannaim.
 - (10) And both rulings state the view of the Sages.
 - (11) The space being too small to allow escape.
 - (12) The walls were of ordinary height.
 - (13) Which is not the case, for the Sages too draw a distinction between a large enclosure and a small one.
 - (14) Since the halachah remains true.
 - (15) Whether correct or not.
 - (16) I.e., means are still required for catching it.
 - (17) [Domesticated indoor doves, supposed to have been bred by Herod. V. Krauss, T.A. II, p. 138].
 - (18) Where it is easy to catch them, and therefore they are regarded as permanently caught.
 - (19) Lit., 'pitcher-shaped (vessels)' put up in walls or cornices as birds' nests. V. fast., s.v. טפיה.
 - (20) [Var. lec. (a) 'or residences'; (b) 'or pits', v. infra p. 127, n. 16.]
 - (21) Therefore they are regarded as any domestic animal which is always ready for food.
 - (22) So that great effort is needed before they are caught.
 - (23) Because he did not like the man.
 - (24) I.e., prepared before the Festival. V. Glos.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 24b

One may slaughter [animals] out of enclosures¹ on a Festival but not out of hunting-nets or gins;² R.

Simeon b. Eleazar says: If he came on the eve of the Festival and finds them [the nets or gins]³ damaged, [then] it is certain that they were caught on the eve of the Festival and [consequently] they are permitted; but if he came on the Festival and finds them damaged, it is certain that they were caught on the Festival and are [therefore] prohibited. Now this is self-contradictory. [First] you say: If he came on the eve of the Festival and finds them damaged it is certain that they were caught on the eve of the Festival. Hence it is only because he came and found them damaged; but if a doubt exists, they are forbidden. Consider then the latter clause: If he came on the Festival and finds them damaged, it is certain that they were caught on the Festival: Thus it is only because he came and found them damaged [on the Festival]; but if a doubt exists [then I say] they were caught on the eve of the Festival and are [therefore] permitted? — This is what he means: If he came on the eve of the Festival and found them damaged, it is certain that they were caught on the eve of the Festival and are permitted; but if a doubt exists it is regarded as if they had been caught on the Festival and they are forbidden. Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: The halachah is as R. Simeon b. Eleazar.

WHO SAID: THEY ARE PERMITTED. For what purpose are they permitted? — Rab says: They are permitted to be received,⁴ and Levi says: They are permitted to be eaten. Said Rab: A man should never absent himself from the Academy even for a single hour, for I and Levi were both present when Rabbi taught this lesson. In the evening he said: They are permitted to be eaten; but on the [following] morning he said: They are permitted to be received. I who was present in the Academy retracted, [but] Levi who was not present in the Academy did not retract.

An objection is raised: If a Gentile brings a present to an Israelite, even slimy fish or fruit [gathered] on the same day, they are permitted.⁵ This is well on the view that they are permitted to be received.⁶ But on the view that they are permitted to be eaten, is then fruit [picked] on the same day permitted to be eaten?⁷ — Now even according to your reasoning, is then fruit [gathered] on the same day permitted to be handled? But we treat here of fish that are red at the gills⁸ and of fruit preserved in leaves.⁹ And why does he call them ‘of the same day’? Because they are [as fresh] as [if they had been gathered] on the same day. R. Papa said: The law is: If a Gentile brought a present¹⁰ to an Israelite on a Festival, [then] if there is of that kind still attached to the ground it is prohibited,¹¹ and in the evening it is also prohibited for as long a time as it takes to gather;¹² but if there is nothing of the same kind attached to the earth, [then] within the tehumi¹³ it is permitted,

(1) Since they are already there on the eve of the Festival, when they are regarded as fully caught. Lit., ‘dykes’, so called because they contain pools of water for the animals to drink.

(2) Because they may have been caught on the day of the Festival.

(3) [I.e., the long ropes or cords to which the nets proper are attached and which tend to become loosened when an animal is caught at the far distant end].

(4) I.e., to be handled, but not to be eaten.

(5) This teaching is evidently in accordance with Rabban Gamaliel.

(6) For although it is almost definite that they have been gathered on the Festival, yet he permits them only to be received.

(7) Surely not!

(8) They are fresh but have been caught for some time.

(9) To keep them fresh, but which had really been gathered before the Festival.

(10) Of freshly gathered fruit.

(11) Since they were possibly gathered on the Festival.

(12) In order not to benefit from work performed on the Festival.

(13) V. Glos. I.e., if the fruit were brought from within the Sabbath limit.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 25a

but outside the tehumi it is prohibited. And what is brought [from outside the tehumi] for one

Israelite¹ is permitted for another Israelite.² Rabbah son of R. Huna said in Rab's name: If one stops up a pond [from a stream] on the eve of a Festival³ and on the following morning he finds fish therein, they are permitted.⁴ Said R. Hisda: From the words of our Master⁵ we learn [that] if a wild beast takes up its abode in an orchard, predetermination [of the young for the Festival] is not necessary.⁶ Said R. Nahman: Our colleague has fallen among the great.⁷ (Some say: Rabbah son of R. Huna said: From the words of our Master we learn [that] if an animal takes up its abode in an orchard predetermination is not necessary. Said R. Nahman: The son of our colleague has fallen among the great — There he has not performed an action⁸ [whereas] here he did perform an action.)⁹ Does it¹⁰ then not require [special] predetermination?¹¹ Surely it was taught: If an animal takes up its abode in all orchard it requires predetermination, and a free bird¹² must be tied by her wings¹³ so that it should not be mistaken for its mother, and this they averred in the name of Shemaiah and Abtalion! — This is [indeed] a refutation.¹⁴ Does it then require predetermination? Surely it was taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel agree that if he determined on doves within the nest and finds them in front of the nest they are forbidden;¹⁵ this only applies to doves of a dovecote or doves of a loft and birds nesting in nests and pits;¹⁶ but geese, hens and Herodian doves¹⁷ and animals having their abodes in orchards are permitted and do not require predetermination; and a free-bird must be tied by its wings so that it should not be mistaken for its mother; and those that were tied up and those that have been handled,¹⁸ [if found] in pits, houses, dykes or trenches are permitted,¹⁹ but [if] on trees they are forbidden lest he climb up and pluck [fruit at the same time]; and those that are tied and those that have been handled, wherever they are found²⁰ are forbidden on account of robbery!²¹ — Said R. Nahman: There is no difficulty: the one applies to the young bird,²² the other to its mother.²³ Is then determination [alone] sufficient for the mother-bird; it still requires to be caught?²⁴ Rather said R. Nahman b. Isaac: Both treat of the young, but the one refers to a garden near the city²⁵ and the other refers to a garden which is not situated near [the city].

MISHNAH. ONE MAY SLAUGHTER [ON A FESTIVAL] AN ANIMAL AT THE POINT OF DEATH ONLY IF THERE IS TIME ENOUGH ON THAT DAY TO EAT THEREOF AS MUCH AS AN OLIVE OF ROASTED FLESH.²⁶ R. AKIBA SAYS: EVEN [IF THERE IS ONLY TIME TO EAT] AS MUCH AS AN OLIVE OF RAW FLESH [TAKEN] FROM THE PLACE OF SLAUGHTER.²⁷ IF HE SLAUGHTERED IT²⁸ IN THE FIELD, HE MAY NOT BRING IT IN ON A POLE OR A BARROW,²⁹ BUT HE BRINGS IT IN PIECE BY PIECE IN HIS HAND.

GEMARA. Rami b. Abba said: Flaying and cutting up [is required] in the case of a burnt-offering,³⁰ and the same holds good with respect to butchers:³¹ the Torah teaches in this good breeding³² that one should not eat flesh before flaying and cutting up. What does he inform us?³³ If I were to say that it is to reject the opinion of R. Huna, who said: An animal, when alive, stands in the presumption of a forbidden object until you ascertain how it was slaughtered;³⁴ once it is slaughtered, it stands in the presumption of being permitted until it becomes known to you how it became trefa³⁵ — but surely we have learnt in our Mishnah as R. Huna, for we have learnt: R. Akiba Says: EVEN [IF THERE IS ONLY TIME TO EAT] AS MUCH AS AN OLIVE OR RAW FLESH [TAKEN] FROM THE PLACE OF SLAUGHTER; does it not mean literally 'from the place where it is slaughtered'?³⁶ — No, it [means] 'from the place where it digests the food'.³⁷ But R. Hiyya taught: [It means] literally 'from the place where it is slaughtered'? Rather, Rami b. Abba

(1) Who may not use it

(2) Since the law of tehum is only Rabbinical, the Rabbis were lenient (Rashi).

(3) So that no fish can come in.

(4) Although he did not know before the Festival that they had been trapped, for the fish in the pond are regarded as having been predetermined for use before the Festival.

(5) I.e., Rab.

(6) [They themselves are however forbidden since they need chasing, Asheri.]

- (7) He has made a statement about which there is great controversy.
- (8) The animal took up its abode of its own accord without the owner of the park enclosing it.
- (9) The act of stopping up. An action is a tacit predetermination.
- (10) An animal that took up its abode in an orchard.
- (11) As inferred by R. Hisda.
- (12) Living in a house as well as in a field.
- (13) [This kind of bird is very small so that the mother and its young are alike, hence a sign is necessary].
- (14) Of R. Hisda.
- (15) V. supra 11a.
- (16) So Rashi: Cur. edd.: 'And in a residence'.
- (17) V. supra p. 124, n. 1.
- (18) Before the Festival, and their owner recognizes them.
- (19) On the Festival.
- (20) On public property, even not on a Festival.
- (21) For the first person that handled them acquired ownership to them.
- (22) Which cannot escape.
- (23) Its mother, which is larger, requires predetermination.
- (24) And should be forbidden on the Festival.
- (25) The owner naturally would draw from that, and therefore he is regarded as having tacitly predetermined thereon.
- (26) Otherwise it would be preparing food on a Festival for the following day, which is forbidden.
- (27) I.e., from the neck without first having to flay the animal and cut it up.
- (28) Any animal.
- (29) This is not a way of paying due regard to the sanctity of the Festival.
- (30) Before the animal is placed on the altar; v. Lev. I, 6.
- (31) Before they sell the meat the animal must be flayed and cut up.
- (32) 'The way of the land'.
- (33) Does he merely teach good manners or state a prohibition? In the latter case, the reason would be that the animal might be found trefa (v. Glos.) when cut up, whence it follows that he regards an animal as a doubtful trefa even if nothing has been seen to cause this doubt.
- (34) The flesh is forbidden so long as it is not known that the animal was slaughtered according to prescribed ritual.
- (35) V. Glos. If a cause of trefa is discovered after shechitah, e.g., the lung is pierced, and it is not known whether this happened before shechitah or after, the animal is permitted. Cf. Hul. 9a. Thus he holds that we entertain no doubt at all once the animal is ritually slaughtered.
- (36) I.e., from the neck where flaying of the animal is not required. Hence we see that it is permissible to eat of the animal before it is flayed and cut up to discover any internal injury.
- (37) The word טבה has the wider significance 'to destroy and grind up', and under the term בית טביחתה the digestive organs are to be included, and in order to arrive at them, the animal must be cut up merely teaches us good manners, as it was taught:¹ A man should not begin to eat leek or onion from the top side, but from the leaves; and if he did eat, he is a glutton.² Likewise, a man should not drink his cup of wine in one draught; and if he did so drink, he is a swiller. Our Rabbis taught: He who drinks his beaker in one draught is greedy, in two [draughts] is well-mannered, in three [draughts] is haughty. Rami b. Abba further said: The ivy³ cuts off the feet⁴ of criminals;⁵ the [law concerning] young trees⁶ cuts off the feet of butchers⁷ and of those cohabiting with menstruous women;⁸ the lupine⁹ will cut off the feet of the enemies¹⁰ of Israel, for it is said: 'And the children of Israel again did that which has evil in the sight of the Lord, and served the Baalim, and the Ashtaroth, and the gods of Aram, and the gods of Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines, and they forsook the Lord, and served him not.'¹¹ From the implication of 'and they forsook the Lord', do I not know that 'they served Him not'? Then why does the text say, 'and they served him not'? Said R. Eleazar: The Holy One, blessed be He, said:

My children have not even treated Me like the lupine¹² which is boiled seven times and eaten as a dessert.

A Tanna taught in the name of R. Meir: Why was the Torah given to Israel? Because they are impetuous.¹³ The School of R. Ishmael taught: 'At His right hand was a fiery law unto them';¹⁴ the Holy One, blessed be He, said: These are worthy to be given the fiery law. Some say: The laws of these are like fire, for had not the Law been given to Israel no nation or tongue could withstand them. And this is what R. Simeon b. Lakish said: There are three distinguished in strength [fierce]: Israel among the nations,¹⁵ the dog among animals, [and] the cock among birds. Some say: Also the goat among small cattle. And some say: Also the caper-bush¹⁶ among shrubs.

IF HE SLAUGHTERED IT IN THE FIELD, HE MAY NOT BRING IT IN ON A POLE. Our Rabbis taught: A blind man may not go out [on a Festival] with his staff,¹⁷ nor a shepherd with his wallet, neither may a man or a woman go out in a palanquin. But it is not so! For R. Jacob b. Idi sent [word]: In our neighbourhood was an old man who was carried in his sedan-chair, and when they came and asked R. Joshua b. Levi [about this], he said: When a number of people need him it is permitted. And our Teachers relied on the words of Ahi Shakia who related: I brought¹⁸ R. Huna from Hini to Shili¹⁹ and from Shili to Hini; and R. Nahman b. Isaac narrated: I carried Mar Samuel from the sun into the shade and from the shade into the sun? — There it is as the reason stated: When a number of people need him it is permitted.

R. Nahman said to Hanna b. Adda, Zion's messenger:²⁰ When you go hither make a circuit and go over the Promontory of Tyre²¹ and visit R. Jacob b. Idi and ask him: What do you say with respect to a palanquin? Before he came there, R. Jacob b. Idi departed this life. When he arrived, he found R. Zerika. He asked him: How do you rule with respect to a palanquin? — He replied: Thus did R. Ammi say: [It is permissible] provided that he is not carried on the shoulders. What means 'provided that he is not carried on the shoulders'? — Said R. Joseph the son of Raba: By means of alanki.²² But it is not so, for R. Nahman permitted [his wife] Jaltha to be carried in a sedan-chair by means of alanki? — It is different with Jaltha for she was nervous.²³ Amemar and Mar Zutra were carried on the shoulders²⁴ on the Sabbath [preceding] the Festival²⁵ on account of nervousness, and some say, on account of troubling the public.²⁶

MISHNAH. IF A FIRSTLING²⁷ FELL INTO A PIT,²⁸ R. JUDAH SAYS: LET AN EXPERT GO DOWN AND INSPECT [IT];

(1) For we find even Tannaim giving instructions with respect to good manners.

(2) Likewise he who eats from the animal before it is flayed is a glutton.

(3) Used for boundary marks. The ivy is used for landmarks because its roots go straight down and do not obtrude into neighbouring land.

(4) I.e., convicts.

(5) Who perpetrate the removal of such landmarks.

(6) V. Lev. XIX, 23.

(7) Who eat of the flesh before the animal has been flayed and cut up and examined.

(8) I.e., before the woman has taken the ritual bath. As patience is required until the fourth year before the fruit is eaten, so We are to have patience and wait until the proper time before enjoying meat or conjugal privilege.

(9) The lupine is so bitter that it is not edible until it has been cooked seven times. So Israel has worshipped the seven idols mentioned in the following verse and was seven times chastened without amending.

(10) A euphemism for Israel itself.

(11) Judg. X, 6.

(12) The lupine after seven boilings is sweet, but although Israel has repented seven times and been forgiven, they still rebel and make me bitter towards them again.

(13) The Law was to discipline them.

- (14) Deut. XXXIII, 2.
- (15) But the Law tempers their strength.
- (16) Because of its rapid growing, for as soon as it is plucked it grows again. V. Shab. 30b.
- (17) Because of the disrespect to the Festival, since this is his everyday practice.
- (18) In a palanquin.
- (19) Hini and Shili are places in Babylon near Sura situated very close to each other.
- (20) He was so called because he frequently travelled to Palestine (Rash). Or, perhaps he was something like our modern משוֹלָח Palestine at this time was in a decaying state and needed support from abroad.
- (21) I.e., along the sea coast.
- (22) Poles used to carry burdens on the shoulders of two or more persons, Jast.
- (23) Of falling.
- (24) In the Beth ha-Midrash, to their seat. [MS.M. adds: by means of alanki].
- (25) When it was customary for them to lecture on the Festival laws.
- (26) Who would have to stand up and wait until these teachers made their way slowly through the crowd to the platform. But by being carried shoulder high (or by means of alanki) they were quickly carried through the gathering; cf., however, Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 30, n. 4.
- (27) Which may be slaughtered in post-Temple days for consumption by priests only when it has a blemish which would disqualify it for the altar. V. Deut. XV, 19-22.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 26a

IF IT HAD A BLEMISH¹ HE MAY BRING IT UP AND SLAUGHTER IT,² BUT IF NOT, HE MAY NOT SLAUGHTER IT. R. SIMEON SAYS: WHENEVER ITS BLEMISH WAS NOT OBSERVED ON THE DAY BEFORE THE FESTIVAL, IT IS NOT MUKAN.³

GEMARA. Wherein do they differ?⁴ If we are to say that they differ as to whether one may examine blemishes [on a Festival], R. Judah holding: One may examine blemishes on a Festival, while R. Simeon maintains: One may not examine blemishes on a Festival, then let them dispute whether one may examine blemishes in general [on a Festival]!⁵ — It is especially necessary [to teach this] with respect to a firstling that fell into a pit; [for] you might have thought that on account of suffering of animals one might have recourse to an artifice and bring it up [from the pit] in accordance with R. Joshua,⁶ so he informs us [that it is not so]. If so, instead of HE MAY NOT SLAUGHTER IT, it should be stated, 'He may not bring it up⁷ and slaughter it!' — This [teaching] is necessary [only] where he transgressed and brought it [the animal] up; you might think that he may slaughter it, so he informs us [that it is not so]. [But how could he possibly] slaughter it? Surely it is without blemish! — This is necessary [concerning the case] where it received a blemish.⁸ But it is mukzeh!⁹ — Rather, [it treats of a case] where it received a temporary [transient] blemish on the eve of the Festival and now [on the Festival] it turned into a permanent blemish; you might have thought that he [the owner] had set his mind upon it¹⁰ and he may therefore slaughter it; so he informs us¹¹ [that it is not so]. Our Rabbis taught: A firstling without blemish that fell into a pit. R. Judah the Prince¹² says: Let an expert go down [the pit] and examine it; if it has sustained a blemish, he may bring [it] up and slaughter [it],¹³ but if not, he may not slaughter [it]. R. Simeon b. Menasia said to him: They [the Rabbis]¹⁴ indeed said: One may not examine blemishes on a Festival. How [is this]¹⁵ to be explained? If it received a blemish on the eve of the Festival,¹⁶ one may not examine it on the Festival;¹⁷ if it received a blemish

(1) Rashi: If the firstling sustained a defect before the Festival, but it was not known until now whether the defect was such as to disqualify it for the altar.

(2) For its owner probably intended before the Festival to slaughter it on the Festival.

(3) I.e., no expert may go down to examine it, because the pronouncing of the blemish by the expert is regarded by R. Simeon as preparing a vessel, since before the examination of the expert it could not be used on the Festival, or as sitting in judgment, which is not permitted on a Festival (Rashi), v. infra 36a.

(4) It cannot be that they are disputing here with respect to mukzeh, because we have previously learnt that R. Judah prohibits mukzeh and R. Simeon permits it.

(5) Why particularly about a firstling that has fallen into a pit.

(6) V. Shab. 117b.

(7) Since on the present hypothesis this is the main purpose of the teaching.

(8) Through its fall.

(9) Since the firstling had no blemish before the Festival it may not be slaughtered on the Festival on account of mukzeh. V. Glos.

(10) On account of its temporary blemish.

(11) Since the blemish was of a temporary nature, it is regarded as if the firstling had no blemish at all and cannot be intended to be slaughtered.

(12) [Not to be confused with R. Judah in our Mishnah who is R. Judah b. Ila'i].

(13) R. Judah the Prince does not regard the firstling as mukzeh (Rashi).

(14) Of former generations.

(15) [The views of the Rabbis of former generations in which R. Simeon b. Yohai the teacher of R. Simeon b. Menasia is included].

(16) And it is not known whether the blemish was of a temporary nature or permanent.

(17) At the outset. But if it was examined, it may be slaughtered, since on the eve of the Festival it only lacked the expert's examination.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 26b

on the Festival, R. Simeon [b. Yohai] says: This is not mukan.¹ But they agree that if it is born [on a Festival] with a blemish it is regarded as mukan.²

Rabbah son of R. Huna expounded: If it is born with a blemish one may examine it at the outset on a Festival. R. Nahman said to him: My father taught: If he transgressed and examined it, it is an examination,³ and you say one may examine it at the outset'!

Abaye said: The opinion of Rabbah son of R. Huna⁴ is more acceptable, for it [the previous Baraitha] teaches three cases: [viz.,] 'If it received a blemish on the eve of the Festival you may not examine it on the Festival'; it is only at the outset that you may not [examine], but if it has been done it is well and good; 'If it received a blemish on the Festival, R. Simeon says: This is not mukan'? i.e., even if it has been examined it still may not [be slaughtered]; and then it states, 'But they agree that if it is born [on a Festival] with a blemish it is regarded as mukan', [i.e.,] even at the very outset.⁵ But surely when R. Oshaia came he brought with him the following teaching: Whether it received the blemish on the eve of the Festival, or whether it received the blemish on the Festival, the Sages⁶ say: This is not regarded as mukan!⁷ But then there is a contradiction from the other [Baraitha]!⁸ — The author of that Baraitha is Adda b. Ucmi who blunders in his teaching.⁹ R. Nahman b. Isaac said: Our Mishnah also proves this;¹⁰ for it states: R. Simeon says: WHENEVER ITS BLEMISH WAS NOT OBSERVED ON THE DAY BEFORE THE FESTIVAL IT IS NOT MUKAN. What means ITS BLEMISH WAS NOT OBSERVED? If I were to say that no blemish was visible at all,¹¹ [then] it is obvious; need this be taught?¹² Therefore [it means] that it was not examined by an expert on the eve of the Festival whether it was a passing blemish or a permanent blemish. Nevertheless it teaches IT IS NOT MUKAN;¹³ understand therefrom [that it is so]. [R.] Hillel¹⁴ asked Raba: Does the law of mukzeh apply to a part¹⁵ of the Sabbath or not? How can such a contingency arise? If they [the fruit] were fit at twilight¹⁶ they were fit;¹⁷ and if [at twilight] they were not fit, then they are not fit!¹⁸ — It applies to a case where [at twilight] they were fit¹⁹ but afterwards became unfit²⁰ and then again became fit.²¹ What is the law?²² He replied to him: The law of mukzeh applies. He raised an objection: 'But they agree that if it is born with a blemish it is regarded as mukan';²³ but why? Let us say: This firstling was originally²⁴ fit through its mother;²⁵ when it was born, it became debarred [from use];²⁶ on it being shown to an expert it became permitted!²⁷ — Answered Abaye — some say, R. Safra: It means for example that the experts were present there [at the time of birth].²⁸ Some teach: He replied to him: The law of mukzeh does not apply to a part of the Sabbath. Shall we say [the following] supports him? 'But they agree that if it is born with a blemish it is regarded as mukan'; now this firstling was originally fit through its mother; when it was born, it became debarred [from use]; on its being shown to an expert it became permitted! — Answered Abaye — some say, R. Safra: It means for example that the experts were present there [at the time of birth].

Come and hear: If one was eating grapes [on a Sabbath] and left some over, which he carried up on the roof to make from them raisins; [or was eating] figs and left some over which he carried up on the roof to make from them dry figs, he may eat of them [on the Festival] only if he had designated them before the Festival;²⁹ the same is true of peaches, quinces and other kinds of fruit.³⁰ Now what are the circumstances? If they were fit,³¹ why must he designate [them]? If [on the other hand] they were not fit, [then] what even if he does designate them?³² And if you say that he did not know³³ whether they were fit or not,³⁴ surely R. Kahana said: [Fruits] set aside [for drying] which had dried [before the eve of the Festival] even if the owners did not know it, are permitted!³⁵ Hence it must surely treat [of a case] where they were fit but [afterwards] became debarred from use and then again became fit, now if you maintain the law of mukzeh does not apply [to such a case] why is it necessary to designate them? — What then: the law of mukzeh does apply? Then what if he does designate them?³⁶ — Rather it treats of a case where they were only half fit,³⁷ some people eating them³⁸ and some not; if he designated them, he made known his mind,³⁹ [but] if he did not designate them he did not make known his mind. R. Zera said: Come and hear [an argument] from beans and lentils; for beans and lentils are in their raw state⁴⁰ fit for chewing; by putting them in a pot [for cooking] they become inedible;⁴¹

(1) And even if an expert did examine it, it still may not be slaughtered. For the reason v. supra p. 132, n. 9.

(2) Since the firstling was never in a condition of prohibition but from its birth was ready for use.

(3) I.e., his decision is valid.

(4) That it may be examined at the outset.

(5) If it were otherwise this clause should have been coupled with the first clause.

(6) I.e., R. Simeon.

(7) So that it is still possible to maintain that the teaching with respect to the firstling being born with a blemish refers only to a case de facto. How could then Abaye support the opinion of Rabbah son of R. Huna in face of this Baraita?

(8) Brought in support of Rabbah son of R. Huna. Which of these is the more authoritative?

(9) I.e., he is an unreliable authority.

(10) As supporting R. Oshaia.

(11) I.e., that it incurred no blemish at all.

(12) Even R. Judah, R. Simeon's disputant, would agree that it may not be slaughtered; for though he may hold that a blemish may be examined on a Festival, yet he maintains the law of mukzeh.

(13) Even in the case of de facto. Hence the last clause in the Baraita 'but they agree that if it is born with a blemish it is regarded as mukan' also refers only to a case de facto.

(14) A fourth century Amora.

(15) מְצִי = moiety or a part.

(16) Just before the Sabbath commences.

(17) And there was no part of the Sabbath during which they became mukzeh.

(18) And are certainly forbidden. — The question whether something was fit or not is always decided by its state at twilight.

(19) When for example fruits such as figs or grapes have been set apart for drying, i.e., to become dry figs or raisins, (during which process they are not edible) but at the commencement of the Sabbath the drying process had finished.

(20) Being swollen and puffed up by rain.

(21) The sun having dried them before the end of the Sabbath.

(22) Does the unfitness of part of the day render them mukzeh for the rest of the day?

- (23) V. supra.
- (24) I.e., at twilight.
- (25) Through the slaughtering of the mother-animal the embryo, though a firstling, is permitted even if it is unblemished. V. Deut. XV, 19.
- (26) Until an expert will establish the permanency of its blemish.
- (27) Hence this animal too was forbidden for a part of the day, yet it is not accounted mukzeh for the rest of day.
- (28) And immediately affirmed that it was a permanent blemish; hence at no time of the day was it mukzeh.
- (29) That if he would set aside fruits on the Sabbath or Festival to be dried, he should be allowed to eat them after they were dried.
- (30) V. Shab. 45a.
- (31) I.e., at twilight.
- (32) It is of no avail, for designation cannot change that which is mukzeh to mukan.
- (33) At twilight.
- (34) And as it was too much trouble for him to find out, he designated them by declaring, 'I will eat them to-morrow if they are fit'.
- (35) To be eaten without requiring any designation.
- (36) Why should they be permitted, since the unfitness intervened later.
- (37) Lit., 'fit and not fit'.
- (38) In this half fit condition.
- (39) That for him they were fit.
- (40) Lit., 'originally'.
- (41) So long as they are boiling. Lit., rejected (from use)'.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 27a

and when their cooking is finished they are [again] fit!¹ — Said Abaye to him: Then according to your reasoning,² cooked dishes in general present a difficulty; for usually dishes at twilight are seething³ and [yet] in the evening we eat them!⁴ But [the truth is] if they [can] become fit through human means, there is no question at all;⁵ our question⁶ is only when they become fit through heaven.⁷ R. Judah the Prince⁸ had a firstling and sent it [on the Festival] to R. Ammi.⁹ He however did not want to examine it. Said R. Zerika — some say, R. Jeremiah — to him: [In a dispute between] R. Judah and R. Simeon the halachah is as R. Judah!¹⁰ Afterwards he sent it to R. Isaac the Smith. He [too] did not want to examine it. Said R. Jeremiah — some say, R. Zerika — to him: [In a dispute between] R. Judah and R. Simeon the halachah is as R. Judah! Said R. Abba to him: Why did you not allow the Rabbis to act according to R. Simeon? He replied: What support have you?¹¹ — He said to him: Thus did R. Zera say: The halachah is as R. Simeon. A certain person exclaimed: May it fall to my lot to go thither [Palestine] and learn this teaching from the mouth of the Master. When he came thither he met R. Zera and asked him: Did you, Sir, say the halachah is as R. Simeon? — He replied to him: No, I [only] said, his view is to be preferred; for since our Mishnah states: R. SIMEON SAYS: WHENEVER ITS BLEMISH WAS NOT OBSERVED BEFORE THE FESTIVAL IT IS NOT MUKAN; and the Baraitha teaches the same in the name of the Sages,¹² it follows that his opinion is to be preferred. How then does the law stand? — Said R. Joseph: Come and hear; for it hangs on strong ropes;¹³ for R. Simeon b. Pazzi said in the name of R. Joshua b. Levi in the name of R. Jose b. Saul in the name of Rabbi in the name of the Holy Congregation of Jerusaiem:¹⁴ R. Simeon [b. Menasiah] and his contemporaries have said: The halachah is as R. Meir. They¹⁵ have said! But these¹⁶ are much older¹⁷ than he!¹⁸ — Therefore [say], They taught it according to the opinion of R. Meir.¹⁹ For we have learnt: If one slaughtered a firstling and [only] afterwards showed its blemish [to an expert], R. Judah permits²⁰ [it], but R. Meir says: Since it was slaughtered without the permission of an expert it is forbidden.²¹ Consequently R. Meir holds [that] the examination of a firstling is not like the examination of a trefa; [for] the examination of a firstling [must take place] during life, [but] the examination of a trefa [is done] after slaughtering. Hence [it follows that] the examination of a trefa [takes place] even on a Festival, [but] the examination of a firstling [must take place only] on the eve of the Festival.²² Abaye said to him: Do they²³ then dispute there on the examining of blemishes [on a Festival]; [surely] they dispute whether he is to be penalized!²⁴ For Rabbah b. Bar Hana said in the name of R. Johanan: In the case of a cataract,²⁵ all agree that it [the animal] is forbidden, because it changes²⁶ [after slaughter]. They differ only with respect to a blemish in the body,²⁷ when R. Meir holds: We preventively prohibit a blemish in the body out of regard to a blemish in the eye;²⁸ while R. Judah is of the opinion: We do not preventively prohibit! Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: The Mishnah also proves [this]. For it states: R. Meir says, Since it was slaughtered without the permission of an expert it is forbidden; conclude therefrom that [R. Meir merely] penalizes [him]. It is thus concluded.

Ammi of Wardenat²⁹ used to examine the firstlings in the household of the Prince;³⁰ one [a blemish] occurred on a Festival, and he did not examine it. They came and told [this] to R. Ammi, who told then, He did right in not examining it. But it is not so! For R. Ammi himself did examine? — R. Ammi indeed examined it on the day before³¹ and on the day of the Festival he only asked how it [the blemish] had come about; just as a certain man¹ brought a firstling before Raba on the eve of a Festival towards evening. Raba was sitting and combing his head; he lifted up his eyes and looked at the blemish and said to him: Go now, and come to-morrow. When he came on the following day, he asked him: How did it happen? He replied: Barley was strewn on the one side of the hedge and it [the firstling] was on the other side. As it wanted to eat thereof, it stuck its head [through the hedge] and the hedge tore its lip.² Said he to him: Perhaps you caused this intentionally? — He replied to him: No. And whence do you know that the intentional causing [of a blemish] renders it forbidden? — For it was taught: There shall not be any blemish therein,³ I only know that no blemish may be therein.⁴ Whence do I know that one may not indirectly cause [a blemish] to it through something, [for example] that he may not bring dough or pressed figs and put them on the ear in order that a dog may come and take it?⁵ The text says: 'Not any blemish'. It says 'blemish' and it says 'any blemish'.⁶

MISHNAH. IF A BEAST DIED [ON A FESTIVAL] IT MAY NOT BE MOVED FROM ITS PLACE. IT HAPPENED THEY ONCE ASKED R. TARFON CONCERNING THIS AND CONCERNING HALLAH⁷ THAT BECAME DEFILED;⁸ HE WENT INTO THE ACADEMY AND INQUIRED, AND THEY ANSWERED HIM: THEY MAY NOT BE MOVED FROM THEIR PLACE.

GEMARA. Shall it be said that we have learnt anonymously not as R. Simeon; for we have learnt: R. Simeon says: One may cut up gourds for cattle and a carcass⁹ for dogs. R. Judah says: If the animal was not yet dead on the eve of the Sabbath it is forbidden.¹⁰ — You can say it [the Mishnah] can even be as R. Simeon, [for] R. Simeon admits that living animals¹¹ that died [on the Sabbath] are forbidden.¹² This is all very well according to Mar b. Amemar in the name of Raba, who said: R. Simeon admits that living animals that died [on the Sabbath] are forbidden.¹³ But according to Mar the son of R. Joseph in the name of Raba, who says: R. Simeon disputes even in the case of living animals which died [on the Sabbath, maintaining] that they are permitted, what is there to be said? — Ze'iri explained it with respect to a consecrated animal.¹⁴ [Our Mishnah] also proves this; for it teaches CONCERNING THIS AND CONCERNING HALLAH THAT BECAME DEFILED; just as hallah is consecrated, so is the animal [one that is] consecrated. Then the reason is that it was consecrated; but if [the animal was] not consecrated it is permitted;¹⁵ this is all very well according to Mar the son of R. Joseph in the name of Raba, who says: R. Simeon disputes even in the case of living animals which died [on the Sabbath, maintaining] that they are permitted. But according to Mar b. Amemar in the name of Raba who says: R. Simeon agrees that living animals which died [on the Sabbath] are forbidden, what is there to be said?¹⁶ — It treats here of an [animal] that had been in a dangerous condition [on the eve of the Festival], and it is according to the opinion of all.¹⁷

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT ON THE FESTIVAL BE COUNTED IN AS HAVING A SHARE IN THE ANIMAL¹⁸ AT THE OUTSET, BUT [PEOPLE] MAY BE COUNTED IN ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL AS HAVING A SHARE IN THE ANIMAL, AND THEY SLAUGHTER IT¹⁹ AND DIVIDE IT BETWEEN THEM.²⁰ GEMARA. What means ONE MAY NOT BE COUNTED IN AS HAVING A SHARE? — Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: One may not on a Festival, at the outset, arrange about the price of an animal.²¹ How should he do it?²² Said Rab: Let him²³ bring two animals²⁴ and place them side by side and say: 'This one is like the other one'.²⁵ It was Likewise taught:²⁶ One may not say to his neighbour: 'I want to go shares with you [in your animal] to the value of a sela', I want to go shares with you to the value of two sela's'; but he may say. 'I want to go shares with you for a half or for a third or for a fourth'.

- (4) I.e., one may not make a blemish.
- (5) And injure its ear.
- (6) I.e., 'blemish' alone would have sufficed; 'any' (Heb. kol) is an extension and therefore includes even indirect action.
- (7) V. Glos.
- (8) Which may not even be used as fuel on a Festival.
- (9) I.e., an animal that died on the Sabbath.
- (10) V. supra 6b.
- (11) I.e., animals that were healthy and strong at the beginning of the Sabbath.
- (12) To be moved on the Sabbath. R. Simeon allows an animal to be cut up for dogs only if the same were in a dangerous condition on the eve of the Sabbath or Festival.
- (13) V. Shab. 45b.
- (14) Which is forbidden to be given to dogs, hence it may not be moved at all, since no use can be made of it.
- (15) To cut it up for dogs on Sabbath.
- (16) Whose opinion will our Mishnah represent.
- (17) Since the owner reckoned on it dying, he intended to give it to the dogs; therefore it was mukan. [Var. lec. omit: 'And it is according to . . . all'. I.e., the Mishnah which implies that the carcass of a non-consecrated animal that has been in a dangerous condition may be cut up on the Festival is in accordance with R. Simeon, v. Rashi. On the reading of cur. edd., the Mishnah can be also in accordance with R. Judah; for he would agree that, where it had been in a dangerous condition before the Festival, it may be cut up on the Festival, his dispute with R. Simeon concerning only an animal that had been ill but not dangerously so, v. R. Nissim.]
- (18) In doing so, it would be like transacting business on a Festival, because they would know its weight and market value.
- (19) On the Festival, leaving over the question of price etc. until after the Festival.
- (20) [Rashi: 'He (the butcher) slaughters it'].
- (21) As it savours of transacting business. V. infra 37a.
- (22) Referring to the second clause of the Mishnah. How do they divide it on a Festival so that they should know afterwards how much each received?
- (23) [On Rashi's reading (p. 141, n. 7): 'How should the butcher do to be able to fix the price after the festival'].
- (24) Of equal value, only one of which is to be slaughtered and shared.
- (25) And after the Festival they arrange the price of the one that was not slaughtered and pay their shares pro rata for the one that was slaughtered.
- (26) That no price may be fixed on a Festival.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 28a

MISHNAH. R. JUDAH SAYS: A MAN MAY WEIGH MEAT [ON A FESTIVAL] AGAINST A UTENSIL OR AGAINST A BUTCHER'S CHOPPER;¹ BUT THE SAGES SAY: ONE MAY NOT LOOK ON THE PAIR OF SCALES AT ALL.

GEMARA. What means [NOT] AT ALL? — Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: even to protect it [the flesh] from mice² Said R. Idi b. Abin: This only applies if it [the scales] hang on a hook.³ Rab Judah in the name of Samuel further said: A skilled butcher may not weigh meat [on a Festival] even by hand.⁴ Rab Judah in the name of Samuel further said: A skilled butcher may not weigh meat [on a Festival] in water.⁵ Rab Hiyya b. Ashi said: One may not cut a handle in the meat.⁶ Said Rabina: But with the hand⁷ it is permitted [to make a handle]. R. Huna said: It is permitted to make a mark on the meat,⁸ just as Raba son of R. Huna was wont to cut it [the meat] in a triangular shape.⁹ R. Hiyya and R. Simeon b. Rabbi weighed one portion against [another] portion¹⁰ on the Festival.¹¹ According to whom? It is neither according to R. Judah nor according to the Rabbis! For if according to R. Judah, Surely he says: A MAN MAY WEIGH MEAT [ON A FESTIVAL]

AGAINST A UTENSIL OR AGAINST A BUTCHER'S CHOPPER; only against a utensil but not against any other thing!¹² And if according to the Rabbis, surely they say: ONE MAY NOT LOOK ON THE PAIR OF SCALES AT ALL! — They acted as R. Joshua. For it was taught: R. Joshua says: One may weigh one portion [against] another portion on a Festival. Said R. Joseph: The halachah is as R. Joshua, since we learnt in [Tractate] Bekoroth in accordance with his view. For we have learnt: As to consecrated animals that became disqualified, the benefit of them belongs to the Temple,¹³ and one may weigh [the meat] portion against portion in the case of the firstling.¹⁴ Said Abaye to him: Perhaps it is not so?¹⁵ [Perhaps] R. Joshua says this¹⁶ only here¹⁷ where there is no disrespect to consecrated animals, but not there¹⁸ where there is a disrespect to consecrated animals. Alternatively, [perhaps] the Rabbis said this¹⁶ only there¹⁸ because it does not appear as everyday practice,¹⁹ but not here²⁰ which appears like an ordinary transaction.²¹ Shall it be said that they²² were very particular [with each other]; but there were seven fishes brought to the house of Rabbi and [although] five of them were found in the house of R. Hiyya, yet R. Simeon b. Rabbi did not mind? — Answered R. Papa: Link a [different] person with each of them;²³ either it was R. Hiyya and R. Ishmael son of R. Jose or it was R. Simeon b. Rabbi and Bar Kappara.

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT WHET A KNIFE ON A FESTIVAL,²⁴ BUT ONE MAY DRAW IT OVER ANOTHER KNIFE²⁵ [TO SHARPEN IT].

GEMARA. R. Huna said: They only taught this of a whet-stone, but it is permitted on a knife-board. Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: That which you say that on a [whet-]stone it is forbidden, applies only to sharpening it, but to remove its grease is permitted; whence it follows that on a knife-board even sharpening is permitted. Some taught this²⁶ on the concluding part: 'it is permitted on a [knife-]board'. — Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: That which you said that on a [knife-]board it is permitted, applies only to the removal of its grease, but to sharpen it is forbidden; whence it follows that on a whet-stone even to remove its grease is forbidden. Some taught this on our Mishnah: ONE MAY NOT WHET A KNIFE ON A FESTIVAL. Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: They only taught this with respect to sharpening it, but to remove its grease is permitted; whence it follows that to draw it over another knife is permitted even for the purpose of sharpening it. And others taught this on the concluding part [of our Mishnah]: BUT ONE MAY DRAW IT OVER ANOTHER KNIFE. Said Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: They only taught this with respect to removing its grease, but to sharpen it, is prohibited; whence it follows that on a whet-stone even to remove its grease is prohibited.

Who is the authority [of our Mishnah] that on a whet-stone it is forbidden? Said R. Hisda: It is not as R. Judah; for it was taught: The Festival is distinguished from the Sabbath only with respect to the preparing of food alone. R. Judah permits [on a Festival] even the preliminaries for the preparing of food.²⁷ Raba said to R. Hisda: May we lecture in your name that the halachah is as R. Judah? — He replied to him: May it be [God's] will that you lecture all good things of this sort in my name. R. Nehemiah the son of R. Joseph said: I was standing [on a Festival] before Raba who

(1) Putting the meat in one pan of the scale and the utensil in the other. But actual weights may not be used, as it would look like doing business.

(2) Meat may not be put in scales even for that.

(3) It is then prohibited because it appears as if the meat is being weighed.

(4) Because he does the same during the week.

(5) The water being placed in a graduated vessel used for weighing meat by observing the displacement of the water.

(6) A hole by which it is handled.

(7) By digging the fingers into the meat.

(8) So that its ownership might not be mistaken.

(9) When he sent it by a messenger, in order that his household might recognize it, because meat temporarily lost from sight is prohibited. V. B.M. 23a, Sonc. ed. p. 146, n. 5.

- (10) When they used to divide meat between them.
- (11) In the two pans of a scale. This is not an everyday practice, therefore they held it is permitted.
- (12) Such as one portion against another portion which he regards as an everyday practice.
- (13) And therefore they may be sold even by weight.
- (14) Though it may not be weighed with ordinary weights, because the benefit belongs not to the Temple but to the owner, yet weighing portion against portion is permitted. This proves that weighing portion against portion is not an everyday practice.
- (15) Perhaps the two cases are not analogous, as has been assumed.
- (16) That one may weigh portion against portion.
- (17) In the case of a Festival.
- (18) In the case of a firstling.
- (19) Because one does not usually sell meat by employing another piece of meat as the weight, and the law of disqualified sacred animals refers to the sale of their meat.
- (20) With respect to the division of the meat between the two Rabbis.
- (21) For it is not unusual for divisions to be made in this manner and therefore they would forbid this on a Festival.
- (22) R. Hiyya and R. Simeon b. Rabbi who divided the meat exactly between them.
- (23) Do not say it was these two who were particular about having an equal share, but bring in somebody else.
- (24) On a whet-stone.
- (25) Because such a method is different from the everyday practice.
- (26) Statement of Rab Judah.
- (27) And sharpening a knife is such a preliminary.

was stropping a knife on the edge of a basket and I asked him: Do you, Sir, want to sharpen it or do you want to remove its grease? And he replied to me: To remove its grease. But it was clear to me that he was engaged in sharpening, only he was of the opinion: Thus is the halachah but one does not teach it [publicly].¹

Abaye also related: I was standing before the Master² who was stropping a knife on the edge of a mill and I asked him: Do you, Sir, want to sharpen it or do you want to remove its grease? — And he replied to me: To remove its grease. But it was clear to me that he was engaged in sharpening, but he was of the opinion, Thus is the halachah but one does not teach it [publicly]. The scholars asked: May one show a knife on a Festival to a sage?³ — R. Mari the son of R. Bizna permits, and the Rabbis forbid [it]; but R. Joseph says: A scholar may examine [a knife] for himself⁴ and lend it to another. R. Joseph further said: If a knife became blunt⁵ it may be sharpened on a Festival; and this applies only in the case when it can cut with difficulty.⁶ R. Hisda — some say, R. Joseph — lectured: With respect to a knife dented⁷ and a spit with the point broken off⁷ and the sweeping out of a stove and a pot range⁸ on a Festival we come to the dispute between R. Judah and the Rabbis. For it was taught: The Festival is distinguished from the Sabbath only with respect to the preparing of food alone. R. Judah permits even the preliminaries for the preparing of food. What is the reason of the first Tanna?⁹ Scripture says, ‘that alone may be done for you,’¹⁰ [only] ‘that’ but not the preliminaries [for the preparation]. And R. Judah? — The text says, ‘for you’ for you [means] for all your needs. And the first Tanna; surely it says ‘for you’?¹¹ — He will reply to you: That [text] ‘for you’ [signifies] but not for a heathen. And the other;¹² surely it also says ‘that [alone]’? — He will reply to you: ‘That’ is written and ‘for you’ is written, yet there is no contradiction; the one applies to preliminaries which can be performed before the Festival,¹³ and the other to preliminaries which cannot be performed before the Festival.¹⁴ Rab Judah in the name of Samuel said: One may not repair a bent spit on a Festival. This is obvious! — It [the teaching] is necessary even when one can straighten it with the hand.¹⁵

Rab Judah in Samuel's name further said: A spit which was used for roasting meat may not be handled on the Festival.¹⁶ R. Adda b. Ahabah said in the name of Malkio: He pulls it out [of the joint] and puts it in a corner.¹⁷ Said R. Hiyya b. Ashi in R. Huna's name: Providing there is as much as an olive of meat on it. Rabina says: It [the spit] may be handled even though there is no meat on it at all, for it is analogous to the case of a thorn in a public ground.¹⁸ R. Hanina¹⁹ son of R. Ikka said: [The teachings on] a spit,²⁰ bondmaids,²¹ and hair-pits²² are by R. Malkio; whereas those on belorith-tresses,²³ wood-ashes²⁴ and cheese²⁵ are by R. Malkia.²⁶ R. Papa says: If referring to a Mishnah or a Baraitha²⁷ it is [by] R. Malkia, [but] independent teachings²⁸ are by R. Malkio; and as a mnemonic make use of: The Mishnah is queen.²⁹ Wherein do they differ? They differ in regard to bondmaids.³⁰ MISHNAH. A MAN MAY NOT SAY TO A BUTCHER, 'WEIGH ME A DINAR'S WORTH OF MEAT',³¹ BUT HE SLAUGHTERS [THE ANIMAL] AND SHARES IT AMONG THEM.³²

GEMARA. What is he to do?³³ — As

- (1) So that people might not treat Festivals lightly.
 - (2) Rabbah.
 - (3) Before slaughtering the animal, the knife must be examined by a sage or an expert to assure that it is free from the slightest notch.
 - (4) At home.
 - (5) But there was no sign before the Festival that the knife needed sharpening.
 - (6) I.e., it was not badly blunt so that it would not require much sharpening; otherwise it is forbidden.
 - (7) On the Festival.
 - (8) I.e., sweeping out plaster which had fallen from its walls before the Festival, but which was only just noticed.
 - (9) I.e., the Rabbis.
 - (10) Ex. XII, 16. E.V. 'by you'.
 - (11) Signifying 'for all your needs'.
 - (12) R. Judah.
 - (13) Such 'are forbidden as implied in 'that'.
 - (14) Such are permitted as implied in 'for you'.
 - (15) Without beating it on an anvil. I might think that that does not constitute work.
 - (16) I.e., it may not be taken out of the joint but the meat is carved from it on the spit; for the spit becomes mukzeh on account of its unseemliness.
 - (17) Thrust out of harm's way, but not taken there (Rashi).
 - (18) Which one may remove on a Sabbath, to prevent danger to the public, by carrying it repeatedly short distances, each of which is to be less than four cubits. Similarly the spit may be taken to a place where it can do no harm,. Cf. Shab. 42a.
 - (19) In the parallel passage in Mak. 21a. It is R. Nahman.
 - (20) Quoted above, allowing the greasy spit to be put into a corner.
 - (21) R. Eliezer says (in a Mishnah), even if a wife brought with her one hundred maids of her own, the husband can still insist on her doing work with wool on the ground that idleness is demoralizing. On this R. Malkio comments, the halachah is as R. Eliezer. V. Keth. 59b and 61b.
 - (22) In Nid. 52a R. Huna says that the two hairs proving puberty must be set in pitlets. On this R. Malkio comments that the pitlets alone even without the hairs are sufficient indication of puberty.
 - (23) In A.Z. 29a a Baraitha teaches that when an Israelite cuts the hair of a heathen, he should refrain from touching the top-tresses (or crown-lock) because these were usually consecrated to some deity. On this R. Malkia comments that the Israelite should begin to withdraw his hand at a distance of three fingers breadth on every side. On belorith V. Krauss. T.A. I., 645. Cf also Sanh., Sonc. ed. p. 114, n. 5.
 - (24) In Mak. 21a. R. Malkia says that it is prohibited to powder one's wound with burnt wood ash, because it gives the appearance of an incised imprint which is forbidden according to Lev. XIX, 28.
 - (25) In A.Z. 35b, R. Malkia, in a discussion why the cheese of a heathen is forbidden (in the Mishnah) says that it is forbidden because its surface is smeared with lard.
 - (26) The two names Malkio and Malkia can easily be interchanged, hence these two groups were given to assist the memory.

(27) Heb. Mathnitah.

(28) I.e., opinions and dicta heard from eminent teachers and reported by their disciples or visiting scholars as distinguished from what is taught in Mishnah and Baraitha.

(29) The name of the one associated with a Mishnah (and Baraitha) is R. Malkia which name closely resembles the Aramaic word for 'queen'-malketha.

(30) According to R. Hanina it is attributed to R. Malkio, while according to R. Papa, since it has a reference to a Mishnah, it is attributed to R. Malkia.

(31) The mentioning of money is disallowed.

(32) Without mentioning money.

MISHNAH. A MAN MAY SAY [ON A FESTIVAL] TO HIS NEIGHBOUR, 'FILL ME THIS VESSEL', BUT NOT IN A MEASURE. R. JUDAH SAYS: IF IT WAS A MEASURING-VESSEL HE MAY NOT FILL IT. IT IS RELATED OF ABBA SAUL B. BATNITH THAT HE USED TO FILL UP HIS MEASURES ON THE EVE OF A FESTIVAL AND GIVE THEM TO HIS CUSTOMERS ON THE FESTIVAL. ABBA SAUL SAYS: HE USED TO DO SO DURING THE INTERMEDIARY DAYS OF A FESTIVAL⁶ TOO, ON ACCOUNT OF THE CLEARNESS OF MEASURE;⁷ BUT THE SAGES SAY: HE USED ALSO TO DO SO⁸ ON AN ORDINARY DAY FOR THE SAKE OF THE DRAINING OF THE MEASURES.⁹ GEMARA. What means BUT NOT IN A MEASURE? — Said Rab Judah in Samuel's name, But not in a vessel set aside as a measure; but one may fill a vessel held in reserve¹⁰ for measuring.¹¹ Whereupon R. Judah said: One may not fill even a vessel held in reserve as a measure. This proves that where the joy of the Festival is concerned R. Judah is stringent and the Rabbis are lenient; but we know of them to the contrary! For we have learnt: R. Judah says: A man may weigh meat [on a Festival] against a utensil or a butcher's chopper, but the Sages say: One may not look on the pair of scales at all;¹² which proves [that] R. Judah is lenient and the Rabbis are stringent! [Hence] there is a contradiction [in the rulings] of R. Judah and a contradiction [in the rulings] of the Rabbis! — R. Judah is not self-contradictory, [for] there¹³ [it treats of a vessel] not held in reserve as a measure,¹⁴ whereas here [it treats of a vessel] which is held in reserve as a measure. The Rabbis too are not self-contradictory, [for] there¹³ he acts as one acts on an ordinary day,¹⁵ [but] here he does not act as one acts on an ordinary day.¹⁶ Raba says: What means BUT NOT IN A MEASURE? [It is] that he may not mention to him the name of the measure;¹⁷ but one may fill a vessel appointed as a measure. Whereupon R. Judah said: One may not fill a vessel appointed as a measure. This proves that where the joy of the Festival is concerned R. Judah is stringent and the Rabbis are lenient, but we know of them to the contrary! For we have learnt: R. Judah says: A man may weigh meat [on a Festival] against a utensil or a butcher's chopper, but the Sages say: You may not look on the pair of scales at all, which [proves that] R. Judah is lenient and the Rabbis are stringent! [Hence] there is a contradiction [in the rulings] of R. Judah and a contradiction [in the rulings] of the Rabbis! — R. Judah is not self-contradictory, [for] there it is not appointed as a measure, [but] here it is appointed as a measure. The Rabbis too are not self-contradictory, [for] there he acts as one acts on an ordinary day, [but] here he does not act as one acts on an ordinary day; for People are accustomed to pass wine in a measuring-vessel and drink [therefrom].¹⁸

IT IS RELATED OF ABBA SAUL B. BATNITH. A Tanna taught: He also used to act thus during [the Intermediary Days of] a Festival on account of disturbing [study] in the Academy.¹⁹ Our Rabbis taught: He collected three hundred jugs of wine from the foam of the measures,²⁰ and his associates collected three hundred jugs of oil from the drops of the measures,²¹ and they brought them to the treasurers [of the Temple] in Jerusalem,²² who said to them: There is no need for you to [do] this.²³ They replied to them: We too will have none of it. They said to them: Since you act so stringently with yourselves then apply it to public purposes; for it was taught: If one robbed and he does not know whom he robbed,²⁴ he must apply it to public purposes. What are such? — Said R. Hisda: Wells, ditches and grottos.²⁵ R. Hisda took Rabana Ukba about and lectured:²⁶ A man may not measure barley on a Festival and give it to his animal, but he may scoop up [with his hand] a kab-full or two kabs-full and give it to his animal without fear.²⁷ And the baker may measure spices and put them in his pot so as not to spoil the dish.²⁸ R. Jeremiah b. Abba said in Rab's name: A woman may measure flour on a Festival and make it up into dough in order that she may separate hallah²⁹ generously, but Samuel says: It is forbidden. But the School of Samuel taught:³⁰ It is permitted! — Said Abaye: Now that Samuel says: It is forbidden, and the School of Samuel taught: It is permitted,

(1) When asking for meat on a Festival.

(2) According to Rashi these terms are technical names of the pieces of meat which were carved for retailing. They had different names in different places.

(3) Identical with Nahras or Nahr-sar, on the canal of the same name, on the east bank of the Euphrates. Obermeyer, p. 307.

(4) West of Mehuza, identical with Nehar Malka, situated on the canal of the same name on the west bank of the Tigris. Obermeyer, pp. 273, 275.

(5) A suburb of Sura. V. Obermeyer, p. 297.

(6) The second (or third) to the sixth days of Passover and the second (or third) to the seventh days of Tabernacles.

(7) So that the froth might settle, thus assuring correct measure, or that the sediment might remain in the measuring vessel. [Var. lec. omit: ON ACCOUNT...MEASURE, v. Rashi.]

(8) I.e., fill the measures a day before.

(9) Lit., 'squeezing', 'wringing out'. He placed his measuring-vessels a-tilt over the vessels of the customers so that no drop should be left behind in the measuring-vessel.

(10) העומד למדה, Lit., 'which stands for measuring'. [MS.M. העומד על, i.e., a vessel which has the capacity of a certain measure but not intended to be used for measuring, v. D.S.]

(11) In case the real measure is broken or lost; but as yet this reserve has never been used for the purpose.

(12) Supra 28a.

(13) In the case of weighing meat.

(14) The utensil and the hatchet are not vessels serving as weights.

(15) When the weights are not at hand the butcher often uses his implements as weights.

(16) For the new vessel was not yet regarded as a measure (Rashi). [This is difficult: On the reading of MS.M. (supra n. 1): For the vessel is not intended for measuring.]

(17) E.g., pints, quarts or gallons, but only 'fill this vessel'.

(18) Therefore the filling of such a vessel has not at all the appearance of a sale.

(19) He filled up the measures during the night in order that he may be free to lecture on the day of the Festival. [This might be taken as supplementing the reason stated in the Mishnah: He filled them during the night so that he should not have to wait for the froth to settle and be free to lecture, v. Rashi and supra p. 148, n. 10.]

(20) By not removing the froth he saved so much on each measure. In that way he found that he had saved three hundred jugs full.

(21) By not leaving the measuring vessel to run out into the funnel.

(22) They thought it belonged to their customers. For the whole story cf. Buchler, Types, p. 144.

(23) I.e., to deliver this, since the purchasers have waived all claim thereto.

(24) To whom he wishes to make restitution.

(25) And thus provide water to the general public among whom the robbed person is to be found. Cf. B.K. 94b.

(26) אדבריה. V. Supra p. 111, n. 3.

(27) That he is desecrating the Festival thereby.

(28) Which might occur if he merely guessed at the measure.

(29) V. Glos.

(30) [Rashi: Like R. Hiyya and R. Oshaia, Samuel too had compiled a collection of Tannaitic teachings.]

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 29b

then Samuel's purpose is to inform us the halachah for actual practice.¹ Our Rabbis taught: One may not [sift] flour a second time² on a Festival. In the name of R. Papeus and R. Judah b. Bathyra they said: One may [sift it] a second time;³ but they agree that if a pebble or a splinter fell in, one may sift it again.

A tanna recited in the presence of Rabina: One may not [sift] flour a second time on a Festival, but if a pebble or a splinter fell in, he may pick it out with his hand. He said to him: All the more this is forbidden, because it is in the nature of selecting.⁴ Raba⁵ the son of R. Huna Zuti expounded at the gate of Nehardea: One may [sift] flour a second time on a Festival. R. Nahman said to them [his disciples]: Go and say to Abba,⁶ 'Take your favours and throw them on thorns';⁷ come and see how many sieves are being used in Nehardea. The wife of R. Joseph sifted flour on an inverted sieve.⁸ He said to her: Take notice that I want good bread.⁹ The wife of R. Ashi sifted flour on the top side of the table. Said R. Ashi: This my [wife] is the daughter of Rami b. Hama, and Rami b. Hama was a man of [pious] deeds, and unless she had seen this in the home of her parents, she would not have done it.

MISHNAH. A MAN MAY GO TO A SHOPKEEPER WHOM HE GENERALLY PATRONIZES¹⁰ AND SAY TO HIM: 'GIVE ME [SO MANY] EGGS AND NUTS, AND STATING THE NUMBER; FOR THIS IS THE WAY OF A HOUSEHOLDER TO RECKON IN HIS OWN HOME.'¹¹

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: A man may go to a cattledealer whom he generally patronizes and say to him: Give me one kid or one lamb; to a butcher whom he generally patronizes and say to him: Give me one shoulder or one leg; to a poultry breeder whom he generally patronizes and say to him: Give me one dove or one pigeon; to a baker whom he generally patronizes and say to him: Give me one loaf or one roll; and to a shopkeeper whom he generally patronizes and say to him: Give me twenty eggs, or fifty nuts, or ten peaches, or five pomegranates, or one Ethrog; provided that he does not mention any measure.¹² R. Simeon b. Eleazar says: Provided that he does not mention any sum of money.

CHAPTER IV

MISHNAH. WHEN ONE TAKES JARS OF WINE FROM PLACE TO PLACE, HE MAY NOT CARRY THEM IN A BASKET OR IN A HAMPER,¹³ BUT HE MAY CARRY [THEM] ON HIS SHOULDER OR IN FRONT OF HIM. LIKEWISE, ONE WHO CARRIES STRAW MAY NOT LET THE BUNDLE [OF STRAW] HANG DOWN OVER HIS BACK, BUT MUST CARRY IT IN HIS HAND; AND ONE MAY START [USING] A HEAP OF STRAW,¹⁴

(1) Although theoretically it is permitted, still one should not decide accordingly. Cf. supra 28b.

(2) For this could have been done before the Festival.

(3) The sifting a second time is not considered work.

(4) Which is forbidden on Sabbaths and Festivals. Cf. Shab. 73a.

(5) Var. lec.: Rabbah.

(6) I.e., to my colleague (Rashi). [Abba is a familiar appellation of Raba (Rabbah), whereby he could be addressed only by a colleague. As R. Nahman could hardly have been his colleague, preference is to be given to MS. M. which reads R. Hama, the head of the Nehardea School at the time; v. Hyman, Toledoth p. 1074].

(7) All know without this that it is allowed. Cf. B.K. 83a; B.M. 63b. V. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 313, n. 7.

- (8) In an unusual way.
- (9) You can therefore sift it in the usual way.
- (10) Who would trust him to settle the reckoning after the Festival. Lit., 'with whom he is often'.
- (11) Hence mentioning the number does not particularly give it the appearance of purchase.
- (12) E.g., pints, quarts or gallons.
- (13) For this is the usual way of carrying it.
- (14) On a Festival even though he did not designate it before the Festival.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 30a

BUT [ONE MAY] NOT [START USING WOOD] FROM A PENT-HOUSE.¹

GEMARA. A Tanna taught: If it is impossible [to carry it] in an unusual way,² it is permitted [to carry in a basket or hamper]. Raba enacted in Mehuza: Whatever [load] one [usually] carries with a great effort,³ must be carried [on a Festival] on a carrying pole;⁴ whatever is [usually] carried on a carrying-pole is to be carried [on a Festival] by a yoke;⁴ whatever is [usually] carried by a yoke, is to be carried [on a Festival] by a hand-barrow;⁴ whatever is [usually] carried by a hand-barrow [on a Festival] a cloth is to be spread over it;⁵ but if it is impossible [to vary the usual procedure] it is permitted, for a Master said: If it is impossible [to carry it] in an unusual way it is permitted. R. Hanan b. Raba⁶ said to R. Ashi: Did the Rabbis say that on a Festival [every work] as far as possible should be done in an unusual way? But these [our] women fill their pitchers with water on a Festival without any alteration and we do not say anything to them! He replied to him: Because it is impossible [in any other way]. [For] how should it be done? If [a woman], who usually draws water in a large pitcher, should have to draw in a small pitcher, then she would have to do more walking!⁷ If [a woman], who [usually] draws in a small pitcher, should have to draw in a large pitcher, then you would increase her burden! Should she cover the vessel with a [wooden] lid, it might fall off and she will have to carry it!⁸ Should she bind it fast, it might become unfastened and she would be caused to tie it up again!⁹ Should she spread a cloth over it,¹⁰ it might become soaked in water and she be led to wring it out!¹¹ Therefore, it is impossible [otherwise]. Raba son of R. Hanin said to Abaye: We have learnt: You may not clap the hands or slap the thighs or dance;¹² and yet we indeed see that [people] do this and we do not take them to task! — He replied to him: And according to your opinion, that which Rabbah said: A man may not sit down at the entrance of the lehi¹³ lest an object should roll away and he come to carry it [four cubits in a public thoroughfare];¹⁴ yet there are these women who take their waterugs and go and sit at the entrance of an alley and we do not say anything to them! But let Israel [go their way]: it is better that they should err in ignorance than presumptuously;¹⁵ here also [I say], Let Israel go their way: it is better that they should err in ignorance than presumptuously. This, however, applies only to a Rabbinical [prohibition] but not to a Biblical [prohibition]. But it is not so; whether it [the prohibition] is Biblical or Rabbinical we do not tell them anything; for the additional time to the Day of Atonement is a Biblical injunction,¹⁶ yet people eat and drink until dusk and we do not say anything to them.

AND ONE MAY START [USING] A HEAP OF STRAW. Said R. Kahana: This proves that one may start using [wood] for the first time from a store [on a Festival]. With whom does that agree? With R. Simeon who does not hold [the law of] mukzeh. Then consider the last clause: BUT [ONE MAY] NOT [START USING STORED] WOOD FROM A PENT-HOUSE; this is in accordance with R. Judah who holds [the prohibition of] mukzeh. — We treat here of cedar and cypress wood which are mukzeh on account of monetary loss,¹⁷ where even R. Simeon agrees. Some recite this in reference to the last clause [thus]: BUT NOT FROM WOOD FROM A PENT-HOUSE. Said R. Kahana: This proves that one may not start using [wood] for the first time from a store [on a Festival]. With whom does that agree? With R. Judah who holds the prohibition of mukzeh. Then consider the first clause: ONE MAY START [USING] A HEAP OF STRAW; this is in accordance with R. Simeon who does not hold mukzeh! — There it speaks of rotted straw.¹⁸ Rotted straw is indeed capable of being used for clay!¹⁹ — When there are thorns in it.²⁰

(1) Lit., 'which is in the mukzeh (stored away)'. The wood stored there is usually for building purposes and not for fuel, hence it is mukzeh.

(2) If e.g., he needs a great quantity.

(3) On a handspike.

(4) Commentators disagree about these terms. Cf. D.S. ad loc.

(5) Some kind of deviation, so that what is being carried is not seen.

(6) [R. Hanan b. Raba was no contemporary of R. Ashi and hence read with MS.M.: Raba b. Hanin said to Abaye.]

(7) She would have to go several times to draw the water to the amount she requires.

(8) [Var. lec.: It might break and she will carry the fragments, v. Ronsburg, Glosses].

(9) And it is forbidden to make a knot on a Festival, when the knot is in the nature of a repair.

(10) V. supra p. 153, n. 7.

(11) Which is forbidden.

(12) These are forbidden on a Festival as a preventive measure lest he fit up instruments of music. V. infra 36b.

(13) The post of an alley.

(14) Carrying in the alley is permitted, the post converting it by a legal fiction into a private residence. But carrying in the public thoroughfare is of course forbidden.

(15) And therefore we do not tell them this, since in any case they would go on doing the same thing.

(16) The injunction against eating, etc. commences a little before evening, and in Yom. 81b (q.v.) it is deduced that this addition is required by Scriptural law.

(17) They are too good to be used as fire-wood and are only intended for building purposes.

(18) Which being unfit for fodder is automatically intended as fuel, and therefore is not mukzeh.

(19) For building; hence it cannot be regarded as automatically intended for fuel.

(20) Which render it unfit for kneading into clay.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 30b

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT TAKE WOOD FROM A HUT BUT ONLY FROM [WHAT IS] ADJACENT TO IT.¹

GEMARA. Why may he not [take wood] from the hut?² because he thereby demolishes a tent!³ Then [if he takes it] from what is adjacent thereto he likewise demolishes a tent!⁴ — Said Rab Judah in Samuel's name: By the term adjacent understand adjacent to the walls.⁵ R. Menasiah says: You can even say that they are not adjacent to the walls,⁶ but this was taught with respect to [tied] bundles.⁷

R. Hiyya son of Joseph recited in the presence of R. Johanan: One may not take wood [on a Festival] from a hut but only from what is adjacent to it, and R. Simeon permits it. They agree, however, with respect to a Tabernacle on the Feast of Tabernacles that it is forbidden;⁸ but if he stipulated concerning it,⁹ everything depends upon his reservation.

'And R. Simeon permits it;' but surely he is pulling down a tent! — Answered R. Nahman b. Isaac: We treat here of a collapsed hut and R. Simeon follows his opinion, for he does not hold the prohibition of mukzeh.¹⁰ For it was taught: The oil left over in a lamp or in a dish¹¹ is forbidden [to be used on Sabbath], but R. Simeon permits it.¹² But what comparison is it? There the man sits and waits for the going out of the lamp,¹³ but here does then a man sit and wait for his hut to collapse? — Said R. Nahman b. Isaac: We treat here of a tottering hut, so that he had his mind set upon it since the day before.¹⁴

'They agree, however, with respect to a Tabernacle on the Feast of Tabernacles that it is forbidden; but if he stipulated concerning it everything depends upon his reservation.' Is then a stipulation concerning it of any avail? Surely R. Shesheth said on the authority of R. Akiba: Whence do we know that the wood of the Tabernacle is forbidden [for use] the entire seven days [of the Festival]? From the verse: [On the fifteenth day of the seventh month is] the feast of Tabernacles for seven days unto the Lord.¹⁵ And it was taught R. Judah b. Bathyra says: Whence do we know that just as the Festival offering bears the name of Heaven so also the Sukkah [Tabernacle] bears the name of Heaven: Because the text says ‘the feast [hag]¹⁶ of tabernacles for seven days unto the Lord’,¹⁵ just as the Festival offering is for the Lord¹⁷ so is the Sukkah for the Lord!¹⁸ Said R. Menasiah the son of Raba:¹⁹ The concluding clause²⁰ refers to an ordinary hut,²¹ but the stipulation with respect to a Festival booth²² is of no avail. Yet is it not [valid] in the case of a Festival booth? Surely it was taught: If one covered it [the Festival booth] according to law and decorated it with hand-made carpets and tapestries, and hung therein nuts, almonds, peaches, pomegranates and bunches of grapes, vines, oils,²³ and fine meal, and wreaths of ears of corn, it is forbidden to make use of them until the termination of the last day of the Festival; and if he stipulated thereon, everything depends upon his stipulation!²⁴ — Abaye and Raba both say: This refers to one who says [before the Festival] ‘I will not stand aloof from them²⁵ right through the period of twilight,’ so that the sanctity [of the Festival] did not fall upon them;²⁶ but as to the wood of the Festival booth, since sanctity did fall upon it²⁷ it becomes mukzeh for the entire seven days. But in what respect is this different from what was stated: If one set aside seven Ethrogim²⁸ for the seven days of the Festival,²⁹ Rab says, [After] fulfilling his obligation with each one [of them], they may be eaten immediately;³⁰ and R. Assi says: [After] fulfilling his obligation with each one [of them] they may be eaten on the morrow?³¹ — There where the nights are separated from the days,³² each day is a separate obligation; but here where the nights are not separated from the days,³³ all the [seven] days are regarded as one long day.

(1) The meaning of this is discussed in the Gemara.

(2) I.e., from its roof.

(3) Technically, removing part of a building is regarded as demolishing it.

(4) I.e., to the roof lying on top of it, The removal of that too or of part thereof also constitutes demolishing.

(5) But not built into and part of them; but the wood that lies on the roof, even though not built into the roof, is regarded as part of the covering of the roof.

(6) But adjacent to the roof, i.e., lying on the roof.

(7) Since they were not untied, we see that they were put there for storage, and not to form part of the roof.

(8) Even during the Intermediary days of the Festival.

(9) Before the Festival.

(10) The hut collapsed on the Festival. Now since it was standing just before the Festival commenced, it was then regarded as mukzeh, as it was forbidden then to remove part of it on account of the prohibition of demolishing. Hence the first Tanna holds that even when it collapses it remains forbidden as mukzeh. R. Simeon, however, does not accept the prohibition of mukzeh at all, hence it is permitted.

(11) I.e., a dish of oil placed near a lamp to act as a feed thereto.

(12) For while it was burning one might not remove any of the oil, as technically that constituted extinguishing. Hence the oil is regarded as mukzeh on account of a prohibition and remains forbidden even after the light goes out. R. Simeon permits it, because he rejects the prohibition of mukzeh. Shab. 44a.

(13) Lit., ‘when will his lamp go out’. He knows it will finally go out and therefore he intended to use the residue from the very beginning; hence R. Simeon does not regard it as mukzeh.

(14) I.e., He intended before the Festival that, should the hut collapse on the Festival, he would use its wood; hence it is quite analogous to the residue of the oil in the lamp or dish.

(15) Lev. XXIII, 34. I.e., the entire seven days, it is consecrated ‘unto the Lord’.

(16) The word חַג is taken as חַגִּיגָה.

(17) The animal becomes holy as soon as it was dedicated for a Festival offering.

(18) And may not be used. Hence this is a Biblical prohibition: surely a stipulation cannot nullify such!

(19) [Var. lec. Said R. Menasiah in the name of Samuel.]

(20) ‘If he stipulated, everything depends upon his reservation.’

- (21) Which has collapsed on a Festival.
- (22) Lit., 'a booth of a precept' — i.e., one erected in fulfilment of the scriptural law; v. Lev. XXIII, 42.
- (23) I.e., decanters containing wine and oil.
- (24) Here we see that the stipulation holds good.
- (25) I.e., I accept no interdict in respect of them.
- (26) Technically a Festival prohibition falls on an object at the immediately preceding twilight. Hence here he expressly stipulated that this should not happen; therefore it does not become mukzeh.
- (27) The preceding stipulation would be of no avail here, since he could not take it at twilight on account of the prohibition of demolishing.
- (28) V. Glos. s.v. Ethrog.
- (29) One to be used for each day.
- (30) Without having to wait till the end of the day. Cf. Suk. 46b. He holds that it was made mukzeh only in respect of that particular duty, and since that has been fulfilled, it is no longer mukzeh.
- (31) Thus both agree that their prohibition does not extend to the entire Festival.
- (32) The command to take an ethrog (v. Lev. XXIII, 40) has reference only to the day.
- (33) Since the precept of dwelling in booths applies to the nights just as well as to the days.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 31a

MISHNAH. ONE MAY BRING IN FROM THE FIELD [FIRE-] WOOD THAT IS GATHERED TOGETHER,¹ AND FROM A KARPIF [AN ENCLOSURE] EVEN THOUGH IT IS SCATTERED ABOUT.² WHAT IS A KARPIF? ANY [ENCLOSURE] ADJOINING THE TOWN; THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. JUDAH. R. JOSE SAYS: ANY [ENCLOSURE] WHICH ONE ENTERS WITH A KEY,³ EVEN IF IT IS [ONLY JUST] WITHIN A SABBATH TEHUM. GEMARA. Rab Judah said in Samuel's name: You may take wood only from a collected pile in an enclosure. But we have learnt: FROM AN ENCLOSURE EVEN THOUGH IT IS SCATTERED ABOUT! — Our Mishnah represents the opinion of an individual; for it was taught: R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: Beth Shammai and Beth Hillel do not differ [both agreeing] that one may not take in [wood] that was scattered in the field, and that one may take in [wood] that was piled up in an enclosure; they differ only with respect to scattered [wood] in an enclosure and collected [wood] in a field, when Beth Shammai say: He may not take thereof, and Beth Hillel say: He may take thereof.⁴

Said Raba: Leaves of shrubs and leaves of the vine-shoots even though they lie in a heap are forbidden, for since if a wind rises it scatters them, they are regarded as if they are scattered. But if he laid a garment over them the previous day,⁵ it is well.⁶

WHAT IS A KARPIF etc.? The scholars asked: What does it mean? [Does it mean], 'Any [enclosure] adjoining the town providing, however, it has a way of entering by a key; whereas R. Jose comes to teach: Since it has a way of entering by a key, even if [only just] within a Sabbath tehumi, it is still [a karpif]; or this is perhaps what it means: 'Any [enclosure] adjoining the town whether it has a way of entering by a key or not; and R. Jose comes to teach: Even if [only just] within a Sabbath tehumi [it is a karpif] but only if it has a way of entering by a key; if, however, it has no way of entering by a key it is not [a karpif] even though [the enclosure] adjoins the town? — Come and hear: Since it [the Mishnah] teaches: 'R. JOSE SAYS: ANY [ENCLOSURE] WHICH ONE ENTERS WITH A KEY, EVEN IF [ONLY JUST] WITHIN A SABBATH TEHUM', understand therefrom that R. Jose teaches a twofold leniency.⁷ R. Salla said in the name of Jeremiah: The halachah is as R. Jose in the direction of leniency. MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT CHOP UP FIREWOOD FROM BEAMS NOR FROM A BEAM WHICH WAS BROKEN ON A FESTIVAL;⁸ AND ONE MAY NOT CHOP EITHER WITH AN AXE OR WITH A SAW OR WITH A SICKLE BUT ONLY WITH A [BUTCHER'S] CHOPPER.

GEMARA.

- (1) The wood was piled up before the Festival for that purpose, so that strangers might not take it away.
- (2) For even then we may assume that he intended to use it, but did not trouble to collect it because it was enclosed and so guarded.
- (3) Lit., 'a padlocked entrance'.
- (4) But the majority of the Rabbis differ and hold that Beth Hillel forbids the taking of scattered wood even from an enclosure.
- (5) To keep the wind from scattering them.
- (6) For it shows that he intended before the Festival to use them for firewood.
- (7) If the enclosure is adjacent to the city there is no need to have an entrance by a key, and if it can be entered by means of a key it is regarded as a karpif even though it is distant from the city to the extent of a tehun.
- (8) V. supra 2b.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 31b

But you say [in] the first clause, ONE MAY NOT CHOP UP [WOOD] at all! — Answered Rab Judah in the name of Samuel: There is a lacuna and must be taught thus: ONE MAY NOT CHOP UP FIREWOOD FROM a layer of BEAMS¹ NOR FROM A BEAM WHICH WAS BROKEN ON A FESTIVAL; but one may chop up [firewood] from a beam which was broken before the Festival; and when one chops up, ONE MAY NOT CHOP EITHER WITH AN AXE OR WITH A SAW OR WITH A SICKLE BUT ONLY WITH A [BUTCHER'S] CHOPPER.

We have likewise learnt: One may not chop up firewood from a layer of beams nor from a beam which was broken on a Festival, because it was not mukan..

BUT NOT WITH AN AXE. R. Hinena b. Salmia said in Rab's name: They taught this only of its broad end; but with its narrow end² it is permitted. This is obvious: we have learnt: [BUT ONLY] WITH A [BUTCHER'S] CHOPPER!³ — You might say: This applies to a chopper only, but as for a combined axe and chopper,⁴ I might say, Since this side is forbidden the other side too is forbidden, so he informs us [that it is not so].

Some teach this with respect to the latter clause: BUT ONLY WITH A [BUTCHER'S] CHOPPER. R. Hinena b. Salmia said in Rab's name: They taught this only of its narrow end, but with its broad end it is prohibited. This is obvious; we have learnt: ONE MAY NOT [CHOP] WITH AN AXE! — You might say: This applies only to an axe alone; but as for a combined chopper and axe, I might say: Since this end is permitted, the other end too is permitted,' so he informs us [that it is not so].

MISHNAH. IF A [CLOSED] ROOM FULL OF PRODUCE WAS BURST OPEN⁵ [ON A FESTIVAL] HE MAY TAKE [THE PRODUCE] OUT THROUGH THE BREACH.⁶ R. MEIR SAYS: HE MAY MAKE A HOLE AT THE OUTSET AND BRING OUT [THE PRODUCE].

GEMARA. Why so? He is indeed pulling down a tent! — Said R. Nahumi b. Adda in the name of Samuel: It treats here of a layer of bricks.⁷ But it is not so, for R. Nahman said: Bricks left over from a building may be moved on Sabbath, because they are fit for sitting on;⁸ but if he put them in layers one upon the other, he has certainly determined them for something else! Said R. Zera: They said this⁹ with respect to a Festival but not with respect to Sabbath. We have likewise learnt: R. Meir says: He may make a hole at the outset and take out; they said this with respect to a Festival but not with respect to Sabbath. Samuel said: One may loosen the knots¹⁰ in the ground¹¹ but one may not unravel nor cut¹² [the rope]; [the knots in the doors] of utensils, one may loosen and unravel and cut,¹³ whether on a Sabbath or a Festival. They raised an objection: One may loosen the knots in the ground on the Sabbath but one may not unravel nor cut; but on a Festival one may loosen and unravel and cut! — This represents the view of R. Meir, who says: He may make a hole at the outset and bring out [the produce] but the Rabbis dispute with him, and I say this according to the Rabbis. Do then the Rabbis dispute with him with respect to knots in the ground? Surely it was taught: The Sages agree with R. Meir with respect to knots in the ground that on Sabbath one may loosen but one may not unravel nor cut, while on a Festival one may loosen and unravel and cut!

- (1) Because the beams were stored for building purposes and not for firewood.
- (2) Lit., 'its feminine side' . . . 'its masculine side'.
- (3) This usually has no broad, sharp side.
- (4) I.e., where one side is broad, like an axe, and the other narrow, like a butcher's chopper — presumably the choppers were made thus, not like ours nowadays.
- (5) I.e., some of the bricks fell out through the pressure.
- (6) The produce is not regarded as mukzeh though he would not have been able to get at them had the room not burst open.
- (7) Lying loose one upon the other and not built in with mortar.
- (8) Hence rank as utensils. — An object not ranking as a utensil may not be handled on the Sabbath.
- (9) Viz., the law in our Mishnah.
- (10) Lit., 'seals'.
- (11) I. e., the knot in the cord which fastens the door to the rafter to keep it tight and which also points out the trap-door in the floor.
- (12) For this would be in the nature of pulling down.
- (13) For the law of pulling down does not apply to utensils.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 32a

— He¹ ruled as the following Tanna. For It was taught: One may loosen the knots in the ground, but one may not unravel nor cut, whether on a Sabbath or on a Festival; but as to those of utensils — on a Sabbath one may loosen but one may not unravel nor cut; on a Festival one may loosen and unravel and cut. You have justified the first clause; but there is a contradiction from the concluding clause!² — This represents the opinion of R. Nehemiah who says: All utensils may not be handled except for their normal use.³ If it is R. Nehemiah, why particularly the Sabbath; the same holds good even on a Festival! And if you say that R. Nehemiah makes a distinction between a shebuth⁴ of the Sabbath and a shebuth of a Festival,⁵ [I would object], Does he then make a distinction? For one [Baraitha] teaches: One may kindle a fire [on a Festival] with utensils,⁶ but one may not kindle a fire with fragments of utensils;⁷ and another [Baraitha] teaches: One may kindle a fire with both utensils and fragments of utensils; and [still] another [Baraitha] teaches: One may not kindle either with utensils or with broken pieces of utensils; and we explained, there is no contradiction: One is according to R. Judah, the other is according to R. Simeon, and the third is according to R. Nehemiah!⁸ — Two Tannaim dispute about the opinion of R. Nehemiah.⁹ MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT HOLLOW OUT A LAMP¹⁰ [ON A FESTIVAL], BECAUSE HE WOULD BE MAKING A UTENSIL; AND ONE MAY NOT MAKE CHARCOAL¹¹ ON A FESTIVAL, NOR CUT A WICK IN TWO. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE MAY SEVER IT WITH A FLAME.

GEMARA. Who teaches that the hollowing out of a lamp constitutes [making] a utensil?¹² — Said R. Joseph: It is R. Meir; for it was taught: When is a clay vessel susceptible to defilement? As soon as its form is finished;¹³ this is the opinion of R. Meir. R. Joshua says: As soon as it is baked in the furnace. Said Abaye to him: Whence does this follow? Perhaps R. Meir is of this opinion only there, because they [the vessels] are fit for receiving things,¹⁴ but here¹⁵ for what is it fit? — For receiving copper coins.

Some say: Said R. Joseph: It is R. Eliezer son of R. Zadok: For we have learnt: Ironian¹⁶ stewpots do not contract defilement when under the same roof as a corpse, but they become defiled if they are carried by one who has an issue.¹⁷ R. Eliezer son of R. Zadok says: They are undefiled even if they are carried by one who has an issue, because they are not yet finished in the making.¹⁸ Said Abaye to him: Perhaps R. Eliezer son of R. Zadok is of this opinion only there, because they [the stewpots] are fit for receiving things;¹⁹ but here for what is it fit? — For receiving copper coins.

Our Rabbis taught: One may not hollow out a lamp and one may not make Ironian stewpots on a Festival. R. Simeon b. Gamaliel permits Ironian stewpots. What means Ironian? — Said Rab Judah: Provincial. What means 'provincial'? — Said Abaye: Peasants' trenchers.²⁰

AND ONE MAY NOT MAKE CHARCOAL. This is obvious; for what is it fit?²¹ — R. Hiyya taught: This is necessary to be taught only with respect to handing them over to the bath attendants on the same day.²² Is it then permissible [for such use] on that day?²³ — As Raba explained [elsewhere]: Where it is for perspiring,²⁴ and before the prohibition,²⁵ so also here [it treats of a case] of perspiring and before the prohibition.

NOR CUT A WICK IN TWO [etc.]: Why not with a knife —

(1) R. Samuel who forbids unravelling even on a Festival.

(2) According to the concluding clause one may in the case of vessels only loosen on a Sabbath, whereas Samuel permits even unravelling and cutting too.

(3) Hence, though the cutting is permitted in itself, a knife may not be handled for that purpose. But Samuel disagrees with R. Nehemiah in this.

(4) V. Glos.

- (5) Treating the latter less rigorously than the former and consequently the said restriction does not apply to a Festival.
- (6) Since being utensils they may be handled, they may also be used for burning.
- (7) Being fragments, they may not be handled normally; and though fit for fuel (which under other circumstances would permit them to be handled), this is discounted, since they were not intended for this before the Festival.
- (8) R. Judah who holds the prohibition of mukzeh, forbids fragments as fuel; R. Simeon who rejects this prohibition, permits them, while R. Nehemiah, holding that utensils may be handled for their normal use only, forbids even whole utensils. This proves that R. Nehemiah's ruling applies to Festivals too.
- (9) One holding that he draws a distinction in respect of his ruling between the Sabbath and Festivals; the other, that he does not.
- (10) By pressing in the finger into a lump of clay.
- (11) This too is technically regarded as a utensil for goldsmiths.
- (12) Although the clay is not yet baked in the furnace.
- (13) I.e., hollowed out, even before it is hardened in the furnace.
- (14) I.e., dry objects, even though they were unfit for liquids.
- (15) Being unbaked, it cannot take oil for lighting, as it will soak into it; while it is too small for ordinary dry objects.
- (16) For V.L. cf. D.S. The correct reading as well as the exact meaning of this term is uncertain. The Talmud (infra) explains it in the sense of provincial, coarse and unfinished. V. 'Ed., Sonc. ed. p. 12, n. 9. According to the Commentaries, this stewpot was fashioned like a hollow ball and thus baked in the kiln and afterwards cut into two. Undivided it cannot become unclean through a dead body because the inner space is enclosed and a clay vessel must have a hollow before it can receive defilement. (Cf. Num. XIX, 15).
- (17) Cf. Lev. XV, 4 and 12, where a hollow in the vessel is not required.
- (18) Viz., their hollowing out, and are therefore not considered utensils. 'Ed. II, 5. Hence we see that the hollowing out constitutes the making of a utensil, and the same holds good in the Mishnah.
- (19) When they are hollowed out.
- (20) Which are coarse and unfinished.
- (21) They can only be used on the same day for manufacturing works which are forbidden on a Festival.
- (22) For the preparation of the bath water.
- (23) The Rabbis distinctly forbade taking baths both on Sabbath and Festivals. Cf. Shab. 38a.
- (24) Not actually bathing.
- (25) Of such perspiring on Sabbath and Festivals. Cf. Shab. 40a.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 32b

because he thereby makes an article;¹ then by [severing it] with fire he is also making an article? — R. Hiyya taught: He may sever it with fire [when the wick is] in two lamps.²

Said R. Nathan b. Abba in the name of Rab: One may trim the wick on a Festival. What is meant by trimming? Said R. Hanina b. Salmia [in Rab's name]: To remove the snuff.

Bar Kappara taught: Six things have been taught with respect to a wick, three restrictions and three leniencies. The restrictions are: One may not plait it at the outset on a Festival, and one may not singe it with fire,³ and one may not cut it in two. Leniencies: One may rub it by hand,⁴ and one may soak it in oil, and one may sever it with fire when it is in two lamps.

R. Nathan b. Abba further said in the name of Rab: The rich men of Babylon will go down to Gehenna; for once Shabthai b. Marinus came to Babylon and entreated them to provide him with facilities for trading and they refused this to him; neither did they give him any food. He said: These are the descendants of the 'mixed multitude',⁵ for it is written, And [He will] show thee mercy and have compassion upon thee,⁶ [teaching that] whoever is merciful to his fellow-men is certainly of the children of our father Abraham, and whosoever is not merciful to his fellow-men is certainly not of the children of our father Abraham.⁷

R. Nathan b. Abba further said in the name of Rab: He who is dependent on another's table, the world is dark to him, for it is said: He wandereth abroad for bread. 'Where is it?' He knoweth that the day of darkness is ready at his hand.⁸ R. Hisda says: Also his life is no life.

Our Rabbis taught: There are three whose life is no life and they are: He who is dependent on the table of his neighbour; he whom his wife rules; and he whose body is subject to suffering. And some say: Also he who possesses only one shirt.⁹ And the first Tanna? — It is possible to examine his garment.¹⁰

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT BREAK UP A POTSHERD OR CUT PAPER IN ORDER TO ROAST THEREON SALT-FISH;¹¹ NOR MAY ONE RAKE OUT AN OVEN OR A POT RANGE,¹² BUT ONE MAY PRESS [THE ASHES] DOWN;¹³ NOR MAY ONE PLACE TWO JARS SIDE BY SIDE IN ORDER TO SET A SAUCEPAN ON THEM.¹⁴ NOR MAY ONE PROP UP A POT WITH A WOODEN WEDGE AND THE SAME APPLIES TO A DOOR; NOR MAY ONE DRIVE CATTLE WITH A STAFF ON A FESTIVAL, BUT R. ELEAZAR SON OF R. SIMEON PERMITS IT.

GEMARA. What is the reason [that one may not break Up a potsherd]? — Because he is making a [new] article.¹⁵

NOR MAY ONE RAKE OUT AN OVEN OR A POT RANGE. R. Hiyya b. Joseph recited in the presence of R. Nahman: If it is impossible to bake unless it is raked out it is permitted. A brick fell down in R. Hiyya's wife's oven on a Festival. [So] R. Hiyya said to her: Take notice that I want good bread.¹⁶ Raba said to his attendant: Roast a duck for me and mind it does not get burnt.¹⁶ Rabina said to R. Ashi: R. Aha from Huzal¹⁷ told that they pasted up the oven¹⁸ for you, Sir, on a Festival!¹⁹ He replied to him: We use²⁰ [the clay from] the bank of the Euphrates,²¹ and even then only when one had marked out [the clay] on the previous day. Said Rabina: Ashes are permitted.²²

NOR MAY ONE PLACE TWO JARS SIDE BY SIDE: Said R. Nahman: It is permissible to arrange the stones of a privy side by side on a Festival.²³ Rabbah raised an objection to R. Nahman: ONE MAY NOT PLACE TWO JARS SIDE BY SIDE AND ON THESE SET A SAUCEPAN! — He replied to him: It is different there, for he is making a tent.²⁴ Rabbah Zuta said to R. Ashi: Accordingly it should also be permitted to build a seat²⁵ on a Festival, since he is not making a tent! — He replied to him: There the Torah forbade a permanent building but not a temporary building, but the Rabbis forbade a temporary building on account of a permanent building; but here²⁶ the Rabbis did not enact this prohibition, for the sake of his dignity.

Rab Judah said: It is permitted [to build] a fireheap from above downwards but not from beneath upwards.²⁷

(1) Out of one wick he makes two.

(2) If the two ends of the wick are two lamps he may light it in the middle, since his purpose does not appear to be to divide it but rather to get a light.

(3) To remove any threads or fibres.

(4) To soften it.

(5) Cf. Ex. XII, 38.

(7) The verse ends: as He hath sworn unto thy fathers. Now he translates the part quoted thus: and He will give thee (the spirit of) mercy — i.e., to be merciful to others. Hence, of the person who possesses that, it can be said . . . 'unto thy fathers', viz., the Patriarchs; but if one lacks it, 'Unto thy fathers' cannot be said of him, and so he must be a descendant of the mixed multitude.

- (13) So that the dough which was pressed to the side of the oven (this was the ancient method of baking) should not come into contact with the old ashes or earth.
- (14) Because it looks like setting up a tripod and is in the nature of building.
- (15) The broken potsherd is now to serve as a utensil for preventing burning.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 33a

The same is true also of an egg, a pot, a bed and a jug.¹

NOR MAY ONE PROP UP A POT WITH A WOODEN WEDGE AND LIKEWISE WITH A DOOR. Can you possibly mean WITH A DOOR?² — Say rather: And the same applies to a door.³

Our Rabbis taught: One may not prop up a pot with a wooden wedge and the same applies to a door, for wood is meant [as a rule] only for heating;⁴ but R. Simeon permits it. Nor may one drive cattle with a staff on a Festival, but R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon permits it. Shall it be said that R. Eleazar son of R. Simeon agrees with his father in rejecting [the prohibition of] mukzeh? — No; in this case even R. Simeon agrees,⁵ for it looks as though he were going to market.⁶

Bamboo-cane, R. Nahman forbids⁷ and R. Shesheth permits. When it is moist none dispute that it is forbidden;⁸ they [only] dispute when it is dry; he who forbids it says: Wood is made to serve only for kindling;⁹ he who permits it says, It is one and the same thing whether roasting with it [used as a spit] or whether roasting with its coal.¹⁰ Some say: When it is dry none dispute that it is permitted; they [only] dispute when it is moist; he who forbids [it,] it is because it is not fit for fuel,¹¹ and he who permits [it] says, It is fit for a big fire. And the law is: When it is dry it is permitted, when it is moist it is forbidden.

Raba lectured: A woman may not go into a wood-shed to fetch therefrom a brand;¹² and a log of wood that was broken [on a Festival] may not be burnt on the Festival, for one may heat with utensils but one may not heat with broken utensils. Shall it be said that Raba is of the same opinion as R. Judah who holds the rule of mukzeh? But surely Raba said to his attendant: Roast me a duck and throw its inwards to the cat!¹³ — There [it is different]; since they [the inwards] turn putrid, he had intended them [for the cat] from the day before.¹⁴ MISHNAH. R. ELIEZER SAYS: A MAN

MAY TAKE A CHIP FROM THAT WHICH IS LYING BEFORE HIM¹⁵ TO PICK HIS TEETH WITH IT, AND HE MAY COLLECT [CHIPS] FROM THE COURT YARD AND MAKE A FIRE, FOR EVERYTHING IN A COURT IS MUKZEH. BUT THE SAGES SAY: HE MAY COLLECT ONLY FROM THAT WHICH IS BEFORE HIM AND MAKE A FIRE. ONE MAY NOT PRODUCE FIRE EITHER FROM WOOD,¹⁶ OR FROM STONES,¹⁷ OR FROM EARTH,¹⁸ OR FROM TILES,¹⁹ OR FROM WATER;²⁰ NOR MAY ONE MAKE TILES RED-HOT IN ORDER TO ROAST ON THEM.

GEMARA. Rab Judah said:

(1) When an egg is to be placed on a tripod for baking, the tripod must not be placed on the fire and the egg on it, but it must be held in the hand, the egg placed on it, and then the whole on the fire. — A pot was placed on two barrels with a fire burning underneath. These barrels, however, must not be placed in position first, but the pot must be held in the air and then the barrels put underneath. — Folding beds are likewise: instead of the supports being placed first and then the canvas or skin overlay, as usual, the canvas must be stretched out first and the supports fitted in to it. Finally, when barrels are being stored away, One on top of two, the top one must be held and the other two pushed under it. In each case the usual mode of setting would constitute making a tent.

(2) It was presumed that it means 'the door may not be used as a prop'.

(3) Viz., a door may not be propped up with a chip. The Mishnah therefore must be translated: And it is likewise so in the case of a door.

(4) Hence it is mukzeh in respect of any other purpose.

(5) That it is prohibited.

(6) Lit., 'to a dance', so called because of the crowds assembled at the market.

(7) To be used as a spit on a Festival, on account of mukzeh, for it was not intended before the Festival to use it as a spit.

(8) For it cannot then be used even for eating.

(9) Hence it is mukzeh in respect of any other purpose.

(10) For it is permissible to burn it and use its charcoal for roasting.

(11) Hence it cannot be handled for its natural purpose, and therefore it must not be handled for any other purpose either.

(12) To be used for a poker. For wood can only be employed for kindling and cannot be used as a utensil unless it was so intended before the Festival.

(13) Whereas according to R. Judah the inwards should be forbidden to be handled as mukzeh. Cf. supra 2a, 27b.

(14) Hence R. Judah would agree that the inwards are not mukzeh.

(15) I.e., in the house.

(16) By rubbing two sticks together, because this would be bringing into existence something which was not already made.

(17) By striking flint with steel,

(18) Sulphur or phosphorus.

(19) This clause is omitted in the Mishnayoth.

(20) By using the water in a glass as a mirror to focus the rays of the sun.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 33b

[The prohibition] of making a utensil does not apply to cattle fodder.¹ R. Kahana raised an objection to Rab Judah: One may carry about spice-wood for smelling or in order to fan a sick person with it; and he may rub it and smell it but he may not cut off [a piece] in order to smell it;² and if he did cut off [a piece] he is not culpable, although it is forbidden; he may not cut off [a piece] in order to pick his teeth, but if he did cut off he is liable to a sin-offering!³ — He replied to him: If [the Baraitha had taught that] 'he is not culpable, yet it is forbidden', even that would contradict me; how much more so when it states 'he is liable for a sin-offering'; but that [Baraitha] was taught with respect to hard [spice-wood].⁴ But is hard [spicewood] capable of being rubbed! — There is a lacuna and must be taught as follows: 'He may rub it and smell it and he may cut off [a piece] and smell it'. This only applies to soft spice-wood, but he may not cut hard [spice-wood], and if he does cut it, he is not culpable, although it is forbidden; he may not cut off [a piece] in order to pick his teeth, but if he does cut off he is liable to a sin-offering. One [Baraita] teaches: He may cut off [a piece] and smell it; and another [Baraita] teaches: He may not cut off in order to smell thereof? — Said R. Zera in the name of R. Hisda: There is no contradiction; one refers to soft [spice-wood]; the other, to hard. To this R. Aha b. Jacob demurred: Why [may he] not [cut off] from hard [spice-wood]?⁵ In what respect is this different from what we learnt: A man may break open a cask in order to eat of its dry figs, provided that he does not intend to make a utensil [of it].⁶ And furthermore, Raba son of R. Adda and Rabin son of R. Adda have both related: When we were staying with Rab Judah he broke a branch off⁷ and gave us each a piece of aloe-wood, although they were [so hard that they were] capable of being used as a handle for a bill or an axe!⁸ — There is no contradiction; the one is according to R. Eliezer, and the other is according to the Rabbis; for it was taught: R. Eliezer says: A man may take a chip from [wood] lying before him to pick his teeth with it, but the Sages say: He may take [it] only out of a cattle-crib;⁹ but they both agree that he may not cut off [a piece], and if he did cut off to pick his teeth or to open a door with it,¹⁰ if he did it unwittingly on a Sabbath, he is liable to a sin-offering, and if he did it deliberately on a Festival he is liable to receive forty lashes: this is the opinion of R. Eliezer. But the Sages say: Both the one and the other are forbidden only as a shebuth.¹¹ [Now] R. Eliezer¹² who says there,¹³ 'he is liable to a sin-offering', [will hold] here [that] he is not culpable, although it is forbidden; the Rabbis who say there, 'he is not culpable although it is forbidden' [maintain] here [that] it is permitted at the outset. But does not R. Eliezer accept the teaching, A man may break open a cask in order to eat of its dry figs provided that he does not intend to make a utensil? — Said R. Ashi: That was taught with respect to a barrel whose parts are stuck together with pitch.¹⁴

AND HE MAY COLLECT FROM THE COURT: Our Rabbis taught: He may collect from the court and make a fire, for every thing in the court is mukan, provided that he does not make many heaps; but R. Simeon permits [even this]. In what do they differ? — One is of the opinion: It looks as though he were gathering for the morrow and the day after;¹⁵ and the other is of the opinion: His pot bears testimony for him.¹⁶

ONE MAY NOT PRODUCE FIRE. What is the reason? Because he is creating [something new] on a Festival.

NOR MAY ONE MAKE TILES RED-HOT. What does he do?¹⁷ — Said Rabbah b. Bar Hana in the name of R. Johanan: We are dealing here with new bricks [and the prohibition is] because

- (1) I.e., straw or stubble and the like may be used as a tooth-pick.
 - (2) By cutting off a piece, he produces a new surface which yields greater fragrance.
 - (3) Although some spice-wood can be used as fodder. This contradicts Rab Judah.
 - (4) Which is unfit for fodder. Hence it does not contradict me at all.
 - (5) In order to smell. Did then the Rabbis preventively forbid it lest he might cut it off as a utensil?
 - (6) I.e., he must not break open the bung in such a way as to make a permanent mouth. This we see that no such preventative decree exists.
 - (7) On a Sabbath in order to smell thereof. The branch was, of course, detached.
 - (8) Cf. Shab. 146a.
 - (9) Since it is definitely food, it can therefore be used for any purpose.
 - (10) I. e. , to use it as a latch.
 - (11) V. Glos.
 - (12) The explanation of there being no contradiction is now continued.
 - (13) With respect to cutting spice-wood.
 - (14) Therefore it cannot afterwards again be used as a vessel. Cf. Jast. s.v. מוסתקי
 - (15) Which is certainly forbidden.
 - (16) I.e., it is quite obvious that he wants the fuel for the Festival.

(17) What forbidden action is there in this?

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 34a

he has yet to examine them.¹ Others explain it: Because he has yet to harden them.² We have learnt elsewhere:³ If one trod upon it [poultry] or knocked it against a wall, or if cattle trampled over it and it still moves convulsively and continues alive for a full day of twenty-four hours, and he then slaughters it, it is ritually fit. Said R. Eleazar b. Jannai in the name of R. Eleazar b. Antigonus: It still has to be examined.⁴ R. Jeremiah asked of R. Zera: May one slaughter it on a Festival? Should we assume an unsoundness On a Festival⁵ or not? He replied to him: We have learnt it: NOR MAY ONE MAKE TILES RED-HOT IN ORDER TO ROAST ON THEM; and we raised the point: What does he do? And Rabbah b. Bar Hana in the name of R. Johanan said: We are dealing here with new bricks [and they must not be heated] because he has yet to examine them.⁶ He said to him: We teach: Because he has yet to harden them.⁷ It was taught: If one brings the fire [on a Sabbath] and another brings the wood and another puts the pot on the fire and another brings the water and another puts in the seasoning and another stirs, they are all liable.⁸ But surely it was taught: The last one is liable and the rest are exempt! — There is no contradiction. The one speaks of a case where the fire was brought first; and the other, where the fire was brought last.⁹ As for all the others, it is well, for they perform an action;¹⁰ but he who puts the pot on the fire, what does he do?¹¹ — Said R. Simeon b. Lakish: We treat here of a new pot and they applied here the prohibition of making tiles red-hot. Our Rabbis taught: A new oven and a new pot range are like all other utensils which may be carried about in a court; but one may not smear them with oil or polish them with a rug or cool them with cold water in order to harden them; but if [it is done] for the purpose of baking,¹² it is permitted.

Our Rabbis taught: One may scald the head and the feet [of a fowl or animal] or singe them with fire; but one may not cover then, with potter's clay or with earth or with lime,¹³ nor may one cut off [their hair] with scissors; and one may not cut round vegetables with their [garden] shears,¹⁴ but one may trim the artichoke and the cardoon;¹⁵ one may heat and bake in a large oven¹⁶ and one may warm up water in an antiki¹⁷ vessel; but one may not bake in a new large oven lest it crack¹⁸.

Our Rabbis taught: One may not blow up [the fire] with bellows [on a Festival] but one may blow it up with a tube [reed]; one may not condition a spit nor may one sharpen it.

Our Rabbis taught: One may not split a reed in order to roast a salt fish thereon, but one may crack a nut in a rag and we do not apprehend lest it be torn.¹⁹

MISHNAH. R. ELIEZER FURTHER²⁰ SAID: A MAN MAY STAND NEAR HIS DRYING FIGS²¹

(1) Whether they can stand burning, for if they crack they cannot be used and all his labour has been in vain.

(2) By burning; hence when he makes them red-hot he completes their manufacture, and this may not be done on Festival.

(3) Hul. 57a and 57b.

(4) Whether the injury did not make it trefa.

(5) I.e., on account of its stringency and therefore not kill it.

(6) To see if they crack. Hence we see that we do assume an unsoundness on account of the stringency of the Festival.

(7) So that this has no bearing on our problem.

(8) For various breaches of the Sabbath.

(9) In the former case all are liable, for all have committed a breach of the Sabbath; in the latter only the last person performed a culpable act.

(10) As one carries the fire he creates a draught which fans it into a stronger blaze; hence his action technically constitutes kindling. Similarly, he who adds fuel. Pouring in the water and the condiments and stirring all constitute cooking.

(11) He puts it on empty; hence he does not cook at all.

(12) That the bread should not burn.

(13) In order to remove the hair.

(14) The shears with which they are cut from the soil. The prohibition is because one might suspect that the person had only on that day cut them from the ground.

(15) These plants require a good deal of care in their preparation.

(16) Though it involves much labour.

(17) [אָנמײַכײַ] A water-heating vessel with a fuel compartment (v. Shab. 41a). Though it retains its heat for a long time, extending even beyond the needs of the Festival day on which it is heated, it is nevertheless permitted, v. R. Nissim. The derivation of the word is obscure. Krauss TA, I, p. 73 connects it with Grk, GR.  v. op. cit. p. 411.]

(18) And the whole labour will be in vain. Unnecessary labour is forbidden on a Festival.

(19) For even if it does get torn it is of no consequence, for one is liable only if the tearing is for the purpose of sewing it up again.

(20) Cf. supra p. 33a.

(21) Heb. mukzeh. Which require designation for the Sabbath.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 34b

ON THE EVE OF A SABBATH IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR¹ AND SAY: FROM THIS PART WILL I EAT TO-MORROW.² BUT THE SAGES SAY: ONLY IF HE MARKS IT OUT AND SAYS, 'FROM HERE UNTO THERE.'

GEMARA. We have learnt elsewhere.³ If children put away figs⁴ [in the field] on the eve of Sabbath [for the Sabbath] and they forgot and did not tithe them, [before the Sabbath], they may not be eaten after the Sabbath until they have been tithed.⁵ And we have also learnt:⁶ If one was carrying figs through his court for drying,⁷ his children and the members of his household may make a light meal of them and are exempt [from tithes].⁸ Raba asked R. Nahman: Does the Sabbath establish a liability to tithes in the case of drying figs,⁹ seeing that they were not completely ready [for eating]?¹⁰ Do we say, Since it is written, And [thou shalt] call the Sabbath a delight,¹¹ it [the Sabbath] establishes a liability even where the commodity is not completely ready [for tithing], or perhaps it [the Sabbath] establishes liability only where the commodity is completely ready [for tithing], but not where the commodity is not yet completely ready? — He replied to him: The Sabbath establishes liability whether the commodity is completely ready [for tithing] or not. He said to him: Say [perhaps] that the Sabbath is like a court? Just as a court establishes liability only where the commodity is completely ready [for tithing],¹² so also the Sabbath does not establish liability save where the commodity is completely ready? — He replied to him: We have a distinct teaching that the Sabbath establishes liability both where the commodity is completely ready and where the commodity is not completely ready [for tithing]. Mar Zutra son of R. Nahman said: We have likewise learnt: R. Eliezer further said: A MAN MAY STAND NEAR HIS DRYING FIGS ON THE EVE OF A SABBATH IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR etc.: Thus it is only in the Sabbatical year, when it is free from tithe; but in the other years of the septennate it would be forbidden;¹³ [and] for what reason? Is it not because the Sabbath establishes liability! — No, there it is different; since he Says, FROM THIS PART WILL I EAT TO-MORROW, he established liability for himself.¹⁴ If so, why particularly the Sabbath; this holds good even on a weekday? — This is what he informs us, [namely] that tebel¹⁵ is regarded as mukan

(1) V. Lev. XXV, 1-7. In the Sabbatical year fruit is tithe-free.

(2) Such designation is sufficient for he holds the rule of retrospective selection, i.e., a selection made subsequently is of legal effect retrospectively, as though it were made earlier—here, as though he expressly designated the particular figs to-morrow.

(3) Ma'as. IV, 2.

- (4) Which were ready for eating and therefore liable for tithing.
- (5) Although a light meal of untithed fruit is permitted before it has been brought into the house or the court (v. B.M. 88a), appointing these figs for the Sabbath marks the end of their ingathering and they become liable to tithe.
- (6) Ma'as. III, 1.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 35a

with respect to Sabbath, so that if one transgressed and tithed it, it is fit for use.¹ But is not the remainder put back; and we know R. Eliezer to hold that whenever the remainder can be put back, it does not establish liability?² For we have learnt: If one took olives out of the vat he may dip them in salt one at a time and eat them [untithed]; but if he dipped ten³ [in salt] and placed them before him he is liable.⁴ R. Eliezer says: [If he takes them] from a clean vat he is liable; from an unclean vat, he is exempt, because he can put back what remains over.⁵ And we argued on this: What is the difference between the first clause and the last clause?⁶ And R. Abbahu answered: The first clause treats of a clean vat and an unclean person, so that he cannot put the remainder back;⁷ the last clause treats of an unclean vat and an unclean person, so that he can put it back! — Our Mishnah too treats of clean drying figs and an unclean person who cannot put it back. But surely they are de facto put back?⁸ — Rather said R. Simi b. Ashi:⁹ You speak of R. Eliezer? R. Eliezer follows his opinion [expressed elsewhere]; for he says that [separating] terumah¹⁰ establishes liability, how much more so the Sabbath.¹¹ For we have learnt: If terumah had been separated from fruits before they were completely ready [for tithing],¹² R. Eliezer forbids a light meal to be made of it, but the Sages permit.¹³

Come and hear [a support] from the second clause: BUT THE SAGES SAY: ONLY IF HE MARKS IT OUT AND SAYS: FROM HERE UNTO THERE. Thus it is only on the eve of a Sabbath in the Sabbatical year, when it is free from tithe; but in other years of the septennate, it would be forbidden. What is the reason? Surely because the Sabbath establishes liability? — No, there it is different; since he says, FROM HERE UNTO THERE WILL I EAT TOMORROW, he made it liable for tithing. If so, why particularly of Sabbath: this holds good even on a weekday? This is what he informs us, [namely] that tebel is mukan with respect to Sabbath, so that if one transgressed and separated the tithe, it is fit for use. But the following contradicts this: If one was eating a cluster of grapes¹⁴ and entered from the garden into the court,¹⁵ R. Eliezer says: He may finish [eating it without tithing], [but] R. Joshua maintains: He may not finish. If it was getting dark towards the Sabbath,¹⁶ R. Eliezer says: He may finish [eating the cluster of grapes], [but] R. Joshua maintains: He may not finish.¹⁷ — There [it is different] as the passage is explained:¹⁸ R. Nathan says: When R. Eliezer said, 'He may finish', he did not mean that he may finish [eating it] in the court, but he must leave the court and finish [it in his garden]; and when R. Eliezer said, 'He may finish', he did not [mean] that he may finish [it] on the Sabbath, but he waits until the termination of the Sabbath and finishes [it]. When Rabin came [from Palestine], he said in the name of R. Johanan: Neither the Sabbath nor [the separating of] terumah nor [bringing the fruit into the] court, nor [the act of] purchasing establish liability save where it was [otherwise] completely ready [for tithing]. 'The Sabbath', to reject the opinion of Hillel; for it was taught: if one carries fruit from one place to another¹⁹ and the holiness of the [Sabbath] day came upon him, said R. Judah: Hillel alone forbids

- (1) On the Sabbath, for the designation of the day before is valid; and the tithing too is valid, since the prohibition of the tithing on a Sabbath is only Rabbinical.
- (2) How much more so is it not liable for tithing when he merely said, 'From here will I eat to-morrow'.
- (3) 'Ten' is absent in the Mishnayoth: it thus means, if he dipped a fair number, etc.
- (4) By thus placing them all in front of him and not eating each as he dips it into the salt, he shows that he wishes to make a proper meal of them, not a mere snack, and a proper meal is forbidden before tithing.
- (5) Ma'as. IV, 3. When he can put the remainder back, even if he takes many he does not mean to make a proper meal, as he may eat a few only; hence he is not liable. But when he cannot put the remainder back, and he takes a number, he evidently intends to eat them all now, and this intention establishes liability to tithes because it will constitute a full and proper meal.
- (6) Even in a clean vat one can put back the fruit left over.
- (7) Because he renders what he touches unclean, and so this in turn will defile the olives in the vat if he puts it back.
- (8) Since they have never been taken out; he merely designated them by word of mouth.
- (9) In truth it is not his speech but the Sabbath that establishes liability; nevertheless our Mishnah does not support R. Nahman, because it only quotes the view of R. Eliezer, but the Sages differ.
- (10) V. Glos.
- (11) But the Sages who differ with respect to terumah differ also with respect to Sabbath.
- (12) I.e., before their preparation was complete and therefore not yet liable to tithe.
- (13) Ma'as. II, 4. — R. Eliezer holds that the separating of terumah though it was as yet unnecessary, has established a liability to tithes too, though it is not yet completely ready. But the Sages dispute this.
- (14) The grapes are tithe-free until they are brought within the owner's court. When yet in the vineyard, the owner may eat of them a slender meal, for their preparation for tithing is regarded complete only when made into wine.
- (15) Which makes the grapes liable to tithe, without which even a light meal is now forbidden.
- (16) When it is forbidden to tithe. — This is a separate case and does not refer to when he entered the court.
- (17) Ter. VIII, 3. Hence it is to be inferred that R. Eliezer does not hold that the Sabbath establishes liability for tithing.
- (18) In Tosef. Ter. VII.
- (19) This follows the text of the Tosefta, which is preferable to that of our edd. [The Fruit was evidently taken for drying; v. Wilna Gaon Ma'as. III and cf. R. Hananel a.l. Assuming that לקצור 'to harvest' in cur. edd. is a scribal error for לקצות 'to dry', the reading of cur. edd. yields equally good sense.]
- (20) But all the other scholars allow.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 35b

'Court', to reject the opinion of R. Jacob, for we have learnt: If one was carrying figs into his court for drying, his children and the members of his household may eat of them a light meal and are exempt [from tithes]; and with respect to this, it was taught: R. Jacob makes him liable for tithing and R. Jose son of R. Judah exempts [him].

'Terumah', to reject the opinion of R. Eliezer; for we have learnt: If one separated terumah from fruits before they were completely ready [for tithing] R. Eliezer forbids a light meal to be made of it, but the Sages permit.¹

'Purchasing', as it was taught: If one bought figs from an 'am ha-arez² in a district where the majority of the people press [them], he may eat thereof a light meal and he tithes them as demai.³ Infer from this three things; infer from this [that] 'purchasing' establishes liability only where it was completely ready [for tithing]; infer from this also [that] the majority of the 'amme ha-arez do tithe [their produce]; and [further] infer from this [that] one should tithe the demai of an 'am ha-arez even of a commodity whose preparation has not yet been completed. And it⁴ is to reject that which we have learnt: If one exchanges fruit with his neighbour, the one intending to eat them [as they are] and the other intending to eat them, or the one intending to dry them and the other intending to dry them, or the one intending to eat them and the other intending to dry them, they are both liable.⁵ R. Judah says: He who intends eating it is liable,⁶ but he who intends drying it is exempt.⁷

CHAPTER V

MISHNAH. ONE MAY LET DOWN FRUIT⁸ THROUGH A TRAP-DOOR ON A FESTIVAL BUT NOT ON A SABBATH, AND COVER UP FRUIT WITH VESSELS ON ACCOUNT OF THE RAIN; AND LIKEWISE JARS OF WINE AND JARS OF OIL; AND [EVEN] ON A SABBATH ONE MAY PLACE A VESSEL BENEATH THE DROPS OF RAIN.

GEMARA. It was stated: Rab Judah and R. Nathan [dispute]; one recites MASHILLIN⁹ and the other teaches MASHHILLIN. Said Mar Zutra: The one that recites MASHILLIN does not teach wrongly and the other who recites MASHHILLIN does not teach wrongly. The one that recites MASHILLIN does not teach wrongly for it is written, For thine olives shall drop off, [yishshal];¹⁰ and the other who recites MASHHILLIN does not teach wrongly for we have learnt: [If the firstling is a] shahol or a kasol [it may be slaughtered]; 'shahol' [means an animal] whose hip has become dislocated¹¹ and 'kasol' [means an animal] one of whose hips is higher than the other.¹² R. Nahman b. Isaac said: The One that recites MASHIRIN does not teach wrongly and the one that recites MASHHIRIN does not teach wrongly, and the one that recites MANSHIRIN does not teach wrongly. The one that recites MASHIRIN does not teach wrongly, for we have learnt: R. Ishmael says: A Nazirite may not shampoo his head with clay because it makes the hair fall out [mashir];¹³ and the one that recites MASHHIRIN does not teach wrongly, for we have learnt: The hair-clip [shahor] and the barber's scissors are susceptible to defilement even though they [the two parts] are separated;¹⁴ and the one that recites MANSHIRIN does not teach wrongly, for we have learnt: If one's clothes fell [nashru] in the water [on a Sabbath], he may walk in them without fear.¹⁵ Alternatively, from the following teaching: What is leket?¹⁶ That which was let fall [nashar] at the time of harvesting.¹⁷ We have learnt: YOU MAY LET DOWN FRUIT THROUGH A TRAPDOOR ON A FESTIVAL? How much?¹⁸ — Said R. Zera in the name of R. Assi — some say, R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: Like that which we have learnt: One may clear away [on Sabbath as much as] four or five bundles of straw or grain¹⁹ on account of guests or to avoid disturbance of study.²⁰ But perhaps it is different there where study would [otherwise] be disturbed, but here where there is no disturbance of study it is not so!²¹ Or perhaps there [as many as] four or five bundles are allowed [to be cleared away] because the Sabbath is stringent and [people] will not come to treat it lightly, but on a Festival, which is less stringent and people might come to treat it lightly, he may not [move any at all]! Or [argue] in the reverse: There [only four or five are allowed] because no monetary loss is involved, but here where monetary loss is involved²² even more is allowed!

[Moreover] we have learnt there:¹ But [one may] not [clear away] the store-house; and Samuel said: What means 'but [one may] not [clear away] the storehouse'? [It means,] But one may not clear away the entire store² lest he come to level out hollows.³ Now what is the law here?⁴ [Do I say that] it is forbidden there, on the Sabbath, because it is stringent, but on a Festival which is less stringent it is permitted; or perhaps [I can argue], if there where there is disturbance of study, you say that it is forbidden, here where there is no disturbance of study how much the more? [Furthermore] we have learnt here: ONE MAY LET DOWN FRUIT THROUGH A TRAP-DOOR ON A FESTIVAL; and R. Nahman said: They taught this only with respect to the same roof, but not from one roof to another. And it was likewise taught: One may not move [things] from one roof to another even when the roofs are level with each other.⁵ Now how is it there [on the Sabbath]?⁶ [Do I say that] here only it is forbidden, because a Festival is less stringent and [people] might come to treat it lightly, but on a Sabbath which is stringent and [people] will not come to treat it lightly, it is allowed; or perhaps [I can argue], if here, where loss of fruit is involved, you say that it is not [permitted] there, where no damage of fruit is involved, how much the more? [Again] it was taught here:⁷ He may not let them [the bundles] down through windows with ropes, nor may he bring them, down by means of ladders. How is it there?⁸ [Do I say that] only here, on a Festival it is forbidden, because no disturbance of study is involved, but [there] on the Sabbath, where there is a disturbance of study, it is allowed; or perhaps [I can argue], if here where damage of fruit is involved, you say that it is forbidden, there where no damage of fruit is involved, how much the more? The questions remain undecided.

AND ONE MAY COVER UP FRUIT. 'Ulla said: Even a stack of loose bricks.⁹ R. Isaac said: [Only] fruits which are useable [may be covered]. And R. Isaac follows his opinion [expressed elsewhere]; for R. Isaac said: A utensil may be handled [on Sabbath] only for the benefit of a thing which itself may be handled on the Sabbath.¹⁰

We have learnt: ONE MAY COVER UP FRUIT WITH VESSELS; only fruit but not a stack of loose bricks! — The same is true even of a stack of loose bricks; but because he teaches in the first part [of the Mishnah], ONE MAY LET DOWN FRUIT,¹¹ he teaches also in the concluding part, ONE MAY COVER UP FRUIT.

We have learnt: AND LIKEWISE JARS OF WINE AND JARS OF OIL!¹² — We are dealing here with tebel.¹³ This too is logical: for if you maintain [that we are dealing with] jars of wine and oil which are permitted, surely this he already teaches in the first clause, viz., FRUITS!¹⁴ — It is especially necessary to teach this with respect to jars of wine and oil; for I might have thought that the Rabbis took into consideration only a great loss,¹⁵ but a small loss they did not take into consideration, so he informs us [that it is not so].

We have learnt: ON A SABBATH YOU MAY PLACE A VESSEL BENEATH THE DROPS OF RAIN!¹⁶ — [It deals here] with respect to rain fit for use.¹⁷ Come and hear: One may spread a mat over bricks on a Sabbath!¹⁸ — [It treats of bricks] that were left over from a building and which are fit to sit on.

Come and hear: You may spread a mat over stones on a Sabbath!¹⁹ — [It treats] of smoothly pointed stones which are fit for a privy.

Come and hear: One may spread a mat over a beehive on a Sabbath,²⁰ in sunny weather on account of the sun and in rainy weather on account of the rain, provided that he does not intend to capture [the bees]! — There likewise [it treats of a case] where it contains honey.²¹ R. Ukba of Meshan²² said to R. Ashi: This is well in summer when there is honey [in the hive], but in winter how is it to be explained? — It is especially necessary to teach this with respect to the two honeycombs.²³ But these two honeycombs are mukzeh!²⁴ — We deal here with a case where he reserved them [for his use]. But what if he did not reserve them for his use? [It is] forbidden! Then instead of teaching, ‘provided that he does not intend to capture [the bees]’, he should teach a distinction with respect to [the first case] itself,²⁵ [viz.], This applies only when he has reserved them for his use, but if he did not reserve them for his use it is forbidden? — This is what he means to say; even though he has reserved them, [for his use he may cover them with a mat] provided always that he does not intend to capture [the bees]. How have you explained it:²⁶ according to R. Judah who holds the law of mukzeh?²⁷ But say the concluding part: provided that he does not intend to capture [the bees]: this is in accordance with R. Simeon, who says, An unintentional act is permitted!²⁸ — Do you then think [the concluding clause] is according to R. Simeon? Surely Abaye and Raba both said: R. Simeon agrees [that it is forbidden] in the case of ‘Cut off his head but let him not die’.²⁹ — In point of fact, the whole [Mishnah there] is according to R. Judah, and we are dealing here with a case where it [the beehive] has a little window;³⁰ and do not say, according to R. Judah provided that he does not intend to capture [the bees]

(12) Implying, but not bricks.

(13) Which, like the bricks, are not useable on a Festival and therefore may not be moved, yet they may be covered. Hence bricks are the same.

(14) For obviously they are alike.

- (29) This is an idiom describing the inevitable result of an unintentional act; i.e., where an unintentional act must inevitably result in a forbidden act, R. Simeon agrees that it is forbidden. Here too, he inevitably captures the bees, so that even R. Simeon should forbid it. V. Keth., Sonc. ed. p. 20, n. 8.

but say rather, provided that he does not make it [the beehive] a trap.¹ [But] this is obvious! — You might say [that] catching is forbidden only in respect of a kind of creature which one usually catches, but with respect to the sort which one does not usually catch,² it is permitted; so he informs us [that it is not so]. R. Ashi says:³ Does he then teach ‘in summer and in winter’? He teaches ‘in sunny weather on account of the sun and in rainy weather on account of the rain’, [i.e.,] in the days of Nisan and in the days of Tishri⁴ when there is both sun and rain as well as honey present.

ON SABBATH ONE MAY PLACE A VESSEL BENEATH THE DROPS OF RAIN. It was taught: If the vessel became full, he may keep on pouring it out as it fills and put it back again without restraint. In the mill-room of Abaye rain trickled through.⁵ He came before Rabbah who said to him: Go, bring in your bed there, so that it [the mill] may be regarded by you like a commode⁶ and [so] take it out. Abaye sat and put himself the question: May then one make of anything a commode at the outset?⁷ In the meantime Abaye's mill fell to pieces. He said: I well deserve it, for I have transgressed the words of my Master.⁸ Samuel said. The commode and the chamber-pot may be taken out to the dung-heap [for emptying], and when he brings them back, he is to pour water therein and [then] take them back.⁹ From this they [the disciples] concluded that one may carry out [the contents of] the commode by means of the vessel but not the ordure itself;¹⁰ [but] come and hear [to the contrary]: Once a mouse was found in a scent-box belonging to R. Ashi. R. Ashi said to them: Take it by the tail and bring it out.¹¹

MISHNAH. EVERY [ACT] THAT IS CULPABLE¹² ON A SABBATH AS A SHEBUTH,¹³ [OR] AN OPTIONAL ACT [RESHUTH], [OR] A RELIGIOUS ACT,¹⁴ IS ALSO CULPABLE ON A FESTIVAL. THE FOLLOWING ACTS ARE CULPABLE AS A SHEBUTH: ONE MAY NOT CLIMB A TREE, NOR RIDE A BEAST, NOR SWIM IN WATER, NOR CLAP THE HANDS, NOR SLAP [THE THIGHS], NOR DANCE. THE FOLLOWING ARE CULPABLE AS OPTIONAL SECULAR ACTS: ONE MAY NOT JUDGE,¹⁵ NOR BETROTH A WIFE, NOR PERFORM HALIZAH,¹⁶ NOR PERFORM YIBBUM [CONSUMATE A LEVIRATE MARRIAGE].¹⁷ THE FOLLOWING ARE CULPABLE AS RELIGIOUS ACTS: ONE MAY NOT DEDICATE [ANYTHING TO THE TEMPLE], NOR VOW A PERSONAL VALUATION,¹⁸ NOR MAKE A VOW OF HEREM,¹⁹ NOR SET ASIDE TERUMAH OR TITHES. ALL THESE THINGS THEY [THE RABBIS] PRESCRIBED [AS CULPABLE] ON A FESTIVAL, HOW MUCH MORE [ARE THEY CULPABLE] ON SABBATH. THE FESTIVAL, DIFFERS FROM THE SABBATH ONLY IN RESPECT OF THE PREPARATION OF FOOD ALONE.

GEMARA. ONE MAY NOT CLIMB A TREE; it is a preventive measure lest he pluck [fruit]. NOR RIDE A BEAST; it is a Preventive measure lest he might go without the tehūm.²⁰ Then this proves that the law of tehūm is Biblical?²¹ — Rather say, it is a preventive measure lest he cut off a switch.²²

NOR SWIM IN WATER; it is a preventive measure lest he might make a swimming bladder.

NOR CLAP THE HANDS, NOR SLAP THE THIGHS, NOR DANCE; it is a preventive measure lest he might repair musical instruments.

THE FOLLOWING ARE CULPABLE AS OPTIONAL SECULAR ACTS: ONE MAY NOT JUDGE: But is he not discharging a religious act?²³ — This holds good only where a more capable person is available.²⁴

NOR BETROTH A WIFE. Is he not discharging a religious obligation?²⁵ — It treats of one

 - (4) Nisan is the first and Tishri the seventh month of the Jewish Calendar, corresponding to the months of March and September respectively.
 - (5) The placing of vessels to catch the dripping rain would itself be insufficient to save the mill from damage, unless it were itself removed.
 - (6) The mill was of clay and the rain would make it dirty and foul.
 - (7) V. supra 21b.
 - (8) By questioning his advice.

 - (11) Showing that it is the unclean thing itself that can be removed.
 - (12) According to Rabbinical enactment.
 - (13) V. Glos. The term is generally applied to an action which while not belonging to the category of forbidden labours (V. Shab. 73a) or their derivatives, was nevertheless forbidden either because it might lead to one of these or because it did not harmonize with the general spirit of the Sabbath.
 - (14) I.e., actions which are normally secular and optional or even in the nature of religious observances, but which are nevertheless forbidden on the Sabbath.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 37a

who [already] has a wife and children.¹

NOR PERFORM HALIZAH, NOR PERFORM YIBBUM. Is he not performing a religious act? — It treats of a case where there is an elder [brother] and it is a [prior] obligation for the elder [brother] to consummate a levirate marriage. And on account of what are all these [forbidden]? — It is a preventive measure lest he write.²

THE FOLLOWING ARE CULPABLE AS RELIGIOUS ACTS: ONE MAY NOT DEDICATE, NOR VOW A PERSONAL VALUATION, NOR MAKE A VOW OF HEREM; [they are forbidden] as preventive measures lest one transact business.³

NOR SET ASIDE TERUMAH OR TITHES. This is obvious!⁴ R. Joseph taught: It is necessary [to teach this] even in the case of giving them to the priest on the same day [of the Festival].⁵ This, however, applies only to produce which was tebel⁶ since the day before; but with respect to produce which is only just now become tebel, as for example to set aside hallah from dough, he may set them [tithes] aside and give them to the priest. Are then these acts⁷ culpable only as reshuth and not as shebuth?⁸ And are those acts⁹ culpable only as religious acts and not as shebuth? Said R. Isaac: He proceeds to a climax;¹⁰ not only is an act which is purely a shebuth¹¹ forbidden, but even a shebuth which partakes of an optional [meritorious] act¹² is also forbidden; and not only is a shebuth partaking of an optional [meritorious] act forbidden, but even a shebuth partaking of a religious obligation¹³ is also forbidden.

ALL THESE THINGS THEY FORBADE ON A FESTIVAL [etc.]. But the following contradicts this. One may let down fruit through a trap-door on a Festival but not on a Sabbath!¹⁴ — Said R. Joseph: There is no contradiction: the one¹⁵ is according to R. Eliezer, the other is according to R. Joshua. For it was taught: If it [an animal] and its young fell into a pit,¹⁶ R. Eliezer says: He may bring up one of them in order to slaughter it and must slaughter it; and as for the other, he feeds it in the very place [it fell], so that it should not die. R. Joshua says: He brings up one in order to slaughter it but does not slaughter it, and he uses subtlety¹⁷ and again brings up the second [animal]; and he may slaughter whichever he desires.¹⁸ Abaye said to him: Whence [do you know that it is so]? Perhaps R. Eliezer said so only there where one can feed the animal,¹⁹ but not here where no feeding is possible.²⁰ Or [perhaps] R. Joshua ruled thus only there, where one can make use of subtlety, but not here where it is not possible to make use of subtlety?²¹ — Rather said R. Papa: There is no contradiction: the one²² is according to Beth Shammai, the other is according to Beth Hillel. For we have learnt: Beth Shammai say: One may not carry out an infant or a lulab or a Scroll of the Law into public ground; but Beth Hillel permit it.²³ But perhaps it is not so! [Perhaps] Beth Shammai ruled thus only there, with respect to carrying out, but not with respect to handling?²⁴ — Is not handling needed for carrying out?²⁵

MISHNAH. CATTLE AND UTENSILS ARE [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS THE FEET OF THE OWNERS.²⁶ IF ONE GIVES HIS COW OVER TO HIS SON OR TO A HERDSMAN [TO TEND], THEY²⁷ ARE [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS THE FEET OR THE OWNER. [ANY] UTENSILS WHICH HAVE BEEN SET APART FOR [THE USE OR] ONE OF THE BRETHREN IN A HOUSE, ARE [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS HIS FEET; BUT [THOSE UTENSILS] WHICH HAVE NOT BEEN SO SET APART, CAN BE TAKEN [ONLY] WHERE [ALL THE BRETHREN] MAY GO.²⁸ IF ONE BORROWS A VESSEL FROM HIS NEIGHBOUR ON THE EVE OF A FESTIVAL, [IT IS RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS THE FEET OF THE BORROWER; [BUT IF HE BORROWED IT] ON THE FESTIVAL, IT IS AS THE FEET OF THE LENDER. LIKEWISE A WOMAN THAT BORROWED FROM HER NEIGHBOUR CONDIMENTS, WATER OR SALT FOR HER DOUGH, THESE ARE [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS THE FEET OF THEM BOTH.²⁹ R. JUDAH EXEMPTS IN THE CASE OF WATER,³⁰ BECAUSE IT IS NOT SUBSTANTIAL.³¹

GEMARA. Our Mishnah

(1) V. Mishnah. Yeb. 61b.

- (2) The betrothal or marriage contracts.
- (3) Since these partake somewhat of that nature.
- (4) [It is not quite obvious, and Rashi seems to omit the question as well as 'It is necessary' in the reply, reading, 'R. Joseph taught: Even in the case etc.'. V. D.S. a.l.]
- (5) Although it is not then evident that the setting aside of the tithes was for his own benefit; rather has it the appearance that he is doing it in the interest of the priest.
- (6) V. Glos.
- (7) Not judging, etc.
- (8) Surely they too are forbidden on account of shebuth for the reason stated supra.
- (9) Not dedicating, etc.
- (10) Lit., "He says it is unnecessary" etc.'.
- (11) Which have no semblance of religious merit in them, such as climbing a tree, etc.
- (12) Such as are enumerated in the middle list.
- (13) Such as are enumerated in the last list.
- (14) Whereas from the end of our Mishnah it is to be inferred that no difference exists between Sabbaths and Festivals except in the preparation of food alone.
- (15) Our Mishnah which teaches that every action forbidden on a Sabbath on account of shebuth is also forbidden on a Festival, implying even though it entails a monetary loss.
- (16) On a Festival, when one may bring up the animals for slaughtering only. On the other hand, it is forbidden to slaughter an animal together with its young on the same day. Lev. XXII, 28.
- (17) By preferring the other animal for slaughter.
- (18) V. Shab. 117b, 124a.
- (19) So that no monetary loss is incurred.
- (20) Perhaps in such a case even R. Eliezer would permit it on a Festival, and yet not on the Sabbath.
- (21) I.e., where it is impossible to give the pretence that the proposed action is entirely permissible in itself, even R. Joshua may forbid it.
- (22) Our Mishnah.
- (23) V. supra 12a. [It is assumed that just as Beth Shammai forbid carrying into the public ground anything not connected with preparation of food, so they would forbid the handling of such things even when money loss is involved].
- (24) I.e., moving it from one part of the house to another.
- (25) Before an article can be carried out it must be moved and handled, and it was only on that account that handling is forbidden (Rashi). Hence where carrying out is forbidden, handling and moving are likewise.
- (26) They may be taken on a Festival only where the owner may go. [On Sabbath and Festivals it is permitted to walk within two thousand cubits in all directions from the boundaries of the town where one lives. Should one wish to walk beyond that limit, he can do so by depositing an 'erub at the end of the two thousand cubits in the direction he wishes to go, from which point he may again walk another two thousand cubits. Having however gained the two thousand cubit limit in one direction, he forfeits his right of movement in the opposite direction outside the town boundary].
- (27) Such animals — the plural is used generically.
- (28) I.e., if each brother has a different Sabbath limit, their common utensils are restricted to the area common to them all.
- (29) The dough may only be brought to that place where both may go.
- (30) I.e., the ownership of the water does not affect the dough.
- (31) I.e., it is not noticeable as a separate ingredient and therefore does not affect the status of the dough.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 37b

is not as R. Dosa, for it was taught: R. Dosa says — some say, Abba Saul says: If one buys a beast from his neighbour on the eve of the Festival, even though he did not deliver it to him until the Festival, it is [restricted to the same limits] as the feet of the purchaser; and if one handed over a beast to a herdsman, even though he did not deliver it to him until the Festival, it is [restricted to the same limits] as the feet of the herdsman! — You can even say, it is as R. Dosa, and there is no contradiction: Here it treats of one herdsman and there of two herdsmen.¹ This call also be proved; for it teaches TO HIS SON ON TO A HERDSMAN;² infer from this [that it is so]. Rabbah b. Bar Hana said in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah is as R. Dosa. Did then R. Johanan say thus? But surely R. Johanan has said: The halachah is as an anonymous Mishnah, and we have learnt: CATTLE AND UTENSILS ARE AS THE FEET OF THE OWNERS [etc.].! — Have we not already explained, here it treats of one herdsman and there of two herdsmen! Our Rabbis taught: If two people borrowed one garment jointly,³ one to wear it⁴ in the morning at the Academy and the other to wear it in the evening⁵ at a banquet, the one setting an 'erub on the north [side of the town] and the other on the south [side], [then] the one who set the 'erub on the north [side] may walk in it to the north [side] only as far as the other who set his 'erub on the south [side] is allowed to go; and the one who set the 'erub on the south may wear it to the south only as far as the other who set the 'erub on the north may go; and if they measured the Sabbath limit exactly,⁶ then it [the garment] may not be moved from its place.⁷ It was stated: If two [men] bought a barrel and an animal⁸ in partnership, Rab says: The barrel is permitted⁹ but the animal is forbidden;¹⁰ Samuel, however, says: The barrel too is forbidden. What is Rab's opinion? If he holds that selection is retrospective,¹¹ then the animal too should be permitted; and if he holds that selection is not retrospective, then the barrel too should be forbidden! In reality he holds that selection is retrospective, but the case of an animal is different, because the territories draw their vitality from one another.¹² R. Kahana and R. Assi said to Rab: They [the partners] do not take into account the prohibition of mukzeh, but they do take into account the prohibition of boundary limits!¹³ Rab was silent. How does the law stand? R. Oshaia says, Selection is retrospective, and R. Johanan maintains: Selection is not retrospective. Does then R. Oshaia hold the law of bererah? But surely we have learnt:¹⁴ If a corpse [lay] in a room which has many doors they are all unclean; if one of these [doors] was opened, it alone is unclean and all the others are clean. If he formed the intention to take it [the corpse] out through one of them, or through a window which [measures] four handbreadths square, this gives protection to all the other doors. Beth Shammai Say: Providing that he had formed his intention to take it out before the person died; but Beth Hillel Say: [It holds good] even [if his intention was formed] after the person died. And it was stated thereon: R. Oshaia said: [The statement of Beth Hillel is] with respect to the cleansing of the doors from now and onwards. Only 'from now and onwards' but not retrospectively! — Reverse [the authorities]; R. Oshaia Says, selection is not retrospective and R. Johanan maintains: Selection is retrospective. Does then R. Johanan hold that selection is retrospective? Surely R. Assi said in the name of R. Johanan: Brothers who have divided [an inheritance] are considered as purchasers¹⁵ and must restore [their shares] to one another in the year of Jubilee!¹⁶ And if you answer that R. Johanan does not hold that Selection is retrospective in the case of a Biblical [law]¹⁷ but with respect to a Rabbinical [law]¹⁸ he does hold, [I would object] does he then hold in the case of a Rabbinical [law], but Ayyo taught:¹⁹ R. Judah says: A man cannot conditionally reserve for himself two contingencies simultaneously; but if a scholar comes to the East, his 'erub to the East is valid: if to the West, his 'erub to the West is valid.²⁰ However, he cannot [stipulate] when there are two scholars coming on different sides.

(1) If there are in the town several herdsmen, the owner cannot know which will take over the beast and therefore it is restricted to the feet of the owner. But if there is only one, it is tacitly assumed that it will be entrusted to him, and therefore it automatically takes his status.

(2) Since the Mishnah states an alternative, we see that the circumstances are such that he is not restricted to one person only, and that is the same as where there are several herdsmen in the town.

(3) Before the Festival.

(4) Lit., 'to go out in it'.

(5) Of the Festival.

(6) I.e., if each set his 'erub at the extreme limit of his boundary.

(7) It may not be taken without the town at all (cf. supra p. 188, n. 10).

(8) On the eve of the Festival to be divided on the Festival.

(9) To be carried by each according to his territory limit.

- (10) To be carried save in the area where they may both go.
- (11) I.e., what each was to receive on the Festival is assumed as having been determined before the Festival.
- (12) I.e., the animal is one indivisible whole before it is killed, and the portion which subsequently falls to one could not at the beginning of the Festival be accounted as cut off from the other.
- (13) Rashi: We can see that each partner did not put the portion of his other partner so much out of his mind that his own should be forbidden because it drew vitality from his partner's, (for if he had put it out of mind, his partner's portion would be forbidden to him as mukzeh, and his own too, on the present hypothesis, since it draws vitality from the other). Why then should we assume that he does take his partner's portion into account in respect of boundaries? Tosaf. explains this differently.
- (14) V. supra 10a, for notes.
- (15) I.e., the portion chosen by each brother for himself cannot be considered as having thus retrospectively become the very inheritance designated for him, v. B.K., Sonc. ed. p. 399 and notes.
- (16) Because there is no fictitious understanding that the father had given that part to one brother and the other part to the other. Purchased property returns in the year of Jubilee to the former owners. V. Lev. XXV, 8ff. V. B.K. 69b, Git. 25a and 48a.
- (17) As for example the law of Jubilee.
- (18) As for example the law of tehum.
- (19) In 'Err. 36b a Mishnah teaches that if two scholars were coming near to him, one to the East and one to the West, he may place two 'erubs and on the Sabbath choose to which of these two he should go. R. Judah, according to Ayyo, disputes this.
- (20) I.e., if only one scholar was coming and it was not definite whether he would be coming to the East or to the West.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 38a

And we raised the question: Why is it that he cannot [stipulate] when there are two scholars coming on different sides? Because we do not hold that selection is retrospective; then even [if a scholar came] to the East or to the West we should likewise not maintain that selection is retrospective! And R. Johanan answered: It treats of a case where the scholar had already come.¹ Consequently [we see that] R. Johanan does not hold that selection is retrospective! But in reality do not reverse [the authorities]; but R. Oshaia does not hold that selection is retrospective [only] in respect of a Biblical [law], but in respect to a Rabbinical [law] he does hold it. Mar Zutra lectured: The halachah is as R. Oshaia. Samuel said: The ox of a cattle breeder is as the feet of all;² the ox of a herdsman is as the feet [of the people] of that town.³

IF ONE BORROWS A VESSEL FROM HIS NEIGHBOUR ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL [etc.]. This is obvious! — This is necessary respecting the case when it was not delivered to him until the Festival; you might think that he [the owner] did not place it in his [the borrower's] possession, so he informs us [that it is not so]. This supports R. Johanan; for R. Johanan said: If one borrows a vessel from his neighbour on the eve of a Festival, even though he did not hand it over to him until the Festival, it is as the feet of the borrower.

BUT ON THE FESTIVAL IT IS AS THE FEET OF THE LENDER. This is obvious! — This is necessary respecting the case when he is wont to borrow frequently from him; you might think that he [tacitly] puts it into his [the borrower's] possession, so he informs us [that it is not so]; for he [the owner] might say,⁴ he will probably find another person and go and borrow from him.

LIKEWISE A WOMAN THAT BORROWED FROM HER NEIGHBOUR: When R. Abba went up [to Palestine], he said: May it be the will [of God] that I may say something which is acceptable. When he came up [to Palestine] he met R. Johanan and R. Hanina b. Pappi and R. Zera — some say, R. Abbahu and R. Simeon b. Pazzi and R. Isaac the Smith; and they were sitting and saying: Why so? Let the water and the salt be nullified in relation to the dough!⁵ — R. Abba said to them:

- (1) So that the selection had already been made for him before Sabbath, though he was not aware where.
- (2) Since it may be bought by any man, it may go wherever the purchaser goes.
- (3) A cattle breeder sells to people of all districts, whereas a herdsman, though he does not generally sell, does so occasionally to people in the immediate vicinity.
- (4) Since he had not asked him.
- (5) Hence the dough would be permitted to be carried without reference to the ownership of the water and the salt!

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 38b

If one kab of wheat of one person got mixed up with ten kabs of wheat of another, should the latter eat and be happy?¹ They laughed at him. Said he to them: Have I taken away your coats [that you laugh at me]?² They again laughed at him. Said R. Oshaia: They were right in laughing at him. Why did he not say to them [as an example] of a case of wheat that got mixed up with barley? Because they are of different kinds, and in a mixture of different kinds the rule of neutralization takes effect; then the same is true of wheat that got mixed up with wheat: granted that according to R. Judah it does not become neutralized, but according to the Rabbis it indeed becomes neutralized.³ R. Saфра said to him:⁴ By Moses!⁵ Is it well what you say?⁶ Did they not hear what R. Hiyya of Ktesifon⁷ said in the name of Rab: If one picks out pebbles from his neighbour's threshing floor he must pay him the value of wheat.⁸ Consequently [it is because] he lessened the measure [of his wheat];⁹ likewise in this case he has lessened the quantity.¹⁰ Said Abaye to him: Does not the Master make a distinction between money which is being claimed and money which is not being claimed?¹¹ — He replied to him: And according to your opinion, that which R. Hisda said: Nebelah¹² is neutralized in ritually slaughtered meat,¹³ because the slaughtered cannot assume the character of nebelah,¹⁴ but ritually slaughtered meat is not neutralized in nebelah, because nebelah can assume the character of ritually slaughtered meat.¹⁵ Would you likewise [assume that], if it¹⁶ has an owner, it does not become neutralized? And if you say it is even so, surely it was taught: R. Johanan b. Nuri said: Ownerless articles acquire their [Sabbath] rest;¹⁷ although they had no owner, it is the same as if they had an owner!¹⁸ — He replied to him: [Still]¹⁹ can you compare the case of a ritual prohibition with a monetary case! In the case of a ritual prohibition, it [the less] is neutralized [in the majority]; but with respect to a monetary case, it is not neutralized [in the majority]. What is now the reason?²⁰ Abaye says: It is a preventive measure lest the dough be made in partnership.²¹ Raba says: Condiments are used for seasoning and whatever is used for seasoning does not become neutralized.²²

(1) Obviously not! Similarly, the salt and water do not lose their identity in spite of the greater value of the flour.

(2) Surely I have said or done nothing absurd.

(3) Cf. Men. 22a. Hence the very basis of his answer was incorrect.

(4) To R. Oshaia (Rashi), cf. however infra p. 194, n. 1.

(5) So Rashi. Or, Moses, well hast thou spoken, 'Moses' being a title of honour, as one might say, 'O great scholar'.

(6) [Aliter 'It is well what you say'; R. Saфра addressing R. Abba.]

(7) On the eastern bank of the Tigris.

(8) Corresponding to the measure of the stones picked out, since these stones are measured up with the wheat for sale.

(9) By taking out the pebbles.

(10) Through the water the quantity of the dough is enlarged and without the water the measure of the dough would be less. Hence if the pebbles, which have no intrinsic value, can nevertheless not be disregarded, surely we cannot disregard the water and the salt.

(11) The pebbles cannot be disregarded and retain their separate identity because their owner claims their value, since a loss has been inflicted upon him. In the Mishnah no such claim is made on the Festival, therefore owing to their lesser value the salt and the water may well be disregarded.

(12) V. Glos.

(13) If of three pieces of flesh, two are from a ritually slaughtered animal and one from a nebelah, then that which is touched by one of these three is not unclean, for we assume that contact has taken place with one of the pieces of the ritually slaughtered animal.

(14) Hence there are two different kinds and the rule of majority prevails.

(15) If the nebelah flesh putrefies, it loses the characteristic of nebelah flesh and does not defile.

(16) The nebelah.

(17) He who finds them may carry them two thousand cubits in every direction but not to the place for which he has set an 'erub, for that would be beyond two thousand cubits.

(18) This proves that the absence of an owner to claim a thing does not destroy the status of an object in regard to its movements on Sabbaths and Festivals.

(19) Even granted that no distinction is made between objects that have an owner and such as have none, the difficulty presented by our Mishnah still remains.

(20) For the teaching of our Mishnah that condiments, water, and salt do not become neutralized, seeing that here too we are concerned merely with a matter of ritual prohibition — moving beyond the tehumi.

(21) And each carry it to his own limit, which is certainly forbidden.

(22) By its very nature.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 39a

And R. Ashi says: Because it is an object which can become [otherwise] permitted;¹ and any object which can become [otherwise] permitted is not neutralized even in two thousand [times its quantity].²

R. JUDAH EXEMPTS IN THE CASE OF WATER. Only water and not the salt? But surely it was taught: R. Judah says: Water and salt become neutralized both in dough as well as in cooked food!³ — There is no difficulty; the one treats of salt of Sodom⁴ and the other of salt of Istria.⁵ But it was taught: R. Judah says: Water and salt become neutralized in dough but do not become neutralized in cooked food, because of its fluidity!⁶ — There is no difficulty; the one treats of a thick mass, the other of clear soup.

MISHNAH. A LIVE COAL IS [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS ITS OWNER, BUT A FLAME⁷ CAN BE TAKEN ANYWHERE.⁸ ONE INCURS A TRESPASS-OFFERING IN RESPECT OF A LIVE COAL OF HEKDESH;⁹ BUT AS FOR A FLAME [OF HEKDESH], ONE MAY NEITHER BENEFIT FROM IT, NOR INCUR A TRESPASS-OFFERING.¹⁰ IF ONE CARRIES OUT A LIVE COAL INTO PUBLIC GROUND [ON A SABBATH] HE IS CULPABLE, BUT [IF HE DOES THE SAME] WITH A FLAME HE IS EXEMPT.

GEMARA. Our Rabbis taught: Five things were said in respect to a live coal: A live coal is [restricted to the same limits] as its owner, but a flame can be taken anywhere; one incurs a trespass-offering in respect to a live coal of hekdesch, but with respect to a flame, one may not benefit from it, nor incur a trespass-offering. A live coal used in idolatrous service is forbidden but a flame is permitted; if one carries out a live coal into public ground [on a Sabbath] he is culpable, but [if he does the same] with a flame he is exempt; he who is under a vow not to benefit from his neighbour, may not make use of his coal but may make use of his flame. Now why is the flame used in idolatrous service permitted and that of hekdesch forbidden? — Idolatrous service is repugnant and people hold themselves very aloof from it, therefore the Rabbis have taken no measures against it; but as hekdesch is not repugnant and people do not hold themselves aloof from it, the Rabbis enacted a preventive measure on its account.¹¹

IF ONE CARRIES OUT A LIVE COAL INTO PUBLIC GROUND [ON A SABBATH] HE IS CULPABLE, BUT [IF HE DOES THE SAME] WITH A FLAME HE IS EXEMPT. But it was taught:¹² He who takes out a flame of whatever size is culpable! — Answered R. Shesheth: This treats of a case when he brings it [the flame] out on a chip. Then he should be liable on account of the chip! — When it is less than the standard required; for we have learnt: He who carries out wood

[is culpable only] if it is sufficient to cook therewith a small egg.¹³ Abaye says: When he smears a vessel with oil and kindles it. Then he should be liable on account of the vessel! — [We are treating] of a potsherd. Then he should be liable on account of the potsherd! — When it is less than the standard required; for we have learnt: [He is culpable that takes out] a potsherd big enough to place between one board and another;¹⁴ this is the opinion of R. Judah.¹⁵ But that which we have learnt: 'If one carries out a flame [on a Sabbath] he is exempt', how can it occur?¹⁶ — If, for example, he brandishes the object [that is burning so that the flame projected] into public ground.¹⁷

MISHNAH. [THE WATER FROM] A PRIVATE WELL IS [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS ITS OWNER;¹⁸ AND [THE WATER FROM A WELL] BELONGING TO THE INHABITANTS OF THAT TOWN IS [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS THE PEOPLE OF THAT TOWN; AND [THE WATER FROM A WELL] BELONGING TO THOSE WHO RETURNED FROM BABYLON¹⁹ IS [RESTRICTED TO THE SAME LIMITS] AS THE ONE THAT DRAWS.

GEMARA. Raba pointed out a contradiction to R. Nahman: We have learnt: [The water from] a private well is [restricted to the same limits] as its owner; but the following contradicts this: Flowing streams and bubbling springs [have the same restrictions] as anyone!²⁰ — Answered Rabbah: Our Mishnah treats of collected [water].²¹ It was likewise stated: R. Hiyya b. Abin said in the name of Samuel: [It treats] of collected [water].

AND [THE WATER FROM A WELL] BELONGING TO THOSE WHO RETURNED FROM BABYLON IS AS THE ONE THAT DRAWS. It was stated: If one draws [water] and gives it to his neighbour, R. Nahman says: [It is restricted to the same limits] as the one for whom it was drawn; [but] R. Shesheth maintains: As the one who drew. In what are they disputing? — One is of the opinion that the well is ownerless,²² while the other is of the opinion that the well is held jointly.²³

Raba raised the [following] objection to R. Nahman: If one says to his neighbour, Behold, I am herem to you,²⁴ he against whom the vow is made is forbidden;²⁵

(1) After the Festival it can be taken anywhere.

(2) This is a general rule; cf. supra 3b.

(3) [Var. lec., 'R. Judah exempts in the case of water and salt'.]

(4) The salt of Sodom was thick and hard. V. Krauss op. cit. I, 499ff. Hence it is not neutralized as its presence is always discernable.

(5) A town in Pontus.

(6) Whereas R. Judah's exemption in our Mishnah in the case of water applies also to cooked food with which the condiments mentioned are used.

(7) I.e., if one for example lights a taper at another's flame.

(8) Within the restricted areas belonging to those who carry it.

(9) I.e., belonging to the Sanctuary. V. Lev. V, 14ff.

(10) If one does benefit from it.

(11) If people are permitted to use that, they will also put other articles of hekdesch to secular use, which is forbidden.

(12) V. Ber. 53a.

(13) I.e., the egg of a hen. Shab. 89b.

(14) To keep boards rigid and to avoid warping (Rashi).

(15) Shab. 82a.

(16) For a flame must be carried in something else.

(17) Lit., he throws', while retaining the thing to which the flame clings.

(18) Like the individual.

(19) The wells that were dug for the use of the exiles who returned from Babylon and hence were regarded as the property of the whole nation.

(20) I.e., one may take them wherever he himself may go.

(21) I.e., a cistern.

(22) The water accordingly belongs to the one that draws, on the principle that a man cannot act as agent to acquire ownerless property on behalf of another person; v. infra p. 199, n. 9.

(23) I.e., it belongs to the whole nation, which includes him for whom the water was drawn, and the drawer of the water merely acts as his agent.

(24) I.e., I am to you as a thing that is banned.

(25) To benefit from the vower.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 39b

[if he said,] Behold, thou art herem, to thee, the vower is forbidden;¹ [if he said,] Behold, I am [herem] to thee, and thou to me, both are forbidden to benefit from one another; but [to both] is permitted the use of things that belong to them that came up from Babylon, but the use of things that belong to the citizens of that town is forbidden to both.² And the following are the things which belong to them that came up from Babylon: The Temple Mount, the [Temple] Chambers, the [Temple] Courts, and a well in the middle of the road.³ The following belong to [the citizens of] that town: The market-square, the Synagogue, and the bath-house.⁴ Now if you say that a well is held jointly, then why is it permitted? Surely we have learnt: Partners who vowed not to derive benefit from one another may not enter their [common] court-yard to bathe in the well!⁵ — To bathe in it is indeed [not allowed], but we are treating here of drawing [water]; the one draws of his own and the other draws of his own.⁶ Does then R. Nahman hold the rule of bererah, but we have learnt: Brothers who are [also] partners,⁷ when they are liable to surcharge⁸ they are exempt from cattle-tithe, and when they are liable to cattle-tithe⁹ they are exempt from the surcharge.¹⁰ And in this connection R. 'Anan said: This¹¹ was taught only in the case when they divided goats for lambs and lambs for goats;¹² but if they divided goats for goats and lambs for lambs,¹³ we say, each receives his share which was designated for him at the very beginning.¹⁴ While R. Nahman said: Even if they divided goats for goats and lambs for lambs, we do not say each receives his share which was designated for him at the very beginning!¹⁵ — Rather, all agree that the well is ownerless, but they dispute here with respect to the case of one who picks up a lost article on behalf of his neighbour; one is of the opinion that he [the neighbour] acquires title [to it], and the other is of the opinion that he does not acquire [it].¹⁶ MISHNAH. IF ONE HAS HIS PRODUCE IN ANOTHER TOWN, THE INHABITANTS OF WHICH HAVE MADE AN 'ERUB IN ORDER TO BRING TO HIM SOME OF HIS PRODUCE, THEY MAY NOT BRING IT TO HIM;¹⁷ BUT IF HE HIMSELF MADE AN 'ERUB, HIS PRODUCE IS LIKE HIMSELF.¹⁸

(1) To benefit from the other.

(2) Because they are both shareholders therein.

(3) Made for the exiles who returned from Babylon to Jerusalem.

(4) Ned. 47b.

(5) [V. Ned. 45b. The words 'to bathe in the well' do not occur there, and are omitted here in MS.M.]

(6) I.e., what each draws is regarded as though it had retrospectively been assigned to him, so that the other never had any claim therein. This answer therefore assumes the law of bererah, v. Glos.

(7) partners are exempt from cattle-tithe (cf. Bek. 56b); brothers, on the other hand, who have come into the inheritance of their father, are liable to tithe those cattle that were born when their goods were still undivided.

(8) Every Israelite had to give half a shekel annually to the Temple for the communal sacrifices; this was augmented by an agio, i.e., a kind of premium or surcharge to cover a possible deficiency in the value of the half shekel, since the value of coins depended on their weight. If two partners combine to pay a whole shekel, they still each have to pay the extra agio. On the other hand, a father can give a whole shekel for his two sons without any extra agio. If two brothers have come into the inheritance of their father, they are regarded as brothers, i.e., as successors of a property belonging to one individual, so that they would be liable for cattle-tithe and exempt from the agio, as their father would have been. If they divide the inheritance and afterwards become partners, they are regarded as partners both in respect of the cattle-tithe and of the agio.

(9) I.e., if they have not yet divided the inheritance.

(10) Shek. 1,7; Hul. 25b; Bek. 56b.

(11) I.e., the teaching 'when they are liable to surcharge they are exempt from cattle-tithe', indicating that by dividing the estate the brothers are no longer regarded as heirs.

(12) When they deal with each other in a purely business manner, it is then that they are not regarded as heirs but as partners.

(13) I.e., if they are not so strict about the exact monetary value.

(14) I.e., the portion chosen by each brother for himself is considered as having thus retrospectively become the very inheritance designated for him, so that they are still regarded as heirs with respect to the estate though it had been divided.

(15) And therefore by dividing the estate the brothers cease to be regarded any longer as heirs. Thus R. Nahman rejects the law of bererah.

(16) V. B.M. 10a. According to one opinion the water belongs to the one on whose behalf it was drawn, and according to the other opinion it belongs to the drawer. For since the well has the legal status of being ownerless, water drawn from it is like something found.

(17) Because the produce, being his private property, lay under the same restrictions as the owner. Bah emends: whose inhabitants set an 'erub in order to visit him, they must not bring him of his fruit.

(18) I.e., he may bring his produce home, where his 'erub permitted him to go to that town.

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 40a

IF ONE INVITED GUESTS TO HIS HOME, THEY MAY NOT TAKE AWAY WITH THEM [ANY] PORTIONS UNLESS HE [THE HOST] HAD ASSIGNED FOR THEM THEIR PORTIONS ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL.

GEMARA. It was stated: If one deposits produce with his neighbour, Rab says: [The produce has the same restrictive limits] as the one with whom they were deposited; but Samuel says: [They have the same restrictive limits] as the one who deposited them. Shall it be said that Rab and Samuel follow their opinions [expressed elsewhere]? For we have learnt: If he brought in¹ with permission, the owner of the court-yard is liable. Rabbi says: He is liable only when the owner has undertaken to guard it.² And R. Huna said in Rab's name: The halachah is according to the opinion of the Sages; whereas Samuel said: The halachah is as Rabbi. Shall it be said that Rab is of the opinion of the Rabbis and Samuel is of the opinion of Rabbi?³ — Rab will say to you: My opinion is even in accordance with Rabbi; for Rabbi holds his opinion there⁴ because without an explicit declaration he does not undertake supervision,⁵ but here⁶ he definitely undertook to look after it. [Also] Samuel will reply [to you]: My opinion is even in accordance with the Rabbis; for the Rabbis hold their opinion there⁷ because a man wishes it, that his ox should be in the possession of the owner of the court, so that if it does damage he should not be liable; but here,⁸ does a man then wish that his produce should be in the possession of his neighbour!⁹ We have learnt: BUT IF HE HIMSELF MADE AN 'ERUB, HIS PRODUCE IS LIKE HIMSELF. Now if you say [that the produce has the same restrictive limits] as the one with whom it was deposited, even if he himself set an 'erub, of what avail is it to him?¹⁰ — R. Huna replied: In the Academy they declared [that it treats of a case] where he assigned a corner [of his house] to him.¹¹

Come and hear: IF ONE INVITED GUESTS TO HIS HOME, THEY MAY NOT TAKE AWAY WITH THEM PORTIONS UNLESS HE HAD ASSIGNED FOR THEM THEIR PORTIONS ON THE EVE OF THE FESTIVAL. Now if you say [that the produce has the same restrictive limits] as the one with whom it was deposited, even if he assigned [the portions] for them through another person of what avail is it? — Here also, since he assigned [the portions] for them through another person, it is as if he assigned a corner [of his house] to them. Alternatively say: Assignment is different.¹² R. Hana b. Hanilai hung up meat¹³ On the door-bolt.¹⁴ He came before R. Huna who said to him: If you yourself hung it up, go and take it away; but if they¹⁵ hung it up for you, you may not take it away.¹⁶ And even if he himself hung it up, may he then take it away? Surely R. Huna was a disciple of Rab and Rab said: [The produce has the same restrictive limits] as the one with whom it was deposited! — It is different [when he himself hung it up on] the door-bolt, for it is as if he¹⁷ assigned for him a corner [of the house]. R. Hillel said to R. Ashi: And if they hung it up for him, may he not take it away? Surely Samuel said: The ox of a cattle-breeder is as the feet of anyone!¹⁸ Rabina said to R. Ashi: And if they hung it up for him may he not take it away? Surely Rabbah the son of R. Hana said in the name of R. Johanan: The halachah is as R. Dosa!¹⁹ R. Ashi said to R. Kahana: And if they hung it up for him, may he not take it away? Surely we have learnt: Cattle and utensils have the same restrictive limits as the feet of the owners!²⁰ — Rather it is different in the case of R. Hana b. Hanilai, for he was an important man²¹ and was deeply occupied in his study, and he [R. Huna] said this to him: If you yourself hung it up, then you have an identification mark on it, and you did not let it out of your mind; therefore go and take it away; but if they hung it up for you, then you let it pass out of your mind and you may not take it away.²²

MISHNAH. ONE MAY NOT GIVE DRINK AND SLAUGHTER PASTURE ANIMALS,²³ BUT ONE MAY GIVE DRINK AND SLAUGHTER HOUSEHOLD ANIMALS. THE FOLLOWING ARE HOUSEHOLD ANIMALS: THEY THAT PASS THE NIGHT IN TOWN. PASTURE ANIMALS ARE SUCH AS PASS THE NIGHT IN [MORE DISTANT] PASTURE GROUND.²⁴

GEMARA. Why does he teach ‘GIVE DRINK AND SLAUGHTER’?²⁵ — He incidentally informs us that a man should water his animal before slaughter on account of the adhesiveness of the skin.²⁶

Our Rabbis taught: The following are pasture animals and the following are household animals. Pasture animals are such as are led out about [the time of] Passover²⁷ and graze in [more distant] meadows, and who are led in at the time of the first rainfall.²⁸ The following are household animals: Such as are led out and graze outside the city-border²⁹ but return and spend the night inside the city-border. Rabbi says: Both of these are household animals; but pasture animals are such as are led out and graze in [more distant] meadows and who do not return to the habitation of men either in summer or in winter. Does then Rabbi accept the prohibition of mukzeh?³⁰ Surely R. Simeon b. Rabbi asked of Rabbi: What is the law, according to R. Simeon, with respect to dates which are set aside for ripening?³¹ [And] he replied to him: According to R. Simeon

(1) His ox or other objects through which damage was caused in a stranger's court-yard.

(2) B.K. 47b.

(3) I.e., in the present instance, Rab rules that the produce suffers the same restrictions as their trustee, because he holds as the Rabbis that it belongs to the trustee in respect of guardianship, and therefore it also belongs to him in respect of ritual restrictions.

(4) In B.K.

(5) He merely permitted him to bring in his ox, but did not undertake to guard it.

(6) In the case of the produce.

(7) In B.K.

(8) In the case of the produce.

(9) [MS.M. adds ‘so that the use of them should be prohibited to him (on the Festival)’.]

(10) Since the produce is still in the possession of his trustees in the other town.

(11) I.e., the trustee lent him the corner of his house where the produce was kept; therefore it remained legally in his (the depositor's) possession.

(12) Since its very purpose thereby is that the object so assigned should pass into the assignee's ownership. [MS.M. omits this last passage.]

(13) Given to him by the butchers before the Festival. He was visiting the town on the Festival to deliver a discourse, and was returning to his own place after the lecture.

- (14) Of the house of his host.
- (15) The host's household.
- (16) The reason is soon explained.
- (17) His host with whom the meat was left.
- (18) Likewise here too, since the butchers naturally have in mind that it is to belong to any purchaser as from the eve of the Festival.
- (19) Cf. supra 37b. Similarly here the movements of the meat should be determined by his limits.
- (20) V. supra 37a.
- (21) I.e., a great scholar.
- (22) Because meat (temporarily) hidden from sight is forbidden unless it is recognized by an identification mark. Such an identification mark would however have been noticed only by him himself, and not by the host's household who were not immediately concerned with the meat].
- (23) On account of mukzeh.
- (24) And so cannot come within the definition of 'what is set in readiness'.
- (25) Surely the whole question is only about slaughtering, since even pasture animals may be given drink on Festivals.
- (26) In order that the skin may more easily be flayed.
- (27) The month of Nisan, i.e., March-April.
- (28) October-November.
- (29) In the environs and suburbs of the town.
- (30) For the prohibition of slaughtering pasture animals on a Festival is due to mukzeh, and therefore it is assumed that since Rabbi defines pasture animals, he accepts this prohibition.
- (31) Lit., 'burst dates'. May they be eaten on Festivals?

Talmud - Mas. Beitzah 40b

only dry figs and raisins¹ come under the category of mukzeh! — If you like, say: These² also are like dry figs and raisins. And if you like, say: He [Rabbi] answered him³ according to the opinion of R. Simeon, but he himself is not of this opinion.⁴ Alternatively, say: He [Rabbi] said this according to the opinion of the Rabbis. According to my view, there is [absolutely] no mukzeh; but even on your view, you should agree with me at all events that such [animals] as are led out and graze about the time of Passover and who are led in at the time of the first rainfall are household animals. And the Rabbis replied to him: No, such are pasture animals.

- (1) Because they were formerly edible and have been set aside for drying.
 - (2) Animals which shun the habitation of men.
 - (3) His son.
 - (4) He himself extended the law of mukzeh even to these.

Mishna - Mas. Bikkurim Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. SOME THERE ARE WHO BRING BIKKURIM¹ AND RECITE [THE DECLARATION];² OTHERS WHO MAY ONLY BRING THEM, BUT DO NOT MAKE RECITAL; AND SOME THERE ARE WHO MAY NOT EVEN BRING THEM AT ALL. THESE MAY NOT BRING THEM: HE WHO PLANTS [A TREE] ON HIS OWN SOIL, BUT SINKS³ [A SHOOT] SO THAT [IT] GROWS IN THE TERRITORY BELONGING TO AN INDIVIDUAL⁴ OR TO THE PUBLIC; AND LIKEWISE IF ONE SINKS [A SHOOT] IN ANOTHER'S PRIVATE PROPERTY OR IN PUBLIC PROPERTY, SO THAT IT GROWS ON HIS OWN PROPERTY:⁴ OR, IF ONE PLANTS [A TREE] ON HIS OWN [PROPERTY] AND SINKS IT SO THAT IT STILL GROWS ON HIS OWN PROPERTY, BUT THERE IS A PRIVATE OR PUBLIC ROAD BETWEEN, SUCH A ONE MAY NOT BRING BIKKURIM.⁵ R. JUDAH SAYS, SUCH A ONE HAS TO BRING BIKKURIM.⁶

MISHNAH 2. FOR WHAT REASON MAY HE NOT BRING THEM? BECAUSE IT IS SAID, 'THE FIRST-FRUITS OF THY LAND', MEANING THAT THOU MAYEST NOT BRING THEM UNLESS ALL THE PRODUCE [COMES] FROM THY LAND. TENANTS,⁷ LESSEES,⁸ OR OCCUPIERS OF CONFISCATED PROPERTY,⁹ OR A ROBBER MAY NOT BRING THEM FOR THE SAME REASON, BECAUSE IT SAYS, 'THE FIRST-FRUITS OF THY LAND'.

MISHNAH 3. BIKKURIM ARE BROUGHT ONLY FROM SEVEN KINDS,¹⁰ BUT NONE [MAY BE BROUGHT] FROM DATES GROWN ON HILLS, OR FROM VALLEY-FRUITS,¹¹ OR FROM OLIVES THAT ARE NOT OF THE CHOICE KIND. BIKKURIM ARE NOT TO BE BROUGHT BEFORE PENTECOST.¹² THE MEN OF MT. ZEBOIM¹³ BROUGHT THEIR BIKKURIM BEFORE PENTECOST,¹⁴ BUT THEY WERE NOT ACCEPTED BECAUSE OF WHAT IS WRITTEN IN THE TORAH: 'AND THE FEAST OF HARVEST, THE FIRST-FRUITS OF THY LABOURS, WHICH THOU SOWEST IN THE FIELD'.¹⁵

MISHNAH 4. THESE BRING [BIKKURIM] BUT DO NOT MAKE THE RECITAL: THE PROSELYTE, SINCE HE CANNOT SAY: WHICH THE LORD HATH SWORN TO OUR FATHERS, TO GIVE UNTO US'.¹⁶ IF HIS MOTHER WAS AN ISRAELITE, THEN HE BOTH BRINGS BIKKURIM AND RECITES THE DECLARATION.¹⁷ WHEN HE PRAYS PRIVATELY, HE SHALL SAY: 'O GOD OF THE FATHERS OF ISRAEL'; BUT WHEN HE IS IN THE SYNAGOGUE, HE SHOULD SAY: 'THE GOD OF YOUR FATHERS'. BUT IF HIS MOTHER WAS AN ISRAELITE WOMAN, HE SAYS: 'THE GOD OF OUR FATHERS'.¹⁷

MISHNAH 5. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: A WOMAN WHO IS A DAUGHTER OF A PROSELYTE MAY NOT MARRY A PRIEST UNLESS HER MOTHER WAS HERSELF AN ISRAELITE WOMAN. [THIS LAW APPLIES EQUALLY TO THE OFFSPRING] WHETHER OF PROSELYTES OR FREED SLAVES, EVEN TO TEN GENERATIONS, UNLESS THEIR MOTHER IS AN ISRAELITE. A GUARDIAN,¹⁸ AN AGENT, A SLAVE, A WOMAN,¹⁹ ONE OF DOUBTFUL SEX, OR A HERMAPHRODITE²⁰ BRING THE BIKKURIM, BUT DO NOT RECITE, SINCE THEY CANNOT SAY: 'WHICH THOU, O GOD, HAST GIVEN UNTO ME'.²¹

MISHNAH 6. HE WHO BUYS TWO TREES [THAT HAD GROWN] IN PROPERTY BELONGING TO HIS FELLOW BRINGS BIKKURIM BUT IS NOT TO MAKE THE RECITAL.²² R. MEIR SAYS: HE ALSO MAKES THE RECITAL.²³ IF THE WELL DRIED UP,²⁴ OR THE TREE WAS CUT DOWN,²⁵ HE BRINGS BUT DOES NOT RECITE. R. JUDAH SAYS: HE BRINGS AND RECITES.²⁶ FROM PENTECOST TILL SUKKOTH²⁷ ONE MAY BRING [BIKKURIM] AND MAKE THE RECITAL; FROM SUKKOTH TILL HANUKAH,²⁸ ONE MAY BRING, BUT DOES NOT MAKE THE RECITAL. R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA SAYS: ONE MAY BRING AND ALSO MAKE THE RECITAL.

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN SET ASIDE HIS BIKKURIM AND SOLD [AFTERWARDS] HIS FIELD, HE BRINGS THEM BUT DOES NOT MAKE THE RECITAL;²⁹ WHEREAS THE OTHER [WHO BOUGHT THE FIELD] MAY NOT BRING [BIKKURIM] OF THE SAME SPECIES,³⁰ BUT HE BRINGS THEM OF ANOTHER KIND AND MAKES THE RECITAL. R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MAY ALSO BRING FIRST-FRUITS OF THE SAME KIND AND MAKE THE RECITAL.

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE SET ASIDE [HIS BIKKURIM] AND THEY WERE PLUNDERED, OR ROTTED WERE STOLEN OR LOST, OR CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS, HE MUST BRING OTHERS IN THEIR STEAD,³¹ BUT DOES NOT MAKE THE RECITAL. THESE OTHERS ARE NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE [ADDED] FIFTH.³² IF THEY CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS WHILE IN THE TEMPLE COURT, HE MUST SCATTER THEM³³ AND DOES NOT MAKE THE RECITAL.

MISHNAH 9. WHENCE DO WE INFER THAT A MAN IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THEM UNTIL HE BRINGS THEM INTO THE TEMPLE MOUNT? BECAUSE IT SAYS: 'THE FIRST OF THE FIRST-FRUITS OF THY LAND SHALT THOU BRING INTO THE HOUSE OF THE LORD THY GOD',³⁴ THIS TEACHES THAT HE IS RESPONSIBLE UNTIL HE BRINGS THEM INTO THE TEMPLE MOUNT. IF HE BROUGHT [BIKKURIM] OF ONE KIND AND MADE THE RECITAL AND THEN BROUGHT OF ANOTHER KIND, HE MAKES NO [SECOND] RECITAL.³⁵

MISHNAH 10. THESE BRING AND MAKE THE RECITAL: [ONE WHO BRINGS BIKKURIM] FROM PENTECOST TO SUKKOTH, FRUITS OF THE SEVEN SPECIES, AND THOSE GROWN ON THE MOUNTAINS,³⁶ OR DATES GROWN IN THE VALLEYS,³⁷ OIL-OLIVES³⁸ [AND PRODUCE] FROM TRANSJORDANIA.³⁹ R. JOSE THE GALILEAN SAYS: ONE MAY NOT BRING [BIKKURIM] FROM TRANSJORDANIA, SINCE THAT IS NOT 'A LAND FLOWING WITH MILK AND HONEY'.

MISHNAH 11. IF ONE BOUGHT THREE TREES IN THE FIELD OF HIS FELLOW, HE BRINGS [BIKKURIM] AND MAKES THE RECITAL.⁴⁰ R. MEIR SAYS: EVEN [IF HE BOUGHT] ONLY TWO.⁴¹ IF HE BOUGHT ONE TREE WITH ITS SOIL, HE BRINGS [BIKKURIM] AND MAKES THE RECITAL. R. JUDAH SAYS, ALSO TENANTS AND LESSEES⁴² BRING AND RECITE.⁴³

(1) Deut. XXVI, 1-11.

(2) Ibid. 5-11.

(3) By bending the shoot-into the ground so that it springs forth as an independent plant.

(4) The sine qua non of bikkurim is that the fruit had to be grown in soil indisputably that of the owner, v. next Mishnah.

(5) The reason being that some of the fruit of both his fields derive their nature from soil belonging to another.

(6) Agreeing with the view of B.B. 60a, which permits a cavity to be dug under public property provided that the surface still remains firm enough to bear a waggon loaded with stones traversing across it. Accordingly, the fruit grown in such wise is still sufficiently his own to warrant bikkurim. R. Judah, however, only claims his view in the case of a public foot-path, and even then no recital is to be made. In the case of a private foot-path, he concurs that the products cannot be deemed his own.

(7) Heb. אֲרִיסִין, labourers who receive a certain share of the produce in lieu of their work for the owner.

(8) Heb. חֲכֹרֹת, labourers who, irrespective of the yield of the crops, pay the landlord a certain rent in kind.

(9) Heb. מְקַרְקִין, probably of Greek origin. Lat. sicarius. The allusion is no doubt to the Hadrianic persecutions following the Bar Cochba wars (132-135 C.E.) when the Romans confiscated the property of the Jews killed or taken captive in the wars. The produce of such confiscated property, afterwards re-acquired by other Jews, was exempt from the law of Bikkurim, v. Git. (Sonc. ed.) p. 252, n. 2.

- (10) For which Palestine was renowned, namely wheat, barley, grapes, figs, pomegranates, olive-oil and date-honey; cf. Deut. VIII, 8.
- (11) Fruit grown in valleys (except dates) were not of the choice kind.
- (12) Azereth, the closing festival, Pentecost. Shabuoth being the closing festival to Passover, on this festival two wheaten loaves of new corn were offered in the Temple, and these sanctioned the use of new produce in the Temple. Lev. XXIII, 17.
- (13) Neh. XI, 34.
- (14) V. Hal. IV, 10.
- (15) Ex. XXIII, 16.
- (16) Deut. XXVI, 3. Proselytes did not receive any portion in the division of the land under Joshua. Maim. contends contrary to this Mishnah, that since Eretz Israel was given to Abraham, who was also the father of proselytes (Gen. XVII, 4), even the latter can conscientiously declare 'to our fathers' in the recital, and in his prayers 'God of our fathers'.
- (17) In Jewish Law the child always assumes the religious status of the mother.
- (18) An administrator of the property of orphans appointed either by the Beth din or the family of the orphan during his minority.
- (19) But if she has a husband, he may bring and recite for her.
- (20) A person of double sex.
- (21) Because the Land was not divided among women. Num. XXVI, 54 implies that only 'men', i.e., such whose sex was not the subject of doubt, were the inheritors.
- (22) Since it is doubtful whether in such a case the purchaser also acquires the soil beneath the trees, whereas the avowal is conditional on the fact that the soil that had borne the fruits was his own. Two trees are stressed, because had the number been more, the declaration could be made; for with such a purchase, the purchaser acquires the soil under the trees too.
- (23) Contending that even in the case of two trees, the soil beneath them becomes also the property of the purchaser.
- (24) From which the tree receives its vitality.
- (25) Prior to the offering of the first-fruits.
- (26) Since the soil is still there.
- (27) Lit., 'the festival', par excellence.
- (28) This is the Maccabean festival commemorating the victory of Judas Maccabeus over the Greco-Syrians on Kislev 25th, 165 B.C.E. (I Macc. IV, 45 ff).
- (29) Since the land is no longer his.
- (30) Since the first-fruits of this field had already been set aside.
- (31) For only the choicest fruits could be brought; cf. Mal. I, 8.
- (32) V. Lev. XXII, 14.
- (33) The fruit is thrown out and the basket given to the officiating priest, v. infra III, 8. The fruit need not be substituted, as responsibility for their safety ceases with their entry into Temple precincts.
- (34) Ex. XXIII, 19.
- (35) Even R. Judah (v. supra 7) concurs that two recitals cannot be made by the same man even over two kinds of produce.
- (36) These are choicer than those grown in the valley.
- (37) Such dates are of superior brand and contain more honey than those grown on the mountains.
- (38) Being the choicest of this kind.
- (39) So Bert. Cf. the view of R. Jose the Galilean.
- (40) Because in this case the soil beneath them and round about them also passes into the hands of the purchaser. V. B.B. 82a and b.
- (41) V. previous note.
- (42) Cf. supra I, 2.
- (43) The reference is such as descend from a family that have for long had this particular field farmed out to them; cf. I, 2.

Mishna - Mas. Bikkurim Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1 . FOR TERUMAH AND BIKKURIM ONE IS LIABLE TO DEATH¹ AND THE [ADDITIONAL] FIFTH;² AND THEY ARE FORBIDDEN TO NON-PRIESTS³ AND ACCOUNTED AS THE PROPERTY OF THE PRIEST;⁴ THEY ARE NEUTRALIZED IN A HUNDRED AND ONE PARTS,⁵ REQUIRE THE WASHING OF HANDS,⁶ AND [AWAITING] TILL SUNSET.⁷ THESE [LAWS] APPLY ONLY TO TERUMAH AND BIKKURIM, WHICH IS NOT SO IN THE CASE OF TITHE.⁸

MISHNAH 2. THERE ARE [LAWS] WHICH APPLY TO SECOND TITHE AND BIKKURIM BUT NOT TO TERUMAH: FOR [SECOND] TITHE AND BIKKURIM REQUIRE TO BE BROUGHT TO [THE APPOINTED] PLACE;⁹ THEY REQUIRE CONFESSION;¹⁰ AND ARE FORBIDDEN TO AN ONAN¹¹ (BUT R. SIMEON PERMITS [BIKKURIM TO AN ONAN]);¹² AND THEY ARE SUBJECT TO [THE LAW OF] REMOVAL¹³ (BUT R. SIMEON EXEMPTS [BIKKURIM FROM REMOVAL]).¹⁴ AND THE SLIGHTEST ADMIXTURE OF THEM [WITH COMMON PRODUCE OF A LIKE KIND] RENDERS IT FORBIDDEN TO BE CONSUMED [AS COMMON FOOD] IN JERUSALEM;¹⁵ AND SO IS WHAT GROWS FROM THEM FORBIDDEN TO BE CONSUMED IN JERUSALEM EVEN BY NON-PRIESTS OR BY CATTLE,¹⁶ BUT R. SIMEON PERMITS THEM.¹⁷ THESE ARE [THE LAWS] WHICH APPLY TO [SECOND] TITHE AND BIKKURIM, WHICH IS NOT THE CASE WITH TERUMAH.

MISHNAH 3. THERE ARE [LAWS] WHICH APPLY TO TERUMAH AND TITHE BUT NOT TO BIKKURIM; TERUMAH AND THE [SECOND] TITHE RENDER FORBIDDEN [THE CONTENTS OF] THE THRESHING-FLOOR,¹⁸ AND HAVE THEIR QUANTITY [PRESCRIBED].¹⁹ AND APPLY TO ALL PRODUCE BOTH DURING AND AFTER TEMPLE TIMES,²⁰ AND [TO PRODUCE GROWN] BY TENANTS, LESSEES, HOLDERS OF CONFISCATED PROPERTY AND ROBBERS.²¹ THESE ARE [THE LAWS] WHICH APPLY TO TERUMAH AND TITHE, WHICH IS NOT THE CASE WITH BIKKURIM.²²

MISHNAH 4. AND THERE ARE [LAWS] APPLYING TO BIKKURIM WHICH DO NOT [APPLY] TO TERUMAH AND TITHE; FOR BIKKURIM CAN BECOME ACQUIRED WHILE STILL ATTACHED [TO THE SOIL].²³ AND A MAN MAY MAKE HIS ENTIRE FIELD AS BIKKURIM; HE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THEM,²⁴ AND THEY REQUIRE AN OFFERING,²⁵ SINGING,²⁶ WAVING AND THE PASSING OF THE NIGHT IN JERUSALEM.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. THE TERUMAH OF THE TITHE IS LIKE TO BIKKURIM IN TWO INSTANCES, AND LIKE TO TERUMAH IN TWO OTHERS. IT MAY BE TAKEN FROM CLEAN PRODUCE FOR THAT WHICH IS UNCLEAN,²⁸ AND FROM SUCH PRODUCE THAT IS NOT IN CLOSE PROXIMITY LIKE BIKKURIM.²⁹ AND IT RENDERS THE CONTENTS OF THE THRESHING-FLOOR FORBIDDEN,³⁰ AND HAS A PRESCRIBED AMOUNT LIKE TERUMAH.³¹

MISHNAH 6. THE ETHROG³² IS IN THREE THINGS LIKE TO AN [ORDINARY] TREE, AND IN ONE THING LIKE TO A VEGETABLE.³³ IT IS LIKE TO A TREE IN RESPECT OF 'ORLAH,³⁴ FOURTH YEAR PLANTINGS,³⁵ AND [THE LAW OF] THE SEVENTH YEAR;³⁶ AND LIKE TO A VEGETABLE IN ONE THING IN THAT ITS TITHING SEASON COMMENCES WITH THE SEASON OF ITS GATHERING.³⁷ SO R. GAMALIEL; BUT R. ELIEZER SAYS, [THE CITRON] IS LIKE A TREE IN ALL THINGS.

MISHNAH 7. THE BLOOD OF A HUMAN BEING³⁸ IS LIKE TO THE BLOOD OF ANIMALS IN THAT IT RENDERS SEEDS SUSCEPTIBLE [TO LEVITICAL IMPURITY]³⁹ AND [LIKE TO] THE BLOOD OF A REPTILE, NO CULPABILITY IS INCURRED ON ACCOUNT THEREOF.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 8. A KOY⁴¹ IS IN SOME WAYS LIKE TO A BEAST OF CHASE; IN SOME WAYS IT IS MORE LIKE TO CATTLE; AND AGAIN IN SOME WAYS IT IS LIKE TO BOTH A BEAST OF CHASE AND CATTLE, AND IN SOME THINGS IS NEITHER LIKE TO A BEAST OF CHASE NOR CATTLE.

MISHNAH 9. WHEREIN IS IT LIKE TO A BEAST OF CHASE? ITS BLOOD MUST BE COVERED LIKE THE BLOOD OF A BEAST OF CHASE.⁴² IT MAY NOT BE SLAUGHTERED ON A FESTIVAL; IF IT IS SLAUGHTERED, ITS BLOOD IS NOT TO BE COVERED.⁴³ ITS FAT CONVEYS CARRION UNCLEANNESS⁴⁴ LIKE A BEAST OF CHASE, BUT ITS UNCLEANNESS IS ALSO A MATTER OF DOUBT. NOR CAN ONE REDEEM WITH IT THE FIRST-BORN OF AN ASS.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 10. AND WHEREIN DOES IT RESEMBLE CATTLE? ITS FAT IS PROHIBITED LIKE THE FAT OF CATTLE,⁴⁶ BUT ONE DOES NOT INCUR ON ACCOUNT THEREOF THE PENALTY OF KARETH;⁴⁷ IT MAY NOT BE BOUGHT WITH THE REDEMPTION MONEY OF THE SECOND TITHE⁴⁸ TO BE EATEN IN JERUSALEM; IT IS SUBJECT TO [THE PRIEST'S DUE OF] THE SHOULDER, THE TWO CHEEKS AND THE MAW.⁴⁹ R. ELIEZER EXEMPTS IT [FROM THESE DUES] BECAUSE UPON HIM WHO WISHES TO EXACT AUGHT OF HIS NEIGHBOUR IT DEVOLVES TO BRING PROOF [OF HIS CLAIM].⁵⁰

MISHNAH 11. AND WHEREIN IS IT NEITHER LIKE TO CATTLE NOR TO BEAST OF CHASE? IT IS FORBIDDEN ON ACCOUNT OF [THE LAW OF] KIL'AYIM⁵¹ [TO YOKE IT] WITH EITHER A BEAST OF CHASE OR CATTLE, AND IF ONE ASSIGNED TO HIS SON HIS BEAST OF CHASE AND⁵² HIS CATTLE HE HAS NOT [THEREBY] ASSIGNED THE KOY. IF ONE SAYS, I WILL BECOME A NAZIRITE IF THIS IS A BEAST OF CHASE OR ['IF THIS IS] A CATTLE', HE BECOMES A NAZIRITE.⁵³ IN ALL OTHER WAYS IT IS LIKE BOTH ANIMALS OF CHASE AND CATTLE: IT REQUIRES SLAUGHTERING LIKE THEM BOTH,⁵⁴ IT CAN CONVEY CARRION UNCLEANNESS,⁵⁵ AND TO IT APPLIES THE LAW RELATING TO A LIMB OF A LIVING BEING — LIKE TO THEM BOTH.⁵⁶

(1) If eaten by 'a stranger'; Lev. XXII, 9. First-fruits are also designated as heave-offering.

(2) V. Lev. XXII, 14.

(3) This is implied to the previous ruling, but is mentioned here to contrast it with tithes.

(4) In that he can employ them as kiddushin (v. Glos.) for betrothing a woman.

(5) If one se'ah of terumah or bikkurim fell into one hundred se'ahs of ordinary produce, numbering one hundred and one in all, any one se'ah may be taken out and given to the priest; the rest is free for common use. V. Ter. I, 7.

(6) He who wishes to eat them must first wash his hands, as according to the laws of levitical purity, unwashed hands which are of second degree uncleanness, cause in terumah uncleanness in the third grade.

(7) According to Lev. XXII, 6ff, a priest who had become unclean had to immerse himself and await sunset before he could eat terumah.

(8) The reference is to Second Tithe. It may be eaten by non-priests; it cannot be used for kiddushin (v. Kid. 52b); It is neutralized in a majority; it may be eaten with unwashed hands; it can be eaten after immersion even before sunset.

(9) Jerusalem; v. Deut. XIV, 22ff and XXVI, 2ff.

(10) V. Deut. XXVI, 10 (bikkurim); ibid. 13 (tithe).

(11) V. Glos. Cf. Deut. XXVI, 14.

(12) Since bikkurim are designated terumah, which is permitted to an onan.

(13) V. Deut. XXVI, 12ff and M. Sh. V, 6.

(14) He compares bikkurim to terumah which is not removed but given to the priests; v. M. Sh. ibid.

(15) I.e., if the admixture occurred after they had been brought into Jerusalem, since the whole mixture can be eaten without any extra trouble in Jerusalem respectively as second tithe or bikkurim; if, however, the admixture took place before they had been brought to Jerusalem, it is neutralized in one hundred and one parts, since otherwise it would mean taking up the whole of the mixture to Jerusalem.

- (16) I.e., the character of the bikkurim and second tithe is extended alike to the whole mixture referred to as well as to what grows from them, not only in that these must not be consumed outside Jerusalem but also in that they are forbidden even in Jerusalem to non-priests and cattle.
- (17) With reference to what grows from them.
- (18) Whereas fruit may be eaten even before the bikkurim were delivered in the Temple Mount, the produce of the threshing-floor could not be eaten prior to the actual taking of terumah and tithes; cf. Ma'as. I, 5.
- (19) Whereas no quantity was fixed for first-fruits, that for terumah has been fixed for the ordinary man as one-fiftieth of his produce. The generous man could bring one-fortieth, and the niggardly even one-sixtieth.
- (20) First-fruits were brought only during Temple times, being conditional on the existence of an altar; v. Deut. XXVI, 4. Hence no altar, no offering.
- (21) V. supra I, 2 notes.
- (22) V. p. 395, n. 10.
- (23) They can be designated as such while still unplucked. V. infra III, 2.
- (24) Until they are brought to the Mount. If lost on the way, bikkurim had to be replaced; cf. supra I, 9.
- (25) The peace-offering had to be brought on all joyous occasions; v. infra III, 3.
- (26) V. infra III, 4.
- (27) Derived from Deut. XVI, 7.
- (28) Not permissible in the case of terumah.
- (29) Since terumah required proximity it was not permissible to have clean and unclean together, lest the latter defile the former. V. Ter. II, 1.
- (30) Prior to the separation of the terumah of the tithe.
- (31) One-tenth of what the Levite receives from the Israelite.
- (32) The citron used with the festive wreath in Tabernacles; Lev. XXIII, 40.
- (33) Because both grow by means of artificial irrigation as well as rain.
- (34) V. Glos.
- (35) V. 'Orlah I, 7.
- (36) Lev. XXV, 2-7. 20. In respect of these three things the citron is assimilated to trees in that the years are determined by the time of the formation of the fruit, unlike vegetables, where they are determined by the time of their gathering.
- (37) Unlike lotus where it is determined by the time of the formation of the fruits or leaves.
- (38) Lit., 'two-legged creature'.
- (39) V. lev. XI, 34-38; Maksh. VI, 4. Blood is likened to water in Deut. XII, 16.
- (40) The blood of animals is forbidden in Lev. VII, 26, but no prohibitions as blood attaches to the blood of a reptile.
- (41) A kind of bearded deer or antelope. The Talmud is undecided whether it belongs to the genus of cattle or beasts of chase.
- (42) Lev. XVII, 13.
- (43) Since a doubt exists regarding koy whether it is in the category of a beast if chase the blood of which is to be covered, or in the category of cattle the blood of which is exempt, it may not be slaughtered perchance it is a cattle and the covering of the blood would involve handling earth unnecessarily on the festival, and if it is slaughtered the blood is not covered up, v. Bez. 8a.
- (44) Lev. VII, 24. Only the fat of a clean animal that died of itself was deemed clean; that of a beast of chase was regarded as carrion.
- (45) Ex. XXXIV, 20. Only a lamb could be used for the purpose.
- (46) The heleb (v. Glos.) of the ox, lamb or goat was prohibited, v. Lev. VII, 23.
- (47) V. Glos. Since it may be in the category of a beast of chase.
- (48) As a peace-offering on account of its dubious origin. A wild beast was barred from the category of sacrifices.
- (49) The portions due to the priest from the slaughtered ox or sheep; Deut. XVIII, 3.
- (50) Since the owner of the koy could retort to the priest: 'Cite evidence that it is of the cattle genus and the dues are yours'.
- (51) Lev. XIX, 19; Deut. XXII, 10.
- (52) Aliter: 'or'.
- (53) The rigidity of this law is evidenced by the fact that the vow becomes valid even in the case of doubt regarding its efficacy.

(54) To render it permissible for food.

(55) V. Lev. XI, 8.

(56) Cf. Hul. 101b.

Mishna - Mas. Bikkurim Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. HOW WERE THE BIKKURIM SET ASIDE? A MAN GOES DOWN INTO HIS FIELD, HE SEES A FIG THAT RIPENED,¹ OR A CLUSTER OF GRAPES THAT RIPENED, OR A POMEGRANATE THAT RIPENED, HE TIES A REED-ROPE AROUND IT AND SAYS: LET THESE BE BIKKURIM'.² R. SIMEON SAYS: NOTWITHSTANDING THIS HE MUST AGAIN DESIGNATE THEM AS BIKKURIM AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN PLUCKED FROM THE SOIL.

MISHNAH 2. HOW WERE THE BIKKURIM TAKEN UP [TO JERUSALEM]? ALL [THE INHABITANTS OF] THE CITIES THAT CONSTITUTED THE MA'AMAD³ ASSEMBLED IN THE CITY OF THE MA'AMAD,⁴ AND SPENT THE NIGHT IN THE OPEN PLACE THEREOF WITHOUT ENTERING ANY OF THE HOUSES.⁵ EARLY IN THE MORNING THE OFFICER⁶ SAID: 'LET US ARISE AND GO UP TO ZION, INTO THE HOUSE OF THE LORD OUR GOD'.⁷

MISHNAH 3. THOSE WHO LIVED NEAR⁸ BROUGHT FRESH FIGS AND GRAPES, BUT THOSE FROM A DISTANCE BROUGHT DRIED FIGS AND RAISINS.⁹ AN OX WITH HORNS BEDECKED WITH GOLD AND WITH AN OLIVE-CROWN ON ITS HEAD¹⁰ LED THE WAY.¹¹ THE FLUTE WAS PLAYED BEFORE THEM¹² UNTIL THEY WERE NIGH TO JERUSALEM; AND WHEN THEY ARRIVED CLOSE TO JERUSALEM THEY SENT MESSENGERS IN ADVANCE,¹³ AND ORNAMENTALLY ARRAYED THEIR BIKKURIM.¹⁴ THE GOVERNORS AND CHIEFS AND TREASURERS [OF THE TEMPLE]¹⁵ WENT OUT TO MEET THEM. ACCORDING TO THE RANK OF THE ENTRANTS¹⁶ USED THEY TO GO FORTH. ALL THE SKILLED ARTISANS OF JERUSALEM WOULD STAND UP BEFORE THEM AND GREET THEM:¹⁷ 'BRETHREN, MEN OF SUCH AND SUCH A PLACE, WE ARE DELIGHTED TO WELCOME YOU'.¹⁸

MISHNAH 4. THE FLUTE WAS PLAYING BEFORE THEM TILL THEY REACHED THE TEMPLE MOUNT; AND WHEN THEY REACHED THE TEMPLE MOUNT EVEN KING AGRIPPA WOULD TAKE THE BASKET AND PLACE IT ON HIS SHOULDER¹⁹ AND WALK AS FAR AS THE TEMPLE COURT. AT THE APPROACH TO THE COURT, THE LEVITES WOULD SING THE SONG: 'I WILL EXTOL THEE, O LORD, FOR THOU HAST RAISED ME UP, AND HAST NOT SUFFERED MINE ENEMIES TO REJOICE OVER ME'.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. THE TURTLE-DOVES [TIED TO] THE BASKET²¹ WERE [OFFERED UP AS] BURNT-OFFERINGS, BUT THAT WHICH THEY HELD IN THEIR HANDS²² THEY PRESENTED TO THE PRIESTS.

MISHNAH 6. WHILE THE BASKET WAS YET ON HIS SHOULDER HE WOULD RECITE FROM: 'I PROFESS THIS DAY UNTO THE LORD THY GOD',²³ UNTIL THE COMPLETION OF THE PASSAGE.²⁴ R. JUDAH SAID: TILL [HE HAD REACHED] 'A WANDERING ARAMEAN WAS MY FATHER'.²⁵ HAVING REACHED THESE WORDS, HE TOOK THE BASKET OFF HIS SHOULDER AND HELD IT BY ITS EDGE;²⁶ AND THE PRIEST PLACED HIS HAND BENEATH IT AND WAVED IT, HE²⁷ THEN RECITED FROM 'A WANDERING ARAMEAN WAS MY FATHER' UNTIL HE COMPLETED THE ENTIRE PASSAGE. HE WOULD THEN DEPOSIT THE BASKET BY THE SIDE OF THE ALTAR,²⁸ PROSTRATE HIMSELF, AND DEPART.

MISHNAH 7. ORIGINALLY ALL WHO KNEW HOW TO RECITE WOULD RECITE

WHILST THOSE UNABLE TO DO SO WOULD REPEAT IT;²⁹ BUT WHEN THEY REFRAINED FROM BRINGING,³⁰ IT WAS DECIDED THAT BOTH THOSE WHO COULD AND THOSE WHO COULD NOT [RECITE] SHOULD REPEAT THE WORDS.

MISHNAH 8. THE RICH BROUGHT THEIR BIKKURIM IN BASKETS OVERLAID WITH SILVER OR GOLD, WHILST THE POOR USED WICKER-BASKETS OF PEELED WILLOW-BRANCHES, AND THEY³¹ USED TO GIVE BOTH THE BASKETS AND THE BIKKURIM TO THE PRIEST.

MISHNAH 9. R. SIMEON B. NANOS SAID: THE BIKKURIM MAY BE BEDECKED [WITH PRODUCE] OTHER THAN THE SEVEN SPECIES,³² BUT R. AKIBA SAYS: THEY COULD ONLY BE BEDECKED WITH PRODUCE OF THE SEVEN KINDS.³³

MISHNAH 10. R. SIMEON SAYS: THERE ARE THREE ELEMENTS IN BIKKURIM: THE BIKKURIM,³⁴ THE ADDITIONS³⁵ TO THE BIKKURIM, AND THE ORNAMENTATIONS OF THE BIKKURIM.³⁶ THE ADDITIONS TO THE BIKKURIM HAD TO BE OF A LIKE KIND, BUT THE ORNAMENTAL FRUIT OF THE BIKKURIM COULD ALSO BE OF ANOTHER KIND.³⁷ THE ADDITIONS TO THE BIKKURIM COULD ONLY BE EATEN IN LEVITICAL PURITY, AND WERE EXEMPT FROM [THE LAW OF] DEMAI,³⁸ BUT THE FRUITS USED FOR ORNAMENTATIONS OF THE BIKKURIM WERE SUBJECT TO [THE LAW OF] DEMAI.

MISHNAH 11. WHEN DID [THE SAGES] DEEM THE ADDITIONS TO THE BIKKURIM IN THE SAME RANK AS THE BIKKURIM [THEMSELVES]? WHEN THEY COME FROM THE LAND [OF ISRAEL]; BUT IF THEY DO NOT COME FROM THE LAND,³⁹ THEY WERE NOT TO BE REGARDED AS THE BIKKURIM [THEMSELVES].

MISHNAH 12. IN WHAT RESPECT DID THEY RULE THAT THE BIKKURIM WERE THE [EXCLUSIVE] PROPERTY OF THE PRIEST? IN THAT HE CAN PURCHASE THEREWITH SLAVES AND IMMOVABLE PROPERTY AND UNCLEAN CATTLE, AND A CREDITOR [OF HIS] MAY TAKE THEM FOR HIS DEBT, AND HIS WIFE FOR HER KETHUBAH⁴⁰ — AS MAY BE DONE ALSO WITH A SCROLL OF THE LAW.⁴¹ R. JUDAH SAYS: THE BIKKURIM MAY BE GIVEN ONLY TO [A PRIEST THAT IS] AN ASSOCIATE]⁴² AND AS A FAVOUR;⁴³ AND THE SAGES SAY: THEY ARE GIVEN TO THE MEN OF THE Mishmar,⁴⁴ AND THEY DIVIDE THEM AMONG THEMSELVES AS [THEY DO] WITH ALL OTHER CONSECRATED OBJECTS.⁴⁵

(1) Though the vine is enumerated first in Deut. VIII, 8, yet the fig is the first to ripen; cf. Cant. II, 13. The fruits had to be fully ripe when they were brought (Deut. XXVI, 10) but not necessarily at the time of their designation.

(2) This exempts him from further specification at the time of cutting.

(3) Lit., 'place of standing'. The name of a group of Israelite representatives from outlying districts, corresponding to the twenty-four courses of priests (Mishmaroth), each ma'amad serving a week in turn. Some would go to the Temple to witness the sacrificial offerings, whilst others would assemble in their home town to conduct prayers during the day corresponding to the fixed time when the sacrifices were brought in the Temple. V. Ta'an. 26a.

(4) Where the leader resided; the idea being to form one united and impressive procession. The principle governing Jewish ceremonial being that majesty resides with a throng of worshippers.

(5) Lest impurity be contracted through contact with the dead.

(6) The head of the Ma'amad.

(7) Jer. XXXI, 6. They also recited various Psalms as they wended their way to the Temple Mount (Bert.). According to the T. Y. the fifteen Songs of Degrees (Pss. CXX — CXXXIV) were recited.

(8) Jerusalem.

(9) For fresh fruit would rot on the way.

(10) The olive-tree supplies the richest leaves, and served as a token of the kinds of fruit brought as Bikkurim

- (11) This ox afterwards served as the peace-offering.
- (12) Lit. , 'was struck', referring to the tapping of the tips of the fingers on the little openings of the flute.
- (13) To herald their coming.
- (14) Fresh figs would be placed as the top layer of a basket containing dried ones, and raisins would be covered by fresh grapes; whilst the choicest of the fruit would be placed on top of a basket containing only fresh fruits.
- (15) Cf. Shek. V, I. The 'governors' were the heads of the priests, and the 'chiefs' were the leaders of the Levites.
- (16) The size of the welcoming delegation would vary with the size of the procession.
- (17) A craftsman at his work was exempt from the command of rising before a scholar, but in order to manifest his love for the precept, he was to rise before the Bikkurim procession.
- (18) Lit, 'you have come in peace'.
- (19) For the priest had to receive it from his hand; Deut. XXVI, 4.
- (20) Ps. XXX, 2.
- (21) They were suspended from the sides of the basket so as not to soil the fruit.
- (22) I.e., the bikkurim. Maim. refers them to pigeons.
- (23) Deut. XXVI, 3.
- (24) Ibid.
- (25) Ibid. 5.
- (26) Whilst the priest officiated (Bert.).
- (27) The Israelite.
- (28) In the S.W. corner.
- (29) After the priest. The declaration had to be made in Hebrew. v. Sot. VII, 3.
- (30) Abashed at this public avowal of their ignorance in reading Hebrew.
- (31) I.e., the poor; the rich retained their valuable baskets (Bert). This gave rise to the saying, 'poverty drags after the poor' (v. B.K. 92a). Though the poor would thereby be abashed, yet it was considered prudent to encourage the rich to bring valuable baskets out of respect for God's house.
- (32) Deut. VIII,8. R. Simeon maintained that they could be ornamented with citrons and quinces, or fruits imported from abroad.
- (33) That grew in Palestine.
- (34) The actual first-fruits.
- (35) The fruit added at the time of plucking to the first ripened figs or cluster of grapes.
- (36) The choice fruit placed on top and around the basket.
- (37) Even such fruit not enumerated in Deut. VIII, 8 could be used.
- (38) V. Glos. If the priest accepts them from the hands of an 'am ha-arez.
- (39) From Transjordan. Cf. supra I, 10 where we learn that produce from Transjordan could be offered up as Bikkurim.
- (40) Marriage settlement, v. Glos.
- (41) Others explain: One may also buy with the Bikkurim a Scroll of the Law.
- (42) One who undertook to be conscientious in observing the laws appertaining especially to cleanness and impurity. V. Glos. s.v. haber.
- (43) The priest must not sell it. T. Y. refers it to owners who are at liberty to give it to any haber.
- (44) The men on duty in the Temple be they associates or not. V. Glos.
- (45) Including things dedicated to the Temple for various uses; since they are brought to the Temple, the priests will take care not to eat them in impurity.

Mishna - Mas. Bikkurim Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. THE HERMAPHRODITE¹ IS IN SOME THINGS LIKE TO MEN, AND IN OTHER THINGS LIKE TO WOMEN. IN OTHER THINGS AGAIN HE IS LIKE TO MEN AND TO WOMEN, AND IN OTHERS HE IS LIKE NEITHER MEN NOR WOMEN.

MISHNAH 2. WHEREIN IS HE LIKE TO MEN? HE CONTAMINATES WITH THE SEMINAL FLUX² LIKE MEN, AND HE DRESSES LIKE MEN;³ HE CAN TAKE A WIFE BUT

NOT BE TAKEN AS A WIFE LIKE MEN.⁴ AT HIS BIRTH HIS MOTHER MUST COUNT THE BLOOD OF PURIFICATION LIKE MEN,⁵ AND HE MUST NOT BE ALONE IN THE COMPANY OF WOMEN LIKE MEN.⁶ HE IS NOT MAINTAINED WITH THE DAUGHTERS LIKE MEN,⁷ AND MAY NOT TRANSGRESS THE LAW OF: 'YE SHALL NOT ROUND',⁸ AND 'THOU SHALT NOT DEFILE FOR THE DEAD'⁹ LIKE MEN; AND HE MUST PERFORM ALL THE COMMANDS OF THE TORAH¹⁰ LIKE MEN.

MISHNAH 3. AND WHEREIN IS HE LIKE WOMEN? IN THAT HE CONTAMINATES WITH HIS MENSTRUAL FLOW LIKE WOMEN;¹¹ AND HE MUST NOT BE ALONE IN THE COMPANY OF MEN LIKE WOMEN; AND DOES NOT SHARE [THE INHERITANCE] WITH THE SONS LIKE WOMEN¹² AND CANNOT EAT OF MOST HOLY SACRIFICES LIKE WOMEN.¹³ AT HIS BIRTH HIS MOTHER REMAINS UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE BLOOD OF HER IMPURITY;¹⁴ AND LIKE WOMEN, TOO, HE IS DISQUALIFIED FROM ACTING AS A WITNESS. IF HE HAD BECOME THE VICTIM OF ILLICIT INTERCOURSE, HE IS DISQUALIFIED FROM THE PARTAKING OF TERUMAH LIKE WOMEN.¹⁵

MISHNAH 4. WHEREIN IS HE COMPARED TO BOTH MEN AND WOMEN? GUILT IS INCURRED FOR SMILING OR CURSING HIM¹⁶ AS IN THE CASE OF MEN AND WOMEN, AND HE WHO UNWITTINGLY SLAYS HIM MUST GO INTO EXILE;¹⁷ AND IF OF SET PURPOSE, THEN [THE SLAYER] RECEIVES THE DEATH PENALTY.¹⁸ HIS MOTHER MUST [AT HIS BIRTH] BRING AN OFFERING AS FOR MEN AND WOMEN, AND LIKE MEN AND WOMEN HE MAY PARTAKE OF THE SACRED GIFTS¹⁹ OF THE BORDER,²⁰ AND MAY INHERIT ANY INHERITANCE²¹ LIKE MEN AND WOMEN.

MISHNAH 5. AND WHEREIN IS HE LIKENED NEITHER TO MEN NOR WOMEN? BECAUSE OF HIS UNCLEAN ISSUE²² TERUMAH IS NOT TO BE BURNT, NEITHER IS ANY PENALTY INCURRED BY HIM ON ENTERING THE TEMPLE IN AN UNCLEAN STATE.²³ HE MUST NOT BE SOLD AS A HEBREW SLAVE, UNLIKE MEN OR WOMEN,²⁴ AND HE CANNOT BE EVALUATED, UNLIKE MEN OR WOMEN.²⁵ IF ONE SAYS: 'I WILL BECOME A NAZIRITE, IF HE IS NEITHER A MAN NOR A WOMAN', THEN HE BECOMES A NAZIRITE. R. JOSE SAYS: THE HERMAPHRODITE IS A CREATURE BY ITSELF, AND THE SAGES COULD NOT DECIDE ABOUT HIM. BUT THIS IS NOT SO WITH ONE OF DOUBTFUL SEX, FOR SUCH A ONE IS, AT TIMES, A MAN AND AT OTHERS, A WOMAN.

(1) This chapter is entirely irrelevant to this tractate, yet included in all printed editions. Derived from the Tosef. of Bikkurim and develops the subject of the hermaphrodite; supra I, 5. The text is in disorder and receives various expansions in different editions. The text adopted here is of the Stettin edition 1862.

(2) Lit., 'the white'; Lev. XV. 2: Zab. II. 1.

(3) He must not don woman's dress, lest he be a man.

(4) This would be regarded as sodomy.

(5) Lev. XII, 1 ff.

(6) Cf. Kid. IV, 12.

(8) Lev. XIX, 27.

(9) V. Lev. XXI, 1.

(10) Even those occasioned by time from which women are exempt.

(11) Lit., 'the red'; Lev. XV, 19ff.

(12) When much property was left the sons inherited and the daughters received maintenance B.B. IX, 1

(13) I.e., of sin- and meal-offerings; for of these the Bible says (Lev. VI, 22) that only those who are definitely males may eat.

(14) For two weeks, Lev. XII, 5.

- (15) A male, in such circumstances, would not have been disqualified, but the hermaphrodite is here treated as a woman; Bek. VII, 7.
- (16) Ex. XXI, 15, 17.
- (17) Ibid. 13.
- (18) Ibid 14.
- (19) I.e., holy food that could be eaten, e.g., terumah.
- (20) Even outside 'the border', Jerusalem. Keth. 24b; Shek. VII, 3.
- (21) If there be no other heir. We do not allow the argument lest he be a creature apart from all others to interfere with his rights of inheritance.
- (22) Cf. Zab. II, 1; Nid. 28b.
- (23) Because the penalty was only imposed upon those whose sex was not a matter of doubt.
- (24) V. Ex. XXI. 2, 7.
- (25) V. Lev. XXVII, 2ff.

Mishna - Mas. Demai Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THE [FOLLOWING] ARE TREATED LENIENTLY¹ IN RESPECT OF [THE RULES OF] DEMAI: WILD FIGS,² JUJUBE FRUIT,³ CRAB APPLES, WILD WHITE FIGS,⁴ YOUNG SYCAMORE FIGS, UNRIPE DATES,⁵ LATE GRAPES AND THORNY CAPERS; IN JUDEA⁶ ALSO SUMACH, JUDEAN⁷ VINEGAR, AND CORIANDER. R. JUDAH SAYS: ALL WILD FIGS ARE EXEMPT, EXCEPT THOSE WHICH HAVE A CROP TWICE [A YEAR]; ALL JUJUBE FRUITS ARE EXEMPT, EXCEPT THE JUJUBE FRUITS OF SHIKMONAH;⁸ ALL YOUNG SYCAMORE FIGS ARE EXEMPT, EXCEPT THOSE THAT BURST OPEN ON THE TREE.

MISHNAH 2. THE [SECOND TITHE⁹ OF] DEMAI IS NOT SUBJECT TO [THE RULES OF] THE FIFTH¹⁰ AND OF REMOVAL;¹¹ IT MAY BE EATEN BY AN ONAN;¹² IT MAY BE BROUGHT INTO JERUSALEM AND TAKEN OUT AGAIN;¹³ IF SMALL IN QUANTITY¹⁴ IT MAY BE ALLOWED TO BE LOST ON THE ROAD;¹⁵ ONE MAY GIVE IT TO AN 'AM HA-AREZ¹⁶ AND CONSUME ITS EQUIVALENT IN JERUSALEM. [SECOND TITHE MONEY¹⁷ OF DEMAI] MAY BE CHANGED¹⁸ AGAIN, SILVER [COINS] FOR [OTHER] SILVER [COINS], COPPER [COINS] FOR [OTHER] COPPER [COINS], SILVER FOR COPPER, AND COPPER [BACK] INTO FRUIT, PROVIDED¹⁹ THAT THE FRUIT WILL AGAIN BE REDEEMED FOR MONEY; THUS R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAY: THE FRUIT ITSELF MUST BE BROUGHT UP AND CONSUMED IN JERUSALEM.

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN BOUGHT [CORN]²⁰ FOR SEED OR FOR CATTLE, FLOUR FOR HIDES,²¹ OIL FOR THE LAMP, OR OIL FOR GREASING UTENSILS, IT IS EXEMPT FROM [THE RULES OF] DEMAI. [PRODUCE GROWN] BEYOND CHEZIB²² IS EXEMPT FROM [THE RULES OF] DEMAI. THE HALLAH²³ OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ, PRODUCE MIXED WITH TERUMAH,²⁴ PRODUCE BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY,²⁵ AND THE REMAINDER OF MEAL-OFFERINGS²⁶ ARE EXEMPT²⁷ FROM [THE RULES OF] DEMAI. SPICED²⁸ OIL, BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE LIABLE [TO THE RULES OF DEMAI]; BUT BETH HILLEL EXEMPT²⁹ IT.

MISHNAH 4. DEMAI MAY BE USED FOR MAKING AN 'ERUB³⁰ AND FOR FORMING A PARTNERSHIP.³¹ A BENEDICTION IS SAID OVER IT,³² AND GRACE IN COMPANY IS RECITED AFTER IT.³³ ONE MAY SEPARATE [TITHES] FROM IT EVEN WHEN ONE IS NAKED,³⁴ OR WHEN IT IS TWILIGHT³⁵ ON THE EVE OF SAB BATH. LO, IF ONE HAS TAKEN FROM IT THE SECOND TITHE BEFORE THE FIRST TITHE IT MATTERS NOUGHT.³⁶ THE OIL WITH WHICH THE WEAVER GREASES HIS FINGERS IS LIABLE³⁷ TO [THE RULES OF] DEMAI, BUT [THE OIL] WHICH THE WOOL-COMBER PUTS ON THE WOOL IS EXEMPT³⁸ FROM [THE RULES OF] DEMAI.

(1) The rules of demai are not enforced in the case of these fruits when bought from an 'am ha-arez. The list consists of fruits which are esteemed of little value, and the owners of which often leave them for general use without claiming in them their property rights. Therefore it may be assumed that they had not been grown by the 'am ha-arez who sold them, but had been picked up by him as ownerless property, in which case they would be exempt from tithes; cf. Ma'as. I, 1. Or again, even if they had been grown by the 'am ha-arez himself, it may be assumed that he had already tithed them, since the cost of tithing them would have been small. And on account of this double doubt they are treated leniently in respect of demai.

(2) Cf. Ber. 40b.

(3) Or 'lote'.

(4) These grow wild once in three years.

(5) Which only ripen after they had been picked. According to another explanation: dates blown from the tree by the wind.

- (6) Where the value of these articles is small.
- (7) Made from wine which had been extracted from grape-skins, and therefore of little value. Ordinary wine was much used in Judea for drink-offerings in the Temple, and could not be spared for making vinegar; cf. Pes. 42b; Buchler, Der galilaeische 'Am-ha-'Arez, p. 18, n. 1.
- (8) A place in the vicinity of Haifa.
- (9) Cf. Introduction p. 50.
- (10) If a man set apart Second Tithe from demai produce and he wished to redeem it for money (Deut. XIV, 25) he need not add a fifth of its value, as in the case of Second Tithe from produce which had been certainly untithed; cf. Lev. XXVII, 31; Ma'as. Sh. IV, 3; B.M. IV, 8. The reason is because the duty of tithing demai is only a Rabbinic enactment; cf. B.M. 54a.
- (11) Tithes taken from demai need not be removed from the house and distributed on the eve of the Passover of the fourth and seventh year of the Sabbatical cycle, as in the case of tithes from ordinary produce; cf. Deut. XIV, 28; XXVI, 13; Ma'as. Sh. V, 6; also 'Ed. IV, 5 (Sonc. ed. p. 23, n. 12; p. 24, n. 1).
- (12) Lit., 'one who grieves', 'a mourner': on the day of the death of a kinsman whether before or after the burial, and also Rabbinically on the day of the burial. This is forbidden in the case of Second Tithe from ordinary produce, Deut. XXVI, 14; Ma'as. Sh. V, 12.
- (13) In the case of Second Tithe from ordinary produce this is forbidden, Ma'as. Sh. III, 5.
- (14) And therefore of little value.
- (15) If its preservation would involve risk from robbers and the like.
- (16) He need not be suspected of eating it outside Jerusalem, though he may be suspected of eating it in uncleanness.
- (17) V. n. 9, p. 53.
- (18) Lit., 'rendered common'; cf. 'Ed. I, 9 (Sonc. ed. p. 4, n. 15).
- (19) Other texts read: 'And the fruit may again be redeemed for money'.
- (20) Of demai.
- (21) For use in tanning.
- (22) The Biblical Achzib (Josh. XIX, 29; Judg. I, 31) north of Acre. It formed the limit of Jewish territory after the return from the Babylonian exile, and what was beyond it was therefore treated as Syria; cf. infra VI, 11, n. 5.
- (23) Lit., 'cake'; the portion of dough which had to be given to the priest; cf. Num. XV, 20; 'Ed. I, 2 (Sonc. ed. p. 2, n. 2).
- (24) Cf. Introduction p. 50. If one part of terumah produce was mixed up with less than a hundred parts of common produce, the whole mixture could not be eaten by a non-priest, and had to be sold to a priest at the price of less than the terumah in the mixture. If terumah was mixed with common produce a hundred times in quantity, the terumah is neutralized in the mixture, and it may be eaten by a non-priest; cf. Ter. IV, 7.
- (25) To be eaten in Jerusalem.
- (26) After a handful of the meal had been offered on the altar. This remainder was to be eaten by the priests only, Lev. II, 3.
- (27) Because owing to their great sanctity. the 'am ha-arez may be presumed to have duly tithed them.
- (28) Cf. Buchler, op. cit. p. 15, n. 2. Others explain it as Balsam oil.
- (29) Because it may have been already tithed owing to its scarcity and its great value.
- (30) Lit., 'mixture', or 'amalgamation' of boundaries; food placed before the Sabbath at a convenient spot, making that spot a temporary abode, and enabling the owner to move freely on the Sabbath day within a distance of 2000 cubits on all sides of the spot. The 'erub thus serves to amalgamate and extend the limits of a Sabbath day journey; cf. 'Er. III, 2.
- (31) I.e., שְׁתוּף, shittuf, partnership of a courtyard or a private alley, containing several private domiciles. The owners of the domiciles combine to place jointly before the Sabbath some food in a convenient spot in the courtyard or the alley, which thus converts the several domiciles into a joint property, and enables the various owners to move freely on the Sabbath day from one domicile into the other; cf. 'Er. VII, 6 — 8.
- (32) V. Rashi Shab. 23a; Aliter: One recites grace after it (alone).
- (33) I.e., זְמון, invitation. Three or more persons eating together in the same room may be invited by one of them by a prescribed formula to join together in saying grace; cf. Ber. VII, 1,3. But produce which is certainly untithed cannot be used for these purposes, since its consumption involves a sin.
- (34) Since no benediction need be said on tithing demai produce, as on tithing produce which is certainly untithed; cf. Ter. I, 6.

- (35) This is forbidden in the case of produce certainly untithed; cf. Shab. II,7.
 (36) This is forbidden in the case of ordinary produce; cf. Ter. III, 6; Ma'as. Sh. V, 11.
 (37) This is like anointing the body, and anointing is equivalent to drinking, Shab. IX, 4.
 (38) It is like the greasing of utensils, v. supra 3, p. 54.

Mishna - Mas. Demai Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. THE FOLLOWING THINGS MUST BE TITHED AS DEMAI IN ALL PLACES:¹ PRESSED FIGS, DATES, CAROBS, RICE, AND CUMIN. AS TO RICE FROM OUTSIDE THE LAND [OF ISRAEL], WHOEVER USES IT² IS EXEMPT FROM TITHING IT.

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN HAS TAKEN UPON HIMSELF TO BE TRUSTWORTHY,³ HE MUST TITHE WHATEVER HE EATS AND WHATEVER HE SELLS⁴ AND WHATEVER HE BUYS;⁵ AND HE MAY NOT BE THE GUEST⁶ OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ.⁷ R. JUDAH SAYS: A MAN WHO IS THE GUEST OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ MAY STILL BE CONSIDERED TRUSTWORTHY.⁸ BUT THEY SAID TO HIM: IF HE IS NOT TRUSTWORTHY IN RESPECT OF HIMSELF,⁹ HOW CAN HE BE CONSIDERED TRUSTWORTHY IN RESPECT OF OTHERS?¹⁰

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN HAS TAKEN UPON HIMSELF TO BECOME AN ASSOCIATE,¹¹ HE MAY NOT SELL TO AN 'AM HA-AREZ EITHER MOIST OR DRY¹² [PRODUCE]; NOR MAY HE BUY FROM HIM MOIST¹³ [PRODUCE]. HE MAY NOT BE THE GUEST OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ,¹⁴ NOR MAY HE RECEIVE AS GUEST AN AM HA-AREZ WHO IS WEARING HIS OWN GARMENT.¹⁵ R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MAY NOT ALSO BREED SMALL CATTLE,¹⁶ NOR MAY HE BE ADDICTED TO MAKING VOWS¹⁷, OR TO LAUGHTER;¹⁸ NOR MAY HE DEFILE HIMSELF BY THE DEAD,¹⁹ BUT HE MUST BE AN ATTENDANT AT THE HOUSE OF STUDY. BUT THEY SAID TO HIM: THESE [REQUIREMENTS] DO NOT COME WITHIN THE GENERAL RULE [OF ASSOCIATESHIP].²⁰

MISHNAH 4. BAKERS²¹ [WHO ARE ASSOCIATES] ARE BOUND BY THE SAGES TO SET APART [FROM DEMAI PRODUCE] NO MORE THAN SUFFICES FOR THE TERUMAH OF TITHE²² AND FOR HALLAH.²³ SHOPKEEPERS²⁴ MAY NOT SELL DEMAI [PRODUCE]. ALL [MERCHANTS] WHO SUPPLY IN LARGE QUANTITIES²⁵ MAY SELL DEMAI. [MERCHANTS] WHO SUPPLY IN LARGE QUANTITIES ARE SUCH AS WHOLESALE PROVISION DEALERS AND VENDORS OF CORN.

MISHNAH 5. R. MEIR SAYS: IF [PRODUCE] WHICH IS USUALLY MEASURED OUT [FOR SALE] IN A LARGE [QUANTITY] HAPPENED TO HAVE BEEN MEASURED OUT IN A SMALL [QUANTITY]. THE SMALL QUANTITY IS TREATED AS IF IT WAS A LARGE²⁶ [QUANTITY]; IF [PRODUCE] WHICH IS USUALLY MEASURED OUT FOR SALE IN A SMALL [QUANTITY] HAPPENED TO HAVE BEEN MEASURED OUT IN A LARGE [QUANTITY]. THE LARGE [QUANTITY] IS TREATED AS IF IT WAS A SMALL²⁷ [QUANTITY]. WHAT IS CONSIDERED A LARGE QUANTITY? THREE KABS FOR DRY [PRODUCE], AND [OF THE VALUE OF] ONE DENAR FOR LIQUID [PRODUCE]. R. JOSE SAYS: IF BASKETS OF FIGS AND BASKETS OF GRAPES AND HAMPERS OF VEGETABLES ARE SOLD IN THE LUMP, THEY ARE EXEMPT [FROM THE RULES OF DEMAI].

(1) Even when bought beyond Chezib (I, 3, n. 11). because they may be produce grown in the Land of Israel.

(2) Even in the Land of Israel, because foreign rice is easily distinguished by its reddish colour from the white rice grown in the Land of Israel.

(3) אִשְׁתָּא, in respect of tithes, so that the produce he sells may be considered duly tithed; cf. Introduction, p. 51.

- (4) From his fields.
- (5) For selling to others.
- (6) That he may not be tempted to eat untithed produce.
- (7) עַם הָאָרֶץ . Lit., ‘the people of the land’, an uninstructed person who is indifferent to the tithing of produce and to the observance of clean and unclean; cf. Introduction p. 51; ‘Ed. I, 14 (Sonc. ed. p. 8, n. 1).
- (8) If he declares that he did not eat with his host anything untithed.
- (9) As is proved by his eating with an ‘am ha-arez.
- (10) In respect of the produce he sells to others.
- (11) הַבֵּר , haber, a member of an association of scrupulous observers of the Law, especially in matters of tithes and purity.
- (12) Lest it contract a defilement while in the possession of the ‘am ha-arez.
- (13) Moisture renders produce susceptible to defilement; cf. Lev. XI, 38; ‘Ed. I, 8 (Sonc. ed. p. 4, n. 12); Maksh.
- (14) Lest he contract a defilement while at his house.
- (15) The garment of an ‘am ha-arez is considered a ‘principal’ cause of defilement, because it may have been used by a menstruous woman or by a person with an issue; cf. Lev. XV, 4, 20; Hag. II, 7.
- (16) Breeding small cattle is prohibited in the Land of Israel because of the damage they cause to trees and bushes; cf. B.K. VII, 7.
- (17) That he may not be tempted to break a vow; cf. Eccl. V, 4.
- (18) Which leads to immorality; cf. Ab. III, 13 (Sonc. ed. p. 36, n. 3).
- (19) Unnecessarily.
- (20) Associateship is concerned only with the observance of tithing and purity.
- (21) Who supply bread to shopkeepers at a low profit.
- (22) The heave-offering which the Levite gives to the priest from the First Tithe; cf. Introduction p. 50.
- (23) cf. I, 3, n. 12.
- (24) Who sell to the private consumer at a big profit.
- (25) Whose profit is small, as they generally give a liberally heaped measure.
- (26) And is exempt from tithing as demai.
- (27) It must be tithed as demai by the vendor.

Mishna - Mas. Demai Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. ONE MAY GIVE DEMAI PRODUCE FOR FOOD TO THE POOR¹ AND TO PASSING TROOPS.² RABBAN GAMALIEL USED TO GIVE DEMAI FOR FOOD TO HIS WORKMEN.³ AS FOR COLLECTORS OF CHARITY, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THEY SHOULD GIVE TITHED [PRODUCE] TO PERSONS WHO DO NOT TITHE, AND UNTITHED [PRODUCE] TO PERSONS WHO DO TITHE;⁴ IT WILL THUS RESULT THAT EVERY ONE WILL BE EATING [PRODUCE] THAT HAS BEEN SET RIGHT.⁵ BUT THE SAGES SAY: THEY MAY COLLECT INDETERMINATELY⁶ AND DISTRIBUTE INDETERMINATELY. AND WHOEVER [OF THE RECIPIENTS] WISHES TO SET RIGHT⁷ [HIS PORTION] MAY DO SO.

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN WISHED TO CUT OFF LEAVES OF VEGETABLES IN ORDER TO LIGHTEN HIS BURDEN, HE MAY NOT THROW THEM DOWN UNLESS HE HAS [FIRST] TITHED THEM.⁸ IF A MAN PICKED UP VEGETABLES⁹ IN THE MARKET [WITH THE INTENTION OF BUYING THEM], AND THEN DECIDED TO PUT THEM BACK, HE MAY NOT PUT THEM BACK EXCEPT HE HAD [FIRST] TITHED THEM,¹⁰ FOR NOTHING WAS NEEDED [TO MAKE THEM HIS OWN] BUT NUMBERING¹¹ , [THEM]. BUT IF HE [ONLY] STOOD [THERE] BARGAINING¹² AND THEN SAW ANOTHER LOAD OF BETTER QUALITY, HE MAY PUT THEM BACK [UNTITHED]. SINCE HE HAD NOT YET DRAWN THEM INTO HIS POSSESSION.¹³

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN FOUND FRUIT ON THE ROAD AND PICKED IT UP IN ORDER

TO EAT IT, AND THEN DECIDED TO HIDE IT, HE MAY NOT HIDE IT UNLESS HE HAS [FIRST] TITHED IT. BUT IF FROM THE FIRST HE HAD PICKED IT UP ONLY IN ORDER TO GUARD IT AGAINST DESTRUCTION,¹⁴ HE IS EXEMPT [FROM TITHING IT]. ANY PRODUCE WHICH A MAN MAY NOT SELL¹⁵ [IN THE CONDITION OF] DEMAI, HE MAY NEITHER SEND IT [AS A GIFT] TO HIS FRIEND¹⁶ [IN THE CONDITION OF] DEMAI. R. JOSE PERMITS [TO BE SENT AS A GIFT PRODUCE] THAT IS CERTAINLY UNTITHED,¹⁷ ON CONDITION THAT HE MAKES THE MATTER KNOWN TO THE RECIPIENT.

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN CARRIED HIS WHEAT¹⁸ TO A MILLER WHO WAS A CUTHEAN¹⁹ OR TO A MILLER WHO WAS AN 'AM HA-AREZ, [THE WHEAT WHEN GROUND CONTINUES] IN ITS FORMER CONDITION IN RESPECT OF TITHES AND THE LAW OF SEVENTH YEAR²⁰ PRODUCE. [BUT IF HE CARRIED IT] TO A MILLER WHO WAS A GENTILE, [THE WHEAT WHEN GROUND BECOMES] DEMAI.²¹ IF A MAN LEFT HIS FRUIT IN THE KEEPING OF A CUTHEAN OR OF AN 'AM HA-AREZ, [IT CONTINUES WHEN RETURNED] IN ITS FORMER CONDITION IN RESPECT OF TITHES AND THE LAW OF SEVENTH YEAR PRODUCE. [BUT IF HE LEFT IT] WITH A GENTILE,²² [IT BECOMES] LIKE THE FRUIT OF THE GENTILE.²³ R. SIMEON SAYS: [IT BECOMES] DEMAI.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN GAVE [PRODUCE] TO THE HOSTESS OF AN INN [TO PREPARE IT FOR FOOD], HE MUST TITHE WHAT HE GIVES TO HER²⁵ AND WHAT HE TAKES BACK FROM HER,²⁶ BECAUSE SHE MAY BE SUSPECTED OF CHANGING IT. R. JOSE SAID: WE ARE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR IMPOSTORS.²⁷ NAY, HE NEED TITHE ONLY WHAT HE TAKES BACK FROM HER.

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN GAVE [PRODUCE] TO HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW [TO PREPARE IT FOR FOOD], HE MUST TITHE WHAT HE GIVES TO HER²⁵ AND WHAT HE TAKES BACK FROM HER, BECAUSE SHE IS SUSPECTED OF CHANGING ANY [FOOD] WHICH IS LIABLE TO BE SPOILT. R. JUDAH SAID: [SHE MIGHT HAVE TO DO IT BECAUSE] SHE DESIRES THE WELFARE OF HER DAUGHTER AND IS BASHFUL OF HER SON-IN-LAW.²⁸ R. JUDAH AGREES THAT IF A MAN GAVE TO HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW SEVENTH YEAR PRODUCE,²⁹ SHE IS NOT SUSPECTED OF CHANGING IT³⁰ AND GIVING HER DAUGHTER TO EAT OF SEVENTH YEAR PRODUCE.

(1) Even if they are associates; but they must be told that the food is demai.

(2) Who are Israelites. The Hebrew word אֲכֻמָּיָא (from the Greek ) may also mean 'passing guests'.

(3) Who were poor, though he was bound to provide their food during their working hours; cf. infra VII, 3, n. 2.

(4) Telling them that the produce is demai.

(5) Hebrew מֵתוּקָן; i.e., that has been duly tithed; cf. Introduction p. 49.

(6) I.e., without inquiring from the donors whether the produce they give has been tithed.

(7) I.e., tithe it.

(8) To prevent their being eaten untithed by an 'am ha-arez who may happen to pick them up.

(9) Which are sold at a fixed price per bundle.

(10) And paying the dealer the cost of the tithe.

(11) Since they are sold at a fixed price per bundle, the mere act of picking them up is sufficient to make him the owner of the vegetables, and to render him responsible for tithing them.

(12) Without having decided to buy them.

(13) I.e., he had not performed the required Meshikah, v. Glos.

(14) Without intending to take possession of them.

(15) Such as bread by shopkeepers, or produce in a small quantity; cf. supra II, 5.

(16) Even if his friend is an associate.

(17) Even in a small quantity.

(18) Which had been duly tithed.

- (19) A man from Cutha, a Samaritan; cf. II Kings XVII, 24.
- (20) The Cuthean and the 'am ha-arez are not suspected of having changed the tithed wheat for untithed wheat, or for wheat of Seventh Year produce in which the laws regulating the produce of the Sabbatical Year had not been observed; cf. Lev. XXV, 4 — 7 and Tractate Shebi'ith.
- (21) The Gentile may have exchanged the wheat for wheat brought to him by another Israelite, an 'am ha-arez which is demai.
- (22) Which is exempt from tithing.
- (23) Unlike the case of the miller, it is not usual for people to deposit fruit with another person.
- (24) The Gentile may still have exchanged it for the fruit of an Israelite 'am ha-arez, who happened to deposit some with him.
- (25) So that if she cheats him and eats it herself, she may not eat it untithed.
- (26) This may not be the same produce he had given her.
- (27) To guard them against eating untithed produce.
- (28) She has a high respect for him. For these reasons she may be suspected of having exchanged the produce he had given her for produce of a better quality.
- (29) In which the laws of Seventh Year produce had been observed, and was therefore permitted to be eaten.
- (30) For Seventh Year produce in which the special laws had not been observed. She would not wish to cause her daughter to commit the sin of eating prohibited Seventh Year produce.

Mishna - Mas. Demai Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN BOUGHT FRUIT FROM ONE WHO WAS NOT TRUSTWORTHY IN RESPECT OF TITHES, AND HE FORGOT TO TITHE IT,¹ HE MAY EAT OF IT AT THE VENDOR'S WORD IF HE ASKED HIM ON THE SABBATH.² BUT AT THE NIGHTFALL OF THE SABBATH DAY, HE MAY NOT EAT OF IT³ UNLESS HE HAD FIRST TITHED IT. IF HE COULD NOT FIND THE VENDOR, BUT ANOTHER PERSON WHO WAS NOT TRUSTWORTHY IN RESPECT OF TITHES DECLARED TO HIM THAT IT HAD BEEN TITHED, HE MAY EAT OF IT AT HIS WORD.⁴ BUT AT THE NIGHTFALL OF THE SABBATH DAY, HE MAY NOT EAT OF IT UNLESS HE HAD FIRST TITHED IT. IF TERUMAH OF THE TITHE OF DEMAI⁵ HAD BECOME MIXED UP AGAIN [WITH THE FRUIT] FROM WHICH IT HAD BEEN TAKEN, R. SIMEON OF SHEZUR SAYS: EVEN ON A WEEK-DAY HE MAY ASK THE VENDOR AND EAT AT HIS WORD.⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN IMPOSED A VOW⁷ UPON HIS FRIEND TO EAT WITH HIM, AND THE FRIEND DOES NOT TRUST HIM IN RESPECT OF TITHES, HE MAY EAT WITH HIM⁸ ON THE FIRST SABBATH⁹ THOUGH HE DOES NOT TRUST HIM IN RESPECT OF TITHES, PROVIDED THAT THE MAN HAD DECLARED TO HIM THAT THE FOOD HAD BEEN TITHED. BUT ON THE SECOND SABBATH, THOUGH THE MAN HAD BOUND HIMSELF BY A VOW NOT TO ENJOY ANY BENEFIT FROM HIM,¹⁰ HE MAY NOT EAT WITH THE MAN EXCEPT HE HAD FIRST TITHED [THE FOOD].¹¹

MISHNAH 3. R. ELIEZER SAYS: A MAN NEED NOT DESIGNATE¹² THE POORMAN'S¹³ TITHE OF DEMAI. BUT THE SAGES SAY: HE MUST DESIGNATE IT, BUT HE NEED NOT SET IT APART.¹⁴

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN HAD DESIGNATED¹⁵ THE TERUMAH OF THE TITHE OF DEMAI,¹⁶ OR THE POORMAN'S TITHE OF PRODUCE THAT HAD CERTAINLY NOT BEEN TITHED,¹⁷ HE MAY NOT TAKE THEM ON THE SABBATH.¹⁸ BUT IF THE PRIEST AND THE POOR MAN WERE WONT TO EAT WITH HIM, THEY MAY COME AND EAT OF THEM PROVIDED THAT HE MAKES THE MATTER KNOWN TO THEM.¹⁹

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN SAID TO ONE WHO WAS NOT TRUSTWORTHY IN RESPECT OF TITHES: 'BUY [PRODUCE] FOR ME FROM ONE WHO IS TRUSTWORTHY OR FROM ONE WHO GIVES TITHES', [THE MESSENGER] MAY NOT BE TRUSTED.²⁰ BUT IF THE MAN SAID: BUY IT FOR ME FROM SO-AND-SO', HE IS TO BE TRUSTED.²¹ IF HE WENT TO BUY IT FROM HIM [AND THEN CAME BACK] AND SAID: 'I DID NOT FIND HIM, SO I BOUGHT FOR YOU FROM ANOTHER MAN WHO IS TRUSTWORTHY', HE MAY NOT BE TRUSTED.

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN ENTERED A CITY WHERE HE KNEW NO ONE, AND SAID: 'WHO IS HERE TRUSTWORTHY? WHO GIVES TITHES HERE?', AND SOME ONE REPLIED: 'I', HE MAY NOT BE TRUSTED. BUT IF HE REPLIED: 'SO-AND-SO IS TRUSTWORTHY', HE MAY BE BELIEVED.²² IF THE MAN WENT TO BUY FROM SO-AND-SO, AND HE ASKED HIM: 'WHO SELLS HERE OLD PRODUCE?'²³ AND SO-AND-SO REPLIED: 'HE WHO HAD SENT YOU TO ME', THOUGH THEY APPEAR AS REPAYING EACH OTHER'S FAVOUR, THEY MAY YET BE TRUSTED.²⁴

MISHNAH 7. IF ASS-DRIVERS²⁵ ENTERED A CITY AND ONE OF THEM DECLARED: 'MY PRODUCE IS NEW BUT MY FRIEND'S PRODUCE IS OLD', OR: 'MY PRODUCE HAS NOT BEEN SET RIGHT BUT MY FRIEND'S PRODUCE HAS BEEN SET RIGHT',²⁶ THEY MAY NOT BE TRUSTED.²⁷ R. JUDAH SAYS: THEY MAY BE TRUSTED.²⁸

(1) Before the Sabbath. Tithing is not permitted on the Sabbath; cf. supra I, 4, n. 12.

(2) It may be presumed that the vendor, though an 'am ha-arez, will not lie on the Sabbath day.

(3) Although he had already eaten of it on the Sabbath, because he is now able to tithe it.

(4) Even another person may be believed on the Sabbath day.

(5) Lit., 'which had returned to its place'; supra II, 4, n. 10. The quantity of this terumah is one tenth of the tithe, or a hundredth part of the whole, and this had become mixed up with the remaining ninety-nine parts, which are not sufficient to neutralize the sanctity of the terumah; cf. I, 3, n. 2.

(6) If the vendor declares that the produce had been tithed from the first, and that the tithing by the buyer was unnecessary, he is believed, as otherwise the whole mixture would be rendered forbidden as terumah, and the buyer would suffer a great loss; v. Rashi. Men. 30b.

(7) He said: 'May you be forbidden to derive any benefit from me if you do not eat with me'; cf. Ned. III, 1; IV. The man was celebrating his marriage to a virgin.

(8) In order to prevent ill-feeling.

(9) The Hebrew word 'Sabbath' may also mean 'week'.

(10) A vow by which he binds his own person is more conducive to ill-feeling than a vow by which he binds his friend.

(11) The rule that an 'am ha-arez may be believed on the Sabbath (supra I, n. 2) applies only to the statement of a vendor.

(12) I.e., declare that the tithe shall be in a certain part of the produce, as infra V, 1, 2; VII; cf. Ter. III, 5, and Introduction p. 51. R. Eliezer holds that the 'am ha-arez does set apart the Poorman's Tithe, but keeps it for his own use.

(13) V. Introduction p. 50.

(14) He need not give it to the poor, because the burden of proof that the demai produce had not been tithed by the 'am ha-arez who was its original owner, lies on the poor; cf. Introduction p. 51.

(15) Before the Sabbath.

(16) In the case of produce that was certainly untithed, the owner himself cannot separate the Terumah of the Tithe. This must be done by the Levite who receives the tithe.

(17) In the case of demai produce there is no need to give away the Poorman's Tithe, as stated above n. 7.

(18) In order to deliver them respectively to the priest and to the poor. This delivery is forbidden on the Sabbath or on the Festival; cf. Bez. 12b.

(19) That they may know that they are eating their own produce. It is forbidden to discharge one's personal obligations to guests by treating them with tithes.

(20) When he says that he had bought it from a trustworthy person because the vendor considered trustworthy by the messenger may not really be so.

- (21) When he says that he bought it from the person named by the sender.
- (22) The rule that a person who is not trustworthy himself may not testify about the trustworthiness of another person is relaxed in this case, in view of the difficulty the enquirer may have in obtaining food in a strange place from a trustworthy person.
- (23) Of last year's harvest. The new produce of the current year may not be eaten before the 'Omer, or Sheaf-offering, has been offered on the altar on the first day of the Passover; cf. Lev. XXIII, 10 — 14; Men. X, 5.
- (24) Most 'amme ha-arez used to observe the rules respecting the consumption of new produce.
- (25) 'Who hawk their produce for sale in different localities.
- (26) Duly tithed; III, 1, n. 5.
- (27) This testimony may be part of a mutual arrangement to assist one another in the sale of their produce in different localities.
- (28) Since most 'amme ha-arez do tithe, the strict rule of demai may be relaxed in this case, in order to attract produce dealers to the city and thereby promote its economic prosperity.

Mishna - Mas. Demai Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN¹ BOUGHT BREAD FROM A BAKER² HOW SHOULD HE TITHE? HE SHOULD TAKE³ SUFFICIENT FOR THE TERUMAH OF THE TITHE⁴ AND FOR HALLAH⁵ AND SAY: A HUNDREDTH PART OF WHAT IS HERE⁶ SHALL BE TITHE ON THIS SIDE, AND WHAT IS NEAREST TO IT SHALL BE THE REST OF THE TITHE;⁷ THAT WHICH I MADE TITHE⁸ SHALL BECOME THE TERUMAH OF THE TITHE FOR THE WHOLE;⁹ THE REMAINDER¹⁰ SHALL BE HALLAH, AND WHAT IS TO THE NORTH OR TO THE SOUTH OF IT¹¹ SHALL BE SECOND TITHE WHICH SHALL BE EXCHANGED¹² FOR MONEY.¹³

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN WISHED TO SET APART¹⁴ TERUMAH¹⁵ AND THE TERUMAH OF THE TITHE BOTH TOGETHER, HE SHOULD TAKE THREE HUNDREDTHS¹⁶ AND SAY: ONE HUNDREDTH PART OF WHAT IS HERE SHALL BE COMMON PRODUCE¹⁷ ON THIS SIDE, AND THE REST¹⁸ SHALL BE TERUMAH FOR THE WHOLE; THE HUNDREDTH PART¹⁹ COMMON PRODUCE WHICH IS HERE SHALL BE TITHE ON THIS SIDE,²⁰ AND WHAT IS NEAREST TO IT SHALL BE THE REST OF THE TITHE;²¹ THAT WHICH I MADE TITHE²² SHALL BECOME THE TERUMAH OF TITHE FOR THE WHOLE;²³ THE REMAINDER SHALL BE HALLAH,²⁴ AND WHAT IS TO THE NORTH OR TO THE SOUTH OF IT SHALL BE SECOND TITHE WHICH SHALL BE EXCHANGED FOR MONEY.

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN BOUGHT FROM A BAKER, HE MAY GIVE TITHE FROM HOT²⁵ BREAD FOR COLD²⁶ OR FROM COLD BREAD FOR HOT BREAD, EVEN WHEN THEY ARE OF VARIOUS MOULDS; THUS R. MEIR. R. JUDAH PROHIBITS IT, BECAUSE IT MAY BE ASSUMED THAT YESTERDAY'S WHEAT WAS BOUGHT FROM ONE MAN²⁷ AND TO-DAY'S WHEAT FROM ANOTHER MAN.²⁸ R. SIMEON PROHIBITS IT IN THE CASE OF TERUMAH OF THE TITHE, BUT PERMITS IT IN THE CASE OF HALLAH.²⁹

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN BOUGHT FROM A BREAD DEALER HE MUST TITHE EVERY MOULD [SEPARATELY;]³⁰ THUS R. MEIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MAY GIVE TITHES FROM ONE MOULD FOR ALL THE OTHERS.³¹ BUT R. JUDAH AGREES THAT IF A MAN BOUGHT FROM A MONOPOLIST³² HE MUST TITHE EVERY MOULD [SEPARATELY].

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN BOUGHT FROM A POOR MAN³³ (LIKEWISE IF A POOR MAN WAS GIVEN SLICES OF BREAD OR PIECES OF FIG-CAKE) HE MUST TITHE EVERY PIECE;³⁴ BUT IN THE CASE OF DATES AND DRIED FIGS HE MAY MIX THEM TOGETHER AND TAKE [THE TITHES FROM THE MIXTURE]. R. JUDAH SAID: HE MAY DO SO ONLY WHEN THE POOR MAN WAS GIVEN A LARGE QUANTITY; BUT WHEN THE GIFT WAS SMALL [IN QUANTITY] HE MUST TITHE EACH KIND SEPARATELY.

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN BOUGHT FROM A WHOLESALE MERCHANT³⁵ ONCE AND THEN AGAIN, HE MAY NOT GIVE TITHES FROM THE ONE [PURCHASE] FOR THE OTHER, EVEN WHEN BOTH CAME FROM THE SAME HAMPER AND BOTH ARE OF THE SAME KIND. BUT THE WHOLESALE MERCHANT MAY BE TRUSTED IF HE SAYS THAT BOTH CAME FROM ONE MAN.

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN BOUGHT FROM A LANDOWNER³⁶ ONCE AND THEN AGAIN, HE MAY GIVE TITHES FROM THE ONE [PURCHASE] FOR THE OTHER,³⁷ EVEN WHEN THEY CAME FROM TWO BASKETS AND EVEN FROM TWO TOWNS. IF A LANDOWNER SOLD VEGETABLES IN THE MARKET, [HE THAT BOUGHT FROM HIM] MAY GIVE TITHES FROM ONE [LOT OF VEGETABLES] FOR ALL [THE OTHER LOTS] IF THEY WERE [ALL] BROUGHT TO THE LANDOWNER FROM HIS OWN GARDENS; BUT [IF THEY WERE BROUGHT] FROM OTHER GARDENS, THE PURCHASER MUST TITHE EACH LOT SEPARATELY.

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN BOUGHT UNTITHED PRODUCE³⁸ FROM TWO PLACES HE MAY GIVE TITHES FROM ONE LOT FOR THE OTHER. ALTHOUGH THEY HAVE PERMITTED [THIS, NEVERTHELESS] ONE MAY NOT SELL UNTITHED PRODUCE³⁹ EXCEPT IN THE CASE OF A NECESSITY.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 9. TITHES MAY BE GIVEN FROM PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM AN ISRAELITE FOR PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM A GENTILE,⁴¹ FROM PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM A GENTILE FOR PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM AN ISRAELITE, FROM PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM AN ISRAELITE FOR PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM CUTHEANS,⁴² AND FROM PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM CUTHEANS FOR PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM [OTHER] CUTHEANS. R. ELIEZER PROHIBITS [THE TITHING] FROM PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM CUTHEANS FOR PRODUCE [BOUGHT] FROM [OTHER] CUTHEANS.⁴³

MISHNAH 10. A PERFORATED POT⁴⁴ IS CONSIDERED AS THE SOIL⁴⁵ [ITSELF]. IF A MAN GAVE TERUMAH FROM [PRODUCE GROWN IN] THE SOIL FOR [PRODUCE GROWN IN] A PERFORATED POT, OR FROM [PRODUCE GROWN IN] A PERFORATED POT FOR [PRODUCE GROWN IN] THE SOIL, THE TERUMAH IS VALID. [IF HE GAVE TERUMAH] FROM [PRODUCE GROWN IN] A POT THAT WAS NOT PERFORATED FOR [PRODUCE GROWN IN] A POT THAT WAS PERFORATED, [IT BECOMES] TERUMAH,⁴⁶ BUT HE MUST GIVE TERUMAH OVER AGAIN. [IF HE GAVE TERUMAH] FROM [PRODUCE GROWN IN] A PERFORATED POT FOR [PRODUCE GROWN IN] A POT WHICH WAS NOT PERFORATED, [IT BECOMES] TERUMAH, BUT MAY NOT BE EATEN⁴⁷ EXCEPT HE FIRST GAVE AGAIN TERUMAH AND TITHES FOR IT.

MISHNAH 11. IF A MAN GAVE TERUMAH FROM [PRODUCE OF] DEMAI FOR [OTHER PRODUCE OF] DEMAI, OR FROM [PRODUCE OF] DEMAI FOR [PRODUCE] WHICH WAS CERTAINLY UNTITHED, [THIS BECOMES] TERUMAH, BUT HE MUST GIVE TERUMAH OVER AGAIN.⁴⁸ [IF HE GAVE TERUMAH] FROM [PRODUCE] WHICH WAS CERTAINLY UNTITHED FOR [PRODUCE OF] DEMAI, [THIS BECOMES] TERUMAH, BUT IT MAY NOT BE EATEN⁴⁷ EXCEPT HE FIRST GAVE AGAIN TERUMAH AND TITHES FOR IT.

(1) Who is an associate.

(2) Who is an 'am ha-arez and who does not observe the rule laid down in II, 4 or one who sells in large quantities and is exempt from tithing demai produce; II, 4.

(3) By word of mouth, i.e., by designating them and without actually cutting off from the bread the various portions of the tithes.

- (4) One hundredth part of the whole; IV, 1, n. 5.
- (5) Cf. I, 3, n. 12. The legal quantity of Hallah for a private person is one twenty-fourth part of the whole, and one forty-eighth part for a baker; cf. Hal. II, 7.
- (6) Of the bread.
- (7) I.e., 9/100 of the whole, making together with the first hundredth, one tenth of the whole for First (Levitical) Tithe.
- (8) I.e., the first hundredth.
- (9) Of the 10/100, or the First Tithe.
- (10) I.e., 1/24 of the 9/10 of the loaf.
- (11) Of the Terumah of the Tithes.
- (12) Lit., 'rendered common'; cf. I, 2, n. 7.
- (13) To enable it to be eaten outside Jerusalem. He need not add the Fifth; I, 2, n. 10. This rather complicated method is enjoined because the more sacred portion must be set apart before the less sacred, (cf. Ter. III, 6 — 7). Hence when a person who is not a Levite wishes to set apart not only First Tithe but also the Terumah of the Tithe (cf. IV, 4, n. 9) he must set apart the Terumah of the Tithe (viz., one hundredth part) before the tithe, as more sacred than the tithe. But this hundredth part cannot become Terumah of the Tithe before it had first become tithe, therefore the man must set apart the tithe in two portions; first one tenth of the tithe (one hundredth of the whole), which later becomes Terumah of the Tithe, and then the remaining nine tenths of the tithe (nine hundredths of the whole). Hallah is indeed more sacred than the tithe (since Hallah belongs to the priest), but nevertheless it may be set apart after the tithe, from the remaining nine tenths of the whole, because Hallah need not be given from the tithe. Finally, Second Tithe must be set apart only after the First Tithe; cf. I, 4, n. 1.
- (14) From produce which had certainly not been tithed.
- (15) The Priest's heave-offering; cf. I, 3, n. 1.
- (16) Lit., 'one part in thirty-three and a third'.
- (17) Provisionally, to be made later into First Tithe, and finally into Terumah of the Tithe.
- (18) Of the three hundredths, i.e., two hundredths, or one fiftieth of the whole, which is the usual quantity of the terumah; cf. Introd. p. 50. Terumah, as the most sacred of all portions, must be set apart first, to be followed by Terumah of the Tithe, as explained in n. 12, p. 67.
- (19) I.e., the first hundredth of the three hundredths.
- (20) Later to become Terumah of the Tithe, as in the last Mishnah.
- (21) I.e., nine tenths of the tithe, or about nine hundredths of the whole, making together with the one hundredth, which will become Terumah of the Tithe, one tenth of the whole.
- (22) I.e., the first hundredth.
- (23) Of the ten hundredths.
- (24) I.e., one twenty-fourth of the remainder of the produce after Terumah and the Tithe with its terumah have been taken off. In this way the more sacred portions, terumah and Terumah of the Tithe are separated first.
- (25) I.e., freshly baked.
- (26) Stale.
- (27) Who gave tithes.
- (28) Who did not give tithes. The buyer may thus be tithing from tithed produce for untithed produce, or from produce which is exempt for produce which is liable, but this is forbidden; cf. Ter. I, 5; B.M. 56a.
- (29) Because produce does not become liable to Hallah, except when turned into dough (cf. Hal. II, 5); so that even if the wheat was bought from two different persons, it became liable to Hallah only after it had come into the possession of the baker.
- (30) The dealer may have bought the bread in the different moulds from different people. Therefore if he tithed from one mould for another, he may be tithing from produce which is exempt for produce which is liable.
- (31) The dealer usually buys his bread from one baker.
- (32) A dealer who has the sole right of selling bread to the public. He usually buys from various bakers.
- (33) Who begs from door to door.
- (34) To prevent tithing from what is exempt for what is liable.
- (35) Who buys from different people.
- (36) Lit., 'a householder', who sells the produce of his own fields.
- (37) Both purchases are either tithed or untithed.

- (38) Lit., 'tebel,' but not quite in its stricter sense of produce from which neither terumah nor tithes have been separated; cf. Introd. p. 50.
- (39) Even to an associate.
- (40) As when some tithed produce was mixed up with tebel which can only be set right by finding for it Terumah and Tithes from another similar lot; cf. Men. 31a. But if the owner has not got other similar produce, he must sell the mixture to one who has.
- (41) According to this halachah, produce grown by a Gentile in the soil of the Land of Israel is liable to the duty of tithes; cf. B.M. 101a.
- (42) Cf. III, 4, n. 8. Samaritans usually tithe the produce they keep for their own use, but not the produce they keep for sale.
- (43) One Cuthean may have sold tithed produce which he had originally intended for his own use, whilst the other Cuthean sold untithed produce. In tithing from one for the other, one may be tithing the exempt for the liable.
- (44) A pot with holes in the bottom, filled with soil, and used for growing plants.
- (45) Produce grown in it is liable to the laws of Terumah and Tithes.
- (46) In name, and therefore can be eaten only by a priest; but it is not valid to discharge the produce of the other pot from the duty of terumah.
- (47) Even by priests, because it is still tebel.
- (48) The terumah he gave from demai is not valid to discharge the other produce from the duty of terumah, because the demai from which the terumah was taken may have been set right originally by its former owner, and the present owner may thus be giving terumah from what is exempt for what is liable.

Mishna - Mas. Demai Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN RENTED A FIELD FROM AN ISRAELITE, OR FROM A GENTILE, OR FROM A CUTHEAN [FOR A SHARE IN THE PRODUCE].¹ HE MAY SET THE [LANDLORD'S] SHARE BEFORE HIM [UNTITHED].² IF A MAN HIRED A FIELD FROM AN ISRAELITE [FOR A FIXED RENTAL OUT OF THE PRODUCE],³ HE MUST FIRST GIVE TERUMAH [FROM THE RENTAL]⁴ AND THEN GIVE IT TO THE LANDLORD.⁵ R. JUDAH SAID: THIS APPLIES ONLY WHEN HE PAYS HIM [THE RENTAL WITH PRODUCE] OF THE SAME FIELD AND OF THE SAME KIND; BUT WHEN HE PAYS HIM WITH THE PRODUCE OF ANOTHER FIELD OR OF ANOTHER KIND, HE MUST [ALSO] TITHE [THE RENTAL FIRST] AND THEN GIVE IT TO HIM.⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN HIRED A FIELD FROM A GENTILE [FOR A FIXED RENTAL OUT OF THE PRODUCE], HE MUST [FIRST] TITHE [THE RENTAL] AND THEN GIVE IT TO HIM.⁷ R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO IF A MAN RENTED FROM A GENTILE A FIELD WHICH HAD FORMERLY BELONGED TO HIS FATHERS⁸ [FOR A SHARE IN THE PRODUCE], HE MUST FIRST TITHE THE RENTAL⁹ AND THEN GIVE IT TO HIM.

MISHNAH 3. IF A PRIEST OR A LEVITE RENTED A FIELD FROM AN ISRAELITE [FOR A SHARE IN THE PRODUCE], THE TENANTS SHARE WITH THE LANDLORD THE TERUMAH¹⁰ JUST AS THEY SHARE THE COMMON PRODUCE. R. ELIEZER SAYS: ALSO THE TITHES¹¹ BELONG TO THE TENANTS, FOR THEY ENTERED THE FIELD WITH THIS EXPECTATION.

MISHNAH 4. IF AN ISRAELITE RENTED A FIELD FROM A PRIEST OR FROM A LEVITE [FOR A SHARE IN THE PRODUCE.] THE TITHES BELONG TO THE LANDLORD.¹² R. ISHMAEL SAYS: IF AN INHABITANT OF THE PROVINCES RENTED A FIELD FROM AN INHABITANT OF JERUSALEM, THE SECOND TITHE BELONGS TO THE INHABITANT OF JERUSALEM.¹³ BUT THE SAGES SAY: THE INHABITANT OF THE PROVINCES IS ABLE TO GO UP HIMSELF AND EAT THE SECOND TITHE IN JERUSALEM.

MISHNAH 5. IF [AN ISRAELITE] RENTED OLIVE TREES [FROM A PRIEST OR A LEVITE] FOR THE OIL. HE AND THE LANDLORD SHARE THE TERUMAH¹⁴ JUST AS THEY SHARE THE COMMON PRODUCE. R. JUDAH SAYS: IF AN ISRAELITE RENTED OLIVE TREES FROM A PRIEST OR A LEVITE FOR THE OIL FOR A SHARE OF HALF THE PROFIT, THE TITHES BELONG TO THE LANDLORD.¹⁵

MISHNAH 6. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: A MAN MAY ONLY SELL HIS OLIVES TO AN ASSOCIATE.¹⁶ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE MAY SELL THEM ALSO TO A MAN WHO ONLY GIVES TITHES.¹⁷ HOWBEIT, THE PIOUS AMONG BETH HILLEL USED TO ACT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI.

MISHNAH 7. IF TWO MEN GATHERED [THE FRUIT OF] THEIR VINEYARDS INTO ONE VAT,¹⁸ [OF WHOM] ONE GIVES TITHES AND THE OTHER DOES NOT GIVE TITHES, HE WHO GIVES TITHES MAY TITHE HIS OWN SHARE¹⁹ AND [TAKE] HIS SHARE WHEREVER IT MAY BE.

MISHNAH 8. IF TWO MEN RENTED A FIELD [FOR A SHARE IN THE PRODUCE], OR IF THEY INHERITED [THE FIELD] OR BECAME PARTNERS IN IT, THE ONE [WHO GIVES TITHES] MAY SAY TO THE OTHER [WHO DOES NOT GIVE TITHES]: ‘YOU TAKE THE WHEAT WHICH IS IN THIS PLACE AND I WILL TAKE THE WHEAT WHICH IS IN THAT PLACE’, OR: ‘YOU TAKE THE WINE WHICH IS IN THIS PLACE AND I WILL TAKE THE WINE WHICH IS IN THAT PLACE’,²⁰ BUT HE MAY NOT SAY TO HIM: ‘YOU TAKE THE WHEAT AND I WILL TAKE THE BARLEY’, OR: ‘YOU TAKE THE WINE AND I WILL TAKE THE OIL.’²¹

MISHNAH 9. IF AN ASSOCIATE AND AN ‘AM HA-AREZ INHERITED [THE PROPERTY OF] THEIR FATHER WHO WAS AN ‘AM HA-AREZ, THE ASSOCIATE MAY SAY TO HIS BROTHER: ‘YOU TAKE THE WHEAT WHICH IS IN THIS PLACE AND I WILL TAKE THE WHEAT WHICH IS IN THAT PLACE’, OR: ‘YOU TAKE THE WINE WHICH IS IN THIS PLACE AND I WILL TAKE THE WINE WHICH IS IN THAT PLACE’; BUT HE MAY NOT²² SAY TO HIM: ‘YOU TAKE THE WHEAT AND I WILL TAKE THE BARLEY,’ OR: ‘YOU TAKE THE MOIST PRODUCE AND I WILL TAKE THE DRY²³ PRODUCE’.

MISHNAH 10. IF A PROSELYTE AND A GENTILE INHERITED [THE PROPERTY OF] THEIR FATHER WHO WAS A GENTILE, THE PROSELYTE MAY SAY TO HIS BROTHER:²⁴ ‘YOU TAKE THE IDOLS²⁵ AND I WILL TAKE THE MONEY’, OR: ‘YOU TAKE THE WINE²⁵ AND I WILL TAKE THE FRUIT’: BUT IF ANY [PART OF THE INHERITANCE] HAD ALREADY COME INTO THE POSSESSION OF THE PROSELYTE, HE IS FORBIDDEN²⁶ [TO SAY SO].

MISHNAH 11. IF A MAN SOLD FRUIT IN SYRIA²⁷ AND DECLARED THAT IT WAS GROWN IN THE LAND OF ISRAEL, THE PURCHASER IS BOUND TO TITHE IT.²⁸ [BUT IF HE ADDED THAT] IT HAD ALREADY BEEN TITHED, HE MAY BE TRUSTED, ‘BECAUSE THE EVIDENCE²⁹ WHICH MADE IT UNLAWFUL IS THE SAME EVIDENCE WHICH MADE IT LAWFUL’. [IF HE SAID: ‘THE FRUIT IS] FROM MY OWN FIELD’,³⁰ THE PURCHASER IS BOUND TO TITHE IT. [BUT IF HE ADDED:] ‘IT HAS ALREADY BEEN TITHED’, HE MAY BE TRUSTED, ‘BECAUSE THE EVIDENCE WHICH MADE IT UNLAWFUL IS THE SAME EVIDENCE WHICH MADE IT LAWFUL’. IF IT WAS KNOWN THAT HE HAD ANOTHER FIELD IN SYRIA, THE PURCHASER IS BOUND³¹ TO TITHE IT.

MISHNAH 12. IF AN ‘AM HA-AREZ SAID TO AN ASSOCIATE:³² ‘BUY FOR ME A BUNDLE OF VEGETABLES’, OR: ‘BUY FOR ME A LOAF OF BREAD’, THE ASSOCIATE

MAY BUY IT WITHOUT INQUIRING [WHETHER IT HAD BEEN TITHED], AND HE IS ABSOLVED³³ [FROM TITHING IT]. BUT IF THE ASSOCIATE SAID: 'THIS ONE I BUY FOR MYSELF AND THIS ONE FOR MY FRIEND', AND THE TWO PURCHASES WERE MIXED UP, HE IS BOUND TO TITHE³⁴ [BOTH PURCHASES], EVEN IF THE PURCHASE [FOR THE 'AM HA-AREZ] IS A HUNDRED [TIMES MORE THAN HIS OWN].

(1) מקבֵּל viz., באריסות; cf. Mishnah 8.

(2) But he must tell the landlord that his share is untithed.

(3) חיכר.

(4) Because the produce becomes liable to terumah while still in the threshing-floor; but not tithes, which the landlord must give himself.

(5) After deducting the amount of the terumah from the rental.

(6) In this case he is like one paying a debt with his own produce, and therefore he is bound to tithe the produce before it leaves his possession.

(7) This rule is intended to make it unprofitable for a Jew to rent the field from the Gentile, originally confiscated from another Jew; and this may induce the Gentile to sell his field to the Jew rather than leave it uncultivated.

(8) And which the Gentile had seized by violence.

(9) In order to lead to the sale of the field by the Gentile; cf. n. 7.

(10) Including also the tithe. The landlord may give them to any other priest or Levite he likes.

(11) Including the terumah.

(12) It must be presumed that when the landlord leased his field he reserved the tithe for himself.

(13) The landlord must have reserved the Second Tithe for himself, since it can only be consumed in Jerusalem.

(14) In the case of trees the terumah, and also the tithe, belong to both landlord and tenant according to their respective shares.

(15) And also the terumah. R. Judah holds that trees must be treated in the same way as the field in Mishnah 4.

(16) An 'am ha-arez may cause them to be defiled when they are pressed.

(17) And who does not observe the laws of purity.

(18) To press it together; and they pressed out the wine together.

(19) Which is now mixed up with the other's share. According to the Palestinian Gemara he must also give tithe out of his own share for his fellow's share, as for demai produce.

(20) So that the one who gives tithes need only tithe his own share.

(21) For this would be like exchanging or selling one kind of produce for another, in which case the one who gives tithes would have to tithe also the produce he assigns to his partner who does not give tithes.

(22) For the reason given in the last note.

(23) Which is not susceptible to uncleanness; cf. II, 3, n. 1.

(24) The right of a proselyte to inherit his father's property is based only on Rabbinic law. Therefore the strict law laid down in the case of an associate and an 'am ha-arez inheriting from their father is relaxed in the case of the proselyte, in order not to cause him a loss of property which might lead him to relapse back into heathenism; cf. Kid. 17b; 'A. Z. 64a.

(25) It is prohibited to derive any benefit from idols, and also from heathen wine which may have been used for libation to the idols; cf. 'A. Z. III, 1; II, 3.

(26) It has become his property, therefore such an exchange would involve deriving a benefit from the idols and their wine.

(27) Syria, which was conquered by David (II Sam. VIII, 10) and not by the whole nation under Joshua, was not considered a heathen country, but it did not possess the sanctity of the Land of Israel; cf. 'A. Z. 21a. To the produce sold in Syria the laws of demai did not apply, as most of the produce sold there came from outside Palestine.

(28) As demai.

(29) Lit., 'the mouth'. If you believe his statement that the produce came from the Land of Israel, which renders the produce liable to tithes as demai, you must also believe his statement that the produce had already been tithed; cf. 'Ed. II, 6. (Sonc. ed. p. 19, n. 4).

(30) Situated in Syria.

(31) The produce would be liable to tithes even without the vendor's admission, so the above argument does not apply.

(32) Who was going to the market to buy for himself.

(33) Because from the first the particular purchase became the property of the 'am ha-arez.

(34) Because what he gives to the 'am ha-arez may have been his own purchase, which he is now exchanging for the purchase of the 'am ha-arez; cf. supra 8, n. 4.

Mishna - Mas. Demai Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN INVITED¹ HIS FRIEND TO EAT WITH HIM ON THE SABBATH, AND [HIS FRIEND] DOES NOT TRUST HIM IN RESPECT OF TITHES, [THE FRIEND] MAY SAY ON THE EVE² OF THE SABBATH: WHAT³ I SHALL SET APART TO-MORROW⁴ SHALL BE TITHE, AND WHAT IS NEAREST TO IT SHALL BE THE REST OF THE TITHE;⁵ THAT WHICH I MADE TITHE SHALL BECOME THE TERUMAH OF THE TITHE FOR THE WHOLE,⁶ AND WHAT IS TO THE NORTH OR TO THE SOUTH OF IT SHALL BE SECOND TITHE WHICH SHALL BE EXCHANGED FOR MONEY.

MISHNAH 2. WHEN THE CUP OF WINE⁷ HAS BEEN FILLED FOR HIM [ON THE SABBATH].⁸ HE MAY SAY: WHAT I SHALL LEAVE AT THE BOTTOM OF THE CUP SHALL BE TITHE, AND WHAT IS NEAREST TO IT SHALL BE THE REST OF THE TITHE; THAT WHICH I MADE TITHE SHALL BECOME THE TERUMAH OF TITHE FOR THE WHOLE, AND WHAT IS AT THE MOUTH⁹ OF THE CUP SHALL BE SECOND TITHE WHICH SHALL BE EXCHANGED FOR MONEY.¹⁰

MISHNAH 3. IF A WORKMAN¹¹ DOES NOT TRUST HIS EMPLOYER [IN RESPECT OF TITHES], HE MAY TAKE ONE DRIED FIG¹² AND SAY: THIS ONE¹³ AND THE NINE WHICH COME AFTER IT SHALL BECOME TITHE FOR THE NINETY WHICH I SHALL EAT; THIS ONE SHALL BECOME THE TERUMAH OF TITHE FOR THEM, AND THE LAST ONES SHALL BE SECOND TITHE WHICH SHALL BE EXCHANGED FOR MONEY; BUT HE MUST STINT HIMSELF OF ONE DRIED FIG.¹⁴ RABBAN SIMEON THE SON OF GAMALIEL SAYS: HE MAY NOT STINT HIMSELF, SINCE THEREBY HE MAY REDUCE HIS WORK FOR HIS EMPLOYER.¹⁵ R. JOSE SAYS: HE NEED NOT STINT HIMSELF, BECAUSE THIS IS A CONDITION [IMPOSED UPON THE EMPLOYER] BY THE COURT.¹⁶

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN BOUGHT WINE AMONG CUTHEANS,¹⁷ HE MAY SAY [ON THE SABBATH]:¹⁸ TWO LOGS¹⁹ WHICH I SHALL SET APART²⁰ SHALL BE TERUMAH, TEN LOGS TITHE, AND NINE LOGS²¹ SECOND TITHE; HE MAY THEN EXCHANGE [THE SECOND TITHE FOR MONEY]²² AND DRINK IT [THE WINE].

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN HAD FIGS OF TEBEL²³ IN HIS HOUSE WHEN HE WAS IN THE HOUSE OF STUDY OR IN THE FIELD,²⁴ HE MAY SAY: THE TWO FIGS²⁵ WHICH I SHALL SET APART SHALL BE TERUMAH, TEN FIGS SHALL BE FIRST TITHE, AND NINE FIGS SECOND TITHE. IF THE FIGS WERE DEMAI, HE MAY SAY: WHATEVER I SHALL SET APART TO-MORROW SHALL BE TITHE, AND WHAT IS NEAREST TO IT SHALL BE THE REST OF THE TITHE; THAT WHICH I MADE TITHE SHALL BECOME THE TERUMAH OF TITHE FOR IT, AND WHAT IS TO THE NORTH OF IT OR TO THE SOUTH OF IT SHALL BE SECOND TITHE, WHICH SHALL BE EXCHANGED FOR MONEY.

MISHNAH 6. IF HE HAD BEFORE HIM TWO BASKETS FULL OF PRODUCE OF TEBEL, AND HE SAID: LET THE TITHES OF THIS [BASKET] BE IN THAT [BASKET]. THE FIRST [BASKET] IS THEREBY TITHED;²⁶ [IF HE SAID:] LET THE TITHES OF THIS [BASKET] BE IN THAT [BASKET], AND THE TITHES OF THAT [BASKET] IN THIS [BASKET], THE FIRST [BASKET ALONE]²⁷ IS THEREBY TITHED; [IF HE SAID:] LET THE TITHES OF BOTH BE SO THAT THE TITHES OF EACH BASKET BE IN THE OTHER, HE HAS THEREBY DESIGNATED²⁸ [THE TITHES OF BOTH BASKETS].

MISHNAH 7. IF A HUNDRED [PARTS OF] TEBEL²⁹ [WERE MIXED WITH] A HUNDRED [PARTS OF] COMMON³⁰ PRODUCE, ONE MUST TAKE OUT A HUNDRED AND ONE³¹ [PARTS]. IF A HUNDRED [PARTS OF] TEBEL [WERE MIXED WITH] A HUNDRED [PARTS OF FIRST] TITHE,³² ONE MUST TAKE OUT A HUNDRED AND ONE³³ [PARTS]. IF A HUNDRED [PARTS OF] COMMON PRODUCE WHICH HAD BEEN SET RIGHT³⁴ [WERE MIXED WITH] A HUNDRED [PARTS OF] TITHE,³⁵ ONE MUST TAKE OUT A HUNDRED AND TEN³⁶ [PARTS]. IF A HUNDRED [PARTS OF] TEBEL [WERE MIXED WITH] NINETY [PARTS OF] TITHE,³⁷ OR NINETY [PARTS OF] TEBEL [WERE MIXED WITH] EIGHTY³⁸ [PARTS OF] TITHE, ONE LOSES NOTHING. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHENEVER THE TEBEL IS THE GREATER [PORTION OF THE MIXTURE] ONE LOSES NOTHING.³⁹

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN HAD TEN ROWS EACH CONTAINING TEN JARS OF WINE,⁴⁰ AND HE HAD SAID: ONE EXTERIOR ROW⁴¹ SHALL BE TITHE, AND IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH ROW⁴² [HE MEANT], HE MUST TAKE TWO JARS [EACH FROM THE ENDS OF] A DIAGONAL LINE.⁴³ [IF HE HAD SAID:] ONE HALF OF THE EXTERIOR ROW⁴⁴ SHALL BE TITHE, AND IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH HALF ROW [HE MEANT], HE MUST TAKE FOUR JARS FROM THE FOUR CORNERS.⁴⁵ [IF HE HAD SAID:] ONE ROW⁴⁶ SHALL BE TITHE,⁴⁷ AND IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH ROW [HE MEANT], HE MUST TAKE ONE [WHOLE] ROW IN A DIAGONAL LINE.⁴⁸ [IF HE HAD SAID:] HALF OF ONE ROW⁴⁹ SHALL BE TITHE, AND IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH HALF ROW [HE MEANT], HE MUST TAKE TWO ROWS IN A DIAGONAL LINE.⁵⁰ [IF HE HAD SAID:] ONE JAR⁵¹ SHALL BE TITHE, AND IT IS NOT KNOWN WHICH JAR [HE MEANT], HE MUST TAKE FROM EVERY JAR.⁵²

(1) Without the conditions mentioned supra IV, 2, n. 7; viz., the imposition of a vow and the celebration of a marriage feast.

(2) But not on the Sabbath itself; cf. IV, 1, n. 1.

(3) Viz., a hundredth part of the whole, which is subsequently to become Terumah of the Tithe. This is set apart first for the reason given supra, V, 1, n. 13.

(4) From my food and drink at the table of the 'am ha-arez.

(5) Viz., nine hundredths, completing the one tenth which is to be set apart for the First Tithe.

(6) Of the First Tithe.

(7) Over which the benediction for the sanctification of the Sabbath day (Kiddush; cf. Ber. VIII, 1) is pronounced at the opening of the Sabbath meal.

(8) At the house of the 'am ha-arez. The declaration made on the eve of the Sabbath must be repeated on the Sabbath before he drinks wine, and again before he eats food, when the wine and the food are actually before him, in order to complete thereby the process of tithing by designation (IV, 3, n. 5) begun by the declaration on the eve of the Sabbath.

(9) This formula must be used in the case of wine in a cup, instead of the formula 'what is to the north or the south of it', because one cannot distinguish the sides of a round cup.

(10) What he actually has to leave is one hundredth part of what he consumes for the Terumah of the Tithe.

(11) Whose food during his working hours must be provided by his employer; cf. III, 1, n. 3; B.M. VII, 2.

(12) If, for example, his meal consists of dried figs.

(13) To be made subsequently into Terumah of the Tithe; cf. VII, 1, n. 3.

(14) He must put it aside as Terumah of the Tithe which can be eaten by a priest only.

(15) Because he may be left hungry. Therefore he must buy a fig at his own expense, and complete his meal.

(16) That the employer should provide a full meal for his workmen; therefore the employer has to provide an extra fig.

(17) Samaritans, before the use of their wine was prohibited to Jews; cf. Hul, 6a. Produce sold by Samaritans is real tebel (cf. V, 9, n. 7), and the buyer must give from it terumah as well as First Tithe and Second Tithe, but not Terumah of the Tithe which devolves upon the Levite who receives the First Tithe,

(18) He bought on a week-day, but was prevented from tithing it before the Sabbath,

(19) Of a hundred logs, the usual quantity of terumah; cf. V, 2, n. 5. For the size of a log cf. 'Ed, (Sonc. ed.) p. 2, n. 3, (20) After the Sabbath.

(22) מִיֶּדֶל So 'Aruch. Maim. and other authorities render 'begin'. R. Hai Gaon and others read מִזֶּל , 'mix it with water'; cf. Kohut, Aruch Completum, III, p. 385.

(23) Cf. V, 8, n. 3.

(24) Late on Friday, when he had not sufficient time to return home and set apart the terumah and the tithes before the coming in of the Sabbath.

(25) Of every hundred.

(26) And he may give Tithes from the second basket both for its own contents and for the contents of the first basket.

(27) But not the second basket. For as soon as he said: 'Let the tithes of the first be in the second', the first becomes thereby tithed, but not yet the second; therefore when he added: 'Let the tithes of the second be in the first', he is tithing produce which is exempt for produce which is liable; cf. V, 3, n. 1.

(28) And he must give tithes for each one out of the other.

(29) Here equivalent to untithed produce. as supra V, 8, n. 3.

(30) Produce from which terumah and Terumah of the Tithe had been taken. The whole mixture becomes prohibited to non-priests like tabel, because of the Terumah of the Tithe contained in the tabel parts of it.

(31) Hundred parts being tabel from which the usual tithes must be taken, and one extra part being Terumah of the Tithe to free the hundred parts common produce in the mixture. The owner thus loses one part.

(32) From which Terumah of the Tithe had not been taken.

(33) Hundred parts being tabel from which the usual tithes must be taken, and one part being Terumah of the Tithe for the tabel. The remaining ninety-nine parts of the mixture are First Tithe, from which he must take 99/10 parts as Terumah of the Tithe. The owner thus loses 9/10 of a part.

(34) From which all the terumah and tithes had been taken; III, 1, n. 5.

(35) From which the Terumah of the Tithe had not been taken. The common produce becomes prohibited because of the ten parts Terumah of the Tithe in the other constituent of the mixture.

(36) Hundred parts being tithe from which terumah of the Tithe must be given, and ten parts being Terumah of the Tithe to free the hundred parts common produce. The owner thus loses ten parts.

(37) Terumah of the Tithe for hundred parts tabel is one part, and for ninety parts tithe nine parts; therefore he may take ten parts as Terumah of the Tithe and discharge the whole mixture.

(38) Terumah of the Tithe for ninety parts tabel is 9/10 of a part, and of eighty parts tithe eight parts; therefore he must take 89/10 parts as Terumah of the Tithe and discharge the whole mixture.

(39) In the case of a mixture of tithed and untithed produce, one cannot take tithe from the mixture for its untithed portion, because one may happen to pick up as tithe some of the tithed portion of the mixture, and this would be tithing produce which is exempt for produce which is liable (cf. supra 6, n. 7). But if the owner happens to have elsewhere other untithed produce of the same kind as the untithed produce in the mixture, he may use it for tithing the untithed produce in the mixture; cf. Hal. III, 9 and supra V, 8, n. 5. Hence when the tabel in the mixture exceeds the other portion of the mixture, this excess may be used for tithing the tabel as if the excess was elsewhere, and thus the owner loses nothing in the process of freeing the mixture from the Terumah of the Tithe in it. Similarly, if the owner had had tabel produce apart from the mixture and of the same kind as the tabel in the mixture, he may have used it for tithing the tabel mixture also in the cases mentioned above where the two constituents of the mixture were equal in quantity, thus obviating a loss of produce in extra Terumah of the Tithe.

(40) Forming a square of ten by ten.

(41) I.e., ten jars of which one jar will be Terumah of the Tithe.

(42) The problem is to secure that the one jar which has to be given to a priest as Terumah of the Tithe shall come from the exterior row which he had originally designated as tithe, and which may be any one of the, four exterior rows.

(43) So that the two jars belong together to all the four exterior rows. These two jars must be sold to a priest for the price of one jar, thus both jars will be consumed by a priest, and one of them will be a gift to him in respect of Terumah of the Tithe.

(44) Only fifty of the hundred jars had to be tithed. Here the half jar which must go as Terumah of the Tithe is to be found in one of the eight exterior half-rows.

(45) So that the four jars belong together to all the eight exterior half-rows. The four jars must be sold to a priest for the price of three and a half jars, so that all the four jars will be consumed by a priest and one half will be a gift to him in respect of Terumah of the Tithe.

(46) Not necessarily an exterior row.

(47) For all the hundred jars.

(48) I.e., ten jars, which together belong to all the ten rows of the square. These ten jars must be sold to a priest for the price of nine jars, so that all the ten jars will be consumed by a priest and one of them will be a gift to him in respect of Terumah of the Tithe,

(49) Only fifty of the hundred jars had to be tithed. Here the half jar of Terumah of the Tithe will be in one of the twenty half-rows of the square.

(50) The two diagonal lines of the square. The twenty jars of these two lines, which together belong to all the twenty half-rows of the square, must be sold to a priest for the price of nineteen and a half, and one half as a gift in respect of Terumah of the Tithe.

(51) Only one row had to be tithed.

(52) One hundredth part of it to make up one whole jar which must be sold to a priest for nine tenths of its price, one tenth bring a gift to him in respect of Terumah of the Tithe. The explanation of the Mishnah given here follows the commentary of R. Simson of Sens and Tifereth Yisrael. It accords well with the wording of the text, and seems to be supported by the Palestinian Gemara. R. Hai Gaon, Maimonides and Bertinoro explain the Mishnah in a more complicated manner, holding that the subject under discussion is of the designation of one jar only out of the hundred in the square as tithe for wine which was elsewhere.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 1

MISHNAH1. SHAMMAI¹ SAYS: FOR ALL WOMEN [WHO BECOME MENSTRUOUS] IT SUFFICES [TO RECKON THEIR UNCLEANNESS FROM] THE TIME [OF THEIR DISCOVERING IT].² AND HILLEL SAYS: [THEIR UNCLEANNESS IS RECKONED BACKWARDS] FROM THE [LAST] EXAMINATION TO THE [PREVIOUS] EXAMINATION, EVEN IF THIS COVERS MANY DAYS.³ BUT THE SAGES SAY: NEITHER ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF THE ONE NOR ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF THE OTHER, BUT [THEY ARE CONSIDERED UNCLEAR FOR] THE PAST TWENTY FOUR HOURS⁴ WHEN THIS LESSENS THE PERIOD FROM THE [LAST] EXAMINATION TO THE [PREVIOUS] EXAMINATION,⁵ AND FOR THE PERIOD FROM THE [LAST] EXAMINATION TO THE [PREVIOUS] EXAMINATION WHEN THIS LESSENS THE PAST TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.⁶ ANY WOMAN WHO HAS A SETTLED PERIOD, IT SUFFICES [TO RECKON HER UNCLEANNESS FROM] HER SET TIME.⁷ SHE WHO USES TESTING-CLOTHS WHEN SHE HAS MARITAL CONNEXION,⁸ LO, THIS IS LIKE AN EXAMINATION: IT LESSENS EITHER THE PERIOD OF THE [PAST] TWENTY FOUR HOURS OR THE PERIOD FROM THE [LAST] EXAMINATION TO THE [PREVIOUS] EXAMINATION.

MISHNAH2. SHAMMAI SAYS: [DOUGH] OF A KAB⁹ OR MORE IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF HALLAH.¹⁰ AND HILLEL SAYS: OF TWO KABs OR MORE. BUT THE SAGES SAY: NEITHER ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF THE ONE NOR ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF THE OTHER, BUT [DOUGH OF] A KAB AND A HALF¹¹ IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF HALLAH. AND AFTER THEY INCREASED THE MEASURES¹² THEY SAID: [DOUGH 'OF] FIVE QUARTERS IS SUBJECT. R. JOSE SAID: FIVE ARE EXEMPT, FIVE AND MORE¹³ ARE LIABLE.

MISHNAH3. HILLEL SAYS: A HIN¹⁴ -FULL OF DRAWN WATER RENDERS THE MIKWEH¹⁵ UNFIT.¹⁶ (HOWBEIT¹⁷ A MAN MUST SPEAK IN THE LANGUAGE OF HIS TEACHER.)¹⁸ AND SHAMMAI SAYS: NINE KABs. BUT THE SAGES SAY: NEITHER ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF THE ONE NOR ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF THE OTHER: BUT WHEN TWO WEAVERS FROM THE DUNG-GATE WHICH IS IN JERUSALEM¹⁹ CAME AND TESTIFIED IN THE NAME OF SHEMAIAH AND ABTALION;²⁰ 'THREE LOGS OF DRAWN WATER RENDER THE MIKWEH UNFIT,' THE SAGES²¹ CONFIRMED THEIR STATEMENT.

MISHNAH4. AND WHY DO THEY RECORD THE OPINIONS OF SHAMMAI AND HILLEL TO SET THEM ASIDE? — TO TEACH THE FOLLOWING GENERATIONS THAT A MAN SHOULD NOT [ALWAYS] PERSIST IN HIS OPINION, FOR BEHOLD, THE FATHERS OF THE WORLD²² DID NOT PERSIST IN THEIR OPINION.

MISHNAH5. AND WHY DO THEY RECORD THE OPINION OF A SINGLE PERSON AMONG THE MANY, WHEN THE HALACHAH²³ MUST BE ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF THE MANY? SO THAT IF A COURT PREFERS THE OPINION OF THE SINGLE PERSON IT MAY DEPEND ON HIM. FOR NO COURT MAY SET ASIDE THE DECISION OF ANOTHER COURT²⁴ UNLESS IT IS GREATER THAN IT IN WISDOM²⁵ AND IN NUMBER.²⁶ IF IT WAS GREATER THAN IT IN WISDOM BUT NOT IN NUMBER, IN NUMBER BUT NOT IN WISDOM, IT MAY NOT SET ASIDE ITS DECISION, UNLESS IT IS GREATER THAN IT IN WISDOM AND IN NUMBER.²⁷

MISHNAH6. R. JUDAH SAID: IF SO, WHY DO THEY RECORD THE OPINION OF A SINGLE PERSON AMONG THE MANY TO SET IT ASIDE?²⁸ SO THAT IF A MAN SHALL SAY, 'THUS HAVE I LEARNT THE TRADITION,' IT MAY BE SAID TO HIM, 'ACCORDING

TO THE [REFUTED] OPINION OF THAT INDIVIDUAL DID YOU HEAR IT.

MISHNAH7. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: A QUARTER-KAB OF ANY BONES, EVEN FROM TWO CORPSES OR FROM THREE.²⁹ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: A QUARTER-KAB OF BONES FROM A CORPSE,³⁰ EITHER FROM [THE BONES WHICH FORM] THE GREATER PORTION OF THE [BODY'S] BUILD,³¹ OR FROM THE GREATER PORTION OF THE NUMBER³² [OF THE BODY'S BONES]. SHAMMAI SAYS: EVEN FROM A SINGLE BONE.³³

MISHNAH8. VETCHES³⁴ OF TERUMAH,³⁵ BETH SHAMMAI SAY, MUST BE SOAKED AND RUBBED³⁶ IN PURITY,³⁷ BUT CAN BE GIVEN FOR FOOD³⁸ IN IMPURITY.³⁹ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY MUST BE SOAKED IN PURITY,⁴⁰ BUT CAN BE RUBBED AND GIVEN FOR FOOD IN IMPURITY. SHAMMAI SAYS: THEY MUST BE EATEN DRY.⁴⁰ R. AKIBA SAYS: ALL DEEDS IN CONNECTION WITH THEM [CAN BE CARRIED OUT] IN IMPURITY.⁴¹

MISHNAH9. WHOSC⁴² CHANGES FOR A SELA'⁴³ COPPER COIN FROM SECOND TITHE,⁴⁴ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: COPPER COIN FOR THE WHOLE SELA'. AND BETH HILLEL SAY: SILVER FOR ONE SHEKEL AND COPPER COIN FOR ONE SHEKEL.⁴⁵ R. MEIR SAYS: SILVER AND FRUITS MAY NOT BE SUBSTITUTED FOR SILVER.⁴⁶ BUT THE SAGES ALLOW IT.

MISHNAH10. WHOSO CHANGES A SELA' FROM SECOND TITHE IN JERUSALEM,⁴⁷ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: COPPER COIN FOR THE WHOLE SELA'. AND BETH HILLEL SAY: SILVER FOR ONE SHEKEL AND COPPER COIN FOR ONE SHEKEL. THE DISPUTANTS BEFORE THE SAGES⁴⁸ SAY: SILVER FOR THREE DENARS AND COPPER COIN FOR ONE DENAR. R. AKIBA SAYS: SILVER FOR THREE DENARII AND FOR THE FOURTH SILVER AND FOR THE FOURTH [THEREOF] COPPER COIN.⁴⁹ R. TARFON SAYS: FOUR AS PERS⁵⁰ IN SILVER. SHAMMAI SAYS: HE MUST LEAVE⁴⁵ T⁵¹ IN A SHOP AND EAT ON THE CREDIT THEREOF.

MISHNAH11. A⁵² BRIDE'S STOOL FROM WHICH THE COVERING-BOARDS HAVE BEEN TAKEN,⁵³ BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN, AND BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCE IT NOT [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN.⁵⁴ SHAMMAI SAYS: EVEN THE FRAMEWORK OF A STOOL [BY ITSELF IS [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN. A STOOL WHICH HAS BEEN SET IN A BAKER'S TROUGH, BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN, AND BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCE IT NOT [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN.⁵⁵ SHAMMAI SAYS: EVEN ONE MADE THEREIN [IS LIABLE TO BECOME UNCLEAN].

MISHNAH12. THESE ARE SUBJECTS CONCERNING WHICH BETH HILLEL TURNED AND TAUGHT ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI: A⁵⁶ WOMAN WHO CAME FROM THE REGION OF THE SEA AND SAID: MY HUSBAND DIED — MAY BE MARRIED AGAIN; MY HUSBAND DIED [WITHOUT ISSUE] — SHE MUST BE MARRIED BY HER HUSBAND'S BROTHER.⁵⁷ THIS IS THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: WE HAVE HEARD SO⁵⁸ ONLY IN THE CASE OF ONE WHO CAME FROM THE HARVESTING. BETH SHAMMAI SAID TO THEM: IT IS THE SAME THING IN THE CASE OF ONE WHO CAME FROM THE HARVESTING OR WHO CAME FROM THE OLIVE-PICKING OR WHO CAME FROM THE REGION OF THE SEA: THEY MENTIONED HARVESTING ONLY AS AN ACTUAL OCCURRENCE.⁵⁹ THEN BETH' HILLEL TURNED AND TAUGHT ACCORDING TO BETH SHAMMAI. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: SHE MAY BE MARRIED AGAIN AND TAKE HER MARRIAGE PORTION. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: SHE MAY BE MARRIED AGAIN BUT MAY NOT TAKE HER MARRIAGE-PORTION. BETH SHAMMAI SAID TO THEM: YOU HAVE PRONOUNCED LAWFUL THE GRAVER MATTER OF A FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE,⁶⁰ SHOULD YOU NOT PRONOUNCE LAWFUL THE LIGHTER MATTER OF PROPERTY? BETH HILLEL SAID TO THEM: WE HAVE FOUND THAT BROTHERS DO NOT INHERIT ON HER STATEMENT.⁶¹ BETH SHAMMAI SAID TO THEM: DO WE NOT INFER IT FROM HER MARRIAGE DOCUMENT IN WHICH HE WRITES FOR HER 'THAT IF YOU BE MARRIED TO ANOTHER YOU SHALL TAKE WHAT IS WRITTEN FOR YOU'? THEN BETH HILLEL TURNED AND TAUGHT ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI.

MISHNAH13. WHOEVER⁶² IS HALF A SLAVE AND HALF A FREE MAN⁶³ SHOULD TOIL ONE DAY FOR HIS MASTER AND ONE DAY FOR HIMSELF. THIS IS THE OPINION OF BETH HILLEL. BETH SHAMMAI SAID TO THEM: YOU HAVE SET MATTERS IN ORDER AS REGARDS HIS MASTER, BUT YOU HAVE NOT SET MATTERS IN ORDER AS REGARDS HIMSELF. HE IS NOT ABLE TO MARRY A BONDMAID,⁶⁴ NOR IS HE ABLE [TO MARRY] A WOMAN WHO IS FREE.⁶⁵ IS HE TO REFRAIN [FROM MARRYING]? AND IS IT NOT THE CASE THAT THE WORLD WAS CREATED FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE RACE? FOR IT IS SAID, HE CREATED IT NOT TO BE A WASTE; HE FORMED IT TO BE INHABITED.⁶⁶ BUT FOR THE RIGHTFUL ORDERING OF THE WORLD HIS MASTER IS COMPELLED TO MAKE HIM FREE, AND HE⁶⁷ WRITES OUT A BOND FOR HALF HIS VALUE. THEN BETH HILLEL TURNED AND TAUGHT ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI.

MISHNAH14. A VESSEL OF EARTHENWARE⁶⁸ CAN, ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH HILLEL, PROTECT EVERYTHING⁶⁹ [IN IT FROM IMPURITY]. BUT BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT PROTECTS ONLY EATABLES AND LIQUIDS AND [OTHER] VESSELS OF EARTHENWARE. BETH HILLEL SAID TO THEM: WHY? BETH SHAMMAI SAID TO THEM: BECAUSE IT IS [ITSELF] IMPURE WITH RESPECT TO AN 'AM HA-AREZ,⁷⁰ AND NO IMPURE VESSEL CAN SCREEN [AGAINST IMPURITY]. BETH HILLEL SAID TO THEM: AND DID YOU NOT PRONOUNCE PURE THE EATABLES AND LIQUIDS INSIDE IT? BETH SHAMMAI SAID TO THEM: WHEN WE PRONOUNCED PURE THE EATABLES AND LIQUIDS INSIDE IT, WE PRONOUNCED THEM PURE FOR HIM⁷¹ ONLY, BUT WHEN YOU PRONOUNCED THE VESSEL⁷² PURE YOU PRONOUNCED IT PURE FOR YOURSELF⁷³ AND FOR HIM. THEN BETH HILLEL TURNED AND TAUGHT ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI.

(1) Cf. Nid. I, 1.

(2) Therefore only things which they touch from that time become unclean, but not what they have touched before.

(3) All foodstuffs which they touched since the previous examination are unclean, because menstruation may have occurred immediately after the previous examination without their having been aware of it.

(4) Lit., 'from time to time,' i.e., from any given hour to the corresponding one on the preceding or following day.

(5) I.e., when the period between the last two examinations is more than twenty-four hours.

(6) When the period between the last two examinations is less than twenty-four hours.

(7) There is no need to suspect that menstruation may have occurred before the set time.

(8) Before and after connexion to make sure she is free from menstruation.

(9) Cf. II Kings VI, 25. It equals four logs, or 24 eggs, or roughly two litres.

(10) The portion of the dough, the minimum quantity being the size of one egg, which has to be given to the priest: Num. XV, 20.

(11) Equal to the 'Omer. [The 'omer = 1/10 ephah (v. Ex. XVI, 16), = 1.8 kab = 7.2 logs = 43.2 eggs. The Wilderness measure was, however, subsequently increased in Jerusalem by 1/6th, so that 43.2 wilderness eggs became equal to 36 Jerusalem eggs, i.e. a kab and a half.]

(12) At Sepphoris, when six Jerusalem logs became equal to five logs of the new measure.

(13) Which would leave just five quarters after taking off the Hallah.

- (14) Cf. Ex. XXX, 24, etc. It contains twelve logs, or three kabs.
- (15) The ritual bath of purification; cf. Lev. XI, 36. It has to contain at least forty se'ahs (= 12.148 litres) of originally flowing water.
- (16) If it fell into the Mikveh before the Mikveh had forty se'ahs of originally flowing water.
- (17) Some texts omit 'Howbeit'.
- (18) A parenthetic observation of the redactor of the Mishnah to explain why Hillel used the Biblical term Hin, and not the Mishnaic expression twelve logs, or three kabs, as below; viz. because Hillel's teachers had used the term Hin. [The reference is to Hillel's Babylonian teachers, not to Shemaiah and Abtalion, v. Halevy, Doroth. I, 96.]
- (19) [At the south-east corner of the city. V. G. A. Smith, Jerusalem, I, p. 177]. Cf. Nehem. II, 13. The trade and abode of the two men are specified in order to indicate that in spite of their lowly station in life their testimony prevailed against the opinions of Hillel and Shammai.
- (20) The teachers of Hillel and Shammai; cf. Ab. I, 12.
- (21) Including Shammai and Hillel themselves.
- (22) Viz., Hillel and Shammai.
- (23) The accepted ruling.
- (24) A former court if it decided according to the opinion of a majority. But if that court decided according to the opinion of an individual, its decision may be set aside even when the condition named here is not fulfilled.
- (25) The wisdom of its president as compared with the wisdom of the president of the former court.
- (26) Of the members of the court. V. Ab. (Sonc. ed.) p. 64, n. 7.
- (27) [According to another explanation: Where there is the opinion of an individual to appeal for support, a subsequent court can set aside the decision of a former court even if it is not greater than it in wisdom and number, and this justifies the recording of the opinion of a single person among the many, v. Tosaf. Yom Tob a.l. and Halevy, Doroth. I, 200 f.]
- (28) In cases where the individual opinion is untenable, and no court would ever agree to it.
- (29) Confers defilement upon everything which happens to be under the same roof-space ('tent'; cf. Num. XIX, 14). But if less than a quarter-kab, it can cause defilement only by actual contact.
- (30) Only from one corpse.
- (31) The two legs and one thigh; cf. Bek. 45a.
- (32) 125 out of the 248 bones of the human body; cf. Ohol. I, 8.
- (33) Causes 'tent' defilement if it fills a quarter-kab.
- (34) Cf. M. Sh. II, 4. Vetches are usually food for cattle, but in time of scarcity they are also eaten by human beings.
- (35) Heave offering which belongs to the priest.
- (36) On the body as a detergent.
- (37) With the hands washed.
- (38) To cattle only.
- (39) With the hands unwashed.
- (40) Since moisture renders them liable to defilement in accordance with Lev. XI, 38.
- (41) Because animal food is not subject to the laws of Terumah.
- (42) With this and the following halachah cf. M. Sh. II, 8-9.
- (43) Equals two silver shekels, or four silver denarii.
- (44) Second Tithe produce is changed for money in accordance with Deut. XIV, 25. To lighten further the burden of the pilgrim to Jerusalem, copper coin is changed into silver money.
- (45) If pilgrims will bring to Jerusalem only silver money, copper coin will become scarce in the Holy City, and its value will rise, thus causing a loss to the Second Tithe.
- (46) Half a silver denar and its value in fruit may not together be changed for a silver denar.
- (47) For smaller coins, in order to buy Second Tithe provisions.
- (48) Young Sages who were not yet members of the Sanhedrin. For their identity cf. Sanh. 17b.
- (49) I.e., a fourth of a denar, or one sixteenth of a sela', in copper coin. So the commentaries. The text is uncertain.
- (50) According to Bertinoro it equals one fifth of a denar, or one twentieth of a sela'.
- (51) The whole sela' without changing it at all, lest when there is any surplus he unwittingly uses it as profane money.
- (52) Cf. Kel. XXli, 4.
- (53) The ordinary stool was made of four legs held together by four boards (= מַלְבָּן, framework), on which were placed boards (covering-boards) for sitting. A bride's stool had, in addition, three upright boards (also called ‘covering-boards’), against which the occupant leant.

(54) The controversy turns on the question whether on the removal of an essential part the stool still retains its usefulness for its original purpose as a seat, and so still comes within the category of כלי, utensil, and is therefore still liable to defilement from the pressure on it of the body of an unclean person (= מדרס), in accordance with Lev. XV, 4.

(55) Here the controversy turns on whether the stool retains the character of a stool when fixed within the trough.

(56) Cf. Yeb. XV, 1-3.

(57) Cf. Deut. XXV, 5.

(58) That the statement of the woman is to be accepted.

(59) It so happened that a woman came from the harvest field and stated that her husband had died from the bite of a snake, and on investigation this was found to be true.

(60) If by chance the first husband should prove to be alive.

(61) The sons of the first husband cannot claim his property on the strength of the woman's evidence alone, as the transfer of property requires two witnesses for its validity.

(62) Cf. Git. IV, 5.

(63) He had belonged to two partners, one of whom had set him free. Or, if he belonged to one master, only half of his redemption money had been paid to the master.

(64) Since he is half free.

(65) Since he is half a slave.

(66) Isa. XLV, 18.

(67) The half slave.

(68) Under the roof-space (‘tent’) where there is a dead body.

(69) Even other vessels that are not of earthenware. But only if this earthenware vessel is covered by a tightly-fitting lid (צמיד פתיל); cf. Num. XIX, 15; Kel. IX, 2.

(70) Literally ‘the people of the land’, an untutored person who is indifferent to the observances of clean and unclean, distinguished from the scrupulous, Haber, ‘associate’. V. Glos.

(71) The ‘Am ha-arez, who in any case does not abstain from the unclean. As for the Haber, he does not use the food and drink of the ‘Am ha-arez, nor his earthenware vessels, because these cannot be rendered clean by immersion.

(72) And all its contents, including vessels not of earthenware.

(73) I.e., for the Haber also. ‘There is, therefore, the risk that the Haber may borrow these vessels that are not of earthenware, purify them by simple immersion and use them, whereas they require for their purification to be also sprinkled with the ‘Water of Purification’, in accordance with the rules applying to the removal of an uncleanness caused by a corpse, Num. XIX, 18-19.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 2

MISHNAH1. R.¹ HANINA, CHIEF² OF THE PRIESTS, TESTIFIED CONCERNING FOUR MATTERS: THROUGH ALL THEIR DAYS THE PRIESTS NEVER SHRANK FROM BURNING FLESH WHICH HAD BEEN DEFILED BY AN ‘OFFSPRING’³ OF DEFILEMENT WITH FLESH WHICH HAD BEEN DEFILED BY A ‘FATHER’⁴ OF DEFILEMENT, ALTHOUGH THEY WERE [THEREBY] INCREASING ITS DEFILEMENT BY A [HIGHER] DEFILEMENT.⁵ R. AKIBA ADDED: THROUGH ALL THEIR DAYS THE PRIESTS NEVER SHRANK FROM LIGHTING OIL⁶ WHICH HAD BEEN RENDERED UNFIT BY A TEBUL YOM⁷ IN A LAMP⁸ DEFILED BY ONE WHO WAS DEFILED BY A CORPSE,⁹ ALTHOUGH THEY WERE [THEREBY] INCREASING ITS DEFILEMENT¹⁰ BY A [HIGHER] DEFILEMENT.

MISHNAH2. R.¹¹ HANINA, CHIEF OF THE PRIESTS, SAID: ALL MY DAYS I NEVER SAW A HIDE¹² TAKEN OUT TO THE PLACE OF BURNING.¹³ R. AKIBA SAID: FROM HIS WORDS WE INFER THAT WHOSO FLAYS THE HIDE OF THE FIRSTBORN BEAST¹⁴ AND IT IS FOUND¹⁵ TO BE TREFA,¹⁶ THE PRIESTS MAY ENJOY THE USE OF THE HIDE. BUT THE SAGES SAY: WE SAW NOT¹⁷ IS NO PROOF,¹⁷ BUT [SUCH A HIDE] MUST BE TAKEN OUT TO THE PLACE OF BURNING.¹⁸

MISHNAH3. ALSO HE TESTIFIED CONCERNING A SMALL VILLAGE IN THE VICINITY OF JERUSALEM IN WHICH THERE WAS AN OLD MAN WHO USED TO LEND TO ALL THE PEOPLE OF THE VILLAGE AND WRITE OUT [THE BOND] IN HIS OWN HANDWRITING AND OTHERS SIGNED IT,¹⁹ THAT WHEN THE FACT WAS BROUGHT BEFORE THE SAGES THEY PRONOUNCED IT LEGAL.²⁰ HENCE, INCIDENTALLY, YOU MAY INFER THAT THE WIFE MAY WRITE HER OWN BILL OF DIVORCEMENT, AND THE HUSBAND MAY WRITE HIS OWN QUITTANCE;²¹ FOR THE LEGALITY OF A DOCUMENT DEPENDS ONLY ON THOSE WHO SIGN IT. AND [HE TESTIFIED] CONCERNING A NEEDLE²² WHICH WAS FOUND IN FLESH,²³ THAT THE KNIFE AND THE HANDS [WHICH HAD BEEN EMPLOYED ON THE FLESH] ARE CLEAN,²⁴ BUT THE FLESH ITSELF IS DEFILED;²⁵ AND IF IT WAS FOUND IN THE EXCREMENT, ALL ARE CLEAN.²⁶

MISHNAH4. R. ISHMAEL DECLARED THREE THINGS BEFORE THE SAGES IN THE VINEYARD²⁷ AT YABNEH. CONCERNING AN EGG²⁸ WHICH WAS BEATEN TOGETHER, AND PLACED ON VEGETABLES OF TERUMAH — THAT IT ACTS AS A CONNECTION;²⁹ BUT IF IT WAS IN THE FORM OF A HELMET³⁰ IT DOES NOT ACT AS A CONNECTION. AND CONCERNING AN EAR OF CORN³¹ IN THE HARVESTING³² THE TOP OF WHICH REACHED THE STANDING CORN — THAT IF IT CAN BE REAPED TOGETHER WITH THE STANDING CORN, LO, IT BELONGS TO THE OWNER; AND IF NOT, IT BELONGS TO THE POOR.³³ AND CONCERNING A SMALL GARDEN³⁴ WHICH WAS SURROUNDED BY ESPALIER VINES — THAT IF IT HAS SPACE FOR THE GRAPE-GATHERER AND HIS BASKET ON ONE SIDE,³⁵ AND SPACE FOR THE GRAPE-GATHERER AND HIS BASKET ON THE OTHER SIDE,³⁵ IT MAY BE SOWN WITH SEED; BUT IF NOT, IT MAY NOT BE SOWN WITH SEED.³⁶

MISHNAH 5. THEY STATED THREE THINGS BEFORE R. ISHMAEL, AND HE PRONOUNCED NONE OF THEM EITHER UNLAWFUL OR LAWFUL; BUT R. JOSHUA THE SON OF MATTHIA ELUCIDATED THEM.³⁷ WHOSO CUTS AN ABSCESS ON THE SABBATH, HE IS GUILTY IF IT WAS TO MAKE AN OPENING³⁸ TO IT, BUT INNOCENT IF IT WAS TO BRING OUT THE PUS;³⁹ AND CONCERNING ONE WHO HUNTS A SNAKE ON THE SABBATH — THAT IF HE WAS THUS OCCUPIED IN ORDER THAT IT SHOULD NOT BITE HIM, HE IS INNOCENT;⁴⁰ BUT IF THAT HE MIGHT USE IT AS A REMEDY,⁴¹ HE IS GUILTY. AND CONCERNING IRONIAN⁴² STEWPOTS — THAT THEY DO NOT CONTRACT DEFILEMENT WHEN UNDER THE SAME ROOF-SPACE AS A CORPSE, BUT BECOME DEFILED IF THEY ARE CARRIED BY ONE WHO HAS AN ISSUE.⁴³ R. ELIEZER B. ZADOK SAYS: ALSO IF THEY ARE CARRIED BY ONE WHO HAS AN ISSUE THEY REMAIN UNDEFILED, BECAUSE THEY ARE UNFINISHED IN THE MAKING.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 6. R. ISHMAEL DECLARED THREE THINGS, AND R. AKIBA DISAGREED WITH HIM. IF GARLIC OR UNRIPE GRAPES OR GREEN EARS OF CORN WERE BEING CRUSHED [ON⁴⁵ THE EVE OF THE SABBATH] WHILE IT IS YET DAY, R. ISHMAEL SAYS: HE MAY ALLOW [THE CRUSHING] TO BE COMPLETED AFTER IT GROWS DARK.⁴⁶ BUT R. AKIBA SAYS: HE MAY NOT ALLOW IT TO BE COMPLETED.⁴⁷

MISHNAH 7. THEY DECLARED THREE THINGS BEFORE R. AKIBA, TWO IN THE NAME OF R. ELIEZER AND ONE IN THE NAME OF R. JOSHUA. TWO IN THE NAME OF R. ELIEZER: — A WOMAN MAY GO FORTH [ON THE SABBATH ADORNED] WITH A ‘GOLDEN-CITY’;⁴⁸ AND: THEY THAT FLY PIGEONS ARE UNFIT TO BEAR EVIDENCE.⁴⁹ AND ONE IN THE NAME OF R. JOSHUA: — IF⁵⁰ THERE WAS A CREEPING THING⁵¹ IN THE MOUTH OF A WEASEL WHEN IT WALKED OVER LOAVES OF TERUMAH, AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER IT⁵² TOUCHED THEM OR WHETHER IT DID NOT TOUCH THEM, THAT ABOUT WHICH THERE IS DOUBT REMAINS CLEAN.⁵³

MISHNAH8. R. AKIBA DECLARED THREE THINGS; ABOUT TWO THEY AGREED WITH HIM, AND ABOUT ONE THEY DISAGREED WITH HIM. ABOUT A LIME-BURNER'S SANDAL,⁵⁴ THAT IT IS LIABLE TO CONTRACT DEFILEMENT⁵⁵ FROM PRESSURE UNCLEANNESS;⁵⁶ AND ABOUT THE REMAINS OF A [BROKEN] OVEN,⁵⁷ THAT THEY MUST BE FOUR HANDBREADTHS HIGH IN ORDER TO RETAIN THE DEFILEMENT].⁵⁸ WHEREAS THEY USED TO SAY: THREE.⁵⁹ AND THEY AGREED WITH HIM. AND ABOUT ONE THEY DISAGREED WITH HIM. ABOUT A STOOL,⁶⁰ FROM WHICH TWO OF ITS COVERING-BOARDS⁶¹ HAD BEEN REMOVED, THE ONE BESIDE THE OTHER, WHICH R. AKIBA PRONOUNCES LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁶² BUT THE SAGES DECLARE NOT LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH9. HE USED TO SAY: THE FATHER TRANSMITS TO THE SON COMELINESS AND STRENGTH AND WEALTH AND WISDOM AND YEARS⁶³ AND THE NUMBER OF GENERATIONS BEFORE HIM,⁶⁴ THAT HE SHALL BECOME THEIR APPOINTED END.⁶⁵ FOR IT IS SAID, CALLING THE GENERATIONS FROM THE BEGINNING.⁶⁶ ALTHOUGH IT IS SAID, AND SHALL SERVE THEM, AND THEY SHALL AFFLICT THEM FOUR HUNDRED YEARS,⁶⁷ IT IS SAID ALSO, AND IN THE FOURTH GENERATION THEY SHALL COME HITHER AGAIN.⁶⁷

MISHNAH10. ALSO HE USED TO SAY: THERE ARE FIVE THINGS OF [THE DURATION OF] TWELVE MONTHS: THE JUDGMENT OF THE GENERATION OF THE FLOOD [CONTINUED] TWELVE MONTHS;⁶⁸ THE JUDGMENT OF JOB [CONTINUED] TWELVE MONTHS;⁶⁹ THE JUDGMENT OF THE EGYPTIANS [CON TINUED] TWELVE MONTHS;⁷⁰ THE JUDGMENT OF GOG AND MAGOG⁷¹ IN THE TIME TO COME [WILL CONTINUE] TWELVE MONTHS;⁷² THE JUDGMENT OF THE UNGODLY IN GEHENNA [CONTINUES] TWELVE MONTHS, FOR IT IS SAID, AND IT WILL BE FROM ONE MONTH UNTIL ITS [SAME] MONTH.⁷³ R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAYS: [AS LONG AS] FROM PASSOVER TO PENTECOST,⁷⁴ FOR IT IS SAID, AND FROM ONE SABBATH⁷⁵ UNTIL ITS [NEXT] SABBATH.

(1) Cf. Pes. I, 6.

(2) Segan; next in rank to the High Priest, occasionally acting as deputy; v. Sanh. (Sonc. ed.) p. 97, n. 1.

(3) ולד הטומאה, a generated, or secondary, defilement.

(4) אב הטומאה, a generating, or principal, defilement. This principal defilement has the power of conferring secondary defilement (ולד הטומאה) of the first degree (ראשון לטומאה). The ראשון, again, confers on food and drink secondary defilement (ולד הטומאה) of a second degree (לטומאה). If the שני belongs to the category of unhallowed things (חולין), it merely becomes itself 'unfit' (פסול), but the process of generating further defilement ceases with it. But if this שני belongs to hallowed things, like heave-offering or altar-offering, it can confer secondary defilement of a third degree (שלישי לטומאה). If this שלישי belongs to heave-offering, it becomes itself unfit, but it cannot confer further defilement. If, however, the שלישי belongs to altar-offerings, it can confer secondary defilement of a fourth degree (רביעי לטומאה). The רביעי, becomes unfit, but without the power of transmitting any further defilement.

(5) The first flesh contracted secondary defilement of a third degree. By being burnt together with flesh that had contracted defilement of a first degree from a 'father' of defilement, this first flesh contracted defilement of a second degree. But the priests did not mind raising the defilement of this first flesh, since in any case it was going to be destroyed by burning.

(6) Of terumah, heave-offering.

(7) Lit., 'immersed by day', a person, or utensil, that has undergone purification by immersion in the ritual bath (מקוה; cf. I, 3, n. 7), but has still to wait till sunset to complete the purification, in accordance with Lev. XXII, 7. The tebul yom confers on terumah secondary defilement of the third degree, rendering the terumah 'unfit'; cf. n. 4.

(8) Of metal.

(9) A corpse possesses the highest degree of defilement, being the 'father of the fathers' of defilement, אבי אבות הטומאה. It confers a generating, or principal, defilement, אב הטומאה. But metal articles, like this lamp, contract defilement equal in degree to the defilement of the source, viz. they become אבי אבות הטומאה when defiled by a corpse, and אב הטומאה when defiled by a principal defilement. (This principle is deduced from the expression בהלל הרב, 'slain by the sword', Num. XIX, 16, which is interpreted: הרב הרי הוא כהלל 'the sword is equal in its defilement to the slain' (Naz. 53b). And what applies to a sword applies also to any other metal article.) Hence a metal lamp defiled by one who was defiled by a corpse becomes itself אב הטומאה, and confers on the oil put in it a secondary defilement of the first degree, ראשון לטומאה.

(10) By raising the defilement of the oil from the third degree (cf. n. 2) to the first degree (cf. n. 1). This is more remarkable than R. Hanina's testimony, which only involved the raising of a third degree defilement to a second degree.

(11) Cf. Zeb. Xli, 4.

(12) Of a sacrifice which was found after flaying to be unfit for the altar.

(13) Where all unfit sacrifices were destroyed.

(14) Even if it was slaughtered outside the Temple, because of a blemish (cf. Lev. XXII, 20 ff.), it is treated as though it were prepared for the altar.

(15) After flaying.

(16) Unfit for food owing to disease, cf. Hul. III, 1. Lit., 'torn by a wild beast'; cf. Ex. XXII, 30.

(17) Such a case may not have occurred in R. Hanina's time; or it may have occurred and he failed to notice it.

(18) Since it was unfit for consumption from the very first.

(19) As witnesses.

(20) Though the deed was drafted by the creditor who was an interested party.

(21) For the payment of the marriage settlement; cf. I, 12.

(22) Which had been defiled by a corpse.

(23) Flesh of a sacrifice, in the Temple court which is considered public ground (רשות הרבים).

(24) Because it is doubtful whether they touched the needle, and a doubtful defilement arising in public ground is considered clean; cf. Toh. IV, 7, 11.

(25) Because the flesh certainly touched the needle.

(26) Because it is to be presumed that the flesh, too, did not touch the needle.

(27) The meeting place of the Sages after the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus. V. B.B. (Sonc. ed.) p. 549, n. 4.

(28) Cf. T.Y. III, 2.

(29) So that if a tebul yom (II, 1, n. 7) touches the egg, the vegetables become unfit, though an egg cannot be set aside as terumah.

(30) Blown up and hollow within, so that air intervenes between it and the vegetables.

(31) Cf. Pe'ah V, 2.

(32) Which has been left behind through forgetfulness.

(33) In accordance with the command of Deut. XXIV, 19; cf. Pe'ah VI, 4.

(34) Having a fence round it.

(35) Equalling a space of two cubits, or a minimum total space for the whole garden of four cubits square.

(36) It comes under the prohibition of Deut. XXII, 9.

(37) In what case they are forbidden, and in what case they are lawful.

(38) A permanent opening. This comes under the prohibition of making on the Sabbath an opening for a door in a building.

(39) The making of the opening is then a work which is not done for its own sake (מלאכה שאינה צריכה לגופה), but for another object, and therefore permissible; cf. Shab. 105b.

(40) As in the last case, the catching of the snake is not the real object of the work.

(41) The snake was believed to heal a certain skin disease (חפפית); cf. Shab. 77b.

(42) אירוניות. The correct reading, as well as the exact meaning of the term, is uncertain. The commentators take it as עירוניות, and explain it in the sense of provincial, coarse and unfinished.

(43) Cf. Lev. XV, 12.

(44) And therefore they are not considered utensils; cf. I, 11, n. 10.

(45) By placing on them heavy stones.

- (46) He need not remove the stones from them, and may use the juice which flows from them on the Sabbath, since the crushing began before the coming in of the Sabbath.
- (47) Cf. Shab. XVII, 1.
- (48) A gold ornament bearing a representation of the city of Jerusalem. R. Akiba is reported to have given one to his wife; cf. Shab. VI, 1, and the Gemara ibid. 59a, b; Ned. 50a.
- (49) Cf. Sanh. III, 3. They do it for betting purposes, and thus make unlawful gain. Another explanation is that the pigeons serve to decoy strange pigeons for their master.
- (50) Cf. Toh. IV, 2.
- (51) A dead one, cf. Lev. XI, 29 ff.
- (52) The creeping thing.
- (53) Any doubt arising about a moving defilement is deemed clean.
- (54) A coarse foot-covering made of wood or straw, and only used for protecting the feet from the lime, but not for walking.
- (55) If worn by one who has an issue.
- (56) מדרם, lit., 'treading'; cf. I, 11, n. 10. The reason is that the lime-burner may sometimes wear it when walking home from his work, thereby making it an article of apparel.
- (57) Of earthenware, standing upright on the ground like a cooking-pot, which contracted a defilement when still whole.
- (58) But if they are less, they become clean, like the fragments of a broken utensil; cf. Kel. II, 2.
- (59) Cf. Kel. VI, 1.
- (60) Cf. Kel. XXII, 7.
- (61) Viz., the boards forming the seat; cf. I. 11, n. 9.
- (62) By body pressure, מדרם, because it can still be used in case of necessity for sitting; cf. I, 11, n. 1.
- (63) I.e., long life.
- (64) The reading is uncertain. According to most commentators the passage means that the son becomes the recipient of the good promised after the lapse of a number of generations, such as the redemption from Egypt which was promised after four generations, Gen. XV, 16.
- (65) והוא הקיץ. This may also be rendered: 'which is the appointed end'.
- (66) Isa. XLI, 4.
- (67) Gen. XV, 13, 16.
- (68) Cf. Gen. VII, 11, with VIII, 14.
- (69) 'Months of vanity', Job VII, 3, is interpreted to imply a full twelve months; cf. Seder Olam Rabbah, ch. XXX.
- (70) Ex. IV, 12, is said to have occurred in the month of Iyyar, while the Exodus took place twelve months later in Nisan.
- (71) Cf. Esek. XXXVIII, 2 ff.
- (72) Ezek. XXXIX, 4, 17, is combined with Isa. XVIII, 6, implying that the birds and beasts of prey will feast on the bodies of Gog and Magog a whole summer and a whole winter, or together twelve months.
- (73) Isa. LXVI, 23, combined with the following verse, 24. The 'same' month, viz. of the following year.
- (74) Forty nine days, the briefest interval between two festivals.
- (75) The Festival is also called Sabbath, as Lev. XXIII, 11, 15, where 'Sabbath' is traditionally interpreted: the first day of Passover.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. [IN THE CASE OF] ALL¹ THINGS² WHICH CAUSE DEFILEMENT IN A 'TENT',³ IF THEY WERE DIVIDED⁴ AND BROUGHT INTO THE HOUSE,⁵ R. DOSA B. HARKINAS PRONOUNCES [EVERYTHING UNDER THE SAME ROOF-SPACE] CLEAN, BUT THE SAGES PRONOUNCE IT UNCLEAR. HOW IS THIS? HE WHO TOUCHES AS MUCH AS TWO HALVES OF AN OLIVE [IN QUANTITY] OF A CARCASS⁶ OR CARRIES THEM; OR IN THE CASE OF A CORPSE, HE WHO TOUCHES AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE AND STANDS⁷ OVER AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE; OR TOUCHES AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE AND AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE IS ABOVE HIM; OR IF HE STANDS OVER AS MUCH AS TWO HALVES OF AN OLIVE; OR IF HE STANDS OVER AS MUCH AS

HALF AN OLIVE AND AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE IS ABOVE HIM — R. DOSA B. HARKINAS PRONOUNCES HIM CLEAN, AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE HIM UNCLEAR.⁸ BUT IF HE TOUCHES AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE [IN QUANTITY] AND ANOTHER THING⁹ WAS OVER HIM AND OVER AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE; OR IF HE STOOD OVER AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE AND ANOTHER THING WAS OVER HIM AND OVER AS MUCH AS HALF AN OLIVE, HE IS CLEAN.¹⁰ R. MEIR SAID: ALSO IN THIS CASE R. DOSA PRONOUNCES HIM CLEAN AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE HIM UNCLEAR. IN¹¹ ALL SUCH CASES A MAN IS UNCLEAR UNLESS THERE IS AN ACT OF TOUCHING AND ALSO AN ACT OF CARRYING,¹² OR AN ACT OF CARRYING AND ALSO [THE FACT OF] BEING UNDER THE SAME ROOF-SPACE.¹² THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: IN WHATEVER CASE THE MEANS OF CAUSING DEFILEMENT ARE OF ONE CATEGORY,¹³ HE IS UNCLEAR;¹⁴ IF THEY ARE OF TWO CATEGORIES,¹⁵ HE IS CLEAN.¹⁶

MISHNAH 2. FOOD IN SEPARATED PIECES¹⁷ IS NOT COMBINED TOGETHER.¹⁸ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. DOSA B. HARKINAS. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT IS COMBINED TOGETHER. ONE¹⁹ MAY EXCHANGE [PRODUCE OF] SECOND TITHE FOR UNCOINED METAL.²⁰ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. DOSA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: ONE MAY NOT SO EXCHANGE IT. THE HANDS²¹ [ALONE] NEED BE IMMERSSED²² FOR THE WATERS OF PURIFICATION.²³ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. DOSA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: IF HIS HANDS HAVE BECOME UNCLEAR HIS WHOLE BODY BECOMES UNCLEAR.²⁴

MISHNAH 3. THE INSIDES OF A MELON AND THE OFFAL LEAVES OF A VEGETABLE, WHEN THEY ARE TERUMAH, R. DOSA PERMITS [THEIR] USE TO NON-PRIESTS, AND THE SAGES FORBID IT.²⁵ FIVE²⁶ EWES, THEIR FLEECES WEIGHING EACH A MINA²⁷ AND A HALF, ARE SUBJECT TO [THE LAW OF] THE FIRST OF THE FLEECE.²⁸ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. DOSA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: FIVE EWES [ARE SUBJECT] WHATEVER [THEIR FLEECES WEIGH].²⁹

MISHNAH 4. ALL MAT³⁰ ARE [LIABLE TO BECOME] DEFILED BY ‘CORPSE’ DEFILEMENT. THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. DOSA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: [ALSO BY] ‘PRESSURE’ DEFILEMENT.³¹ NO NETWORK³² [ARTICLES] ARE LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS³³ EXCEPT A [NETWORK] GIRDLE.³⁴ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. DOSA. BUT THE SAGES SAY: THEY ARE ALL LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS, EXCEPT THOSE USED BY WOOLDEALERS.³⁵

MISHNAH 5. A SLING WHOSE POCKET IS WOVEN IS LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS;³⁶ IF IT IS OF SKIN, R. DOSA B. HARKINAS PRONOUNCES IT NOT LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS,³⁷ AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE IT LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS.³⁸ IF ITS FINGER-HOLD IS BROKEN OFF, IT IS NOT LIABLE;³⁹ BUT IF THE STRING-HANDLE [ONLY] IS BROKEN OFF IT IS LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 6. A FEMALE CAPTIVE⁴¹ MAY EAT OF TERUMAH.⁴² THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. DOSA B. HARKINAS. BUT THE SAGES SAY: THERE IS A FEMALE CAPTIVE WHO MAY EAT, AND THERE IS A FEMALE CAPTIVE WHO MAY NOT EAT. HOW IS THIS? THE WOMAN⁴³ WHO SAID: I WAS MADE A CAPTIVE BUT [NONE THE LESS] I AM PURE, SHE MAY EAT; BECAUSE THE EVIDENCE⁴⁴ WHICH MADE IT UNLAWFUL IS THE SAME EVIDENCE⁴⁴ WHICH MADE IT LAWFUL. BUT IF THERE ARE WITNESSES [WHO DECLARE] THAT SHE WAS MADE A CAPTIVE, AND SHE SAYS: [NONE THE LESS] I AM PURE, SHE MAY NOT EAT.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 7. FOUR⁴⁶ CASES OF DOUBT R. JOSHUA PRONOUNCES UNCLEAR, AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE THEM CLEAN. HOW IS THIS? IF THE UNCLEAR PERSON⁴⁷

STANDS⁴⁸ AND THE CLEAN PERSON PASSES BY HIM, OR IF THE CLEAN PERSON STANDS⁴⁸ AND THE UNCLEAN PERSON⁴⁷ PASSES BY HIM; OR IF IMPURITY IS IN PRIVATE PREMISES⁴⁹ AND SOMETHING CLEAN IS IN PUBLIC PREMISES,⁵⁰ OR IF SOMETHING CLEAN IS IN PRIVATE PREMISES⁴⁹ AND IMPURITY IS IN PUBLIC PREMISES;⁵⁰ IF IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER ONE TOUCHED OR DID NOT TOUCH THE OTHER, OR IF IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER ONE STOOD OVER⁵¹ OR DID NOT STAND OVER THE OTHER, OR IF IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER ONE MOVED OR DID NOT MOVE THE OTHER, R. JOSHUA PRONOUNCES SUCH A CASE UNCLEAN,⁵² AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE IT CLEAN.⁵³

MISHNAH 8. THREE⁵⁴ THINGS R. ZADOK PRONOUNCES UNCLEAN AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE THEM CLEAN. THE NAIL OF THE MONEY-CHANGER,⁵⁵ AND THE CHEST OF GRIST MAKERS, AND THE NAIL OF A STONE DIAL,⁵⁶ R. ZADOK PRONOUNCES UNCLEAN, AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE THEM CLEAN.⁵⁷

MISHNAH 9. FOUR⁵⁸ THINGS RABBAN GAMALIEL PRONOUNCES UNCLEAN, AND THE SAGES PRONOUNCE THEM CLEAN.⁵⁷ THE COVERING OF A METAL BASKET, IF IT BELONGS TO HOUSEHOLDERS,⁵⁹ AND THE HANGER OF CURRY-COMBS, AND THE VESSELS OF METAL STILL UNSHAPED,⁶⁰ AND A PLATE⁶¹ THAT IS DIVIDED INTO TWO [EQUAL] PARTS. AND THE SAGES AGREE WITH RABBAN GAMALIEL IN THE CASE OF A PLATE THAT WAS DIVIDED INTO TWO PARTS, ONE LARGE AND ONE SMALL, THAT THE LARGE ONE IS LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND THE SMALL ONE IS NOT LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁵⁷

MISHNAH 10. IN⁶² THREE CASES RABBAN GAMALIEL PRONOUNCES A RIGOROUS RULING ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. ONE MAY NOT WRAP UP⁶³ HOT FOOD ON A FESTIVAL FOR THE SABBATH; AND ONE MAY NOT JOIN TOGETHER A LAMP⁶⁴ ON A FESTIVAL, AND ONE MAY NOT BAKE [ON FESTIVALS] THICK LOAVES BUT ONLY WAFER-CAKES.⁶⁵ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID: IN ALL THEIR DAYS MY FATHER'S HOUSE NEVER BAKED LARGE LOAVES BUT ONLY WAFERCAKES. THEY SAID TO HIM: WHAT CAN WE DO AS REGARDS YOUR FATHER'S HOUSE, FOR THEY WERE RIGOROUS IN RE SPECT TO THEMSELVES BUT WERE LENIENT TOWARDS ISRAEL TO LET THEM BAKE BOTH LARGE LOAVES AND WHITE BREAD.

MISHNAH 11. ALSO⁶⁶ HE DECLARED THREE DECISIONS OF A LENIENT CHARACTER: ONE MAY SWEEP UP [ON A FESTIVAL] BETWEEN THE COUCHES,⁶⁷ AND PUT SPICES⁶⁸ [ON THE COALS] ON A FESTIVAL, AND ROAST A KID WHOLE ON THE NIGHT OF PASSOVER.⁶⁹ BUT THE SAGES FORBID THEM.⁷⁰

MISHNAH 12. R.⁷¹ ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH ALLOWS THREE THINGS AND THE SAGES FORBID THEM: HIS⁷² COW USED TO GO OUT WITH THE STRAP WHICH SHE HAD BETWEEN HER HORNS;⁷³ ONE MAY CURRY⁷⁴ CATTLE ON A FESTIVAL; AND ONE MAY GRIND PEPPER IN ITS OWN MILL. R. JUDAH SAYS: ONE MAY NOT CURRY CATTLE ON A FESTIVAL, BECAUSE IT MAY CAUSE A WOUND, BUT ONE MAY COMB⁷⁵ THEM. BUT THE SAGES SAY: ONE MAY NOT CURRY THEM, NEITHER MAY ONE COMB⁷⁶ THEM.

(1) Cf. Oh. III, 1.

(2) These are enumerated, Oh. II, 1 f.

(3) Cf. I, 7, note 1.

(4) The minimum quantity required for conferring defilement (viz. the size of an olive, Oh. II, 1.) was divided into two halves.

(5) I.e., under the same roofspace.

- (6) Cf. Lev. XI, 35, 40. Touching or carrying a dead animal does not really belong to 'tent' defilement dealt with here. We must assume that this controversy of R. Dosa and the Sages covers also carcass defilement. Some authorities would delete the words 'He who touches corpse'.
- (7) Lit., 'forms a tent over'.
- (8) They hold that the parts combine to form the minimum quantity.
- (9) A board, or beam, or the like.
- (10) Even according to the Sages who agree that in this case the half quantities cannot be combined. The reason for this ruling is discussed, Hul. 125b.
- (11) This continues R. Meir's exposition of the opinion of the Sages.
- (12) Touching one part and carrying the other part of the divided quantity. These acts belong to two different categories, but touching and 'tent' defilement are considered as belonging to the same category.
- (13) Viz., two acts of touching, or carrying, or standing over, each applied to one of the two parts of the divided quantity; or touching the one and standing over the other; cf. the last note.
- (14) The identical act combines the two parts into the required minimum quantity.
- (15) E.g., touching one half and carrying the other half.
- (16) The two parts do not combine.
- (17) Food consisting of small particles, like peas, or small nuts; or food broken up in fragments.
- (18) To form the minimum quantity required to become subject to all the laws governing the defilement of food; cf. Me'i. IV, 5.
- (19) Cf. M.Sh. I, 2.
- (20) Gr. **.
- (21) If they have touched defiled food or drink; cf. Yad. lii, 1.
- (22) In a ritual bath; cf. I, 3, note 7.
- (23) To enable one to sprinkle it upon the defiled; cf. Num. XIX, 17-19.
- (24) And the whole body requires Immersion.
- (25) Cf. Lev. XXII, 10.
- (26) Cf. Hul. XI, 2.
- (27) Cf. Ezek. XLV, 12.
- (28) Deut. XVIII, 4.
- (29) For the minimum quantity, v. Hul. 137b.
- (30) Made of rushes with a raised seam round them, so that they can be used as a receptacle.
- (31) They can also serve as a spread to lie on; cf. Lev. XV, 4, and supra, I, 11, n. 10.
- (32) As distinguished from woven material.
- (33) As they do not form a garment; cf. Lev. XI, 32. etc.
- (34) Through being stretched round the body, it becomes like a woven article.
- (35) Which have very large meshes.
- (36) [Though the pocket is not considered a 'utensil with receptacle', as the stones are placed therein only to be slung forth, it is susceptible to defilement in that it is woven work (Raabad).]
- (37) The pocket not being considered a 'utensil with receptacle' it cannot become unclean because it lacks the minimum quantity of five handbreadths square which a skin needs for contracting defilement; cf. Kel. XXVII, 2.
- (38) It is considered a 'utensil with receptacle', and therefore does not require that minimum.
- (39) The sling has become unfit for use, and ceases to be a 'utensil'.
- (40) The sling can be used also without the string.
- (41) The wife of a priest.
- (42) We do not suspect that she was violated by her captors, and thus became a 'harlot' who is unfit to be a priest's wife.
- (43) Cf. Ket. II, 5.
- (44) Lit., 'the mouth'. If you believe her statement that she was made a captive, you must also believe her when she asserts her purity.
- (45) Unless she can bring witnesses to prove that she remained pure.
- (46) Cf. Toh. VI, 2.
- (47) A leper.
- (48) Under a tent, or a tree.

- (49) E.g., in an open house or shop.
- (50) E.g., in a street near by.
- (51) Cf. supra 1, n. 7.
- (52) Because the defilement concerns also private ground where a doubtful defilement is unclean.
- (53) Because it concerns also a public ground where a doubtful defilement is clean; cf. II, 3, n. 6.
- (54) Cf. Kel. Xli, 5.
- (55) On which he suspends his scales; or, according to others, which he uses for keeping up the board which serves him as a table.
- (56) Fixed to the ground, and serving as a sun clock.
- (57) The controversy turns on the question whether these three articles are to be deemed 'utensils', or not.
- (58) Cf. Kel. XII, 6.
- (59) As opposed to the covering of a metal basket belonging to physicians; cf. Kel. XII, 3.
- (60) The making of which is not quite finished; cf. II, 5, n. 11.
- (61) Of earthenware, provided with a rim.
- (62) Cf. Bez. II, 6.
- (63) To keep it hot; cf. Shab. IV, 1.
- (64) The parts of which have become severed.
- (65) In order to avoid extra labour.
- (66) Cf. Bez. II, 7.
- (67) On which people recline at meals.
- (68) For perfume, offered to guests after dinner; cf. Ber. VI, 6.
- (69) After the manner of the Passover lamb; cf. Pes. VII, 1.
- (70) Because sweeping may cause holes in the ground; the burning of spices for perfume is only practiced by the rich, and cannot therefore be regarded as a regular part of the meal to be permitted on the Festival; finally, roasting the kid whole may give the impression of a Passover sacrifice which was forbidden after the destruction of the Temple.
- (71) Cf. Bez. II, 8.
- (72) According to Bez. 23a, the cow really belonged to a female neighbour of R. Eleazar.
- (73) As an adornment, but the Sages consider it a 'burden'.
- (74) Even with fine metal combs.
- (75) With large wooden combs.
- (76) The latter is forbidden to prevent any one doing also the former.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. THE FOLLOWING CASES ARE [EXAMPLES] OF THE LENIENT RULINGS OF BETH SHAMMAI AND OF THE RIGOROUS RULINGS OF BETH HILLEL.¹ AN EGG² WHICH IS LAID ON A FESTIVAL — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT MAY BE EATEN,³ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: IT MAY NOT BE EATEN.³ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: LEAVEN AS MUCH AS AN OLIVE [IN QUANTITY], AND LEAVENED FOOD AS MUCH AS A DATE.⁴ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: AS MUCH AS AN OLIVE [IN QUANTITY] IN BOTH CASES.

MISHNAH 2. A BEAST⁵ WHICH WAS BORN ON A FESTIVAL — ALL AGREE THAT IT IS PERMITTED; AND A CHICKEN WHICH WAS HATCHED FROM THE EGG — ALL AGREE THAT IT IS FORBIDDEN.⁶ HE WHO SLAUGHTERS A WILD ANIMAL⁷ OR A BIRD ON A FESTIVAL — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MAY DIG WITH A PRONGED TOOL⁸ AND COVER UP [THE BLOOD].⁹ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: HE MAY NOT SLAUGHTER UNLESS HE HAS HAD EARTH MADE READY.¹⁰ BUT THEY AGREE THAT IF HE DID SLAUGHTER HE SHOULD DIG WITH A PRONGED TOOL¹¹ AND COVER UP [THE BLOOD, AND] THAT THE ASHES OF A STOVE¹² COUNT AS 'MADE READY'.¹³

MISHNAH 3. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [PRODUCE MADE] OWNERLESS¹⁴ WITH RESPECT TO THE POOR [ONLY] IS COUNTED AS OWNERLESS. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT IS NOT

COUNTED AS OWNERLESS UNLESS IT IS MADE OWNERLESS ALSO WITH RESPECT TO THE RICH, AS IN THE YEAR OF RELEASE.¹⁵ IF ALL THE SHEAVES OF THE FIELD WERE OF ONE KAB¹⁶ EACH AND ONE WAS OF FOUR KABS, AND IT WAS FORGOTTEN,¹⁷ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT DOES NOT COUNT AS FORGOTTEN,¹⁸ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: IT COUNTS AS FORGOTTEN.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. A SHEAF²⁰ WHICH WAS CLOSE TO A WALL OR TO A STACK OR TO THE HERD OR TO [FIELD] UTENSILS, AND WAS FORGOTTEN, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT DOES NOT COUNT AS FORGOTTEN,²¹ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: IT COUNTS AS FORGOTTEN.

MISHNAH 5. A VINEYARD²² OF THE FOURTH YEAR²³ — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FIFTH NOR TO THE LAW OF REMOVAL, AND BETH HILLEL SAY: IT IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FIFTH²⁴ AND TO THE LAW OF REMOVAL.²⁵ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT IS SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF FALLEN GRAPES AND TO THE LAW OF GLEANINGS,²⁶ AND THE POOR REDEEM THEM FOR THEMSELVES.²⁷ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: ALL OF IT GOES TO THE WINEPRESS.²⁸

MISHNAH 6. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE NEED NOT PERFORATE A BARREL OF PICKLED OLIVES,²⁹ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE MUST PERFORATE IT.³⁰ BUT THEY AGREE THAT IF IT WAS PERFORATED AND THE DREGS STOPPED IT UP, IT IS NOT LIABLE TO UNCLEANNESS.³¹ WHOSO HAD ANOINTED HIMSELF WITH CLEAN OIL AND [THEN] BECAME UNCLEAR, AND HE WENT DOWN AND IMMERSSED³² HIMSELF, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ALTHOUGH HE STILL DRIPS IT³³ IS CLEAN. AND BETH HILLEL SAY: [ONLY WHILE THERE REMAINS] ENOUGH FOR ANOINTING A SMALL LIMB.³⁴ AND IF FROM THE BEGINNING³⁵ IT WAS UNCLEAR OIL, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [IT IS UNCLEAR AS LONG AS THERE REMAINS ONLY] ENOUGH FOR ANOINTING A SMALL LIMB, AND BETH HILLEL SAY: [EVEN IF THERE REMAINS AS MUCH AS A MOIST LIQUID. R. JUDAH SAYS IN THE NAME OF BETH HILLEL: [PROVIDED IT REMAINS] MOIST [ITSELF] AND [CAN ALSO] MOISTEN [OTHER THINGS].

MISHNAH 7. A WOMAN³⁶ IS BETROTHED BY A DENAR³⁷ OR THE VALUE OF A DENAR, ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: BY A PERUTAH³⁸ OR THE VALUE OF A PERUTAH. AND HOW MUCH IS A PERUTAH? ONE-EIGHTH OF AN ITALIAN ISSAR. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE³⁹ MAY DISMISS HIS WIFE WITH AN OLD BILL OF DIVORCEMENT, AND BETH HILLEL FORBID IT. WHAT IS AN OLD BILL OF DIVORCEMENT? WHENSOEVER HE HAS HAD PRIVACY WITH HER AFTER HE HAS WRITTEN IT FOR HER.⁴⁰ WHOSO⁴¹ DIVORCES HIS WIFE AND SHE [AFTERWARDS] SPENDS A NIGHT WITH HIM AT THE [SAME] INN⁴² — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: SHE DOES NOT REQUIRE A SECOND BILL OF DIVORCEMENT FROM HIM. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: SHE REQUIRES A SECOND BILL OF DIVORCEMENT FROM HIM.⁴³ WHEN [DOES SHE REQUIRE A SECOND BILL OF DIVORCEMENT]? WHEN SHE WAS DIVORCED AFTER MARRIAGE. BUT IF SHE WAS DIVORCED AFTER BETROTHAL SHE DOES NOT REQUIRE FROM HIM A SECOND BILL OF DIVORCEMENT, SINCE HE IS NOT [YET] FAMILIAR WITH HER.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 8. BETH SHAMMAI PERMIT⁴⁵ THE RIVAL WIVES [OF A DECEASED BROTHER TO BE MARRIED]⁴⁶ TO THE [SURVIVING] BROTHERS; BUT BETH HILLEL FORBID THEM. IF THEY⁴⁷ HAVE PERFORMED HALIZAH,⁴⁸ BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE THEM UNFIT TO [MARRY INTO] THE PRIESTHOOD,⁴⁹ BUT BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCED THEM FIT.⁵⁰ IF THEY⁴⁷ HAVE MARRIED THEIR BROTHER-IN-LAW,⁵¹ BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE THEM FIT,⁵² AND BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCED THEM

UNFIT⁵³ [TO MARRY INTO THE PRIESTHOOD]. AND ALTHOUGH THESE PRONOUNCED UNFIT THOSE WHOM THE OTHERS PRONOUNCED FIT, BETH SHAMMAI DID NOT SHRINK FROM MARRYING WOMEN FROM [THE DAUGHTERS OF] THE SCHOOL OF HILLEL. NOR THE SCHOOL OF HILLEL FROM MARRYING WOMEN FROM [THE DAUGHTERS OF] THE SCHOOL OF SHAMMAI.⁵⁴ AND IN THE CASE OF ALL MATTERS OF PURITY AND IMPURITY IN RESPECT TO WHICH THESE USED TO PRONOUNCE CLEAN WHAT THE OTHERS PRONOUNCED UNCLEAR, THEY DID NOT SHRINK FROM PREPARING FOODS REQUIRING A CONDITION OF PURITY EACH BY MEANS OF [THE VESSELS OF] THE OTHER.⁵⁴

MISHNAH9. [IN THE CASE OF] THREE⁵⁵ BROTHERS, OF WHOM TWO WERE MARRIED TO TWO SISTERS AND ONE WAS UNMARRIED, IF ONE OF THE HUSBANDS OF THE SISTERS DIED⁵⁶ AND THE UNMARRIED ONE BETROTHED HER,⁵⁷ AND AFTERWARDS HIS OTHER BROTHER⁵⁸ DIED,⁵⁹ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HIS WIFE⁶⁰ REMAINS WITH HIM, AND THE OTHER [WIDOW] IS RELEASED⁶¹ ON THE GROUNDS OF [THE LAW OF] THE WIFE'S SISTER. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: HE SHOULD PUT AWAY HIS WIFE⁶² WITH A BILL OF DIVORCEMENT AND HALIZAH, AND THE WIFE OF HIS BROTHER [HE SHOULD PUT AWAY] WITH HALIZAH. THIS IT IS OF WHICH THEY HAVE SAID: WOE TO HIM BECAUSE OF HIS WIFE, AND WOE TO HIM BECAUSE OF HIS BROTHER'S WIFE.⁶³

MISHNAH10. WHOSC⁶⁴ FORBIDS HIS WIFE BY VOW TO HAVE INTERCOURSE — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [SHE MUST SUFFER IT FOR] TWO WEEKS,⁶⁵ AND BETH HILLEL SAY: FOR ONE WEEK.⁶⁶ WHOSO⁶⁷ HAS A MISCARRIAGE ON THE NIGHT OF THE EIGHTY FIRST⁶⁸ [DAY] — BETH SHAMMAI RELEASE HER FROM THE OFFERING, BUT BETH HILLEL DO NOT RELEASE HER. A LINEN WRAPPER⁶⁹ — BETH SHAMMAI RELEASE IT FROM THE LAW OF THE FRINGE,⁷⁰ BUT BETH HILLEL DO NOT RELEASE IT. A BASKET⁷¹ OF [FRUIT SET APART FOR] THE SABBATH-BETH SHAMMAI RELEASE IT [FROM TITHES].⁷² BUT BETH HILLEL DO NOT RELEASE IT.⁷³

MISHNAH 11. WHOSC⁷⁴ VOWED [TO KEEP] A LONGER NAZIRITESHIP⁷⁵ [THAN ORDINARY].⁷⁶ AND HE COMPLETED HIS NAZIRITESHIP AND AFTERWARDS CAME TO THE [HOLY] LAND⁷⁷ — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [HE MUST BE] A NAZIRITE [ONLY] THIRTY DAYS,⁷⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: [HE MUST BE] A NAZIRITE [THE FULL TIME VOWED AS] IN THE BEGINNING. WHOSO⁷⁹ HAS TWO GROUPS OF WITNESSES WHO TESTIFY ABOUT HIM, THESE TESTIFYING THAT HE VOWED TWO NAZIRITESHIPS AND THESE TESTIFYING THAT HE VOWED FIVE⁸⁰ — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THEIR TESTIMONY IS DIVIDED,⁸¹ AND THERE IS HERE NO [OBLIGATION TO PERFORM] NAZIRITESHIP. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: WITHIN THE FIVE THE TWO ARE INCLUDED, SO THAT HE MUST BE A NAZIRITE TWICE OVER.

MISHNAH 12. A MAN⁸² WHO WAS SET BENEATH THE GAP⁸³ — BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE DOES NOT CAUSE THE IMPURITY TO PASS OVER.⁸⁴ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: A MAN IS HOLLOW, AND THE UPPER SIDE CAUSES THE IMPURITY TO PASS OVER.

(1) Whereas in most of their controversies it is the School of Shammai who adopt a severer view and the School of Hillel a lenient one.

(2) Cf. Bez. I, 2.

(3) On the same day. The grounds of the controversy are discussed in the Gemara, Bez. 2b ff.

(4) Must be destroyed on the eve of the Passover. But as regards eating, Beth Shammai agree that even an olive's quantity is prohibited.

(5) Some texts omit 'A beast . . . forbidden'.

(6) As טַבַּח, 'newly-born', i.e. a food, the use of which became available only on the Festival day. But a beast born on

- the Festival is considered available from before the Festival, since if its dam was slaughtered it could have been used as food before its birth together with its dam.
- (7) E.g., a deer, etc.; cf. Deut. XIV, 5.
- (8) Which had been stuck in the ground for the purpose before the advent of the Festival. [V. Bez. 8a; Tosaf. s. v. מוצינו.]

- (21) Having been left by the side of marked objects.
- (22) Cf. Pe'ah VII, 6; M.Sh. V, 3.
- (23) The same applies also to a single fruit tree; cf. Lev. XIX, 23-24.
- (24) If it is not taken up to Jerusalem but is 'redeemed' for money (cf. I, 9, n. 16), a fifth of the value of the fruit must be added, as in the case of Second Tithe; cf. Lev. XXVII, 31; B.M. IV, 8.
- (25) Like Tithes, it has to be removed from the house on the eve of the Passover of the fourth and seventh year of the septennial cycle; cf. Deut. XXVI, 13; M.Sh. V, 6.
- (26) Like common produce. Cf. Lev. XIX, 10; Pe'ah VII, 3-4.
- (27) If they will not take them up to Jerusalem.
- (28) I.e., it all — the fallen grapes and gleanings alike — belongs to the owner, who must take it up to Jerusalem or redeem it. [The stringency of Beth Hillel affects the interests of the poor (Raabad).]
- (29) Where the olives are preserved for eating, and not for the extraction of their oil.
- (30) In order to show by allowing the juice to escape through the holes that one does not desire the oil as a liquid. Therefore when the olives are moistened by the exuding oil they will not thereby become susceptible to uncleanness in accordance with Lev. XI, 38; cf. I, 8, n. 12; Maksh. I, 1.
- (31) The perforation has shown that the owner does not desire the liquid.
- (32) In the ritual bath, thereby regaining his cleanness; cf. I, 3, n. 7.
- (33) The oil, as it belongs to his body which is now clean.
- (34) A little finger. But if more, it is counted as distinct from the man's body, and since oil cannot become clean by immersion, it still retains the uncleanness it contracted from the body, and now conveys it back to the body.
- (35) Before the man used it for anointing.
- (36) Cf. Kid. I, 1.
- (37) Equal to the weight of ninety-six barleycorns of silver.
- (38) The weight of half a barleycorn of silver.
- (39) Cf. Git. VIII, 4.
- (40) And before delivering it to her. Beth Hillel prohibit it, because she may have a child by him, and as the conception of the child will have occurred at a date later than that of the bill of divorcement, the child may be wrongfully stigmatized as having been conceived out of wedlock.
- (41) Cf. Git. VIII, 9.
- (42) There are witnesses who testify to this effect.
- (43) He may have betrothed her again by marital intercourse; cf. Kid. I, 1.
- (44) So we need not suspect intercourse.
- (45) Cf. Yeb. I, 4.

(46) Under the law of Levirate Marriage. Deut. XXV, 5. The controversy arises in a case where the deceased, who died without issue, had married more than one wife. One of the wives was a blood relation (such as a daughter) to the surviving brother, marriage with whom would be an act of incest (ערות). As the surviving brother may not perform the levirate marriage with his blood relation, so, according to Beth Hillel, he may not perform the levirate marriage with the rival wives of the blood relation. But Beth Shammai permit levirate marriage with the rival wives.

(47) The rival wives.

(48) Lit., 'drawing off', viz. the shoe, being the ceremony prescribed. Deut. XXV, 9.

(49) A woman who performed halizah is by Rabbinical injunction considered like a woman divorced, and is therefore forbidden to marry a priest; cf. Lev. XXI, 7. Since according to Beth Shammai levirate marriage with the rival wives is lawful, their halizah also is lawful, and it therefore renders them unfit for marrying a priest.

(50) The whole ceremony of halizah was unnecessary and void.

(51) And they became, widows again.

(52) The levirate marriage was lawful, and they are now counted as ordinary widows who may marry an ordinary priest.

(53) The levirate marriage was unlawful, and it has therefore made them 'harlots' who are forbidden to a priest; cf. Lev. XXI, 7.

(54) Because they were careful to communicate to each other any case which either of them considered unlawful, so as to prevent an infringement of their ruling.

(55) Cf. Yeb. III, 5.

(56) Without leaving any issue.

(57) Lit., 'performed to her a saying' (מאמר). Instead of consummating the levirate marriage by an act (מעשה, as prescribed Deut. XXV, 5), he merely betrothed her by a gift (cf. supra, p. 25) and the utterance of the betrothal formula.

(58) The husband of the second sister.

(59) V. p. 26, n. 10.

(60) Viz., the one he had betrothed. Beth Shammai consider the betrothal (מאמר) fully binding.

(61) From both levirate marriage and halizah, since the brother-in-law is now married to her sister; cf. Lev. XVIII, 18.

(62) The one he has betrothed. Beth Hillel consider the betrothal (מאמר) only partly binding. But he cannot consummate the levirate marriage with the betrothed one, since her sister also is now tied to him in a marriage relationship. Therefore he must give her a bill of divorcement to undo the betrothal. On the other hand, since the betrothal is not fully binding, both sisters must perform halizah.

(63) He is unlucky in losing both the one and the other; cf. Yeb. XIII, 7.

(64) Cf. Keth. V, 6.

(65) Abstinence for such a period is also prescribed in the case of Lev. XII, 5.

(66) As Lev. XII, 2; XV, 19.

(67) Cf. Ker. I, 6.

(68) After having given birth to a female child. She has now fulfilled the fourteen days of her uncleanness and the sixty-six days of her cleanness, and should bring her prescribed offering in accordance with Lev. XII, 5-6; but it being night, she is prevented from bringing the offering till the following day. Beth Shammai hold that since she could not have brought her offering for the first birth, the new birth may be included in the first birth, and one offering suffice for the two. But Beth Hillel hold that since the new birth took place after the completion of the period for the first birth, she must bring separate offerings for each of them.

(69) Used chiefly by night, but also worn by day.

(70) ציצית, made of a woollen cord of blue, Num. XV, 38. The use of wool and linen (flax) in the same garment, though ordinarily forbidden (שעטנז, Deut. XXII, 11) is permitted in the case of ציצית. But as the law of the Fringe applies only to day garments, therefore Beth Shammai exempt the linen wrapper from the law of the Fringe even by day, for fear of the transgression of the prohibition of שעטנז when the wrapper is used by night. But Beth Hillel do not apprehend such a transgression.

(71) Cf. Ma'as. IV, 2.

(72) I.e., one may take of it an incidental mouthful on the eve of the Sabbath before tithing it, but not on the Sabbath itself, as the sanctity of the day imparts importance to any incidental mouthful, making it liable to tithing.

(73) It must be tithed immediately.

(74) Cf. Naz. III, 6.

(75) Cf. Num. VI, 2 ff.

(76) Longer than thirty days; cf. Naz. I, 3.

(77) The observance of the Naziriteship outside the Holy Land is not counted, as one cannot observe there the purity demanded by the law; cf. Num. VI, 6 ff.

(78) He must resume the observance, but only for the ordinary period of thirty days.

(79) Cf. Naz. III, 7.

(80) While he himself denies having made any vow at all.

(81) The evidence is contradictory, and therefore void.

(82) Cf. Oh. XI, 3; Oh. XI, 2, lays down that if a ceiling has a gap right across, and there is a corpse defilement on the floor below on the one side of the gap, the defilement cannot be conveyed by the roof-space across the gap to articles that may be found on the floor on the other side of the gap, unless there is on the floor right below the gap a hollow article of a cubic handbreadth in extent, which serves to bridge the gap.

(83) On the floor right vertically beneath the gap.

(84) He cannot be considered as bridging the gap, and connecting the sides of the ceiling into one undivided roof-space; cf. I, 7, n. 1.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. R. JUDAH CITES SIX INSTANCES¹ OF LENIENT RULINGS BY BETH SHAMMAI AND RIGOROUS RULINGS BY BETH HILLEL. THE BLOOD OF A CARCASS² BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE CLEAN,³ AND BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCE IT UNCLEAN. AN EGG FOUND IN A [BIRD'S] CARCASS, IF THE LIKE OF IT WERE SOLD IN THE MARKET,⁴ IS PERMITTED, AND IF NOT, IT IS FORBIDDEN, ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. AND BETH HILLEL FORBID IT. BUT THEY AGREE IN THE CASE OF AN EGG FOUND IN A TREFA⁵ [BIRD] THAT IT IS FORBIDDEN. SINCE IT HAD ITS GROWTH IN A FORBIDDEN CONDITION.⁶ THE⁷ BLOOD⁸ OF A GENTILE⁹ WOMAN AND THE BLOOD OF PURITY¹⁰ OF A LEPROUS¹¹ WOMAN, BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE CLEAN; AND BETH HILLEL SAY: [IT IS] LIKE HER¹² SPITTLE AND HER¹² URINE.¹³ ONE¹⁴ MAY EAT FRUITS OF THE SEVENTH YEAR¹⁵ WITH AN EXPRESSION OF THANKS¹⁶ AND WITHOUT AN EXPRESSION OF THANKS; THUS ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE MAY NOT EAT [EXCEPT] WITH AN EXPRESSION OF THANKS.¹⁷ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: A WATERSKIN¹⁸ [IS LIABLE TO BECOME UNCLEAN¹⁹ IF IT IS] TIED UP AND REMAINS UNIMPAIRED.²⁰ AND THE SCHOOL OF HILLEL SAY: EVEN IF IT IS NOT TIED UP.²¹

MISHNAH 2. R. JOSE CITES SIX INSTANCES OF LENIENT RULINGS BY BETH SHAMMAI AND RIGOROUS RULINGS BY BETH HILLEL. ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI, A FOWL²² MAY BE BROUGHT UP ON THE TABLE [TOGETHER] WITH CHEESE BUT MAY NOT BE EATEN [WITH IT].²³ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT MAY NEITHER BE BROUGHT UP [TOGETHER WITH IT] NOR EATEN [WITH IT].²⁴ ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI,²⁵ OLIVES MAY BE GIVEN AS TERUMAH FOR OIL AND GRAPES FOR WINE. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY MAY NOT BE GIVEN.²⁶ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: WHOSO²⁷ SOWS [WITHIN] FOUR CUBITS OF A VINEYARD HAS CAUSED ONE ROW [OF VINES] TO BE PROHIBITED.²⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: HE HAS CAUSED TWO ROWS²⁹ TO BE PROHIBITED. FLOUR³⁰ PASTE³¹ BETH SHAMMAI EXEMPT³² [FROM THE LAW OF HALLAH];³³ BUT BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCE IT LIABLE. ONE³⁴ MAY IMMERSE ONESELF³⁵ IN A RAIN-TORRENT,³⁶ ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI; BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: ONE MAY NOT IMMERSE ONESELF [THEREIN].³⁷ IF³⁸ ONE BECAME A PROSELYTE ON THE EVE OF PASSOVER, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MAY IMMERSE HIMSELF³⁹ AND EAT HIS PASSOVER SACRIFICE IN THE EVENING.⁴⁰ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: WHOSO SEPARATES HIMSELF FROM UNCIRCUMCISION IS AS ONE WHO SEPARATES HIMSELF FROM THE GRAVE.⁴¹

MISHNAH 3. R. ISHMAEL⁴² CITES THREE INSTANCES OF LENIENT RULINGS BY BETH SHAMMAI AND RIGOROUS RULINGS BY BETH HILLEL. THE BOOK⁴³ OF ECCLESIASTES DOES NOT DEFILE THE HANDS⁴⁴ ACCORDING TO THE OPINION OF BETH SHAMMAI; BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT DEFILES THE HANDS. WATER OF PURIFICATION WHICH HAS DONE ITS DUTY,⁴⁵ BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE CLEAN,⁴⁶ BUT BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCE IT UNCLEAR,⁴⁷ BLACK CUMMIN⁴⁸ BETH SHAMMAI PRONOUNCE NOT LIABLE TO BECOME UNCLEAR,⁴⁹ BUT BETH HILLEL PRONOUNCE IT LIABLE TO BECOME UNCLEAR. SO, TOO, WITH REGARD TO TITHES.⁵⁰

MISHNAH 4. R. ELIEZER CITES TWO INSTANCES OF LENIENT RULINGS BY BETH SHAMMAI AND RIGOROUS RULINGS BY BETH HILLEL. THE BLOOD⁵¹ OF A WOMAN AFTER CHILDBIRTH WHO HAS NOT IMMERSSED HERSELF,⁵² BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [IT IS] LIKE HER SPITTLE AND HER URINE.⁵³ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT CAUSES DEFILEMENT WHETHER WET OR DRY.⁵⁴ HOWEVER, THEY AGREE IN THE CASE OF THE BLOOD OF A WOMAN WHO BROUGHT FORTH WHEN SHE HAD AN ISSUE, THAT IT CAUSES DEFILEMENT WHETHER WET OR DRY.⁵⁵

MISHNAH 5. [IN THE CASE OF] FOUR⁵⁶ BROTHERS OF WHOM TWO WERE MARRIED TO TWO SISTERS, IF THOSE MARRIED TO THE SISTERS DIED, LO, THESE SHOULD PERFORM HALIZAH AND NOT MARRY THE BROTHERS-IN-LAW.⁵⁷ IF THE LATTER BESTIRRED THEMSELVES AND MARRIED THEM,⁵⁸ THEY MUST PUT THEM AWAY. R. ELIEZER SAYS IN THE NAME OF BETH SHAMMAI: THEY MAY KEEP THEM. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY MUST PUT THEM AWAY.⁵⁹

MISHNAH 6. AKABIA B. MAHALALEEL TESTIFIED CONCERNING FOUR THINGS. THEY SAID TO HIM: AKABIA, WITHDRAW THESE FOUR THINGS WHICH YOU SAY, AND WE WILL MAKE YOU FATHER OF THE COURT⁶⁰ IN ISRAEL. HE SAID TO THEM: IT IS BETTER FOR ME TO BE CALLED A FOOL⁶¹ ALL MY DAYS THAN THAT I SHOULD BECOME [EVEN] FOR ONE HOUR A WICKED MAN⁶² IN THE SIGHT OF GOD; AND⁶³ LET NOT MEN SAY: HE WITHDREW HIS OPINIONS FOR THE SAKE OF GETTING POWER. HE USED⁶⁴ TO PRONOUNCE UNCLEAR THE HAIR WHICH HAS BEEN LEFT OVER [IN LEPROSY],⁶⁵ AND YELLOW BLOOD;⁶⁶ BUT THE SAGES DECLARED THEM CLEAN. HE USED⁶⁷ TO PERMIT THE HAIR OF A FIRSTLING WHICH WAS BLEMISHED⁶⁸ AND WHICH HAD FALLEN OUT⁶⁹ AND HAD BEEN PUT IN A WINDOW,⁷⁰ THE FIRSTLING BEING SLAUGHTERED AFTERWARDS; BUT THE SAGES FORBID IT.⁷¹ HE USED TO SAY: A WOMAN PROSELYTE AND A MANUMITTED BONDWOMAN ARE NOT MADE TO DRINK OF THE WATER OF BITTERNESS.⁷² BUT THE SAGES SAY: THEY ARE MADE TO DRINK. THEY SAID TO HIM: IT HAPPENED IN THE CASE OF KARKEMITH, A MANUMITTED BONDWOMAN WHO WAS IN JERUSALEM, THAT SHEMAIAH AND ABTALION MADE HER TO DRINK. HE SAID TO THEM: IN SIMULATION⁷³ [ONLY] THEY MADE HER TO DRINK. WHEREUPON THEY EXCOMMUNICATED HIM;⁷⁴ AND HE DIED WHILE HE WAS UNDER EXCOMMUNICATION, AND THE COURT STONED⁷⁵ HIS COFFIN. R. JUDAH SAID: GOD FORBID [TO SAY] THAT AKABIA WAS EXCOMMUNICATED, FOR THE TEMPLE COURT WAS NEVER CLOSED⁷⁶ IN THE FACE OF ANY MAN IN ISRAEL WHO WAS EQUAL TO AKABIA B. MAHALALEEL IN WISDOM AND THE FEAR OF SIN. BUT WHOM DID THEY EXCOMMUNICATE? ELIEZER THE SON OF ENOCH WHO DEMURRED AGAINST THE LAWS CONCERNING THE PURIFYING OF THE HANDS.⁷⁷ AND WHEN HE DIED THE COURT SENT AND LAID A STONE ON HIS COFFIN. THIS TEACHES THAT WHOEVER IS EXCOMMUNICATED AND DIES WHILE UNDER EXCOMMUNICATION, HIS COFFIN IS STONED.

MISHNAH 7. IN THE HOUR OF HIS⁷⁸ DEATH HE SAID TO HIS SON⁷⁹ : WITHDRAW THE

FOUR OPINIONS WHICH I USED TO DECLARE. AND HE SAID TO HIM: WHY DID NOT YOU WITHDRAW THEM? HE SAID TO HIM: I HEARD THEM FROM THE MOUTH OF THE MANY, AND THEY HEARD [THE CONTRARY] FROM THE MOUTH OF THE MANY.⁸⁰ I STOOD FAST BY THE TRADITION WHICH I HEARD, AND THEY STOOD FAST BY THE TRADITION WHICH THEY HEARD. BUT YOU HAVE HEARD [MY TRADITION] FROM THE MOUTH OF A SINGLE INDIVIDUAL⁸¹ AND [THEIR TRADITION] FROM THE MOUTH OF THE MANY. IT IS BETTER TO LEAVE THE OPINION OF THE SINGLE INDIVIDUAL AND TO HOLD BY THE OPINION OF THE MANY, HE SAID TO HIM: FATHER COMMEND ME TO YOUR COLLEAGUES. HE SAID TO HIM: I WILL NOT COMMEND YOU. HE SAID TO HIM: HAVE YOU FOUND IN ME ANY WRONG? HE SAID: NO; YOUR OWN DEEDS WILL CAUSE YOU TO BE NEAR,⁸² AND YOUR OWN DEEDS WILL CAUSE YOU TO BE FAR.⁸²

(1) Cf. IV, 1, n. 1.

(2) Of an animal which died of itself or which was slaughtered in a manner that rendered it unfit for food; cf. Lev. XI, 24ff.

(3) The blood is not considered part of the carcass; cf. infra VIII, 1.

(4) If the egg has a fully formed hard shell. It is then considered distinct from the bird.

(5) Cf. supra II, 2, n. 8.

(6) The bird was already forbidden when the egg was still an inseparable part of its body.

(7) Cf. Nid. IV, 3.

(8) Of menstruation, or of a flux; cf. Lev. XV, 19, 25.

(9) From the expression, the children of Israel, Lev. XV, 2, it is deduced that all the laws concerning impurity contained in that chapter apply only to Israelites.

(10) Cf. Lev. XII, 4, 5.

(11) Cf. Lev. XIII, 2ff. Her blood is not affected by her leprosy.

(12) Viz., of the Gentile woman, or of the leprous woman after childbirth in the period of her purification.

(13) Their spittle and urine are deemed unclean by a Rabbinical ruling (as distinguished from the Biblical law), even according to Beth Shammai. But unlike blood of menstruation or of a flux, which confer defilement also when dried up, spittle and urine confer defilement only when wet. And Beth Hillel hold that the menstruous blood of a Gentile woman and the 'blood of purity' of a leprous woman are also unclean only when wet, but not when dried up; cf. infra 4, n. 5.

(14) Cf. Sheb. IV, 2.

(15) The Year of Release; cf. supra IV, 3, n. 5.

(16) To the owner, though the owner is forbidden to look upon his fruit as his own.

(17) That one may not get into the habit of entering also at other times another man's field and eating its fruit without the owner's knowledge. Some texts omit 'except'. The reason of the prohibition will then be the one given in the last note.

(18) Which was damaged by a hole and then repaired by tying it up; cf. Kel. XXVI, 4.

(19) By body-pressure uncleanness (מדרם) if used as pillow or seat; cf. Kel. XX, 1; and above I, 11, n. 10.

(20) I.e., it does not deflate even when the knot is removed.

(21) If the hole is stopped up by some other means, so as to retain the liquid; cf. Kel. XVII, 2.

(22) Cf. Hul. VIII, 1.

(23) The prohibition against eating fowl's flesh boiled in milk is not Biblical but only Rabbinic; cf. Hul. VIII, 4. Hence Beth Shammai hold that while the Rabbis have forbidden the eating of cattle's flesh with cheese as a precaution lest it may lead to the eating of cattle's flesh boiled in milk, they have not forbidden also the eating of fowl's flesh with cheese, since it can only lead to eating fowl's flesh boiled in milk, which itself is merely a Rabbinic injunction.

(24) They hold that eating fowl's flesh with cheese may lead to eating cattle's flesh boiled in milk.

(25) Cf. Ter. I, 4.

(26) From Num. XVIII, 27, it is inferred that terumah and the produce for which it is given must both be in the same stage of preparation as a food.

(27) Cf. Kil. IV, 5.

(28) קידש, 'he has sanctified', an expression derived from Deut. XXII, 9.

(29) The controversy turns on whether the minimum quantity of fruit of the vineyard (Deut. ibid.) consists of one row of vines, or of two rows.

(30) Cf. Hal. I, 6.

(31) Made of flour mixed with boiling water.

(32) It is not counted as 'bread' (לֶחֶם . Num. XV, 19).

(33) Cf. I, 2, n. 2.

(34) Cf. Mik. V, 6.

(35) For the purpose of purification; cf. I, 3, n. 7.

(36) A running pool formed by rain water coming down from a hill.

(37) They hold that rain water must be stationary in a cavity to be fit for ritual immersion.

(38) Cf. Pes. VIII, 8.

(39) After the circumcision, in order to complete his proselytism; cf. Yeb. 46a.

(40) Cf. Ex. XII, 48.

(41) He is like one who has corpse defilement, and requires to be sprinkled with the waters of purification, in accordance with Num. XIX, 19.

(42) Some texts read 'Simeon'.

(43) Cf. Yad. III, 5.

(44) It is not considered inspired Scripture; cf. Yad. IV, 6.

(45) After it has been sprinkled upon the unclean; cf. Num. XIX, 9, 18 f.

(46) Cf. Par. XII, 4.

(47) In accordance with Num. XIX, 21; cf. Yoma 14a.

(48) Cf. 'Uk. III, 6.

(49) It is not eaten by itself, and therefore it is not counted a 'food' (אֹכֶל , Lev. XI, 34).

(50) Beth Shammai exempt it from tithes, as not being a 'food'; and Beth Hillel do not exempt it.

(51) Cf. Nid. IV, 3.

(52) After an interval of seven days from the birth of a male child, and of fourteen days from the birth of a female child; Lev. XII, 2, 5.

(53) It defiles only when wet; cf. supra 1, n. 13.

(54) Without immersion it is counted as blood of menstruation.

(55) Since in accordance with Lev. XV, 28, she has to count seven clean days in addition to the period of impurity due to the childbirth.

(56) Cf. Yeb. III, 2.

(57) Because both sisters are tied in a marriage relationship to each of the surviving brothers, therefore the levirate marriage of either sister to either surviving brother comes within the prohibition of marrying a wife's sister; cf. supra IV, 9, n. 5.

(58) Each surviving brother married one of the sisters.

(59) Cf. Yeb. 28a.

(60) Ah Beth din, Second President of the Great Sanhedrin; v. Ab. IV (Sonc. ed.) p. 3, n. 8.

(61) For refusing the offer.

(62) By denying the truth of my tradition.

(63) An additional reason for refusing the offer (v. Tosaf Yom Tob).

(64) Cf. Neg. V, 3.

(65) A hair was turned white in a leprous white spot, rendering it unclean, in accordance with Lev. XIII, 3. Then the leprosy was healed, and the man became clean. But the white hair remained until finally another white spot appeared in the same place of the body. The Sages declare it clean, since the whiteness of the hair existed before this new white spot appeared, while Akabia declares it unclean.

(66) Cf. Nid. II, 6. The Sages hold that to be unclean blood must be red in colour.

(67) Cf. Bek. III, 4.

(68) And had therefore been declared permitted to be slaughtered outside the Temple; cf. II, 2, n. 6.

(69) Cutting its hair, or wool, deliberately is forbidden, although it is blemished.

(70) Or in a niche in the wall, in order to preserve it until the animal should be slaughtered.

(71) Lest it should lead to delaying the slaughtering of the firstling for the sake of profiting from its hair or wool.

(72) Cf. Num. V, 18ff. He inferred from the expression, in the midst of thy people (Num. ibid. 21) that the law applied only to Israelitish women.

(73) דִּינְמָה, Gr. . They really gave her other water, but similar in colour to the water of bitter ness. Others explain: 'Men who were like unto her made her to drink,' i.e. Shemaiah and Abtalion were themselves also of Gentile extraction, therefore they treated Karkemith as if she was an Israelite.

(74) Because he defamed the honour of Shemaiah and Abtalion.

(75) By placing a big stone upon it; cf. infra.

(76) On the eve of the Passover, when the Passover lamb was sacrificed in relays, in order to prevent overcrowding; cf. Pes. V, 5.

(77) Cf. Yad. III, 2.

(78) Akabia's.

(79) [Derenbourg, Essai, p. 483, identifies him with Jose b. Akabia (Pes. 113b; Yoma 52b).]

(80) Cf. supra I, 5. The controversy between Akabia and the Sages was as to what had been the opinion of the majority of the Sages before them. [Halevy, op. cit. I, 362 and II, 292, accounts this controversy to the breaking up of all Central Authority during the civil war that characterised the days of the last Hasmonean rulers. Lauterbach, (J.Q.R., N.S. VI, 66, n. 59) ignoring Halevy, involves himself in unnecessary difficulties.]

(81) Akabia himself, as opposed to the Sages.

(82) Near to my colleagues; far from my colleagues; i.e., your own conduct will win you friends or alienate them.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. R. JUDAH B. BABA TESTIFIED CONCERNING FIVE THINGS: THAT WOMEN WHO ARE MINORS ARE MADE¹ TO DECLARE AN ANNULMENT OF THEIR MARRIAGE;² THAT A WOMAN IS ALLOWED TO RE-MARRY ON THE EVIDENCE OF ONE WITNESS;³ THAT A COCK WAS STONED⁴ IN JERUSALEM BECAUSE IT HAD KILLED A HUMAN BEING;⁵ AND ABOUT WINE FORTY DAYS OLD,⁶ THAT IT WAS USED AS A LIBATION ON THE ALTAR; AND ABOUT THE CONTINUAL OFFERING OF THE MORNING, THAT IT IS OFFERED AT THE FOURTH HOUR.⁷

MISHNAH 2. R. JOSHUA AND R. NEHUNIA B. ELINATHAN, A MAN OF KEFAR HABABLI,⁸ TESTIFIED CONCERNING A LIMB⁹ FROM A CORPSE THAT IT IS UNCLEAR;¹⁰ WHEREAS R. ELIEZER SAYS: THEY DECLARED [THIS] ONLY OF A LIMB FROM A LIVING [MAN]. THEY SAID TO HIM: IS NOT THERE AN INFERENCE FROM THE MINOR TO THE MAJOR:¹¹ IF IN THE CASE OF A LIVING MAN [WHO IS HIMSELF CLEAN] A LIMB SEVERED FROM HIM IS UNCLEAR, HOW MUCH MORE IN THE CASE OF A CORPSE [WHICH IS ITSELF UNCLEAR] SHOULD A LIMB SEVERED FROM IT BE UNCLEAR! HE SAID TO THEM: THEY HAVE [NEVERTHELESS] DECLARED IT ONLY OF A LIMB FROM A LIVING MAN. ANOTHER ANSWER¹² IS: THE DEFILEMENT OF LIVING MEN IS GREATER THAN THE DEFILEMENT OF CORPSES, BECAUSE A LIVING MAN¹³ CAUSES WHAT IS UNDER HIM¹⁴ TO BECOME A 'COUCH' AND A 'SEAT'¹⁵ FOR THE PURPOSE OF DEFILING [ANOTHER] MAN AND HIS GARMENTS, AND [HE CAUSES ALSO] WHAT IS OVER HIM¹⁶ [TO BECOME] A NON- CONTIGUOUS MEDIUM¹⁷ FOR THE PURPOSE OF DEFILING FOODS AND LIQUIDS- WHICH IS DEFILEMENT THAT A CORPSE DOES NOT CAUSE.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM A LIMB OF A LIVING MAN, R. ELIEZER PRONOUNCES UNCLEAR¹⁹ AND R. JOSHUA AND R. NEHUNIA PRONOUNCE CLEAN. A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM A LIMB OF A LIVING MAN, R. NEHUNIA PRONOUNCES UNCLEAR²⁰ AND R. ELIEZER AND R. JOSHUA PRONOUNCE CLEAN. THEY SAID TO R. ELIEZER: WHAT REASON HAVE YOU FOUND FOR PRONOUNCING UNCLEAR AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM A LIMB OF A LIVING MAN? HE SAID TO THEM: WE FIND²¹ THAT A LIMB FROM A LIVING MAN IS LIKE AN ENTIRE CORPSE. AS IN THE CASE OF A

CORPSE, AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM IT IS UNCLEAN, SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF A LIMB FROM A LIVING MAN AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM IT MUST BE UNCLEAN. THEY SAID TO HIM: NO!²² WHEN YOU PRONOUNCE UNCLEAN AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM A CORPSE, IT IS BECAUSE YOU HAVE PRONOUNCED UNCLEAN A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM IT. BUT HOW CAN YOU ALSO PRONOUNCE UNCLEAN AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM A LIMB OF A LIVING MAN, SEEING THAT YOU HAVE PRONOUNCED CLEAN²³ A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM IT? THEY SAID TO R. NEHUNIA: WHAT REASON HAVE YOU FOUND FOR PRONOUNCING UNCLEAN A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM A LIMB OF A LIVING MAN? HE SAID TO THEM: WE FIND²¹ THAT A LIMB FROM A LIVING MAN IS LIKE AN ENTIRE CORPSE. AS IN THE CASE OF A CORPSE, A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM IT IS UNCLEAN,²⁰ SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF A LIMB FROM A LIVING MAN, A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM IT MUST BE UNCLEAN. THEY SAID TO HIM: NO!²² WHEN YOU PRONOUNCE UNCLEAN A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM A CORPSE, IT IS BECAUSE YOU HAVE PRONOUNCED UNCLEAN AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM IT. BUT HOW CAN YOU ALSO PRONOUNCE UNCLEAN A BARLEY-GRAIN'S QUANTITY OF BONE SEVERED FROM A LIMB OF A LIVING MAN, SEEING THAT YOU HAVE PRONOUNCED CLEAN²⁴ AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH SEVERED FROM IT? THEY SAID TO R. ELIEZER: WHAT REASON HAVE YOU FOUND FOR DIVIDING YOUR STANDARDS? EITHER PRONOUNCE THEM BOTH²⁵ UNCLEAN, OR PRONOUNCE THEM BOTH²⁵ CLEAN! HE SAID TO THEM: GREATER IS THE DEFILEMENT OF FLESH THAN THE DEFILEMENT OF BONES, FOR THE DEFILEMENT OF FLESH APPLIES BOTH TO CARCASSES AND TO CREEPING THINGS,²⁶ BUT IT IS NOT SO IN THE CASE OF BONES. ANOTHER ANSWER IS: A LIMB²⁷ WHICH HAS ON IT THE PROPER QUANTITY²⁸ OF FLESH CAUSES DEFILEMENT BY TOUCHING AND BY CARRYING AND BY BEING UNDER THE SAME ROOF-SPACE; IF THE FLESH IS DIMINISHED IT IS STILL UNCLEAN,²⁹ WHILE IF THE BONE IS DIMINISHED IT IS CLEAN.³⁰ THEY SAID TO R. NEHUNIA: WHAT REASON HAVE YOU FOUND FOR DIVIDING YOUR STANDARDS? EITHER PRONOUNCE THEM BOTH²⁵ UNCLEAN, OR PRONOUNCE THEM BOTH²⁵ CLEAN! HE SAID TO THEM: GREATER IS THE DEFILEMENT OF BONES THAN THE DEFILEMENT OF FLESH, FOR FLESH SEVERED FROM A LIVING MAN IS CLEAN, WHEREAS A LIMB SEVERED FROM HIM, WHILE IN ITS NATURAL CONDITION,³¹ IS UNCLEAN. ANOTHER ANSWER IS: AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY OF FLESH³² CAUSES DEFILEMENT BY TOUCHING AND BY CARRYING AND BY BEING UNDER THE SAME ROOF-SPACE; AND A MAJORITY³³ OF A DEAD MAN'S BONES CAUSES DEFILEMENT BY TOUCHING AND BY CARRYING AND BY BEING UNDER THE SAME ROOF-SPACE; IF FLESH IS DIMINISHED IT IS CLEAN, BUT IF A MAJORITY OF THE BONES IS DIMINISHED, ALTHOUGH IT DOES NOT CAUSE DEFILEMENT BY BEING UNDER THE SAME ROOF-SPACE, IT YET CAUSES DEFILEMENT BY TOUCHING AND BY CARRYING.³⁴ ANOTHER ANSWER IS: ANY FLESH OF A CORPSE LESS THAN AN OLIVE'S QUANTITY³⁵ IS CLEAN, BUT BONES FORMING THE GREATER PORTION OF THE BODY'S BUILD³⁶ OR THE GREATER PORTION OF THE NUMBER OF THE CORPSE'S BONES, EVEN THOUGH THEY DO NOT FILL A QUARTER-KAB ARE YET UNCLEAN.³⁷ THEY SAID TO R. JOSHUA: WHAT REASON HAVE YOU FOUND FOR PRONOUNCING THEM BOTH CLEAN? HE SAID TO THEM: NO! WHEN YOU PRONOUNCE UNCLEAN IN THE CASE OF A CORPSE, IT IS BECAUSE THE RULES OF 'MAJORITY',³⁸ 'QUARTER-KAB', AND 'DECAYED MATTER'³⁹ APPLY TO IT. BUT HOW CAN YOU SAY THE SAME OF A LIVING MAN, SEEING THAT THE RULES OF MAJORITY', 'QUARTER-KAB', AND 'DECAYED MATTER' DO NOT APPLY TO HIM?⁴⁰

- (1) In circumstances such as those described in n. 2.
- (2) Girl minors when fatherless may be given in marriage by their mother or brothers. But unlike the marriage of a minor arranged by her father (cf. Deut. XXII, 16), the marriage of a minor arranged by her mother or brothers has validity only in Rabbinic law, but not in Biblical law. Therefore the minor has the right of declaring מִיָּאֵן or a 'Refusal' to live with the husband given her, and thereby annulling her marriage without the formalities of a regular divorce; cf. Yeb. XIII, 1ff. Now, if two brothers were married to two sisters, one of age and the other a minor given in marriage by her mother or brothers, and the husband of the older sister died without issue, then the husband of the minor is bound by Biblical law to marry the minor's sister. Therefore the continuation of the minor as his wife under merely Rabbinical law now comes within the Biblical prohibition of marrying two sisters (cf. IV, 9, n. 5; V, 5, n. 9). In such a case the child-wife is persuaded to declare מִיָּאֵן thus enabling her husband to perform by her sister the duty of levirate marriage. This testimony accords with the opinion of R. Eliezer, Yeb. XIII, 7. Another such case may arise in the circumstances described in Yeb. XIII, 11.
- (3) Who testifies to the death of her husband; cf. VIII, 5; Yeb. XVI, 7.
- (4) Under the law of Ex. XXI, 28, although that law specifies only an ox causing death by goring.
- (5) It put out the brain of a child by pecking it with its beak.
- (6) But under forty days it is not permitted; cf. B.B. 97a.
- (7) As late as the fourth hour of the day. This happened during a siege of Jerusalem by the Syrian Greeks, when one day no lamb could be obtained for the morning sacrifice till the fourth hour.
- (8) Bablia, 8 miles S. of Zidon.
- (9) A whole limb, even when less than the size of an olive; cf. III, 1, n. 4.
- (10) It confers 'tent' uncleanness, i.e., by being under the same roof-space; cf. I, 7, n. 1.
- (11) קל וחומר.
- (12) Of R. Eliezer. He refutes the proposition that the dead is more unclean than the living.
- (13) When he has an issue.
- (14) However many articles there may be under him, one below the other, they all receive an equal degree of defilement through the pressure of the man's body (מדרם); cf. I, 11, n. 10.
- (15) Cf. Lev. XV, 4' 6.
- (16) Whatever the number of articles, one above the other.
- (17) מדרף . Unlike defilement by body-pressure (מדרם), defilement through a non-contiguous medium can be transmitted only to food and drink, but not to man and utensils.
- (18) For corpse defilement diminishes in strength as it passes from one article to another; cf. II, 1, nn. 3, 4.
- (19) Just like a whole limb severed from a living man (cf. supra 2; Oh. I, 7), it defiles one who touches or carries it, or is under the same roof-space; cf. infra.
- (20) Only by touching or carrying; cf. Oh. II, 3.
- (21) Cf. Oh. II, 1.
- (22) The argument is fallacious, since according to your opinion the defilement of a corpse is greater than that of a living man.
- (23) Supra, together with R. Joshua against R. Nehunia.
- (24) Supra, together with R. Joshua against R. Eliezer.
- (25) Both an olive's quantity of flesh severed from a living man, and a barley-grain's quantity of bone severed from a living man.
- (26) An olive's quantity of flesh from a carcass and a lentil's quantity of flesh from creeping things cause defilement, but their bones do not cause defilement in any quantity.
- (27) From a living man; or, according to R. Joshua and R. Nehunia, also from a corpse.
- (28) Cf. Kel. II, 5.
- (29) It defiles by touching and carrying, though not by being under the same roof. space; cf. Kel. loc. cit.
- (30) It is no longer counted a limb.
- (31) With flesh, sinew, and bone.
- (32) From a corpse.
- (33) Cf. I, 7, n. 4.
- (34) For defilement by touching and carrying, a quantity of a barley-grain is sufficient.
- (35) E.g., in the case of an abortion; cf. Hul. 89b.

(36) Cf. I, 7, n. 3.

(37) They defile by being under the same roof-space; cf. I, 7, n. 5.

(38) A majority of the body's bones.

(39) A large spoonful (or two handfuls) of decayed matter of a corpse, which was buried naked in a closed marble coffin, causes defilement by carrying and by being under the same roof-space, but not by touching; cf. Oh. II, 1.

(40) Therefore a living man has less power of defilement than a corpse.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. R.¹ JOSHUA AND R. SADOK TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE REDEMPTION-LAMB OF THE FIRSTLING OF AN ASS,² THAT IF IT DIED³ THE PRIEST HAS NO CLAIM THEREIN,⁴ WHEREAS R. ELIEZER SAYS: THE OWNER MUST BEAR THE RESPONSIBILITY AS WITH THE FIVE SELA'S⁵ [IN THE CASE] OF A [FIRSTBORN] SON. BUT THE SAGES SAY: HE BEARS NO RESPONSIBILITY ANY MORE THAN IN THE CASE OF THE REDEMPTION OF SECOND TITHES.⁶

MISHNAH 2. R.⁷ ZADOK TESTIFIED CONCERNING BRINE OF UNCLEAN⁸ LOCUSTS THAT IT IS CLEAN,⁹ WHEREAS THE FIRST MISHNAH [SAID]:¹⁰ UNCLEAN LOCUSTS THAT HAVE BEEN PRESERVED TOGETHER WITH CLEAN LOCUSTS DO NOT MAKE THEIR¹¹ BRINE UNFIT.

MISHNAH 3. R.¹² ZADOK TESTIFIED CONCERNING FLOWING¹³ WATER WHICH EXCEEDED IN QUANTITY DRIPPING¹⁴ WATER; THAT IT WAS VALID. THERE WAS SUCH A CASE AT BIRATH HAPPALIYYA,¹⁵ AND WHEN THE CASE CAME BEFORE THE SAGES THEY DECLARED IT VALID.

MISHNAH 4. R. ZADOK TESTIFIED CONCERNING FLOWING WATER WHICH WAS MADE TO RUN IN A STREAM THROUGH NUT-LEAVES,¹⁶ THAT IT WAS VALID.¹⁷ THERE WAS SUCH A CASE AT AHALIYYA,¹⁸ AND WHEN THE CASE CAME BEFORE [THE SAGES IN] THE CHAMBER OF HEWN STONE¹⁹ THEY DECLARED IT VALID.

MISHNAH 5. R.²⁰ JOSHUA AND R. YAKIM, A MAN OF HADAR,²¹ TESTIFIED CONCERNING A JAR,²² WITH ASHES OF PURIFICATION²³ WHICH WAS PUT OVER A CREEPING THING, THAT THEY²⁴ WERE UNCLEAN, WHEREAS R. ELIEZER HAD PRONOUNCED THEM CLEAN. R.²⁵ PAPIAS TESTIFIED CONCERNING ONE WHO HAD VOWED TWO NAZIRITESHIPS,²⁶ THAT IF HE CUT HIS HAIR²⁷ AFTER THE FIRST ONE ON THE THIRTIETH DAY, HE COULD CUT HIS HAIR AFTER THE SECOND ONE ON THE SIXTIETH²⁸ DAY, THOUGH IF HE CUT HIS HAIR ON THE FIFTY-NINTH DAY HE HAS ALSO DISCHARGED HIS DUTY, FOR THE THIRTIETH DAY IS CREDITED TO HIM TOWARDS THE REQUIRED NUMBER.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. R.³⁰ JOSHUA AND R. PAPIAS TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE YOUNG OF A PEACE-OFFERING, THAT IT COULD BE BROUGHT AS A PEACE-OFFERING,³¹ WHEREAS R. ELIEZER SAYS THAT THE YOUNG OF A PEACE-OFFERING COULD NOT BE BROUGHT AS A PEACE-OFFERING.³² BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT MAY BE BROUGHT. R. PAPIAS SAID: I TESTIFY THAT WE HAD A COW, A PEACE-OFFERING, AND WE ATE IT AS PASSOVER, AND ITS YOUNG WE ATE AS A PEACE-OFFERING AT THE [NEXT] FESTIVAL.³³

MISHNAH 7. THE SAME³⁴ TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE BOARDS³⁵ OF BAKERS, THAT THEY ARE [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN, WHEREAS R. ELIEZER DECLARES THEM NOT³⁶ [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN. THE SAME³⁷ TESTIFIED CONCERNING

AN OVEN³⁸ WHICH WAS CUT INTO RINGS AND SAND WAS PUT BETWEEN ONE RING AND THE OTHER RING,³⁹ THAT IT IS [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN,⁴⁰ WHEREAS R. ELIEZER DECLARES IT NOT [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN.⁴¹ THE SAME TESTIFIED THAT THE YEAR MAY BE INTERCALATED⁴² THROUGHOUT THE WHOLE OF ADAR,⁴³ WHEREAS THEY USED TO SAY: ONLY TILL PURIM.⁴⁴ THE SAME TESTIFIED THAT THE YEAR MAY BE INTERCALATED⁴⁵ CONDITIONALLY. THERE WAS SUCH A CASE WITH RABBAN GAMALIEL WHO WENT TO TAKE AUTHORISATION FROM THE GOVERNOR IN SYRIA AND HE DELAYED IN COMING BACK; AND THEY INTERCALATED THE YEAR ON CONDITION THAT RABBAN GAMALIEL SHOULD APPROVE; AND WHEN HE CAME BACK HE SAID: I APPROVE, AND THE YEAR WAS THEREBY DULY INTERCALATED.

MISHNAH 8. MENAHEM B. SIGNA⁴⁶ TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE LEDGE⁴⁷ ATTACHED TO AN OLIVE-BOILER'S CAULDRON, THAT IT IS [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN; AND CONCERNING THAT OF DYERS,⁴⁸ THAT IT IS NOT [LIABLE TO BECOME] UNCLEAN, WHEREAS THEY USED TO SAY: THE RULE IS THE REVERSE.⁴⁹

MISHNAH 9. R. NEHUNIA⁵⁰ THE SON OF GUDGADA TESTIFIED CONCERNING A DEAF-MUTE WHOSE FATHER HAD GIVEN HER IN MARRIAGE,⁵¹ THAT SHE COULD BE PUT AWAY WITH A BILL OF DIVORCEMENT;⁵² AND CONCERNING A MINOR, DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE⁵³ AND MARRIED⁵⁴ TO A PRIEST, THAT SHE MIGHT EAT TERUMAH,⁵⁵ AND IF SHE DIED HER HUSBAND INHERITED FROM HER; AND CONCERNING A STOLEN BEAM THAT HAD BEEN BUILT INTO A PALACE,⁵⁶ THAT IT MIGHT BE RESTORED BY THE PAYMENT OF ITS VALUE;⁵⁷ AND CONCERNING A SIN-OFFERING THAT HAD BEEN STOLEN, AND THIS WAS NOT KNOWN TO MANY,⁵⁸ THAT IT MADE DUE ATONEMENT⁵⁹ BECAUSE OF THE WELFARE OF THE ALTAR.⁶⁰

(1) Cf. Bek. I, 6.

(2) Cf. Ex. Xlii, 13.

(3) After it was designated for the redemption, and before it was presented to the priest.

(4) The owner may hand over to the priest the dead lamb, but is not bound to give him another lamb.

(5) The redemption money of the first born son; cf. Ex. loc. cit.; and Num. III, 47. If the father set aside this redemption money and it was lost, he has to find other money; cf. Bek. VIII, 8.

(6) If the tithes were exchanged for money and the money lost, the owner is not bound to make it good.

(7) Cf. Ter. X, 9.

(8) I.e., prohibited as food; cf. Lev. XI, 20.

(9) And may be eaten.

(10) V. Sanh. (Sonc. ed.) p. 263, n. 7.

(11) Of the clean locusts. R. zadok adds that one may even eat the brine of the prohibited locusts themselves.

(12) Cf. Mik. V., 4.

(13) I.e., from a running river or stream.

(14) Rainwater, or, according to Maimonides, water dropping intermittently from a high spring. Mik. loc. cit. lays down that flowing water is counted like 'living water' of a spring, and can be used in the preparation of the Waters of Purification (Num. XIX, 17), the cleansing of a man who had an issue (Lev. XV, 13), and for a ritual bath in any quantity; while dripping water may not be used as Water of Purification, or for the cleansing of a man who had an issue, and if used as a ritual bath it must have no less than forty se'ahs in quantity (cf. I, 3, n. 7). If, then, in a mixture of these two kinds of water, the flowing water is more in quantity than the dripping water, the whole mixture is deemed 'living water'.

(15) [Birfilia, about six miles E. of Ramala (Horowitz, Palestine, p. 118).]

(16) Its flow was directed to a particular spot by means of a channel made of the wide leaves of a walnut tree.

(17) It retains the character of flowing water for the purposes mentioned p. 42, n. 14, and is not deemed to have passed through a receptacle (מים שאובין ; cf. I, 3) by running through the channel of leaves.

(18) [Horowitz, op. cit., p. 22, identifies it with Bait Ilu, near Jerusalem.]

- (22) Of earthenware.
- (23) Cf. Num. XIX, 9, 17.
- (24) The ashes, since they can no longer be said to have been kept in a 'clean Place', Num. loc. cit. The jar itself remains clean, because an earthenware vessel does not contract uncleanness by outward contact; cf. Kel. II, 1.
- (25) Cf. Naz. III, 2.
- (26) Each of which is normally of a duration of thirty days; cf. IV, 12, n. 7,
- (27) In accordance with Num. VI, 18. He should really have waited till the full completion of the thirty days, viz. till the thirty-first day.
- (28) Which forms an interval of full thirty days since the last cutting of his hair.
- (29) Of both periods of thirty days.
- (30) Cf. Tem. III, 1.
- (31) It is itself also holy like its dam, and cannot be put to common use.
- (32) But it should be allowed to starve to death. R. Eliezer holds that permission to offer the young may lead people to delay the sacrificing of an animal as peace offering until it gives birth to its young, and this would involve a transgression of the command of Deut. XXIII, 22.
- (33) בִּהַג viz., on the Feast of Weeks. Raba (R.H. 6a) renders בִּהַג according to its usual meaning of the Feast of Tabernacles, and assumes that owing to illness the young animal could not be offered on the intervening Feast of Weeks.
- (34) Cf. Kel. XV, 2.
- (35) On which the unbaked loaves are placed to allow them to rise; or, according to others, on which the dough is rolled.
- (36) They are not considered 'utensils', because they are flat. But all the Sages agree that baking boards for ordinary household use are not liable to uncleanness. [Because unlike those of the bakers they are put to all kinds of use (Raabad).]

- (48) Dyers are careful not to allow the boiling dye to rise to the earthenware ledge, for fear the dye may become soiled. Therefore the ledge is not really needed for their cauldron.
- (49) It was thought that dyers had greater need of the ledge to prevent the boiling dye from running over, since the dye was more valuable than the liquid of olive-boilers.

(58) Three persons.

(59) The thief need not bring another sin-offering, and the priests who ate of its flesh did not commit a sin unwittingly.

(60) The priests might refuse to sacrifice the offering of a man who was unknown to them, from fear that the animal was stolen, and the altar would thus suffer loss.

Mishna - Mas. Eduyyot Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. R. JOSHUA B. BATHYRA TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE BLOOD OF CARCASSES THAT IT WAS CLEAN.¹ R. SIMEON B. BATHYRA TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE ASHES OF PURIFICATION,² THAT IF A DEFILED PERSON HAD TOUCHED PART THEREOF HE HAD DEFILED THE WHOLE OF THEM.³ R. AKIBA ADDED IN REGARD TO THE FINE FLOUR,⁴ THE INCENSE, THE FRANKINCENSE, AND THE COALS,⁵ THAT IF A TEBUL. YOM⁶ HAD TOUCHED PART THEREOF HE HAD MADE THE WHOLE OF THEM UNFIT.⁷

MISHNAH 2. R. JUDAH B. BABA AND R. JUDAH THE PRIEST TESTIFIED CONCERNING A MINOR,⁸ THE DAUGHTER OF AN ISRAELITE AND MARRIED TO A PRIEST, THAT SHE COULD EAT TERUMAH AS SOON AS SHE ENTERED THE BRIDAL CHAMBER EVEN THOUGH SHE HAD NO MARITAL INTERCOURSE. R. JOSE THE PRIEST AND R. ZECHARIAH B. HA-KAZZAB TESTIFIED CONCERNING A YOUNG GIRL WHO HAD BEEN GIVEN AS A SECURITY⁹ IN ASHKELON, AND WHOM THE MEMBERS OF HER FAMILY¹⁰ HAD PUT AWAY,¹¹ THOUGH HER WITNESSES¹² TESTIFIED FOR HER THAT SHE HAD NOT SECLUDED HERSELF¹³ [WITH ANY MAN] AND THAT SHE HAD NOT BEEN DEFILED; THAT THE SAGES SAID TO THEM: IF YOU BELIEVE THAT SHE WAS GIVEN AS A SECURITY, BELIEVE ALSO THAT SHE DID NOT SECLUDE HERSELF [WITH ANY MAN] AND THAT SHE WAS NOT DEFILED; AND IF YOU DO NOT BELIEVE THAT SHE DID NOT SECLUDE HERSELF AND THAT SHE WAS NOT DEFILED, NEITHER BELIEVE THAT SHE WAS GIVEN AS A SECURITY.

MISHNAH 3. R. JOSHUA AND R. JUDAH THE SON OF BATHYRA TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE WIDOW OF [A MAN

BELONGING TO] A FAMILY OF DOUBTFUL PURITY,¹⁴ THAT SHE WAS FIT TO MARRY INTO THE PRIESTHOOD, SINCE A FAMILY OF DOUBTFUL PURITY WAS FIT TO DECLARE WHO¹⁵ WAS UNCLEAR¹⁶ AND WHO¹⁵ CLEAN,¹⁶ WHO WAS TO BE PUT AWAY¹⁷ AND WHO¹⁵ WAS TO BE BROUGHT NEAR.¹⁷ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID: WE ACCEPT YOUR TESTIMONY, BUT WHAT CAN WE DO SINCE RABBAN JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI ORDAINED THAT COURTS SHOULD NOT BE COMMISSIONED FOR THIS PURPOSE?¹⁸ THE PRIESTS WOULD LISTEN TO YOU CONCERNING THOSE WHO MIGHT BE PUT AWAY, BUT NOT CONCERNING THOSE WHO MIGHT BE BROUGHT NEAR!¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. R.²⁰ JOSE B. JO'EZER, A MAN OF ZEREDA,²¹ TESTIFIED CONCERNING THE AYIL²² -LOCUST, THAT IT IS CLEAN; AND CONCERNING LIQUID²³ IN THE SLAUGHTER-HOUSE,²⁴ THAT IT IS CLEAN, AND THAT ONE WHO TOUCHES A CORPSE IS UNCLEAR.²⁵ AND THEY CALLED HIM 'JOSE THE PERMITTER'.

MISHNAH 5. R. AKIBA TESTIFIED IN THE NAME OF NEHEMIAH, A MAN OF BETH DELI,²⁶ THAT A WOMAN IS ALLOWED TO RE-MARRY ON THE EVIDENCE OF ONE WITNESS.²⁷ R. MISHNAH 7. R. JOSHUA SAID: I HAVE RECEIVED A TRADITION FROM RABBAN JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI, WHO HEARD IT FROM HIS TEACHER, AND HIS TEACHER [HEARD IT] FROM HIS TEACHER, AS A HALACHAH [GIVEN] TO MOSES FROM SINAI,⁴¹ THAT ELIJAH⁴² WILL NOT COME TO PRONOUNCE UNCLEAN OR TO PRONOUNCE CLEAN, TO PUT AWAY OR TO BRING NEAR,⁴³ BUT TO PUT AWAY THOSE BROUGHT NEAR BY FORCE AND TO BRING NEAR THOSE PUT AWAY BY FORCE. Mishna - Mas. Hallah Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. FIVE SPECIES [OF CEREALS] ARE SUBJECT TO [THE LAW OF] HALLAH.¹ WHEAT, BARLEY, SPELT, OATS AND RYE.² THESE ARE SUBJECT TO HALLAH, AND [SMALL QUANTITIES OF DOUGH MADE OF THE DIFFERENT SPECIES] ARE RECKONED TOGETHER ONE WITH ANOTHER [AS ONE QUANTITY]³ AND ARE ALSO SUBJECT TO THE PROHIBITION OF [THE CONSUMPTION OF] 'NEW' [PRODUCE]⁴ PRIOR TO THE OMER,⁵ AND TO [THE PROHIBITION OF] REAPING PRIOR TO PASSOVER.⁶ IF THEY TOOK ROOT PRIOR TO THE OMER, THE OMER RELEASES THEM;⁷ IF NOT, THEY ARE PROHIBITED UNTIL THE NEXT OMER HAS COME.

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE HAS EATEN ON THE PASSOVER AN OLIVE-SIZE⁸ OF UNLEAVENED BREAD [MADE] OF THESE [CEREALS], HE HAS FULFILLED HIS OBLIGATION;⁹ [IF ONE HAS EATEN ON THE PASSOVER] AN OLIVE-SIZE OF LEAVEN [MADE OF THESE CEREALS], HE HAS INCURRED THE PENALTY OF KARETH.¹⁰ IF ONE OF THESE [CEREALS, HAVING BECOME LEAVENED,] HAS BECOME MIXED WITH ANY OTHER SPECIES, ONE TRANSGRESSES THE [LAWS OF] PASSOVER.¹¹ IF ONE HAS VOWED [TO ABSTAIN] FROM [CONSUMING] BREAD AND TEBU'AH [(CEREAL) PRODUCE].¹² HE IS PROHIBITED FROM CONSUMING THESE [FIVE SPECIES]; THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. THE SAGES SAY: IF ONE HAS VOWED [TO ABSTAIN] FROM [CONSUMING] DAGAN [CORN], HE IS PROHIBITED FROM [CONSUMING] THESE [SPECIES] ONLY.¹³ THEY ARE SUBJECT TO HALLAH AND TITHES.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. THE FOLLOWING ARE SUBJECT TO HALLAH, BUT EXEMPT FROM TITHES: LEKET,¹⁵ SHIKEHAH,¹⁶ PE'AH,¹⁷ AND PRODUCE, OWNERSHIP OF WHICH HAS BEEN WAIVED,¹⁸ AND THE FIRST TITHE¹⁹ OF WHICH TERUMAH [THE PRIEST'S PORTION] HAD BEEN TAKEN OFF,²⁰ AND THE SECOND TITHE,²¹ AND CONSECRATED [PRODUCE]²² WHICH HAVE BEEN REDEEMED, AND THAT WHICH REMAINS OVER FROM THE OMER,²³ AND GRAIN WHICH HAS NOT GROWN ONE-THIRD [RIPE].²⁴ R. ELIEZER SAID: GRAIN WHICH HAS NOT GROWN ONE-THIRD [RIPE] IS EXEMPT [ALSO] FROM HALLAH.²⁵

MISHNAH 4. THE FOLLOWING ARE SUBJECT TO TITHES, BUT EXEMPT FROM HALLAH: RICE, MILLET, POPPY-SEED, SESAMUM, PULSE,²⁶ AND LESS THAN FIVE-FOURTHS [OF A KAB] OF [THE FIVE KINDS OF] GRAIN,²⁷ SPONGE-BISCUITS, HONEYCAKES,²⁸ DUMPLINGS,²⁹ CAKE [COOKED] IN A PAN³⁰ AND MEDUMMA,³¹ ARE EXEMPT FROM HALLAH.

MISHNAH 5. DOUGH WHICH WAS ORIGINALLY [INTENDED FOR] FANCY-BAKING,³² AND FINALLY [COOKED AS] FANCY-BAKING, IS EXEMPT FROM HALLAH.³³ [IF IT WAS] ORIGINALLY [ORDINARY] DOUGH, BUT FINALLY [COOKED AS] FANCY-BAKING, [OR IF IT WAS] ORIGINALLY [INTENDED FOR] FANCY-BAKING, BUT FINALLY [COOKED AS ORDINARY] DOUGH, IT IS SUBJECT TO HALLAH; SIMILARLY ARE RUSKS³⁴ SUBJECT [TO HALLAH].³⁵

MISHNAH 6. THE [FLOUR-PASTE CALLED] ME'ISAH³⁶ BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE EXEMPT [FROM], BUT BETH HILLEL DECLARE SUBJECT [TO HALLAH].³⁷ THE [FLOUR-PASTE CALLED] HALITA³⁸ BETH SHAMMAI DECLARE SUBJECT [TO], AND BETH HILLEL DECLARE EXEMPT [FROM HALLAH].³⁹ AS FOR THE LOAVES OF THE THANKSGIVING SACRIFICE⁴⁰ AND THE WAFERS OF A NAZIRITE,⁴¹ — IF ONE MADE THEM FOR ONESELF, THEY ARE EXEMPT [FROM HALLAH].⁴² [IF ONE MADE THEM] TO SELL IN THE MARKET,⁴³ THEY ARE SUBJECT [TO HALLAH].

MISHNAH 7. IF A BAKER MADE DOUGH FOR DISTRIBUTING,⁴⁴ IT IS SUBJECT TO HALLAH.⁴⁵ IF WOMEN GAVE [FLOUR]⁴⁶ TO A BAKER TO MAKE FOR THEM DOUGH,⁴⁷ — AND IF THERE IS NOT IN THAT WHICH BELONGS TO [ANY] ONE OF THEM THE [MINIMUM] MEASURE,⁴⁸ IT⁴⁹ IS EXEMPT FROM HALLAH.⁵⁰

MISHNAH 8. DOUGH FOR DOGS⁵¹ AS LONG AS [IT IS SUCH AS] SHEPHERDS PARTAKE THEREOF,⁵² IS SUBJECT TO HALLAH;⁵³ AND ONE MAY MAKE AN 'ERUB⁵⁴ THEREWITH,⁵⁵ AND EFFECT A SHITTUF⁵⁶ THEREWITH;⁵⁵ AND ONE SHOULD SAY THE BLESSINGS FOR [BEFORE⁵⁷ AND AFTER⁵⁸ EATING] IT, AND ONE SHOULD SAY THE INTRODUCTORY FORMULA TO A CORPORATE RECITAL OF GRACE AFTER IT;⁵⁹ AND IT MAY BE COOKED ON A FESTIVAL,⁶⁰ AND A PERSON DISCHARGES THEREWITH ONE'S OBLIGATION ON THE PASSOVER;⁶¹ BUT IF [THE DOUGH BE SUCH AS] SHEPHERDS DO NOT PARTAKE THEREOF⁶² IT IS NOT SUBJECT TO HALLAH;⁶³ NOR MAY ONE MAKE AN 'ERUB THEREWITH, NOR EFFECT A SHITTUF THEREWITH; NOR SHOULD ONE SAY THE BLESSINGS FOR [BEFORE⁶⁴ AND AFTER]⁶⁵ IT, NOR SAY THE INTRODUCTORY FORMULA TO A CORPORATE RECITAL OF GRACE AFTER IT;⁶⁶ NOR MAY IT BE COOKED ON A FESTIVAL; NOR DOES A PERSON DISCHARGE THEREWITH ONE'S OBLIGATION ON THE PASSOVER. IN EITHER CASE IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO RITUAL DEFILEMENT AFFECTING FOODSTUFFS.⁶⁷

MISHNAH 9. IN THE CASE OF HALLAH AND TERUMAH; ONE IS LIABLE, ON ACCOUNT OF [HAVING EATEN] THEM, TO DEATH,⁶⁸ OR⁶⁹ TO [REPAY] 'ONE-FIFTH',⁷⁰ AND THEY ARE FORBIDDEN [AS FOOD] TO 'STRANGERS',⁷¹ THEY ARE THE PROPERTY OF THE PRIEST;⁷² THEY ARE VOID [IF ONE PART OF EITHER IS MIXED] WITHIN ONE-HUNDRED-AND-ONE [PARTS, THE REST BEING NON-SACRED DOUGH OR PRODUCE];⁷³ THEY REQUIRE WASHING OF ONE'S HANDS,⁷⁴ AND [WAITING UNTIL] THE SETTING OF THE SUN [PRIOR TO EATING THEM];⁷⁵ THEY MAY NOT BE TAKEN OFF A CLEAN [LOT]⁷⁶ FOR [DISCHARGING THE OBLIGATION⁷⁷ IN RESPECT ALSO OF] AN UNCLEAN [LOT],⁷⁸ AND [ARE NOT TAKEN OFF ONE LOT IN RESPECT ALSO OF ANY OTHER LOT]⁷⁹ EXCEPT OF SUCH [LOTS] AS ARE CLOSE TOGETHER,⁸⁰ AND FROM SUCH AS ARE [IN A] FINISHED [STATE].⁸¹ IF ONE SAID: ALL MY THRESHING-FLOOR IS TERUMAH, OR ALL MY DOUGH IS HALLAH, HE HAS NOT SAID ANYTHING, UNLESS HE HAS LEFT SOME OVER.⁸²

(1) The law relating to the portion of dough assigned to the priests in accordance with Num. XV, 17-21, . . . When ye eat the bread of the land . . . of the first of your dough ye shall set apart a cake (hallah) for a gift . . . Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the Lord a portion for a gift throughout your generations.

(2) V. Kil. I, notes. These species are held to be subject to Hallah because the word חלה (bread) is used here and also in connection with Passover, 'bread of affliction', Deut. XVI, 3. The argument, by gezerah shawah (v. Glos.) is: Since, in the case of Passover, חלה obviously implies a cereal capable of becoming leavened, so too does the capacity for leavening determine the liability of produce to hallah.

(3) Amounting to the minimum subject to hallah. It is only when all of these are mixed together in the flour, or if after having been kneaded separately, they are kneaded together, that this rule applies unconditionally. If, however, the doughs (each less than the minimum) were kneaded out of various species and later they stuck together (v. infra II. 4) their being deemed as forming one quantity liable to hallah depends on which particular species have been used (v. note ibid).

(4) V. Lev. XXIII, 14.

(5) 'This selfsame day' (ibid.) refers to the day on which the Omer was brought to the Temple. viz., the second day of Passover.

(6) V. ibid. v. 10ff. The expression 'The sheaf (Omer) of the first of your harvest', is taken to imply that the reaping of the Omer must be the first reaping, and that, therefore, there must be no reaping prior thereto, i.e., before Passover. The analogy between liability to hallah and liability to Hadash (the law relating to 'new' sc. produce) is based — by gezerah shawah — on the use of the term ראשית 'first' in the case of hallah (the first of your dough) as well as in the case of new produce (the first of your harvest).

(7) For harvesting.

(8) The statutory minimum in matters of this kind.

(9) Only species which are liable to leaven can, when deliberately prevented from doing so, serve for unleavened bread for Passover.

(10) 'Cutting off', 'excision'; a punishment by the hand of God as distinct from one by that of man; v. Ex. XII, 19: For whosoever eateth that which is leavened, that soul shall be cut off from the Congregation of Israel.

(11) If he keeps the mixture in his possession during the festival; v. Ibid. XII, 19; XIII. 7.

(12) A term which, in the opinion of all, denotes only the five species enumerated in Mishnah I.

(13) because they considered Tebu'ah and Dagan synonymous whereas H. Meir — who was at one with the Sages with regard to the word Tebu'ah — considered Dagan a more comprehensive term including also all seed- and pulse-foods and held that a man using that term in his vow debarred himself not only from the five species but also from seed- and pulse-foods.

(14) There are also other species subject to tithes, but the species so far enumerated are subject to both tithes and hallah. The Mishnah proceeds to specify categories which are subject to hallah but not to tithes, and vice-versa.

(15) Gleanings, v. Lev. XIX, 9.

(16) The Forgotten, sc. Sheaf. Deut. XXIV, 19.

(17) The Corner, sc. of the field. Lev. XIX, 9.

(18) Such waiving of ownership is termed hefker. It is only when the owner declared the produce hefker before smoothing the pile of grain that it is exempt from tithing. The Levites were entitled to tithes from commodities belonging to Israelites, in which the former, on account of being Levites, had no share (deduced from Deut. XIV, 29, v. T.J.); but since the Levites were included among those entitled to help themselves to the produce coming under the categories named (v. Deut. ibid.), the latter were not subject to being tithed for the benefit of the Levites.

(19) Assigned to the Levites.

(20) The terumah which the Levite had to give, a tithe out of the tithe received by him from the Israelite, to the Priests. In Ter. I, 5, a marginal reading is 'of which terumah had not been taken', meaning the terumah gedolah due from the Israelite to the Priest, The case contemplated in our reading is, according to T.J., one in which a Levite took his tithe from an Israelite whilst the grain was still in ears, and before the ordinary terumah had been taken off. In that event a Levite is bound to give thereof only his terumah (a tithe from the tithe he received) to the priest, but he is not expected to give to the priest anything on account of the terumah which would have accrued to the latter from the Israelite if the Levite had not claimed his tithe so soon. It might have been thought that as the Levite's portion in such a case contained something that might be regarded as due to the priest, it would, for that reason, be exempt from hallah; the Mishnah therefore makes it clear that it is subject thereto.

(21) Which at the end of the agricultural year was to be taken to Jerusalem and consumed there. In the event of inconvenience through distance, it was to be redeemed and the money spent in Jerusalem on food, drink and anointing oneself, in which case (v. Lev. XXVII, 31) the proceeds of the redemption were to be increased by an amount equal to one-fifth of the eventual sum total, i.e., by one-fourth of the money-value of the tithe. The Mishnah here intimates that in the event of the second tithe having been separated whilst the corn was in a state when it was not liable to terumah or tithes (viz., when still in ear, v. T. J. and L.) it is exempt from the (first) tithe even after redemption, cf. Terumah I, 5. Such redeemed second tithe is, however, subject to hallah, because the latter is to be taken from the dough, and at the time of kneading the produce is already hullin (non-sacred).

(22) Being Temple property, technically termed hekdesch. V. Lev. XXVII, 11-27; cf. infra III, 3.

(23) In the Omer they offered up one-tenth of an ephah taken from flour made from three se'ah of barley; the remainder of the flour (spoken of here) was redeemed and could thereafter be eaten by anybody, and was therefore subject to hallah. It is, on the other hand, exempt from tithes, because at the material time, i.e., 'when the pile was made even' it was Temple property and thus exempt from tithes.

(24) T.J. deduces this exemption from Deut. XIV, 22, Thou shalt surely tithe the produce of thy sowing, the argument being: If the sowing has been productive it is to be tithed, if it has not been productive (and if it has resulted in a crop less than one-third ripe it cannot be said to have been productive) it does not require to be tithed. To hallah, however, it is subject because even when only one-third ripe it is capable of leavening (v. supra I, n. 2).

(25) This view is based on Num. XV, 20, where with reference to hallah it is said: As that which is set apart (terumah) of the threshing-floor so shall ye set it (i.e., hallah) apart, from which R. Eliezer deduces that whatever applies to terumah applies equally to hallah and, therefore, that just as a grain which has not grown one-third ripe is exempt from terumah and tithes it is likewise exempt from hallah.

(26) These are liable to tithes as produce, but not being capable of leavening, are not subject to hallah (v. supra I, n. 2). There are other species of produce which do not leaven, but these are particularized because they were often milled into flour and made into dough.

(27) The statutory minimum amount subject to hallah, as laid down infra II, 6; somewhat over 3 1/2 lbs. V. 'Ed. I, 2 and notes (Sonc. ed.) p. 2.

(28) T.J. renders 'honey-milk (cake)'. v. Simponte a.l. Cake made of ordinary dough cooked in honey. According to some, also is made of dough kneaded with honey, it is exempt from hallah, but v. infra p. 328. n. 1.

(29) אסקריטין Jast. 'dumpling'. B. here and Rashi (to Pes. 37a) 'something made of a very soft (light) dough'. T.J. (p. 57) renders Halita, 'sold in the open market'. Halita, according to Pes. 37b (explaining the terms of Hallah I, 5), is dough made by pouring boiling water on flour, but according to R. Ishmael b. Jose (T.J.) it is flour poured into hot water. Aruch identifies the term with the Latin crustulum, 'small cake'. For other possible etymologies v. Kohut in Aruch Completum s.v.

(30) A cake or loaf prepared in a משרת pan (rather in a manner of frying) and not in an oven, and it is only something baked inside an oven and also styled bread (לחם) which is liable to hallah. T.J. renders halita, of water v. preceding note. Maim. emphasizes that the point about these four preparations is that from the very beginning they are kneaded with oil, or honey, or spices and are cooked in unusual ways, and are, in fact, designated not as bread but are named after the various admixtures which give them their distinctive character.

(31) I.e., produce or (as here) dough to which originally no holiness attached, but which by accidentally receiving an admixture of terumah of a quantity more than one-hundredth part of the original amount, becomes thereby prohibited to non-priests and permitted only to priests and is, therefore, not liable to hallah. Tosaf Yom-Tob and other commentators say that here the Mishnah has in mind post-Temple days, for the following reason: In Temple times hallah is a biblical precept, but medumma' is a Rabbinic institution (in purely Biblical law the admixture of terumah of a lesser quantity than the original amount of non-sacred produce is considered as neutralized, 'lost' and ritually of none effect, so that the whole mixed quantity would, in such a case, be non-sacred, hullin, and subject to hallah), and a remission resulting from the application of a Rabbinic ordinance cannot cancel a duty imposed by Scriptural command. In non-Temple times, however, when hallah, too, is only on Rabbinic authority, it can be, and is over-ridden by the Rabbinic regulation of medumma'.

(32) סופגנין, the word translated 'sponge-biscuits' in Mishnah 4, but used here for all fancy-baking, various kinds of which are enumerated there.

(33) This is explanatory of Mishnah 4.

(34) הקנובקאות, explained by Maim, and others as brittle cakes of parched flour kneaded with oil, which after having been baked, are crushed and prepared as gruel for very young children, v. Jast. For possible etymologies v. Aruch Completum.

(35) R. Joshua b. Levi (T.J. Hallah 58a) explains: Since these are to be crushed back into flour, it might have been thought that they are exempt from hallah, the Mishnah had, therefore, to make it clear that this is not the case.

(36) Made by pouring hot water on flour.

(37) Cf. 'Ed. V, 2 where this is mentioned as one of six exceptional instances in which Beth Hillel hold the stringent, and Beth Shammai the lenient view.

(38) Made by pouring flour into hot water (v. Mish. 4, n. 6).

(39) For the purposes of practical law the difference between me'isah and halita does not matter. The relevant difference between the two statements is that whilst the first-reported Tanna held that in this instance Beth Hillel were stringent and Beth Shammai the lenient, the latter Tanna held that the reverse was the case. The final state of the law with regard to any variety of plain dough is that if cooked inside an oven (i.e., baked), it is subject to hallah, but if cooked in a pan over a flame that passes underneath it, it is exempt.

(40) V Lev. VII, 22ff.

(41) Forming part of the sacrifice brought by a Nazirite when the period for which he vowed self-consecration is completed. Num. VI, 15. In fact, both loaves and wafers were required in either case.

(42) Being intended for the offering the dough was thus consecrated ab initio.

- (43) But, naturally, with the intention of making ordinary use of them should there be no buyers requiring them for sacrificial purposes; thus at the material time (viz., of kneading) these loaves or wafers were not consecrated.
- (44) In portions every one of which is less than the minimum liable to hallah.
- (45) Because it is obviously his intention, in the event of there being no customers, to bake it all himself,
- (46) But not money. v. Yoreh De'ah, 326, 3.
- (47) And he, without their knowledge, kneaded all the flour together.
- (48) Liable to hallah, viz., 1 1/4 kab, v. supra Mish. 4.
- (49) I.e., the whole dough.
- (50) Though the dough as a whole is now large enough to be subject to hallah; for the reason that it is taken for granted that those who gave their flour to the baker were 'particular' that their several quantities of flour be kneaded separately. — The Mishnah here speaks of women, because it is, as a rule, they who attend to a matter of this kind.
- (51) I.e., for baking bread or biscuits for dogs. It consisted of flour and coarse bran (T.J.).
- (52) When it contains rather less bran.
- (53) The law of hallah is introduced (Num. XV, 19), And it shall come to pass when ye eat of the bread . . . Since this dough (when baked) is fit for human food, it is liable to hallah.
- (54) Lit., 'a merging' of rights, interests or privileges; the legal device whereby permission is contrived for (a) carrying on the Sabbath from a private to a public domain, and vice-versa (v. Shabb. 6a), known as 'The 'Erub of Courtyards', for (b) walking on the Sabbath more than the Sabbath limit (2000 cubits) outside a town, known as 'The 'Erub of Boundaries', and for (c) cooking food on a festival for the following day, if a Sabbath, known as 'The 'Erub of Cooked Foods' (Bezah II, 1). In (a), the food, contributed to by all the participants and kept in a place accessible to all of them, creates and represents a community of possession, constituting the area concerned a private domain ad hoc; in (b), the placing of food at the Sabbath boundary is presumed to constitute, for those having and deemed as having, a share in that food, a 'dwelling-place' which serves as a starting-point for a further Sabbath-limit of 2000 cubits; in (c), the setting aside of food cooked on the day prior to the festival, and leaving it till the end of the Sabbath is presumed to have the effect of rendering the cooking on the festival day (originally permitted in the Bible, Ex. XII, 16 for that day only) merely a continuation of the cooking in preparation for the Sabbath which had been commenced on the week-day prior to the festival.
- (55) For the above purposes human food is obviously essential,
- (56) Lit., 'a partnership'; the full form is 'a partnership in an alley or street', presumed to create 'a private domain', and conferring the right to carry on the Sabbath between a number of courtyards and an alley into which these open. 'Shittuf' is similar in significance to 'Erub.
- (57) Viz., 'Who bringest forth bread from the earth', the benediction for bread.
- (58) ברכת המזון. The full form of Grace after Meals said only if bread was part of the meal, v. Ber. 44a.
- (59) When three or more adults have partaken of a common major meal (i.e., one of which bread formed part) a special formula (termed 'summoning') is pronounced by one of them, calling on his companions to join in Grace. V. Ber. 45a.
- (60) The law prohibiting work on festivals is qualified thus: No manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every man may eat (Ex. XII, 16). The word rendered 'by you', viz., לכם, is capable of being translated 'for yourselves', from which the Rabbis infer that only food fit for human beings is permitted to be cooked on a festival.
- (61) Sc. to eat unleavened bread on the first night of Passover. Only that which is capable of leavening is (if fit for human food) subject to hallah, and is also (if deliberately prevented from leavening) usable for unleavened bread (v. supra I, 1, n. 2, 2, n. 3). In the course of mixing this dough it was intended that it should be eatable by human beings; it is therefore subject to the same laws as all dough meant for human consumption.
- (62) On account of there being too much bran in the mixture.
- (63) Because hallah is due only from 'your dough' (Num. XV, 20) i.e., dough fit for human consumption (Sifre Zutta). — According to Tosef. Hal. I and T.J. 58a this rule obtains only if the 'dog's dough' was baked in the shape of boards, i.e., quite unlike bread for human consumption, but not if baked in the shape of ככרין 'round cakes' (so Tosef. ed. Wilna. Jast reads there כעבין which he renders 'prongs', also in T.J. where some texts have כעבין) V. Yoreh De'ah 310, 9. In Pithehe Teshubah, ad loc., it is pointed out that the latter ruling can be applicable only to the Land of Israel where alone hallah is a Biblical precept (cf. infra IV, 8), and that, even so, the insistence on separating hallah from exclusively 'dog's dough' for no other reason than their having been baked in the shape of ordinary loaves, can be attributed only to the principle of 'appearance to the eyes', i.e., the desire to avoid even the merest semblance of wrong-doing, in conjunction with the maxim 'that which the Rabbis have decreed on account of appearances is prohibited even in the strictest privacy’.

(64) I.e., not ‘Who bringest forth bread from the earth’; the correct blessing in this case is ‘by Whose word all things came into being’, (so L. q.v.).

(65) I.e., not the full grace after meals. The correct one in this case is the shorter grace after food.

(66) I.e., if two of the three forming the (minimum) company at the meal have eaten bread made of ‘dog's dough’. If, however, two ate real bread, and only the third had the other kind (or any which is not considered bread), then the latter man may be reckoned in the company for purposes of zimmun.

(67) According to Lev. XI, 34. All food which may be eaten, that on which water cometh, shall be unclean, when it has come into contact with the carcass of an unclean swarming thing. The Rabbis understood ‘all food that may be eaten’ by anyone, whether man or beast; as long, therefore, as any food is fit for dogs, it is susceptible to ritual uncleanness. Dough, of course, satisfies the condition: ‘That on which water cometh’.

(68) Sc. ‘by the hand of heaven’, Sanh. 83a. This refers to a non-priest who has eaten either hallah or terumah wittingly, though without having been first warned. If he has eaten these after statutory warning, his punishment is ‘stripes’ (v. Ter. VII, 1). This is deduced from Lev. XXII, 9 in conjunction with v. 10 and v. 6, it being understood from the latter that by the ‘holy things’ spoken of throughout the passage, precisely terumah is intended (since only for eating terumah need the priest who had been unclean wait, on the day of his ablution, till sunset). V. Sanh. loc. cit. Hallah is considered as terumah since in Num. XV, 20 the latter term is applied also to the former.

(69) In ease of an unwitting transgressor.

(70) V. Lev. XXII, 14, And if a man eat of the holy thing unwittingly, then he shall put the fifth part thereof unto it and shall give unto the priest the holy thing, i.e its cost. The added sum was to be equal to a fifth of the eventual total paid, i.e., a quarter of the assessed money-value of the consecrated produce or dough eaten. Cf supra 3, n. 4. The principal was to be paid to the priest whose property the terumah or hallah was, and the added sum to any priest.

(71) I.e., non-priests, non-Aaronides. Though this prohibition is already understood from the provisions preceding it in this Mishnah, its re-statement in positive form is not superfluous — as some authorities thought it to be — but is required to establish the fact that the prohibition is against non-priests consuming even less than the minimum quantity for which they are punishable.

(72) He may sell it, or acquire with it anything he wishes; if it should become unclean, he may use it as fuel over which to do cooking for himself.

(73) If the non-sacred is more than a hundred times the sacred (terumah or hallah), the non-sacred character of the mixture is in no wise affected; if the proportion of non-sacred to sacred is less than 100 to 1, the mixture is medumma’ and prohibited to non-priests (v. supra 4 n. 8).

(74) On the part of the priest, before touching or eating them. If he does not wash his hands specially he renders terumah (even of fruit) or hallah pasul i.e., unfit.

(75) A priest who has become unclean has to undergo ablutions and wait till after sunset before eating terumah (or hallah), Lev. XXII, 6-7.

(76) Of produce or dough.

(77) Of terumah, hallah or tithes.

(78) Terumah, hallah or tithes may be separated from one lot of produce or dough in a quantity sufficient to cover the terumah-, hallah- or tithe-obligation, also for other lots, but only if all such lots are close together; should one of the lots be unclean, the owner would be afraid to let it be close enough to the others lest the unclean touches the clean and makes the latter, too, unclean. Hence this regulation. Cf, infra IV, 6.

(79) So Maim. and other commentators.

(80) V. n. 5.

(81) Ma’as. I, 2ff, enumerate the stages at which various kinds of produce are considered in a ‘finished’ state, at which they severally become liable to have terumah or tithes separated from them. In the case of dough the time of separating hallah is when it has been rolled (v. infra III, 1).

(82) Terumah and hallah are both to be the ‘first’ of the produce or the dough respectively (Deut. XVIII, 4, Num. XV, 20), which implies that there must be some left over after they have been taken off.

Mishna - Mas. Hallah Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. PRODUCE [GROWN] OUTSIDE THE LAND,¹ THAT CAME INTO THE LAND

IS SUBJECT TO HALLAH;² [IF IT] WENT OUT FROM HERE³ TO THERE,⁴ R. ELIEZER DECLARES [IT] TO BE SUBJECT [THERETO],⁵ BUT R. AKIBA DECLARES [IT] TO BE EXEMPT [THEREFROM].⁶

MISHNAH 2. IF EARTH FROM OUTSIDE THE LAND HAS COME TO THE LAND IN A BOAT,⁷ [THE PRODUCE GROWN THEREIN] IS SUBJECT TO TITHES AND TO THE [LAW RELATING TO] THE SEVENTH YEAR.⁸ SAID R. JUDAH: WHEN [DOES THIS APPLY]? WHEN THE BOAT TOUCHES [THE GROUND].⁹ DOUGH WHICH HAS BEEN KNEADED WITH FRUIT-JUICE¹⁰ IS SUBJECT TO HALLAH,¹¹ AND MAY BE EATEN WITH UNCLEAN HANDS.¹²

MISHNAH 3. A WOMAN MAY SIT AND SEPARATE HER HALLAH¹³ [WHILST SHE IS] NAKED,¹⁴ SINCE SHE CAN COVER HERSELF¹⁵ BUT A MAN [MAY] NOT. IF ONE IS NOT ABLE TO MAKE ONE'S DOUGH IN CLEANNESSE HE SHOULD MAKE IT [IN SEPARATE] KABS,¹⁶ RATHER THAN MAKE IT IN UNCLEANNESSE;¹⁷ BUT R. AKIBA SAYS: LET HIM MAKE IT IN UNCLEANNESSE RATHER THAN MAKE IT [IN SEPARATE] KABS, SINCE THE SAME DESIGNATION AS HE GIVES TO THE CLEAN, HE LIKewise GIVES TO THE UNCLEAN; THE ONE HE DECLARES HALLAH TO THE NAME,¹⁸ AND THE OTHER HE DECLARES HALLAH TO THE NAME¹⁸ BUT [SEPARATE] KABS HAVE NO PORTION [DEVOTED] TO THE NAME.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE MAKES HIS DOUGH [IN SEPARATE] KABS,²⁰ AND THEY TOUCH ONE ANOTHER,²¹ THEY ARE EXEMPT FROM HALLAH,²² UNLESS THEY STICK TOGETHER.²³ R. ELIEZER SAYS: ALSO IF ONE SHOVELS²⁴ [LOAVES FROM AN OVEN] AND PUTS [THEM] INTO A BASKET,²⁵ THE BASKET JOINS THEM TOGETHER FOR [THE PURPOSES OF] HALLAH.²⁶

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE SEPARATES HIS HALLAH [IN THE STATE OF] FLOUR, IT IS NOT HALLAH,²⁷ AND IN THE HAND OF A PRIEST IT IS [AS] A THING ROBBED;²⁸ THE DOUGH ITSELF²⁹ IS STILL SUBJECT TO HALLAH,³⁰ AND THE FLOUR,³¹ IF THERE BE OF IT THE STATUTORY MINIMUM QUANTITY,³² IT³³ [ALSO IS] SUBJECT TO HALLAH,³⁴ AND IT IS PROHIBITED TO NONPRIESTS:³⁵ [THE LATTER IS] THE OPINION OF R. JOSHUA. THEY TOLD HIM OF AN OCCURRENCE WHEN A SCHOLAR — NONPRIEST — SEIZED IT.³⁶ SAID HE TO THEM: INDEED, HE DID SOMETHING DAMAGING TO HIMSELF,³⁷ BUT BENEFITING TO OTHERS.³⁸

MISHNAH 6. FIVE-FOURTHS [OF A KAB]³⁹ OF FLOUR⁴⁰ ARE SUBJECT TO HALLAH. [IF] THESE⁴¹ INCLUDING THEIR LEAVEN⁴² AND THEIR LIGHT BRAN AND THEIR COARSE BRAN [MAKE UP THE] FIVE-FOURTHS, THEY ARE SUBJECT;⁴³ IF THEIR COARSE BRAN HAD BEEN REMOVED FROM THEM⁴⁴ AND RETURNED TO THEM, THEY ARE EXEMPT.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 7. THE [STATUTORY MINIMUM] MEASURE OF HALLAH IS ONE TWENTY-FOURTH [PART OF THE DOUGH].⁴⁶ IF ONE MAKES DOUGH FOR ONESELF, OR ONE MAKES IT FOR HIS SON'S BANQUET,⁴⁷ IT IS ONE TWENTY-FOURTH. IF A BAKER MAKES TO SELL IN THE MARKET, AND SO [ALSO] IF A WOMAN⁴⁸ MAKES TO SELL IN THE MARKET, IT IS ONE FORTY-EIGHTH.⁴⁹ IF DOUGH IS RENDERED UNCLEAN EITHER UNWITTINGLY OR BY FORCE,⁵⁰ IT IS ONE FORTY-EIGHTH,⁵¹ IF IT WAS RENDERED UNCLEAN DELIBERATELY, IT IS ONE TWENTY-FOURTH, IN ORDER THAT ONE WHO SINS SHALL NOT PROFIT [FROM HIS SIN].⁵²

MISHNAH 8. R. ELIEZER SAID: HALLAH MAY BE TAKEN FROM [DOUGH] THAT IS

CLEAN, [IN A QUANTITY SUFFICIENT TO DISCHARGE THE OBLIGATION] IN RESPECT ALSO OF [DOUGH] THAT IS UNCLEAN!⁵³ HOW [MAY THIS BE DONE]? [IF ONE HAS] A CLEAN DOUGH AND AN UNCLEAN DOUGH, HE TAKES SUFFICIENT HALLAH⁵⁴ OUT OF A DOUGH, HALLAH WHEREOF HAD NOT YET BEEN TAKEN,⁵⁵ AND PUTS [DOUGH] LESS THAN THE SIZE OF AN EGG⁵⁶ IN THE MIDDLE,⁵⁷ IN ORDER THAT HE MAY TAKE OFF [THE HALLAH] FROM WHAT IS CLOSE TOGETHER,⁵⁸ BUT THE SAGES PROHIBIT.⁵⁹

(1) Sc. of Israel.

(2) Based on Num. XV, 18 ff. When ye come to the land whither I bring you . . . ye shall set apart hallah.....which implies that in Palestine dough from grain whether of native or foreign growth is subject to hallah (v. T.J.).

(3) Palestine.

(4) Abroad.

(5) Relying on When ye eat of the bread (i.e., cereal produce) of the land (ibid 19), whether made into dough in the Land or elsewhere (T.J.).

(6) Being of the opinion that the word 'There' (in Num. XV, 18, which literally translated is When ye come to the land which I bring you there) has the force of making the law of hallah applicable exclusively to dough kneaded in the Land (T.J.).

(7) Which has an aperture in its bottom, and (as explained by R. Judah) is aground on Palestinian soil, and thus anything grown in the soil in the boat sucks up sustenance from the soil of Palestine.

(8) And to all laws applicable to Palestinian produce (v. Maim.). On the 'SEVENTH YEAR' v. Ex. XXIII, 10 and Lev. XXV, 3-7; it is the subject of Tractate Shebi'ith in this Seder.

(9) V. supra n. 1. R. Judah explains what the first reported unnamed Tanna (R. Meir) meant. The term 'WHEN' used by R. Judah in the Mishnah introduces, as here, an explanation; in Baraitha it introduces, as a rule, a differing view (v. 'Ikkar Tosaf. Yom. Tob).

(10) Apparently even without water (v. infra p. 328, n. 1).

(11) There are two considerations that might have led people to assume a contrary ruling. (a) The principle indicated in I, 4 and 5 that any but plain dough, and especially such as had an admixture giving it a special character, is exempt from hallah. (b) If a standard for liquids affecting ritual considerations regarding food were sought, it could be found in the seven liquids (viz., wine, date-honey, blood, water, oil, milk and dew) which when they moisten food render it susceptible to uncleanness (v. p. 325. n. 1). It might have been thought that whichever liquids rendered the flour-paste susceptible to uncleanness, also rendered it subject to hallah, in which case it would have appeared as if only those fruit-juices which had the former effect and are numbered among the seven liquids (viz., wine, date-honey and oil) rendered dough kneaded with them subject to hallah, but that dough kneaded with other fruit-juices is exempt from hallah. Hence the need for the Mishnah to make it clear that dough kneaded with any fruit-juice is liable to hallah. On the other hand, however, according to I, 4 (v. p. 320, n. 5) cake dough prepared with date-honey appears to be exempt from hallah. Thus there seems to be no unexceptionable guidance on the subject of how fruit-juices affect liability to hallah in view of these uncertainties, the dilemma could, in practice, be solved either by separating hallah in such a case, but without reciting the blessing ('who . . . hast commanded us to separate hallah from the dough'), or by putting that doubtful dough close to dough that is certainly subjected to hallah, and take hallah from the latter for both (cf. supra I, 9). V. Yoreh De'ah, 329, 9 and the commentators ad loc.

(12) This can be the case only if fruit-juices are not considered as moisture rendering food liable to uncleanness, as it is only then that unclean hands will not make the dough (or whatever is baked therefrom) unclean. Incidentally the difficulty arises again in that three of the liquids rendering food susceptible to uncleanness are fruit-juices; but even if we should decide that 'fruit-juices' in this Mishnah means 'fruit-juices except those among the seven liquids' there should still arise the following dilemma: In non-Temple days hallah is separated (and a blessing recited), but it is not given to a priest to eat because hallah must be eaten only in the levitical purity of the person, which state of purity is virtually nonexistent in non-Temple times (owing to the absence of means of purification). Eo ipso the hand of the person separating the hallah, who too cannot be ritually clean, renders the hallah unclean, and it is for these reasons burnt. Now if it be the case that dough kneaded with fruit-juice is altogether insusceptible to defilement and yet liable to hallah, then since one is debarred from giving the hallah to a priest, the only alternative would be to burn perfectly 'clean' hallah, and that is a thing that should not be done. To avoid this dilemma it is strongly recommended by the authorities that those who bake should be sure always to mix into the dough some water or other liquid which renders it susceptible to uncleanness; hallah is then separated (accompanied with the recital of the appropriate blessing) and being through unavoidable conditions unclean is burnt (v. Yoreh De'ah ibid, 10).

(13) Pronouncing the appropriate benediction.

(14) Notwithstanding the rule that in the presence of nakedness one is not permitted to utter sacred words (v. Per. 22b).

(15) By sitting with her feet together, so that the labia cannot be seen (Maim). The buttocks do not constitute 'nakedness' for the purpose of preventing the uttering of a benediction (v. Ber. 24a).

(16) Less than 1 1/4 kab being exempt from hallah (v. infra Mishnah 6).

(17) Which would result in wittingly defiling sacred matter, viz., hallah.

(18) Reading not בשם but לשם the variant mentioned in the commentators. For שם as The Name of God, v. Yoma III, 8 etc. and Marmorstein The Old Rabbinic Doctrine of God, p. 105.

(19) R. Akiba held that as hallah is given to the priest, whether — when it is clean — to be eaten or — when it is unclean — to be burnt by him as fuel for cooking for himself, it is — in either case — an expression of the Israelite's indebtedness to God, and of use to the priest, and should therefore not be avoided by deliberately kneading one's dough in quantities less than the minimum liable to hallah. R. Akiba's view is not accepted since as 'they said before R. Akiba: One does not say to a person: "Arise and commit a transgression so that thou mayest create for thyself an opportunity for a meritorious act"', or "Arise and spoil in order that thou mayest mend"' (Tosef. Hal. 1, 8).

(20) Every separate piece of dough being thus exempt from hallah.

(21) In the course of baking (Maim.).

(22) But not from terumah, with regard to which, only proximity is required.

(23) Lit., 'bite [one into another]', stick together in the oven so that when pulling apart a portion of one loaf is detached by the other. Even so the effectiveness of such coalescence in rendering such loaves liable to hallah, depends on the precise species thus stuck together. V. infra IV, 2.

(24) Singly and separately, and they had not stuck together.

(25) Or any container.

(26) In Pes. 48b, it is discussed whether a flat board having no rim is to be considered as 'joining together' small quantities of dough for purposes of hallah, but the matter is left undecided. Later authorities recommend the covering over of all pieces of dough, or loaves, with a cloth, which has the same effect as a basket. (Yoreh De'ah, 325, 1).

(27) Because the commandment is definitely 'the first of your dough'.

(28) He must give it back to the Israelite, else by retaining it he would cause the latter to believe that he has duly performed the obligation of hallah, and that the dough he makes from the remaining flour is thereby exempt and permitted to be eaten, which is not the case (v. Kid. 46b).

(29) Made from the remaining flour.

(30) V. supra n. 7.

(31) Erroneously separated as hallah.

(32) 1 1/4 kab, or an Omer. v. infra Mish. 6.

(33) When made into dough.

(34) According to Maim. this liability is not a definite one.

(35) Lit., 'strangers'. This prohibition has, according to Rash and Asheri, no positive basis and is enacted only in view of the possibility of people seeing a non-priest eating something that had already been given to a priest, and thinking that the non-priest is committing the sin of partaking of consecrated food.

(36) קפשה the verb is, according to Maim. a cognate of כבש. Maim. appears to say that the word occurs often, and Emden (Glosses in Wilna Talmud) says. I know no place where it occurs except Lam. III, 16 (where the root is כפש). Maim. evidently thought of the frequent occurrence of כבש. The assumption, in T.J., is that this lay scholar not only seized the flour but also ate it, and thus demonstrated a view opposed to that of R. Joshua. L. assumed that the scholar, before eating the flour, had separated hallah from the flour, or that the latter was less in quantity than the statutory minimum and, of course, exempt from hallah.

(37) Since he is punished (T.J.).

(38) In that 'They eat and rely on him' (T.J.) which B. and L. and the codes apparently assume to mean that non-priests will be glad to partake of such flour and escape punishment by referring to a authoritative personal example. This interpretation was evidently felt to be, and indeed it is, strained and unsatisfactory; witness that some read the reverse (v. T.J.) viz., 'he did something that is benefiting to himself, but damaging to others' which is explained (ibid.), 'he benefited himself since — anyway — he ate it, but did a disservice to others who will think that what he has eaten is exempt from hallah, whereas it is subject.

(39) 1 1/4 of this measure, as standardized in Sepphoris, was equivalent to an Omer which in the wilderness was the standard measure of food per person per day (Ex. XVI, 16); v. supra I, 4.

(40) When made into dough.

(41) Quantities of flour.

(42) The leaven (yeast) put into the dough-mixture.

(43) Because such flour, though coarse, is largely used for human food, particularly by the poor.

(44) And less than 1 1/4 kab is, thus, left.

(45) Because whilst it is usual, for the purposes of kneading dough, to sift flour and remove the coarse bran, it is not usual to put it back once it has been removed (T.J.); also, because coarse bran itself is not subject to hallah (Maim.).

(46) The proportions here laid down are not indicated in the Torah, but are 'a tradition of the Scribes'. T.J. explains that since Scripture says of hallah 'ye shall give', the amount handed over as hallah should be sufficiently appreciable to be handed over. From the minimum quantity of dough liable to hallah, viz., 1 1/4 kab (which == about 3 1/2 lbs), one twenty-fourth amounts to 2 to 2 1/2 ounces.

(47) No distinction is made between doughs whether big or small intended for private consumption

(48) This applies equally to a man in similar circumstances, viz., who bakes in a small way at home but for sale. The Mishnah speaks here of a woman because it was as a rule women who engaged in this kind of small baking-business. Again no distinction is made between doughs whether large or small, intended for trading purposes.

(49) T.J. (as corrected according to Tosef Hal. I, 6) explains the reason for varying the proportions: The individual person baking for one's private use is more liberal than the professional baker who bakes to sell and make profit. — In non-Temple times when, owing to the all-prevailing ritual uncleanness (from defilement, direct and indirect, by dead bodies) all hallah is unclean, and cannot be given to priests (even in Palestine, and certainly outside Palestine even in Temple times since there hallah is separated always in deference not to a Scriptural precept, but only to a Rabbinic requirement), just a kazayith 'the size of an olive' of dough is taken off and burnt.

(50) Of unavoidable or overpowering circumstances.

(51) The smaller proportion is laid down in this case because the hallah being unclean it may not be eaten and can serve the priest only as fuel (Rash and Bert.); also, because one should not deliberately increase the amount of such holy things as are ab initio and inevitably rendered unclean.

(52) I.e., so that no premium be placed on transgression by way of deliberate defilement of dough for the purpose of evading half of one's obligation in respect of hallah.

(53) Even if each dough is large enough to be itself subject to hallah. The advantage of this procedure is that the full quota of hallah in respect of all the doughs concerned could be eaten by the priest.

(54) I.e., the aggregate amount due from both doughs.

(55) Because it is not permitted to reckon in dough (already) exempt from hallah.

(56) 'Less than the size of an egg' is a quantity which even though it may itself become unclean, does not render other objects unclean by contact ('Orlah II, 4, end). For the principle that the standard proportion in matters of food rendered unclean by contact with or being in the same vessel as, a dead reptile, is 'the size of an egg', v. Yoma 79b-80a.

(57) The commentators amplify: the portion of clean dough already taken off as hallah is placed on the small piece put in the middle — between the two doughs — and lifted off as hallah for all the doughs together. By this method (a) all the dough has had the hallah levy discharged for it; (b) all the hallah is available as food (for the priest); (c) the (bulk of the) clean dough remains clean.

(58) V supra p. 326, n. 5.

(59) The Sages' ruling is due to the possibility of the two main pieces of dough coming into contact (Bert.) or the middle piece (advocated by R. Eliezer) being the size of an egg (Rashi, Sotah 30b). For a full examination of the possible reasons underlying the difference of opinion between R. Eliezer and the Sages on this point v. Sotah 30a — b.

[IF] A NON-ISRAELITE GAVE [FLOUR] TO AN ISRAELITE TO MAKE FOR HIM DOUGH, IT IS EXEMPT FROM HALLAH;³³ IF HE [THE NON-ISRAELITE] GAVE IT TO HIM AS A GIFT, BEFORE ROLLING IT, HE IS LIABLE.³⁴ [IF] AFTER ROLLING IT, HE IS EXEMPT.³⁵ [IF] ONE MAKES DOUGH TOGETHER WITH A NON-ISRAELITE, [THEN] IF THERE IS NOT IN [THE PORTION] OF THE ISRAELITE THE [MINIMUM] MEASURE SUBJECT TO HALLAH,³⁶ IT IS EXEMPT FROM HALLAH.³⁷

MISHNAH 6. [IF] ONE BECAME A PROSELYTE AND HAD DOUGH, [THEN IF] IT WAS MADE³⁸ BEFORE HE BECAME A PROSELYTE, HE IS EXEMPT [FROM HALLAH]. [BUT IF] AFTER HE BECAME A PROSELYTE, HE IS LIABLE. ALSO IF THERE IS A DOUBT,³⁹ HE IS LIABLE;⁴⁰ BUT [A NON-PRIEST WHO HAS UNWITTINGLY EATEN OF SUCH HALLAH] IS NOT LIABLE IN RESPECT THEREOF TO [REFUND AN ADDITIONAL] 'ONE-FIFTH'.⁴¹ R. AKIBA SAID: IT ALL DEPENDS ON THE [TIME OF THE] FORMATION OF THE LIGHT CRUST IN THE OVEN.⁴²

MISHNAH 7. [IF] ONE MAKES DOUGH FROM WHEATEN [FLOUR] AND FROM RICE [FLOUR],⁴³ AND IT HAS A TASTE OF CORN, IT IS SUBJECT TO HALLAH,⁴⁴ AND ONE FULFILLS THEREWITH ONE'S OBLIGATION ON PASSOVER;⁴⁵ BUT IF IT HAS NO TASTE OF CORN, IT IS NOT SUBJECT TO HALLAH, NOR DOES ONE FULFIL THEREWITH ONE'S OBLIGATION ON PASSOVER.

MISHNAH 8. [IF] ONE HAS TAKEN LEAVEN⁴⁶ OUT OF DOUGH FROM WHICH HALLAH HAD NOT BEEN TAKEN,⁴⁷ AND PUT IT INTO DOUGH FROM WHICH HALLAH HAD BEEN TAKEN,⁴⁸ [THEN] IF HE HAS A SUPPLY FROM ANOTHER PLACE,⁴⁹ HE [RECKONS IN

WITH IT THE LEAVEN],⁵⁰ [AND] TAKES OUT⁵¹ [HALLAH] IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PRECISE AMOUNT;⁵² BUT IF [HE HAS] NOT,⁵³ HE TAKES OUT ONE [PORTION OF] HALLAH FOR THE WHOLE [DOUGH].⁵⁴

MISHNAH 9. SIMILAR THERETO⁵⁵ [IS THE FOLLOWING]: IF OLIVES OF [REGULAR] PICKING⁵⁶ BECAME MIXED WITH OLIVES [LEFT OVER] FOR STRIKING-OFF⁵⁷ [BY THE NEEDY],⁵⁸ OR GRAPES OF [REGULAR] VINTAGE WITH GRAPES [LEFT OVER] FOR GLEANING [BY THE NEEDY],⁵⁹ [THEN] IF HE HAS A SUPPLY FROM ANOTHER PLACE⁶⁰ HE [RECKONS IN WITH IT THE REGULAR FRUIT CONTAINED IN THE MIXTURE, AND] TAKES OUT⁶¹ [TERUMAH AND TITHES] IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PRECISE AMOUNT,⁶² IF [HE HAS] NOT,⁶³ HE TAKES OUT TERUMAH AND TERUMAH-OF-THE-TITHE⁶⁴ FOR ALL [THE FRUIT]⁶⁵ , AND [AS FOR] THE REST [OF THE DUES], [HE SEPARATES] THE TITHE AND THE SECOND TITHE⁶⁶ IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PRECISE AMOUNT.⁶⁷

MISHNAH10 . IF ONE TAKES LEAVEN FROM A DOUGH OF WHEATEN [FLOUR]⁶⁸ AND PUTS [IT] INTO DOUGH OF RICE [FLOUR],⁶⁹ [THEN] IF IT HAS THE TASTE OF CORN, IT IS SUBJECT TO HALLAH,⁷⁰ [BUT] IF [IT HAS] NOT, IT IS EXEMPT.⁷⁰ IF [THAT IS] SO, WITH REGARD TO WHAT⁷¹ THEN DID THEY SAY:⁷² '[AN ADMIXTURE OF] TEBEL,⁷³ HOWEVER LITTLE OF IT⁷⁴ THERE BE, RENDERS FOOD PROHIBITED'? [WITH REGARD TO A MIXTURE OF] A SPECIES WITH ITS OWN SPECIES,⁷⁵ BUT [WITH REGARD TO A MIXTURE OF A SPECIES] NOT WITH ITS OWN SPECIES,⁷⁶ [THE PROHIBITION APPLIES ONLY] WHEN IT [THE TEBEL ADMIXTURE] IMPARTS TASTE.

(1) I.e., properly kneaded, when it constitutes dough in the sense of the Biblical precept relating to hallah.

(2) Barley flour does not form so firm a dough as wheaten flour, and there is no point in waiting for a perfect dough which cannot be achieved.

(3) Without hallah having been taken from it. in that state it is termed Tebel.

(4) Sc. 'by the hand of Heaven', v. Lev. XXII. 9; cf., supra I, 9.

(5) This provision applies also to a man; but the Mishnah speaks here of a woman since (a) it is women who are usually occupied in baking, cf. supra II, 7, n. 2 and (b) the reason for the regulation which follows is the contingency of a condition more liable to occur with a woman than with a man.

(6) This a Rabbinic precautionary regulation, viz., to take off hallah at the earliest possible moment (even though the stage of liability according to Scriptural requirement has not fully been reached, v. supra n. 1) lest the dough become unclean before there is a chance of separating hallah from the rolled dough. In non-Temple times the point of anticipating possible defilement does not arise, and hallah should be taken off when the dough has been rolled, prior to dividing it up into loaves.

(7) Sc. left entirely unmixed with the water, and as dry flour not yet liable to hallah, being also of an amount large enough to become (when eventually mixed with water) liable thereto. T.J. rules that in these circumstances one may take hallah for the whole of the contents of the mixing vessel by deliberately and explicitly reckoning in the as yet unmixed flour which is in it. — Another reading is 'provided only that there are five-fourths of flour' etc. already mixed with the water.

(8) In the mixing vessel.

(9) V. supra I, 4, n. 8.

(10) For the reason explained ibid.

(11) It had already, through having been rolled, become liable to hallah, and this being a Biblical precept, it cannot be overridden by the Rabbinic regulation of Medumma'.

(12) V. Nid. 5a ff.

(13) Lit., 'done'.

(14) Because in any case the hallah when taken will be unfit for eating owing to the possibility of its being unclean. Further, it is permitted to cause uncleanness to hullin (Sot. 30b) v. Hid. 6b (bottom).

(15) Because hullin which is subject to hallah is like hallah, and the latter, like all terumah (a term also applied to hallah) the cleanness of which is in doubt, must not be made unclean deliberately. Such 'hallah in suspense' is not to be eaten, as it may be unclean, nor may it be burnt, as it may be clean; one should wait until it becomes certainly unclean and then burn it (v. Nid. 7a).

(16) V. supra Mishnah I n. 5.

(17) V. Lev. XXVII, 14 and passim.

(18) Also before rolling. On 'redeeming' consecrated things. v. Lev. ibid. 15 and passim.

(19) Since at the material time, viz., that of rolling, it was her property (again), cf. supra I, 3.

(20) Since at the material time it was obviously her property.

(21) The Temple store-keeper who received and was in charge of consecrated objects.

(22) I.e., the time of rolling.

(23) Because at that time the dough was not her property, but that of the Sanctuary.

(24) This Mishnah occurs verbatim also in Pe'ah IV, 8. The reason for this repetition is discussed in T.J. Hal. ad loc. and T.J. Pe'ah ad loc.

(25) Lit., 'as something that goes in [the same way as] it (viz., the preceding case)', a case that takes the same course, follows the same lines.

(26) The several stages at which different kinds of produce become subject to tithes are particularized in Ma'as. I, 2 — 4.

(27) Also before the tithestage.

(28) Since at the material time it was his property (again).

(29) Since at the material time it was certainly his property.

(30) I.e., brought to the state at which it becomes subject to terumah and tithes. Such 'completed state' varies according to the produce, v. ibid. I, 5 ff.

(31) By the appropriate act which brings it to the terumah and tithe stage.

(32) Having been at the time Temple property.

(33) Since it is not the property of an Israelite, and it is only the 'first of your dough' which I commanded, Num. XV, 20.

(34) Because at the material time (viz., of rolling) it was the Israelite's property.

(35) Because at the material time, it was not the property of an Israelite.

(36) 1 1/4 kab., v. supra II, 6.

(37) The converse is implied, viz., if the portion belonging to the Israelite is itself sufficiently large to be subject to hallah, the hallah must be given accordingly.

(38) V. supra Mishnah I, n. 1.

(39) As to whether he was a proselyte at the material time.

(40) Since, however, it is doubtful whether the priest is entitled to it, it may be sold — instead of given — to him.

(41) Lev. XXII, 14 And if a man eat of the holy thing through error, then he shall put the fifth part thereof unto it, and shall give unto the priest the holy thing. On 'one-fifth', v. supra I, 9, n. 4. p. 325, In our case, in view of the doubt, he is to separate as a compensatory quantity of dough as great as, but not greater than, he had eaten; because of the doubt too, he is permitted to sell it to the priest. V. preceding note. Cf. Demai I, 2.

(42) R. Akiba differs from the accepted view. From T.J. ad loc. it would appear as if R. Akiba is here confining himself to the case under discussion. Maim., however, basing himself on Sifre to Num. XV, 21 understands R. Akiba as regarding the formation of a light crust in the oven as the statutory stage at which dough, in all cases, becomes liable to hallah.

(43) Which is a species not subject to hallah, v. supra I, 4.

(44) Even if it contains less than the minimum (1 1/4 kab) liable to hallah. L. points out that this ruling applies exclusively in the case of wheat and rice, because of the latter's resemblance to the former; if, however, a species which is subject to hallah has been kneaded with some species which is exempt, then the resultant dough is subject to hallah only if both the following conditions are present: (a) the taste of corn is noticeable, and (b) it contains at least the minimum quantity (1 1/4 kab) of corn, even though the latter be exceeded by the non-labile species present in the mixture.

(45) Cf. supra I, 2.

(46) To be used for leavening another dough; likewise, for the purpose of this Mishnah, dough.

(47) Such dough, or produce, from which the priestly dues had not been separated is known as tebel and may not be eaten.

(48) This latter dough thereby becomes prohibited for eating (v. infra 10, n. 4) until an appropriate portion, such as the Mishnah proceeds to define, is separated as hallah.

(49) I.e., some dough from which or in respect of which no hallah had yet been taken.

(50) So Tosef.; so as to make up with the leaven the minimum subject to hallah.

(51) From the new supply.

(52) In respect of which no hallah had yet been taken, viz., the tebel leaven put into the dough, and the dough 'from another place'.

(53) Sc. any other such dough, or flour, to reckon in with the leaven.

(54) Including the leaven and the dough into which it had got mixed. In this case he takes off as hallah the appropriate proportion (1/24th or 1/48th, v. supra II, 7) of the whole dough.

(55) V. supra Mishnah 4, n. 17.

(56) Which are subject to terumah and tithes.

(57) A term suggested by the expression 'the striking-off of olives', Isa. XVII, 6, XXIV, 13.

(58) As commanded in Deut. XXIV, 20. When thou beatest thine olive-tree, thou shalt not go over the boughs again; it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and the widow. These olives are exempt from priestly and levitical dues; v. Pe'ah I, 6.

(59) As commanded Deut. ibid. v. 21: When thou gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean after thee; it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow. These gleanings are exempt from priestly and levitical dues; v. Pe'ah ibid.

(60) I.e., other lots of regular olives and grapes in respect of which terumah or tithes have yet to be taken.

(61) From the new supply.

(62) Viz., of the regular fruit mixed with the gleanings, plus the new supply, in respect of both of which terumah and tithes are still outstanding.

(63) I.e., no new supply.

(64) Otherwise called the 'tithe of the tithe', Num. XVIII, 26. I.e., the tithe which a Levite is enjoined to give to the priest out of the tithe which he, the Levite himself, receives from the Israelite (ibid. vv. 21ff). Here it means the amount that would become due for this 'tithe of the tithe', if the first tithe were to be taken off the total produce (which, in fact, is not the case; v. note 4) i.e., one-hundredth part of the latter.

(65) I.e., the gleanings together with the admixture of regular fruit which made the whole lot tebel.

(66) The designation given by tradition to the tithe (commanded in Deut. XIV, 22ff) which was itself, or its equivalent in money, to be taken to Jerusalem and there consumed in rejoicing.

(67) I.e. supposing the total that had got mixed up was 100 quarters, 50 of regular fruit (still to be tithed etc.), and 50 of gleanings (which do not require to be tithed etc.). In that case the owner is to give 2 quarters (i.e. one-fiftieth of the total) as terumah, and 1 quarter (one-hundredth of the total, v. note 1) as 'tithe of the tithe'. For the first tithe, however, he is to separate only 5 quarters (one-tenth of the 50 quarters which alone are liable to tithing) and deduct half a quarter in respect of the 'tithe of the tithe' (which he had already set aside), thus handing over to the Levite 4 1/2 quarters. The 'second tithe' he is to take from that which remains (over from the 50 quarters which were liable to tithing (after Simponte). L. explains the procedure thus: He separates terumah, tithe and second tithe from all the produce; from the first tithe he gives a tithe to the priest as the 'tithe of the tithe'; but to the Levite he gives only such part of the tithe as is due from the amount that had been originally liable to tithing. The second tithe he also gives as from the bulk amount. — The requirement, here, that terumah and terumah of the tithe be levied upon a larger amount of produce than are the other dues, is attributed to the circumstance that the penalty for infringement of the law of terumah of the tithe is death ('by the hand of heaven'; cf. I, 9 note 2), and so as to be certain of having fully complied with these precepts, the proportions to be set aside are computed on the maximum amount of produce so 'taxable'.

(68) Which is subject to hallah and from which hallah is still due.

(69) Which, as such, is not subject to hallah (v. supra I, 4).

(70) In accordance with the principle established in Mishnah 7.

(71) Vocalizing למה .

(72) The Sages, v. 'Abodah Zara 73b. Halevy, Doroth II, p. 830 says, אמרו ('they said') introduces a quotation from the Mishnah in its original form; such passages as ours are additions made at the time of the closing of the Mishnah for the purpose of finally elucidating the point under discussion by correlating all the relevant dicta having a bearing thereon.

(73) Eatables at the stage when they severally become subject to the separation of priestly and levitical dues, but before that separation has been effected, at which stage they may not be eaten.

(74) I.e., of the tebel.

(75) E.g., wheat which is tebel, with other wheat (or like species; v. infra IV, 2) which is not.

(76) E.g., wheat-dough which is tebel, with dough from a grain dissimilar thereto (v. IV, 2) which is exempt (either ab initio or so rendered) from hallah, or with rice dough which is in no circumstances subject to hallah.

Mishna - Mas. Hallah Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF TWO WOMEN¹ MADE [SEPARATE DOUGHS] FROM TWO [SEPARATE] KAB², AND THESE [THE DOUGHS] TOUCHED ONE ANOTHER, [THEN] EVEN IF THEY ARE OF ONE SPECIES, THEY ARE EXEMPT [FROM HALLAH].³ BUT IF THEY BELONG TO ONE WOMAN, [THEN] IF IT BE [A CASE OF] ONE SPECIES WITH ITS [LIKE] SPECIES, THEY ARE SUBJECT [TO HALLAH].⁴ BUT WITH AN UNLIKE SPECIES, THEY ARE EXEMPT.⁵

MISHNAH 2. WHAT IS IT [THAT CONSTITUTES THE CATEGORY OF] A SPECIES WITH ITS [LIKE] SPECIES?⁶ WHEAT IS NOT RECKONED TOGETHER WITH ANY [SPECIES]⁷ OTHER THAN WITH SPELT; BARLEY IS RECKONED TOGETHER WITH ALL [SPECIES] EXCEPT WHEAT. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAID, THE REST OF THE SPECIES⁸ ARE RECKONED TOGETHER ONE WITH ANOTHER.⁹

MISHNAH 3. [IF THERE ARE TWO DOUGHS FROM] TWO [SEPARATE] KAB¹⁰, AND [DOUGH FROM] A KAB OF RICE,¹¹ OR [FROM] A KAB OF TERUMAH¹² [LYING] BETWEEN,¹³ THEY ARE NOT RECKONED TOGETHER;¹⁴ [IF THERE WAS] A THING [VIZ., DOUGH] FROM WHICH HALLAH HAD BEEN TAKEN¹⁵ [LYING] BETWEEN, THEY ARE RECKONED TOGETHER, SINCE IT¹⁶ HAD ALREADY [ONCE] BEEN SUBJECT TO HALLAH.¹⁷

MISHNAH 4. [IF DOUGH FROM] A KAB OF 'NEW' [CORN].¹⁸ AND [DOUGH FROM] A KAB OF 'OLD' [CORN]¹⁸ STUCK ONE WITH THE OTHER,¹⁹ R. ISHMAEL SAID: LET HIM TAKE [HALLAH] FROM THE MIDDLE,²⁰ BUT THE SAGES PROHIBIT.²¹ IF ONE HAS TAKEN HALLAH FROM [DOUGH MADE OUT OF] ONE KAB, R. AKIBA SAYS: IT IS HALLAH,²² BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT IS NOT HALLAH.²³

MISHNAH 5. [IF ONE HAS] TWO [SEPARATE] KAB²⁴ [OF DOUGH]²⁴ FROM ONE OF WHICH HALLAH HAD BEEN TAKEN SEPARATELY, AND FROM THE OTHER [TOO,] SEPARATELY, AND HE WENT BACK [TO THEM] AND MADE [OF] THEM ONE DOUGH, R. AKIBA DECLARES IT EXEMPT,²⁵ BUT THE SAGES DECLARE IT LIABLE.²⁶ [THUS] IT IS FOUND THAT [THE VERY PROPOSITION²⁷ GIVING RISE TO] THE STRINGENCY OF THE ONE [RULING]²⁸ IS [THE PROPOSITION THAT GIVES RISE TO] THE LENIENCY OF THE OTHER [RULING].²⁹

MISHNAH 6. A MAN MAY TAKE THE REQUISITE AMOUNT FOR HALLAH OUT OF A [CLEAN] DOUGH FROM WHICH HALLAH HAS NOT [PREVIOUSLY] BEEN TAKEN — [HIS PURPOSE BEING] TO EFFECT IT IN CLEANNESS — BY WAY OF GOING ON SEPARATING [HALLAH] THEREFROM IN RESPECT OF [UNCLEAN] DEMAI,³⁰ UNTIL IT PUTRIFIES, SINCE HALLAH IN RESPECT OF DEMAI MAY BE TAKEN FROM CLEAN [DOUGH] IN RESPECT OF UNCLEAR [DOUGH], AND FROM [ONE DOUGH IN RESPECT OF ANOTHER DOUGH] WHICH IS NOT CLOSE TOGETHER.

MISHNAH 7. IF ISRAELITES WERE TENANTS OF GENTILES IN SYRIA,³¹ R. ELIEZER DECLARES THEIR PRODUCE SUBJECT TO TITHES AND TO [THE LAW OF] THE

SEVENTH [YEAR],³² BUT RABBAN GAMALIEL DECLARES [IT] EXEMPT.³³ RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS: [ONE IS TO GIVE] TWO HALLAH-PORTIONS IN SYRIA,³⁴ BUT R. ELIEZER SAYS: [ONLY] ONE HALLAH-PORTION.³⁵ THEY³⁶ ADOPTED THE LENIENT RULING OF RABBAN GAMALIEL,³⁷ AND THE LENIENT RULING OF R. ELIEZER.³⁸ EVENTUALLY THEY WENT BACK [ON THIS PRACTICE]³⁹ AND INSTITUTED THE PRACTICE IN ACCORDANCE WITH RABBAN GAMALIEL IN BOTH RESPECTS.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 8. RABBAN GAMALIEL SAYS: THERE ARE THREE TERRITORIAL DIVISIONS⁴¹ WITH REGARD TO [LIABILITY TO] HALLAH: FROM THE LAND OF ISRAEL TO KEZIB⁴² — ONE HALLAH-PORTION; FROM KEZIB⁴³ TO AMANAH⁴⁴ — TWO HALLAH-PORTIONS: ONE FOR THE FIRE⁴⁵ AND ONE FOR THE PRIEST,⁴⁶ TO THE ONE FOR THE FIRE THE [RULE OF THE STATUTORY] PROPORTION APPLIES,⁴⁷ TO THE ONE FOR THE PRIEST THE [RULE OF THE STATUTORY] PROPORTION DOES NOT APPLY;⁴⁸ FROM THE RIVER⁴² TO AMANAH AND [THE ZONE] INWARD, TWO HALLAH-PORTIONS: ONE FOR THE FIRE AND ONE FOR THE PRIEST, TO THE ONE [INTENDED] FOR THE FIRE THE [RULE OF THE STATUTORY] PROPORTION DOES NOT APPLY,⁴⁹ TO THE ONE [INTENDED] FOR THE PRIEST THE [RULE OF THE STATUTORY] PROPORTION APPLIES,⁵⁰ AND [A PRIEST] WHO HAS IMMERSSED HIMSELF DURING THE DAY [AND HAS TO WAIT TILL SUNSET FOR HIS PURIFICATION TO BE COMPLETE]⁵¹ MAY EAT IT.⁵² R. JOSE SAYS: ONE DOES NOT REQUIRE IMMERSION.⁵³ IT IS FORBIDDEN [AS FOOD] TO MEN WHO HAVE AN ISSUE,⁵⁴ TO WOMEN WHO HAVE AN ISSUE, TO WOMEN DURING MENSTRUATION,⁵⁵ TO WOMEN AFTER CHILDBIRTH,⁵⁶ BUT MAY BE EATEN WITH A 'STRANGER' AT THE [SAME] TABLE,⁵⁷ AND MAY BE GIVEN TO ANY PRIEST.⁵⁸

MISHNAH 9. THESE, TOO, MAY BE GIVEN TO ANY PRIEST:⁵⁹ DEVOTED THINGS,⁶⁰ FIRSTLINGS,⁶¹ THE [LAMB SUBSTITUTED AS] RANSOM FOR THE FIRSTLING OF AN ASS,⁶² THE SHOULDER, THE TWO CHEEKS AND THE MAW,⁶³ THE FIRST OF THE FLEECE,⁶⁴ OIL [FIT ONLY] FOR BURNING,⁶⁵ CONSECRATED FOOD [ORDAINED TO BE CONSUMED WITHIN THE PRECINCTS] OF THE SANCTUARY,⁶⁶ AND THE FIRST-RIPE FRUITS.⁶⁷ R. JUDAH PROHIBITS IN [THE CASE OF] FIRST-RIPE FRUITS.⁶⁸ [AS FOR] HORSEBEANS [SET ASIDE] FOR TERUMAH, R. AKIBA PERMITS,⁶⁹ BUT THE SAGES PROHIBIT.⁷⁰

MISHNAH 10. NITTAI [A MAN OF] TEKOA⁷¹ BROUGHT HALLAH-PORTIONS FROM BE-JATTIR,⁷² BUT THEY DID NOT ACCEPT [THESE] FROM HIM.⁷³ THE MEN OF ALEXANDRIA BROUGHT THEIR HALLAH-PORTIONS FROM ALEXANDRIA, BUT THEY DID NOT ACCEPT [THESE] FROM THEM.⁷³ THE MEN OF MOUNT ZEBOIM⁷⁴ BROUGHT THEIR FIRST-RIPE FRUITS PRIOR TO THE FESTIVAL,⁷⁵ BUT THEY DID NOT ACCEPT [THESE] FROM THEM, ON ACCOUNT OF THAT WHICH IS WRITTEN IN THE LAW: AND THE FEAST OF THE HARVEST, THE FIRST-FRUITS OF THY LABOURS, WHICH THOU SOWEST IN THE FIELD.⁷⁶

MISHNAH 11. BEN ANTIGONUS⁷⁷ BROUGHT UP⁷⁸ FIRSTLINGS FROM BABYLON, BUT THEY DID NOT ACCEPT [THESE] FROM HIM.⁷⁹ JOSEPH THE PRIEST⁸⁰ BROUGHT FIRST-RIPE FRUITS [IN THE FORM] OF WINE AND OIL,⁸¹ BUT THEY DID NOT ACCEPT [THESE] FROM HIM;⁸² HE ALSO BROUGHT UP HIS SONS AND MEMBERS OF HIS HOUSEHOLD TO CELEBRATE THE LESSER PASSOVER⁸³ IN JERUSALEM, BUT THEY TURNED HIM BACK,⁸⁴ SO THAT THE THING SHOULD NOT BECOME FIRMLY FIXED AS AN OBLIGATION. ARISTON⁸⁵ BROUGHT HIS FIRST-RIPE FRUITS FROM APAMEA⁸⁶ AND THEY ACCEPTED [THESE] FROM HIM,⁸⁷ BECAUSE THEY SAID,⁸⁸ ONE WHO OWNS [LAND] IN SYRIA IS AS ONE WHO OWNS [LAND] IN THE OUTSKIRTS OF JERUSALEM.⁸⁹

- (1) Not necessarily, but most likely to occur with women in the course of their household activities.
- (2) One kab is not subject to hallah, in accordance with the view of the School of Hillel ('Ed. I, 2).
- (3) Because as a rule each of the women not only does not contemplate her dough coming into contact with someone else's, but actually objects to it; the two kabs are, therefore, considered as separate (just as their owners deem them to be) despite the fact that by chance they touched or even stuck together.
- (4) In circumstances explained supra II, 4.
- (5) This exemption applies also in the event of the two doughs being of the same species but otherwise different, e.g., one of coarse and the other of fine flour (T.J.) or one seasoned with saffron and the other not (v. L.).
- (6) So that they might combine by contact to make up the requisite minimum (viz., 1 1/4 kab) to be subject to hallah. It should be noted that the considerations envisaged in this Mishnah have reference only to hallah but not to other priestly or levitical dues.
- (7) Of the five kinds of grain. v. supra I, 1.
- (8) Enumerated supra I, 1.
- (9) The question as to which species combine with which to form a minimum subject to hallah, arises only when the doughs touch or stick to one another; if any two or more species (liable to hallah) have mingled, either in the flour or in two kneading, they are without question 'reckoned together' (T.J.).
- (10) Both of one species which is liable to hallah.
- (11) A species not liable to hallah
- (12) Which, as a priestly perquisite, is not liable to hallah.
- (13) And sticking to the two on either side.
- (14) Because the connecting intervening piece of dough, whether it is of rice or terumah, is one not liable to hallah. T.J. explains the necessity for instancing both rice and terumah: (a) if rice only had been mentioned, it might have been thought that just rice is not to be 'reckoned in' for the reason that it is a species ab initio not subject to hallah, but that terumah, which is of course of grain, that is in itself liable to hallah, should be reckoned in; (b) if terumah alone had been mentioned it might have been inferred, that just terumah is not 'reckoned in' for the reason that an admixture of it to other dough, by making the whole Medumma' (v. I, 4, n. 8). renders it exempt from hallah, but that rice, an admixture of which to grain does not invariably impair the liability of the dough to hallah (v. III. and 10), might be 'reckoned in'.
- (15) And therefore no longer liable to hallah.
- (16) The piece of dough in the middle.
- (17) Constituting in this respect a category different from the preceding cases where the dough lying in the middle had never been liable to hallah.
- (18) According to Ter. I, 5, it is unavailing to separate terumah from one year's corn an amount large enough to cover the requirements for terumah in respect also of either the preceding or the following year's corn. The same rule applies mutatis mutandis to taking hallah.
- (19) Lit., 'hit one with the other', cf. supra II, 4, n. 2.
- (20) Where the two doughs run into one another, thus taking some from each.
- (21) The prohibition of the Sages is directed against taking, in these circumstances, just one hallah-portion even if it be out of the place where both doughs coalesce. The fact that the two doughs have stuck together certainly renders them jointly subject to hallah, but since one is of 'old' and the other of 'new' corn, the statutory proportion (1/24th or 1/48th v. supra II, 7) must be taken separately from each dough.
- (22) I.e., if subsequently the kab was increased to 1 1/4 kab, whereby the portion that had erroneously been taken off is deemed as having been only prematurely separated and retroactively made into hallah with all due sanctity attaching thereto.
- (23) Since at the time a portion was taken off the dough was, owing to the small amount thereof, not subject to hallah, the separation of the dough portion was gratuitous and entirely without effect on its non-sacred (hullin) status.
- (24) I.e., neither is large enough to be subject to hallah.
- (25) Since in accordance with the view enunciated in his name in Mishnah 4, the dough-portions taken separately from each of the doughs and, erroneously, but in good faith-intended as hallah, have been validated as such by the subsequent addition of the other dough.
- (26) In accordance with their view, contrary to R. Akiba's, in Mishnah 4.
- (27) Viz., that of R. Akiba set out supra n. I.
- (28) I.e., the stringency which results from the application of R. Akiba's view to the case in Mish. 4, where the owner is thereby deprived of the dough-portions which are, in that view, held to have been consecrated by him as hallah.

(29) I.e., the leniency which is the effect of the application of that same view to the case in our Mishnah, inasmuch as here the owner is thereby exempted from giving away a further portion of dough as hallah.

(30) Ordinarily demai denotes produce with regard to which there is suspicion, inasmuch as it has been obtained from an 'am ha-arez, that it may not have been properly tithed. Here, according to Maim. it means dough with regard to which there is doubt, for the same reason as above, whether hallah had been separated. Rash and Bert, say it means dough from grain that was demai (in the original sense, viz., in respect of tithes). Such corn presumed to have come from an 'am ha-arez was unclean and so, too, the dough made from it. L. reviews and criticizes the above interpretations and finally rejects them as untenable. His own interpretation is, that this Mishnah is concerned with dough bought from a Cuthean (Samaritan) and it is uncertain whether the latter has intended the dough for his own consumption (when, in view of known Samaritan religious scruples, he can be trusted to have separated hallah), or for sale (when one cannot assume that the Samaritan had separated hallah, inasmuch as the Samaritan code did not require hallah to be taken from dough intended for sale). Such dough is thus demai (in respect of hallah), and it is this kind of demai that is meant here. Furthermore, a Samaritan's dough is, failing certain knowledge to the contrary, unclean. The dough spoken of first in our Mishnah is also demai, but it is clean, either because the Samaritan had, in the presence of an Israelite, undergone ritual ablution from uncleanness immediately prior to preparing the dough, or because the flour had been mixed not with water but with fruit-juice (which does not render dough capable of contracting uncleanness; cf. supra II, 2, p. 328, n. 1). The position then is this: One dough is clean, the other unclean. In ordinary circumstances it is not permitted to take hallah from clean dough in sufficient quantity to exempt also unclean dough (v. supra I, 9), but because in our case both doughs are demai in respect of hallah, it is permitted to do so, as well as to take hallah from such a dough in sufficient quantity to exempt also other similar doughs without putting them close together.

(31) A geographical term denoting territories outside the boundaries of the Land of Israel (as delimited in Num. XXXIV) which were captured by King David before he completed the conquest of the Land of Israel proper (Jebus i.e. Zion remained in gentile possession till nearly the end of David's reign; v. II Sam. XXIV). It was agreed that these adjacent territories were of lesser sanctity than the Land proper, but there were differences of opinion as to which of the precepts enjoined for the Land of Israel were applicable also to Syria.

(32) Since in his view Syria was like the Land of Israel in these matters. In T.J. it is suggested that the intention of R. Eliezer in imposing this obligation was to 'fine' these Israelite tenants in Syria. Rash suggests that the purpose of the proposed fine was to discourage Jews from settling permanently in Syria. The law of the 'Seventh Year' is promulgated in Ex. XXIII, 10-11, Lev. XXV, 1 ff and forms the subject of tractate Shebi'ith in our Seder.

(33) Because he held that Syria was like the Land of Israel in regard to tithes etc., only if the land (in Syria) on which the produce was grown was the property of Israelites (v. end of chapter) but not when, as here, the latter were merely tenants.

(34) One portion to burn, because it is unclean (as everywhere outside the Land), and the other to give to a priest so as to prevent the law of hallah from being entirely forgotten (v. infra 9).

(35) Just as in the Land of Israel (v. n. i).

(36) The Jews in Syria.

(37) Exempting the produce of Israelite tenants in Syria from tithes and Shebi'ith.

(38) Demanding from them only one hallah-portion (instead of two as R. Gamaliel).

(39) Because they found that it was considered unworthy, and even wicked, to take advantage of the lenient rulings of two authorities when those rulings arose from opposing principles. The norm was that if you adopt the principle of one authority giving rise to a lenient ruling, you must consistently follow that principle wherever it applies, whether the effect of such application is a leniency or a stringency.

(40) Lit., 'ways'; i.e., both in the matter of tithes and Shebi'ith (where he is lenient) and in that of hallah (where he is stringent).

(41) Lit., 'lands'.

(42) For these geographical items v. Shebi'ith VI, 1. notes.

(43) That zone was authentic Land of Israel by reason of being within the boundaries mentioned in Num. XXXIV, having been occupied in the first conquest, and also reoccupied by the returned Babylonian exiles under Zerubbabel and Ezra, and therefore indubitably subject to the precepts bound up with the sanctity of the Land.

(44) A zone within the Pentateuchal boundaries of the Land of Israel and therefore originally holy; but since it had not been reoccupied by those who returned from Babylon, it did not re-assume complete holiness.

- (45) I.e., to be burnt by the owner, being unclean hallah. Since this zone was not restored to its original holiness, its hallah is unclean just as the hallah in any land outside the Land of Israel.
- (46) This is not mandatory, but instituted by the authorities to draw attention to the peculiar character of that zone with regard to sanctity. This procedure is to obviate on the one hand the likely erroneous notion that the territory is to be regarded as definitely outside the Land in respect of sanctity, and on the other hand the other mistaken notion that it is to be regarded as completely holy territory. The very contradictoriness of the procedure will stimulate enquiry which will enable people to learn of the special status of the zone.
- (47) Because this portion is in virtue of that zone having been originally holy and liable to hallah on Biblical authority — the direction to burn it being due solely to its being unclean, in which circumstances it would have to be burnt even in the Land of Israel proper.
- (48) Because this portion is only an institution of the Scribes.
- (49) Less than the minimum may be separated because (a) it is on solely Scribal authority and (b) because it is to be burnt.
- (50) This hallah-portion too is only on Scribal authority, but since it is to be eaten the full amount should be given.
- (51) V. supra I, 9, p. 326, n. 2. The regulations with regard to a person in that state are detailed in the tractate of that name Tebul Yom in seder Tohoroth.
- (52) Since this hallah-portion is on the authority only of the Scribes, the eating thereof is prohibited only to such as are in a state of actual uncleanness by reason of an issue or of menstruation (v. infra notes 4-6) but not to anyone unclean through any other cause, or whose cleanness is, as in the case of tebul yom, in a state of suspense until the end of the day.
- (53) So that, according to R. Jose, outside the Land, one who has had an issue may eat hallah.
- (54) V. Lev. XV, 2-15.
- (55) V. ibid. 19-30.
- (56) V. ibid. XII.
- (57) With consecrated food it is insisted that it should not be eaten by the priest at the same table where a non-priest is eating, lest the latter partake of the consecrated food either by accident or in error. Since the hallah-portion with which we are here concerned is not scripturally ordained this precaution is not required.
- (58) Maim. reproduces the T.J. interpretation of 'any priest', viz., 'be it a priest who is a kaber (i.e., a scholar) or one who is an 'am ha-rez (i.e., an unlearned person)'. Evidently what is meant is: whether the priest be one who takes care to eat consecrated food in cleanness, or one who does not. V. Bert. and Tusef. Yom Tob. Bert. writes as if Maim.'s explanation is at variance with that of the Talmud, whilst Maim. does nothing but reproduce T.J. verbatim.
- (59) V. preceding Mishnah, end n. 8.
- (60) V. Lev. XXVII, 28. No devoted thing, a man may devote to the Lord of all that he hath . . . shall be sold or redeemed: every devoted thing is most holy unto the Lord; Num. XVIII, 14: Every devoted thing in Israel shall be thine i.e., the priest's. Since it is to be redeemed with money, the latter may obviously be given to any priest without references to the likelihood of his being clean or unclean.
- (61) V. Ex XIII, 12: Thou shalt set apart unto the Lord all that openeth the womb; every firstling that is a male, which thou hast coming of a beast, shall be the Lord's, Deut. XV, 19 ff: All the firstling males of thy herd all of thy flock thou shalt sanctify unto the Lord thy God . . . thou shalt eat it before the Lord thy God . . . in the place which the Lord shall choose (i.e. the Holy City of Jerusalem) . . . And if there be any blemish therein, lameness, or blindness, any ill blemish whatsoever, thou shalt not sacrifice it unto the Lord thy God. Thou shalt eat it within thy gates: the unclean and the clean may eat it. Reference to Num. XVIII, 17-18 shows that 'Thou shalt eat it' is addressed to the priest. It is clear that our Mishnah speaks of the flesh of a blemished firstling, and since this may be eaten by 'the unclean and the clean' it may, obviously, be given to any priest irrespective of his cleanness.
- (62) V. Ex. XIII, 13: And the firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a lamb. This lamb is not considered consecrated (Bert.).
- (63) V. Deut. XVIII, 3: And this shall be the priests' due from the people, from them that offer a sacrifice, whether it be ox or sheep, that they shall give to the priest the shoulder, the two cheeks and the maw. V. n. 5 infra.
- (64) V. ibid. 4 . . . the first of thy fleece shalt thou give him.
- (65) I.e., oil set aside as terumah, which has become unclean.
- (66) Since these are parts of sacrifices brought into the Sanctuary where no unclean priest may enter there is, obviously, no fear that it may be eaten by a priest during his uncleanness. (It is different with hallah and terumah; these may be eaten outside sacred precincts where there are priests of all kinds, and care should therefore be taken that these priestly dues do not get into the hands of priests who are either unclean or possibly neglectful of their ritual cleanness.)

(67) V. Num. XVIII, 13: The first-ripe fruits of all that is in their land, which they bring unto the Lord, shall be thine; every one that is clean in thy house may eat thereof. These were to be brought by the Israelite direct to the Sanctuary, v. n. 5.

(68) R. Judah's reason is: Seeing that first-ripe fruits are not offered on the altar, ignorant priests are likely to underrate the sacredness of first-ripe fruits and to eat them prior to self-purification.

(69) Sc. to give to any priest, since these are rarely eaten by human beings, and the likelihood of these being eaten by an unclean priest is therefore remote.

(70) Seeing that they are sometimes eaten by human beings, no exception is to be made of them.

(71) In South Judah v. Amos I, 1, II Sam. XIV, 2.

(72) Reading with Kohut, Aruch Completum, s.v. יתיר יבי יתיר תביתור (or spelt defectivum יתר) is mentioned Josh. XV, 48, XXI, 14, I Sam. XXX, 27, I Chron. VI, 42 in S. Judah. In T.J. Sheb. p. 36, it is mentioned among places on the borders of the Land of Israel in relation to the applicability of the laws of the sanctity of the Land. According to the above data it would be in the neighbourhood of Tekoa. It is this place that is probably meant by Schurer (Geschichte des Volkes Israel I, p. 693) when he identifies our place-name as Be-jittar. Hirschensohn, Sheba' Hokmoth s.v. בתיר thinks of Botrys on the North African coast.

(73) For the reasons: (a) These hallah-portions could not be eaten, since, coming from not fully sacred territory, they were unclean. (b) They could not accept them and burn them, because (since their place of origin was in a zone of partial but not complete sanctity) the fact that such hallah is unclean is not generally known, and people might be led to think that clean hallah was being — and permitted to be — burnt in Palestine. (c) Accepting these hallah-portions and sending them out of Palestine to burn them, would lead people to think, entirely erroneously, that any hallah or terumah may be sent out of the Land of Israel. The only possible thing to do is to let these dough-portions remain till the Eve of Passover when they should be burnt with other leaven (T.J.).

(74) Probably close to the valley of that name (I Sam. XIII, 18) and the town of that name (Neh. XI, 34) in Judea.

(75) Azereth, a Rabbinic designation for the Feast of Weeks or Pentecost, on which the first-ripe fruits were due to be brought to the Temple. Lit., 'the closing', Pentecost being considered the closing festival to Passover.

(76) Ex. XXIII, 16 (cf. Lev. XXIII, 15-21, Num. XXVIII, 26). According to this verse it was the first-fruits coming from 'that which thou sowest in the field' i.e., the 'Two Loaves' (which, too, were termed 'First-fruits') that were the first to be brought to the Temple, before the other first-ripe produce, indeed before any of the other priestly and levitical dues. Seemingly the refusal recorded here is contrary to Mishnah Men. X, 6 which lays it down that although the first-fruits are in the first instance not to be brought before the Two Loaves, nevertheless if one had already unintentionally done so, such first-fruits are valid. (They are not accepted at the time but laid aside till after the bringing of the Two Loaves on the day of the Festival, and then they are handed to the priest and the declaration prescribed in Deut. XXVI is recited.) T.J., however, explain that the refusal of the prematurely brought first-fruits, in our case, was on the ground that acceptance would, in the circumstances, have given the impression that it was the proper thing to bring first-fruits prior to the Feast of Weeks.

(77) Var. lec.: Antinos.

(78) To the Temple.

(79) From Deut. XIV, 23. And thou shalt eat before the Lord thy God, in the place which He shall choose . . . the tithes of thy corn, thy wine and thine oil, and the firstlings of thy cattle and thy flocks, a deduction is made that even as terumah and tithes are not to be brought to the altar from outside of sacred territory so too are firstlings not to be brought from such places. Such firstlings are to be allowed to pasture till they become unfit for sacrifice and then they are eaten by priests (v. T.J.).

(80) He was evidently well-known as one who was particularly concerned to avoid circumstances defiling the sanctity attaching to a priest (v. Zeb. 10a, Sifra to Lev. XXI, 2, 'Er. 47b; 'A.Z. 13a).

(81) The law is that first-ripe fruits may be brought in liquid form only if there was such intention at the time of the picking of the olives or grapes.

(82) Because there had been no prior intention to bring them in liquid form; T.J.

(83) As a rule designated 'the Second Passover'. According to Num. IX, 1-12, a person who was unclean on the Eve of the Passover and therefore unable to offer up the Paschal Lamb, was to do so exactly a month later (i.e. on the eve of the 15th Iyyar). The occasion reported here was probably in the year when his wife died on the Eve of Passover. Unwilling to miss the Paschal Sacrifice, he was, then, most reluctant to allow himself to become defiled through her dead body (v. Num. XIX, II, 14) although the death of a wife is a case in which a man is permitted to defile himself (Lev. XXI, 2, where the phrase 'for his kin that is near unto him' refers, according to Rabbinic interpretation, to his wife). His colleagues, however, forcibly overcame his reluctance and he did allow himself to become unclean (Sifra loc. cit., Zeb. loc. cit. and parallels). V. Hyman, Toledoth Tannaim s.v. where he usually corrects an erroneous inference by Weiss (Dor I. P. 46, n. 2, p. 47) as to the date of the halachah permitting a priest to defile himself on the death of his wife.

(84) According to Ex. XXIII, 17, Passover was one of the three festivals when all males were to 'appear before the Lord', but that is ordained only for the real Passover and not for the 'Second (called here Lesser) Passover'. Pilgrimage to the Temple was of course permitted throughout the year and priests — like Joseph ha-Kohen — naturally had access to the Temple. Notwithstanding this and the fact that he was attending for the purposes of carrying out the precept of the 'Second Passover', he was turned back because he brought his young sons etc. with him, lest his act lead the public — as it was most likely to do — to an erroneous conclusion that the Second Passover required just like Passover itself not only the sacrifice of the Paschal Lamb by those who had been unable to do so on the real Passover, but also the pilgrimage of all males.

(85) Perhaps not the proper name of a man, but just a man of noble birth or standing.

(86) A few places of this name are known. Probably Paneas in Syria is meant here.

(87) First-ripe fruits were accepted from abroad, unlike terumah. The decision not to subject produce abroad to terumah is due to a desire to discourage priests from leaving the Holy Land as they would be tempted to do in order to collect terumah abroad. Owners had no need to 'bring' terumah to the Temple but just to distribute it among priests. Such a cause did not exist in the case of first-ripe fruits which had to be brought to the Sanctuary.

(88) The phrase indicates a reference to a Mishnah in the Mishnah-collection in its earliest form. Cf. supra III end.

(89) And the product of such Jewish owned land in Syria is accordingly subject to tithes etc. This is not the case if the land in Syria is held by Jews only on tenancy v. supra Mish. 7. V. Git. 8a for a list of particulars in which Syria is treated in law like the Land of Israel. MS. M. adds the following passage (which is quoted in B. K 110b and Hul. 133b as a Baraitha): Twenty-four dues were given to the priests: ten in the Temple and four in Jerusalem and ten within the borders (of the Land of Israel). These are the ten given them in the Temple: Sin-offerings, sin-offerings of birds, the unconditional and suspensive guilt-offerings, the peace-offering of the congregation, the log of oil of the leper, the remainder of the Omer, the Two Loaves, the Shewbread, the residue of the meal-offerings. And these are the four given in Jerusalem: The firstlings, the first-fruits, the heave-offering from the thank-offering, and the ram of the Nazirite, and the skins of hallowed sacrifices. And these are the ten given them within the borders: Terumah, terumah of the tithe, hallah, the first of the shearing, the priestly gifts (from every beast slaughtered for food), the redemption price of the firstborn son, the redemption price of the firstling of an ass, the field of possession, the devoted field, and what was wrongly obtained of a proselyte (who died without any legal issue). No priest who is not well versed in these things may receive them as gifts.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THE FATHERS OF UNCLEANNESS¹ ARE A [DEAD] CREEPING THING,² SEMEN VIRILE, [AN ISRAELITE] WHO HAS CONTRACTED CORPSE UNCLEANNESS, A LEPER DURING THE DAYS OF HIS COUNTING³ AND THE WATERS OF PURIFICATION⁴ WHOSE QUANTITY IS LESS THAN THE MINIMUM PRESCRIBED FOR SPRINKLING.⁵ BEHOLD, THESE CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO MEN AND VESSELS BY CONTACT AND TO EARTHENWARE BY PRESENCE WITHIN THEIR AIRSPACE,⁶ BUT⁷ THEY CANNOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS BY CARRIAGE.

MISHNAH 2. ON A HIGHER PLANE⁸ THAN THESE⁹ ARE CARRION AND WATERS OF PURIFICATION WHOSE QUANTITY IS SUFFICIENT TO BE SPRINKLED, FOR THESE CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO MAN BY CARRIAGE,¹⁰ SO THAT HE IN TURN¹¹ CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO CLOTHING BY CONTACT.¹² CLOTHING, HOWEVER,¹³ IS FREE FROM UNCLEANNESS WHERE THERE WAS¹⁴ CONTACT ALONE.¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. ON A HIGHER PLANE¹⁶ IS THE MAN WHO HAD INTERCOURSE WITH A MENSTRUANT, FOR HE CONVEYS TO THAT ON WHICH HE LIES¹⁷ THE SAME UNCLEANNESS AS [A ZAB¹⁸ CONVEYS] TO THAT¹⁹ WHICH LIES ABOVE HIM.²⁰ ON A HIGHER PLANE¹⁶ THAN THESE ARE THE ISSUE OF A ZAB, HIS SPITTLE, HIS SEMEN AND HIS URINE, AND THE BLOOD OF A MENSTRUANT, FOR THEY CONVEY UNCLEANNESS²¹ BOTH BY CONTACT AND BY CARRIAGE.²² ON A HIGHER PLANE¹⁶ THAN THESE IS AN OBJECT ON WHICH ONE CAN RIDE,²³ FOR IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS EVEN WHEN IT LIES UNDER A HEAVY STONE.²⁴ ON A HIGHER PLANE¹⁶ THAN THE OBJECT ON WHICH ONE CAN RIDE IS THAT ON WHICH ONE CAN LIE, FOR IN THE LATTER CASE UNCLEANNESS²⁵ IS CONVEYED BY CONTACT AS BY CARRIAGE.²⁶ ON A HIGHER PLANE¹⁶ THAN THE OBJECT ON WHICH ONE CAN LIE IS THE ZAB, FOR A ZAB CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO THE OBJECT ON WHICH HE LIES²⁷ WHILE THE OBJECT ON WHICH HE LIES²⁸ CANNOT CONVEY THE SAME UNCLEANNESS²³ TO THAT UPON WHICH IT LIES.²⁹

MISHNAH 4. ON A HIGHER PLANE¹⁶ THAN THE ZAB IS THE ZABAH,³⁰ FOR SHE CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS³¹ TO THE MAN WHO HAS INTERCOURSE WITH HER.³² ON A HIGHER PLANE THAN THE ZABAH IS THE LEPER, FOR HE CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS³³ BY ENTERING INTO A HOUSE.³⁴ ON A HIGHER PLANE THAN THE LEPER IS A BONE³⁵ OF THE SIZE OF A BARLEY GRAIN, FOR IT³⁶ CONVEYS AN UNCLEANNESS OF SEVEN DAYS. MORE RESTRICTIVE THAN ALL THESE IS A CORPSE, FOR IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS BY OHEL³⁷ WHEREBY ALL THE OTHERS CONVEY NO UNCLEANNESS.³⁸

MISHNAH 5. TEN GRADES OF UNCLEANNESS³⁹ EMANATE FROM MEN: A MAN⁴⁰ BEFORE THE OFFERING OF HIS OBLIGATORY SACRIFICES⁴¹ IS FORBIDDEN TO EAT HOLY THINGS BUT PERMITTED TO EAT TERUMAH AND [SECOND] TITHE. IF HE IS⁴² A TEBUL YOM⁴³ HE IS FORBIDDEN TO EAT HOLY THINGS AND TERUMAH BUT PERMITTED THE EATING OF [SECOND] TITHE. IF HE⁴² EMITTED SEMEN⁴⁴ HE IS FORBIDDEN TO EAT ANY OF THE THREE. IF HE⁴² HAD INTERCOURSE WITH A MENSTRUANT HE CONVEYS THE SAME UNCLEANNESS TO THAT ON WHICH HE LIES AS [A ZAB CONVEYS] TO THAT WHICH LIES ABOVE HIM.⁴⁵ IF HE IS⁴² A ZAB WHO HAS OBSERVED TWO DISCHARGES HE CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO THAT ON WHICH HE LIES OR SITS AND IS REQUIRED TO UNDERGO IMMERSION IN RUNNING WATER,⁴⁶ BUT IS EXEMPT FROM THE SACRIFICE.⁴⁷ IF HE OBSERVED THREE DISCHARGES HE MUST BRING THE SACRIFICE.⁴⁸ IF HE⁴⁹ IS A LEPER THAT WAS ONLY SHUT UP⁵⁰ HE CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS⁵¹ BY ENTRY⁵² BUT IS EXEMPT FROM LOOSENING HIS HAIR,⁵³ FROM RENDING HIS CLOTHES,⁵³ FROM SHAVING⁵⁴ AND FROM THE BIRDS OFFERING;⁵⁵ BUT IF HE WAS A CONFIRMED LEPER⁵⁶, HE IS LIABLE TO ALL THESE. IF A LIMB ON WHICH THERE WAS NOT THE PROPER QUANTITY OF FLESH⁵⁷ WAS SEVERED FROM A PERSON, IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND BY CARRIAGE BUT NOT BY OHEL; BUT IF IT BEARS THE PROPER QUANTITY OF FLESH IT CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT, BY CARRIAGE AND BY OHEL. A 'PROPER QUANTITY OF FLESH' IS SUCH AS IS CAPABLE OF HEALING. R. JUDAH EXPLAINED: IF IN ONE PLACE IT⁵⁸ HAS FLESH SUFFICIENT TO SURROUND IT⁵⁸ WITH [THE THICKNESS OF] A THREAD OF THE WOOF⁵⁹ IT IS CAPABLE OF HEALING.

MISHNAH 6. THERE ARE TEN GRADES OF HOLINESS: THE LAND OF ISRAEL IS HOLIER THAN ALL OTHER LANDS. AND WHAT IS THE NATURE OF ITS HOLINESS? THAT FROM IT ARE BROUGHT THE 'OMER,⁶⁰ THE FIRSTFRUITS⁶¹ AND THE TWO LOAVES,⁶² WHICH MAY NOT BE BROUGHT FROM ANY OF THE OTHER LANDS.

MISHNAH 7. CITIES⁶³ THAT ARE WALLED⁶⁴ ARE HOLIER,⁶⁵ FOR LEPERS MUST BE SENT OUT OF THEM AND A CORPSE, THOUGH IT MAY BE CARRIED ABOUT WITHIN THEM AS LONG AS IT IS DESIRED,⁶⁶ MAY NOT BE BROUGHT BACK ONCE IT HAS BEEN TAKEN OUT.

MISHNAH 8. THE AREA WITHIN THE WALL⁶⁷ IS HOLIER, FOR IT IS THERE⁶⁸ THAT HOLY THINGS OF A MINOR DEGREE AND SECOND TITHE MAY BE EATEN. THE TEMPLE MOUNT⁶⁹ IS HOLIER, FOR NEITHER ZABS NOR ZABAHS NOR MENSTRUANTS NOR WOMEN AFTER CHILDBIRTH MAY ENTER IT. THE RAMPART⁷⁰ IS HOLIER, FOR NEITHER IDOLATERS NOR ONE WHO CONTRACTED CORPSE UNCLEANNESS MAY ENTER IT. THE COURT OF WOMEN⁷¹ IS HOLIER, FOR NO TEBUL YOM⁷² MAY ENTER IT, THOUGH NO SIN-OFFERING IS THEREBY INCURRED. THE COURT OF THE ISRAELITES⁷³ IS HOLIER, FOR A MAN WHO HAS NOT YET OFFERED HIS OBLIGATORY SACRIFICES⁷⁴ MAY NOT ENTER IT, AND IF HE ENTERS HE INCURS THEREBY A SIN-OFFERING. THE COURT OF THE PRIESTS⁷⁵ IS HOLIER, FOR NO ISRAELITES MAY ENTER IT EXCEPT WHEN THEY ARE REQUIRED TO DO SO⁷⁶ IN CONNECTION WITH THE LAYING ON OF HANDS,⁷⁷ SLAYING OR WAVING.⁷⁸

MISHNAH 9. THE AREA BETWEEN THE ULAM⁷⁹ AND THE ALTAR IS HOLIER,⁸⁰ FOR MEN AFFLICTED WITH BLEMISHES OR WITH A WILD GROWTH OF HAIR MAY NOT ENTER IT. THE HEKAL IS HOLIER, FOR NO ONE WHOSE HANDS OR FEET ARE UNWASHED MAY ENTER IT. THE HOLY OF HOLIES IS HOLIER, FOR ONLY THE HIGH PRIEST, ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT, AT THE SERVICE,⁸¹ MAY ENTER IT.⁸² R. JOSE STATED: IN FIVE RESPECTS IS THE AREA BETWEEN THE ULAM AND THE ALTAR ON A PAR WITH THE HEKAL, FOR THOSE AFFLICTED WITH BLEMISHES OR WITH A WILD GROWTH OF HAIR, OR WHO HAVE DRUNK WINE OR WHOSE HANDS OR FEET ARE UNWASHED MAY NOT ENTER THERE,⁸³ AND THE PEOPLE MUST KEEP AWAY FROM THE AREA BETWEEN THE ULAM AND THE ALTAR⁸⁴ WHEN THE INCENSE IS BEING BURNED.⁸⁵

(1) Sc. those that convey uncleanness to both men and vessels. An 'offspring of uncleanness' conveys uncleanness to foodstuffs and liquids but not to men and vessels.

(2) Any of the eight classes enumerated in Lev. XI, 29f.

(3) V. Lev. XIV, 8f.

(4) V. Num. XIX.

(5) V. Parah XII, 5.

- (6) Even if there was no contact with the vessel. Through the external side of such a vessel, however, no uncleanness can be conveyed even by direct contact.
- (7) In the absence of direct contact with them.
- (8) In the intensity of uncleanness.
- (9) The 'fathers of uncleanness' enumerated in the previous Mishnah.
- (10) Even in the absence of direct contact between them and the man.
- (11) While he is still carrying one of the uncleannesses mentioned.
- (12) With any part of his body.
- (13) Though it came in contact with the unclean man.
- (14) Between the man and the 'father of uncleanness'.
- (15) Only where the man was carrying the 'father of uncleanness' at the time he came in contact with the clothing is uncleanness conveyed to the latter.
- (16) In the intensity of uncleanness.
- (17) Lit., 'the lower couch'.
- (18) A male who has a flux.
- (19) Whether he came in direct contact with it or not.
- (20) Sc. the former like the latter is subject only to the first grade of uncleanness. That on which a zab lies becomes a 'father of uncleanness'.
- (21) To clothes or vessels (other than earthenware).
- (22) Sc. not only by the latter but also by the former.
- (23) So Maim. Lit., 'a riding seat'.
- (24) On which the zab sat; though, owing to the heavy weight of the stone, the zab's weight could make no appreciable impression on the object. The unclean riding object under the stone has uncleanness conveyed to it by the zab sitting on the stone and conveys uncleanness to any clean person who sits upon the stone, v. Tosaf. Y T.
- (25) To the person and the clothes he wears.
- (26) In the former case uncleanness is conveyed through carriage only.
- (27) Causing it to be a 'father of uncleanness'.
- (28) Even after it contracted the uncleanness of the zab (cf. prev. n.).
- (29) The latter contracting a first grade of uncleanness only.
- (30) A woman who has a flux.
- (31) Of zibah (a 'father of uncleanness').
- (32) A zab, however, by intercourse, conveys to a woman a minor form of uncleanness which lasts until sunset only.
- (33) To men and vessels.
- (34) If they (cf. prev. n.) were under the same roof.
- (35) Of a corpse.
- (36) Unlike the former where uncleanness terminates at sunset.
- (37) 'Overshadowing' (v. Glos.). Irrespective of (a) whether, for instance, the whole body of the clean person was within the ohel (tent) or only a part of it, and (b) whether there was a partition in the ohel between the corpse and the clean person or not, and (c) whether or not the corpse or the clean person was stationary or moving.
- (38) Even a leper conveys uncleanness by ohel only where (a) his entire body was within it, (b) there was no partition between the leper and the clean person and (c) the leper was not on the move.
- (39) One more restrictive than the other.
- (40) Such as a confirmed leper or a zab, or a zabah, whose restoration to cleanness depends on the offering of the prescribed sacrifice.
- (41) Lit., 'lacking atonement'.
- (42) Lit., 'he returned to be'.
- (43) One who immersed himself on the selfsame day (v. Glos.).
- (44) Lit., 'master (or subject) of a mishap'.
- (45) Cf. supra p. 8, n. 4.
- (46) Unlike the others whose immersion may be performed in a ritual bath of standing water.
- (47) Prescribed only for a zab who experienced three discharges (v. infra).
- (48) Cf. prev. n.

- (49) V. p. 9, n. 11.
- (50) V. Lev. XIII, 4f.
- (51) To men and objects in a house.
- (52) Into that house.
- (53) V. Lev. Xlii, 45.
- (54) V. Lev. XIV, 8.
- (55) V. Lev. XIV, 4.
- (56) One whom the priest declared to be unclean.
- (57) As prescribed infra.
- (58) The limb.
- (59) Which is twice as thick as that of the warp.
- (60) V. Lev. XXIII, 10f.
- (61) V. Deut. XXVI, 2ff.
- (62) V. Lev. XXIII, 17.
- (63) In the Land of Israel.
- (64) Since the time of Joshua the son of Nun.
- (65) Than the other parts of the Land.
- (66) In connection with its funeral or burial arrangements.
- (67) Of Jerusalem.
- (68) And not without the wall.
- (69) An area of five hundred by five hundred cubits in which the Temple buildings were situated.
- (70) The Hel. A causeway ten cubits wide surrounding the inner precincts of the Temple (cf. Mid. II, 3).
- (71) Situated within the Rampart.
- (72) V. Glos.
- (73) This was situated within the Court of the Women from which it was approached by an ascent of fifteen steps (cf. Mid. II, 5).
- (74) Cf. supra p. 9, n. 9.
- (75) Cf. Mid. II, 6.
- (76) Lit., 'their requirements'.
- (77) On a sacrifice (v. Lev. III, 2).
- (78) Cf. Lev. VII, 30.
- (79) The Porch, the Hall leading into the Hekal, the Sanctuary.
- (80) In accordance with Pentateuchal (Maim.) or only Rabbinical (v. Bert. and L.) law.
- (81) In the Temple.
- (82) Four times: To burn incense, to sprinkle the blood of the bullock, to sprinkle the blood of the he-goat and to take out the spoon and the pan; v. Lev. XVI, 2ff.
- (83) Except when necessary in connection with the Temple services (L.).
- (84) And, much more so, from the Hekal.
- (85) In the Holy of Holies or on the golden altar.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. VESSELS OF WOOD, VESSELS OF LEATHER, VESSELS OF BONE OR VESSELS OF GLASS THAT ARE FLAT ARE CLEAN¹ AND THOSE THAT FORM A RECEPTACLE ARE UNCLEAN.² IF THEY WERE BROKEN THEY BECOME CLEAN¹ AGAIN. IF ONE REMADE THEM INTO VESSELS THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS HENCEFORTH.³ EARTHEN VESSELS AND VESSELS OF ALUM-CRYSTALS ARE ON A PAR IN RESPECT OF UNCLEANNESS: THEY CONTRACT AND CONVEY⁴ UNCLEANNESS THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE,⁵ THEY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS⁶ THROUGH THEIR [CONCAVE] BOTTOMS BUT NOT⁷ THROUGH THEIR BACKS;⁸ AND WHEN BROKEN⁹ THEY BECOME CLEAN.¹

MISHNAH 2. AS REGARDS THE SMALLEST EARTHEN VESSELS, AND THE BOTTOMS AND SIDES [OF THE LARGER BUT BROKEN VESSELS] THAT CAN STAND¹⁰ UNSUPPORTED,¹¹ THE PRESCRIBED SIZE¹² IS A CAPACITY TO HOLD OIL SUFFICIENT FOR THE ANOINTING OF A LITTLE FINGER OF A CHILD IF¹³ THEIR FORMER CAPACITY¹⁴ WAS THAT OF¹⁵ A LOG. IF¹³ THEIR FORMER CAPACITY¹⁴ WAS FROM ONE LOG TO SE'AH THEIR PRESENT CAPACITY¹² MUST BE A QUARTER OF A LOG; IF IT WAS¹⁴ FROM A SE'AH TO TWO SE'AH IT MUST BE¹⁶ HALF A LOG; IF¹⁷ FROM TWO SE'AH TO THREE SE'AH OR AS MUCH AS FIVE SE'AH IT MUST BE¹⁸ A LOG; SO R. ISHMAEL. R. AKIBA STATED: I DO NOT PRESCRIBE ANY SIZE FOR THE UNBROKEN VESSELS,¹⁹ BUT²⁰ THIS IS THE RULE: AS REGARDS THE SMALLEST EARTHEN VESSELS, AND THE BOTTOMS AND SIDES [OF LARGER BUT BROKEN ONES] THAT CAN STAND²¹ UNSUPPORTED,²² THE PRESCRIBED SIZE²³ IS A CAPACITY TO HOLD ENOUGH OIL TO ANOINT THE LITTLE FINGER OF A CHILD. [THIS SIZE IS PRESCRIBED FOR POTS] THAT ARE NOT BIGGER THAN²⁴ THE SMALL COOKING-POTS. FOR SMALL COOKING-POTS AND FOR THOSE BETWEEN THESE AND THE LYDDA JARS THE PRESCRIBED CAPACITY²³ IS A QUARTER OF A LOG. FOR THOSE WHICH HAVE A SIZE BETWEEN THAT OF LYDDA JARS AND THE BETHLEHEM JARS THE CAPACITY²³ MUST BE THAT OF HALF A LOG. FOR THOSE BETWEEN THE BETHLEHEM JARS AND LARGE STONE JARS THE CAPACITY²³ MUST BE THAT OF A LOG. R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI RULED: THE PRESCRIBED CAPACITY²³ FOR THE FRAGMENTS OF LARGE STONE JARS IS TWO LOGS, AND THAT FOR THE BOTTOMS OF BROKEN GALILEAN CRUSES AND SMALL JARS IS ANY WHATSOEVER, BUT THE FRAGMENTS OF THEIR SIDES ARE IN NO CASE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 3. THE FOLLOWING²⁵ ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AMONG EARTHEN VESSELS: A TRAY WITHOUT A RIM, A FIRE-PAN WITH BROKEN SIDES, A TUBE FOR ROASTING CORN, GUTTERS EVEN IF THEY ARE BENT²⁶ AND EVEN IF THEY HAVE²⁷ SOME FORM OF RECEPTACLE,²⁸ A BASKET-COVER²⁹ THAT WAS TURNED INTO A BREAD-BASKET,²⁶ A PITCHER³⁰ THAT HAS BEEN ADAPTED³¹ AS A COVER FOR GRAPES,³² A JAR³⁰ FOR SWIMMERS,³³ A SMALL JAR³⁰ FIXED TO THE SIDES OF A LADLE,³⁴ A BED, A STOOL, A BENCH, A TABLE, A SHIP,³⁵ AND AN EARTHEN LAMP, BEHOLD THESE ARE INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE FOLLOWING IS A GENERAL RULE:³⁶ ANY AMONG EARTHEN VESSELS THAT HAS NO INNER PART IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ITS OUTER SIDES.³⁷

MISHNAH 4. A LANTERN THAT HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR OIL IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT ONE THAT HAS NONE IS INSUSCEPTIBLE. A POTTER'S MOULD ON WHICH ONE BEGINS TO SHAPE THE CLAY IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,³⁸ BUT THAT ON WHICH ONE FINISHES IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE.³⁹ A FUNNEL FOR HOME USE⁴⁰ IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,³⁸ BUT THAT OF PEDLARS IS SUSCEPTIBLE BECAUSE⁴¹ IT ALSO SERVES AS A MEASURE;⁴² SO R. JUDAH B. BATHYRA. R. AKIBA SAID: BECAUSE ONE PUTS IT ON ITS SIDE⁴³ SO AS TO LET THE BUYER SMELL IT.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 5. THE COVERS OF WINE JARS AND OIL JARS AND THE COVERS OF PAPYRUS⁴⁵ JARS⁴⁶ ARE INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT IF THEY WERE ADAPTED FOR USE AS RECEPTACLES THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE. THE COVER OF A STEW-POT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS WHEN IT HAS A HOLE⁴⁷ OR A POINTED TOP,⁴⁸ BUT IF IT HAS NEITHER HOLE NOR POINTED TOP IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE BECAUSE SHE⁴⁹ DRAINS THE VEGETABLES INTO IT. R. ELIEZER B. ZADOK SAID: BECAUSE SHE TURNS OUT THE CONTENTS [OF THE POT] ON TO IT.

MISHNAH 6. IF A DAMAGED JAR⁵⁰ WAS FOUND IN A FURNACE,⁵¹ BEFORE ITS MANUFACTURE WAS COMPLETE⁵² IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁵³ BUT IF AFTER ITS MANUFACTURE WAS COMPLETE⁵⁴ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE.⁵⁵ AS TO A SPRINKLER,⁵⁶ R. ELIEZER B. ZADOK HOLDS IT TO BE INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; BUT R. JOSE HOLDS IT TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE BECAUSE IT LETS THE LIQUID OUT IN DROPS ONLY.⁵⁷

MISHNAH 7. THE FOLLOWING AMONG EARTHEN VESSELS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS: A TRAY WITH A RIM, AN UNBROKEN FIRE-PAN, AND A TRAY MADE UP OF⁵⁸ DISHES. IF ONE OF THEM⁵⁹ CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM A [DEAD] CREEPING THING⁶⁰ THEY DO NOT ALL BECOME UNCLEAR, BUT IF THE TRAY HAD A RIM THAT PROJECTED ABOVE THE RIMS OF THE DISHES AND ONE OF THEM⁶¹ CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS ALL ARE RENDERED UNCLEAR.⁶² SIMILARLY WITH AN EARTHEN SPICE-POT⁶³ AND A DOUBLE INK-POT.⁶⁴ BUT IF ONE CONTAINER OF A WOODEN SPICE-BOX⁶³ CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM A LIQUID,⁶⁵ THE OTHER IS NOT RENDERED UNCLEAR.⁶⁶ R. JOHANAN B. NURI RULED: ITS THICKNESS⁶⁷ IS DEEMED TO BE DIVIDED⁶⁸ AND THAT SIDE WHICH SERVES THE UNCLEAR ONE IS UNCLEAR WHILE THAT WHICH SERVES THE CLEAR ONE REMAINS CLEAR. IF ITS RIM PROJECTS ABOVE THE OTHERS AND ONE OF THEM⁶⁹ CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS THE OTHER ALSO IS RENDERED UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 8. A TORCİ⁷⁰ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁷¹ AND THE RESERVOIR⁷² OF A LAMP CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS⁷³ THROUGH ITS AIR- SPACE.⁷⁴ THE COMB⁷⁵ OF A COOLER,⁷⁶ R. ELIEZER RULED, IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁷⁷ BUT THE SAGES RULED THAT IT WAS SUSCEPTIBLE.⁷⁸

- (1) Sc. they are not susceptible to uncleanness.
 - (2) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.
 - (3) They do not, however, resume their former uncleanness as metal vessels do.
 - (4) To foodstuffs and liquids.
 - (5) Even in the absence of contact with the vessel.
 - (6) By contact; but not through their air-space.
 - (7) Even if there was contact between the vessel and the uncleanness.
 - (8) Their outer flat or convex sides.
 - (9) But not by immersion as is the case with vessels made of other materials.
 - (10) When filled with liquid.
 - (11) Without shedding their contents.
 - (12) That renders them susceptible to uncleanness.
 - (13) In the case of broken vessels.

 - (26) Because the receptacle is an imperfect one.

- (27) As a result of excavation by constantly dripping water.
- (28) Since the cavity was not made for the purpose of serving as such.
- (29) Shaped somewhat in the form of a receptacle but not originally intended to hold anything within it.
- (30) Though it has a proper receptacle.
- (31) By some alteration in its shape.
- (32) In consequence of which it is no longer used as a receptacle.
- (33) Being permanently stopped up on both sides it can no longer be regarded as having a proper receptacle (cf. prev. n.).
- (34) To serve as its handle so as to facilitate its use (cf. supra n. 3).
- (35) A ship's insusceptibility to uncleanness, despite its shape and use as a receptacle, is a Pentateuchal ordinance.
- (36) That has some, though only an indirect, bearing on the preceding laws.
- (37) Only when it has an inner part may uncleanness be imparted to its outer sides. The inner part of an earthen vessel contracts uncleanness through its inner air-space only. It can never contract uncleanness through its outer sides.
- (38) Because it has no receptacle.
- (39) Since it has a receptacle.
- (40) Lit., 'of householders'.
- (41) By closing up the narrower hole of the funnel with a finger when filling it and removing the finger when holding the funnel over the buyer's utensil.
- (42) And may, therefore, be regarded as a proper receptacle.
- (43) To take up some of the liquid.
- (44) A funnel is consequently susceptible to uncleanness even if it contains less than any known measure. According to the first Tanna, however, only when a funnel is capable of containing a known measure is it susceptible to uncleanness.
- (45) Neyaroth. Some regard this word as a place name.
- (46) Var. lec., 'and the papyrus (covers of jars)' .
- (47) In consequence of which it cannot be used as a receptacle.
- (48) Which prevents it from being inverted and placed with its cavity upwards (cf. prev. n.).
- (49) Sc. the housewife.
- (50) Gastra, ; v. infra IV, 2-3.
- (51) In which earthen vessels are baked.
- (52) So that the defect occurred before the jar assumed the status of a 'vessel'.
- (53) Since only 'vessels' are susceptible.
- (54) Cf. n. mut. mut.
- (55) Because it is used as a receptacle for drops falling from a jar.
- (56) Consisting of a perforated sieve-like receptacle in which the liquid is held by the closing up with the finger of a hole above.
- (57) Such small holes do not allow a liquid to be taken in, and it is only the bigger kind of holes that destroy the status of a vessel.
- (58) Lit., 'full'.
- (59) The dishes in the last mentioned tray.
- (60) And much more so from liquids.
- (61) V. p. 16, n. 15.
- (62) Since the creeping thing, when it is in the air-space of any of the dishes, is also within the air-space of the rim of the tray which encompasses all its constituents.
- (63) That was made up of several containers.
- (64) In their cases too the uncleanness of one container or pot does not affect the others unless a rim running round the whole contrivance projects above the rims of the constituents.
- (65) Only a liquid. In the case of a dead creeping thing the entire contrivance becomes unclean.
- (66) Since the uncleanness of the one container could be conveyed to the other only, by way of the adjoining sides, and the uncleanness of liquids cannot be conveyed, even Rabbinically, through the outside of a vessel.
- (67) Of the side which separates the clean from the unclean container.
- (68) Where one of them only came in contact with unclean liquids.
- (69) The constituent containers.

- (70) Consisting of an earthen bowl fixed to a pole and filled with wicks and oil.
- (71) Though on account of its pointed bottom (which fits into the pole) it cannot stand unsupported.
- (72) Lit., 'the house of its sinking'.
- (73) As any other earthen vessel that is shaped as a receptacle.
- (74) Though it does not serve as a proper receptacle for the lamp which is only partly inserted into it.
- (75) Projections around the rim in the shape of the teeth of a comb.
- (76) Made of earthenware.
- (77) Sc. an uncleanness on the comb is not regarded as one within the air-space of the cooler.
- (78) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. THE SIZE OF A HOLE THAT RENDERS AN EARTHEN VESSEL CLEAN¹ IS THE FOLLOWING: IF THE VESSEL WAS USED FOR FOODSTUFFS THE HOLE MUST BE BIG ENOUGH FOR OLIVES [TO FALL THROUGH],² IF IT WAS USED FOR LIQUIDS IT SUFFICES FOR THE HOLE TO BE BIG ENOUGH FOR LIQUIDS [TO BE ADMITTED THROUGH IT],³ AND IF IT WAS USED FOR BOTH IT IS SUBJECTED TO THE GREATER RESTRICTION, VIZ., THAT THE HOLE MUST BE BIG ENOUGH FOR OLIVES [TO FALL THROUGH].⁴

MISHNAH 2. AS REGARDS A JAR THE SIZE OF THE HOLE⁵ MUST BE SUCH THAT A DRIED FIG [WILL FALL THROUGH];⁴ SO R. SIMEON. R. JUDAH SAID: WALNUTS.⁶ R. MEIR SAID: OLIVES.⁶ THE SIZE OF A HOLE⁵ IN A STEW-POT OR A COOKING POT MUST BE SUCH THAT OLIVES [WILL FALL THROUGH]; IN A CRUSE AND A PITCHER, SUCH THAT OIL [WILL PENETRATE THROUGH IT];⁷ AND IN A COOLER, SUCH THAT WATER [WILL PENETRATE THROUGH IT].⁷ R. SIMEON RULED: THE SIZE OF THE HOLE IN THE CASE OF ALL THREE GROUPS⁸ MUST BE SUCH THAT SEED [WILL FALL THROUGH IT]. IN A LAMP THE SIZE OF THE HOLE⁵ MUST BE SUCH THAT OIL [WILL PENETRATE THROUGH IT].⁷ R. ELIEZER SAID: SUCH THAT A SMALL PERUTAH [WILL DROP OUT THROUGH IT].⁹ A LAMP¹⁰ WHOSE NOZZLE HAS BEEN REMOVED IS CLEAN;¹¹ AND ONE MADE OF EARTH¹² WHOSE NOZZLE HAS BEEN BURNT BY THE WICK IS ALSO CLEAN.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. IF A JAR¹³ THAT HAD A HOLE¹⁴ WAS MENDED WITH PITCH¹⁵ AND THEN WAS BROKEN AGAIN,¹⁶ IF THE FRAGMENT THAT WAS MENDED WITH THE PITCH CAN CONTAIN A QUARTER OF A LOG¹⁷ IT IS UNCLEAN, SINCE THE DESIGNATION OF VESSEL HAS NEVER CEASED TO BE APPLIED TO IT. IF A POTSHERD HAD A HOLE THAT WAS MENDED WITH PITCH, IT IS CLEAN THOUGH IT CAN CONTAIN A QUARTER OF A LOG, BECAUSE THE DESIGNATION OF VESSEL HAS CEASED TO BE APPLIED TO IT.

MISHNAH 4. IF A JAR WAS CRACKED¹⁸ BUT¹⁹, WAS LINED WITH CATTLE DUNG, ALTHOUGH THE POTSHERDS WOULD FALL APART WERE THE DUNG TO BE REMOVED,²⁰ IT IS UNCLEAN,²¹ BECAUSE²² IT NEVER CEASED TO BEAR THE NAME OF VESSEL. IF IT WAS BROKEN²³ AND SOME OF ITS SHERDS WERE STUCK TOGETHER AGAIN,²⁴ OR IF SOME POTTER'S CLAY WAS BROUGHT FOR THE PURPOSE²⁵ FROM ELSEWHERE, AND²⁶ IT WAS ALSO LINED WITH CATTLE DUNG, EVEN THOUGH THE POTSHERDS HOLD TOGETHER WHEN THE DUNG IS REMOVED, IT IS CLEAN,²⁷ BECAUSE IT²⁸ CEASED TO BEAR THE NAME OF VESSEL. IF IT²⁹ CONTAINED ONE SHERD THAT COULD HOLD³⁰ A QUARTER OF A LOG,³¹ ALL ITS²⁹ PARTS³² CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT,³³ BUT THAT SHERD³⁴ CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE.

MISHNAH 5. IF A SOUND VESSEL WAS LINED, R. MEIR AND R. SIMEON RULED: THE LINING³⁵ CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS;³⁶ BUT THE SAGES RULED: A LINING OVER A SOUND VESSEL IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,³⁷ , AND ONLY ONE OVER A CRACKED VESSEL IS SUSCEPTIBLE.³⁸ AND THE SAME DISPUTE³⁹ APPLIES TO THE HOOP⁴⁰ OF A PUMPKIN SHELL.⁴¹

MISHNAH 6. AS TO SCUTCHGRASS WHEREWITH THE LARGEST JARS⁴² ARE LINED, ANY ONE THAT TOUCHES IT⁴³ BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁴⁴ THE PLUG OF A JAR⁴⁵ IS NOT REGARDED AS CONNECTED.⁴⁶ THAT⁴⁷ , WHICH TOUCHES THE LINING OF AN OVEN⁴⁸ IS UNCLEAR.⁴⁹

- (1) If (a) it was previously unclear; and if it was clean (b) insusceptible to all future uncleanness.
 - (2) If it was smaller, the vessel (cf. prev. n.) remains (a) unclear or (b) susceptible to future uncleanness, since it can still be used for foodstuffs. Only a vessel that can no longer serve its former purpose is exempt from all uncleanness.
 - (3) When the vessel is placed in a liquid. Such a hole is bigger than one which only allows a liquid within the vessel to flow out.
 - (4) Cf. n. 2 mut. mut.
 - (5) That renders the vessel (a) clean or (b) insusceptible to uncleanness.
 - (6) A smaller size than the previous one.
 - (7) Cf. supra n. 3 mut. mut.
 - (8) Stew-pot and cooking pot; cruse and pitcher; and cooler.
 - (9) A bigger size than the previous one.
 - (10) Of baked earthenware.
 - (11) V. p. 18, n. 1.
 - (12) That was unbaked.
 - (13) Whose capacity was from one log to a se'ah.
 - (14) Of the prescribed size (cf. prev. Mishnah) and in consequence of which the jar becomes clean.
 - (15) The jar thus resuming the status of a vessel and the susceptibility to uncleanness.
 - (16) Into fragments.
 - (17) And can also stand unsupported.
 - (18) To such an extent that, were it to be moved about while half a kab of dried figs were in it, it would collapse.
 - (19) In order to keep its parts together.
 - (20) So that the mainstay of the jar is the cattle dung which is insusceptible to uncleanness.

- (21) If it was unclean before; and if it was clean it is susceptible to uncleanness.
- (22) Though cracked.
- (23) Its potsherds falling apart.
- (24) With any adhesive substance.
- (25) Of sticking the potsherds together.
- (26) To provide further strength.
- (27) Cf. p. 19 n. 3 mut. mut.
- (28) When it was broken in pieces.
- (29) The reconstructed vessel.
- (30) Independently of the others.
- (31) Of liquids.
- (32) Which may be regarded as a handle to the biggest part.
- (33) But not through their air-space, since a handle contracts uncleanness through contact only.
- (34) That can hold a quarter of a log. Lit., 'and opposite it'.
- (35) Which is now a part of the vessel.
- (36) If the vessel contracted any through its air-space. Foodstuffs and liquids that come in contact with such a lining consequently contract uncleanness.
- (37) Since the parts of the vessel are held together without the aid of the lining the latter cannot be regarded as an integral part of the former.
- (38) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.
- (39) Between R. Meir and R. Simeon on the one hand and the Sages on the other.
- (40) Made of wood or iron.
- (41) Which, when dry and hollow, was used for the drawing of water. The hoop in relation to the pumpkin is in the same position as the lining in relation to the vessel.
- (42) Pitesin, sing. pitos cf. **.
- (43) When the jar is unclean.
- (44) Even according to the Rabbis (cf. prev. Mishnah). As the lining serves the purpose of preventing leakage of the wine it must be regarded as an integral part of the jar that is subject to the same uncleanness as the jar itself.
- (45) Since it is movable.
- (46) With the jar. If one contracted an uncleanness it does not convey it to the other.
- (47) Foodstuffs.
- (48) That was unclean.
- (49) As the lining helps to preserve the heat of the oven it is regarded as an integral part of it.
- (50) V. p. 20, n. 22.
- (51) Since the mortar adheres thoroughly to the cauldron it is regarded as part of it and consequently contracts its uncleanness.
- (52) Which crumbles and falls away.
- (53) Cf. n. 2 mut mut.
- (54) Which, unlike the cauldron mentioned before, is not used for the boiling of water.
- (55) Which would melt the pitch.
- (56) Much more so does this apply to a cauldron which is placed over a fire.
- (57) For a similar reason.
- (58) Since it is likely to be removed.
- (59) Even where the vessels have contracted an uncleanness.
- (60) Which is not kept hot.
- (61) Because the lining is regarded as a part of the vessel.
- (62) In thickness or extent.
- (63) Foodstuffs or drinks.
- (64) Lit., 'more than its need'.
- (65) That was unclean.
- (66) Though it was only a drop and might have been presumed to lose itself in the identity of the jar.
- (67) Since it can now hold liquids.

(68) To which pitch thoroughly adheres.

(69) From which the pitch falls away.

(70) A funnel in his opinion cannot be regarded as a proper receptacle even if it was stopped up.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. A POTSD¹ THAT CANNOT STAND UNSUPPORTED ON ACCOUNT OF ITS HANDLE,² OR A POTSD WHOSE BOTTOM IS POINTED AND THAT POINT CAUSES IT TO OVERBALANCE, IS CLEAN.³ IF THE HANDLE WAS REMOVED OR THE POINT WAS BROKEN OFF IT IS STILL CLEAN.⁴ R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAR.⁵ IF A JAR WAS BROKEN⁶ BUT IS STILL CAPABLE OF HOLDING SOMETHING IN ITS SIDES, OR IF IT WAS SPLIT INTO A KIND OF TWO TROUGHS, R. JUDAH DECLARES IT CLEAN³ BUT THE SAGES DECLARE IT TO BE UNCLEAR.⁵

MISHNAH 3. WHAT IS MEANT BY A 'DAMAGED VESSEL'?'¹¹ ONE WHOSE HANDLES WERE REMOVED.¹² IF SHARP ENDS PROJECTED FROM IT,¹³ ANY PART OF IT WHICH CAN CONTAIN OLIVES¹⁴ CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT, WHILE ANY UNCLEANNESS OPPOSITE AN END¹⁵ CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO THE VESSEL THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE, BUT ANY PART OF IT WHICH CANNOT CONTAIN OLIVES¹⁶ CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT. WHILE AN UNCLEANNESS OPPOSITE AN END¹⁵ DOES NOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE VESSEL THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE. IF IT¹⁷ WAS LEANING ON ITS SIDE¹⁸ LIKE A KIND OF CATHEDRA,¹⁹ ANY PART OF IT WHICH CAN CONTAIN OLIVES¹⁴ CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT, WHILE ANY UNCLEANNESS OPPOSITE AN END CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS TO THE VESSEL THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE, BUT ANY PART OF IT WHICH CANNOT CONTAIN OLIVES¹⁶ CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT, WHILE AN UNCLEANNESS OPPOSITE AN END DOES NOT CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE VESSEL THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE.²⁰ BOWLS WITH KORFIAN²¹ [BOTTOMS]²², AND CUPS WITH ZIDONIAN²¹ BOTTOMS,²³ ALTHOUGH THEY CANNOT STAND UNSUPPORTED, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BECAUSE THEY WERE ORIGINALLY FASHIONED IN THIS MANNER.

MISHNAH 4. AS REGARDS AN EARTHEN VESSEL THAT HAS THREE RIMS, IF THE INNERMOST ONE PROJECTS ABOVE THE OTHERS ALL OUTSIDE IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;²⁴ IF THE OUTERMOST ONE PROJECTS ABOVE THE OTHERS ALL WITHIN IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;²⁵ AND IF THE MIDDLE ONE PROJECTS ABOVE THE OTHERS, THAT WHICH IS WITHIN IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,²⁵ WHILE THAT WHICH IS WITHOUT IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁴ IF THEY²⁶ WERE EQUAL IN HEIGHT, R. JUDAH RULED: THE MIDDLE ONE IS DEEMED TO BE DIVIDED.²⁷ BUT THE SAGES RULED: ALL²⁸ IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁴ WHEN²⁹ DO EARTHEN VESSELS BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS? AS SOON AS THEY ARE BAKED IN THE FURNACE, THAT BEING THE COMPLETION OF THEIR MANUFACTURE.³⁰

(1) Broken from a vessel.

(2) Lit., 'ear'; sc. the handle of the vessel (that happened to be attached to the sherd in question) which overbalances it.

(3) If it was previously unclear. If it was clear it is insusceptible to future uncleanness.

- (4) Because once a damaged earthen vessel becomes clean it remains so for all time.
- (5) Cf. n. 3 mut. mut.
- (6) In its bottom.
- (7) Since it is regarded as a broken vessel.
- (8) Gastra, v. supra II, 6, n. 6.
- (9) A damaged vessel is a 'remnant' of a sound one.
- (10) Sc. though one might well use a damaged vessel ('a remnant') for the purpose of collecting a liquid dripping from a tiny crack in an otherwise sound vessel (which is no remnant and one does not like to discard on account of so slight a crack) no one would so use a damaged vessel ('a remnant') when a crack occurs in a vessel that is already broken or seriously damaged (which is also 'a remnant').
- (11) Which is rendered clean by the smallest hole that allows a liquid within it to flow out though the hole is not big enough to allow an olive to pass through it; cf. prev. Mishnah.
- (12) Though it is otherwise sound.
- (13) At the top where it was broken.
- (14) Sc. where the sharp ends are to that extent close together.
- (15) Cf. L.
- (16) Cf. n. 3 mut. mut.
- (17) A vessel half of which was broken away.
- (18) Being incapable of standing on its bottom.
- (19) , a seat with a back; and that back had sharp broken ends.
- (20) The point in this law is that, though the broken vessel cannot stand on its bottom (cf. n. 7), it is nevertheless on a par with the damaged one spoken of previously.
- (21) Place name. Aliter: 'pointed'.
- (22) Which are pointed. Lit., 'the bottoms of the Karfians'.
- (23) Cf. prev. n. Lit., 'the bottoms of the Zidonian cups'.
- (24) Because it is regarded as the outside of the vessel which is not susceptible to uncleanness.
- (25) As the inside of the vessel.
- (26) The three rims.
- (27) In its thickness, so that the outer part of it as well as all that is without it is regarded as the outside of the vessel and is insusceptible to uncleanness while its inner part and all within it is regarded as the inside of the vessel and is susceptible to uncleanness.
- (28) That is without the innermost rim (Elijah Wilna).
- (29) In the course of their manufacture.
- (30) Though they have not yet passed the process of polishing.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. THE ORIGINAL HEIGHT OF A BAKING-OVEN¹ MUST BE NO LESS THAN FOUR HANDBREADTHS² AND WHAT IS LEFT OF IT³ FOUR HANDBREADTHS;⁴ SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: THIS APPLIES ONLY TO A LARGE OVEN BUT IN THE CASE OF A SMALL ONE¹ ANY HEIGHT SUFFICES FOR ITS ORIGINAL BUILD⁵ AND³ THE GREATER PART OF THIS FOR WHAT IS LEFT OF IT.⁴ [SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS⁶ BEGINS] AS SOON AS THE OVEN'S MANUFACTURE IS COMPLETED.⁷ WHAT IS REGARDED AS THE COMPLETION OF ITS MANUFACTURE? WHEN IT IS HEATED TO A DEGREE THAT SUFFICES FOR THE BAKING OF SPONGY CAKES.⁸ R. JUDAH⁹ RULED: WHEN A NEW OVEN¹⁰ HAS BEEN HEATED TO A DEGREE THAT SUFFICED FOR THE BAKING OF SPONGY CAKES IN AN OLD ONE.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. AS REGARDS A DOUBLE STOVE¹² ITS ORIGINAL HEIGHT¹³ MUST BE NO LESS THAN THREE FINGERBREADTHS AND WHAT IS LEFT OF IT¹⁴ THREE FINGERBREADTHS.¹⁵ [ITS SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS BEGINS] AS SOON AS ITS MANUFACTURE IS COMPLETED.¹⁶ WHAT IS REGARDED AS THE COMPLETION OF

ITS MANUFACTURE? WHEN IT IS HEATED TO A DEGREE THAT SUFFICES FOR THE COOKING ON IT OF THE LIGHTEST OF EGGS WHEN BROKEN AND PUT IN A SAUCEPAN. AS REGARDS A SINGLE STOVE,¹⁷ IF IT WAS MADE FOR BAKING ITS PRESCRIBED SIZE¹⁸ IS THE SAME AS THAT FOR A BAKING-OVEN,¹⁹ AND IF IT WAS MADE FOR COOKING ITS PRESCRIBED SIZE¹⁸ IS THE SAME AS THAT FOR A DOUBLE STOVE.²⁰ A STONE THAT PROJECTS ONE HANDBREADTH FROM A BAKING-OVEN²¹ OR THREE FINGERBREADTHS FROM A DOUBLE STOVE²⁰ IS CONSIDERED A CONNECTION.²² FOR ONE THAT PROJECTS FROM A SINGLE STOVE, IF THE LATTER WAS MADE FOR BAKING, THE PRESCRIBED SIZE²³ IS THE SAME AS THAT FOR A BAKING-OVEN, AND IF IT IS MADE FOR COOKING THE PRESCRIBED SIZE IS THE SAME AS THAT FOR A DOUBLE STOVE. SAID R. JUDAH: THEY²⁴ SPOKE OF A 'HANDBREADTH'²⁵ ONLY WHERE THE PROJECTION WAS BETWEEN THE OVEN²⁶ AND A WALL.²⁷ IF TWO OVENS WERE ADJACENT TO ONE ANOTHER²⁸ ONE HANDBREADTH²³ IS ALLOWED TO THE ONE AND ANOTHER²⁹ TO THE OTHER WHILE THE REMAINDER³⁰ REMAINS CLEAN.³¹

MISHNAH 3. THE CROWN³² OF A DOUBLE STOVE IS CLEAN.³³ AS TO THE FENDER AROUND AN OVEN, WHEN IT IS FOUR HANDBREADTHS HIGH IT CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE,³⁴ BUT IF IT WAS LOWER IT IS CLEAN.³⁵ IF IT³⁶ WAS JOINED TO IT,³⁷ EVEN IF ONLY BY THREE STONES,³⁸ IT IS UNCLEAN.³⁹ THE SOCKETS [ON THE STOVE]⁴⁰ FOR THE OIL CRUSE, THE SPICE-POT, AND THE LAMP CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT⁴¹ BUT NOT THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE;⁴² SO R. MEIR. R. ISHMAEL⁴³ RULES THAT THEY ARE CLEAN.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 4. AN OVEN THAT WAS HEATED FROM WITHOUT,⁴⁵ OR ONE THAT WAS HEATED⁴⁶ WITHOUT THE OWNER'S KNOWLEDGE, OR ONE THAT WAS HEATED WHILE STILL IN THE CRAFTSMAN'S HOUSE⁴⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IT ONCE HAPPENED THAT A FIRE BROKE OUT AMONG THE OVENS OF KEFAR SIGNAH,⁴⁸ AND WHEN THE CASE WAS BROUGHT UP AT JABNEH RABBAN GAMALIEL RULED THAT THEY WERE UNCLEAN.⁴⁹

MISHNAH 5. THE CHIMNEY-PIECE⁵⁰ ON A HOUSEHOLDER'S OVEN IS CLEAN,⁵¹ BUT THAT OF BAKERS IS UNCLEAN BECAUSE ONE RESTS ON IT THE ROASTING SPIT.⁵² R. JOHANAN HASANDELAR⁵³ SAID: BECAUSE ONE BAKES ON IT WHEN PRESSED [FOR SPACE].⁵² SIMILARLY THE RIM⁵⁰ OF A BOILER USED BY OLIVE SEETHERS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁵⁴ BUT THAT OF ONE USED BY DYERS⁵⁵ IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE.

MISHNAH 6. IF AN OVEN WAS HALF FILLED WITH EARTH,⁵⁶ THE PART FROM THE EARTH DOWNWARDS CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT ONLY⁵⁷ WHILE THE PART FROM THE EARTH UPWARDS CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS FROM ITS AIR-SPACE ALSO.⁵⁸ IF AN OVEN WAS PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF A CISTERN OR OVER THAT OF A CELLAR AND A STONE WAS INSERTED AT ITS SIDE,⁵⁹ R. JUDAH RULED: IF WHEN HEATED BELOW⁶⁰ IT BECOMES ALSO HEATED ABOVE⁶¹ IT⁶² IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁶³ BUT THE SAGES RULED: SINCE IT WAS HEATED, NO MATTER HOW,⁶⁴ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁶⁵

MISHNAH 7. IF AN OVEN CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS HOW IS IT TO BE CLEANSED? IT MUST BE DIVIDED INTO THREE PARTS⁶⁶ AND THE PLASTERING⁶⁷ MUST BE SCRAPED OFF SO THAT [THE OVEN] TOUCHES THE GROUND.⁶⁸ R. MEIR RULED: IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO SCRAPE OFF THE PLASTERING NOR IS IT NECESSARY FOR [THE OVEN] TO TOUCH THE GROUND, BUT IT⁶⁹ NEED ONLY BE REDUCED WITHIN⁷⁰ TO A HEIGHT OF LESS THAN FOUR HANDBREADTHS. R. SIMEON RULED: IT⁷¹ MUST ALSO BE MOVED [FROM ITS POSITION]. IF IT WAS DIVIDED INTO TWO PARTS, ONE LARGE AND THE OTHER SMALL, THE LARGER REMAINS UNCLEAN AND THE SMALLER BECOMES CLEAN. IF IT WAS DIVIDED INTO THREE PARTS ONE OF WHICH WAS AS BIG AS THE OTHER TWO TOGETHER, THE BIG ONE REMAINS UNCLEAN AND THE TWO SMALL ONES BECOME CLEAN.

MISHNAH 8. IF AN OVEN WAS CUT UP BREADTHWISE INTO RINGS THAT ARE EACH LESS THAN FOUR HANDBREADTHS IN HEIGHT, IT IS CLEAN. IF IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY⁷² PLASTERED OVER WITH CLAY, IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS WHEN⁷³ IT IS HEATED TO A DEGREE THAT SUFFICES FOR THE BAKING OF SPONGY CAKES. IF THE PLASTERING WAS REMOVED,⁷⁴ AND SAND OR GRAVEL WAS PUT BETWEEN IT AND THE OVEN SIDES — OF SUCH AN OVEN IT HAS BEEN SAID, ‘A MENSTRUANT AS WELL AS A CLEAN WOMAN MAY BAKE IN IT AND IT REMAINS CLEAN’.⁷⁵

MISHNAH 9. IF AN OVEN CAME IN SECTIONS⁷⁶ FROM THE CRAFTSMAN'S HOUSE AND HOOPS WERE PREPARED FOR IT AND PUT UPON IT⁷⁷ WHILE IT WAS CLEAN, AND WHEN⁷⁸ IT CONTRACTED AN UNCLEANNESS ITS HOOPS WERE REMOVED, IT IS AGAIN CLEAN.⁷⁹ EVEN IF THEY ARE PUT ON AGAIN THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN.⁸⁰ IF, HOWEVER, IT WAS⁸¹ PLASTERED WITH CLAY, IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND THERE IS NO NEED TO HEAT IT SINCE IT⁸² WAS ONCE HEATED.

MISHNAH 10. IF AN OVEN WAS CUT UP⁸³ INTO RINGS, AND SAND WAS INSERTED BETWEEN EACH PAIR OF RINGS,⁸⁴ R. ELIEZER RULES: IT IS CLEAN;⁸⁵ BUT THE SAGES RULE: IT IS UNCLEAN.⁸⁶ SUCH AN OVEN IS KNOWN AS THE OVEN OF AKNAI.⁸⁷ AS REGARDS THE ARABIAN POTS, WHICH ARE HOLES DUG IN THE GROUND AND PLASTERED WITH CLAY, IF THE PLASTERING CAN STAND OF ITSELF IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;⁸⁸ OTHERWISE IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE. AND THIS KIND OF OVEN IS KNOWN AS THE OVEN OF BEN DINAI.⁸⁹

MISHNAH 11. AN OVEN OF STONE OR OF METAL IS CLEAN,⁹⁰ BUT THE LATTER IS UNCLEAN AS A METAL VESSEL.⁹¹ IF A HOLE WAS MADE IN IT, OR IF IT WAS DAMAGED OR CRACKED, AND IT WAS PROVIDED WITH A LINING OF PLASTER OR WITH A RIM OF CLAY, IT IS UNCLEAN.⁹² WHAT MUST BE THE SIZE OF THE HOLE?⁹³ IT MUST BE BIG ENOUGH FOR THE FLAME TO COME THROUGH. THE SAME APPLIES ALSO TO A STOVE. A STOVE OF STONE OR OF METAL IS CLEAN,⁹⁴ BUT THE LATTER IS UNCLEAN AS A METAL VESSEL.⁹⁵ IF A HOLE WAS MADE IN IT OR IF IT WAS DAMAGED OR CRACKED BUT WAS PROVIDED WITH PROPS⁹⁶ IT IS UNCLEAN. IF IT WAS LINED WITH CLAY, WHETHER INSIDE OR OUTSIDE, IT REMAINS CLEAN. R. JUDAH RULED: IF [THE LINING WAS] INSIDE IT IS UNCLEAN BUT IF OUTSIDE IT REMAINS CLEAN.

(1) If it is to be susceptible to uncleanness.

(2) Baking-ovens were made of clay in the shape of a truncated cone, the wider side being attached with clay to the ground which constituted its bottom. Though such an oven has no bottom of its own it is regarded as a vessel and is susceptible to uncleanness if it conforms to the conditions laid down in our Mishnah.

(3) After it had contracted an uncleanness and was broken.

(4) If a lesser height remained it is clean.

(5) Since it is only used as a child's toy.

(6) In the case of either oven.

(7) But not earlier.

- (8) These require less heat than cakes made of stiffer dough.
- (9) Restricting the Law.
- (10) Which needs more heating than an old one.
- (11) Though it would not be sufficient for baking them in the new oven.
- (12) A kind of box-shaped earthen vessel, hollow within and having two holes on top. The fire is kept within, while the cooking utensils are set over the holes or, sometimes, inside direct on the coals.
- (13) If the stove is to be susceptible to uncleanness.
- (14) After it had contracted an uncleanness and was broken.
- (15) If a lesser height remained it is clean.
- (16) But not earlier.
- (17) Sc. a stove (cf. p. 25 n. 12) with one hole.
- (18) And degree of heating.
- (19) Supra Mishnah 1, q.v.
- (20) Supra.
- (21) In which case the stone may be regarded as a handle of the oven. If it was longer it cannot be so regarded because it would most likely be cut away.
- (22) Sc. if the oven or stove contracted an uncleanness it is passed on to the stone; and if an object of uncleanness came in contact with the stone the oven or stove also contracts it.
- (23) Of the stone.
- (24) The Rabbis whose ruling has just been cited.
- (25) In the case of an oven; and of 'three fingerbreadths' in that of a double stove. Sc. that the projection is considered a connection only where it is not longer than a handbreadth and three fingerbreadths respectively.
- (26) Or double stove (cf. prev. n.).
- (27) In such a case a longer projection would most likely be cut off in order that the oven should not be too far removed from the wall. Where, however, the stone projected in another direction it is not likely to be cut off and may well be regarded as a handle, and, therefore, as a proper connection.
- (28) And a stone joined them together.
- (29) On the other side of the stone nearest to the other oven.
- (30) The length of stone between the two handbreadths which (cf. foll. n.) cannot be regarded as a handle to either oven.
- (31) In agreement with the first Tanna and contrary to the view of R. Judah.
- (32) A kind of detachable rim around the top of a stove which helps to preserve its heat.
- (33) Even where the stove had contracted an uncleanness; because it is not considered a proper connection.
- (34) If a dead creeping thing was suspended within its air-space the oven also becomes unclean.
- (35) Since it is not considered a proper connection.
- (36) The fender.
- (37) The oven.
- (38) Sc. by an imperfect connection (cf. Bert.). Aliter: Joined on three sides but not on the fourth (L.).
- (39) Because it is regarded as a proper connection.
- (40) On the top.
- (41) Whether the uncleanness came into contact with any of them or with the stove all become unclean.
- (42) Sc. an uncleanness suspended within the air-space of one of these or of the oven imparts no uncleanness to any of the others, though the uncleanness is imparted to that in whose air-space it was suspended.
- (43) Var. lec. 'Simeon' or 'and R. Simeon'.
- (44) Always, even where there was contact with one of them. Only that one is unclean that came in contact with the uncleanness.
- (45) Lit., 'from its back'.
- (46) Within.
- (47) Sc. before its manufacture was completed.
- (48) In Galilee.
- (49) The fire was regarded by him as that of a furnace; the baking in which is the completion of their manufacture.
- (50) Lit., 'addition', 'attachment'.
- (51) Even where the oven is unclean, because it is not considered a connection.

- (52) So that it forms an integral part of the oven.
- (53) The Sandal-maker.
- (54) Because they make use of the rim also.
- (55) Who do not use the rim.
- (56) So that its lower half had no longer any cavity as an air-space.
- (57) If a dead creeping thing was embedded within the earth but did not touch the sides of the oven no uncleanness is imparted.
- (58) And the uncleanness extends over the entire oven (L.) or only to that part which is above the earth (Bert.).
- (59) Lit., 'there', between the oven and the wall to lessen the space and thus to keep the oven in position.
- (60) From the cistern or cellar.
- (61) The heat passing up through the bottom of the oven.
- (62) The oven, on being heated for the first time (which constitutes the completion of its manufacture).
- (63) For then it is deemed as joined to the ground and susceptible to uncleanness according to Lev. XI, 35 in the normal way (cf. supra Mishnah I). If the oven, however, can be heated from above only the heating from below does not render it susceptible to uncleanness.
- (64) Even if it is entirely detached from the ground.
- (65) The divergence of view between R. Judah and the Sages whether or not the oven to become susceptible to uncleanness must be attached to the ground depends on the interpretation of the Pentateuchal expression in Lev. XI, 35.
- (66) Being cut perpendicularly.
- (67) Which attaches the oven to the ground.
- (68) So Maim.
- (69) The plastering.
- (70) Within the oven.
- (71) The oven, sc. each of the three parts into which it is divided.
- (72) The rings having been set up again and the oven resumed its original shape.
- (73) Like a new oven (supra Mishnah I).
- (74) From the sides of the oven.
- (75) Since it is insusceptible to uncleanness on account of the sand or gravel which prevents the plaster from adhering to the re-set oven.
- (76) Lit., 'cut'.
- (77) To hold the sections together.
- (78) Subsequently.
- (79) Since the sections are no longer held together the oven must be regarded as a broken one that is not susceptible to uncleanness.
- (80) Because it is no longer considered a whole vessel. Only when the new sections come for the first time from the craftsman's house do the hoops unite them into one whole.
- (81) After the sections were re-set.
- (82) When it came in sections from the craftsman.
- (83) Breadthwise.
- (84) And plastered over.
- (85) Because the sand is deemed to break up the oven into isolated fragments.
- (86) Since the plaster over the sand joins the rings into one whole.
- (87) Probably the name of a manufacturer of this kind of oven; v. B.M. 59a.
- (88) After it had been duly heated to the prescribed degree.
- (89) The name of a person (a robber) who designed or made this kind of oven; v. Sot. 47a. and Josephus. Ant. XX, 6, 1
- (90) The former is not even susceptible to uncleanness while the latter is cleansed by ritual immersion. Neither contracts uncleanness through its air-space.
- (91) So that if it is not attached to the ground it contracts uncleanness from its outside and it may also become a 'father of the father of uncleanness'.
- (92) Sc. it is susceptible to uncleanness like an oven made of clay.
- (93) For an oven to be regarded as broken and clean.
- (94) V. p. 30, n. 15.

(95) V. p. 30, n. 16.

(96) Three clay props on the top of the stove on which the cooking pot is set (Elijah Wilna).

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. IF THREE PROPS¹ WERE PUT UPON THE GROUND² AND JOINED TOGETHER WITH CLAY³ SO THAT A POT COULD BE SET ON THEM, [THE STRUCTURE] IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴ IF THREE NAILS WERE FIXED IN THE GROUND² SO THAT A POT COULD BE SET ON THEM, EVEN THOUGH A PLACE WAS MADE ON THE TOP⁵ WHEREON A POT COULD REST, [THE STRUCTURE] IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁶ IF ONE MADE A STOVE OF TWO STONES, JOINING THEM TOGETHER WITH CLAY, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴ R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁷ UNLESS A THIRD STONE IS ADDED OR [THE STRUCTURE] IS PLACED NEAR A WALL.⁸ IF ONE STONE WAS JOINED TO THE OTHER WITH CLAY AND THE THIRD WAS NOT JOINED TO IT WITH CLAY, [THE STRUCTURE] IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁹

MISHNAH 2. A STONE¹⁰ ON WHICH A POT IS SET, [RESTING IT ON IT] AND ON AN OVEN, OR ON A DOUBLE STOVE, OR ON A STOVE,¹¹ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF THE POT RESTED ON THE STONE¹⁰ AND ON ANOTHER STONE,¹² ON A ROCK¹³ OR ON A WALL,¹⁴ [SUCH STOVE] IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;¹⁵ AND SUCH¹⁶ WAS THE STOVE OF THE NAZIRITES IN JERUSALEM¹⁷ WHICH WAS SET UP AGAINST A ROCK. AS REGARDS THE STOVE OF THE BUTCHERS,¹⁸ WHENEVER THE STONES ARE PLACED SIDE BY SIDE,¹⁹ IF ONE OF THE STOVES CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS ALL THE OTHERS DO NOT BECOME UNCLEAR.²⁰

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE MADE OF THREE STONES TWO STOVES²¹ AND ONE OF THE OUTER ONES CONTRACTED AN UNCLEANNESS THE HALF OF THE MIDDLE ONE THAT SERVES THE UNCLEAR ONE²² IS UNCLEAR BUT THE HALF OF IT THAT SERVES THE CLEAN ONE REMAINS CLEAN. IF THE CLEAN ONE WAS REMOVED, THE MIDDLE ONE IS REGARDED AS COMPLETELY TRANSFERRED TO THE UNCLEAR ONE.²³ IF THE UNCLEAR ONE WAS REMOVED, THE MIDDLE ONE IS REGARDED AS COMPLETELY TRANSFERRED TO THE CLEAN ONE. SHOULD THE TWO OUTER ONES CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS, IF THE MIDDLE STONE WAS LARGE EACH OUTER STONE IS ALLOWED SUCH A PART OF IT AS SUFFICES FOR THE SUPPORT OF A POT²² AND THE REMAINDER IS CLEAN. BUT IF IT WAS SMALL ALL OF IT IS UNCLEAR. SHOULD THE MIDDLE STONE BE REMOVED, IF A BIG KETTLE CAN BE SET ON THE TWO OUTER STONES²⁴ THEY ARE UNCLEAR. IF THE MIDDLE STONE IS RESTORED ALL BECOMES CLEAN AGAIN.²⁵ IF IT WAS PLASTERED WITH CLAY²⁶ IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS WHEN²⁷ IT IS HEATED TO A DEGREE THAT SUFFICES FOR THE COOKING OF AN EGG.²⁸

MISHNAH 4. IF TWO STONES WERE MADE INTO A STOVE AND THEY CONTRACTED AN UNCLEANNESS, AND A STONE WAS SET UP NEAR THE OUTER SIDE²⁹ OF THE ONE AND ANOTHER STONE NEAR THE OUTER SIDE OF THE OTHER,³⁰ [THE INNER HALF] OF EACH [INNER STONES]³¹ REMAINS UNCLEAR³² WHILE [THE OUTER] HALF OF EACH [OF THESE STONES]³³ IS CLEAN. IF THE CLEAN STONES³⁴ ARE REMOVED THE OTHERS³⁵ REVERT TO THEIR UNCLEANNESS.

(1) Of clay.

(2) In a tripod arrangement.

(3) To form a stand.

- (4) Sc. like an earthen vessel it contracts uncleanness through its air-space.
- (5) Sc. each nail was provided at its top with a coating of clay (Tosaf. Y.T.)
- (6) Like a metal vessel that is fixed to the ground.
- (7) Because on two stones a pot cannot properly be set.
- (8) On which one side of the pot could be supported.
- (9) According to R. Judah (cf. n. 7).
- (10) That was fixed to the ground with clay.
- (11) The pot being supported both on the stone and on one of these earthen vessels.
- (12) That was not fixed to the ground.
- (13) In its primordial condition.
- (14) All of which are insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (15) Because to such a stove the prescription shall be broken in pieces (Lev. XI, 35) does not apply.
- (16) A stone fixed to the ground.
- (17) On which they cooked their peace-offerings (cf. Mid. II, 5).
- (18) Who sold cooked meat and used a stove for the purpose.
- (19) Each one being fixed to the ground with clay but separated from the others, and each pair serving as one stove on which a cooking pot could rest.
- (20) Since each stove may be regarded as an isolated entity.
- (21) The cooking pots resting on either Of the outer stones and the adjacent part of the middle one.
- (22) Cf. prev. n.
- (23) And it becomes unclean.
- (24) I.e., if their distance from one another was not so great as to prevent the opposite sides of the kettle from resting on the two stones respectively.
- (25) The stone restored being deemed to have broken the larger stove in two.
- (26) And thus fixed to the ground.
- (27) Like a new oven.
- (28) As explained supra V, 2.
- (29) Lit., 'from here'.
- (30) The four stones now forming three stoves.
- (31) Which serves as part of the middle stove.
- (32) As it was originally.
- (33) Which is now forming a new stove with the outer stone adjacent to it.
- (34) The outer ones that have been added to the original stove.
- (35) The two stones that constituted the original stove.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. IF A DOMESTIC¹ FIRE-BASKET² WAS HOLLOWED OUT³ TO A DEPTH OF LESS THAN THREE HANDBREADTHS,⁴ IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BECAUSE WHEN IT IS HEATED FROM BELOW³ A POT ABOVE WOULD STILL BOIL. IF, HOWEVER, IT WAS HOLLOWED OUT³ TO A LOWER DEPTH IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁵ IF SUBSEQUENTLY A STONE OR GRAVEL WAS PUT INTO IT,⁶ IT IS STILL INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁷ IF IT WAS PLASTERED OVER⁸ WITH CLAY, IT MAY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS HENCEFORWARD.⁹ THIS WAS R. JUDAH'S REPLY¹⁰ IN CONNECTION WITH THE OVEN THAT WAS PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF A CISTERN OR OVER THAT OF A CELLAR.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. A HOB¹² THAT HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR POTS¹³ IS CLEAN AS A STOVE¹⁴ BUT UNCLEAR AS A RECEPTACLE.¹⁵ AS TO ITS¹⁶ SIDES,¹⁷ WHATEVER TOUCHES THEM DOES NOT BECOME UNCLEAR AS IF THE HOB HAD BEEN A STOVE,¹⁸ BUT AS REGARDS ITS WIDE SIDE,¹⁹ R. MEIR HOLDS IT TO BE CLEAN²⁰ WHILE R. JUDAH HOLDS IT TO BE UNCLEAR.²¹ THE SAME LAW²² APPLIES ALSO WHERE A BASKET WAS

INVERTED AND A STOVE WAS PUT UPON IT.²³

MISHNAH 3. IF A DOUBLE STOVE WAS SPLIT INTO TWO PARTS LONGITUDINALLY IT BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁴ BUT IF CROSSWISE²⁵ IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A SINGLE STOVE WAS SPLIT INTO TWO PARTS, WHETHER LONGITUDINALLY OR CROSSWISE, IT BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁶ AS TO THE FENDER AROUND A STOVE,²⁷ WHENEVER IT²⁸ IS THREE FINGERBREADTHS HIGH IT CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND ALSO THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE, BUT IF IT IS LESS IT CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS THROUGH CONTACT AND NOT THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE.²⁹ HOW³⁰ IS THE AIR-SPACE³¹ DETERMINED?³² R. ISHMAEL SAYS: A SPIT³³ IS INCLINED FROM ABOVE³⁴ DOWNWARDS³⁵ AND ALL BELOW IT³⁶ IS THE AIR-SPACE³⁷ THROUGH WHICH UNCLEANNESS IS IMPARTED. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB RULED: IF THE STOVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS THE FENDER³⁸ ALSO BECOMES UNCLEAR, BUT IF THE FENDER CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS THE STOVE DOES NOT BECOME UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 4. IF THE FENDER WAS DETACHED FROM THE STOVE, WHENEVER IT WAS THREE FINGERBREADTHS HIGH IT CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND THROUGH ITS AIR-SPACE, BUT IF IT WAS LOWER OR IF THE FENDER WAS FLAT³⁹ IT IS CLEAN.⁴⁰ IF THREE PROPS⁴¹ ON A STOVE WERE THREE FINGERBREADTHS HIGH, THEY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE. IF THEY WERE LOWER THEY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS ALL THE MORE,⁴² EVEN WHERE THEY WERE FOUR IN NUMBER.⁴³

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE OF THEM⁴⁴ WAS REMOVED, THE REMAINING ONES CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT BUT NOT THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE;⁴⁵ SO R. MEIR. R. SIMEON RULES THAT THEY REMAIN CLEAN. IF ORIGINALLY ONLY TWO PROPS WERE MADE, ONE OPPOSITE THE OTHER,⁴⁶ THEY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE; SO R. MEIR. R. SIMEON RULES THAT THEY ARE CLEAN. IF THEY WERE MORE THAN THREE FINGERBREADTHS HIGH, THE PARTS THAT ARE THREE FINGERBREADTHS HIGH AND DOWNWARDS⁴⁷ CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE BUT THE PARTS THAT ARE MORE THAN THREE FINGERBREADTHS HIGH CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND NOT THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE; SO R. MEIR. R. SIMEON RULES THAT THEY⁴⁸ ARE CLEAN. IF THEY WERE WITHDRAWN FROM THE RIM,⁴⁹ THE PARTS WHICH ARE WITHIN THREE FINGERBREADTHS⁴⁹ CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT AND THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE, AND THOSE PARTS THAT ARE REMOVED MORE THAN THREE FINGERBREADTHS⁴⁹ CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS BY CONTACT BUT NOT THROUGH THEIR AIR-SPACE; SO R. MEIR. R. SIMEON RULES THAT THEY ARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. HOW IS THEIR AIR-SPACE⁵⁰ MEASURED?⁵¹ R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: THE MEASURING-ROD⁵² IS PLACED BETWEEN THEM,⁵³ AND ANY PART THAT IS OUTSIDE THE MEASURING-ROD IS CLEAN WHILE ANY PART INSIDE THE MEASURING-ROD, INCLUDING THE PLACE OF THE MEASURING-ROD ITSELF, IS UNCLEAR.

(1) Lit., 'of householders'.

(2) . A movable earthen stove, open above (where the pot is set) and closed below with a thick bottom (on which the coals rest).

(3) In its bottom.

(4) Lowering by so much the level of the fire.

- (5) Because, on account of the distance of the fire from its top, it can no longer be used as a stove.
- (6) To fill up the hollowed part.
- (7) Since a movable object cannot be regarded as a valid part of the stove.
- (8) Above the stone or gravel.
- (9) Cf. n. 7 mut. mut.
- (10) To the Sages who differed from him (supra V, 6).
- (11) As here it is essential that the heat below shall suffice for the boiling of a pot above so, R. Judah maintained, it is also essential there.
- (12) Dakon or (with MS.M.) Dikon, a projection from a stove (triangular in shape, the base of which and the stove have a common side) on which pots are placed to keep them warm. Aliter: An oblong chest filled with hot ashes on the top of which are holes for pots.
- (13) Cf. prev. n.
- (14) Sc. it is (a) insusceptible to uncleanness if it was fixed to the ground and (b) though the stove contracted an uncleanness the hob remains clean.
- (15) Sc. if it was detached from the ground it becomes susceptible to uncleanness like any other earthen vessel.
- (16) The hob's.
- (17) That are not common to it and the stove.
- (18) Even though the stove was unclean at the time.
- (19) That which is common to it and the stove.
- (20) Because, in his opinion, even the wide side is not wholly regarded as a part of the stove, their common side being considered as a mere stone intervening between two stoves which is deemed to be divided into two halves, that facing the hob remaining clean.
- (21) Sc. if an uncleanness touched the hob it is as unclean as if the stove itself had been touched.
- (22) That is applicable to the hob.
- (23) The part of the basket that projects round about the oven and on which pots are placed to keep them warm, are subject to the same laws as the hob.
- (24) Since neither part is capable of holding a pot.
- (25) So that each stove is still capable of holding a pot on the unbroken hole on its top.
- (26) Cf. n. 10. mut. mut.
- (27) Lit., 'court', a flat foundation of clay with a rim around it.
- (28) Cf. prev. n.
- (29) Since it is only regarded as a 'handle' of the stove.
- (30) In the case where the rim of the fender is three fingerbreadths high.
- (31) Of the fender.
- (32) In view of the fact that the stove is much higher than the rim of the fender.
- (33) Or a similar rod.
- (34) From the edge of the stove.
- (35) To the rim of the fender.
- (36) Lit., 'and opposite it'.
- (37) V. p. 36. n. 17.
- (38) Which is merely an adjunct to it.
- (39) Lit., 'smooth', sc. there was no rim at all.
- (40) Though the stove was unclean; since it was completely detached from it.
- (41) Of clay on which pots are set.
- (42) Since they are definitely a part of the stove.
- (43) When one of them is superfluous, since a pot could well be set on three props.
- (44) Of the three props spoken of in the previous Mishnah.
- (45) Since they are regarded as a mere 'handle' of the stove.
- (46) So that the two, being capable of supporting a pot, are in the same condition as two stones of which a stove was made (v. supra VI, 1).
- (47) Towards the stove.
- (48) The parts that are more than three fingerbreadths high. Aliter: The entire height of the props.

- (49) Of the stove or (with another commentary) the mouth of the stove, the props having been bent outwards.
(50) Lit., 'them', the props (v. prev. Mishnah).
(51) Sc. how is it determined which air-space is within the parts of the props that are 'within three fingerbreadths'.
(52) With which the three fingerbreadths have been measured.
(53) Each pair of props in turn, at a distance of three fingerbreadths (cf. n. 2).

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. IF WITHIN AN OVEN¹ A PARTITION OF BOARDS OR HANGINGS² WAS PUT UP AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN ONE COMPARTMENT ALL THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAN.³ IF A HIVE THAT WAS BROKEN THROUGH⁴ AND ITS GAP WAS STOPPED UP WITH STRAW⁵ WAS SUSPENDED WITHIN THE AIR-SPACE OF AN OVEN⁶ WHILE A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS WITHIN IT, THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁷ IF A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS WITHIN THE OVEN, ANY FOODSTUFFS WITHIN THE HIVE BECOME UNCLEAN;⁸ BUT R. ELIEZER RULES THAT THEY ARE CLEAN. R. ELIEZER ARGUED: IF SUCH A HIVE AFFORDS PROTECTION IN THE CASE OF A CORPSE⁹ WHICH IS SUBJECT TO THE GREATER RESTRICTIONS,¹⁰ SHOULD IT NOT AFFORD PROTECTION IN THE CASE OF AN EARTHENWARE WHICH IS SUBJECT TO LIGHTER RESTRICTIONS?¹⁰ THEY ANSWERED HIM: IF IT AFFORDS PROTECTION IN THE CASE OF CORPSE UNCLEANNESS (THOUGH IT IS SUBJECT TO GREATER RESTRICTIONS) ON ACCOUNT OF THE FACT THAT TENTS MAY BE DULY DIVIDED,¹¹ SHOULD IT ALSO AFFORD PROTECTION IN THE CASE OF AN EARTHENWARE (THOUGH IT IS SUBJECT TO LIGHTER RESTRICTIONS) WHERE TENTS CANNOT BE USEFULLY DIVIDED?¹²

MISHNAH 2. IF A HIVE WAS IN A SOUND CONDITION, AND SO TOO IN THE CASE OF A HAMPER OR A SKIN-BOTTLE, AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS WITHIN IT¹³ THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN.¹⁴ IF THE [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS IN THE OVEN, ANY FOODSTUFFS IN THE HIVE REMAIN CLEAN.¹⁴ IF IT¹⁵ WAS PERFORATED, A VESSEL THAT IS USED FOR FOODSTUFFS MUST¹⁶ HAVE A HOLE THAT IS LARGE ENOUGH FOR OLIVES TO FALL THROUGH, IF IT IS USED FOR LIQUIDS THE HOLE MUST BE LARGE ENOUGH FOR LIQUIDS TO PASS INTO IT,¹⁷ AND IF IT IS USED FOR EITHER IT IS SUBJECTED TO THE GREATER RESTRICTION, VIZ., THE HOLE NEED ONLY BE LARGE ENOUGH FOR LIQUIDS TO PASS INTO IT.¹⁸

MISHNAH 3. IF A COLANDER¹⁹ PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF AN OVEN WAS SLIGHTLY SINKING INTO IT,²⁰ AND IT HAD NO RIMS,²¹ AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS IN IT THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAN, AND IF THE CREEPING THING WAS IN THE OVEN, FOODSTUFFS IN THE COLANDER BECOME UNCLEAN, SINCE ONLY VESSELS²² AFFORD PROTECTION AGAINST AN UNCLEANNESS IN AN EARTHEN VESSEL.²³ IF A JAR THAT WAS FULL OF CLEAN LIQUIDS²⁴ WAS PLACED BENEATH THE BOTTOM OF AN OVEN, AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS IN THE OVEN, THE JAR AND THE LIQUIDS REMAIN CLEAN.²⁵ IF IT²⁶ WAS INVERTED, WITH ITS MOUTH PROJECTING INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF THE OVEN, AND A DEAD CREEPING THING WAS IN THE OVEN, THE LIQUID THAT CLINGS TO²⁷ THE BOTTOM OF THE JAR REMAINS CLEAN.²⁸

MISHNAH 4. IF A POT WAS PLACED IN AN OVEN AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS IN THE OVEN, THE POT REMAINS CLEAN SINCE NO EARTHEN VESSEL²⁹ IMPARTS UNCLEANNESS TO VESSELS. IF IT³⁰ CONTAINED DRIPPING LIQUID, THE LATTER CONTRACTS UNCLEANNESS AND THE POT ALSO BECOMES UNCLEAN.³¹ THIS³² MIGHT WELL SAY,³³ 'THAT³⁴ WHICH MADE YOU UNCLEAN DID NOT MAKE ME

UNCLEAN, BUT YOU HAVE MADE ME UNCLEAN’.

MISHNAH 5. IF A COCK THAT SWALLOWED A CREEPING THING FELL³⁵ WITHIN THE AIR-SPACE OF AN OVEN, THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN;³⁶ BUT IF THE COCK DIED,³⁷ THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAN.³⁸ IF A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN AN OVEN, ANY BREAD IN IT CONTRACTS A SECOND GRADE OF UNCLEANNESS SINCE THE OVEN³⁹ IS OF THE FIRST GRADE.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 6. IF A LEAVEN POT⁴¹ THAT HAD A TIGHTLY FITTING LID⁴² WAS PUT WITHIN AN OVEN, AND THERE WAS SOME LEAVEN AND A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WITHIN THE POT, BUT THERE WAS A PARTITION⁴³ BETWEEN THEM,⁴⁴ THE OVEN IS UNCLEAN⁴⁵ BUT THE LEAVEN⁴⁶ IS CLEAN. BUT IF IT⁴⁷ WAS AN OLIVES BULK OF CORPSE,⁴⁸ BOTH THE OVEN AND THE HOUSE⁴⁹ BECOME UNCLEAN,⁵⁰ BUT THE LEAVEN⁴⁶ REMAINS CLEAN. IF, HOWEVER, THERE WAS IN THE PARTITION⁴³ AN APERTURE ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE,⁵¹ ALL⁵² BECOME UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. IF A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN THE OUTLET⁵³ OF AN OVEN OR OF A DOUBLE STOVE OR OF A SINGLE STOVE OUTSIDE THE INNER EDGE,⁵⁴ IT⁵⁵ REMAINS CLEAN.⁵⁶ IF IT⁵⁵ WAS IN THE OPEN AIR,⁵⁷ EVEN THOUGH AN OLIVE'S BULK OF CORPSE WAS FOUND IN THE OUTLET, IT⁵⁵ REMAINS CLEAN.⁵⁸ IF, HOWEVER, THERE WAS IN THE OUTLET AN OPENING OF ONE HANDBREADTH,⁵⁹ ALL⁶⁰ BECOME UNCLEAN.⁵¹

MISHNAH 8. IF A [DEAD] CREEPING THING WAS FOUND IN THE APERTURE⁶¹ THROUGH WHICH WOOD IS PUT IN, R. JUDAH RULED: IF IT⁶² WAS WITHIN THE OUTER EDGE OF THE APERTURE THE STOVE BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁶³ BUT THE SAGES RULED: IF IT⁶² WAS WITHOUT THE INNER EDGE THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN.⁶⁴ R. JOSE RULED: IF IT⁶² WAS FOUND BENEATH THE SPOT WHERE THE POT IS SET, INWARDS, THE STOVE BECOMES UNCLEAN, BUT IF BENEATH THE SPOT WHERE THE POT IS SET, OUTWARDS, IT REMAINS CLEAN. IF IT⁶² WAS FOUND ON THE PLACE⁶⁵ WHERE THE BATH-KEEPER⁶⁶ SITS, OR WHERE THE DYER SITS, OR WHERE THE OLIVE SEETHERS SIT, THE STOVE REMAINS CLEAN. THE STOVE BECOMES UNCLEAN⁶⁷ ONLY WHEN THE CREEPING THING IS FOUND WITHIN AND BEYOND THAT OPENING WHICH IS BLOCKED UP BY THE POT.⁶⁸

MISHNAH 9. A PIT⁶⁹ WHICH HAS A PLACE ON WHICH A POT MAY BE SET IS UNCLEAN;⁷⁰ AND SO ALSO AN OVEN OF GLASS-BLOWERS. IF IT HAS A PLACE ON WHICH A POT MAY BE SET, IS UNCLEAN.⁷⁰ THE FURNACE OF LIME-BURNERS, OR OF GLAZIERS, OR OF POTTERS IS CLEAN. A LARGE SIZED BAKING-OVEN⁷¹, IF IT HAS A RIM,⁷² IS UNCLEAN.⁷³ R. JUDAH RULED:⁷⁴ IF IT HAS A PERFORATED ROOF.⁷⁵ R. GAMALIEL RULED:⁷⁴ IF IT HAS A BORDER.⁷⁶

MISHNAH 10. IF A MAN WHO CAME IN CONTACT WITH ONE WHO HAS CONTRACTED CORPSE UNCLEANNESS⁷⁷ HAD FOODSTUFFS OR LIQUIDS IN HIS MOUTH AND HE PUT HIS HEAD INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF AN OVEN THAT WAS CLEAN, THEY⁷⁸ CAUSE THE OVEN TO BE UNCLEAN.⁷⁹ IF A MAN WHO WAS CLEAN HAD FOODSTUFFS OR LIQUIDS IN HIS MOUTH AND HE PUT HIS HEAD INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF AN OVEN THAT WAS UNCLEAN, THEY⁸⁰ BECOME UNCLEAN.⁸¹ IF A MAN WAS EATING A PRESSED FIG⁸² WITH SOILED HANDS⁸³ AND HE PUT HIS HAND INTO HIS MOUTH TO REMOVE A SMALL STONE,⁸⁴ R. MEIR DECLARES THE FIG TO BE UNCLEAN⁸⁵ AND R. JUDAH REGARDS IT AS CLEAN.⁸⁶ R. JOSE RULED: IF HE⁸⁷ TURNED IT OVER⁸⁸ THE FIG IS UNCLEAN⁸⁵ BUT IF HE DID NOT TURN IT OVER⁸⁸ THE FIG

REMAINS CLEAN.⁸⁹ IF THE MAN HAD A PONDION⁹⁰ IN HIS MOUTH, R. JOSE RULED: IF HE KEPT IT THERE TO RELIEVE HIS THIRST IT BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁹¹

MISHNAH 11. IF MILK THAT DRIPPED FROM A WOMAN'S BREASTS⁹² FELL INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF AN OVEN, THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAR,⁹³ SINCE A LIQUID⁹⁴ CONVEYS UNCLEANNESS IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER [ITS PRESENCE] IS ACCEPTABLE OR NOT ACCEPTABLE. IF SHE⁹⁵ WAS SWEEPING IT⁹⁶ OUT WHEN A THORN PRICKED HER AND SHE BLED, OR IF SHE BURNT HERSELF AND PUT HER FINGER INTO HER MOUTH, THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAR.⁹⁷

(1) Of earthenware.

(2) Dividing it up from top to bottom.

(3) The partition being completely disregarded.

(4) In consequence of which it ceased to be a valid vessel.

(5) And much more so if it was not stopped up (cf. prev. n.).

(6) Though its mouth was above that of the oven.

(7) Only where a dead creeping thing was within a sound vessel in the oven does the vessel protect the oven from the uncleanness within it.

(8) Having lost the status of a vessel (cf. supra n. 4) it cannot prevent uncleanness from penetrating either from itself into the oven or vice versa.

(9) No corpse uncleanness in a house can penetrate such a hive to any foodstuffs that it contains.

(10) Corpse uncleanness extends, for instance, over seven days and affects both men and vessels while that of an earthenware can be imparted to foodstuffs and liquids only.

(11) A partition in a tent or a house prevents any corpse uncleanness in that tent or house from penetrating through it into the other part.

(12) No partition (as stated supra n. 3 in the case of the oven) affords protection in an earthenware.

(13) While it was suspended within an oven with its mouth above, or on a level with, but not lower than, that of the oven.

(14) Because the uncleanness cannot penetrate through a sound vessel either into another vessel or from another vessel into it (cf. prev. n.).

(15) The hive, the hamper or the skin bottle that with foodstuffs in it was suspended in the oven that contained a dead creeping thing.

(16) If it is to lose the status of vessel and allow the uncleanness in the oven to penetrate through it.

(17) It is not enough if it only allows liquids to pass out.

(18) Even such a small hole destroys the status of the vessel and the uncleanness penetrates through it.

(19) A tablet with perforations made of earthenware. Aliter: An earthenware slab with no cavity that is used for kneading.

(20) Though its upper surface was above the mouth of the oven.

(21) In consequence of which it cannot be regarded as a valid 'vessel'.

(22) Cf. prev. n.

(23) In which they are put.

(24) Much more so if it was full of foodstuffs, which, unlike liquids, can never impart uncleanness to a vessel.

(25) Even though the open bottom of the oven projected into the jar.

(26) The jar.

(27) Lit., 'moistens'.

(28) Since it is without the cavity of the oven; nor does the jar contract uncleanness since no vessel contracts uncleanness through the air-space of an earthen vessel.

(29) Such as the oven in question.

(30) The pot.

(31) Through its contact with the liquids.

(32) The pot.

(33) To the liquid.

- (34) The oven.
- (35) Alive.
- (36) As if the creeping thing within the body of the cock had been within a tightly closed vessel.
- (37) And its carcass fell within the air-space of the oven before the creeping thing could be digested, viz., within twenty-four hours from the time it had been swallowed.
- (38) A carcass cannot be regarded as a tightly closed vessel and the dead creeping thing is thus virtually within the air-space of the oven.
- (39) Which contracted its uncleanness from the dead creeping thing that is a 'father of uncleanness'.
- (40) And a first grade imparts only a second grade of uncleanness.
- (41) Of earthenware.
- (42) Which affords protection against uncleanness to any thing within it; v. infra X, 2.
- (43) Dividing up the pot from top to bottom into two compartments.
- (44) The creeping thing and the leaven.
- (45) On account of the dead creeping thing. A tightly fitting lid only prevents the ingress, but not the egress of an uncleanness.
- (46) Which in its compartment is protected by the tightly fitting lid.
- (47) The unclean object in one of the compartments of the leaven pot.
- (48) Instead of a creeping thing.
- (49) By ohel (v. Glos.).
- (50) From the corpse.
- (51) The minimum size of an opening that affords passage to corpse uncleanness.
- (52) Even the leaven.
- (53) Lit., 'eye', a hole for the admission of air or the escape of smoke.
- (54) Of the outlet.
- (55) The oven etc.
- (56) Since the outlet, which is usually closed when the oven etc. is used (to preserve the heat), is not regarded as an integral part of the vessel.
- (57) Where the law of ohel does not apply.
- (58) Since the uncleanness cannot penetrate through the outlet which is smaller than the prescribed minimum.
- (59) In length, breadth and height.
- (60) The outlet and the oven etc.
- (61) Of a stove.
- (62) The creeping thing.
- (63) Because the thickness of the oven sides is regarded as the inside of the oven.
- (64) The thickness of the sides being regarded by them as the outside of the oven (cf. prev. n.).
- (65) On a stove.
- (66) Or 'attendant'.
- (67) Through its air-space.
- (68) By contact, however, uncleanness is conveyed whatever the spot on which the creeping thing fell.
- (69) Bor, a hole in the ground lined with clay in a manner that the lining can stand of itself, such as the oven of Ben Dinai (supra V, 10). Var. lec., Kur. 'a crucible'.
- (70) Sc. it is susceptible to uncleanness.
- (71) Made of clay and having a door in its side.
- (72) So that it is not attached to the ground and can be moved about.
- (73) If, however, it has no rim, so that it is fixed to the ground, it is clean.
- (74) It is unclean.
- (75) . Alter: An outlet for the smoke. Aliter: Mouldings. In either of these cases the oven would not be attached to the ground and, being movable, is susceptible to uncleanness. Only an oven whose opening is at its top is susceptible to uncleanness even when attached to the ground.
- (76) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.
- (77) So that he contracted an uncleanness of the first grade. A corpse is the 'father of the father of uncleanness', the man who contracted corpse uncleanness becomes a 'father of uncleanness', and the man who came in contact with him contracts an uncleanness of the first grade.

(78) The liquids that become unclean by contact with the man.

(79) This is a Rabbinical ordinance applicable to liquids only. In the absence of liquids an oven or any other vessel can contract uncleanness from a 'father of uncleanness' only.

(80) The liquids, despite their concealed condition in the closed mouth of the man.

(81) A closed mouth is not regarded as a vessel with a tightly fitting cover (cf. infra X, 1).

(82) Of terumah.

(83) Sc. 'unwashed'. These are subject to the second grade of uncleanness and consequently convey the third grade of uncleanness to the terumah with which they come in contact.

(84) And so touched the fig with his moistened hand.

(85) Because the spittle (a liquid) by moistening the fig rendered it susceptible to uncleanness. The hands that are unclean in the second grade convey to the spittle an uncleanness of the first grade (since whatever conveys uncleanness to terumah causes liquids to be unclean in the first grade) and the spittle conveys to the terumah an uncleanness of the second grade.

(86) Spittle while in one's mouth, he maintains, is deemed to be a part of the body and cannot, therefore, be regarded as a liquid that renders food susceptible to uncleanness.

(87) With the spittle in his mouth.

(88) In his mouth.

(89) Cf. 'Er. 99a where the names of R. Judah and R. Jose are transposed.

(90) A coin = 16 perutahs.

(91) Since the spittle that is generated on account of the coin is regarded as a liquid which renders the fig susceptible to uncleanness.

(92) While she was unclean.

(93) Though the milk dropped against the woman's wish.

(94) That is unclean, as is the milk which contracted uncleanness.

(95) Being clean.

(96) The oven.

(97) From the spittle or the blood which is a liquid and which, contracting uncleanness from the woman's unwashed hands, becomes unclean in the first grade (as stated supra) and renders the oven unclean in the second grade.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. IF A NEEDLE¹ OR A RING¹ WAS FOUND [EMBEDDED] IN THE BOTTOM OF AN OVEN,² AND IT³ WAS VISIBLE BUT DID NOT PROJECT,⁴ THE OVEN IS UNCLEAN IF, WHEN IN BAKING, THE DOUGH WOULD TOUCH IT.⁵ OF WHAT KIND OF 'DOUGH' DID THEY⁶ SPEAK? OF ONE OF MEDIUM CONSISTENCY.⁷ IF IT⁵ WAS³ FOUND IN THE PLASTERING OF THE OVEN⁸ AND THE LATTER HAD A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER, IT³ IS UNCLEAN WHERE THE OVEN IS UNCLEAN⁹ AND CLEAN WHERE THE OVEN IS CLEAN.¹⁰ IF IT³ WAS FOUND IN THE [CLAY] STOPPER OF A JAR, IT IS UNCLEAN¹¹ IF IT WAS AT ITS SIDES,¹² AND CLEAN IF IT WAS OPPOSITE THE JAR'S MOUTH.¹³ THOUGH IT¹⁴ WAS VISIBLE FROM WITHIN. BUT DID NOT PROJECT INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF THE JAR¹⁵ IT IS CLEAN. IF IT¹⁴ WAS SUNK INTO [THE AIR-SPACE OF THE JAR] BUT THERE WAS UNDER IT¹⁶ SOME CLAY, THOUGH THIN AS GARLIC PEEL, IT IS CLEAN.¹⁷

MISHNAH 2. IF A JAR¹⁸ THAT WAS FULL OF CLEAN LIQUIDS, WITH A SIPHON¹⁹ WITHIN IT, HAD A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER AND WAS PUT IN A TENT²⁰ IN WHICH THERE WAS A CORPSE, BETH SHAMMAI RULED: BOTH THE JAR AND THE LIQUIDS ARE CLEAN²¹ BUT THE SIPHON¹⁹ IS UNCLEAN,²² AND BETH HILLEL RULED: THE SIPHON ALSO IS CLEAN. SUBSEQUENTLY²³ BETH HILLEL, CHANGING THEIR VIEW, RULED IN AGREEMENT WITH THAT OF BETH SHAMMAI.

MISHNAH 3. IF A DEAD CREEPING THING WAS FOUND BENEATH THE BOTTOM OF

AN OVEN,²⁴ THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN, FOR I PRESUME²⁵ THAT IT FELL²⁶ WHILE IT WAS STILL ALIVE²⁷ AND THAT IT DIED ONLY NOW.²⁸ IF A NEEDLE OR A RING²⁹ WAS FOUND BENEATH THE BOTTOM OF AN OVEN,³⁰ THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAN, FOR IT MAY BE PRESUMED THAT THEY WERE THERE BEFORE THE OVEN ARRIVED. IF IT³¹ WAS FOUND IN THE WOOD ASHES,³² THE OVEN IS UNCLEAR SINCE ONE HAS NO GROUND ON WHICH TO BASE AN ASSUMPTION OF CLEANNESS.³³

MISHNAH 4. IF A SPONGE HAD ABSORBED UNCLEAR LIQUIDS AND ITS OUTER SURFACE BECAME DRY AND IT FELL INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF AN OVEN, THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAR, FOR THE LIQUID³⁴ WOULD ULTIMATELY EMERGE. AND THE SAME APPLIES TO A PIECE OF TURNIP³⁵ OR REED GRASS.³⁵ R. SIMEON RULES: THE OVEN IS CLEAR IN BOTH THESE CASES.

MISHNAH 5. IF POTSDERDS THAT HAD BEEN USED FOR UNCLEAR LIQUIDS FELL INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF AN OVEN, AND THE OVEN WAS HEATED, IT BECOMES UNCLEAR, FOR THE LIQUID³⁶ WOULD³⁷ ULTIMATELY EMERGE.³⁸ AND THE SAME APPLIES TO FRESH OLIVE PEAT; BUT IF IT WAS OLD,³⁹ THE OVEN REMAINS CLEAR. IF, HOWEVER, IT WAS KNOWN THAT LIQUID EMERGES, EVEN AFTER THE LAPSE OF THREE YEARS,⁴⁰ THE OVEN BECOMES UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 6. IF OLIVE PEAT OR GRAPE SKINS HAD BEEN PREPARED IN CONDITIONS OF CLEANNESS, AND UNCLEAR PERSONS TROD UPON THEM AND, AS A RESULT,⁴¹ LIQUID EMERGED FROM THEM, THEY REMAIN CLEAR,⁴² SINCE THEY HAD ORIGINALLY BEEN PREPARED IN CONDITIONS OF CLEANNESS.⁴³ IF A SPINDLE HOOK WAS SUNK⁴⁴ INTO THE SPINDLE, OR THE IRON POINT INTO THE OX GOAD, OR A RING INTO A BRICK, AND ALL THESE⁴⁵ WERE CLEAR, AND THEN THEY WERE BROUGHT INTO A TENT⁴⁶ IN WHICH WAS A CORPSE, THEY⁴⁷ BECOME UNCLEAR.⁴⁸ IF A ZAB CAUSED THEM TO SHAKE⁴⁹ THEY BECOME UNCLEAR.⁵⁰ IF THEY THEN FELL INTO THE AIR-SPACE OF A CLEAR OVEN, THEY CAUSE IT TO BE UNCLEAR.⁵⁰ IF A LOAF OF TERUMAH CAME IN CONTACT WITH THEM, IT REMAINS CLEAR.⁵¹

MISHNAH 7. IF A COLANDER⁵² WAS FIXED OVER THE MOUTH OF AN OVEN, FORMING A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER, AND A SPLIT APPEARED BETWEEN THE OVEN AND THE COLANDER, THE MINIMUM SIZE⁵³ IS THAT OF THE CIRCUMFERENCE⁵⁴ OF THE TIP OF AN OX GOAD THAT CANNOT ACTUALLY ENTER IT.⁵⁵ R. JUDAH RULED: IT MUST BE ONE INTO WHICH THE TIP CAN ENTER.⁵⁶ IF A SPLIT APPEARED IN THE COLANDER, THE MINIMUM SIZE⁵⁷ IS THE CIRCUMFERENCE OF THE TIP OF AN OX GOAD THAT CAN ENTER IT.⁵⁶ R. JUDAH RULED: EVEN IF IT CANNOT ENTER.⁵⁸ IF THE SPLIT WAS CURVED⁵⁹ IT MUST NOT BE REGARDED AS STRAIGHT,⁶⁰ BUT INVARIABLY THE MINIMUM SIZE MUST BE THE CIRCUMFERENCE OF THE TIP OF AN OX GOAD THAT CAN ACTUALLY ENTER.⁵⁶

MISHNAH 8. IF A HOLE APPEARED IN THE SEALED OUTLET⁶¹ OF AN OVEN. THE MINIMUM SIZE⁶² MUST BE THAT OF THE CIRCUMFERENCE OF A BURNING SPINDLE STAFF THAT CAN ENTER IT AND COME OUT.⁶³ R. JUDAH RULED: ONE THAT IS NOT BURNING.⁶⁴ IF THE HOLE APPEARED AT ITS⁶⁵ SIDE, THE MINIMUM SIZE⁶² MUST BE THAT OF THE CIRCUMFERENCE OF A SPINDLE STAFF THAT CAN ENTER AND COME OUT WHILE IT IS NOT BURNING.⁶⁴ R. JUDAH RULED: WHILE BURNING.⁶⁶ R. SIMEON RULED: IF THE HOLE IS IN THE MIDDLE⁶⁵ ITS SIZE MUST BE SUCH THAT A SPINDLE STAFF CAN ENTER IT, BUT IF IT WAS AT THE SIDE IT NEED ONLY BE SUCH AS THE SPINDLE STAFF CANNOT ACTUALLY ENTER. AND SO HE USED TO RULE CONCERNING THE STOPPER OF A JAR IN WHICH A HOLE APPEARED: THE PRESCRIBED SIZE⁶² IS THE CIRCUMFERENCE⁶⁷ OF THE SECOND KNOT IN AN OAT STALK, BUT IF THE HOLE WAS IN THE MIDDLE THE STALK SHOULD BE ABLE TO ENTER, AND IF AT THE SIDE IT NEED NOT BE ABLE TO ENTER. SO HE USED ALSO TO RULE CONCERNING LARGE STONE JARS IN THE STOPPERS OF WHICH APPEARED A HOLE. THE PRESCRIBED SIZE⁵⁷ IS THE CIRCUMFERENCE OF THE SECOND KNOT IN A REED, BUT IF THE HOLE WAS IN THE MIDDLE⁶⁸ THE REED MUST BE ABLE TO ENTER IT, AND IF IT WAS AT THE SIDE THE REED NEED NOT BE ABLE TO ENTER IT. THIS, HOWEVER, APPLIES ONLY WHERE THE JARS WERE MADE TO STORE WINE,⁶⁹ BUT IF THEY WERE MADE TO STORE OTHER LIQUIDS, EVEN THOUGH THE HOLE WAS EVER SO SMALL,⁷⁰ THEY CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS.⁷¹ THIS, FURTHERMORE, APPLIES ONLY WHERE THE HOLES WERE NOT MADE INTENTIONALLY,⁷² BUT IF THEY WERE MADE INTENTIONALLY, EVEN THOUGH THEY WERE EVER SO SMALL,⁷³ [THE JARS] CONTRACT UNCLEANNESS.⁷⁴ IF A HOLE APPEARED IN THE VESSEL ITSELF, ITS PRESCRIBED SIZE⁷⁵ IS AS FOLLOWS: IF THE VESSEL WAS USED FOR FOODSTUFFS, [THE HOLE MUST BE ONE] THROUGH WHICH OLIVES CAN FALL OUT; IF FOR LIQUIDS, ONE THAT ADMITS LIQUIDS; IF FOR EITHER, THE GREATER RESTRICTION IS IMPOSED, VIZ., THERE MUST BE A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER AND [THE SIZE OF THE HOLE⁷⁵ NEED ONLY BE] ONE THAT ADMITS A LIQUID.

- (1) Which has come in contact with a corpse, becoming thereby a 'father of uncleanness' and thus imparting in turn to earthenware an uncleanness of the first grade (Bert.).
 - (2) Sc. in the ground on which the oven is fixed.
 - (3) The Heb. here as throughout the Mishnah is in the plural.
 - (4) Into the air-space of the oven.
 - (5) The needle or the ring. Since this very slight projection is actually within the air-space of the oven, uncleanness is duly imparted. This, however, applies only where the oven was put in its position after the object had been embedded in the ground. If the oven was there first, the object, by falling through the oven's air-space to its bottom, imparts uncleanness to the oven even before it reached its bottom.
 - (6) The Rabbis of this Mishnah.
 - (7) One that is neither too soft (which would run into the smallest crevices) nor too hard (which would not cling to the oven's sides).
 - (8) Which joins the oven to the ground; and both the oven and the metal object were clean, but were with a corpse under the same roof.
 - (9) Sc. where the cover was not properly tight and fitting.
 - (10) Sc. where the cover was tightly fitting. The needle or the ring, being embedded in the plastering, loses its independent existence and, being deemed to constitute an integral part of the oven, shares its fate; otherwise as metal vessels they would not be protected by a tightly-fitting cover.
 - (11) By overshadowing (cf. supra n. 8).
 - (12) I.e., the part of the stopper that was not opposite the mouth of the jar. (The plug was cone-shaped and thrust its narrow end down into the jar's mouth.) Since the clay in that part of the stopper serves no purpose it is deemed to be non-existent and the needle or ring receives no protection from the tightly fitting cover and is thus exposed to the uncleanness of the corpse under the same roof.
 - (13) And the cover was tightly fitting (cf. p. 46, n. 12 mut. mut.).
 - (14) V. p. 46, n. 3.
 - (15) Being completely sunk into the stopper.
 - (16) Between it and the air-space of the jar.
 - (17) Since it loses its identity in the stopper.
 - (18) Of earthenware, belonging to an 'am ha-arez (v. Glos.).
 - (19) Of metal.
 - (20) I.e., under the same roof.
 - (21) Sc. the 'am ha-arez may continue to use them, no restriction of uncleanness as a precaution against their use by a haber (v. Glos.) having been imposed upon them, since no haber would ever borrow from an 'am ha-arez an earthenware or a liquid which cannot attain cleanness through immersion in a ritual bath.

(22) As it can attain cleanness by immersion in a ritual bath, a haber might sometimes borrow it and, being unaware that it was under the same roof as a corpse (which renders it unclean for seven days, on the third and seventh of which sprinkling is required), would treat it as an ordinary metal utensil of an 'am ha-arez which becomes clean on the same day after ritual immersion and sunset. A tightly fitting cover affords protection to earthenware, foodstuffs and liquids only, but not to metal vessels.

(23) Having learned of Beth Shammai's reason as just explained; v. 'Ed. I, 14.

(24) Sc. embedded in the ground on which the oven is fixed and which serves as its bottom.

(25) Even where the creeping thing is in a condition indicating recent death and cannot be presumed to have been buried in the ground before the oven was brought there.

(26) Through the air-space of the oven.

(27) So that no uncleanness could be conveyed to the oven through its air-space at that time.

(28) When it was no longer within the oven.

(29) Which comes under the category of metal vessels which, when found by chance, are Rabbinically unclean.

(30) Sc. embedded in the ground on which the oven is fixed and which serves as its bottom.

(31) The needle or the ring.

(32) Which are within the air-space of the oven.

(33) Lit., 'for he has not (a peg) to hang on'.

(34) That is now absorbed.

(35) That absorbed unclean liquids and was dry on its surface etc.

(36) That is now absorbed.

(37) As a result of the heating.

(38) Hence the uncleanness even in a case where one does not mind its emergence. Where one does mind it, uncleanness is conveyed even before the oven had been heated.

(39) Sc. older than twelve months.

(40) Sc. the peat was more than three years old.

(41) Cf. L. Lit., 'and after that'.

(42) They themselves, as dry refuse, cannot contract any uncleanness from the unclean persons, while the liquid, since it was neither intentionally pressed out nor was it acceptable, cannot render them susceptible.

(43) Had they not been prepared in such conditions the liquid that then emerged and was acceptable would have become unclean and on emerging after they had been re-absorbed they would obviously be unclean liquids.

(44) Completely.

(45) Metal objects.

(46) Sc. under the same roof.

(47) Though completely absorbed.

(48) Since such an absorption, unlike that within an earthen vessel with a tightly fitting cover, affords no protection against uncleanness.

(49) Though he did not touch them.

(50) Cf. n. 8 mut. mut.

(51) As the metal object cannot be extracted without breaking the wood or clay in which it is embedded the latter cannot be regarded as a valid receptacle and, therefore, constitute an interposition between the unclean metal and the loaf.

(52) V. supra VIII, 3.

(53) Of the split that would cause the colander to be no longer regarded as a tightly fitting cover.

(54) Lit., 'fulness of'.

(55) Sc. it must be no less but need not be more than the actual circumference of the tip, which is one third of a handbreadth in diameter.

(56) I.e., the split must be slightly bigger than the circumference of the tip.

(57) V. p. 49, n. 13.

(58) V. p. 49, n. 15.

(59) In its passage from the upper to the inner surface so that the tip of an ox goad cannot pass through it (cf. T.Y.T.).

(60) Lit., 'long'.

(61) Lit., 'from its eye'.

- (62) Of the hole (cf p. 49, n. 13).
- (63) Sc. considerably bigger than the spindle staff.
- (64) It need be only slightly bigger (cf. prev. n.).
- (65) The outlet's.
- (66) Sc. considerably bigger than the spindle staffs.
- (67) Lit., 'fulness of'.
- (68) Of the stopper.
- (69) In which case they would be continued in use after a small hole had appeared.
- (70) Provided only that it admits a liquid in which it is placed.
- (71) Sc. the hole deprives the contents from the protection against uncleanness which a tightly fitting cover affords.
- (72) Lit., 'by the hands of man'.
- (73) Provided only that they admit a liquid in which the jar is placed.
- (74) Sc. the hole deprives the contents from the protection against uncleanness which a tightly fitting cover affords.
- (75) That deprives the contents of the vessel from the protection afforded by a tightly fitting cover.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 10

MISHNAH 1. THE FOLLOWING VESSELS¹ PROTECT THEIR CONTENTS² WHEN THEY HAVE A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER:³ THOSE MADE OF CATTLE DUNG, OF STONE, OF CLAY,⁴ OF EARTHENWARE,⁵ OF ALUM-CRYSTAL, OF THE BONES OF A FISH OR OF ITS SKIN, OR OF THE BONES OF ANY ANIMAL OF THE SEA OR OF ITS SKIN, AND SUCH WOODEN VESSELS AS⁶ ARE ALWAYS CLEAN. THESE AFFORD PROTECTION WHETHER THE COVERS CLOSE THEIR MOUTHS OR THEIR SIDES,⁷ WHETHER THEY STAND ON THEIR BOTTOMS OR LEAN ON THEIR SIDES. IF THEY WERE INVERTED WITH THEIR MOUTHS DOWNWARDS THEY⁸ AFFORD PROTECTION TO ALL THAT IS BENEATH THEM TO THE NETHERMOST DEEP. R. ELIEZER RULES THAT THIS⁹ IS UNCLEAN. THESE¹⁰ PROTECT EVERYTHING, EXCEPT THAT AN EARTHEN VESSEL AFFORDS PROTECTION ONLY TO FOODSTUFFS, LIQUIDS AND EARTHEN VESSELS.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. WHEREWITH MAY A VESSEL BE TIGHTLY COVERED?¹² WITH LIME OR GYPSUM, PITCH OR WAX, MUD OR EXCREMENT, CRUDE CLAY OR POTTER'S CLAY, OR ANY SUBSTANCE THAT IS USED FOR PLASTERING. ONE MAY NOT MAKE A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER¹² WITH TIN OR WITH LEAD BECAUSE THOUGH IT IS A COVERING, IT IS NOT TIGHTLY FITTING. ONE MAY NOT MAKE A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER¹³ WITH SWOLLEN FIG-CAKES¹⁴ OR WITH DOUGH THAT WAS KNEADED WITH FRUIT JUICE,¹⁴ SINCE¹⁵ IT MIGHT¹⁶ CAUSE IT TO BECOME UNFIT.¹⁷ IF, HOWEVER, A TIGHTLY FITTING COVER HAD BEEN MADE OF IT¹⁸ PROTECTION FROM UNCLEANNESS IS AFFORDED.¹⁹

MISHNAH 3. A STOPPER OF A JAR THAT IS LOOSE BUT DOES NOT FALL OUT, R. JUDAH RULED, AFFORDS PROTECTION;²⁰ BUT THE SAGES RULED: IT DOES NOT AFFORD PROTECTION. IF ITS FINGER-HOLD²¹ WAS SUNK WITHIN THE JAR AND A DEAD CREEPING THING WAS IN IT,²² THE JAR BECOMES UNCLEAN,²³ AND IF THE CREEPING THING WAS IN THE JAR, ANY FOODSTUFFS IN IT,²² BECOME UNCLEAN.²⁴

MISHNAH 4. IF A BALL OR COIL OF REED GRASS WAS PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF A JAR, AND ONLY ITS SIDES²⁵ WERE PLASTERED, NO PROTECTION IS AFFORDED UNLESS IT WAS ALSO PLASTERED ABOVE²⁶ OR²⁷ BELOW.²⁶ THE SAME LAW APPLIES TO A PATCH OF CLOTH.²⁸ IF THE STOPPER WAS ONE OF PAPER²⁹ OR LEATHER³⁰ AND BOUND³¹ WITH A CORD, PROTECTION IS AFFORDED IF IT WAS PLASTERED AT THE SIDES ONLY.³²

MISHNAH 5. IF [THE EARTHENWARE OF] A JAR³³ HAD SCALED OFF WHILE ITS PITCH [LINING]³⁴ REMAINED INTACT,³⁵ AND SO ALSO IF POTS OF FISH BRINE WERE STOPPED UP WITH GYPSUM AT A LEVEL WITH THE BRIM,³⁶ R. JUDAH RULED: THEY AFFORD NO PROTECTION; BUT THE SAGES RULED: THEY AFFORD PROTECTION.³⁷

MISHNAH 6. IF A JAR HAD A HOLE IN IT AND WINE LEES BLOCKED IT UP, THEY AFFORD PROTECTION.³⁸ IF IT WAS STOPPED UP WITH A VINE SHOOT [IT AFFORDS NO PROTECTION] UNLESS IT WAS PLASTERED AT THE SIDES.³⁹ IF THERE WERE⁴⁰ TWO VINE SHOOTS, [NO PROTECTION IS AFFORDED] UNLESS THEY WERE PLASTERED AT THE SIDES³⁹ AND ALSO BETWEEN THE ONE SHOOT AND THE OTHER. IF A BOARD⁴¹ IS PLACED OVER THE MOUTH OF AN OVEN,⁴² PROTECTION IS AFFORDED IF IT WAS PLASTERED AT THE SIDES.³⁹ IF THERE WERE TWO BOARDS NO PROTECTION IS AFFORDED UNLESS THESE ARE PLASTERED AT THE SIDES³⁹ AND ALSO BETWEEN THE ONE BOARD AND THE OTHER. IF, HOWEVER, THEY⁴³ WERE FASTENED TOGETHER WITH PEGS OR JOINTS THERE IS NO NEED FOR THEM TO BE PLASTERED IN THE MIDDLE.

MISHNAH 7. IF⁴⁴ AN OLD OVEN⁴⁵ WAS WITHIN A NEW ONE⁴⁶ AND A COLANDER⁴⁷ RESTED OVER THE MOUTH OF THE OLD OVEN⁴⁸ IN A MANNER THAT IF THE OLD ONE WERE TO BE REMOVED THE COLANDER WOULD DROP,⁴⁹ ALL BECOME UNCLEAR;⁵⁰ BUT IF IT WOULD NOT DROP,⁵¹ ALL REMAIN CLEAN.⁵² IF A NEW OVEN WAS WITHIN AN OLD ONE AND A COLANDER RESTED ON THE MOUTH OF THE OLD OVEN, AND THERE WAS NOT A HANDBREADTH OF SPACE BETWEEN THE NEW OVEN AND THE COLANDER,⁵³ ALL THE CONTENTS OF THE NEW ONE REMAIN CLEAN.⁵²

MISHNAH 8. IF [EARTHEN] SAUCEPANS WERE PLACED ONE WITHIN THE OTHER BUT THEIR RIMS WERE ON THE SAME LEVEL, AND THERE WAS A [DEAD] CREEPING THING IN THE UPPERMOST ONE OR IN THE LOWEST ONE, THAT PAN ALONE⁵⁴ BECOMES UNCLEAR BUT ALL THE OTHERS REMAIN CLEAN.⁵⁵ IF [THEY WERE PERFORATED] TO THE EXTENT OF ADMITTING⁵⁶ A LIQUID,⁵⁷ AND THE CREEPING THING WAS IN THE UPPERMOST ONE, ALL BECOME UNCLEAR;⁵⁸ BUT IF IT WAS IN THE LOWEST ONE, THAT ALONE IS UNCLEAR WHILE ALL THE OTHERS REMAIN CLEAN.⁵⁹ IF⁶⁰ THE CREEPING THING WAS IN THE UPPERMOST ONE AND THE LOWEST PROJECTED ABOVE IT,⁶¹ BOTH⁶² BECOME UNCLEAR.⁶³ IF THE CREEPING THING WAS IN THE UPPERMOST ONE AND THE LOWEST PROJECTED ABOVE IT,⁶¹ ANY OF THE INTERVENING ONES THAT CONTAINED DRIPPING LIQUID BECOMES⁶⁴ UNCLEAR.⁶⁵

(1) Since they are not susceptible to uncleanness even Rabbinically.

(2) Against corpse uncleanness under the same roof.

(3) V. Num. XIX, 15.

(4) That was unburnt in the furnace.

(5) Duly burnt.

(6) On account of their huge size, holding no less than forty se'ah (cf. infra XV, 1).

(7) If an aperture was there.

(8) If they were duly attached with clay to the ground.

(9) Anything under an inverted vessel.

(10) All the vessels enumerated, if they were provided with a tightly fitting cover.

(11) Within it. Objects that can attain cleanness by ritual immersion are not protected (cf. supra IX, 2, notes).

(12) That its contents be thereby protected in accordance with Num. XIX, 15.

(13) V. p. 52, n. 12.

(14) Though if it had never been moistened it is insusceptible to uncleanness.

(15) Should any liquid fall upon it it would be susceptible to uncleanness, and consequently unclear once it is overshadowed by a corpse.

(16) On contracting an uncleanness.

(17) To afford protection as a tightly fitting cover. Such a cover must be one that would remain clean in all circumstances.

(18) Any of the foodstuffs mentioned.

(19) So long as the cover has not become susceptible to uncleanness.

(20) Like a tightly fitting cover.

(21) A depression in a stopper wherein the fingers are inserted to facilitate the drawing out of the stopper.

(22) The finger-hold.

(23) The stopper being regarded as one with the jar.

(24) Since the stopper cannot be considered a valid vessel that affords protection to its contents.

(25) Where they came in contact with the jar.

(26) To stop up the air-spaces in the ball or coil.

(27) Cf. L.

(28) That was less than three by three finger-breadths in size (and, therefore, insusceptible to uncleanness) and rolled up in a ball to serve as a stopper.

(29) Papyrus, which is not susceptible to uncleanness.

(30) Of a size that is less than the prescribed minimum for susceptibility to uncleanness.

(31) Round the jar.

(32) Since, unlike a ball of reed-grass or cloth, neither paper nor leather contains holes large enough for an uncleanness to penetrate through them.

(33) That had a tightly fitting cover.

(34) On which the cover rests.

(35) Lit., 'stands'.

(36) Cf. L.

(37) The point at issue is the interpretation of 'alaw ('upon it') in Num. XIX, 15. According to R. Judah the word is to be taken literally and the stopper must, therefore, rest 'upon' the edge of the vessel, while according to the Sages it is not to be taken literally and the stopper may, therefore, rest slightly above (on the pitch) or on a level with the brim of the vessel.

(38) Though the lees are only on a level with the hole, in agreement with the Sages supra.

(39) Where the stopper meets the jar.

(40) In the hole, serving as a stopper.

(41) Which is a 'flat vessel' that is not susceptible to uncleanness (Bert.) or 'no vessel at all' (L.).

(42) Of earthenware.

(43) The two boards.

(44) Under the same roof as a corpse.

(45) That had been duly heated and was consequently susceptible to uncleanness.

(46) Which, not having been yet properly heated, is insusceptible to uncleanness and may, therefore, serve as a protection for the old one.

(47) That was not 'tightly fitting', not having been joined with plaster to the oven.

(48) Closing at the same time the mouth of the new one also, the brims of both having been on the same level.

(49) Sc. if the colander was entirely supported by the old oven and was just filling up the mouth of the new one.

(50) From the corpse's uncleanness; because the old oven had no tightly fitting cover (cf. supra n. 4) and the new one (since the colander rests entirely on the old one) is not sufficiently closed to afford the protection of a vessel with a tightly fitting cover.

(51) The colander having rested partly on the new oven.

(52) Because the new oven, which has not yet been properly heated, is not regarded as a valid vessel that cannot afford protection without a tightly fitting cover. Any cover, even one that is not tightly fitting, serves it as a proper covering to constitute it a valid partition between the uncleanness and the old oven.

(53) Cf. supra n. 4 mut. mut.

(54) In which the unclean object was found.

(55) Not only are the saucepans clean, (because a vessel does not contract uncleanness through the air.space of another earthen vessel) but even foodstuffs or liquids in them remain clean (since it is only to and from the inside of an exposed vessel that uncleanness is conveyed but not to or from the inside of one that is within another vessel).

(56) From their outsides.

(57) In which they are placed.

(58) Two restrictions are here imposed: In regard to itself the saucepan is still considered a valid vessel because the hole in it is not big enough for olives to fall through, and it is consequently susceptible to uncleanness; while in relation to the saucepans in which it stands it is considered (on account of the small hole in it) to have lost the status of vessel and thus to be virtually non-existent and incapable of preventing the uncleanness from spreading to the insides of the other saucepans.

(59) Since a vessel cannot contract uncleanness from the air-space of an earthen vessel.

(60) In the case of undamaged saucepans.

(61) The brim of the latter being higher than that of the former.

(62) Lit., 'it and the lowest'.

(63) The uppermost is unclean because it contained the creeping thing and the lowest is unclean because on account of its projection above the other, the uncleanness is deemed virtually to be contained directly within itself. The intervening saucepans remain clean as explained supra n. 3.

(64) Since they are all sound vessels.

(65) From the liquid which contracted its uncleanness from the lowest saucepan (cf. n. 7).

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 11

MISHNAH 1. METAL VESSELS, WHETHER THEY ARE FLAT OR FORM A RECEPTACLE, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. ON BEING BROKEN THEY BECOME CLEAN.¹ IF THEY WERE RE-MADE INTO VESSELS THEY REVERT² TO THEIR FORMER UNCLEANNESS. RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL RULED: THIS³ DOES NOT APPLY TO EVERY FORM OF UNCLEANNESS BUT ONLY TO THAT CONTRACTED FROM A CORPSE.

MISHNAH 2. EVERY METAL VESSEL⁴ THAT HAS A NAME OF ITS OWN⁵ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, EXCEPTING A DOOR, A BOLT, A LOCK, A SOCKET UNDER A HINGE, A HINGE, A CLAPPER, AND THE [THRESHOLD] GROOVE UNDER A DOOR POST, SINCE THESE ARE INTENDED TO BE ATTACHED TO THE GROUND.⁶

MISHNAH 3. IF VESSELS ARE MADE FROM IRON ORE, FROM SMELTED IRON, FROM THE HOOP⁷ OF A WHEEL, FROM SHEETS,⁷ FROM PLATING,⁷ FROM THE BASES, RIMS OR HANDLES OF VESSELS, FROM CHIPPINGS OR FILINGS, THEY ARE CLEAN.¹ R. JOHANAN B. NURI RULED: THIS⁸ APPLIES ALSO TO THOSE MADE OF SHATTERED VESSELS. [VESSELS THAT ARE MADE] OF FRAGMENTS OF VESSELS, FROM SMALL WARE, OR FROM NAILS THAT WERE KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN MADE FROM VESSELS, ARE UNCLEAR.⁹ [IF THEY WERE MADE] FROM ORDINARY NAILS,¹⁰ BETH SHAMMAI RULE THAT THEY ARE UNCLEAR,¹¹ AND BETH HILLEL¹² RULE THAT THEY ARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 4. IF UNCLEAR IRON¹³ WAS SMELTED TOGETHER WITH CLEAN IRON AND THE GREATER PART WAS FROM THE UNCLEAR ONE, [THE VESSEL MADE OF THE COMPOSITION] IS UNCLEAR;¹⁴ BUT IF THE GREATER PART WAS FROM THE CLEAN IRON THE VESSEL IS CLEAN. IF EACH REPRESENTED A HALF IT IS UNCLEAR.¹⁴ THE SAME LAW ALSO APPLIES TO A MIXTURE OF CEMENT¹⁵ AND CATTLE DUNG.¹⁶ A DOOR BOLT¹⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT [ONE OF WOOD] THAT IS ONLY PLATED WITH METAL IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁸ THE CLUTCH AND THE CROSSPIECE [OF A LOCK] ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. AS REGARDS A DOOR-BOLT, R. JOSHUA RULED: IT MAY BE DRAWN OFF ONE DOOR AND¹⁹ HUNG ON ANOTHER ON THE SABBATH. R. TARFON RULED: IT IS LIKE ALL OTHER VESSELS AND MAY BE CARRIED ABOUT IN A COURTYARD.

MISHNAH 5. THE SCORPION [-SHAPED] BIT OF A BRIDLE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THE CHEEK-PIECES ARE CLEAN.²⁰ R. ELIEZER RULES THAT THE CHEEK-PIECES ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, AND THE SAGES HOLD THAT THE SCORPION BIT ALONE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT WHILE THEY²¹ ARE JOINED TOGETHER THE WHOLE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 6. A METAL SPINDLE-KNOB, R. AKIBA DECLARES TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT THE SAGES DECLARE IT INSUSCEPTIBLE.²² IF IT²³ WAS ONLY PLATED [WITH METAL] IT IS CLEAN.²⁴ A SPINDLE, A DISTAFF, A ROD, A DOUBLE FLUTE AND A PIPE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF THEY ARE OF METAL, BUT IF THEY ARE ONLY PLATED [WITH METAL] THEY ARE CLEAN. IF A DOUBLE FLUTE HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR THE WINGS²⁵ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IN EITHER CASE.²⁶

MISHNAH 7. A CURVED HORN²⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS²⁸ AND A STRAIGHT ONE²⁹ IS CLEAN. IF ITS MOUTHPIECE WAS OF METAL IT³⁰ IS UNCLEAR. ITS WIDE SIDE³¹ R. TARFON DECLARES TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND THE

SAGES DECLARE IT CLEAN. WHILE THEY ARE JOINED TOGETHER THE WHOLE INSTRUMENT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. SIMILARLY THE BRANCHES OF A CANDLESTICK ARE CLEAN AND THE CUPS AND THE BASE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT WHILE THEY ARE JOINED TOGETHER THE WHOLE CANDLESTICK IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 8. A HELMET IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND THE CHEEK-PIECES ARE CLEAN, BUT IF THE LATTER HAVE A RECEPTACLE FOR WATER³² THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. ALL WEAPONS OF WAR ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS: A JAVELIN. A SPEAR-HEAD, GREAVES, AND BREASTPLATE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. ALL WOMEN'S ORNAMENTS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS: A GOLDEN CITY,³³ A NECKLACE, EAR-RINGS, FINGER-RINGS (WHETHER THE RING IS WITH A SEAL OR WITHOUT ONE) AND NOSE-RINGS. IF A NECKLACE HAS METAL BEADS ON A THREAD OF FLAX OR WOOL AND THE THREAD BROKE, THE BEADS ARE STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, SINCE EACH ONE IS A VESSEL IN ITSELF. IF THE THREAD WAS OF METAL AND THE BEADS WERE OF PRECIOUS STONES OR PEARLS OR GLASS, AND THE BEADS WERE BROKEN WHILE THE THREAD ALONE REMAINED, IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE REMNANT OF A NECKLACE LONG ENOUGH FOR THE NECK OF A LITTLE GIRL, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. R. ELIEZER RULED: EVEN IF ONLY ONE RING REMAINED IT IS UNCLEAN, SINCE IT ALSO IS HUNG AROUND THE NECK.

MISHNAH 9. IF AN EAR-RING WAS SHAPED LIKE A POT³⁴ AT ITS BOTTOM AND LIKE A LENTIL AT THE TOP AND THE SECTIONS FELL APART, THE POT-SHAPED SECTION³⁵ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS A RECEPTACLE, WHILE THE LENTIL SHAPED SECTION IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IN ITSELF.³⁶ THE HOOKLET³⁷ IS CLEAN. IF THE SECTIONS OF AN EAR-RING THAT WAS IN THE SHAPE OF A CLUSTER OF GRAPES FELL APART, THEY³⁵ ARE CLEAN.

- (1) Even if they have been formerly unclean.
 - (2) Rabbinically, though not Pentateuchally.
 - (3) The reversion to uncleanness.
 - (4) Though it does not form a receptacle.
 - (5) Sc. is not merely a part of another vessel.
 - (6) Hence they are insusceptible to uncleanness even before they have been attached.
 - (7) Of metal.
 - (8) The insusceptibility to uncleanness.
 - (9) Since the material may have formed a part of an unclean vessel. whose uncleanness is revived when the material is made into a new one.
 - (10) About which it is unknown whether they were made from old vessels or from unshaped iron.
 - (11) As a preventive measure. They may possibly have been made from a vessel.
 - (12) Holding that no preventive measure is necessary in this case.
 - (13) Sc. one that was known to have formed a part of an old vessel.
 - (14) The former uncleanness passes on to the new vessel.
 - (15) A vessel of which is susceptible to uncleanness as earthenware.
 - (16) Vessels from which are insusceptible to uncleanness.
 - (17) Of metal, which is sometimes used as a pestle.
 - (18) Since the metal plating is a mere attachment, the main part of the bolt being wood which is insusceptible to uncleanness.
 - (19) Dragging it on, without removing it from the ground. Not being a valid vessel, it is forbidden to be carried from place to place on the Sabbath.
 - (20) Serving as mere ornaments they are not susceptible to uncleanness.

- (21) The bit, the bridle and the cheek-pieces.
- (22) Since the knob has no independent name or existence it is like a piece of metal that serves a flat piece of wood which is insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (23) The knob.
- (24) Even according to R. Akiba.
- (25) A bagpipe.
- (26) Whether it is made of metal, or only plated with it.
- (27) A musical pipe made up of links of horn
- (28) Since it may be regarded as having a receptacle.
- (29) Which forms no receptacle.
- (30) Even a straight horn.
- (31) If made of metal.
- (32) From which one drinks in the course of a battle.
- (33) A golden tiara shaped like, or engraven with the city of Jerusalem.
- (34) Wide and hollow.
- (35) Which can no longer be worn as an ornament.
- (36) As an ornament, since it is still worn as such.
- (37) Of an ear-ring.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 12

MISHNAH 1. A FINGER-RING FOR A MAN IS¹ SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A RING FOR CATTLE OR FOR VESSELS AND ALL OTHER RINGS ARE CLEAN.² A BEAM³ FOR ARROWS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁴ BUT ONE FOR PRISONERS⁵ IS CLEAN.⁶ A NECK-IRON⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A CHAIN THAT HAS A LOCK-PIECE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁸ BUT ONE USED FOR TYING ON CATTLE IS CLEAN. THE CHAIN OF WHOLESALE PROVISION DEALERS⁹ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁸ BUT THAT OF HOUSEHOLDERS¹⁰ IS CLEAN.¹¹ R. JOSE EXPLAINED: THIS APPLIES ONLY WHERE¹² IT¹³ CONSISTS OF ONE LINK, BUT IF IT CONSISTED OF TWO LINKS OR IF IT HAD A SLUG [-SHAPED] PIECE AT ITS END¹⁴ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁵

MISHNAH 2. THE BEAM OF THE WOOL-COMBERS' BALANCE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS¹⁶ ON ACCOUNT OF THE HOOKS;¹⁷ AND THAT OF THE HOUSEHOLDER, IF IT HAS HOOKS IS ALSO SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE LADING HOOKS OF PORTERS ARE CLEAN BUT THOSE OF PEDLARS¹⁸ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁹ R. JUDAH RULED: IN THE CASE OF THAT OF THE PEDLARS THE HOOK THAT IS IN FRONT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS¹⁹ BUT THAT WHICH IS BEHIND IS CLEAN.²⁰ THE HOOK OF A BED- FRAME IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT THAT OF BED POLES²¹ IS CLEAN. [THE HOOK OF] A CHEST IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT THAT OF A FISH TRAP IS CLEAN. THAT OF A TABLE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT THAT OF A WOODEN CANDLESTICK IS CLEAN. THIS IS THE RULE: ANY HOOK THAT IS ATTACHED TO A SUSCEPTIBLE VESSEL²² IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT ONE THAT IS ATTACHED TO A VESSEL THAT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IS CLEAN. ALL THESE, HOWEVER, ARE BY THEMSELVES²³ CLEAN.²⁴

MISHNAH 3. THE METAL COVER OF A BASKET OF HOUSEHOLDERS, RABBAN GAMALIEL DECLARES, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹⁹ AND THE SAGES HOLD THAT IT IS CLEAN;²⁵ BUT THAT OF PHYSICIANS²⁶ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE DOOR²⁷ OF A CUPBOARD OF HOUSEHOLDERS IS CLEAN BUT THAT OF PHYSICIANS²⁸ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. TONGS²⁹ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO

UNCLEANNES BUT FIREBARS ARE CLEAN. THE SCORPION [-SHAPED] HOOK IN AN OLIVE-PRESS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES BUT THE HOOKS FOR THE WALLS³⁰ ARE CLEAN.³¹

MISHNAH 4. A BLOOD-LETTERS' LANCET IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES BUT [THE STYLE] OF A SUNDIAL IS CLEAN. R. ZADOK RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES. A WEAVER'S PIN IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES; THE CHEST OF A GRIST-DEALER, R. ZADOK RULES, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN. IF ITS WAGON WAS MADE OF METAL IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 5. IF A NAIL³² WAS ADAPTED TO OPEN OR TO SHUT A LOCK IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, BUT ONE THAT IS ONLY USED AS A SAFEGUARD³³ IS CLEAN. IF A NAIL WAS ADAPTED TO OPEN A JAR, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN UNLESS IT WAS FORGED ANEW. A MONEY-CHANGER'S NAIL³⁴ IS CLEAN,³⁵ BUT R. ZADOK RULED THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES.³⁶ THERE ARE THREE THINGS WHICH R. ZADOK HOLDS TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES AND THE SAGES HOLD CLEAN: THE NAIL OF A MONEY-CHANGER, THE CHEST OF A GRIST-DEALER AND THE STYLE OF A SUNDIAL. R. ZADOK RULES THAT THESE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES AND THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. THERE ARE FOUR THINGS WHICH RABBAN GAMALIEL DECLARES TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, AND THE SAGES DECLARE CLEAN: THE METAL COVER OF A BASKET OF HOUSEHOLDERS, THE HANGER OF A STRIGIL, UNFINISHED METAL VESSELS, AND AN EARTHEN SLAB³⁷ THAT WAS BROKEN INTO TWO EQUAL PARTS. THE SAGES, HOWEVER, AGREE WITH RABBAN GAMALIEL THAT WHERE A SLAB WAS BROKEN INTO TWO PARTS, ONE LARGE AND THE OTHER SMALL, THE LARGER IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES AND THE SMALLER IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. IF A DENAR THAT HAD BEEN INVALIDATED³⁸ WAS FASHIONED FOR HANGING AROUND A YOUNG GIRL'S NECK IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES. SO, TOO, IF A SELA THAT HAD BEEN INVALIDATED WAS ADAPTED FOR USE AS A WEIGHT, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES. HOW MUCH MAY IT³⁹ DEPRECIATE WHILE ONE IS STILL PERMITTED TO KEEP IT? AS MUCH AS TWO DENARS⁴⁰ IF ITS VALUE IS LESS IT MUST BE CUT UP.⁴¹

MISHNAH 8. A PENKNIFE, A WRITING PEN, A PLUMMET, A WEIGHT, PRESSING PLATES, A MEASURING-ROD, AND A MEASURING-TABLE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES. ALL UNFINISHED WOODEN VESSELS ALSO ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, EXCEPTING THOSE MADE OF BOXWOOD.⁴² R. JUDAH RULED: ONE MADE OF AN OLIVE-TREE BRANCH IS ALSO CLEAN UNLESS IT WAS FIRST HEATED.⁴³

(1) Like any other ornaments worn by men.

(2) Only ornaments for men are susceptible to uncleanness.

(3) Plated with iron and used as a target.

(4) Cf. supra XI, 8.

(5) Used as a foot- stock.

(6) Since it is immovable.

(7) Which is carried about when the prisoner moves from place to place, and is, therefore, considered a 'vessel'.

(8) Being regarded as a vessel.

(9) Attached by one end to the wall, and by the other to a measure or weight.

- (10) A mere ornament.
- (11) Only ornaments for men are susceptible to uncleanness.
- (12) Lit., 'when, at the time'.
- (13) The chain of householders.
- (14) Lit., 'top'; by which the chain is attached to the wall or door.
- (15) Being then regarded as a vessel.
- (16) Though it was made of wood.
- (17) Which are metal and susceptible to uncleanness.
- (18) Or spice dealers.
- (19) Because it forms a receptacle.
- (20) Since its receptacle is not used.
- (21) Fixed at the head and at the foot of the bed.
- (22) One that is susceptible to uncleanness.
- (23) Sc. when detached from the vessel.
- (24) Since they are not independent vessels but mere parts of others.
- (25) Because a cover cannot be considered a vessel.
- (26) Which is used as a receptacle for medicinal drugs.
- (27) Of metal.
- (28) On which medical instruments are hung.
- (29) Wherewith smelters hold the crucible over the fire.
- (30) Since they are attached to a permanent building structure.
- (31) Even before they have been attached.
- (32) Which is insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (33) To detect whether anybody had entered the house.
- (34) Whereby his shop's shutters (or his balances) are supported.
- (35) Not intended to be moved about it cannot be considered a vessels.
- (36) Since sometimes, when repairs are needed, it is moved from its position.
- (37) Having a rim.
- (38) Or 'became defective'.
- (39) A sela'.
- (40) Sc. half a sela' or fifty per cent.
- (41) To prevent unscrupulous people from passing it on as a good coin.
- (42) Whose bark is very thick. Only after the bark has been removed by polishing can the vessel be considered finished.
- (43) To extract its moisture. Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 13

MISHNAH 1. THE SWORD, KNIFE, DAGGER, SPEAR, HAND-SICKLE, HARVEST-SICKLE, CLIPPER,¹ AND BARBERS' SCISSORS, EVEN THOUGH THEIR COMPONENT PARTS WERE SEPARATED, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. R. JOSE RULED: THE PART THAT IS NEAR THE HAND² IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THAT WHICH IS NEAR THE TOP³ IS CLEAN. IF THE TWO PARTS OF SHEARS WERE SEPARATED R. JUDAH RULES THAT THEY ARE STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS⁴ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 2. A SHOVEL-FORK⁵ WHOSE SHOVEL⁶ HAS BEEN REMOVED IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS FORK;⁷ IF ITS FORK HAS BEEN REMOVED IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE ON ACCOUNT OF ITS SHOVEL. A KOHLSTICK⁸ WHOSE [EAR-] SPOON IS MISSING IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS POINT; IF ITS POINT WAS MISSING IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE ON ACCOUNT OF ITS [EAR-] SPOON. A STYLUS WHOSE WRITING POINT IS MISSING IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS ERASER;⁹ IF ITS ERASER IS MISSING IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE ON ACCOUNT OF ITS WRITING POINT. A SOUP-LADLE¹⁰ WHOSE SPOON IS LOST IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS FORK; IF ITS FORK IS LOST IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE ON ACCOUNT OF ITS SPOON. SO ALSO IS THE LAW IN REGARD TO THE PRONG OF A MATTOCK.¹¹ THE MINIMUM SIZE¹² FOR ALL THESE INSTRUMENTS IS ONE THAT WOULD SUFFICE FOR THE DUE PERFORMANCE OF THEIR USUAL WORK.

MISHNAH 3. A COULTER THAT IS DAMAGED¹³ REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS UNTIL ITS GREATER PART IS LOST, BUT IF ITS SHAFT-SOCKET IS BROKEN IT IS CLEAN. A HATCHET-HEAD WHOSE CUTTING EDGE IS LOST REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS SPLITTING EDGE; IF ITS SPLITTING EDGE IS LOST IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE ON ACCOUNT OF ITS CUTTING EDGE. IF ITS SHAFT-SOCKET IS BROKEN IT IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 4. A SHOVEL WHOSE BLADE WAS MISSING IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, SINCE IT IS STILL LIKE A HAMMER; SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN. A SAW WHOSE TEETH ARE MISSING ONE IN EVERY TWO¹⁴ IS CLEAN, BUT IF AN HASIT¹⁵ LENGTH OF CONSECUTIVE TEETH¹⁶ REMAINED IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. AN ADZE, SCALPEL, PLANE, OR DRILL THAT WAS DAMAGED REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT IF ITS SHARP EDGE WAS MISSING IT IS CLEAN. IN ALL THESE CASES, HOWEVER, IF AN INSTRUMENT WAS SPLIT INTO TWO PARTS BOTH REMAIN SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, EXCEPTING THE DRILL. THE BLOCK OF A PLANE BY ITSELF¹⁷ IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 5. A NEEDLE WHOSE EYE OR POINT WAS MISSING IS CLEAN. IF IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY ADAPTED AS A STRETCHING-PIN IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A PACK-NEEDLE WHOSE EYE WAS MISSING IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS SINCE ONE WRITES WITH IT.¹⁸ IF ITS POINT WAS MISSING IT IS CLEAN. A STRETCHING-PIN IS IN EITHER CASE¹⁹ SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A NEEDLE THAT HAS BECOME RUSTY IS CLEAN IF THIS HINDERS IT FROM SEWING, BUT OTHERWISE IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A HOOK THAT WAS STRAIGHTENED OUT IS CLEAN. IF IT IS BENT BACK IT RESUMES ITS SUSCEPTIBILITY TO UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 6. WOOD THAT SERVES [AS A SUBSIDIARY PART OF] A METAL VESSEL IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT METAL THAT SERVES AS A SUBSIDIARY PART OF A WOODEN VESSEL IS CLEAN. FOR INSTANCE,²⁰ IF A LOCK IS OF WOOD AND ITS CLUTCHES ARE OF METAL, EVEN IF ONLY ONE OF THEM IS SO, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; BUT IF THE LOCK IS OF METAL AND ITS CLUTCHES ARE OF WOOD, IT IS CLEAN. IF A RING WAS OF METAL AND ITS SEAL OF CORAL, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT IF THE RING WAS OF CORAL AND ITS SEAL OF METAL, IT IS CLEAN. THE TOOTH IN THE PLATE OF A LOCK OR IN A KEY IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BY ITSELF.²¹

MISHNAH 7. IF ASHKELON GRAPPLING-IRONS WERE BROKEN BUT THEIR HOOKS REMAINED, THEY REMAIN SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A PITCH-FORK, WINNOWING-FAN, OR RAKE (AND THE SAME APPLIES TO A HAIR²² -COMB) LOST ONE OF ITS TEETH²³ AND IT WAS REPLACED BY ONE OF METAL, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. AND CONCERNING ALL THESE R. JOSHUA REMARKED: THE SCRIBES HAVE HERE INTRODUCED A NEW PRINCIPLE OF LAW,²⁴ AND I HAVE NO EXPLANATION TO OFFER.²⁵

MISHNAH 8. IF THE TEETH OF A FLAX-COMB WERE MISSING BUT TWO REMAINED, IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF ONLY ONE, HOWEVER, REMAINED IT IS CLEAN. AS REGARDS ALL THE TEETH²⁶ EACH ONE INDIVIDUALLY²⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF OF A WOOL-COMB ONE TOOTH OUT OF EVERY TWO IS MISSING²⁸ IT IS CLEAN. IF THREE CONSECUTIVE TEETH²⁹ REMAINED, IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF THE OUTERMOST TOOTH³⁰ WAS ONE OF THEM, THE COMB IS CLEAN. IF TWO TEETH WERE REMOVED FROM THE COMB AND MADE INTO A PAIR OF FORCEPS, THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. EVEN IF ONLY ONE WAS REMOVED BUT IT WAS ADAPTED TO BE USED FOR A LAMP OR AS A STRETCHING-PIN, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

- (1) Or 'razor'.
 - (2) Since it is used in holding the instrument.
 - (3) Which, owing to its proximity to the blade and the danger of cutting one's hand, is never used when the instrument is handled.
 - (4) Since each part can still be used.
 - (5) An instrument having at one end a fork, wherewith meat or bread is taken out from an oven, and at its other end a flat disk to shovel coals or ashes.
 - (6) Lit., 'spoon'.
 - (7) Lit., 'tooth'.
 - (8) Having at one end a point wherewith stibium is applied to the eyelids (to blacken them) while its other end is wider and is used to clean out the ears.
 - (9) Its flat end wherewith the wax written upon is smoothed over.
 - (10) Having at one end a spoon and at the other a fork.
 - (11) One end of which is used for digging and the other for crushing rubble. If one end is lost the instrument is still susceptible to uncleanness on account of the use of its other end.
 - (12) Of what must remain if it is still to be unclean or susceptible to uncleanness.
 - (13) On the side of its cutting edge.
 - (14) No three consecutive teeth remaining. Lit., 'one from between (two)'.
 - (15) The distance between the tips of the thumb and the forefinger when outstretched; according to Maim. the distance between the outstretched fore and middle fingers.
 - (16) Lit., 'in one place'.
 - (17) Having lest the blade.
 - (18) On a wax tablet.
 - (19) Whether its eye or point is missing.
 - (20) Lit., 'how'.
 - (21) Since it can be used independently.
 - (22) Lit., 'head'.
 - (23) Which are of wood.
 - (24) Since, as flat wooden vessels, the instruments mentioned should be exempt from uncleanness
 - (25) Lit., 'I do not know what to answer (when asked for an explanation)'.
 - (26) Lit., 'and they all'.
 - (27) Since it can be used then for writing on a wax tablet, as supra 5.
 - (28) No three consecutive teeth remaining. Lit., 'one from between (two)'.
 - (29) Lit., 'in one place'.
 - (30) At the end of the row of teeth, which is wider than the others and, therefore, unsuitable for combing.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 14

MISHNAH 1. WHAT IS THE MINIMUM SIZE¹ OF METAL VESSELS?² A BUCKET MUST BE OF SUCH A SIZE AS ONE CAN DRAW WATER WITH; A KETTLE MUST BE SUCH AS WATER CAN BE HEATED IN IT; A BOILER, SUCH AS CAN HOLD SELA'S; A CAULDRON,

SUCH AS CAN HOLD JUGS; JUGS, SUCH AS CAN HOLD PERUTAHs; WINE-MEASURES, SUCH AS CAN MEASURE WINE; AND OIL-MEASURES, SUCH AS CAN MEASURE OIL. R. ELIEZER RULED: THE SIZE PRESCRIBED FOR ALL THESE IS A CAPABILITY TO HOLD PERUTAHs. R. AKIBA RULED: A VESSEL THAT LACKS TRIMMING³ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT ONE THAT LACKS POLISHING IS⁴ CLEAN.⁵

MISHNAH 2. A STAFF⁶ TO THE END OF WHICH IS ATTACHED A METAL KNOB IN THE SHAPE OF A CHESTNUT BUR IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁷ IF THE STAFF WAS STUDDED WITH NAILS IT IS ALSO UNCLEAR. R. SIMEON RULED: THIS APPLIES ONLY WHERE THREE ROWS⁸ WERE PUT IN. IN ALL CASES, HOWEVER, WHERE THEY ARE PUT IN FOR ORNAMENTATION THE STAFF IS CLEAN.⁹ IF A TUBE¹⁰ WAS ATTACHED TO ITS END, AND SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF A DOOR,¹¹ IT IS CLEAN.¹² IF IT¹³ WAS ONCE AN INDEPENDENT VESSEL AND THEN IT WAS FIXED TO THE STAFF, IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁴ WHEN DOES IT ATTAIN CLEANNESS? BETH SHAMMAI RULED: WHEN IT IS DAMAGED; AND BETH HILLEL RULED: WHEN IT IS JOINED ON.¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. THE AUGER OF A BUILDER AND THE PICK OF A CARPENTER ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁶ TENT-PEGS AND SURVEYORS' PEGS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁷ A SURVEYOR'S CHAIN IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT ONE USED FOR FAGGOTS¹⁸ IS CLEAN.¹⁹ THE CHAIN OF A BIG BUCKET [IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS TO A LENGTH OF] FOUR HANDBREADTHS,²⁰ AND THAT OF A SMALL ONE [TO A LENGTH OF] TEN HANDBREADTHS.²⁰ A BLACKSMITH S JACK IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A SAW²¹ THE TEETH OF WHICH WERE INSERTED²² IN A HOLE²³ IS UNCLEAR,²⁴ BUT IF THEY WERE TURNED FROM BELOW UPWARDS²⁵ IT IS CLEAN.²⁶ ALL COVERS ARE CLEAN²⁷ EXCEPT THAT OF A BOILER.²⁸

MISHNAH 4. THE PARTS OF A WAGON THAT ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ARE THE FOLLOWING: THE METAL YOKE,²⁹ THE CROSS-BAR, THE SIDE-PIECES THAT HOLD THE STRAPS, THE IRON BAR UNDER THE NECKS OF THE CATTLE, THE POLE-PIN, THE METAL GIRTH, THE TRAYS, THE CLAPPER, THE HOOK, AND ANY NAIL THAT HOLDS ANY OF ITS PARTS TOGETHER.

MISHNAH 5. THE CLEAN PARTS OF A WAGON ARE THE FOLLOWING: THE YOKE³⁰ THAT IS ONLY PLATED [WITH METAL]. SIDE-PIECES MADE FOR MERE ORNAMENTATION, TUBES THAT GIVE OUT A NOISE,³¹ THE LEAD AT THE SIDE OF THE NECKS OF THE CATTLE, THE RIM OF THE WHEEL, THE PLATES³² AND MOUNTINGS,³² AND ALL OTHER NAILS.³³ ALL THESE ARE CLEAN. METAL SHOES OF CATTLE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND THOSE MADE OF CORK ARE CLEAN. WHEN DOES A SWORD BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS? WHEN IT HAS BEEN POLISHED. AND A KNIFE? WHEN IT HAS BEEN SHARPENED.

MISHNAH 6. A METAL BASKET-COVER³⁴ WHICH WAS TURNED INTO A MIRROR IS, R. JUDAH RULES, CLEAN;³⁵ AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.³⁶ A BROKEN MIRROR, IF IT DOES NOT REFLECT THE GREATER PART OF THE FACE, IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. METAL VESSELS MAY REMAIN UNCLEAR³⁷ AND BECOME CLEAN³⁸ EVEN WHEN BROKEN;³⁹ SO R. ELIEZER. R. JOSHUA RULED: THEY CAN BE MADE CLEAN ONLY WHEN THEY ARE WHOLE.⁴⁰ IF THEY WERE SPRINKLED UPON⁴¹ AND ON THE SAME DAY THEY WERE BROKEN AND THEN THEY WERE RECAST⁴² AND

SPRINKLED UPON ON THE SAME DAY, THEY ARE CLEAN;⁴³ SO R. ELIEZER. R. JOSHUA RULED: THERE CAN BE NO EFFECTIVE SPRINKLING EARLIER THAN ON THE THIRD⁴⁴ AND THE SEVENTH DAY⁴⁵ RESPECTIVELY.

MISHNAH 8. A KNEE-SHAPED KEY THAT WAS BROKEN OFF AT THE KNEE⁴⁶ IS CLEAN.⁴⁷ R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT IS UNCLEAN BECAUSE ONE CAN OPEN WITH IT FROM WITHIN.⁴⁸ A GAMMA-SHAPED KEY,⁴⁹ HOWEVER, THAT WAS BROKEN OFF AT ITS SHORTER⁵⁰ ARM⁵¹ IS CLEAN.⁵² IF IT⁵³ RETAINED THE TEETH AND THE GAPS IT REMAINS UNCLEAN. IF THE TEETH WERE MISSING IT IS STILL UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE GAPS; IF THE GAPS WERE BLOCKED UP IT IS UNCLEAN ON ACCOUNT OF THE TEETH. IF THE TEETH WERE MISSING AND THE GAPS WERE BLOCKED UP, OR IF THEY WERE MERGED INTO ONE ANOTHER,⁵⁴ THE KEY BECOMES CLEAN. IF IN A MUSTARD-STRAINER⁵⁵ THREE HOLES IN ITS BOTTOM WERE MERGED INTO ONE ANOTHER THE STRAINER BECOMES CLEAN;⁴⁷ BUT A METAL MILL-FUNNEL⁵⁶ IS⁵⁷ UNCLEAN.⁵⁸

- (1) That is still susceptible to, or retains its former uncleanness.
 - (2) When they were broken.
 - (3) Var lec., 'its cover'.
 - (4) Like all 'unshaped' vessels.
 - (5) Whereas the latter work requires special skill, the former can be done by the householder.
 - (6) Of wood.
 - (7) The wooden part being subsidiary to the metal knob the entire staff is subject to the restrictions of a metal vessel.
 - (8) Of nails.
 - (9) Since the metal ornamentation is only subsidiary to the wooden staff.
 - (10) Of metal.
 - (11) Where such a tube serves as a pivot.
 - (12) Since the metal ornamentation is only subsidiary to the wooden object.
 - (13) The metal tube.
 - (14) Its new use does not deprive it of its former status of a vessel.
 - (15) To the staff, with nails.
 - (16) Since their wooden handles are merely subsidiary to the metal parts.
 - (17) Though they are inserted in the ground they are not regarded as fixed to it, since they are there only temporarily.
 - (18) To bind them together.
 - (19) Since, like other metal objects that are subsidiary to wooden ones, it is insusceptible to uncleanness.
 - (20) From the bucket; since such a length is used when the bucket is handled.
 - (21) That was unclean.
 - (22) To serve as a door jamb.
 - (23) Of a door, the teeth turning outwards.
 - (24) Lying in a position that might injure passers-by it is not likely to remain there long and cannot consequently be regarded as a fixture in the ground.
 - (25) And sunk in the lintel.
 - (26) Since it is regarded as a permanent fixture in the ground (cf. prev. n. mut. mut.). Alternative rendering: A saw in which the teeth are set in sockets is susceptible, but if they were put in upside down it is not susceptible (Danby according to Maimonides).
 - (27) Because they are not used by themselves.
 - (28) Which, independently of the boiler, is also used by itself.
 - (29) Above the necks of the drawing horses or oxen.
 - (30) V. p. 70, n. 16.
 - (31) To drive on the cattle.
 - (32) Of metal.
 - (33) Which serve as were ornamentation.

- (34) For domestic use which (cf. supra XII, 6) is (in does not agreement with the Sages) clean.
- (35) Because its conversion into a mirror does not alter its former status of uncleanness.
- (36) A mirror they hold, has the status of a valid vessel.
- (37) If they were unclean before they were broken and were re-made into proper vessels after they were broken. If they came in contact with a man or a vessel while in their broken condition, uncleanness is conveyed retrospectively after they have been re-made (cf. L.).
- (38) If the prescribed sprinkling had been performed while they were broken.
- (39) Though they were afterwards re-made into proper vessels (Elijah Wilna).
- (40) Cur. edd. insert 'how', which is deleted by Elijah Wilna.
- (41) For the first time, on the third day, in accordance with Num. XIX, 17ff.
- (42) And made into proper vessels.
- (43) As if they had been duly sprinkled upon on the seventh day. Their broken condition that intervened between their first and their second sprinkling is deemed to be equivalent to the interval of the three days that must elapse between the usual first sprinkling on the third day and the second one on the seventh.
- (44) For the first sprinkling.
- (45) For the second.
- (46) Sc. the part that is inserted in the lock was partly broken off.
- (47) Since it can no longer serve its original purpose.
- (48) Where a shorter length of key (cf. n. 5) would also reach the lock.
- (49) In which the arm that is inserted in the lock is much shorter than in the knee- shaped key.
- (50) Lit., 'its gamma'.
- (51) Sc. the part that is inserted in the lock was partly broken off.
- (52) Even according to R. Judah, since owing to its shortness (cf. n. 8.) it can no longer be used at all.
- (53) The part that remained.
- (54) The teeth having been bent into the gaps.
- (55) That was unclean.
- (56) Although it has no bottom at all.
- (57) In a similar condition.
- (58) As a valid vessel, since it bears an independent name.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 15

MISHNAH 1. OF¹ VESSELS OF WOOD, LEATHER, BONE OR GLASS THOSE THAT ARE FLAT ARE CLEAN² AND THOSE THAT FORM A RECEPTACLE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF THEY ARE BROKEN THEY BECOME CLEAN AGAIN. IF ONE REMADE THEM INTO VESSELS THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS HENCEFORTH.¹ A CHEST, A BOX, A CUPBOARD, A STRAW BASKET,³ A REED BASKET,³ OR THE TANK OF AN ALEXANDRIAN SHIP,⁴ THAT HAVE FLAT BOTTOMS AND CONTAIN A MINIMUM OF FORTY SE'AH IN LIQUID MEASURE WHICH REPRESENT TWO KOR IN DRY MEASURE, ARE CLEAN.⁵ ALL OTHER VESSELS, HOWEVER, WHETHER THEY CONTAIN THE MINIMUM⁶ OR DO NOT CONTAIN IT, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;⁷ SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH RULED: THE TUB OF A WAGON, THE FOOD CHESTS OF KINGS, THE TANNERS TROUGH, THE TANK OF A SMALL SHIP, AND AN ARK,⁸ EVEN THOUGH THEY CONTAIN THE MINIMUM,⁶ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, SINCE THEY ARE INVARIABLY INTENDED TO BE MOVED ABOUT WITH THEIR CONTENTS. AS TO ALL OTHER VESSELS, THOSE THAT CONTAIN THE MINIMUM⁶ ARE CLEAN AND THOSE THAT CANNOT CONTAIN IT ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE ONLY PRACTICAL DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE RULING OF R. MEIR⁹ AND THAT OF R. JUDAH¹⁰ IS THE RULING CONCERNING A DOMESTIC BAKING TROUGH.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. BAKERS' BAKING-BOARDS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹²

THOSE IN DOMESTIC USE¹³ ARE CLEAN, BUT IF THEY WERE COLOURED RED OR SAFFRON THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A BAKERS' SHELF¹⁴ WAS FIXED TO A WALL, R. ELIEZER RULES THAT IT IS CLEAN¹⁵ AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁶ THE BAKERS' FRAME¹⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT ONE IN DOMESTIC USE IS CLEAN. IF A RIM WAS MADE ON ITS FOUR SIDES IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT IF ONE SIDE WAS OPEN IT IS CLEAN. R. SIMEON RULED: IF IT WAS SO SHAPED THAT ONE CAN CUT THE DOUGH UPON IT, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁸ A ROLLING-PIN IS SIMILARLY SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁹

MISHNAH 3. THE CONTAINER OF THE FLOUR-DEALERS' SIFTER IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THE DOMESTIC ONE²⁰, IS CLEAN. R. JUDAH RULED: ALSO ONE THAT IS USED BY A HAIRDRESSER IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS A SEAT,²¹ SINCE GIRLS SIT IN IT WHEN THEIR HAIR IS DRESSED.

MISHNAH 4. ALL HANGERS²² ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, EXCEPTING THOSE OF A SIFTER AND A RIDDLE THAT ARE FOR DOMESTIC USE;²³ SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: ALL HANGERS ARE CLEAN, EXCEPTING THOSE OF A SIFTER OF FLOUR-DEALERS, OF A RIDDLE USED IN THRESHING-FLOORS, OF A HAND-SICKLE AND OF AN EXCISEMAN'S STAFF, SINCE THEY AFFORD AID WHEN THE INSTRUMENT IS IN USE.²⁴ THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: [A HANGER] THAT IS INTENDED TO AFFORD AID WHEN THE INSTRUMENT IS IN USE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND ONE INTENDED TO SERVE ONLY AS A HANGER IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 5. THE GRIST-DEALERS' SHOVEL IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS²⁵ BUT THE ONE USED IN GRAIN STORES²⁶ IS CLEAN. THE ONE USED IN WINE- PRESSES IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS²⁵ BUT THAT USED IN THRESHING- FLOORS²⁶ IS CLEAN. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: [A SHOVEL] THAT IS INTENDED TO HOLD ANYTHING IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT ONE INTENDED ONLY TO HEAP STUFF TOGETHER IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. ORDINARY HARPS²⁷ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,²⁸ BUT THE HARPS OF THE SONS OF LEVI²⁹ ARE CLEAN.³⁰ ALL LIQUIDS³¹ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THE LIQUIDS³² IN THE SHAMBLES³³ ARE CLEAN. ALL BOOKS³⁴ CONVEY UNCLEANNESS TO THE HANDS,³⁵ EXCEPTING THE SCROLL OF THE TEMPLE COURT.³⁶ A WOODEN TOY HORSE³⁷ IS CLEAN.³⁸ THE LUTE, THE NIKTIMON³⁹ AND THE DRUM ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. R. JUDAH RULED: THE DRUM IS UNCLEAR AS A SEAT⁴⁰ SINCE THE WAILING WOMAN SITS ON IT. A WEASEL-TRAP IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁴¹ BUT A MOUSE- TRAP⁴² IS CLEAN.

(1) For notes v. supra II, 1.

(2) Pentateuchally. Some of these are Rabbinically unclean.

(3) Which is subject to the law applicable to wooden vessels.

(4) Name given to large ships that serve for long distances.

(5) Being heavy they are not moved about when full as when empty and, having flat bottoms, they come under the category of stationary wooden vessels which are insusceptible to uncleanness.

(6) Of forty se'ah.

(7) Since they are moved about when full as when empty.

(8) Or large chest. Aliter: coffin.

(9) Who enumerated the vessels that are clean and gave a general ruling that all others are susceptible to uncleanness.

(10) Who mentioned those that are susceptible to uncleanness, ruling that all the others are clean.

(11) Which neither mentioned. According to the former it is susceptible to uncleanness while according to the latter it is clean.

(12) Rabbinically; since, despite their flat shape, they have the form of a vessel.

(13) Since they have not the shape of a vessel (cf. prev. n.).

(14) Of metal.

(15) As any 'vessel' that is fixed to the ground.

(16) Once it had the status of a vessel the fixing of it to a wall cannot deprive it of that status unless it was damaged (cf. supra XIV, 2).

(17) Or 'small trough'.

(18) Even though it had no rim.

(19) Rabbinically; because flat vessels that serve men and their needs are susceptible to uncleanness. In this case the vessels are of service to the man and to his dough.

(20) Which has no proper receptacle.

(21) If a zab sat on it.

(22) Being adjuncts to vessels.

(23) Since these hangers are not always attached to the vessels mentioned.

(24) When fatigued from work one's hand is put on the hanger to facilitate the handling of the instrument.

(25) Because it forms a receptacle.

(26) Which has no proper receptacle.

(27) Lit., 'harps of song'.

(28) On account of the receptacle beneath their strings wherein one places any coins collected from the audience.

(29) Used in the temple.

(30) Since the receptacles in these harps are not intended to contain any objects.

(31) Sc. blood, water, dew, wine, oil, milk and honey.

(32) Water and blood.

(33) Of the Temple, v. 'Ed. VIII, 4.

(34) Or 'scrolls', of Scripture.

(35) That touched them. This is a Rabbinical measure to prevent holy books from being placed near foodstuffs where mice that attack the food would also destroy them. By the enactment that hands that touch the books contract a second grade of uncleanness any terumah that would come in contact with such hands would become unclean, and care would, therefore, be taken to keep terumah (and similarly unconsecrated food) away from the books; v. Yad. IV, 5.

(36) In which the High Priest read on the Day of Atonement. Being very highly esteemed there is no likelihood of its ever being put together with foodstuffs. Var. lec., 'the scroll of Ezra'.

(37) Aliter: The wooden arm of a harp.

(38) Sc. it is not subject to midras uncleanness since it is not intended for riding upon. One merely pretends to sit on the horse while in reality it is dragged along, the so-called rider merely walking or running.

(39) A musical instrument. Aliter: 'a mask', v. Shab. 66b.

(40) If a zab sat on it.

(41) Because it has a receptacle for the animal whose skin is of use.

(42) Which has no receptacle (cf. prev. n.), its only purpose being to crush the mouse. Even if it has a receptacle it is disregarded since a mouse serves no useful purpose.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 16

MISHNAH 1. ANY WOODEN VESSEL THAT WAS BROKEN INTO TWO PARTS¹ BECOMES CLEAN,² EXCEPTING A FOLDING TABLE,³ A DISH WITH COMPARTMENTS FOR [DIFFERENT KINDS OF] FOOD,⁴ AND A DOMESTIC FOOTSTOOL.⁵ R. JUDAH RULED: A DOUBLE DISH³ AND A BABYLONIAN TRAY ARE SUBJECT TO THE SAME LAW.⁶ AT WHAT STAGE⁷ DO WOODEN VESSELS BEGIN TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS? A BED AND A COT, AFTER THEY ARE RUBBED OVER WITH FISHSKIN.⁸ IF THE OWNER DETERMINED NOT TO RUB THEM OVER THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS [FORTHWITH].⁹ R. MEIR RULED: A BED BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS SOON AS THREE ROWS OF MESHES HAVE BEEN KNITTED IN IT.

MISHNAH 2. WOODEN BASKETS [BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS] AS SOON AS THEIR RIMS ARE BOUND ROUND AND THEIR ROUGH ENDS ARE SMOOTHED OFF; BUT THOSE THAT ARE MADE OF PALM-BRANCHES [BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS] EVEN THOUGH THEIR ENDS WERE NOT SMOOTHED OFF ON THE INSIDE, SINCE THEY ARE ALLOWED TO REMAIN IN THIS CONDITION. A BASKET [OF REED-GRASS¹⁰ BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS] AS SOON AS ITS RIM IS BOUND AROUND IT, ITS ROUGH ENDS ARE SMOOTHED OFF, AND ITS HANGER IS FINISHED. A CASE OF WICKERWORK FOR FLAGONS OR FOR CUPS [IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS] EVEN IF THE ROUGH ENDS WERE NOT SMOOTHED OFF ON THE INSIDE, SINCE THESE ARE ALLOWED TO REMAIN IN THIS CONDITION.

MISHNAH 3. SMALL REED BASKETS AND WOMEN'S WORK BASKETS [ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS] AS SOON AS THEIR RIMS ARE BOUND ROUND AND THEIR ROUGH ENDS SMOOTHED OFF; LARGE REED BASKETS AND LARGE HAMPERS, AS SOON AS TWO CIRCLING BANDS HAVE BEEN MADE ROUND THEIR WIDE SIDES; THE CONTAINER OF A SIFTER OR A SIEVE AND A CUP OF THE BALANCES, AS SOON AS ONE CIRCLING BAND HAS BEEN MADE ROUND THEIR WIDE SIDES; A WILLOW¹¹ BASKET, AS SOON AS TWO TWISTS HAVE BEEN MADE AROUND ITS WIDE SIDES; AND A RUSH¹² BASKET,¹³ AS SOON AS ONE TWIST HAS BEEN MADE ROUND IT.

MISHNAH 4. AT WHAT STAGE¹⁴ DO LEATHER VESSELS BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS? A SHEPHERD'S BAG, AS SOON AS ITS HEM HAS BEEN STITCHED, ITS ROUGH ENDS TRIMMED AND ITS THONGS SEWN ON. R. JUDAH RULED: SO SOON AS ITS EARS¹⁵ HAVE BEEN SEWN ON. A LEATHER APRON¹⁶ [BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS] AS SOON AS ITS HEM HAS BEEN STITCHED, ITS ROUGH ENDS TRIMMED AND ITS STRINGS SEWN ON. R. JUDAH RULED: AS SOON AS ITS LOOPS HAVE BEEN SEWN ON. A LEATHER BED COVER¹⁷ [BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE] AS SOON AS ITS HEM HAS BEEN STITCHED AND ITS ROUGH ENDS TRIMMED. R. JUDAH RULED: AS SOON AS ITS THONGS HAVE BEEN SEWN ON. A LEATHER CUSHION OR MATTRESS¹⁸ [BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE] AS SOON AS ITS HEM HAS BEEN STITCHED AND ITS ROUGH ENDS TRIMMED. R. JUDAH RULED: SO, SOON AS IT HAS BEEN SEWN UP AND LESS THAN FIVE HANDBREADTHS REMAINED OPEN.¹⁹

MISHNAH 5. A WILLOW BASKET²⁰ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT A THORN BASKET²¹ IS CLEAN.²² MATS²³ MADE OF LEAVES ARE CLEAN, BUT THOSE MADE OF TWIGS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE WICKER WRAPPING [IN WHICH DATES ARE LEFT]²⁴ AND INTO WHICH THEY CAN BE EASILY PUT²⁵ AND FROM WHICH THEY CAN EASILY BE TAKEN OUT²⁵ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT IF THIS CANNOT BE DONE WITHOUT TEARING IT OR UNDOING IT, IT IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. THE LEATHER GLOVE²⁶ OF WINNERS, TRAVELLERS, OR FLAX WORKERS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;²⁷ BUT THE ONE FOR DYERS OR BLACKSMITHS²⁸ IS CLEAN. R. JOSE RULED: THE SAME LAW APPLIES ALSO TO THE GLOVE²⁶ OF GRIST DEALERS. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: THAT WHICH IS MADE FOR HOLDING ANYTHING IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THAT WHICH ONLY AFFORDS PROTECTION AGAINST PERSPIRATION IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. THE DUNG BAG OF A BULLOCK²⁹ AND ITS MUZZLE, A BEE-SMOKER, AND A FAN ARE CLEAN.³⁰ THE COVER OF A CASKET IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; THE COVER OF A CLOTHES-CHEST IS CLEAN. THE COVER OF A BOX, THE COVER OF A BASKET, A CARPENTER'S VICE, A CUSHION³¹ UNDER A BOX³² OR ITS

ARCHED COVER,³³ A READING-DESK FOR A BOOK, A BOLT-SOCKET, A LOCK-SOCKET, A MEZUZAH CASE, A LYRE CASE, A VIOLIN CASE, THE BLOCK OF THE TURBAN-MAKERS, A WOODEN MUSICAL TOY HORSE, THE CLAPPERS OF A WAILING WOMAN, A POOR MAN'S PARASOL,³⁴ BED STRUTS, A TEFILLIN MOULD, AND THE CLOAK-MAKER'S BLOCK — ALL THESE ARE CLEAN. THIS, SAID R. JOSE, IS THE GENERAL RULE: ALL OBJECTS³⁵ THAT SERVE AS A PROTECTION TO OBJECTS THAT A MAN USES, BOTH WHEN THE LATTER ARE IN USE AND WHEN THEY ARE NOT IN USE,³⁶ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; BUT THOSE THAT SERVE THEM AS A PROTECTION ONLY WHEN THE LATTER ARE IN USE ARE CLEAN.³⁷

MISHNAH 8. THE SHEATH OF A SWORD, A KNIFE OR A DAGGER, THE CASE FOR SCISSORS, OR SHEARS OR A RAZOR, THE CASE OF KOHL-STICKS AND THE KOHL-BOX, THE STYLUS CASE, THE INKPOT CASE,³⁸ THE TABLET CASE, THE LEATHER APRON,³⁹ A QUIVER AND A JAVELIN CASE⁴⁰ — ALL THESE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE CASE FOR A DOUBLE FLUTE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF THE INSTRUMENT IS PUT IN FROM ABOVE,⁴¹ BUT IF IT IS PUT IN FROM THE SIDE, IT⁴² IS CLEAN. A CASE FOR PIPES, R. JUDAH RULES, IS CLEAN BECAUSE THESE ARE PUT IN FROM THE SIDE.⁴³ THE COVERING OF A CLUB, A BOW OR A SPEAR IS CLEAN. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: THAT WHICH SERVES AS A CASE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THAT WHICH IS MERELY A COVERING IS CLEAN.

- (1) While it was unclean.
 - (2) And also insusceptible to future uncleanness.
 - (3) Consisting of two sound and independent parts.
 - (4) Cf. prev. n.
 - (5) Made up of sections.
 - (6) Viz., though they were broken into two parts they remain unclean.
 - (7) In their manufacture.
 - (8) Which gives them their smooth surface.
 - (9) Even though their surface is rough.
 - (10) Aliter: Of fruit.
 - (11) Cf. Danby.
 - (12) Or 'cork'.
 - (13) Which is not so deep as the basket previously mentioned.
 - (14) In their manufacture.
 - (15) The flaps by which it is carried.
 - (16) Scortea, or 'leather coat', 'leather table cover', 'leather bed sheet'.
 - (17) Or 'leather table cover'.
 - (18) Or 'bolster'.
 - (19) To admit the packing.
 - (20) In which figs or dates are kept. Aliter: A fig or date basket.
 - (21) For rubbish. Aliter: Provision basket.
 - (22) Because it is much too large to be carried about and consequently is not considered a vessel.
 - (23) Aliter: Little fruit baskets.
 - (24) Until they are ripened.
 - (25) Without tearing the wrapper.
 - (26) Or 'head gear', or 'apron', or 'overall'.
 - (27) Since it forms a 'receptacle' for the dust or chaff.
 - (28) Which forms no receptacle, its purpose being merely to absorb the man's perspiration.
 - (29) For receiving its excrements while at work.
 - (30) Since they have not the shape of a 'vessel'.
 - (31) Var. lec., a chair.

- (32) To protect it from dampness.
- (33) To protect the chest against rain.
- (34) Or 'the poor man's collecting-bag'.
- (35) Though they are flat and form no receptacle.
- (36) As, for instance, a cover or a book's case.
- (37) If they are flat. Those that are concave and thus form a receptacle are in either case susceptible to uncleanness.
- (38) Or 'a box with many compartments'.
- (39) Or 'leather coat', or 'leather table-cover'.
- (40) Or 'catapult'.
- (41) Sc. when the case is long and forms a proper receptacle.
- (42) Since it can only be regarded as a mere cover.
- (43) Cf. prev. n.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 17

MISHNAH 1. ALL [WOODEN] VESSELS¹ THAT BELONG TO HOUSEHOLDERS² [BECOME CLEAN IF THERE APPEARED IN THEM HOLES OF] THE SIZE OF POMEGRANATES.³ R. ELIEZER RULED: [THE SIZE OF THE HOLE DEPENDS] ON THE USE TO WHICH A VESSEL IS PUT.⁴ GARDENERS' VEGETABLE BASKETS [BECOME CLEAN IF THE HOLES IN THEM ARE OF] THE SIZE OF BUNDLES OF VEGETABLES;⁵ BASKETS OF HOUSEHOLDERS [BECOME CLEAN IF] THE SIZE [OF THE HOLES WILL ADMIT] BUNDLES OF STRAW [TO DROP THROUGH]; THOSE OF BATH-KEEPERS, IF BUNDLES OF SHAVINGS [WILL DROP THROUGH]. R. JOSHUA RULED: [THE SIZE]⁶ IN THE CASE OF ALL THESE IS THAT OF POMEGRANATES.³

MISHNAH 2. A SKIN BOTTLE [BECOMES CLEAN IF THE HOLES IN IT ARE OF] A SIZE THROUGH WHICH WARP-CLEWS⁷ [WILL DROP OUT]. IF [WOOF-CLEWS ARE USUALLY KEPT IN IT AND NOW]⁸ IT CAN NOT HOLD WARP-CLEWS BUT CAN STILL HOLD⁹ WOOF ONES¹⁰ IT REMAINS UNCLEAR.¹¹ A DISH HOLDER¹² THAT CANNOT HOLD DISHES BUT¹³ CAN STILL HOLD TRAYS REMAINS UNCLEAR.¹¹ A CHAMBER- POT¹⁴ THAT CANNOT HOLD LIQUIDS BUT CAN STILL HOLD EXCREMENTS REMAINS UNCLEAR.¹⁵ R. GAMALIEL RULES THAT THE LAST MENTIONED POT IS CLEAN SINCE PEOPLE DO NOT USUALLY KEEP ONE THAT IS IN SUCH A CONDITION.

MISHNAH 3. BREAD-BASKETS [ATTAIN CLEANNESS IF] THE SIZE [OF THEIR HOLES IS SUCH] THAT LOAVES OF BREAD [WOULD FALL THROUGH]. FRAMES FOR HANGINGS, THOUGH REEDS WERE FASTENED TO THEM FROM THE BOTTOM UPWARDS TO STRENGTHEN THEM, ARE CLEAN.¹⁶ IF TO SUCH A FRAME HANDLES OF ANY KIND WERE FIXED IT IS UNCLEAR. R. SIMEON RULED: IF IT CANNOT BE LIFTED UP BY THESE HANDLES¹⁷ IT IS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 4. THE POMEGRANATES OF WHICH THE RABBIS HAVE SPOKEN¹⁸ ARE THREE ATTACHED TO ONE ANOTHER.¹⁹ R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL RULED: IN A SIFTER OR A SIEVE [THE SIZE OF THE HOLE MUST BE SUCH THAT A POMEGRANATE WILL DROP OUT] WHEN ONE TAKES IT²⁰ UP AND WALKS ABOUT WITH IT;²¹ IN A HAMPER IT MUST BE SUCH [AS WOULD ALLOW A POMEGRANATE] TO FALL THROUGH WHILE A MAN HANGS THE HAMPER BEHIND HIM;²² AND AS REGARDS ALL OTHER VESSELS WHICH²³ CANNOT HOLD POMEGRANATES AS, FOR INSTANCE, THE QUARTER KAB MEASURE AND THE HALF QUARTER KAB MEASURE, AND SMALL BASKETS, THE SIZE [OF THEIR HOLES MUST BE] SUCH AS WOULD EXTEND OVER THE GREATER PART OF THEM; SO R. MEIR. R. SIMEON RULED: [THE HOLE IS MEASURED] WITH OLIVES.²⁴ IF THEIR SIDES WERE BROKEN²⁵ [THE SIZE OF THEIR HOLE MUST BE] SUCH AS OLIVES

WOULD DROP THROUGH. IF THEY ARE WORN AWAY THE SIZE [OF THEIR HOLES] MUST BE SUCH AS WOULD ALLOW THE OBJECTS WHICH ARE USUALLY KEPT IN THEM [TO DROP THROUGH].²⁶

MISHNAH 5. THE POMEGRANATE OF WHICH THEY HAVE SPOKEN²⁷ REFERS TO ONE THAT IS NEITHER SMALL NOR BIG BUT OF MODERATE SIZE. AND FOR WHAT PURPOSE²⁸ WERE THE POMEGRANATES OF BADDAN²⁹ MENTIONED?³⁰ THAT WHATEVER THEIR QUANTITY THEY³¹ CAUSE [OTHER POMEGRANATES]³² TO BE FORBIDDEN: SO R. MEIR. R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAID: THAT THEY ARE TO BE USED AS A MEASURE FOR HOLES IN VESSELS.³³ R. AKIBA SAID: THEY WERE MENTIONED FOR BOTH REASONS: THAT THEY ARE TO BE USED AS A MEASURE FOR HOLES IN VESSELS²⁶ AND THAT WHATEVER THEIR QUANTITY THEY CAUSE [OTHER POMEGRANATES]³² TO BE FORBIDDEN. R. JOSE³⁴ SAID: THE POMEGRANATES OF BADDAN AND THE LEEKS OF GEB³⁵ WERE MENTIONED ONLY TO INDICATE THAT THEY MUST BE TITHED EVERYWHERE AS BEING CERTAINLY UNTITHED.³⁶

MISHNAH 6. THE SIZE OF AN EGG WHICH THEY PRESCRIBED³⁷ IS THAT OF ONE THAT IS NEITHER BIG NOR SMALL BUT OF MODERATE SIZE. R. JUDAH RULED: THE LARGEST AND THE SMALLEST³⁸ MUST BE BROUGHT AND PUT IN WATER AND THE DISPLACED WATER IS THEN DIVIDED.³⁹ SAID R. JOSE: BUT WHO CAN TELL ME WHICH IS THE LARGEST AND WHICH IS THE SMALLEST?⁴⁰ ALL RATHER DEPENDS ON THE OBSERVER'S ESTIMATE.

MISHNAH 7. THE SIZE OF A DRIED FIG WHICH THEY PRESCRIBED⁴¹ IS THAT OF ONE THAT IS NEITHER LARGE NOR SMALL BUT OF MODERATE SIZE. R. JUDAH STATED: THE BIGGEST⁴² IN THE LAND OF ISRAEL IS LIKE ONE OF MODERATE SIZE IN OTHER LANDS.

MISHNAH 8. THE SIZE OF AN OLIVE WHICH THEY PRESCRIBED⁴³ IS THAT OF ONE THAT IS NEITHER LARGE NOR SMALL BUT OF A MODERATE SIZE, VIZ., ONE THAT IS FIT FOR STORAGE.⁴⁴ THE SIZE OF A BARLEYCORN WHICH THEY PRESCRIBED⁴⁵ IS THAT OF ONE THAT IS NEITHER LARGE NOR SMALL BUT OF MODERATE SIZE, VIZ., THE KIND THAT GROWS IN THE WILDERNESS. THE SEIZE OF THE LENTIL WHICH THEY PRESCRIBED⁴⁶ IS THAT OF ONE THAT IS NEITHER LARGE NOR SMALL BUT OF MODERATE SIZE, VIZ., THE EGYPTIAN KIND. 'ANY⁴⁷ MOVABLE OBJECT CONVEYS UNCLEANNES⁴⁸ IF IT IS OF THE THICKNESS OF AN OX GOAD', REFERS TO ONE THAT IS NEITHER LARGE NOR SMALL BUT OF MODERATE SIZE. WHAT IS MEANT BY 'ONE OF MODERATE SIZE'? ONE WHOSE CIRCUMFERENCE IS JUST A HANDBREADTH.

MISHNAH 9. THE STANDARD OF THE CUBIT WHICH THEY PRESCRIBED⁴⁹ IS ONE OF THE MODERATE SIZE.⁵⁰ THERE WERE TWO STANDARD CUBITS IN THE PALACE OF SHUSHAN,⁵¹ ONE IN THE NORTH-EASTERN CORNER AND THE OTHER IN THE SOUTH-EASTERN CORNER. THE ONE IN THE NORTH-EASTERN CORNER EXCEEDED⁵² THAT OF MOSES⁵³ BY HALF A FINGERBREADTH, WHILE THE ONE IN THE SOUTH-EASTERN CORNER EXCEEDED⁵² THE OTHER BY HALF A FINGERBREADTH, SO THAT THE LATTER EXCEEDED THAT OF MOSES BY A FINGERBREADTH. BUT WHY DID THEY PRESCRIBE A LARGER AND A SMALLER CUBIT? ONLY FOR THIS REASON: THAT THE CRAFTSMEN⁵⁴ MIGHT TAKE THEIR ORDERS ACCORDING TO THE SMALLER CUBIT AND RETURN THEIR FINISHED WORK ACCORDING TO THE LARGER CUBIT,⁵⁵ SO THAT THEY MIGHT NOT BE GUILTY OF ANY POSSIBLE MAL-APPROPRIATION.⁵⁶

MISHNAH 10. R. MEIR STATED: ALL CUBITS⁵⁷ WERE OF THE MODERATE LENGTH⁵⁰

EXCEPT THAT FOR THE GOLDEN ALTAR, THE HORNS,⁵⁸ THE CIRCUIT⁵⁸ AND THE BASE.⁵⁸ R. JUDAH STATED: THE CUBIT USED FOR THE BUILDING⁵⁹ WAS ONE OF SIX HANDBREADTHS AND THAT FOR THE VESSELS ONE OF FIVE HANDBREADTHS.

MISHNAH 11. SOMETIMES, HOWEVER, THEY PRESCRIBED A SMALLER MEASURE: THE LIQUID AND DRY MEASURES⁵⁹ WERE PRESCRIBED TO BE OF THE ITALIAN STANDARD WHICH IS THE ONE THAT WAS USED IN THE WILDERNESS.⁶⁰ SOMETIMES, AGAIN,⁶¹ THEY PRESCRIBED A MEASURE THAT VARIED ACCORDING TO THE INDIVIDUAL CONCERNED, AS IS THE CASE OF ONE WHO TAKES THE HANDFUL OF A MEAL-OFFERING,⁶² ONE WHO TAKES BOTH HANDS FULL OF INCENSE,⁶³ ONE WHO DRINKS A MOUTHFUL ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT,⁶⁴ AND THE PREPARATION OF FOOD FOR TWO MEALS IN CONNECTION WITH AN 'ERUB,⁶⁵ THE QUANTITY BEING THE FOOD ONE EATS ON WEEKDAYS AND NOT ON THE SABBATH,⁶⁶ SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH RULED: AS ON THE SABBATH AND NOT AS ON WEEKDAYS.⁶⁷ AND BOTH INTENDED TO GIVE THE MORE LENIENT RULING.⁶⁸ R. SIMEON RULED:⁶⁹ TWO THIRDS OF A LOAF, THREE OF WHICH ARE MADE OF A KAB.⁷⁰ R. JOHANAN B. BEROKA RULED:⁶⁹ NOT LESS THAN A LOAF THAT IS PURCHASED FOR A DUPONDIIUM WHEN THE PRICE OF WHEAT IS FOUR SE'AH FOR A SELA'.⁷¹

MISHNAH 12. AND SOMETIMES⁷² THEY PRESCRIBED A LARGE MEASURE: 'A LADLEFUL OF CORPSE MOULD'⁷³ REFERS TO THE BIG LADLE OF PHYSICIANS; THE 'SPLIT BEAN' IN THE CASE OF LEPROSY⁷⁴ REFERS TO THE CILICIAN KIND; 'ONE WHO EATS ON THE DAY OF ATONEMENT A QUANTITY OF THE BULK OF A LARGE DATE',⁷⁵ REFERS TO THE SIZE OF ITSELF AND ITS STONE; IN THE CASE OF SKINS OF WINE AND OIL [THE HOLES]⁷⁶ MUST BE AS BIG AS THEIR LARGE STOPPER; IN THE CASE OF A LIGHT HOLE THAT WAS NOT MADE BY MAN'S HANDS⁷⁷ THE PRESCRIBED SIZE OF WHICH⁷⁸ IS THAT OF A LARGE FIST, THE REFERENCE IS TO THE FIST OF BEN BATIAH⁷⁹ (R. JOSE STATED: AND IT IS AS BIG AS A LARGE HUMAN HEAD), AND IN THE CASE OF ONE⁸⁰ MADE BY MAN'S HANDS THE PRESCRIBED SIZE⁷⁸ IS THAT OF THE LARGE DRILL IN THE TEMPLE CHAMBER WHICH IS THE SIZE OF THE ITALIAN DUPONDIIUM OR THE NERONIAN SELA'⁸¹ OR LIKE THE HOLE IN A YOKE.

MISHNAH 13. ALL THAT LIVE IN THE SEA ARE⁸² CLEAN,⁸³ EXCEPT THE SEA-DOG BECAUSE IT SEEKS REFUGE⁸⁴ ON DRY LAND; SO R. AKIBA. IF ONE MADE VESSELS FROM WHAT GROWS IN THE SEA AND JOINED TO THEM ANYTHING THAT GROWS ON LAND, EVEN IF ONLY A THREAD OR A CORD, PROVIDED IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, THEY ARE UNCLEAN.

MISHNAH 14. THE LAWS OF UNCLEANNESS CAN APPLY TO WHAT WAS CREATED ON THE FIRST DAY.⁸⁵ THERE CAN BE NO UNCLEANNESS IN WHAT WAS CREATED ON THE SECOND DAY.⁸⁶ TO WHAT WAS CREATED ON THE THIRD DAY⁸⁷ THE LAWS OF UNCLEANNESS CAN APPLY.⁸⁸ NO UNCLEANNESS APPLIES TO WHAT WAS CREATED ON THE FOURTH DAY⁸⁹ AND ON THE FIFTH DAY,⁹⁰ EXCEPT⁹¹ TO THE WING OF THE VULTURE OR AN OSTRICH-EGG THAT IS PLATED.⁹² R. JOHANAN B. NURI OBJECTED: WHY SHOULD THE WING OF A VULTURE BE DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHER WINGS? TO ALL THAT WAS CREATED ON THE SIXTH DAY⁹³ THE LAWS OF UNCLEANNESS CAN APPLY.⁹⁴

MISHNAH 15. IF ONE MADE A RECEPTACLE, WHATEVER ITS SIZE⁹⁵ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF ONE MADE A COUCH OR A BED, WHATEVER ITS SIZE,⁹⁶ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF ONE MADE A PURSE FROM UNTANNED HIDE OR FROM PAPYRUS, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A

POMEGRANATE, AN ACORN AND A NUT WHICH CHILDREN HOLLOWED OUT TO MEASURE DUST THEREWITH OR FASHIONED THEM INTO A PAIR OF SCALES, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, SINCE IN THE CASE OF CHILDREN AN ACT⁹⁷ IS VALID THOUGH AN INTENTION IS NOT.⁹⁸

MISHNAH 16. THE BEAM OF A BALANCE AND A STRIKE THAT CONTAIN A RECEPTACLE FOR METAL,⁹⁹ A CARRYING-YOKE THAT HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR MONEY,¹⁰⁰ A BEGGAR'S CANE THAT HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR WATER,¹⁰¹ AND A STICK THAT HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR A MEZUZAH AND FOR PEARLS¹⁰² ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. ABOUT ALL THESE R. JOHANAN B. ZAKKAI REMARKED: 'WOE TO ME IF I SHOULD SPEAK OF THEM; WOE TO ME IF I SHOULD NOT SPEAK'.¹⁰³

MISHNAH 17. THE BASE OF THE GOLDSMITHS' ANVIL¹⁰⁴ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THAT OF THE BLACKSMITHS¹⁰⁵ IS CLEAN. A WHET-BOARD WHICH HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR OIL IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT ONE THAT HAS NONE IS CLEAN. A WRITING-TABLET THAT HAS A RECEPTACLE FOR WAX IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT ONE THAT HAS NONE IS CLEAN. A STRAW MAT OR A TUBE OF STRAW, R. AKIBA RULES, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹⁰⁶ BUT R. JOHANAN B. NURI RULES THAT IS IT CLEAN. R. SIMEON RULED: THE HOLLOW STALK OF COLOCYNTH¹⁰⁷ IS SUBJECT TO THE SAME LAW.¹⁰⁸ A MAT OF REEDS OR RUSHES IS CLEAN. A REED-TUBE THAT WAS CUT FOR HOLDING ANYTHING REMAINS CLEAN UNTIL ALL THE PITH HAS BEEN REMOVED.

- (1) Which have contracted an uncleanness.
 - (2) Those belonging to craftsmen become clean even if only smaller holes have appeared (v. infra).
 - (3) Sc. holes big enough for pomegranates to fall through.
 - (4) Lit., 'in what they are'. If big objects are kept in it the hole must be big enough to allow such objects to drop through; and if the objects are small, holes corresponding to their size suffice to render the vessel clean.
 - (5) Sc. that such bundles will drop through them.
 - (6) That renders a vessel clean.
 - (7) Which are smaller than woof-clews.
 - (8) Cf. L.
 - (9) Lit., 'although'.
 - (10) Which are bigger than warp-clews (cf. supra n. 7).
 - (11) Because it can still serve its original purpose.
 - (12) Used for trays.
 - (13) Lit., 'although'.
 - (14) For excrements.
 - (15) V. p. 81, n. 11.
 - (16) Since they are flat objects that have not the shape of a vessel.
 - (17) On account of their frail texture or weak connection with the frame.
 - (18) Supra Mishnah 1.
 - (19) A hole through which one of such three pomegranates would drop must be bigger than one through which a single pomegranate would drop (Tosaf. Y.T.).
 - (20) The sifter or the sieve.
 - (21) A smaller hole than one through which the fruit could drop out without the shaking of the vessel.
 - (22) Across his shoulders (cf. prev. n. mut. mut.).
 - (23) Owing to their small capacity.
 - (24) If it is one through which olives can pass, the vessel, though it can still hold bigger sized fruit, becomes clean.
 - (25) The holes previously spoken of were those in the bottom of a vessel.
 - (26) 'The size (is determined) by what they are', i.e., by the character of the vessels. Aliter: They are regarded as vessels as long as they hold any object.

- (27) Supra Mishnah 1.
- (28) In connection with prescribed sizes.
- (29) In Samaria.
- (30) Cf. 'Or. III, 7.
- (31) If they are 'orlah or otherwise forbidden.
- (32) With which they are mixed.
- (33) Sc. wherever a pomegranate is given in connection with the prescribed size of a hole that renders a vessel clean a pomegranate of Baddan is meant.
- (34) Var. lec., Judah.
- (35) In Samaria.
- (36) Since they are the products of Samaritan localities and the Samaritans are known to disregard the laws of tithe.
- (37) In connection with the uncleanness of foodstuffs.
- (38) Of eggs.
- (39) To obtain the size of the average egg.
- (40) Sc. there might somewhere be eggs that are much bigger or much smaller than any egg that can be obtained in one's locality.
- (41) In connection with carrying on the Sabbath (cf. Shab. VII, 4, 'Er. VII, 8).
- (42) Var. lec. (Wilna, 1907, Berlin 1862), 'smallest'.
- (43) Frequently (cf. Ber. 39a, Hal. I, 2).
- (44) Aliter: Of a specially good quality. Aliter: An olive that retains its oil. Aliter: Whose oil is collected like wine in the grape.
- (45) Cf. supra I, 4; 'Ed. VI, 3.
- (46) Cf. Oh. I, 7; Mik. VI, 7.
- (47) A citation from Oh. XVI, 1, which is presently explained.
- (48) To the man that carries it (Bert.); from place to place which it overshadows (L.).
- (49) For various ritual measurements (cf. 'Er. I, 1; Suk. I, 1; Oh. XVI, 3).
- (50) Six handbreadths. The larger cubit measured six and a sixth handbreadths, while the smaller one measured only five handbreadths.
- (51) A mural sculpture above the eastern gate of the Temple (cf. Mid. I, 3) representing that palace (cf. Est. I, 2).
- (52) In length.
- (53) The cubit of six handbreadths which he used in the wilderness in the construction of the Tabernacle and its furniture.
- (54) Engaged in Temple work.
- (55) Thus making sure that they neither appropriated any material that belonged to the Temple nor received payment for labour they had not performed.
- (56) Cf. prev. n.
- (57) Used in the Temple.
- (58) Of the brazen altar. These were measured by the smaller cubit of five handbreadths.
- (59) Of the Temple.
- (60) By Moses.
- (61) When the thing measured was not a vessel but a part of the human body.
- (62) Cf. Lev. II, 2.
- (63) Cf. Lev. XVI, 12.
- (64) When drinking is forbidden (cf. Yoma VIII, 2).
- (65) Cf. 'Er. VIII, 2.
- (66) When more is eaten than on the working days of the week.
- (67) Holding that on weekdays more is eaten in each meal than on Sabbath when three meals are prescribed.
- (68) Sc. to reduce the prescribed size of the 'erub (cf. 'Er., Sonc. ed., p. 576, n. 3).
- (69) In determining the quantity of bread required for two meals.
- (70) Of wheat. Thus two ninths of a kab suffice for two meals. When three loaves are made from a kab $\frac{2}{3}$ of each loaf = $\frac{1}{3} \times 2 \times \frac{2}{3} = \frac{2}{9}$ kab.
- (71) As four se'ah are equal to 4×6 kab = $24 \times 2 = 48$ half-kab, and as a sela' contains 4 denars = 4×6 ma'ah = 4×6

X 2 = 48 dupondia, each loaf must weigh half a kab; but as the shopkeeper who buys at the price mentioned (1/2 a kab for a dupondium) sells at a higher price, allowing himself a profit of fifty per cent of the purchase price, he sells for each dupondium 1/2 of a half a kab — 1/4 of a kab. Each loaf, therefore, weighs 1/4 of a kab. Cf. 'Er., Sonc. ed., pp. 576-578 and notes.

(75) Is culpable (Yoma VIII, 2).

(76) That render them insusceptible to uncleanness.

(77) Oh. XIII, 1.

(78) That would enable uncleanness to spread through it from one room into another.

(79) A Palestinian giant in the time of the destruction of the Temple; v. Lam. Rab. I, 5.

(80) A light- hole.

(81) A sela' named after the Emperor Nero.

(82) Unlike animals on land.

(83) Even when dead. Hence vessels made of their skins are insusceptible to uncleanness.

(84) Lit., 'Bees'.

(85) The earth (Gen. I, 1). Earthen vessels are subject to the laws of uncleanness.

(86) The heathens (Gen. I, 6f).

(87) The trees and plants (Gen. I, 11f).

(88) Wooden vessels are subject to uncleanness.

(89) The luminaries (Gen. I, 14ff).

(90) Birds and fishes (Gen. I, 20ff).

(91) According to Rabbinic Law, though not Pentateuchally.

(92) With metal. It is not clear whether this refers to both wing and egg or to the latter only.

(93) Land animals and man (Gen. I, 24ff).

(94) To animals and men when dead, and to the latter under certain circumstances even when alive.

(95) Lit., 'in every place (case)'. Sc. however little its capacity may be.

(96) Even if one can only lean on it.

(97) As in the cases mentioned.

(98) If they only intended to turn the fruits mentioned into receptacles their intention is disregarded.

(99) By secretly inserting the metal into the beam the scales can be made to turn either in favour of the seller or in that of the buyer. Similarly with the strike, when the metal is inserted the strike levels the measure much lower and benefits the seller. By removing the metal the strike exerts less pressure and the benefit is the buyer's.

(100) In which the carrier stealthily throws the money he received for his labour and claims a second payment.

(101) From which he drinks or into which he secretly pours any wine or oil he is able to steal.

(102) A device to evade customs duties.

(103) Cf. B.B. 89b: 'Should I speak of them, knaves might learn them; and should I not speak, the knaves might say, "the scholars are unacquainted with our practice", and will deceive us still more'.

(104) In which chippings of gold are collected.

(105) Whose function is not the collection of the chippings of metal but the protection of the blacksmith from the falling sparks.

(106) Though the capacity of either is very little.

(107) Or 'wild cucumbers' or 'small bitter water melons'.

(108) As the tube of straw (cf. n. 4).

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 18

MISHNAH 1. A WOODEN CHEST,¹ BETH SHAMMAI RULED, IS MEASURED² ON THE INSIDE³ AND BETH HILLEL RULED: ON THE OUTSIDE.⁴ BOTH, HOWEVER, AGREE THAT THE THICKNESS OF THE LEGS AND THE THICKNESS OF THE RIM ARE NOT INCLUDED IN THE MEASUREMENT. R. JOSE STATED: BOTH AGREE THAT THE THICKNESS OF THE LEGS AND THE THICKNESS OF THE RIM ARE INCLUDED IN THE MEASUREMENT, BUT THE SPACE BETWEEN THEM⁵ IS NOT INCLUDED. R. SIMEON SHEZURI RULED: IF THE LEGS ARE ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH THE SPACE BETWEEN THEM⁵ IS NOT INCLUDED IN THE MEASUREMENT, OTHERWISE⁶ IT IS INCLUDED.

MISHNAH 2. ITS⁷ CARRIAGE,⁸ IF IT CAN BE SLIPPED OFF, IS NOT REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE,⁹ NOR IS IT INCLUDED IN ITS MEASUREMENT,¹⁰ NOR DOES IT AFFORD PROTECTION TOGETHER WITH IT IN THE TENT OF A CORPSE,¹¹ NOR MAY IT BE DRAWN ALONG ON THE SABBATH IF IT CONTAINED MONEY.¹² IF, HOWEVER, IT CANNOT BE SLIPPED OFF, IT IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE, IT IS INCLUDED IN ITS MEASUREMENT, IT AFFORDS PROTECTION TOGETHER WITH IT IN THE TENT OF A CORPSE, AND IT MAY BE DRAWN ALONG ON THE SABBATH EVEN IF IT CONTAINS MONEY. ITS¹³ ARCHED TOP, IF IT IS FIXED, IS A CONNECTIVE AND IS MEASURED WITH IT, BUT IF IT IS NOT FIXED IT IS NO CONNECTIVE AND IS NOT MEASURED WITH IT. HOW IS IT¹⁴ MEASURED? AS AN OX-HEAD.¹⁵ R. JUDAH RULED: IF IT¹³ CANNOT STAND BY ITSELF¹⁶ IT IS CLEAN.¹⁷

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE OF THE LEGS WAS MISSING FROM A CHEST, A BOX OR A CUPBOARD, EVEN THOUGH IT IS STILL CAPABLE OF HOLDING [OBJECTS],¹⁸ IT IS CLEAN, SINCE IT CANNOT¹⁹ HOLD THEM IN THE USUAL MANNER;²⁰ BUT R. JOSE RULED: IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE POLES OF A BED, ITS BASE, AND [ITS] WRAPPER²¹ ARE CLEAN.²² ONLY THE BED ITSELF AND ITS FRAME ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THE BED FRAMES OF THE SONS OF LEVI,²³ HOWEVER, ARE CLEAN.²⁴

MISHNAH 4. A BED FRAME THAT WAS PUT ON PROPS,²⁵ R. MEIR AND R. JUDAH RULE, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT R. JOSE AND R. SIMEON RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN. R. JOSE ARGUED: WHEREIN DOES THIS²⁶ DIFFER FROM THE BED FRAMES OF THE SONS OF LEVI WHICH ARE CLEAN?²⁷

MISHNAH 5. IF A BED THAT HAD CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS LOST A SHORT SIDE AND TWO LEGS IT STILL REMAINS UNCLEAN,²⁸ BUT IF A LONG SIDE AND TWO LEGS WERE LOST IT BECOMES CLEAN. R. NEHEMIA RULED: IT IS UNCLEAN. IF TWO PROPS AT OPPOSITE CORNERS WERE CUT OFF, OR IF TWO LEGS AT OPPOSITE CORNERS WERE CUT OFF,²⁹ OR IF THE BED³⁰ WAS REDUCED TO A LEVEL OF LESS THAN A HANDBREADTH,³¹ IT BECOMES CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. IF A BED HAD CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS AND A LONG SIDE OF IT WAS BROKEN AND THEN IT WAS REPAIRED, IT STILL RETAINS ITS MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS BUT IF THE SECOND SIDE WAS ALSO BROKEN,³² THOUGH IT WAS ALSO REPAIRED, IT BECOMES FREE FROM MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS BUT IS UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.³³ IF BEFORE ONE COULD MANAGE TO REPAIR THE FIRST SIDE THE SECOND ONE WAS BROKEN THE BED BECOMES CLEAN.

MISHNAH 7. IF A [BED] LEG THAT HAD CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS WAS JOINED TO A BED, ALL THE BED CONTRACTS MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS. IF IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY TAKEN OFF, IT RETAINS ITS MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS WHILE THE BED IS UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS. IF A BED LEG THAT WAS SUBJECT TO A SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS³⁴ WAS JOINED TO A BED, ALL THE BED CONTRACTS SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS. IF IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY TAKEN OFF IT REMAINS SUBJECT TO SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS WHILE THE BED IS ONLY SUBJECT TO

EVENING-UNCLEANNES.³⁵ IF A LEG THAT WAS SUBJECT TO EVENING UNCLEANNES WAS JOINED TO A BED, ALL THE BED CONTRACTS EVENING UNCLEANNES. IF IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY TAKEN OFF IT IS STILL SUBJECT TO EVENING UNCLEANNES WHILE THE BED BECOMES CLEAN.³⁶ THE SAME LAW APPLIES ALSO TO THE PRONG OF A MATTOCK.³⁷

MISHNAH 8. A PHYLACTERY³⁸ IS REGARDED AS CONSISTING OF FOUR VESSELS. IF THE FIRST COMPARTMENT WAS UNLOOSED,³⁹ AND THEN IT WAS MENDED IT RETAINS ITS CORPSE UNCLEANNES. SO IS IT ALSO THE CASE WITH THE SECOND AND THE THIRD.⁴⁰ IF THE FOURTH WAS UNLOOSED⁴¹ IT BE COMES FREE FROM CORPSE UNCLEANNES BUT IS STILL UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH CORPSE UNCLEANNES.⁴² IF SUBSEQUENTLY THE FIRST COMPARTMENT WAS AGAIN UNLOOSED AND MENDED IT REMAINS UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT.⁴³ SO ALSO IN THE CASE OF THE SECOND COMPARTMENT.⁴⁴ IF THE THIRD COMPARTMENT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY UNLOOSED AND MENDED IT BECOMES CLEAN, SINCE THE FOURTH IS UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT,⁴⁵ AND WHAT IS UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT CANNOT CONVEY UNCLEANNES BY CONTACT.

MISHNAH 9. A BED THE HALF OF WHICH IS STOLEN OR LOST, OR ONE WHICH BROTHERS OR JOINT OWNERS DIVIDED BETWEEN THEMSELVES, BECOMES CLEAN.⁴⁶ IF IT WAS RESTORED⁴⁷ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES HENCEFORTH.⁴⁸ A BED MAY CONTRACT UNCLEANNES AND BE RENDERED CLEAN⁴⁹ ONLY WHEN ALL ITS PARTS ARE BOUND TOGETHER; SO R. ELIEZER. BUT THE SAGES RULED: IT CAN CONTRACT UNCLEANNES AND BE RENDERED CLEAN⁴⁹ EVEN IN SINGLE PARTS.⁵⁰

- (1) Which (cf. supra XV, 1) is insusceptible to uncleanness if it has a capacity of no less than forty se'ah.
- (2) To ascertain its capacity.
- (3) Since the walls cannot be included in the capacity of the chest.
- (4) The main reason for the uncleanness being the heavy weight of the chest, the walls also, which add to its weight may be included.
- (5) Between the legs and between the bottom of the chest and the ground.
- (6) Lit., 'and if not', if the height of the legs was less than a handbreadth.
- (7) The chest's (cf. prev. Mishnah ab init.).
- (8) Lit., 'machine', a contrivance under a chest to facilitate movement from place to place.
- (9) And the chest and the carriage are independently susceptible or insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (10) To supplement the prescribed minimum of forty se'ah.
- (11) Only vessels within the chest (provided its capacity is forty se'ah and its cover is tightly fitting) are protected from the uncleanness, but not those within the carriage since the latter is itself susceptible to uncleanness.
- (12) Being an independent object it becomes a base to the money and, therefore, forbidden like it to be moved about on the Sabbath (cf. Shab. XXI, 2).
- (13) The chest's (cf. prev. Mishnah ab init.).
- (14) The arched top that was fixed.
- (15) Sc. straight lines are drawn from the highest point in the arched cover to the vertical sides of the chest and all the space contained between the arch of the cover and the lines is included in the measurement.
- (16) But requires support.
- (17) Even if its capacity is less than forty se'ah.
- (18) Sc. no hole was made in the vessel.
- (19) Var. lec., 'and that which cannot . . . manner R. Jose . . . unclean'.
- (20) It being necessary to prop it up.
- (21) Or 'its covering', denoting any bed decorations (Maim.).
- (22) Even if they are made of metal.
- (23) Who take them on their journey when going to Jerusalem to serve their turn in the Temple.

- (24) Because they are easily detachable and quite independent of the bed.
- (25) Lit., 'tongues', sc. it did not rest on the bed legs themselves.
- (26) Which is easily detachable.
- (27) V. p. 91, n. 12.
- (28) Since it is still useable as a couch.
- (29) Var lec., 'to the extent of a handbreadth square.'
- (30) By cutting away parts of each of its four legs.
- (31) From the ground.
- (32) Even if this happened after the first one was already repaired.
- (33) Since it came in contact with the bed that was suffering midras uncleanness.
- (34) Having been in contact with a vessel that contracted corpse uncleanness (cf. Oh. I, 2).
- (35) Sc. it is unclean until sunset only.
- (36) Since the leg (which was subject only to a derived uncleanness) cannot impart any uncleanness to the bed which, as a 'vessel', can contract uncleanness from a 'father of uncleanness' only.
- (37) Which stand respectively in the same relationship as the leg and the bed.
- (38) Sc. Tefillah, sing. of tefillin (v. Glos.). Of the head, which consists of four compartments.
- (39) After the phylactery had contracted corpse uncleanness.
- (40) If either was unloosed and then mended it retains its corpse uncleanness.
- (41) So that none of the original compartments remained intact.
- (42) Since it came in contact with the other compartments which are subject to corpse uncleanness which is a 'father of uncleanness'.
- (43) With the second which is still a 'father of uncleanness'.
- (44) Since it came in contact with the third which, like the second, was still a 'father of uncleanness' (cf. prev. n.).
- (45) With the third which was a 'father of uncleanness' before it was unloosed and mended the second time.
- (46) Since the two parts are not likely ever to be joined again.
- (47) The two parts again forming one whole.
- (48) But free from all former uncleanness.
- (49) By immersion in a ritual bath and/or by ritual sprinkling.
- (50) Provided it was intended to bind them together again.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 19

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN DISMANTLED A BED IN ORDER THAT HE MIGHT IMMERSE IT,¹ ANY ONE WHO TOUCHES THE ROPES² REMAINS CLEAN.³ WHEN⁴ DOES THE ROPE⁵ BEGIN TO CONSTITUTE A CONNECTIVE WITH THE BED? AS SOON AS THREE ROWS OF MESHES OF IT HAVE BEEN KNOTTED.⁶ AND [IF AN OTHER ROPE WAS TIED TO THIS ONE] ANY PERSON WHO TOUCHES IT FROM THE KNOT INWARDS BECOMES UNCLEAN; BUT IF FROM THE KNOT OUTWARDS HE REMAINS CLEAN. AS TO THE LOOSE ENDS OF THE KNOT, ANY ONE THAT TOUCHES THAT PART WHICH IS NEEDED FOR IT⁷ BECOMES UNCLEAN. AND HOW MUCH IS NEEDED FOR IT?⁷ R. JUDAH STATED: THREE FINGERBREADTHS.

MISHNAH 2. A ROPE THAT HANGS OVER FROM [THE NETTING OF] A BED⁸ IS CLEAN⁹ IF IT IS SHORTER THAN FIVE HANDBREADTHS, BUT UNCLEAN IF IT IS FROM FIVE TO TEN HANDBREADTHS LONG, WHILE THAT PART WHICH IS OVER THE TEN HAND BREADTHS IS CLEAN; FOR IT IS ONLY WITH THE FORMER¹⁰ THAT PASCHAL LAMBS WERE TIED¹¹ AND BEDS SUSPENDED.¹²

MISHNAH 3. IF A PART OF A BED-GIRTH HANGS OVER, IT IS UNCLEAN¹³ WHATEVER ITS LENGTH;¹⁴ SO R. MEIR. R. JOSE RULED: ONLY THAT WHICH IS SHORTER THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS.¹⁵ THE REMNANT OF A BED-GIRTH¹⁶ REMAINS UNCLEAN IF THE LENGTH IS NO LESS THAN SEVEN HANDBREADTHS FROM WHICH AN ASS'S

GIRTH CAN BE MADE.¹⁷

MISHNAH 4. IF A ZAB WAS CARRIED ON A BED AND ON ITS GIRTH,¹⁸ THE LATTER¹⁹ CAUSES AN UNCLEANNESS OF TWO GRADES²⁰ AND AN UNFITNESS²¹ OF ONE GRADE;²² SO R. MEIR. R. JOSE RULED: IF A ZAB WAS CARRIED ON A BED AND ON ITS GIRTH¹⁸ THE PART THAT IS SHORTER THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS CAUSES AN UNCLEANNESS OF TWO GRADES¹⁸ AND AN UNFITNESS²¹ OF ONE GRADE,²² BUT THAT WHICH IS OVER THE TEN HANDBREADTHS²³ CAUSES ONLY AN UNCLEANNESS OF ONE GRADE²⁴ AND AN UNFITNESS²¹ OF ONE GRADE.²² IF HE WAS CARRIED ON THE BED-GIRTH, [ON THE OVERHANGING PART] THAT WAS SHORTER THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS, IT BECOMES UNCLEAN,²⁵ BUT IF ON THE PART THAT WAS LONGER THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS IT REMAINS CLEAN.²⁶

MISHNAH 5. IF AROUND A BED THAT HAD CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS ONE WRAPPED A BED-GIRTH, THE WHOLE BECOMES SUBJECT TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; IF IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY REMOVED, THE BED REMAINS SUBJECT TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS BUT THE BED-GIRTH IS UNCLEAN ONLY FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS. IF THE BED WAS SUBJECT TO A SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS AND A BED-GIRTH WAS SUBSEQUENTLY WRAPPED AROUND IT, THE WHOLE BECOMES SUBJECT TO A SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS; IF IT WAS REMOVED, THE BED REMAINS SUBJECT TO A SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS BUT THE BED-GIRTH IS SUBJECT ONLY TO EVENING UNCLEANNESS. IF THE BED WAS SUBJECT TO EVENING UNCLEANNESS AND AROUND IT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY WRAPPED A BED-GIRTH, THE WHOLE BECOMES SUBJECT TO EVENING UNCLEANNESS; IF IT WAS REMOVED, THE BED REMAINS SUBJECT TO EVENING UNCLEANNESS BUT THE BED-GIRTH BECOMES CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. IF A BED-GIRTH WAS WRAPPED AROUND A BED AND A CORPSE TOUCHED THEM, THEY ARE SUBJECT TO A SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS;²⁷ IF THEY ARE TAKEN APART THEY²⁸ ARE STILL SUBJECT TO A SEVEN-DAY UNCLEANNESS. IF A [DEAD] CREEPING THING TOUCHED THEM THEY ARE SUBJECT TO AN EVENING UNCLEANNESS; IF THEY ARE TAKEN APART THEY²⁸ ARE STILL SUBJECT TO EVENING UNCLEANNESS. IF FROM A BED²⁹ THE TWO LONGER SIDES WERE REMOVED³⁰ AND TWO NEW ONES WERE PREPARED FOR IT BUT THE ORIGINAL SOCKETS WERE NOT CHANGED, IF THE NEW SIDES WERE BROKEN THE BED²⁹ RETAINS ITS UNCLEANNESS,³¹ BUT IF THE OLD ONES WERE BROKEN IT BECOMES CLEAN, SINCE³² ALL DEPENDS ON THE OLD ONES.³³

MISHNAH 7. A BOX WHOSE OPENING IS AT THE TOP IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS.³⁴ IF IT WAS DAMAGED ABOVE IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. IF IT WAS DAMAGED BELOW, IT³⁵ BECOMES CLEAN. THE COMPARTMENTS³⁶ WITHIN IT REMAIN UNCLEAN AND ARE NOT REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE WITH IT.³⁷

MISHNAH 8. IF A SHEPHERD'S BAG³⁸ WAS DAMAGED, THE POCKET WITHIN IT RETAINS ITS UNCLEANNESS AND IS NOT REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE WITH IT. IF THE TESTICLE BAGS IN A SKIN³⁹ SERVE ALSO⁴⁰ AS RECEPTACLES⁴¹ AND THEY WERE DAMAGED, THEY BECOME CLEAN,⁴² SINCE THEY⁴³ WILL NO LONGER SERVE THEIR ORIGINAL PURPOSE.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 9. A BOX WHOSE OPENING IS AT THE SIDE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO BOTH MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS⁴⁵ AND CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. R. JOSE STATED: WHEN DOES

THIS APPLY? WHEN IT IS LESS THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS IN HEIGHT⁴⁶ OR WHEN IT HAS NOT A RIM ONE HANDBREADTH DEEP.⁴⁵ IF IT WAS DAMAGED ABOVE IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁷ IF IT WAS DAMAGED BELOW, R. MEIR RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁴⁸ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN BECAUSE WHERE THE PRIMARY FUNCTION⁴⁹ CEASES⁵⁰ THE SECONDARY ONE⁵¹ ALSO CEASES.

MISHNAH 10. A DUNG-BASKET THAT WAS SO DAMAGED⁵² THAT IT WILL NOT HOLD POMEGRANATES, R. MEIR RULES, IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁵³ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN BECAUSE WHERE THE PRIMARY FUNCTION⁵⁴ CEASES THE SECONDARY ONE⁵⁵ ALSO CEASES.

- (1) In agreement with the Sages in the previous Mishnah.
 - (2) That make up the netting in the bed frame.
 - (3) Even though the bed was a 'father of uncleanness' from which a man contracts an uncleanness of the first grade. The ropes do not constitute a part of the bed after the latter had been dismantled.
 - (4) In the case of a new bed.
 - (5) Cf. n. 2.
 - (6) Though the rope is much longer all of it is unclean since one part contracts uncleanness from the other.
 - (7) The knot, sc. the part without which the knot would be undone.
 - (8) After the required netting in the frame had been duly completed.
 - (9) Even when the bed is unclean.
 - (10) Lit., 'for with it', with the part of the rope that was from five to ten handbreadths long.
 - (11) To the bed's legs. A ceremonial that preceded the offering of the lamb.
 - (12) When, for instance, they were to be immersed in a ritual bath.
 - (13) If the bed was unclean.
 - (14) It being invariably regarded as a connective with the bed.
 - (15) That which is longer cannot be regarded as a connective and, therefore, remains clean.
 - (16) That was worn away.
 - (17) A lesser length, which is entirely useless, becomes clean.
 - (18) Sc. while the girth was around the bed, though the girth did not come in direct contact with the zab.
 - (19) Which, like the bed, becomes a 'father of uncleanness'.
 - (20) Sc. the object that touches it contracts an uncleanness of the first grade, and any foodstuffs that touch this object contract one of the second grade.
 - (21) In the case of terumah. The term 'unfit' in connection with uncleanness denotes that the uncleanness contracted cannot be carried to a further remove.
 - (22) The third. Any terumah that comes in contact with a second grade of uncleanness becomes 'unfit' as having contracted a third grade of uncleanness.
 - (23) Which cannot be treated as a connective with the bed and which, as being in contact with a 'father of uncleanness', is subject only to a first grade of uncleanness.
 - (24) Sc. a second grade.
 - (25) Because it is regarded as part of the bed.
 - (26) Cf. prev. n. According to another reading the uncleanness and cleanness apply to the bed.
 - (27) Even according to R. Jose. Only in regard to midras uncleanness does he dispute the connection of the girth with the bed.
 - (28) Since neither can in consequence be regarded as broken.
 - (29) That was unclean.
 - (30) But they were still useable and capable of restoration to the bed.
 - (31) Since the old sides can still be restored (cf. prev. n.).
 - (32) The new sides having changed the bed's entire character from old to new.
 - (33) Cf. prev. two notes.
 - (34) Though, owing to its unsuitability as a seat, it is free from midras uncleanness.

- (35) As a broken vessel.
- (36) Or 'drawers', that were undamaged.
- (37) Cf. supra II, 7.
- (38) V. p. 97, n. 3.
- (39) E.g. of a sheep.
- (40) Lit., 'with it', with the skin.
- (41) Sc. they also are filled when the liquid is poured into the skin.
- (42) Though independently of the skin they can still hold some liquid.
- (43) Not being capable of receiving the liquid from the skin.
- (44) Lit., 'they do not receive in their usual way'.
- (45) Since one can sit on it without interfering with its normal uses.
- (46) Because then one can conveniently sit on it.
- (47) But not to that of midras, since it can no longer be used as a seat.
- (48) Midras uncleanness; since it is still possible to sit on it.
- (49) To serve as a receptacle.
- (50) On account of the damage below.
- (51) That of being used as a seat.
- (52) After it had contracted uncleanness.
- (53) Midras uncleanness; since it is still possible to sit on it.
- (54) V. p. 98, n. 16.
- (55) V. p. 98, n. 18.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 20

MISHNAH 1. BOLSTERS, PILLOWS, SACKS AND PACKING CASES THAT WERE DAMAGED¹ ARE STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.² A FODDER-BAG THAT CAN HOLD FOUR KAB, A SHEPHERD'S BAG THAT CAN HOLD FIVE KAB, A TRAVELLING BAG THAT CAN HOLD A SE'AH, A SKIN THAT CAN HOLD SEVEN KAB (R. JUDAH RULED: ALSO A SPICE-BAG AND A FOOD WALLET THAT CAN HOLD THE SMALLEST QUANTITY) ARE STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.³ IF ANY OF THEM, HOWEVER, WAS DAMAGED IT BECOMES CLEAN, SINCE WHERE THE PRIMARY FUNCTION⁴ CEASES⁵ THE SECONDARY FUNCTION⁶ ALSO CEASES.

MISHNAH 2. A BAGPIPE IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS⁷ A TROUGH FOR MIXING MORTAR, BETH SHAMMAI RULES, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS⁸ , AND BETH HILLEL RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS ONLY.⁹ IF A TROUGH OF A CAPACITY FROM TWO LOG TO NINE KAB IS SPLIT, IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.¹⁰ IF IT WAS LEFT IN THE RAIN AND IT SWELLED¹¹ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS ALONE.¹² [IF IT WAS LEFT OUT] DURING THE EAST WIND AND IT SPLIT, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.¹³ IN THIS RESPECT THE LAW IS MORE RESTRICTED IN THE CASE OF REMNANTS OF WOODEN VESSELS THAN IN [THAT OF SUCH VESSELS] IN THEIR ORIGINAL CONDITION.¹⁴ IT IS ALSO MORE RESTRICTED IN REGARD TO THE REMNANTS OF WICKER VESSELS THAN [TO SUCH VESSELS] AS ARE IN THEIR ORIGINAL CONDITION, FOR WHEN THEY ARE IN THEIR ORIGINAL CONDITION THEY ARE INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS UNTIL THEIR RIM IS FINISHED, BUT AFTER THEIR RIM HAS BEEN FINISHED, EVEN THOUGH THEIR EDGES FELL AWAY LEAVING ONLY THE SLIGHTEST TRACE OF THEM, THEY ARE UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 3. IF A STICK WAS USED¹⁵ AS A HAFT FOR A HATCHET, IT¹⁶ IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE¹⁷ FOR UNCLEANNESS AT THE TIME OF USE. A YARN WINDER IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE¹⁸ FOR UNCLEANNESS AT THE TIME OF ITS USE. IF IT

WAS FIXED TO A POLE IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹⁹ BUT THE LATTER CANNOT BE REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE WITH IT. IF THE POLE ITSELF WAS²⁰ CONVERTED INTO A YARN WINDER, ONLY THAT PART²¹ WHICH IS NEEDED FOR USE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A SEAT THAT WAS FIXED TO THE POLE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THE LATTER IS NOT REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE WITH IT. IF THE POLE WAS TURNED INTO A SEAT, ONLY THE PLACE OF THE SEAT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A SEAT THAT WAS FIXED TO THE BEAM OF AN OLIVE-PRESS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THE LATTER IS NOT CONNECTIVE WITH IT. IF THE END OF A BEAM WAS TURNED INTO A SEAT IT REMAINS CLEAN, BECAUSE PEOPLE WOULD TELL HIM,²² 'GET UP AND LET US DO OUR WORK'.²³

MISHNAH 4. IF A LARGE TROUGH WAS SO DAMAGED THAT IT COULD NO LONGER HOLD POMEGRANATES AND IT WAS ADAPTED AS A SEAT, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT REMAINS CLEAN UNLESS ITS ROUGH PARTS HAVE BEEN SMOOTHED.²⁴ IF IT WAS TURNED INTO A CRIB FOR CATTLE, EVEN IF IT WAS FIXED TO A WALL, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁵

MISHNAH 5. A BLOCK²⁶ THAT WAS FIXED TO A COURSE OF A WALL, WHETHER IT WAS ONLY FIXED AND NOT BUILT UPON OR BUILT UPON AND NOT FIXED, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁷ IF IT WAS FIXED AND ALSO BUILT UPON, IT²⁸ IS CLEAN.²⁹ MATTING THAT WAS SPREAD OVER THE ROOF-BEAMS,³⁰ WHETHER IT WAS FIXED AND NO PLASTERWORK WAS LAID OVER IT OR WHETHER PLASTERWORK WAS LAID OVER IT AND IT WAS NOT FIXED, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.³¹ IF IT WAS FIXED AND PLASTERWORK WAS LAID OVER IT, IT IS CLEAN.²⁹ A DISH THAT WAS FIXED TO A CHEST, BOX OR CUPBOARD IN SUCH A MANNER AS TO HOLD ITS CONTENTS IN THE USUAL WAY³² IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,³¹ BUT IF IT WAS IN A MANNER THAT IT CANNOT HOLD IT IN THE USUAL WAY³³ IT IS CLEAN.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. IF A SHEET THAT WAS SUSCEPTIBLE TO THE UNCLEANNESS OF MIDRAS WAS MADE INTO A CURTAIN,³⁴ IT BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS BUT³⁵ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. WHEN DOES IT BECOME INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS?³⁶ BETH SHAMMAI RULED: WHEN IT HAS BEEN CUT UP.³⁷ BETH HILLEL RULED: WHEN THE LOOPS HAVE BEEN TIED TO IT. R. AKIBA RULED: WHEN IT HAS BEEN FIXED.³⁸

MISHNAH 7. A MAT³⁹ PROVIDED WITH REEDS THAT STRETCHED LENGTHWISE IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS;⁴⁰ BUT THE SAGES RULE: ONLY IF THEY LAY IN THE SHAPE OF [THE GREEK LETTER] CHI.⁴¹ IF THEY WERE LAID ALONG ITS WIDTH AND THERE WAS A DISTANCE OF LESS THAN FOUR HANDBREADTHS⁴² BETWEEN ANY TWO REEDS, IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁰ IF IT WAS DIVIDED ALONG ITS WIDTH, R. JUDAH RULES THAT IS CLEAN.⁴³ SO ALSO, WHERE THE END KNOTS⁴⁴ ARE UNTIED, IT IS CLEAN.⁴³ IF IT WAS DIVIDED ALONG ITS LENGTH⁴⁵ BUT THREE END-KNOTS REMAINED INTACT ACROSS A STRETCH OF SIX HANDBREADTHS,⁴⁶ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. WHEN DOES A MAT BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS? WHEN ITS ROUGH ENDS ARE TRIMMED, THIS BEING THE COMPLETION OF ITS MANUFACTURE.

(1) So that they can no longer be used as receptacles.

(2) Because they can still be used as seats which was one of their original functions.

(3) Since they can be used as seats without interfering in any way with their functions as receptacles.

- (4) To serve as receptacles.
- (5) On account of the damage.
- (6) Their use as seats.
- (7) Even if one sat or lay on it; since it is not intended for such use.
- (8) Since labourers sometimes sit on it.
- (9) It is free from midras since most people would not sit on such a muddy trough.
- (10) If, however, its capacity was smaller it is exempt.
- (11) So that the split was closed up and the trough was again suitable for its original use.
- (12) It is exempt from midras since, owing to its suitability for its original use, one would not be allowed to sit on it.
- (13) Because it is no longer used for its original purpose and might well be used as a seat.
- (14) The former are free from midras while the latter are susceptible to it.
- (15) Occasionally.
- (16) Though it is a flat wooden vessel which elsewhere is insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (17) With the hatchet.
- (18) With the metal cross-pieces which are temporarily attached to it.
- (19) Even when not in use, since in that case the metal cross-pieces remain permanently fixed.
- (20) By fixing the metal ends directly on it.
- (21) Of the pole.
- (22) Who would sit on it.
- (23) For which a beam is intended.
- (24) Sc. the adaptation was accomplished by a specific act and not by mere intention.
- (25) Of a corpse or dead creeping thing, like a movable vessel. Only a vessel that was originally intended to be fixed to the ground (even before it was fixed) and one that is used only when fixed to the ground is insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (26) Of wood or any other material that is suitable for the making of a seat.
- (27) Of midras, if a zab sat even only on the structure above the block; because it can easily revert to its former use.
- (28) As a part of the wall.
- (29) As any 'vessel' that is permanently fixed to a building and is regarded as a part of the ground.
- (30) Of a top floor.
- (31) Cf. supra n. 6 mut. mut.
- (32) Sc. with its bottom downwards.
- (33) With its bottom upwards.
- (34) Which is not used as a seat.
- (35) Since it might still be used as a wrapper and must in consequence be regarded as a 'vessel'.
- (36) Of midras.
- (37) To the size required for the curtain; var. lec., 'sewn up', 'joined'.
- (38) In its position as a curtain.
- (39) Which is sometimes strengthened by the insertion of reeds across its width, at distances of four handbreadths from each other.
- (40) Of midras; because reeds in the position mentioned render the mat unsuitable for lying upon.
- (41) Sc. crosswise. If they only stretch lengthwise one can still use the mat by lying between the reeds, and it is, therefore, susceptible to uncleanness.
- (42) Cf. n. 7.
- (43) Since it would no longer be used as a mat. It would rather be discarded.
- (44) Which keep the plaiting together.
- (45) So that the reeds running along its width were broken.
- (46) The minimum size of a mat.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 21

MISHNAH 1. A MAN WHO TOUCHES THE UPPER BEAM,¹ THE LOWER BEAM,¹ THE HEDDLES, THE SLEY, THE THREAD THAT IS DRAWN² OVER PURPLE MATERIAL,³ OR A SPOOL WHICH IS NOT TO BE SHOT BACK,⁴ REMAINS CLEAN.⁵ IF HE TOUCHES THE WOOF, THE STANDING WARP,⁶ THE DOUBLE THREAD THAT IS DRAWN OVER PURPLE MATERIAL⁷ OR A SPOOL WHICH IS TO BE SHOT BACK,⁴ HE BECOMES UNCLEAN.⁸ IF A MAN TOUCHES THE WOOL THAT IS ON THE DISTAFF, OR ON THE SPOOL, HE REMAINS CLEAN. IF HE TOUCHES THE SPINNER BEFORE IT WAS LAID BARE⁹ HE BECOMES UNCLEAN, BUT IF HE TOUCHES IT AFTER IT WAS LAID BARE¹⁰ HE REMAINS CLEAN.

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN TOUCHED THE YOKE,¹¹ THE CROSSBAR, THE COLLAR-PIECE, OR THE THICK ROPES,¹² EVEN AT THE TIME THEY ARE USED, HE REMAINS CLEAN.¹³ IF HE TOUCHED THE TAIL PIECE, KNEE OR HANDLE,¹² HE BECOMES UNCLEAN. IF HE TOUCHED THE METAL RINGS,¹² THE GUIDES,¹² OR THE FLANKS,¹² HE BECOMES UNCLEAN. R. JUDAH RULES THAT HE REMAINS CLEAN IF HE TOUCHED THE GUIDES, SINCE THEY ONLY SERVE TO INCREASE THE SOIL.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN TOUCHED THE HANDLE OF A SAW¹⁵ AT EITHER END¹⁶ HE BECOMES UNCLEAN;¹⁷ BUT IF HE TOUCHED ITS STRING,¹⁸ CORD,¹⁸ CROSS-PIECE OR SIDE-PIECES, A CARPENTER'S PRESS,¹⁹ OR THE BOW-HANDLE OF A BOW-DRILL,²⁰ HE REMAINS CLEAN.²¹ R. JUDAH RULED: ALSO HE WHO TOUCHES THE FRAME OF A LARGE SAW¹⁵ REMAINS CLEAN. IF A MAN TOUCHED THE BOW-STRING²² OR THE BOW, EVEN THOUGH IT WAS STRETCHED, HE REMAINS CLEAN.²³ A MOLE-TRAP IS CLEAN.²⁴ R. JUDAH RULED: WHILE IT IS SET THE SEPARATE PARTS ARE [REGARDED AS] CONNECTED.

(1) Of a loom in which a piece of material that was partially woven had contracted corpse uncleanness.

(2) Temporarily.

(3) For its protection from dirt.

(4) In the web on the loom.

(5) Because none of the objects mentioned can be regarded as a connective with the material and, therefore, cannot contract its uncleanness.

(6) Before it was woven.

(7) And which is to be woven into the material.

(8) Since all the objects enumerated are connectives with the material and, therefore, contract uncleanness from it.

(9) When it is regarded as a part of the spindle and subject to its uncleanness.

(10) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

(11) Of the wagon.

(12) Of a plough.

(13) Even if the ploughshare is unclean; because the objects enumerated are not regarded as connections with it.

(14) And are not concerned with the main process of ploughing. Var. lec., 'to break up the soil'.

(15) Whose blade was unclean.

(16) Of the saw.

(17) Since the handle at either end is regarded as a part of the instrument and subject to its uncleanness.

(18) Which joins the two handles and strengthens the saw.

(19) Whose metal part is unclean.

(20) The bow-shaped handle of a borer.

(21) Because the parts enumerated are not regarded as connectives.

(22) Of a bow.

(23) Because these are not regarded as connectives of the arrow and are not affected by its uncleanness.

(24) The wooden part remains clean even if the metal part was unclean.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 22

MISHNAH 1. IF A TABLE¹ OR A SIDE-BOARD² WAS DAMAGED OR COVERED WITH MARBLE³ BUT ROOM⁴ WAS LEFT ON IT WHERE CUPS COULD BE SET, IT REMAINS UNCLEAR. R. JUDAH RULED: THERE MUST BE ROOM ENOUGH⁵ FOR PIECES OF FOOD.⁶

MISHNAH 2. A TABLE⁷ ONE OF WHOSE LEGS WAS LOST BECOMES CLEAN.⁸ IF A SECOND LEG WAS LOST IT IS STILL CLEAN. BUT IF A THIRD WAS LOST⁹ IT BECOMES UNCLEAR WHERE THE OWNER HAS THE INTENTION OF USING IT.¹⁰ R. JOSE RULED: NO INTENTION IS NECESSARY.¹¹ THE SAME LAW APPLIES ALSO TO THE SIDE-BOARD.¹²

MISHNAH 3. A BENCH¹³ ONE OF WHOSE LEGS WAS LOST BECOMES CLEAN.¹⁴ IF ITS SECOND LEG ALSO WAS LOST IT¹⁵ IS STILL CLEAN. IF, HOWEVER, IT¹⁵ WAS ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH¹⁶ IT REMAINS UNCLEAR. A FOOTSTOOL¹⁷ ONE OF WHOSE LEGS WAS LOST REMAINS UNCLEAR;¹⁸ AND THE SAME LAW APPLIES TO THE STOOL IN FRONT OF A CATHEDRA.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. IF A BRIDE'S STOOL LOST ITS SEATBOARDS,²⁰ BETH SHAMMAI RULE THAT IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,²¹ AND BETH HILLEL RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN.²² SHAMMAI RULED: EVEN THE FRAME OF THE STOOL²³ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A STOOL WAS FIXED TO A BAKING-TROUGH,²⁴ BETH SHAMMAI RULE THAT IT²⁵ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁶ AND BETH HILLEL RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN.²⁷ SHAMMAI RULED: EVEN ONE²⁸ MADE OUT OF IT²⁹ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁶

MISHNAH 5. IF THE SEAT BOARDS³⁰ OF A STOOL DID NOT PROJECT³¹ AND THEY WERE REMOVED, IT³² IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, FOR IT IS USUAL³³ TO TURN IT ON ITS SIDE AND TO SIT ON IT.

MISHNAH 6. IF THE MIDDLE SEAT BOARD OF A STOOL WAS LOST BUT THE OUTER ONES³⁴ REMAINED IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF THE OUTER ONES³⁴ WERE LOST AND THE MIDDLE SEAT BOARD REMAINED IT IS ALSO SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. R. SIMEON RULED: ONLY IF IT³⁵ WAS A HANDBREADTH WIDE.³⁶

MISHNAH 7. IF THE TWO ADJACENT SEAT BOARDS OF A STOOL WERE LOST, R. AKIBA RULED, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN. SAID R. JUDAH: ALSO IF THE SEAT BOARDS OF A BRIDE'S STOOL WERE LOST,³⁷ THOUGH THE RECEPTACLE UNDER REMAINED,³⁸ IT IS CLEAN, SINCE WHERE THE PRIMARY FUNCTION HAS CEASED³⁷ THE SECONDARY ONE³⁹ ALSO CEASES.

MISHNAH 8. A CHEST⁴⁰ WHOSE TOP PART⁴¹ WAS LOST IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS BOTTOM; IF ITS BOTTOM WAS LOST IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS TOP PART.⁴² IF BOTH THE TOP PART AND THE BOTTOM WERE LOST, R. JUDAH RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS SIDES,⁴³ AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN. A STONECUTTER'S SEAT⁴⁴ IS SUBJECT TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 9. IF A [WOODEN] BLOCK WAS PAINTED RED OR SAFFRON, OR WAS POLISHED, R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁴⁶ BUT THE

SAGES⁴⁷ RULE THAT IT REMAINS CLEAN UNLESS IT WAS HOLLOWED OUT.⁴⁸ A SMALL BASKET OR A BIG ONE THAT WAS FILLED WITH STRAW OR FLOCKING REMAINS CLEAN⁴⁹ IF IT WAS PREPARED AS A SEAT,⁵⁰ BUT IF IT WAS PLAITED OVER WITH REED-GRASS OR WITH A CORD⁵¹ IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁵²

MISHNAH 10. A NIGHT STOOL⁵³ IS SUBJECT TO BOTH MIDRAS AND CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. IF THE LEATHER SEAT WAS SUNDERED,⁵⁴ THE LEATHER⁵⁵ IS SUBJECT TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS AND THE IRON⁵⁶ IS SUBJECT ONLY TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. A TRIPOD STOOL WHOSE COVER IS OF LEATHER IS SUBJECT TO BOTH MIDRAS AND CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. IF IT WAS TAKEN APART, THE LEATHER⁵⁵ IS SUBJECT TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS WHILE THE TRIPOD⁵⁷ IS ALTOGETHER CLEAN. A BATH-HOUSE BENCH⁵⁸ THAT HAS TWO WOODEN LEGS IS⁵⁹ SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁶⁰ IF ONE LEG WAS OF WOOD AND THE OTHER OF STONE IT⁶¹ IS CLEAN. IF BOARDS IN A BATH-HOUSE WERE JOINED TOGETHER,⁶² R. AKIBA RULES THAT THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO [MIDRAS] UNCLEANNESS,⁶³ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE CLEAN, SINCE THEY ARE MADE ONLY FOR THE WATER TO FLOW UNDER THEM.⁶⁴ A FUMIGATION-CAGE THAT CONTAINS A RECEPTACLE FOR GARMENTS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁶⁵ BUT ONE THAT IS MADE LIKE A BEE-HIVE⁶⁶ IS CLEAN.

- (1) That was unclean.
 - (2) Delphim, a three-legged side table on which food is placed.
 - (3) Which, as a stone vessel, should not be susceptible to uncleanness.
 - (4) Undamaged and uncovered with marble respectively.
 - (5) If the table or side-board is to remain unclean.
 - (6) Which are of direct service to man. It is not enough that there is room for cups alone which only serve objects that serve man.
 - (7) That was three-legged and unclean.
 - (8) Since it can no longer serve its original purpose.
 - (9) So that, having no legs at all, it can be used as a low table.
 - (10) In its present condition.
 - (11) The fact that it can be used (cf. supra n. 9) is sufficient to subject it to uncleanness.
 - (12) If all its legs were missing.
 - (13) That has two wide legs, one at each end of a board that is used as a seat and is unclean.
 - (14) Since the bench, being lop-sided, can no longer be used as a seat.
 - (15) The board (cf. n. 13).
 - (16) Either on account of its thickness, though it rests on the ground, or in account of the remnants of its legs which are one handbreadth high.
 - (17) Cf. supra n. 13 mut. mut.
 - (18) Since it can still be used for its original purpose.
 - (19) A chair with back.
 - (20) Lit., 'its coverings'.
 - (21) V. foll. n.
 - (22) Because, though it may still be used as a seat, it is not useable as a bride's stool.
 - (23) That never had a proper seat.
 - (24) Which is not susceptible to midras uncleanness since its main use is not for sitting.
 - (25) The stool.
 - (26) Because its identity is not merged in the trough.
 - (27) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.
 - (28) A stool.
 - (29) The troughs, sc. a stool that never had a separate existence.

- (30) These were three in number, v. next Mishnah.
- (31) Beyond its sides.
- (32) Sc. the stool.
- (33) Owing to the absence of the projections.
- (34) Sc. its sides.
- (35) The centre seat board.
- (36) If it was not so wide it is insusceptible to uncleanness.
- (37) So that it was no longer useable as a seat.
- (38) The receptacle under the seat boards of a bride's stool for the reception of things.
- (39) Its use as a receptacle.
- (40) Containing less than forty se'ah, which is consequently susceptible to uncleanness.
- (41) Its cover.
- (42) Which also forms a kind of receptacle.
- (43) On which one can sit.
- (44) A small block of wood on which he sits when engaged in his work.
- (45) As a proper seat.
- (46) Since it may be used as a seat.
- (47) Regarding it as a mere block of wood.
- (48) To provide it with a seat.
- (49) Sc. it is not susceptible to midras uncleanness.
- (50) Since most people do not use it as a seat his eccentric act must be disregarded.
- (51) To prevent the straw or the flocking from falling out.
- (52) Sc. to midras uncleanness, since it might well be used as a seat.
- (53) Having a square iron frame and a leather seat.
- (54) From the iron frame.
- (55) Which can still be used as a seat.
- (56) Which can be used for various purposes other than that of sitting.
- (57) Since it has no receptacle to be regarded as a vessel and since, on account of its smallness, it is useless as a seat.
- (58) Of stone.
- (59) On account of its wooden legs.
- (60) Of midras.
- (61) The bench.
- (62) Aliter: planed.
- (63) Because they are used for sitting on.
- (64) But not for sitting purposes.
- (65) Though its bottom is perforated with holes larger than the size of a pomegranate.
- (66) Without a bottom.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 23

MISHNAH 1. IF A BALL, A SHOE-LAST, AN AMULET OR TEFILLIN¹ WERE TORN,² HE THAT TOUCHES THEM BECOMES UNCLEAR,³ BUT HE THAT TOUCHES THEIR CONTENTS⁴ REMAINS CLEAN. IF A SADDLE WAS TORN,² HE THAT TOUCHES ITS CONTENTS⁵ BECOMES UNCLEAR, BECAUSE THE STITCHING JOINS THEM.⁶

MISHNAH 2. THE FOLLOWING ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS⁷ AS OBJECTS THAT ARE FIT FOR RIDING UPON:⁸ AN ASHKELON GIRTH, A MEDIAN MORTAR,⁹ A CAMEL'S PACK-SADDLE, AND A HORSE-CLOTH.¹⁰ R. JOSE RULED: A HORSE-CLOTH¹⁰ IS ALSO SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS⁷ AS A SEAT,¹¹ SINCE PEOPLE STAND ON IT¹² IN THE ARENA;¹³ BUT A SADDLE OF A FEMALE CAMEL IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. WHAT IS THE PRACTICAL DIFFERENCE BETWEEN [THE UNCLEANNESS AS AN OBJECT USED FOR] RIDING UPON AND [AS ONE USED FOR] SITTING UPON? IN THE CASE OF THE FORMER THE EFFECT OF CONTACT WITH IT¹⁵ IS DIFFERENT FROM THE EFFECT OF CARRYING IT,¹⁶ BUT IN THE CASE OF THE LATTER THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE EFFECT OF COMING IN CONTACT WITH IT OR CARRYING IT.¹⁷ THE PACK-FRAME OF AN ASS ON WHICH A ZAB HAS SAT REMAINS CLEAN;¹⁸ BUT IF THE SIZE OF THE SPACES¹⁹ HAS BEEN CHANGED²⁰ OR IF THEY HAVE BEEN BROKEN ONE INTO ANOTHER²⁰ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²¹

MISHNAH 4. THE BIER, THE MATTRESS AND THE PILLOW OF A CORPSE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO THE UNCLEANNESS OF MIDRAS.²² A BRIDE'S STOOL, A MIDWIFE'S TRAVAILING STOOL, AND A FULLER'S STOOL ON WHICH HE PILES²³ THE CLOTHES, R. JOSE RULED, CANNOT BE REGARDED AS A SEAT.²⁴

MISHNAH 5. A FISHING NET IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ON ACCOUNT OF ITS BAG.²⁵ NETS, SNARES, BIRD-TRAPS, SLINGS AND FISHERMEN'S²⁶ SKEINS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁷ A FISH-TRAP, A BIRD-BASKET AND A BIRD- CAGE ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.

- (1) All these are leather objects, filled either with some stuffing or (as in the case of the last two) with parchment rolls.
- (2) At the seams, after contracting corpse uncleanness.
- (3) Since only their seams were torn they are still useable as receptacles.
- (4) Which, not being joined to them, cannot be regarded as connectives.
- (5) Not only he who touches its leather case (cf. n. 3 mut. mut.).
- (6) The contents and the casing, to form one object.
- (7) Of midras.
- (8) Lit., 'riding object'.
- (9) Or 'saddle'.
- (10) Or 'saddle-cushion'.
- (11) But not as an object fit for riding upon.
- (12) Which in the case of zab is equivalent to sitting.
- (13) Campus.
- (14) As an object that is used for riding upon, the ruling being that of R. Jose. Aliter: As a seat, according to the first Tanna.
- (15) On the part of a clean person.
- (16) One who carries it causes, while still carrying it, the uncleanness of clothes and vessels while one who only comes in contact with it conveys uncleanness to foodstuffs alone.
- (17) Both convey uncleanness to clothes and vessels.
- (18) Since it is not usual for people to sit on it.
- (19) Lit., 'holes'.
- (20) To facilitate the sitting on it.
- (21) As a 'seat' because it may be regarded as a proper seat.
- (22) Since the mourning women sit on them while lamenting the dead.
- (23) Aliter: Folds and presses.
- (24) That is subject to midras uncleanness. These objects, being reserved for special uses, cannot properly serve as a zab's seat even if he did sit on them.
- (25) In its lower parts, which is closely woven and has the status of a garment.
- (26) Lit., 'makers of water locks (for fishing purposes)'.
- (27) Of a corpse or a dead creeping thing: not to that of midras.

MISHNAH 1. THREE¹ DIFFERENT LAWS² ARE APPLICABLE TO SHIELDS: THE BENT SHIELD³ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS;⁴ THE SHIELD WITH WHICH COMBATANTS PLAY IN THE ARENA IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS;⁵ AND THE TOY-SHIELD OF THE ARABS⁶ IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 2. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS ARE APPLICABLE TO WAGONS: ONE MADE LIKE A CATHEDRA⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS;⁴ ONE MADE LIKE A BED IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS,⁵ AND ONE FOR [THE TRANSPORT OF] STONES IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 3. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS ARE APPLICABLE TO BAKING-TROUGHS: IF A BAKING-TROUGH OF A CAPACITY FROM TWO LOG TO NINE KAB WAS SPLIT⁸ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; IF IT WAS WHOLE IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND IF IT HOLDS THE PRESCRIBED MEASURE⁹ IT IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 4. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO BOXES: A BOX WHOSE OPENING IS AT THE SIDES¹⁰ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; IF IT IS ON THE TOP IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS;¹¹ AND IF IT HOLDS THE PRESCRIBED MEASURE⁹ IT IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS ARE APPLICABLE TO LEATHER COVERS.¹² THAT OF BARBERS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS;¹³ THAT ON WHICH PEOPLE EAT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND THAT FOR [SPREADING¹⁴ OUT] OLIVES IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.¹⁵

MISHNAH 6. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS ARE APPLICABLE TO BASES: ONE WHICH LIES BEFORE A BED OR BEFORE A SCRIVENER¹⁶ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; ONE FOR A SIDE-BOARD IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND ONE FOR A CUPBOARD IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 7. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO WRITING TABLETS: THAT OF PAPYRUS¹⁷ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; THAT WHICH HAD A RECEPTACLE FOR WAX IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND THAT WHICH IS POLISHED IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 8. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO BEDS: ONE THAT IS USED FOR LYING UPON IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; ONE USED BY GLASS MAKERS¹⁸ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND ONE USED BY HARNESS MAKERS IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 9. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO REFUSE BASKETS: ONE FOR DUNG¹⁹ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; ONE FOR STRAW IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND A CAMEL'S ROPE BAG²⁰ IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 10. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO MATS: ONE USED FOR SITTING UPON IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; ONE USED BY DYERS²¹ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND ONE USED IN WINE-PRESSES IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 11 THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO WATER SKINS AND THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO SHEPHERDS WALLETS: THOSE THAT CAN HOLD THE PRESCRIBED QUANTITY²² ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; THOSE THAT CANNOT HOLD THE PRESCRIBED QUANTITY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND THOSE MADE OF FISH SKIN ARE FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.²³

MISHNAH 12. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO HIDES: THAT WHICH IS USED AS A RUG²⁴ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; THAT WHICH IS USED AS A WRAPPER FOR VESSELS²⁵ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND THAT WHICH IS INTENDED FOR STRAPS AND SANDALS IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.²⁶

MISHNAH 13. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO SHEETS: ONE USED FOR LYING UPON IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; ONE USED AS A CURTAIN IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND ONE USED AS A MURAL DECORATION²⁷ IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 14. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO NAPKINS: THAT FOR THE HANDS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS;²⁸ THAT FOR BOOKS²⁹ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS;³⁰ AND THAT WHICH IS USED AS A SHROUD AS WELL AS THAT USED FOR THE HARPS OF THE LEVITES IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 15. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO LEATHERN GLOVES: THOSE USED BY THE HUNTERS OF ANIMALS AND BIRDS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; THOSE USED BY LOCUST-CUTTERS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND THOSE USED BY FRUIT-PICKERS³¹ ARE FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 16. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO HEADNETS: A GIRL'S IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS; AN OLD WOMAN'S IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS; AND A HARLOT'S³² IS FREE FROM ALL UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 17. THREE DIFFERENT LAWS APPLY TO STORE-BASKETS: IF A WORN-OUT BASKET IS PATCHED ON TO A SOUND ONE,³³ ALL IS DETERMINED BY THE SOUND ONE;³⁴ IF A SMALL BASKET IS PATCHED ON TO A LARGE ONE³⁵ ALL IS DETERMINED BY THE LARGE ONE;³⁶ IF THEY ARE EQUAL ALL IS DETERMINED BY THE INNER ONE.³⁶ R. SIMEON RULED: IF THE CUP OF A BALANCE³⁷ WAS PATCHED ON TO THE BOTTOM OF A BOILER ON THE INSIDE, THE LATTER BECOMES UNCLEAR; BUT IF ON THE OUTSIDE IT REMAINS CLEAR. IF IT WAS PATCHED ON TO THE SIDE, WHETHER ON THE INSIDE OR THE OUTSIDE. THE LATTER REMAINS CLEAR.

(1) Lit., 'there are three shields'. The general principles underlying the laws throughout this chapter are the following: An object that is normally used for lying, sitting or leaning upon is susceptible to midras uncleanness. An earthenware is excluded since it cannot attain cleanness through immersion. A mat, though it cannot attain cleanness through immersion, is (by an inference from a Pentateuchal amplification) susceptible to midras uncleanness provided it had not been reduced to less than six by six handbreadths. An object that is not intended for lying upon is susceptible to corpse uncleanness unless it cannot be regarded as a proper vessel when it is free from all uncleanness.

(2) Cf. Bert.

(3) Which protects the warrior on three sides, and which in a war is used by him for lying upon.

(4) And much more so to corpse uncleanness.

(5) And much more so to that of a dead creeping thing and nebelah, but not to that of midras.

(6) Used for the entertainment of children.

- (7) A chair with back.
- (8) So that it can no longer be used as a baking trough.
- (9) Forty se'ah of liquid.
- (10) Thus being capable of use as a seat as well as for its normal use
- (11) V. p. 112, n. 5.
- (12) Or 'cases'.
- (13) Since they sit on it.
- (14) Or 'pressing'.
- (15) Because it is not a vessel used for objects that serve men.
- (16) Which is used as a seat.
- (17) Which is big and suitable for sitting upon.
- (18) For the placing of their wares.
- (19) V. 113, n. 9.
- (20) Which has big holes and is unsuitable either for sitting upon or for any other human use.
- (21) For wrapping up the articles that are to be dyed.
- (22) Supra XX, 1; and much more so if they can hold more.
- (23) Cf. supra XVII, 13.
- (24) To sit on.
- (25) Knives, for instance.
- (26) Since its manufacture is not yet completed. Finished straps and sandals, however, are susceptible to uncleanness.
- (27) Lit., 'of figures' or 'forms', one on which ornamental figures are painted which, being used to decorate a wall, is deemed to be a part of it.
- (28) Since it is also used sometimes as a rest for the head when lying down.
- (29) Used as a cover.
- (30) Because it is folded in the shape of a receptacle.
- (31) Aliter: Those that dry figs. Var. lec., those that gather thorns.
- (32) Lit. 'that goes out'.
- (33) To strengthen it.
- (34) If the latter is clean the combination is clean; and if it is unclean, the combination also becomes unclean.
- (35) Irrespective of whether both were worn out or sound.
- (36) V. p. 115, n. 8.
- (37) That was unclean.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 25

MISHNAH 1. ALL VESSELS ARE SUBJECT¹ TO DIFFERENT LAWS² IN REGARD TO THEIR OUTER AND INNER SIDES RESPECTIVELY,³ AS, FOR INSTANCE, CUSHIONS, BOLSTERS, SACKS AND PACKING-BAGS;⁴ SO R. JUDAH. R. MEIR RULED: ANY ARTICLE THAT HAS HANGERS⁵ IS SUBJECT TO DIFFERENT LAWS IN ITS OUTER AND INNER SIDES RESPECTIVELY,⁶ BUT ONE THAT HAS NO HANGERS⁷ IS NOT SUBJECT TO DIFFERENT LAWS IN REGARD TO OUTER AND INNER SIDES.⁸ A TABLE AND A SIDE-BOARD⁹ ARE SUBJECT TO DIFFERENT LAWS IN REGARD TO THEIR OUTER AND INNER SIDES RESPECTIVELY; SO R. JUDAH. R. MEIR RULED: THEY ARE NOT SUBJECT TO THE LENIENT LAW IN REGARD TO THEIR OUTER SIDES.⁵ THE SAME LAW ALSO APPLIES TO A RIMLESS TRAY.

MISHNAH 2. AN OX-GOAD¹⁰ IS SUBJECT¹ TO DIFFERENT LAWS² IN ITS OUTER AND INNER PARTS RESPECTIVELY,³ [THE FORMER BEING THAT SECTION OF THE SHAFT THAT LIES BETWEEN] SEVEN HANDBREADTHS FROM THE BROAD BLADE¹¹ AND FOUR HANDBREADTHS FROM THE POINT;¹¹ SO R. JUDAH. R. MEIR RULED: IT IS NOT [SUBJECT TO SUCH DISTINCTION],¹² THE FOUR AND THE SEVEN HANDBREADTHS HAVING BEEN MENTIONED ONLY IN REGARD TO ITS REMNANTS.¹³

MISHNAH 3. MEASURES OF WINE OR OIL, A SOUP-LADLE, A MUSTARD-STRAINER AND A WINE-FILTER ARE SUBJECT¹⁴ TO DIFFERENT LAWS IN REGARD TO THEIR OUTER AND INNER SIDES RESPECTIVELY;¹⁵ SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH RULED: THEY ARE NOT [SUBJECT TO THESE DISTINCTIONS].¹⁶ R. SIMEON RULED: THEY ARE [SUBJECT TO DIFFERENT LAWS]. FOR IF THEIR OUTER PARTS CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS THEIR INNER PARTS REMAIN CLEAN;¹⁷ THOUGH¹⁸ IMMERSION¹⁹ IS REQUIRED.

MISHNAH 4. IF [IN A MEASURE CONSISTING OF] A QUARTER [OF A LOG] AND HALF A QUARTER [OF A LOG]²⁰ THE QUARTER MEASURE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS THE HALF-QUARTER MEASURE DOES NOT BECOME UNCLEAR, AND IF THE HALF QUARTER CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS THE QUARTER DOES NOT BECOME UNCLEAR. THE STUDENTS ARGUED BEFORE R. AKIBA:²¹ SINCE THE HALF QUARTER MEASURE IS THE OUTER PART OF THE QUARTER MEASURE, SHOULD NOT THE OUTER SIDE OF THE VESSEL WHOSE INNER SIDE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS BECOME UNCLEAR? HE ANSWERED THEM: DOES IT²² THEN BELONG TO THE CLASS THAT TAKES PRECEDENCE?²³ IT IS EQUALLY POSSIBLE THAT THE QUARTER IS TO BE REGARDED AS THE OUTER SIDE OF THE HALF QUARTER AND, SURELY, THE INNER SIDE OF A VESSEL DOES NOT BECOME UNCLEAR IF THE OUTER SIDE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS.

MISHNAH 5. IF THE QUARTER²⁴ CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS, THE QUARTER AND ITS OUTER SIDE ARE UNCLEAR;²⁵ BUT THE HALF QUARTER AND ITS OUTER SIDE REMAIN CLEAN.²⁶ IF THE HALF QUARTER CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS, THE HALF QUARTER AND ITS OUTER SIDE ARE UNCLEAR,²⁶ BUT THE QUARTER AND ITS OUTER SIDE REMAIN CLEAN. IF THE OUTER SIDE OF THE QUARTER CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS, THE OUTER SIDE OF THE HALF QUARTER REMAINS CLEAN. SO R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES RULED: THE OUTER SIDE CANNOT BE DIVIDED.²⁷ WHEN HOWEVER IMMERSION IS PERFORMED²⁸ THE WHOLE OF THE VESSEL MUST BE IMMERSSED.

MISHNAH 6. IF ON THE BASES, RIMS, HANGERS OR HANDLES OF VESSELS THAT HAVE A RECEPTACLE UNCLEAR LIQUID FELL ONE MERELY DRIES THEM AND THEY REMAIN CLEAN. BUT [IF UNCLEAR LIQUID FELL] ON A PART OF ANY OTHER VESSEL (WHICH CANNOT HOLD POMEGRANATES)²⁹ IN WHICH NO DISTINCTION IS MADE³⁰ BETWEEN ITS OUTER AND INNER SIDES,³¹ THE WHOLE BECOMES UNCLEAR. IF THE OUTER SIDE OF A VESSEL CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM A LIQUID, ONLY ITS OUTER SIDE IS UNCLEAR BUT ITS INNER SIDE, RIM, HANGER AND HANDLES REMAIN CLEAN. IF ITS INNER SIDE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS THE WHOLE IS UNCLEAR.

MISHNAH 7. ALL VESSELS ARE³² SUBJECT TO DIFFERENT LAWS³³ IN REGARD TO THEIR OUTER AND INNER SIDES RESPECTIVELY³⁴ AND ALSO IN REGARD TO THE PART BY WHICH THEY ARE HELD.³⁵ R. TARFON RULED: THIS³⁶ APPLIES ONLY TO A LARGE WOODEN BAKING TROUGH. R. AKIBA RULED: IT APPLIES ALSO TO CUPS. R. MEIR RULED: IT APPLIES ONLY TO UNCLEAR AND CLEAN³⁷ HANDS. R. JOSE STATED: THEY SPOKE ONLY OF CLEAN HANDS.³⁷

MISHNAH 8. IN WHAT MANNER?³⁸ IF ONE'S HANDS WERE CLEAN AND THE OUTER SIDE OF A CUP WAS UNCLEAR, A MAN MAY HOLD IT BY ITS HOLDING-PLACE AND NEED HAVE NO SCRUPLES LEST HIS HANDS HAVE CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM THE OUTER SIDE OF THE CUP. IF³⁹ HE WAS DRINKING FROM A CUP WHOSE OUTER SIDE WAS UNCLEAR HE NEED HAVE NO SCRUPLES LEST THE LIQUID IN HIS MOUTH CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM THE OUTER SIDE OF THE CUP AND THAT IT THEN⁴⁰ CONVEYED UNCLEANNESS TO THE CUP. IF A KETTLE⁴¹ WAS BOILING ONE NEED HAVE NO SCRUPLES LEST LIQUID SHOULD ISSUE FROM IT AND TOUCH ITS OUTER SIDE AND RETURN AGAIN WITHIN IT.

MISHNAH 9. HOLY VESSELS ARE NOT SUBJECT TO DIFFERENT LAWS⁴² IN REGARD TO THEIR OUTER AND INNER SIDES OR IN REGARD TO THE PART BY WHICH THEY ARE HELD,⁴³ NOR MAY VESSELS THAT ARE WITHIN ONE ANOTHER BE IMMERSSED⁴⁴ IF THEY ARE TO BE USED FOR HALLOWED THINGS.⁴⁵ ALL VESSELS BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BY MERE INTENTION,⁴⁶ BUT THEY CANNOT BE RENDERED INSUSCEPTIBLE EXCEPT BY A CHANGE-EFFECTING ACT;⁴⁷ FOR AN ACT⁴⁸ DISANNULS AN EARLIER ACT AS WELL AS AN EARLIER INTENTION, WHILE AN INTENTION ANNULS NEITHER AN EARLIER ACT NOR AN EARLIER INTENTION.

(1) In respect to uncleanness contracted from liquids, which in the case of vessels is only Rabbinical.

(2) In order to distinguish the Rabbinical uncleanness from that which is Pentateuchal.

(3) If the inner side of a vessel contracted uncleanness from a liquid the outside also becomes unclean, but if the outer side contracted uncleanness the inner side remains clean.

(4) Though each of these objects can be turned inside out when its outer side becomes its inner one and vice versa.

(5) Which distinguished its outer, from its inner side.

(6) Since (cf. prev. n.) the outer side can never become an inner one.

(7) So that the outer may become an inner side.

(8) The outer side or part being subject to the same restriction as the inner one.

(9) Cf. n. 4 mut. mut.

(10) Consisting of a wooden shaft of the thickness of a third of a handbreadth at the one end of which is a broad blade for cutting away roots, and at its opposite end is a pointed piece of metal wherewith the animal is goaded on when ploughing.

(11) Cf. p. 117, n. 10.

(12) But the outer side or part is subject to the same restriction as the inner one.

(13) Sc. if an ox-goad was broken and so much as seven handbreadths from the shaft remained with the broad blade, or four handbreadths of it remained with the pointed end, it is still susceptible to uncleanness.

(14) V. p. 117, n. 1.

(15) V. p. 117, n. 3.

(16) But, having a kind of receptacle at the back, their outer and inner sides are independent of each other and the uncleanness of the one does not affect the other.

(17) In agreement with R. Meir.

(18) Contrary to R. Meir's view.

(19) Of the vessel whose outer part contracted an uncleanness.

(20) The receptacle proper of the utensil measuring a quarter log, and its concave bottom a half quarter; or the double measure consisting of two receptacles side by side like a double inkpot.

(21) Against the first ruling.

(22) The quarter log.

(23) To be regarded in consequence as the inner side of the utensil. Aliter: 'This question has been asked already by an earlier group of students who received the reply that follows'.

(24) Cf. prev. Mishnah and nn.

(25) Except the outer side of its bottom, which is the inner side of the half quarter, that remains clean.

(26) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

(27) Sc. if the part of the side that belongs to the quarter contracted uncleanness the part of the side belonging to the half quarter is also unclean and vice versa.

(28) In the case dealt with in the first clause.

(29) Cf. supra XVII, 8.

(30) In respect to uncleanness contracted from liquids, which in the case of vessels is only Rabbinical.

- (31) Cf. Mishnah I and nn. supra.
- (32) V. p. 119, n. 9.
- (33) In order to distinguish the Rabbinical uncleanness from that which is Pentateuchal.
- (34) V. supra, p. 217, n. 3.
- (35) Sc. if the outer side contracted uncleanness this part remains clean and vice versa, v. Hag. 22b.
- (36) Cf. prev. n.
- (37) This is explained in the following Mishnah.
- (38) Cf. prev. n.
- (39) The following is an independent ruling, having no bearing on the question with which our Mishnah began.
- (40) From its inner side.
- (41) Whose outer side was unclean.
- (42) In respect to uncleanness contracted from liquids, which in the case of vessels is only Rabbinical.
- (43) Sc. whichever part contracted uncleanness the entire vessel is unclean.
- (44) After an uncleanness.
- (45) Because the weight of the inner vessels upon the outer one may prevent the access of the water to all its parts.
- (46) A ring, for instance, which is used for an animal (and is not susceptible to uncleanness) becomes susceptible if it was intended to be used for a man.
- (47) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.
- (48) That is change-effecting.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 26

MISHNAH 1. THE SANDAL OF IMKI¹ AND A LACED-UP BAG² (R. JUDAH RULED: ALSO AN EGYPTIAN BASKET;³ R. SIMEON B. GAMALIEL RULED: THE SAME LAW APPLIES ALSO TO A LAODICEAN SANDAL)² CAN BE MADE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS⁴ AND AGAIN BE MADE INSUSCEPTIBLE⁵ WITHOUT THE AID OF A CRAFTSMAN. SAID R. JOSE: 'BUT CANNOT ALL VESSELS BE MADE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND BE RENDERED INSUSCEPTIBLE WITHOUT THE AID OF A CRAFTSMAN?'⁶ BUT THESE, EVEN WHEN THEY ARE UNLACED, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS SINCE A LAYMAN IS ABLE TO RESTORE THEM'.⁷ THEY⁸ SPOKE ONLY OF AN EGYPTIAN BASKET³ WHICH EVEN A CRAFTSMAN CANNOT [EASILY]⁹ RESTORE.

MISHNAH 2. A LACED-UP BAG WHOSE LACES WERE REMOVED¹⁰ IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; BUT IF IT WAS MADE FLAT¹¹ IT BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A STRIP OF LINING HAS BEEN PUT ON IT BELOW,¹² IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE. IF A BAG WAS WITHIN ANOTHER BAG AND ONE OF THEM CONTRACTED UNCLEANNESS FROM A LIQUID, THE OTHER DOES NOT BECOME UNCLEAN.¹³ A PEARL POUCH IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. AS TO A MONEY POUCH, R. ELIEZER RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, AND THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. THE HAND-COVER OF THORN-PICKER¹⁵ IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁶ A BELT¹⁷ AND LEG GUARDS¹⁷ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. SLEEVES¹⁷ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BUT LEGGINGS¹⁷ ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE. ANY FINGER-STALL IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS EXCEPT THAT OF FRUIT¹⁸ -PICKERS, SINCE THE LATTER HOLDS THE SUMACH BERRIES.¹⁹ IF IT²⁰ WAS TORN, IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, PROVIDED IT CANNOT HOLD THE GREATER PART OF A SUMACH BERRY.

MISHNAH 4. A SANDAL²¹ ONE OF WHOSE STRAPS WAS TORN OFF BUT WAS MENDED AGAIN, RETAINS ITS MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS.²² IF A SECOND STRAP WAS TORN OFF, THOUGH IT WAS MENDED AGAIN, IT²³ BECOMES FREE FROM MIDRAS

UNCLEANNES BUT IS UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS.²² IF THE SECOND STRAP WAS TORN OFF BEFORE THE FIRST COULD BE MENDED, IT²³ BECOMES CLEAN.²² IF ITS HEEL WAS TORN OFF, OR IF ITS TOE-PIECE WAS REMOVED, OR IF IT²³ WAS TORN IN TWO, IT²³ BECOMES CLEAN.²⁴ A HEEL-LESS SLIPPER¹⁷ THAT WAS TORN ANYWHERE BECOMES CLEAN. A SHOE THAT WAS DAMAGED BECOMES CLEAN IF IT CANNOT CONTAIN THE GREATER PART OF THE FOOT. A SHOE THAT IS STILL ON THE LAST, R. ELIEZER RULES, IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES,²⁵ BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE. ALL WATER SKINS WHOSE HOLES²⁶ HAVE BEEN TIED UP ARE INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES,²⁷ EXCEPT THOSE OF THE ARABS.²⁸ R. MEIR RULES: IF THEY ARE TIED UP FOR A WHILE, THEY ARE CLEAN; BUT IF THEY ARE TIED WITH A PERMANENT KNOT²⁹ THEY ARE UNCLEAN. R. JOSE RULED: ALL TIED UP WATER SKINS³⁰ ARE CLEAN.

MISHNAH 5. THE FOLLOWING HIDES ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNES: A HIDE WHICH IS INTENDED FOR USE AS A RUG,³¹ A HIDE USED AS A TANNER'S APRON, A HIDE USED AS THE LOWER COVERING OF A BED, A HIDE USED AS AN APRON BY AN ASS-DRIVER,³² BY A FLAX-WORKER, BY A PORTER OR BY A PHYSICIAN,³³ A HIDE USED FOR A COT, A HIDE PUT OVER A CHILD'S HEART,³⁴ A HIDE OF A CUSHION OR A BOLSTER. ALL THESE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNES. A HIDE FOR WRAPPING UP COMBED WOOL AND A HIDE WORN BY A WOOL-COMBER, R. ELIEZER RULES, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNES ONLY.³⁵

MISHNAH 6. A BAG³⁶ OR WRAPPER³⁶ FOR GARMENTS IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS. A BAG OR WRAPPER FOR PURPLE WOOL, BETH SHAMMAI RULE, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS, BUT BETH HILLEL RULE THAT³⁷ IT IS ONLY SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNES.³⁸ IF A HIDE IS USED AS A COVERING FOR VESSELS IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, BUT IF IT IS USED AS A COVERING FOR WEIGHTS³⁹ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE. R. JOSE IN THE NAME OF HIS FATHER RULES THAT IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE.

MISHNAH 7. WHENEVER NO ACT IS LACKING⁴⁰ INTENTION⁴¹ ALONE⁴² CAUSES AN ARTICLE TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, BUT WHEREVER AN ACT IS LACKING⁴⁰ INTENTION⁴¹ ALONE DOES NOT RENDER IT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, EXCEPT FUR SKINS.⁴³

MISHNAH 8. THE HIDES OF A HOUSEHOLDER BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES BY INTENTION,⁴⁴ BUT THOSE THAT BELONG TO A TANNER⁴⁵ DO NOT BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE BY MERE INTENTION. THOSE TAKEN BY A THIEF⁴⁶ BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE BY INTENTION,⁴⁷ BUT THOSE TAKEN BY A ROBBER⁴⁸ DO NOT BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE BY MERE INTENTION.⁴⁹ R. SIMEON STATED: THE RULE IS TO BE REVERSED; THOSE TAKEN BY A ROBBER⁵⁰ BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE BY MERE INTENTION, BUT THOSE TAKEN BY A THIEF⁵¹ DO NOT BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE BY INTENTION, SINCE IN THE LATTER CASE THE OWNER DOES NOT ABANDON THE HOPE FOR RECOVERY.⁵²

MISHNAH 9. IF A HIDE HAD CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNES AND ITS OWNER THEN INTENDED IT TO BE USED FOR STRAPS OR SANDALS⁵³ IT BECOMES CLEAN AS SOON AS HE PUT THE KNIFE INTO IT; SO R. JUDAH. BUT THE SAGES RULED: IT DOES NOT BECOME CLEAN UNTIL HE HAS REDUCED ITS SIZE TO LESS THAN FIVE HANDBREADTHS. R. ELIEZER SON OF R. ZADOK RULED: EVEN IF ONE MADE A NAPKIN FROM THE HIDE⁵⁴ IT⁵⁵ REMAINS UNCLEAN,⁵⁶ BUT IF FROM A BOLSTER IT

BECOMES CLEAN.⁵⁷

- (1) From Kefar Imki or Amiku, north-east of Acre. Aliter: 'Worn in valleys'.
- (2) These objects are flat (and, therefore, insusceptible to uncleanness), but they can be laced or sewn up to form a kind of receptacle which is susceptible to uncleanness.
- (3) Aliter: A basket of palm- twigs.
- (4) By being laced or sewn up.
- (5) By unlacing or unsewing them.
- (6) Of course they can. What then is the difference between these and the others?
- (7) To their laced condition.
- (8) The Sages in laying down that when unlaced it is clean.
- (9) V. Shab. 58b and 83b.
- (10) From the loops, but are still suspended from the bag. Aliter: (according to R. Judah) Whose laces are missing.
- (11) Thus forming no receptacle.
- (12) So that a receptacle remains even when the bag is made flat.
- (13) The uncleanness that vessels contract from liquids being only Rabbinical, the law has been relaxed. In the case of a Pentateuchal uncleanness the one bag causes the uncleanness of the other.
- (14) Since it is continually opened to take money out, it is not regarded as a valid receptacle.
- (15) A flat piece of leather which covers the palm of the hand and protects it against the thorns.
- (16) Since it forms no receptacle.
- (17) Made of leather.
- (18) Or 'thorn'.
- (19) Thus forming a receptacle.
- (20) The latter.
- (21) That contracted midras uncleanness.
- (22) Cf. nn. supra XVIII, 6.
- (23) The sandal.
- (24) From its former uncleanness. It is, however, susceptible to future uncleanness.
- (25) Since its manufacture has not yet been completed.
- (26) That appeared in them after they had contracted an uncleanness and that have rendered them clean.
- (27) Since the knots may be easily undone.
- (28) Whose knots cannot be easily undone.
- (29) Cf. prev. n. mut.mut.
- (30) Even if the knot was permanent.
- (31) To sit upon. V. nn. supra XXIV, 12.
- (32) Var. lec., 'a hide of (to protect) an ass.'
- (33) As a protection against the spurting of blood.
- (34) To protect it against the bite of a cat.
- (35) But not to that of midras.
- (36) Of leather.
- (37) Since, on account of the high value of the purple, it would not be used as a seat.
- (38) But not to midras.
- (39) Which cause a depression and give it the shape of a receptacle.
- (40) To complete its manufacture.
- (41) To use it for a particular purpose.
- (42) Even before it was actually used.
- (43) Which become susceptible to uncleanness by mere intention to use them, even before they have been trimmed, since they can be used without any trimming.
- (44) To use them; even before actual use.
- (45) Who, before manufacture is completed, might change his mind.
- (46) Since the owner, not knowing the thief, abandons all hope of recovery.
- (47) Of the thief who steals secretly. As the owner abandoned hope the thief is regarded as the legal owner.

- (48) Who steals openly and is known to the owner who, in consequence, does not abandon the hope for recovery.
 (49) Of the robber who (cf. prev. n.) cannot be regarded as legal owner.
 (50) Who is much stronger than a thief and recovery from whom is impossible.
 (51) A weaker man from whom recovery of the article is quite possible.
 (52) Cf. prev. n.
 (53) Cf. supra XXIV, 12.
 (54) That had contracted midras uncleanness.
 (55) Since it may be regarded as a small rug on which one can sit.
 (56) Since the change is but slight.
 (57) Though it is susceptible to future uncleanness.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 27

MISHNAH 1. CLOTH IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO¹ FIVE FORMS² OF UNCLEANNESS; SACKING³ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO¹ FOUR; LEATHER TO¹ THREE; WOOD TO TWO; AND AN EARTHEN VESSEL TO ONE. AN EARTHEN VESSEL⁴ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS [ONLY] AS A RECEPTACLE.⁵ ANY EARTHEN VESSEL THAT HAS NO INNER PART IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS FROM⁶ ITS OUTER PART.⁷ WOOD IS SUBJECT TO AN ADDITIONAL FORM OF UNCLEANNESS IN THAT IT IS ALSO SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS⁸ AS A SEAT.⁹ SIMILARLY A TABLET WHICH HAS NO RIM IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF IT IS A WOODEN OBJECT AND INSUSCEPTIBLE IF IT IS AN EARTHEN ONE. LEATHER IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO AN ADDITIONAL FORM OF UNCLEANNESS IN THAT IT IS ALSO SUSCEPTIBLE TO THE UNCLEANNESS OF OHEL.¹⁰ SACKING HAS AN ADDITIONAL FORM OF UNCLEANNESS IN THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS WOVEN WORK.¹¹ CLOTH HAS AN ADDITIONAL FORM OF UNCLEANNESS IN THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS WHEN IT IS ONLY THREE BY THREE FINGERBREADTHS.¹²

MISHNAH 2. CLOTH IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS OF MIDRAS WHEN IT IS¹³ THREE HANDBREADTHS SQUARE, AND TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS¹⁴ WHEN IT IS THREE FINGERBREADTHS SQUARE.¹⁵ SACKING WHEN IT IS FOUR HANDBREADTHS SQUARE, LEATHER FIVE HANDBREADTHS SQUARE AND MATTING SIX HANDBREADTHS SQUARE ARE EQUALLY SUSCEPTIBLE TO BOTH MIDRAS AND CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. R. MEIR RULED: WHAT REMAINS OF SACKING IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF IT IS FOUR HANDBREADTHS, BUT WHEN IN ITS FIRST CONDITION IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE ONLY AFTER ITS MANUFACTURE IS COMPLETED.

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE MADE UP A PIECE OF MATERIAL FROM TWO HANDBREADTHS OF CLOTH AND ONE OF SACKING, OR OF THREE OF SACKING AND ONE OF LEATHER OR FOUR OF LEATHER AND ONE OF MATTING, IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁶ IF, HOWEVER, THE PIECE OF MATERIAL WAS MADE UP OF FIVE HANDBREADTHS OF MATTING AND ONE OF LEATHERS OR FOUR OF LEATHER AND ONE OF SACKING, OR THREE OF SACKING AND ONE OF CLOTH IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: IF THE MATERIAL ADDED IS SUBJECT TO GREATER RESTRICTIONS¹⁷ IT¹⁸ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹⁹ BUT IF THE MATERIAL ADDED WAS SUBJECT TO LESSER RESTRICTIONS²⁰ IT¹⁸ IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE.²¹

MISHNAH 4. IF FROM ANY OF THESE²² A PIECE ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE WAS CUT OFF²³ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁴ [IF A PIECE] ONE HANDBREADTH SQUARE²³ [WAS CUT OFF] FROM THE BOTTOM OF A BASKET IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO

UNCLEANNES.²⁴ [IF IT WAS CUT] FROM THE SIDES OF THE BASKET, R. SIMEON RULES THAT IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT WHEREVER A SQUARE HANDBREADTH IS CUT OFF²⁵ IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 5. WORN-OUT PIECES OF A SIFTER OR A SIEVE THAT WERE ADAPTED FOR USE AS A SEAT, R. AKIBA RULES ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT THEY ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE UNLESS THEIR ROUGH ENDS WERE CUT OFF.²⁶ A CHILD'S STOOL THAT HAS LEGS, EVEN THOUGH IT IS LESS THAN A HANDBREADTH HIGH, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES.²⁷ A CHILD'S SHIRT, R. ELIEZER RULES, IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNES HOWEVER SMALL IT MAY BE; BUT THE SAGES RULED: IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE ONLY IF IT IS OF THE PRESCRIBED SIZE²⁸ AND MEASURED WHEN DOUBLED.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. THE FOLLOWING ARE MEASURED³⁰ WHEN DOUBLED:²⁹ SOCKS, LONG STOCKINGS, DRAWERS, A CAP AND A MONEY-BELT. AS REGARDS A PATCH SEWN ON THE HEM,³¹ IF IT WAS UNDOUBLED³² IT IS MEASURED UNDOUBLED,³³ BUT IF IT WAS DOUBLED IT IS MEASURED WHEN DOUBLED.³⁴

MISHNAH 7. IF A PIECE OF CLOTH WAS WOVEN TO THE EXTENT OF THREE [HANDBREADTHS] SQUARE, WHEN IT CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNES, AND AFTER THE ENTIRE PIECE WAS COMPLETED ONE REMOVED³⁵ A SINGLE THREAD FROM THE ORIGINAL PART,³⁶ IT³⁷ IS RELEASED FROM MIDRAS UNCLEANNES BUT³⁸ IS STILL UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS UNCLEANNES. IF A THREAD WAS REMOVED FROM THE ORIGINAL PART AND THEN ALL THE CLOTH WAS FINISHED, IT³⁹ IS STILL UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 8. SIMILARLY⁴⁰ IF A PIECE OF CLOTH WAS WOVEN TO THE EXTENT OF THREE [FINGER BREADTHS] SQUARE, WHEN IT CONTRACTED CORPSE UNCLEANNES, AND AFTER THE ENTIRE PIECE WAS FINISHED ONE REMOVED⁴¹ A SINGLE THREAD FROM ITS ORIGINAL PART,⁴² IT³⁷ IS RELEASED FROM CORPSE UNCLEANNES⁴³ BUT⁴⁴ IS STILL UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH CORPSE UNCLEANNES. IF A THREAD WAS REMOVED FROM THE ORIGINAL PART⁴² AND THEN ALL THE CLOTH WAS FINISHED IT REMAINS CLEAN, FOR THE SAGES HAVE RULED: IF A PIECE OF THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE IS LESSENERED IT BECOMES CLEAN,⁴⁵ BUT IF ONE OF THREE HAND BREADTHS SQUARE IS LESSENERED, EVEN THOUGH IT IS RELEASED FROM MIDRAS, IT IS STILL SUSCEPTIBLE TO ALL OTHER FORMS OF UNCLEANNES.

MISHNAH 9. IF A SHEET THAT HAD CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNES WAS MADE⁴⁶ INTO A CURTAIN, IT IS RELEASED FROM MIDRAS UNCLEANNES BUT IS STILL UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS UNCLEANNES. SAID R. JOSE: BUT WHAT MIDRAS UNCLEANNES HAS THIS⁴⁷ TOUCHED!⁴⁸ ONLY IF A ZAB HAD TOUCHED IT⁴⁹ IS IT UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH A ZAB.

MISHNAH 10. IF A PIECE OF CLOTH THREE [HANDBREADTHS] SQUARE⁵⁰ WAS DIVIDED,⁵¹ IT IS RELEASED FROM THE MIDRAS UNCLEANNES BUT IS STILL UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH MIDRAS UNCLEANNES. SAID R. JOSE: BUT WHAT MIDRAS UNCLEANNES HAS THIS TOUCHED!⁵² ONLY IF A ZAB HAD TOUCHED IT IS IT UNCLEAN FROM CONTACT WITH A ZAB.

MISHNAH 11. IF A PIECE OF CLOTH THREE [HANDBREADTHS] SQUARE [WAS FOUND] ON A RUBBISH HEAP IT MUST⁵³ BE BOTH SOUND AND CAPABLE OF WRAPPING UP SALT;⁵⁴ BUT [IF IT WAS FOUND] IN THE HOUSE IT NEED ONLY BE⁵⁵ EITHER SOUND OR CAPABLE OF WRAPPING UP SALT. HOW MUCH SALT MUST IT BE CAPABLE OF WRAPPING UP? A QUARTER OF A KAB. R. JUDAH STATED: THIS REFERS TO FINE SALT, BUT THE SAGES STATED: IT REFERS TO COARSE SALT. BOTH INTENDED TO RELAX THE LAW.⁵⁶ R. SIMEON RULED: THE LAW CONCERNING A PIECE OF CLOTH THREE [HANDBREADTHS] SQUARE ON A RUBBISH HEAP IS THE SAME AS THAT FOR A PIECE OF CLOTH THAT WAS THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE IN A HOUSE.⁵⁷

MISHNAH 12. [A PIECE OF CLOTH] THREE [HANDBREADTHS] SQUARE THAT WAS TORN⁵⁸ BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF ON BEING PUT ON A STOOL ONE'S FLESH⁵⁹ WOULD⁶⁰ TOUCH THE STOOL; OTHERWISE IT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. [A PIECE OF CLOTH] THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE ONE THREAD OF WHICH WAS WORN AWAY, OR ON WHICH A KNOT WAS FOUND, OR IN WHICH TWO THREADS RAN ALONGSIDE EACH OTHER, IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. [A PIECE OF CLOTH] THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE THAT WAS CAST ON THE RUBBISH HEAP BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF IT WAS TAKEN BACK AGAIN IT BECOMES SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. THROWING IT AWAY INVARIABLY RENDERS IT INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND TAKING IT BACK AGAIN RENDERS IT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁶¹ EXCEPT WHEN IT IS OF PURPLE OR FINE CRIMSON.⁶² R. ELIEZER RULED: A PATCH OF NEW CLOTH IS ALSO SUBJECT TO THE SAME LAW. R. SIMEON RULED: ALL THESE MATERIALS⁶³ BECOME INSUSCEPTIBLE;⁶⁴ AND THE LATTER⁶⁵ HAVE BEEN MENTIONED [AS DISTINGUISHABLE FROM OTHERS] ONLY IN CONNECTION WITH THE RETURN OF LOST PROPERTY.⁶⁶

(1) Lit., 'on account of'.

(2) Lit., 'names'.

(3) Made of goats' hair and the like.

(4) Here begins the illustration of the general statements just made.

(5) However small it might be. Otherwise it is not susceptible to any form of uncleanness.

(6) Lit., 'it has not'.

(7) Even though its bottom is concave.

(8) Even though it forms no receptacle.

(9) On which a zab might sit. It must, however, have no less an area than three handbreadths square.

(10) Whereby, if it forms the ohel, it becomes a 'father of uncleanness', however small its size (Elijah Wilna and L. contra Bert.).

(11) However small its size might be; provided there was no intention to extend the texture. If it was intended to extend it the size must be no less than four handbreadths square.

(12) Even if it was not woven.

(13) Lit., 'on account of'.

(14) And also to any uncleanness other than midras.

(15) This, however, applies only to the remnant of a cloth made of wool or flax. For one made of other materials a remnant having a minimum of three handbreadths square is required even in the case of corpse uncleanness. New cloth is susceptible to all forms of uncleanness other than midras whatever its size.

(16) Of midras. If, however, the piece of material came in contact with corpse uncleanness it remains clean if the contact was with the sacking only (since it is smaller than the prescribed minimum), but if the contact was with the cloth, only the sacking remains clean while the cloth contracts the uncleanness.

(17) Than the material to which it was added.

(18) The piece of combined materials.

(19) Since the latter may well make up the minimum prescribed for the former.

- (20) Than the material to which it was added.
- (21) Because the latter whose prescribed minimum is greater cannot be effective when the total area of the material is less than that minimum.
- (22) Four materials mentioned in the previous Mishnah.
- (23) For use as a seat. (If it was cut off for the purpose of lying upon, the minimum area for susceptibility to uncleanness is three handbreadths).
- (24) As a seat (cf. prev. n.).
- (25) Even if from the sides of a basket.
- (26) To render them fit for a seat.
- (27) An adult's stool must be no less than one handbreadth high if it is to be susceptible to uncleanness.
- (28) As laid down supra Mishnah 2.
- (29) So as to allow the prescribed length of material both for the front and the back.
- (30) To ascertain whether they are of the prescribed size of three fingerbreadths square in respect of corpse uncleanness or three handbreadths square in respect of midras.
- (31) Around the neck.
- (32) Having been patched on one side of the hem only.
- (33) The prescribed size being the one in Mishnah 2 supra.
- (34) The length required being twice the size prescribed (cf. p. 129 n. 8.).
- (35) Var. lec. inserts here 'the cloth, all the cloth is susceptible to midras; if one removed'.
- (36) The three handbreadths square which have contracted the midras uncleanness.
- (37) The entire cloth.
- (38) Since it was in contact with midras uncleanness.
- (39) As a connective.
- (40) Cf. prev. Mishnah.
- (41) Var. lec. inserts here 'the cloth, all the cloth is susceptible to corpse uncleanness; if one removed'.
- (42) The three fingerbreadths square which have contracted corpse uncleanness.
- (43) Since less than the prescribed minimum remained.
- (44) Having come in close contact with corpse uncleanness.
- (45) Since it can no longer serve any useful purpose.
- (46) By some adaptation which effected a change in it (cf. supra XX, 6.).
- (47) The curtain.
- (48) Obviously none, since the previous uncleanness of the sheet has disappeared with its change into a curtain. Hence it should be free from all uncleanness.
- (49) The curtain (Bert.), the sheet (L.).
- (50) That has contracted midras uncleanness.
- (51) And each part was smaller than the prescribed minimum.
- (52) Cf. supra n. 3 mut. mut.
- (53) It is to be susceptible to midras uncleanness.
- (54) Sc. the texture must be closely woven.
- (55) If it is to be susceptible to midras uncleanness.
- (56) R. Judah insists on a closely woven texture which can hold fine salt, while the Sages insist on a sound material which can wrap up coarse salt.
- (57) Both being susceptible to corpse, but not to midras uncleanness.
- (58) But the parts were not completely severed.
- (59) That of the man who sits on it.
- (60) Owing to the width of the tear.
- (61) Irrespective of the number of times this may have been repeated.
- (62) Being valuable materials they remain susceptible to uncleanness even when thrown on the rubbish heap.
- (63) Even the last mentioned.
- (64) If thrown on the rubbish heap.
- (65) Purple and fine crimson.
- (66) Being of greater value than other materials the finding of them even on a rubbish heap must be duly announced in order to afford the loser an opportunity of claiming them; v. B.M. II, 1.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 28

MISHNAH 1. [A PIECE OF CLOTH] THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE THAT¹ WAS STUFFED INTO A BALL OR WAS ITSELF MADE INTO A BALL BECOMES CLEAN.² BUT [A PIECE OF CLOTH] THREE [HANDBREADTHS] SQUARE THAT³ WAS STUFFED INTO A BALL REMAINS UNCLEAN.⁴ IF THE LATTER³ WAS ITSELF MADE INTO A BALL IT BECOMES CLEAN⁵ BECAUSE THE SEWING REDUCES ITS SIZE.

MISHNAH 2. [A PIECE OF CLOTH] LESS THAN THREE [HANDBREADTHS] SQUARE THAT WAS ADAPTED FOR THE PURPOSE OF STOPPING UP A HOLE IN A BATH HOUSE,⁶ OF EMPTYING A COOKING-POT⁷ OR OF WIPING WITH IT THE MILL STONES, WHETHER IT WAS OR WAS NOT KEPT IN READINESS FOR ANY SUCH USE,⁸ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS; SO R. ELIEZER. R. JOSHUA RULED: WHETHER IT WAS OR WAS NOT KEPT IN READINESS IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. R. AKIBA RULED: IF IT WAS KEPT IN READINESS IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE, AND IF IT WAS NOT KEPT IN READINESS IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE.

MISHNAH 3. IF A PLASTER IS MADE OF CLOTH OR LEATHER IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁹ A¹⁰ POULTICE IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF IT IS ON CLOTH,¹¹ BUT IF ON LEATHER IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE.¹² RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL RULED: EVEN IF IT WAS ON CLOTH THE LATTER REMAIN SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS BECAUSE THE FORMER¹³ CAN BE SHAKEN OFF.¹⁴

MISHNAH 4. SCROLL WRAPPERS, WHETHER THEY ARE ORNAMENTED WITH [EMBROIDERED] FIGURES OR NOT, ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS ACCORDING TO THE VIEW OF BETH SHAMMAI. BETH HILLEL RULED: THOSE THAT ARE ORNAMENTED WITH FIGURES ARE INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹⁵ BUT THOSE THAT ARE NOT ORNAMENTED ARE SUSCEPTIBLE. RABBAN GAMALIEL RULED: BOTH THE FORMER AND THE LATTER ARE INSUSCEPTIBLE.

MISHNAH 5. IF A HEAD-WRAP THAT¹⁶ HAD CONTRACTED MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS WAS WRAPPED AROUND A SCROLL, IT IS RELEASED FROM MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS¹⁷ BUT REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO CORPSE UNCLEANNESS. A SKIN¹⁸ THAT WAS MADE INTO A RUG¹⁹ OR A LEATHER RUG THAT WAS MADE INTO A SKIN¹⁸ BECOMES CLEAN.²⁰ A SKIN¹⁸ THAT WAS MADE INTO A [SHEPHERD'S] WALLET OR A [SHEPHERD'S] WALLET THAT WAS MADE INTO A SKIN; OR A CUSHION COVER THAT WAS MADE INTO A SHEET OR A SHEET THAT WAS MADE INTO A CUSHION COVER; OR A BOLSTER COVER THAT WAS MADE INTO A PLAIN SHEET OR A PLAIN SHEET THAT WAS MADE INTO A BOLSTER COVER, REMAINS UNCLEAN. THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ANY OBJECT THAT HAS BEEN CHANGED INTO ONE OF THE SAME CLASS²¹ REMAINS UNCLEAN, BUT IF INTO ONE OF ANOTHER CLASS IT BECOMES CLEAN.

MISHNAH 6. IF A PATCH²² WAS SEWN ON TO A BASKET,²³ THE LATTER²⁴ CONVEYS²⁵ ONE GRADE OF UNCLEANNESS²⁶ AND²⁷ ONE OF UNFITNESS.²⁸ IF IT WAS SEVERED FROM THE BASKET, THE LATTER CONVEYS ONE GRADE OF UNCLEANNESS AND ONE OF UNFITNESS, BUT THE PATCH²⁹ BECOMES CLEAN.³⁰ IF IT WAS SEWN ON TO CLOTH³¹ THE LATTER³² CONVEYS TWO GRADES OF UNCLEANNESS³³ AND ONE OF UNFITNESS.²⁷ IF IT WAS SEVERED FROM THE CLOTH, THE LATTER³⁴ CONVEYS²⁵ ONE GRADE OF UNCLEANNESS²⁶ AND²⁷ ONE OF UNFITNESS, WHILE THE PATCH CONVEYS

TWO GRADES OF UNCLEANNESS AND ONE OF UNFITNESS.³⁵ THE SAME LAW³⁶ APPLIES ALSO WHERE A PATCH WAS SEWN ON TO SACKING OR LEATHER; SO R. MEIR. R. SIMEON RULES THAT THEY³⁷ ARE CLEAN.³⁸ R. JOSE RULED: IF IT WAS SEWN ON LEATHER IT BECOMES CLEAN; BUT IF ON SACKING IT REMAINS UNCLEAN, SINCE THE LATTER IS A WOVEN MATERIAL.³⁹

MISHNAH 7. THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM OF THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE OF WHICH THEY HAVE SPOKEN⁴⁰ IS EXCLUSIVE OF THE HEM; SO R. SIMEON. BUT THE SAGES RULED: EXACTLY THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE.⁴¹ IF A PATCH⁴² WAS SEWN ON TO A CLOTH BY ONE SIDE ONLY,⁴³ IT CANNOT BE REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE.⁴⁴ IF IT WAS SEWN ON BY TWO OPPOSITE SIDES, IT IS A CONNECTIVE.⁴⁵ IF IT WAS SEWN ON THE SHAPE OF A GAMMA,⁴⁶ R. AKIBA RULES THAT THE CLOTH IS UNCLEAN, BUT THE SAGES RULE THAT IT IS CLEAN. R. JUDAH STATED: THIS⁴⁷ APPLIES ONLY TO A CLOAK,⁴⁸ BUT IN THE CASE OF A SHIRT⁴⁹ THE PATCH IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE IF IT WAS SEWN ON ONLY BY ITS UPPER SIDE,⁵⁰ BUT IF BY ITS LOWER SIDE IT IS NO CONNECTIVE.⁴⁶

MISHNAH 8. POOR MEN'S CLOTHES, THOUGH MADE UP OF PIECES NONE OF WHICH MEASURES THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS,⁵¹ IF A CLOAK BEGAN TO BE TORN, AS SOON AS ITS GREATER PART IS AFFECTED [THE FRAGMENTS] ARE NOT REGARDED AS JOINED.⁵² EXCEPTIONALLY THICK OR THIN MATERIALS⁵³ ARE NOT GOVERNED BY THE PRESCRIBED MINIMUM OF THREE [FINGERBREADTHS] SQUARE.⁵⁴

MISHNAH 9. A PORTER'S PAD⁵⁵ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO MIDRAS UNCLEANNESS. A WINE FILTER⁵⁶ IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS A SEAT.⁵⁷ AN OLD WOMAN'S HAIR-NET⁵⁸ IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS A SEAT.⁵⁹ A HARLOT'S SHIRT WHICH IS WOVEN LIKE NET WORK IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁶⁰ A GARMENT MADE OF A FISHING NET IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,⁶⁰ BUT ONE MADE OF ITS NET WORK BAG IS SUSCEPTIBLE. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB RULED: EVEN IF A GARMENT IS MADE OUT OF A FISHING NET BUT IS MADE DOUBLE IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁶¹

MISHNAH 10. A HAIR-NET THAT ONE BEGAN TO MAKE FROM ITS HEM REMAINS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS UNTIL ITS BOTTOM SECTION IS FINISHED; AND IF ONE BEGAN FROM ITS BOTTOM SECTION, IT REMAINS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS UNTIL ITS HEM IS FINISHED. ITS HEAD BAND IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IN ITSELF.⁶² ITS STRINGS ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AS CONNECTIVES.⁶³ A HAIR-NET THAT IS TORN BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF IT CANNOT CONTAIN THE GREATER PART OF THE HAIR.

(1) Having contracted corpse uncleanness.

(2) Since it lost the status of cloth by becoming a ball or part of a ball.

(3) After contracting midras uncleanness.

(4) Owing to its comparatively large size its identity cannot be merged into that of the ball.

(5) From midras uncleanness, but not from any other. Aliter: From all uncleanness (Rabad).

(6) To prevent the escape of heat.

(7) By holding it with the rag.

(8) It was hung up on a nail to be ready for use, v. Shab. 29b.

(9) Since the greasy substances with which it is smeared render it unfit for sitting on or for any other use.

(10) Some edd. in parenthesis read, 'R. Jose ruled: On leather it is insusceptible to uncleanness'.

(11) Since the greasy substances with which it is smeared render it unfit for sitting on or for any other use.

- (12) Because leather can be used even after a poultice has been on it.
- (13) The ingredients of the poultice when they dry up.
- (14) From the cloth which in consequence can again be used.
- (15) Since the embroidered figures are sufficient evidence that the wrapper was intended for the ornamentation only and not for any man's personal use, v. supra XVI, ad finem.
- (16) Being suitable to sit upon; cf. supra XXIV, 16.
- (17) If it was set aside for exclusive use with the scroll.
- (18) Intended for the holding of liquids.
- (19) By being cut open and spread out for the purpose of sitting on it.
- (20) Sc. it is released from any midras uncleanness it may have contracted, because the adaptation is regarded as the breaking up of the former vessel. It remains, however, susceptible to future midras uncleanness.
- (21) Lit., 'to his name'; a skin and a wallet, for instance, are used for similar purposes and so also is a cushion cover and a sheet.
- (22) That contracted midras uncleanness.
- (23) Which, not being suitable for midras, cannot contract such an uncleanness.
- (24) As a first grade of uncleanness owing to its contact with the patch that was (before it was sewn on to it) suffering from midras uncleanness.
- (25) To foodstuffs.
- (26) Rendering them unclean in the second grade.
- (27) If the second grade came in contact with terumah.
- (28) I.e., the uncleanness is not carried over to a further remove.
- (29) As any other part that is severed from the basket.
- (30) If it was not intended for sitting on. If it was so intended it is again susceptible in the future to midras uncleanness.
- (31) Which is itself susceptible to midras.
- (32) The cloth as well as the patch on it, since the use of the patch has not been changed to one of a different class, having first been a piece of cloth and being now again part of a piece of cloth.
- (33) Being a 'father of uncleanness' it causes a first grade of uncleanness which, in turn, causes a second grade.
- (34) V. supra n. 3.
- (35) As laid down supra XVIII, 7.
- (36) That is applicable to a patch on cloth.
- (37) Sacking and leather.
- (38) Since they are not of the same kind of material as the patch they are to be treated under the law that applies to a basket on which a patch was sewn.
- (39) And is thus of the same kind as the patch.
- (40) In regard to cloth that came in contact with a dead creeping thing or carrion, or that was leprous.
- (41) Inclusive of the hem.
- (42) That was three handbreadths square and had contracted midras uncleanness.
- (43) The other three sides remaining unsewn and detached from the cloth.
- (44) And the larger cloth remains clean.
- (45) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.
- (46) Sc. by two adjacent sides.
- (47) That if the patch was sewn on by one side only it is no connective.
- (48) Which may also be put on upside down so that the patch falls back and exposes the tear.
- (49) Which cannot be worn upside down.
- (50) Since in this case the patch always remains in position and covers up the tear.
- (51) Because the garment as a whole measures no less than three handbreadths square.
- (52) If one of them, e.g., contracts an uncleanness the other remains clean.
- (53) Felt or silk, for instance.
- (54) Their prescribed minimum in regard to corpse uncleanness being three handbreadths square, as pieces of lesser size cannot in their case be put to any use.
- (55) Used as a protection for his shoulders or back.
- (56) Made of a textile.

(57) Being soiled with lees no one is likely to sit on it.

(58) That is also in regular use for sitting upon.

(59) If, however, it is not intended for sitting upon it is not susceptible.

(60) Of midras; though one can sit on it. As, owing to its holes, it is not suitable for its primary function (a proper article of dress) it loses also its secondary function (seat).

(61) Because the doubling prevents the exposure of the body, and the garment can be properly worn.

(62) Since it can be removed from one hair-net to another.

(63) If the net contracts uncleanness the strings are equally affected, and vice versa.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 29

MISHNAH 1. THE FRINGES¹ OF A SHEET, A SCARF, A HEAD-WRAP AND A FELT CAP ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTIVES² UP TO A LENGTH OF SIX FINGERBREADTHS;³ THOSE OF AN UNDERGARMENT UP TO TEN [FINGERBREADTHS]. THE FRINGES OF A THICK CLOAK, A VEIL, A SHIRT, OR A LIGHT CLOAK ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTIVES UP TO A LENGTH OF THREE FINGERBREADTHS. THE FRINGES¹ OF AN OLD WOMAN'S HEAD-WRAP, OF THE FACE WRAPS OF THE ARABS, OF THE CILICIAN GOAT'S-HAIR CLOTH, OF A MONEY-BELT, OF A TURBAN OR OF A CURTAIN ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTIVES WHATSOEVER THEIR LENGTH MAY BE.

MISHNAH 2. THREE WOOLLEN BOLSTER-COVERS⁴, SIX LINEN ONES,⁴ THREE SHEETS,⁴ TWELVE HANDKERCHIEFS,⁴ TWO ARM-CLOTHS,⁴ ONE SHIRT,⁵ ONE CLOAK,⁵ OR ONE WINTER-CLOAK,⁵ ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTIVES IN RESPECT OF BOTH UNCLEANNESS⁶ AND SPRINKLING.⁷ IF THEY EXCEED THIS NUMBER THEY ARE REGARDED AS CONNECTIVES IN RESPECT OF UNCLEANNESS⁶ BUT NOT IN RESPECT OF SPRINKLING.⁸ R. JOSE RULED, NOT EVEN IN RESPECT OF UNCLEANNESS.⁹

MISHNAH 3. THE CORD OF [THE COMMON] PLUMMET¹⁰ IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE¹¹ UP TO A LENGTH OF TWELVE [CUBITS];¹² THAT OF THE CARPENTERS' PLUMMET, UP TO EIGHTEEN [CUBITS];¹² AND THAT OF THE BUILDERS' PLUMMET¹³ UP TO FIFTY CUBITS. THE PARTS THAT EXCEED THESE LENGTHS, EVEN IF IT WAS DESIRED TO RETAIN THEM,¹⁴ REMAIN INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁵ THE CORD OF THE PLUMMET OF PLASTERERS OR MOULDERS IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE WHATSOEVER ITS LENGTH.

MISHNAH 4. THE CORD OF THE BALANCES OF GOLDSMITHS¹⁶ OR THE WEIGHERS OF FINE PURPLE IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE UP TO A LENGTH OF THREE FINGERBREADTHS,¹⁷ THE SHAFT OF AN AXE BEHIND THE GRIP, UP TO A LENGTH OF THREE FINGERBREADTHS.¹⁵ R. JOSE RULED: IF THE LENGTH BEHIND THE GRIP IS NO LESS THAN ONE HANDBREADTH THE ENTIRE SHAFT IS UNSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹⁸

MISHNAH 5. THE CORD OF THE BALANCES OF SHOPKEEPERS¹⁶ OR HOUSEHOLDERS IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE UP TO A LENGTH OF ONE HANDBREADTH;¹⁷ THE SHAFT OF AN AXE IN FRONT OF THE GRIP, UP TO ONE HANDBREADTH; THE PROJECTION¹⁹ OF THE SHAFT OF A PAIR OF COMPASSES, UP TO ONE HANDBREADTH; THAT OF THE SHAFT OF THE STONE-MASONS' CHISEL, ONE HANDBREADTH.

MISHNAH 6. THE CORD OF THE BALANCES OF WOOL DEALER²⁰ OR OF GLASS-WEIGHERS IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE UP TO A LENGTH OF TWO HANDBREADTHS; THE SHAFT OF A MILLSTONE CHISEL, UP TO A LENGTH OF TWO HANDBREADTHS; THE SHAFT OF THE BATTLE-AXE OF THE LEGIONS, UP TO A LENGTH OF TWO HANDBREADTHS; THE SHAFT OF THE GOLDSMITHS' HAMMER, UP TO A LENGTH OF TWO HANDBREADTHS; AND THAT OF THE BLACKSMITHS' HAMMER, UP TO THREE HANDBREADTHS.

MISHNAH 7. THE REMNANT OF THE SHAFT OF AN OX-GOAD²¹ AT ITS UPPER END²² IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE TO A LENGTH OF FOUR [HANDBREADTHS];²³ THE SHAFT OF A SPADE, TO A LENGTH OF FOUR [HANDBREADTHS]; THE SHAFT OF A WEEDING-SPADE, TO FIVE HANDBREADTHS; THE SHAFT OF A SMALL HAMMER, TO FIVE HANDBREADTHS; THAT OF A COMMON HAMMER, TO SIX HANDBREADTHS; THE SHAFT OF AN AXE USED FOR SPLITTING WOOD OR OF ONE USED FOR DIGGING, TO SIX [HANDBREADTHS]; AND THE SHAFT OF THE STONE-TRIMMERS' AXE, UP TO SIX HANDBREADTHS.

MISHNAH 8. THE REMNANT OF THE SHAFT OF AN OX-GOAD²¹ AT ITS LOWER END²⁴ IS REGARDED AS A CONNECTIVE TO A LENGTH OF SEVEN HANDBREADTHS; THE SHAFT OF THE TROWEL OF HOUSEHOLDERS — BETH SHAMMAI RULED: TO A LENGTH OF SEVEN [HANDBREADTHS], AND BETH HILLEL RULED: TO ONE OF EIGHT [HANDBREADTHS]; THAT OF THE PLASTERERS — BETH SHAMMAI RULED: NINE [HANDBREADTHS] AND BETH HILLEL RULED: TEN [HANDBREADTHS]. ANY PARTS EXCEEDING THESE LENGTHS, IF IT WAS DESIRED TO RETAIN IT, IS ALSO SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.²⁵ THE SHAFTS OF FIRE INSTRUMENTS²⁶ ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS WHATSOEVER THEIR LENGTH.

- (1) Sc. the loose threads of the warp hanging from the ends or the garments enumerated.
- (2) So that where the fringe contracted uncleanness the main garment also contracts it, and vice versa.
- (3) Beyond this length the fringes are insusceptible to uncleanness and, therefore, they neither convey to, nor contract from the garment any uncleanness.
- (4) That were stitched together by the fuller or kept together in the weaving by the threads of the warp.
- (5) However large it may be.
- (6) If one of them contracted it, all become unclean.
- (7) At the conclusion of a period of uncleanness. If only one of them was sprinkled upon (cf. Num. XIX, 18) all become clean.
- (8) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut. Only the one that was sprinkled upon becomes clean.
- (9) Sc. they are always treated as separate and independent units.
- (10) Used in the construction of small buildings.
- (11) With the plummet. If the plummet contracted uncleanness only the length of use given also becomes unclean; but if uncleanness touches any part beyond this length, the main portion of the plummet remains clean.
- (12) Aliter: Handbreadths.
- (13) Used in the construction of big buildings.
- (14) For practical use.
- (15) Since only that part which is essential for ordinary use may be regarded as a connective.
- (16) Whereby the beam is suspended or held.
- (17) If the balance contracted uncleanness that length of cord also becomes unclean.
- (18) Since such a shaft renders the axe useless for work and would eventually be entirely discarded.
- (19) Lit., 'remnants'.
- (20) Whereby the beam is suspended or held.
- (21) That was broken.
- (22) The part adjacent to the pointed end of the goad (cf. supra XXV, 2).
- (23) Beyond that and beyond seven handbreadths from the broad blade the shaft is insusceptible to all uncleanness.
- (24) That part that is adjacent to the broad blade (cf. n. 3).
- (25) As a connective.
- (26) A spit, for instance.

Mishna - Mas. Kelim Chapter 30

MISHNAH 1. AMONG GLASS-WARE THOSE THAT ARE FLAT ARE NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS AND THOSE THAT FORM RECEPTACLES ARE SUSCEPTIBLE.¹ AFTER THEY ARE BROKEN THEY BECOME CLEAN;² AND IF ONE AGAIN MADE UTENSILS OF THEM THEY BECOME HENCEFORTH SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A GLASS TRAY OR A FLAT DISH IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF THEY HAVE A RIM THEY ARE SUSCEPTIBLE. THE CONCAVE BOTTOM OF A GLASS³ BOWL OR PLATE³ WHICH WAS ADAPTED FOR USE REMAINS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁴ IF THEY WERE POLISHED OR SCRAPED WITH A FILE THEY BECOME SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.⁵

MISHNAH 2. A MIRROR IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. A TRAY⁶ THAT WAS MADE INTO A MIRROR REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE, BUT IF IT WAS ORIGINALLY MADE TO SERVE AS A MIRROR⁷ IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE.⁸ A SPOON⁶ THAT IS LAID ON A TABLE IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS IF IT CAN HOLD ANYTHING WHATSOEVER; BUT IF IT CANNOT DO SO,⁹ R. AKIBA RULES THAT IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE,¹⁰ AND R. JOHANAN B. NURI RULES THAT IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE.¹¹

MISHNAH 3. A CU⁶ THE GREATER PART OF WHICH IS BROKEN OFF IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF IT WAS BROKEN IN THREE PLACES¹² EXTENDING OVER ITS GREATER PART IT IS ALSO INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. R. SIMEON RULED: IF IT LETS THE GREATER PART OF THE WATER LEAK OUT IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS. IF A HOLE APPEARED IN IT AND IT WAS MENDED WITH TIN OR PITCH IT IS STILL INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS.¹³ R. JOSE RULED: IF WITH TIN IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹⁴ BUT IF WITH PITCH IT IS INSUSCEPTIBLE.

MISHNAH 4. A SMALL FLASK WHOSE NECK¹⁵ WAS REMOVED REMAINS SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS,¹⁶ BUT A LARGE ONE WHOSE NECK WAS REMOVED BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE.¹⁷ ONE OF SPIKENARD OIL WHOSE NECK¹⁵ WAS REMOVED BECOMES INSUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, SINCE IT¹⁸ SCRATCHES THE HAND. LARGE FLAGONS¹⁹ WHOSE NECKS WERE REMOVED REMAIN SUSCEPTIBLE TO UNCLEANNESS, SINCE THEY ARE ADAPTED FOR THE USE OF HOLDING PICKLED FOODSTUFFS. A GLASS MILL-FUNNEL IS CLEAN.²⁰ R. JOSE OBSERVED: 'BLESSED ART THOU, O KELIM; FOR, THOUGH THOU DIDST ENTER WITH UNCLEANNESS,²¹ THOU ART GONE FORTH IN CLEANNESS'.²²

(1) Cf. supra II, 1; XV, 1.

(2) Even where they were formerly unclean.

(3) That was broken.

(4) Since the rough edges of the broken sides constitute a source of danger.

(5) Cf. prev. n. mut. mut.

(6) Of glass.

(7) Even though it had a receptacle.

(8) Since the receptacle was not intended to hold anything.

(9) When its bottom, for instance, is concave.

(10) Because this is the manner of its use.

(11) As it cannot hold anything it cannot be regarded as a valid receptacle.

(12) Var. lec., 'a third'.

(13) Because neither sticks for long to glass.

(14) Being a metal.

(15) Lit., 'mouth'.

(16) Since it can be easily carried on one hand without risk of injury it continues to be used as a receptacle for liquids.

(17) Having to be carried with both hands there is the danger of receiving a cut from the broken edges in consequence of which the flask is unusable.

(18) By being carried, owing to the smallness of its size, within the hollow of one hand.

(19) V. p. 141, n. 6.

(20) Sc. insusceptible to uncleanness. Being open at the bottom it forms no valid receptacle.

(21) 'FATHERS OF UNCLEANNESS' (supra I, 1).

(22) 'MILL-FUNNEL IS CLEAN', the last ruling in the tractate. A moral lesson to man to endeavour to achieve purity of life before his time comes to depart from this world.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. WHEAT AND DARNEL¹ DO NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM² ONE WITH THE OTHER.³ [LIKEWISE] BARLEY AND OATS, OR SPELT AND RYE, OR BEANS AND CHICK-PEAS, OR BITTER PEAS⁴ AND TOFAH,⁵ OR WHITE BEANS AND KIDNEY BEANS, DO NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM ONE WITH THE OTHER.³

MISHNAH 2. CUCUMBERS AND CUCUMBER-MELON⁶ DO NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM ONE WITH THE OTHER. R. JUDAH SAID THEY DO CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM. GARDEN-LETTUCE AND WILD⁷ LETTUCE, OR ENDIVES AND WILD⁸ ENDIVES, OR LEEK AND WILD⁸ LEEK, OR CORIANDER AND WILD⁸ CORIANDER, OR MUSTARD AND EGYPTIAN MUSTARD, OR THE EGYPTIAN AND THE BITTER-APPLE,⁹ OR EGYPTIAN BEANS¹⁰ AND BEANS IN CAROB-SHAPED PODS DO NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM ONE WITH THE OTHER.

MISHNAH 3. TURNIPS AND RADISHES,¹¹ OR CABBAGE AND CAULIFLOWER, OR BEET AND GARDEN-ORACHE DO NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM ONE WITH THE OTHER. R. AKIBA ADDED: ALSO GARLIC AND SMALL WILD GARLIC, OR ONION AND SMALL WILD ONION, OR LUPINE AND WILD LUPINE DO NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM ONE WITH THE OTHER.

MISHNAH 4. AS FOR TREES, THE PEAR AND THE CRUSTUMENIAN PEAR,¹² OR THE QUINCE AND SORB-APPLE, DO NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM ONE WITH THE OTHER. THE APPLE AND THE CRAB-APPLE, OR THE PEACH AND ALMOND, OR THE JUJUBE¹³ AND LOTE, EVEN THOUGH THEY ARE SIMILAR ONE TO THE OTHER, YET CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM¹⁴ ONE WITH THE OTHER.

MISHNAH 5. HORSE-RADISH AND RADISH,¹⁵ OR MUSTARD AND CHARLOCK,¹⁶ OR THE GREEK GOURD WITH THE EGYPTIAN GOURD OR [THE GREEK GOURD] WITH THE BITTER-APPLE, EVEN THOUGH THEY ARE SIMILAR ONE TO THE OTHER, ARE NEVERTHELESS,¹⁷ KIL'AYIM ONE WITH THE OTHER.

MISHNAH 6. A WOLF AND A DOG, OR A WILD¹⁸ DOG AND A JACKAL, OR A GOAT AND A DEER, OR A GAZELLE AND A EWE-LAMB, OR A HORSE AND A MULE, OR A MULE AND AN ASS, OR AN ASS AND A WILD-ASS, EVEN THOUGH THEY ARE SIMILAR ONE TO THE OTHER, CONSTITUTE NEVERTHELESS, KIL'AYIM¹⁹ ONE WITH THE OTHER.

MISHNAH 7. IT IS NOT PERMITTED TO GRAFT FROM ONE TREE TO ANOTHER,²⁰ OR FROM ONE HERB TO ANOTHER,²¹ OR FROM A TREE TO A HERB, OR FROM A HERB TO A TREE. R. JUDAH PERMITS IT FROM A HERB TO A TREE.²²

MISHNAH 8. IT IS NOT PERMITTED TO PLANT HERBS IN A TRUNK OF A SYCAMORE. IT IS NOT PERMITTED TO GRAFT RUE ON WHITE CASSIA, SINCE THAT IS [GRAFTING] A HERB ON A TREE. IT IS FORBIDDEN TO PLANT A YOUNG FIG-SHOOT IN A CISTUS SHRUB²³ FOR THE PURPOSE OF PROVIDING SHADE²⁴ FOR THE LATTER, OR TO INSERT A VINE-SHOOT INTO A MELON IN ORDER THAT THE LATTER MIGHT CONTRIBUTE²⁵ ITS MOISTURE TO THE FORMER, SINCE THAT IS [GRAFTING] A TREE ON A HERB. IT IS PROHIBITED TO PLACE GOURD SEED INTO THE JUICE OF A MALLOW FOR THE PURPOSE OF PRESERVING THE FORMER,²⁶ SINCE THAT CONSTITUTES [GRAFTING] A HERB ON A [HETEROGENEOUS] HERB.

MISHNAH 9. ONE WHO BURIES²⁷ TURNIPS OR HORSERADISH²⁸ BENEATH A VINE,

WITH SOME OF THEIR LEAVES UNCOVERED,²⁹ NEED HAVE NO APPREHENSION AS TO TRANSGRESSING THE LAW OF KIL'AYIM,³⁰ OR THE LAW OF THE SEVENTH YEAR,³¹ OR THAT OF TITHES;³² THEY MAY ALSO BE PULLED UP ON THE SABBATH.³³ IF ONE SOWS A WHEAT-GRAIN AND A BARLEY-GRAIN WITH ONE THROW OF THE HAND IT DOES NOT CONSTITUTE KIL'AYIM.³⁴ R. JUDAH SAID IT IS NOT KIL'AYIM UNLESS THERE BE TWO WHEAT-GRAINS AND ONE BARLEY-GRAIN, OR ONE WHEAT-GRAIN AND TWO BARLEY-GRAINS, OR A WHEAT-GRAIN, A BARLEY-GRAIN AND A SPELT-GRAIN.³⁵

- (1) This Mishnah deals with grain and pulse which can be ground into flour.
- (2) 'Mingled seeds' within the meaning of the Biblical precept, (Lev. XIX, 19) prohibiting the sowing of such.
- (3) Despite such dissimilarities there is between the two of each pair.
- (4) פרקדן T.J. 27a, גולבינא which according to Jast. quoting Fleischer (in Levy Talm. Dict.) is Vicia sativa, Lathyrus cicerea.
- (5) Jast. An aquatic plant like the colocasia.
- (6) מלפפון.
- (7) Lit., mound: or 'hill'.
- (8) Lit., 'field'.
- (9) דלעת (רמוצה), a kind of gourd made edible by rolling in hot ashes.
- (10) Colocasia. (Jast.).
- (11) A species having foliage like carrots and taste like radishes.
- (12) Crusihimum (pyrum).
- (13) Zizyphus.
- (14) In respect of grafting only.
- (15) V. supra 3, n. 11.
- (16) A plant resembling the mustard plant.
- (17) On account of dissimilarity of flavour.
- (18) Lit., 'village'.
- (19) In respect of crossbreeding., v. Lev. XIX, 19, Deut. XXII, 10.
- (20) Sc. dissimilar to it in accordance with Mishnah 4. This prohibition applies to grafting as between one fruit tree and another dissimilar to it, between a fruit tree and a non-fruit tree, but not as between one non-fruit tree and another.
- (21) Sc. dissimilar to it in accordance with the classifications already given. 'Herb' (ירק) is the term for vegetables, garden produce planted in rows.
- (22) Or vice-versa, since they never coalesce to form a hybrid species, even though one may draw nourishment from the other. The original Tanna of the Mishnah held that the latter consideration is decisive, and his opinion prevails.
- (23) Used for hedging.
- (24) Or, cooling.
- (25) Lit., 'inject', 'infuse'.
- (26) Until it germinates in the soil (L.).
- (27) For keeping fresh; not 'plants'.
- (28) In bundles, so that it is clear that the purpose is not planting.
- (29) This proviso is immaterial except in respect of their being pulled out on the Sabbath.
- (30) Since only the sowing of 'mixed seeds' in a vineyard is prohibited (Deut. XXII, 9), not the burying.
- (31) Since only sowing (i.e., for purposes of reproduction), not burying (for purposes of keeping fresh) is prohibited in the Sabbatical Year. (Lev. XXV, 4).
- (32) Produce is subject to tithes only as harvested off the tree or ground (v. Lev. XXVII, 30). These vegetables had, it is presumed, been duly tithed already; they do not require tithing again by reason of having been buried underground to be kept fresh.
- (33) The prohibition of 'plucking' (תולש) on the Sabbath applies only to produce attached by roots to the ground; these vegetables had been 'plucked' already. Also the (indirect) 'handling' of the soil involved in the moving of the soil adhering to the vegetables, does not come within the prohibition of 'handling' on the Sabbath (v. Shab. 123a), since it is done for the purpose of what is permissible for use on the Sabbath.

(34) Since the word kil'ayim is a dual, it would follow that the sowing of the minimum of two heterogeneous seeds comes under the prohibition.

(35) Since Scripture says: Thou shalt not sow thy field with two kinds of seed (Lev. XIX, 19) it follows, according to R. Judah, that the sowing of two diverse seeds becomes prohibited only when it is on 'Thy field' i.e., on ground in which at least one other seed has been, or is being sown; the prohibition thus applies only to the sowing of a minimum of three seeds, either all three heterogeneous, or comprising two like seeds and one heterogeneous to them.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. IF A SE'AH¹ CONTAINS A QUARTER [OF A KAB]² OF A HETEROGENEOUS SPECIES, ONE SHOULD REDUCE [THE PROPORTION OF THE LATTER]³ (R. JOSE SAID ONE SHOULD PICK [IT ALL OUT]).⁴ WHETHER IT [THE ADMIXTURE] CONSISTS OF ONE SPECIES OR OF TWO⁵ SPECIES.⁶ R. SIMEON SAID: THEY SAID THIS⁷ ONLY IF IT CONSISTS OF ONE SPECIES.⁸ THE SAGES SAID: [ONLY] THAT WHICH IS KIL'AYIM VIS-A-VIS THE [MAIN CONTENTS OF THE] SE'AH COUNTS IN MAKING UP THE QUARTER.⁹

MISHNAH 2. IN RESPECT OF WHAT [MIXTURES OF PRODUCE] ARE THE [ABOVE] RULES¹⁰ STATED? IN RESPECT OF [AN ADMIXTURE OF] GRAIN [OCCURRING] IN [HETEROGENEOUS] GRAIN, OF PULSE IN [HETEROGENEOUS] PULSE, OF GRAIN IN PULSE, AND OF PULSE IN GRAIN.

IT IS AN IMMEMORIAL RULE:¹¹ GARDEN-SEED OF A KIND WHICH IS NOT USED AS FOOD,¹² COUNTS QUANTITATIVELY. [IN THE MATTER OF KIL'AYIM] IF [WITHIN A SE'AH OF PRODUCE] IT FORMS [AS LITTLE AS] ONE TWENTY-FOURTH OF THE QUANTITY [OF SUCH SEED] THAT CAN BE SOWN IN A BETH-SE'AH.¹³ R. SIMEON SAID: EVEN AS THEY RULED¹⁴ THUS [IN CIRCUMSTANCES WHEN THE APPLICATION OF THE RULE IS CALCULATED] TO RESULT IN A STRINGENCY,¹⁵ EVEN SO THEY RULED THUS [IN CIRCUMSTANCES WHEN THE APPLICATION OF THE RULE IS CALCULATED] TO RESULT IN A LENIENCY.¹⁶ [ACCORDINGLY,¹⁷ IN THE CASE OF AN ADMIXTURE OF] LIN SEED¹⁸ IN GRAIN THE QUANTITY [OF THE FORMER] COUNTS WHEN IT FORMS [AS MUCH AS] ONE TWENTY-FOURTH OF THE QUANTITY [OF SUCH SEED] THAT CAN BE SOWN IN A BETH-SE'AH.¹⁹

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE'S FIELD IS SOWN WITH WHEAT AND ON SECOND THOUGHTS HE DECIDES TO SOW IT WITH BARLEY, HE MUST WAIT UNTIL IT [THE WHEAT] ROTTS,²⁰ THEN HE TURNS [THE SOIL].²¹ AND, THEREAFTER, HE MAY SOW [THE BARLEY]. IF IT HAS ALREADY GROWN,²² HE MUST NOT SAY: 'I SHALL [FIRST] SOW [THE BARLEY] AND, THEREAFTER TURN [THE SOIL]'²³ BUT HE MUST TURN [THE SOIL] [FIRST], AND, THEREAFTER, HE MAY SOW [THE BARLEY]. TO WHAT EXTENT SHOULD ONE [IN THE ABOVE CIRCUMSTANCES] PLOUGH? FURROWS SUCH AS ARE PLOUGHED AFTER²⁴ THE [FIRST] RAINY SEASON.²⁵ ABBA SAUL SAID: [ONE SHOULD PLOUGH] SO THAT ONE DOES NOT LEAVE [UNPLOUGHED] AS MUCH [GROUND]²⁶ AS HOLDS A QUARTER [KAB] TO A BETH-SE'AH.

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE'S FIELD HAS BEEN SOWN [WITH GRAIN, OR PULSE, OR GARDEN-SEED], AND ON SECOND THOUGHTS HE DECIDED TO PLANT IT [WITH VINES], HE MAY NOT SAY: I SHALL [FIRST] PLANT [THE VINES] AND THEREAFTER TURN [THE SOIL], BUT HE MUST [FIRST] TURN [THE SOIL] AND THEREAFTER HE MAY PLANT [THE VINES].

[IF IT WAS] 'PLANTED' [WITH VINES]²⁷ AND ON SECOND THOUGHTS HE DECIDED

TO SOW IT [WITH GRAIN ETC.], HE MAY NOT SAY: 'I SHALL SOW [THE GRAIN ETC.] AND AFTERWARDS I SHALL UPROOT [THE VINES],' BUT HE MUST [FIRST] UPROOT [THE VINES] AND THEREAFTER HE MAY SOW [THE GRAIN ETC.]. IF HE DESIRES IT, HE MAY CUT DOWN [THE VINES] TO LESS THAN A HANDBREADTH [ABOVE GROUND], WHEREAFTER HE MAY SOW [THE GRAIN ETC.] AND LATER, UPROOT [THE VINES].

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE'S FIELD IS SOWN WITH COMMON CUMIN²⁸ OR WITH LOF,²⁹ HE MUST NOT SOW³⁰ ON TOP OF THEM, SINCE THEY PRODUCE CROPS ONLY AFTER THREE YEARS.³¹ [A FIELD OF] GRAIN AMONG WHICH SPRANG UP SOME AFTERGROWTH OF ISATIS [TINCTORIA].³² LIKEWISE THE AREA OF A THRESHING-FLOOR IN WHICH MANY SPECIES³³ SPRANG UP, LIKEWISE [A FIELD OF] FENUGREEK AMONG WHICH GREW UP A NUMBER OF SPECIES OF HERBS,³⁴ HE IS NOT OBLIGED TO WEED THEM OUT.³⁵ BUT ONCE HE HAS DONE SOME WEEDING OUT OR [EVEN ONLY] CUTTING DOWN,³⁶ HE IS TOLD: 'UPROOT ALL EXCEPT ONE SPECIES.'³⁷

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE WISHES TO LAY OUT HIS FIELD IN LONG BEDS EACH SOWN WITH A DIFFERENT SPECIES, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: [HE SHOULD SEPARATE THEM BY THE WIDTH OF] THREE FURROWS OF NEWLY BROKEN LAND,³⁸ WHILE BETH HILLEL SAY: BY THE WIDTH OF A SHARON YOKE.³⁹ THE DICTUM OF THE ONE IS IN EFFECT APPROXIMATE TO THE DICTUM OF THE OTHER.⁴⁰

MISHNAH 7. IF THE POINT OF A TRIANGLE⁴¹ OF [A] WHEAT [FIELD] OVERLAPS INTO⁴² [A] BARLEY [FIELD].⁴³ IT IS PERMITTED SINCE IT IS APPARENT THAT IT IS THE END OF HIS FIELD.⁴⁴ IF ONE MAN'S FIELD IS OF WHEAT, AND THAT OF HIS NEIGHBOUR OF ANOTHER SPECIES, THE FORMER IS PERMITTED TO SOW [IN HIS OWN FIELD] CLOSE TO HIS NEIGHBOUR'S FIELD, SOME OF THE SPECIES OF THE LATTER.⁴⁵ IF ONE MAN'S FIELD IS OF WHEAT AND THAT OF HIS NEIGHBOUR LIKEWISE OF WHEAT, HE MAY SOW CLOSE THERETO A ROW OF FLAX,⁴⁶ BUT NOT A ROW OF ANY OTHER [HETEROGENEOUS] SPECIES.⁴⁷ R. SIMEON SAID: IT IS ALL THE SAME WHETHER HE SOWS FLAX OR ANY OTHER SPECIES.⁴⁸ R. JOSE SAID: EVEN IN THE MIDDLE OF ONE'S FIELD IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW, FOR EXPERIMENTAL PURPOSES, A ROW OF FLAX.⁴⁹

MISHNAH 8. IT IS FORBIDDEN TO SOW⁵⁰ MUSTARD OR SAFFRON CLOSE TO A CORN-FIELD,⁵¹ BUT IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW MUSTARD OR BASTARD SAFFRON CLOSE TO A VEGETABLE FIELD.⁵² ONE MAY SOW [HETEROGENEOUS SPECIES] CLOSE TO FALLOW LAND⁵³ OR TO PLOUGHED⁵⁴ LAND,⁵³ OR TO A LOOSESTONE FENCE, OR TO A PATH, OR TO A FENCE TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH, OR TO A TRENCH TEN [HANDBREADTHS] DEEP AND FOUR WIDE, OR TO A TREE FORMING A TENT OVER THE GROUND, TO A ROCK TEN [HANDBREADTHS] HIGH AND FOUR WIDE [ON EITHER SIDE OF THE INTERVENING OBJECT OR SPACE].⁵⁵

MISHNAH 9. IF ONE WISHES TO DIVIDE HIS FIELD KARAHATH⁵⁶ BY KARAHATH EACH TO BE SOWN WITH A DIFFERENT SPECIES, HE SHOULD DIVIDE IT INTO TWENTY-FOUR KARAHATH, A KARAHATH TO A BETH-ROBA',⁵⁷ AND HE MAY THEN SOW IN EACH WHATEVER SPECIES HE DESIRES.⁵⁸ IF THERE IS ONE KARAHATH OR TWO,⁵⁹ HE MAY SOW THEM WITH MUSTARD, BUT IF THERE ARE THREE⁵⁹ HE MAY NOT SOW THEM WITH MUSTARD, SINCE IT WOULD LOOK LIKE A FIELD OF MUSTARD.⁶⁰ THIS IS THE OPINION OF R. MEIR. BUT THE SAGES SAID:⁶¹ NINE KARAHATH ARE PERMITTED,⁶² TEN ARE FORBIDDEN. R. ELLEZER B. JACOB, SAID: EVEN THOUGH THE WHOLE OF ONE'S FIELD IS A BETH-KOR, HE MAY NOT MAKE WITHIN IT BEYOND ONE KARAHATH.⁶³

MISHNAH 10. WHATEVER⁶⁴ THERE IS WITHIN A BETH-ROBA' [WHICH SEPARATES HETEROGENEOUS SPECIES] IS INCLUDED IN⁶⁵ THE AREA OF THE BETH-ROBA'. THE SPACE OCCUPIED BY VINE ROOTS,⁶⁶ LIKEWISE A GRAVE,⁶⁷ OR A ROCK,⁶⁸ IS INCLUDED. [A KARAHATH SOWN WITH] GRAIN WITHIN [A FIELD OF HETEROGENEOUS] GRAIN [MUST BE SEPARATED BY] A BETH-ROBA';⁶⁹ [A KARAHATH SOWN WITH] VEGETABLES WITHIN [A FIELD OF HETEROGENEOUS] VEGETABLES [BY] SIX HANDBREADTHS [SQUARE];⁷⁰ [A KARAHATH SOWN WITH] VEGETABLES WITHIN [A FIELD OF] GRAIN, OR [A KARAHATH SOWN WITH] GRAIN WITHIN [A FIELD OF] VEGETABLES [BY] A BETH-ROBA'.⁷¹ R. ELIEZER SAID: [A KARAHATH SOWN WITH] VEGETABLES WITHIN [A FIELD OF] GRAIN [NEED BE SEPARATED BY] SIX HANDBREADTHS [SQUARE].⁷²

MISHNAH 11. [EARS OF] CORN BENDING OVER ON TO [EARS OF HETEROGENEOUS] CORN,⁷³ OR VEGETABLE [LEAVES] ON TO [LEAVES OF A HETEROGENEOUS] VEGETABLE,⁷⁴ OR [EARS OF] CORN ON TO VEGETABLE [LEAVES],⁷⁴ OR VEGETABLE [LEAVES] ON TO [EARS OF] CORN,⁷⁴ ALL THIS IS PERMITTED,⁷⁵ EXCEPT IN THE CASE OF THE GREEK GOURD.⁷⁶ R. MEIR SAID: '[EXCEPT] ALSO IN THE CASE OF THE CUCUMBER OR EGYPTIAN BEANS;⁷⁷ BUT I RECOGNIZE THEIR⁷⁸ DICTUM AS MORE ACCEPTABLE THAN MINE'.⁷⁹

(1) Of produce about to be sown.

(2) Also known as a log. 4 log == 1 kab; 6 kab == 1 se'ah.

(3) Either by adding to the main species or by taking away from the lesser admixture, so that the latter is less than one twenty-fourth of the bulk.

(4) Once he has to remove the admixture he should remove the whole of it. (T.J.). Otherwise it would appear as if he is positively maintaining, or even, as if he is deliberately bringing about kil'ayim. (T.B., B.B. 94b and Rashi ibid).

(5) Or more.

(6) Even if one of them is not kil'ayim vis-a-vis the main species. One must in either case reduce the proportion of the total of the admixture(s) to less than one twenty-fourth of the bulk. R. Jose's view is not accepted.

(7) I.e., the authorities ruled thus.

(8) Sc. but not of two or more species, as long as these do not together amount to the greater part of the bulk; if they do, R. Simeon agrees that the proportion of the combined admixtures must be reduced.

(9) E.g., a se'ah of grain consisting substantially of barley and partially to the amount of the minimum of a quarter kab — of oats and spelt. Now whilst spelt is kil'ayim vis-a-vis the barley, oats are not. In such a case, the Sages said the spelt and oats do not 'combine' to form a quarter kab condemning the whole se'ah as kil'ayim (and there is, therefore, no need to reduce the proportion of the oats-cum-spelt); according to the anonymous original Tanna of the Mishnah they do 'combine' (and one should 'reduce'); according to R. Simeon even if both (or all) of the constituents of the quarter-kab of admixture are kil'ayim towards the main contents of the se'ah, they do not 'combine'.

(10) Lit., 'words'. Sc. regarding the proportion of admixture to bulk, viz., 1 to 24, rendering kil'ayim.

(11) באמת אמרו 'As a matter of (trustworthily tradited and undisputedly accepted) truth they said', a phrase which, according to R. Eleazar in T.J. to this Mishnah, introduces a rule held to have been orally communicated by God to Moses at Sinai. V. Frankel, Darke (ed. Warsaw 1923) p. 304, and Bacher, Tradition, p. 41.

(12) E.g., turnip-seed or parsley-seed or any seed which, by reason of fineness or any other reason, requires extensive area for sowing.

(13) A standard measure of area — to wit 2,500 square cubits — designed for sowing a se'ah of wheat. In relation to our problem it works out thus: Since 'garden-seed' is so much finer than wheat and its produce takes up more space, only 1 1/2 kab of it can be sown in a beth-se'ah. A twenty-fourth of that quantity viz., one sixteenth, of a kab of 'garden-seed' forming part of a se'ah of wheat, is, accordingly, sufficient to render it kil'ayim.

(14) Viz., that the proportion of produce which renders kil'ayim is one twenty-fourth of the quantity of that same produce which can be sown in a beth-se'ah. According to Maim. this refers to the rule in Mishnah 1 regarding an admixture consisting of one or two species. See latter part of n. 2, p. 93.

- (15) Viz., necessitating the reduction of the proportion of an admixture of fine seed even when there is no more of it than one sixteenth kab within a se'ah of grain or pulse.
- (16) I.e., when the admixture is of a seed coarser, or which is sown more closely, and therefore requires less area than wheat.
- (17) Maim., however, says that what follows is not a continuation of R. Simeon's statement, but a resumption of the words of the anonymous original Tanna of the Mishnah., v. n. 2, p. 93, latter part.
- (18) Which is sown more compactly than wheat, so that three se'ahs of it can be sown in a beth-se'ah.
- (19) One need not reduce the proportion of linseed in wheat unless there is as much as $\frac{3}{4}$ kab of the former within a se'ah of the latter. Maim. construes the Mishnah text thus: R. Simeon said: Even as they ruled (that two heterogeneous species do not 'combine') to effect a stringency (as implied in his statement in the preceding Mishnah., v. ibid. n. 8), even so they ruled (that two heterogeneous species do not 'combine') to effect a leniency. An instance of the latter is cited, by way of example in T.J. ad loc: A mixture measuring a se'ah (i.e., twenty-four quarter kabs) consists of twenty-two and a half 'quarters' of wheat, half 'quarter' of barley, and less than one 'quarter' of lentils. Now if 'combining' two or more species were permitted, then one might consider that, since the half 'quarter' of barley is too small a quantity to render the mixture (of twenty-two and a half quarter wheat plus half quarter barley) kil'ayim, the wheat and barley may be taken as forming a combined quantity of twenty-three quarters and since the maximum amount of lentils, viz. .9 'quarter'. is less than one twenty-fourth of 23.9 (the whole of the mixture) the lentils do not render the mixture kil'ayim, and there would consequently be no need to 'reduce' the lentils which, of course, is a 'leniency'; but, says, R. Simeon, 'combining' is not allowed whatever the consequence, be it a stringency or a leniency. The position according to R. Simeon is that .9 'quarters' lentils got mixed with twenty-two and a half 'quarters' wheat, and .9 being more than one twenty-fourth of (22.5 plus .9), the lentils alone are sufficient to render the mixture kil'ayim, and the proportion of these must be reduced.
- (20) Or, 'until it shoots forth thin worm-like roots in the soil'. In well-watered ground this takes three days; in dry soil it takes longer.
- (21) With a plough; so as to destroy the first-sown crop.
- (22) And the wheat is already visible above ground.
- (23) Thinking to himself: 'I shall be able, after sowing the new grain, to see the sprouting first-sown grain to destroy it'.
- (24) So Rash. and Bert., but Maim. (Yad, Hilch. Kil'ayim II, 13) 'before'.
- (25) I.e., wide furrows, there being no need to plough close furrows.
- (26) Either in one plot, or in an aggregate of more than one lesser patch.
- (27) So the commentators, since with regard to other trees only grafting of a tree with a heterogeneous tree, or of trees with 'herbs', is prohibited.
- (28) Edd. קנבום (== hemp) which is impossible here, but read (with R. Isaac Sipponi) קרבם.
- (29) לוף, a plant of the bulb type.
- (30) Sc. a heterogeneous species.
- (31) These species stay intact in the soil for a long time without rotting. Ploughing up the soil will, therefore, not avail to destroy their productivity, so that even with 'turning the soil' a heterogeneous seed sown on top of these would constitute kil'ayim.
- (32) אסמים. It is injurious to grain.
- (33) Which spoil the threshing-floor.
- (34) Which are noxious to fenugreek when the latter is intended for human consumption.
- (35) Because (a) the strange species have not been deliberately sown there; (b) their presence there is not welcome, and, consequently (c) no person noticing the mixed species will even suspect the owner of intentionally sowing kil'ayim. Weeding out means, of course, pulling out by the roots.
- (36) Either of one or of some of the species springing up from the threshing-floor. This would show, or, at least, suggest, that the intention is not to clear the threshing-floor, but merely to get rid of only some of the growths and to retain the others.
- (37) As otherwise it would appear as if he is purposely maintaining kil'ayim.
- (38) Representing a distance of two cubits.
- (39) A yoke, or team, as used in the plain of the Sharon, was wider than the yoke driven in the hilly districts.
- (40) I.e., The Hillelite standard represents also about (but rather less than) two cubits. According to T.J. it is sufficient as long as at some place between the two long beds there is this distance, even if further on the intervening space narrows down, since it is already clear that the intention, so far from sowing kil'ayim, was, in fact, to keep the heterogeneous species apart.

(41) ראש תיר . Most commentators take תור as meaning originally, a triangular feminine ornament. (v. S.S. I, 10); Others as 'ox', an 'ox-head' suggesting a triangle.

(42) Or (as seems from the illustration within the text of Maim.'s commentary), abuts on.

(43) The possibilities visualized by commentators are: —

(44) The prohibition, according to Scripture, is only against sowing heterogeneous seeds with one and the same throw of the hand; otherwise the prohibition extends only to circumstances in which it would appear to strangers that kil'ayim had deliberately been sown. In this case it is clear to all that there was no such intention and that it is just a case of: here one field ends, and the other begins.

(45) So the majority of commentators. Rash attempts an alternative rendering. The reason for permissibility here is that (a) in strict law it is permitted, and (b) there is not even a likelihood of suspicion on the part of a stranger, since anyone not acquainted with the actual facts would assume that the heterogeneous crop belonged to the other man's field, where its presence is perfectly proper.

(46) No one will think that he sowed the one row of flax for its actual yield, but will assume that he did it as an experiment to test the suitability of the soil for flax.

(47) Since, even if his intention is experimentation, a stranger seeing it would not, as a matter of course, assume it.

(48) Either is prohibited; so Maim. and Rash. But according to T.J. ad lec. R. Simeon held that either is permitted., v. L. to our Mishnah.

(49) Because its legitimate purpose cannot be mistaken.

(50) Where A's field adjoins B's.

(51) This is forbidden, because a stranger will assume, correctly, that mustard etc. being harmful as a neighbour to corn, A would have objected to B sowing the former, and therefore, that A must have sown it himself, and, incorrectly, that it had been done with 'one and the same handthrow'.

(52) Which is not harmed by the proximity of mustard etc.

(53) Being in area at least a beth-roba' i.e. , capable of being sown with a roba' (quarter kab) of wheat, viz., 104.15 square cubits; as long as there is this space somewhere between the two species, it does not matter if elsewhere the latter converge to within a narrower distance between them.

(54) But unsown.

(55) If the branches hang over until they reach to within three handbreadths from the ground, they are considered in law, as forming an effective partition.

(56) Lit., 'a bald or bare patch'. A term for a piece of ground as yet unsown, forming a part of a field, and quadrilateral, approximately square in shape, and, therefore, substantial enough to sight to be readily distinguishable in its surroundings.

(57) Since a beth-se'ah == 2,500 square cubits, a beth-roba' (one twenty-fourth of a beth-se'ah == 104.15 square cubits), i.e., an area of 10.205 cubits square.

(58) Since the various species each occupy an easily distinguishable plot, nobody will mistakenly think that heterogeneous species have been sown 'with one handthrow'; there is therefore no need for any object or space to separate one species from another.

(59) Sc. together.

(60) Considering that it is not usual to sow large areas of mustard, three beth-roba' thereof constitute a field, and a field within a field of heterogeneous species is prohibited.

(61) With regard to the subject of the first part of R. Meir's statement.

(62) The idea is that there must be a beth-roba' separating heterogeneous species. A field of a beth-se'ah should, thus, be divided into twenty-five squares. Since between each karahath to be sown there must be a beth-roba', i.e., a square approximately 10.205 X 10.205 cubits, the former will measure 9.86 X 9.86 cubits (approx), (After Maim.), thus. V. Diag. (a). Rash. visualized it similarly, except that he seems content to divide the beth-se'ah into 25 equal squares, and to accept an intervening unsown space of 10 X 10 cubits, instead of the strict beth-roba' which is 10.205 X 10.205 cubits. According to T.J., however, the scheme should be either of the following. V. Diag. (b). The objection to (b) would be that the centre square though not adjoined by another sown patch is, nevertheless, 'bound' at its four corners. It is true that this junction at corners is not forbidden as it comes under the rule at the beginning of Mishnah 7, but it might be thought that it is too much to extend such permissibility to a case where a sown patch is 'tied', at all of its four corners to heterogeneous species. Diagram (c) whilst fulfilling the conditions of T.J. (viz., that three patches be sown in the first line, two in the second, one in the third, two in the fourth, and one in the fifth) avoids even that possible objection.

(63) What R. Eliezer b. Jacob meant was, apparently, that however large the field (one kor == thirty se'ah), it is permissible to have with it only one karahath sown with a heterogeneous species.

(64) Even if the space occupied thereby be unfit for sowing, e.g., a ditch or gutter filled with water.

(65) I.e., the space occupied thereby is not deducted.

(66) Calculated to be six handbreadths from the vine in all directions, within which space it is forbidden to sow anything else.

(67) Which is forbidden for other use, including sowing.

(68) On which it is impossible to sow. In view of the rule at the end of Mishnah 8, the reference here must be to a rock less than ten handbreadths in height and four in width.

(69) Which is the minimum for a grain plantation to be termed a grain field.

(70) The minimum for a vegetable plantation to be termed a vegetable field.

(71) I.e., when both are 'fields'; but when there is only one row of vegetables adjoining a grain field, an intervening space of six by six handbreadths is sufficient.

(72) In his opinion we should not, in a case of a karahath and a field, be more stringent than in a case of a row and a field.

(73) Sc. although originally sown at the required distance from one another, and/or because, though separated by the required space at one place, the furrows or beds converge further on (cf. supra 8, n. 4).

(74) V. p. 99, n. 10.

(75) Since the heterogeneous species touch, one might have thought that on account of the appearance of kil'ayim, this is prohibited. The Mishnah therefore makes it clear that it is permitted.

(76) Whose leaves are particularly long and liable to entangle themselves with others, and thus create a very strong suggestion of kil'ayim.

(77) Their leaves and stalks are long enough and sufficiently liable to entangling to class them for the present purpose with the Greek gourd.

(78) I.e., the majority Rabbis'.

(79) R. Meir felt it his duty to record the view which had been tradited to him by his teachers, but also to acknowledge that there was more justification for the view put forward by his colleagues, and which he accepted as binding.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. IN A VEGETABLE-BED MEASURING SIX HANDBREADTHS BY SIX HANDBREADTHS¹ IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW FIVE [HETEROGENEOUS] VEGETABLE-SEEDS,² VIZ., FOUR [SPECIES]. [ONE] ON [EACH OF] THE FOUR SIDES OF THE BED, AND ONE³ IN THE MIDDLE.⁴ IF A VEGETABLE-BED HAS A BORDER ONE HANDBREADTH HIGH,⁵ ONE MAY SOW THEREIN THIRTEEN [HETEROGENEOUS SPECIES]. VIZ., THREE ON EVERY BORDER, AND ONE IN THE MIDDLE. IT IS PROHIBITED TO PLANT A TURNIP-HEAD IN THE BORDER SINCE THAT WOULD FILL IT [COMPLETELY].⁶

R. JUDAH SAID: [IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW] SIX [SPECIES] IN THE MIDDLE.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IT IS FORBIDDEN TO SOW HETEROGENEOUS SPECIES OF SEEDS⁸ IN ONE BED; IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW HETEROGENEOUS SPECIES OF VEGETABLE [SEEDS]⁹ IN ONE BED.¹⁰ MUSTARD AND SMALL POLISHED PEAS ARE A SPECIES OF SEED;¹¹ LARGE PEAS ARE A VEGETABLE SPECIES. IF A BORDER ORIGINALLY A HANDBREADTH HIGH¹² FELL IN HEIGHT, IT REMAINS VALID,¹³ SINCE IT WAS VALID AT THE BEGINNING.¹⁴

IN A FURROW OR WATER-COURSE¹⁵ A HANDBREADTH DEEP,¹⁶ IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW THREE HETEROGENEOUS SPECIES OF VEGETABLE [SEEDS]. ONE ON ONE SIDE,

ONE ON THE OTHER SIDE, AND ONE IN THE MIDDLE.¹⁷

MISHNAH 3. THE HEAD OF A TRIANGLE¹⁸ OF A VEGETABLE-FIELD OVERLAPPING INTO¹⁸ A FIELD OF ANOTHER VEGETABLE, IS PERMITTED, SINCE IT IS APPARENT THAT IT IS THE END OF THE FORMER FIELD! IF ONE'S FIELD IS SOWN WITH A CERTAIN VEGETABLE AND HE WISHES TO PLANT THEREIN A ROW OF ANOTHER VEGETABLE,¹⁹ R. ISHMAEL SAID: [HE MAY DO SO] AS LONG AS THE FURROW²⁰ RUNS RIGHT THROUGH FROM ONE END OF THE FIELD TO THE OTHER; R. AKIBA SAID: [AS LONG AS] THE LENGTH [THEREOF] IS SIX HANDBREADTHS AND THE WIDTH [THEREOF] ITS FULL ONE;²¹ R. JUDAH SAID: [AS LONG AS] THE WIDTH [THEREOF] IS THE FULL WIDTH OF A FOOTSTEP.²²

MISHNAH 4. PLANTING TWO ROWS²³ OF CUCUMBERS, TWO ROWS OF GOURDS, AND TWO ROWS OF EGYPTIAN BEANS IS PERMITTED,²⁴ [BUT PLANTING] ONE ROW OF CUCUMBERS, ONE ROW OF GOURDS AND ONE ROW OF EGYPTIAN BEANS IS PROHIBITED.²⁵ [AS FOR PLANTING] ONE ROW OF CUCUMBERS, ONE ROW OF GOURDS, ONE ROW OF EGYPTIAN BEANS AND [AGAIN] ONE ROW OF CUCUMBERS, R. ELIEZER PERMITS,²⁶ BUT THE SAGES FORBID.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. ONE MAY PLANT A CUCUMBER AND A GOURD²⁸ IN ONE DECLIVITY²⁹ PROVIDED ONLY THAT ONE [SPECIES] INCLINE IN ONE DIRECTION, AND THE OTHER IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION,³⁰ OR THAT THE TIPS OF THE LEAVES OF ONE [SPECIES] INCLINE ONE WAY, AND THE OTHER THE OPPOSITE WAY,³⁰ SINCE ALL THE SAGES' PROHIBITIONS [IN THE MATTER OF KIL'AYIM] WERE DECREED BY THEM ON ACCOUNT OF APPEARANCES.³¹

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE'S FIELD IS SOWN WITH ONIONS,³² AND HE WISHES TO PLANT THEREIN ROWS OF GOURDS, R. ISHMAEL SAID: HE MUST PULL UP TWO ROWS³³ [OF ONIONS]. AND PLANT [IN THE CLEARED SPACE] ONE ROW [OF GOURDS].³⁴ LEAVE THE ONION CROP OVER A SPACE OF TWO ROWS, PULL UP TWO ROWS [OF ONIONS] AND PLANT [IN THE CLEARED SPACE] ONE ROW [OF GOURDS; AND SO ON].³⁵ R. AKIBA SAID: HE MUST PULL UP TWO ROWS [OF ONIONS], PLANT [IN THE CLEARED SPACE] TWO ROWS [OF GOURDS].³⁶ LEAVE THE ONION CROP OVER A SPACE OF TWO ROWS, PULL UP TWO ROWS [OF ONIONS], AND PLANT TWO ROWS [OF GOURDS; AND SO ON].³⁷ THE SAGES SAID: IF BETWEEN ONE ROW [OF GOURDS] AND THE NEXT THERE ARE NOT TWELVE CUBITS, ONE MAY NOT ALLOW THAT WHICH IS SOWN IN THE INTERVENING SPACE TO REMAIN.³⁸

MISHNAH 7. A GOURD³⁹ AMONG A [HETEROGENEOUS] VEGETABLE [IS TO BE SEPARATED FROM THE LATTER BY AS MUCH] AS ANY OTHER [HETEROGENEOUS] VEGETABLE.⁴⁰ [A GOURD] AMONG CORN IS TO BE GIVEN [A SEPARATING SPACE OF] A BETH-ROBA'.⁴¹ IF ONE'S FIELD IS SOWN WITH CORN, AND HE WISHES TO PLANT WITHIN IT A ROW OF GOURDS, THE LATTER IS TO BE PROVIDED WITH A SERVICE-BORDER⁴² OF SIX HANDBREADTHS,⁴³ AND IF IT OVERGROWS [INTO THE BORDER] HE MUST PULL UP THAT WHICH IS WITHIN IT.⁴⁴ R. JOSE SAID: IT IS TO BE PROVIDED WITH A SERVICE-BORDER OF FOUR CUBITS. SAID THEY TO HIM: DO YOU RULE MORE STRINGENTLY WITH REGARD TO THIS THAN WITH REGARD TO A VINE'?⁴⁵ — SAID HE TO THEM: 'INDEED WE FIND THAT THIS IS TREATED MORE STRINGENTLY THAN A VINE, INASMUCH AS FOR A SINGLE VINE A SERVICE-BORDER IS PRESCRIBED OF SIX HANDBREADTHS,⁴⁶ BUT FOR A SINGLE GOURD ONE OF A BETH-ROBA'.⁴⁷ R. MEIR SAID IN THE NAME OF R. ISHMAEL: IF THERE ARE AS MANY AS THREE GOURDS IN A BETH-SE'AH, ONE MAY NOT BRING [HETEROGENEOUS] SEED

INTO THE BETH-SE'AH.⁴⁸ R. JOSE B. HA-HOTEF THE EPHRATHITE⁴⁹ SAID IN THE NAME OF R. ISHMAEL: IF THERE ARE AS MANY AS THREE GOURDS IN A BETH-KOR, ONE MAY NOT BRING [HETEROGENEOUS] SEED INTO THE BETH-KOR.⁵⁰

(1) I.e., a square cubit, the smallest area for such a bed.

(2) It is possible to effect this by sowing five heterogeneous seeds set as specified infra.

(3) Sc. single seed (Bert.).

(4) For diagrams v. Shab. Sonc. ed. p. 403. The shaded part is shown. (For another possible arrangement v. printed edition of the separate Mishnayoth). The main underlying principle is that there must be a distance of at least three handbreadths between seed and seed, allowing for each species a space of one and a half handbreadths for drawing sustenance without coming into contact with any of the roots of another species. The contact of the diverse seeds at the corners does not matter, as the very position shows that they belong to different beds, v. Shab, Sonc. ed., p. 403. n. 5. and Feldman W.M., Rabbinical Mathematics pp. 45ff.

(5) And of the same width, designed for a person attending to the patch to stand on, a human foot being a 'handbreadth' in width. The whole of the area of the patch is now 8 X 8 handbreadths.

(6) And to appearances all the species would be mixed up.

(7) Sc. of the last bed (8 X 8 handbreadths) mentioned, (v. diagram in printed editions of the separate Mishnayoth). It is equally clear that in the first mentioned bed (6 x 6 handbreadths) also, R. Judah permitted the sowing of six species. According to Maim. R. Judah actually contested the anonymous Tanna's planning of the five species, presumably on the ground that the species on the large centre patch would predominate to such an extent as to make the whole bed look as if intended to be solely of that species and the heterogeneous species on the borders would make it appear like kil'ayim.

(8) Such as grain and others which are usually sown in large quantities in fields.

(9) Such as are themselves not used for human consumption, and are as a rule sown in smaller quantities in beds.

(10) In the manner prescribed in the preceding Mishnah.

(11) And, though used for human consumption, are not considered 'vegetable-seed', and are, consequently, not to be sown with heterogeneous varieties in the same bed.

(12) The reference is to the case mentioned in the preceding Mishnah.

(13) There is no need to pull up the vegetables sown on the border.

(14) But before the next sowing it must be raised to the proper level.

(15) When dry and fit for sowing.

(16) And six handbreadths (= a cubit) wide.

(17) So that there are three handbreadths between any two heterogeneous species. Rashi, followed by Bert., requires three handbreadths as the minimum in such circumstances, whereas Maim., also Rash., 'require only one and a half handbreadths, the radius of ground from which such a plant 'sucks'. In accordance with this it should be permitted to sow five heterogeneous vegetable seeds across a furrow etc., six handbreadths wide.

(18) V. II, 7, notes.

(19) According to Maim. it must be assumed that the new row is being kept at the requisite distance from the main field.

(20) Either: (i) in which the new row is planted (Maim., Bert.) or (ii) which separates the new row from the crop already there (Rash.).

(21) I.e., the width of a normal furrow, viz., six handbreadths. In accordance with Rash's interpretation of 'furrow' (supra note 1) this means that at some place between the row and the rest of the field there must be an intervening space of 6 x 6 handbreadths. Maim., however, understands the words מלואו רוחב as 'the width as its full depth' i.e., whatever the depth of the furrow (in which he plants the new row) its width must be the same. On the matter of width R. Ishmael agreed with R. Akiba, but as to length the latter held that the row itself (Maim.) or the intervening space (Rash.) need be only six handbreadths.

(22) I.e., a handbreadth (v. supra Mishnah 1, n. 5). According to R. Judah the new row (Maim.) needs only. or the space separating the new row from the rest (Rash.) should at least, measure 6 X 1 handbreadths.

(23) A normal 'row' is four cubits wide, v. infra 6.

(24) Since two rows of each of these species present the appearance of a whole field, and as long as between the several sets of two rows there is the requisite intervening space, there is no objection to their being alongside.

(25) Even if they are separated, the leaves of these species are long and intertwine one with another, and thus, present an appearance of having been sown indiscriminately with one 'handthrow'.

- (26) On the ground that two rows of cucumbers, though not next to one another, are yet sufficient to constitute the plot into a cucumber field, within which it is permitted, in accordance with the preceding Mishnah, to plant a row of heterogeneous vegetables. Sipponte gives as R. Eliezer's reason that these four rows are to be regarded as two separate sets of two species each, one of a row each of cucumbers and Egyptian beans and the other one of a row each of cucumbers and gourds, which, in accordance with the next Mishnah, may be planted. In T.J., R. Jannai holds that R. Eliezer's permission refers also to the case, immediately preceding, of the three rows (one of cucumbers, one of gourds, and one of Egyptian beans) in pursuance of his principle that two species combine so as to effect a permission or a leniency. According to this, in the case of the three rows, the cucumbers and gourds are (under conditions stipulated in Mishnah 5) permitted, and these two 'combine' to make the three rows together permitted; likewise in the case of the four rows.
- (27) Because the two rows of cucumbers, not being close to one another, do not give the appearance of a cucumber field, and the whole of the four rows look as if haphazardly sown. According to Sipponte, the Sages' prohibition is in keeping with their principle that though two species combine to effect a prohibition, they do not combine to effect a permission.
- (28) I.e., even cucumbers and gourds, although their leaves are long and liable to intertwine.
- (29) Without an intervening space between the two species.
- (30) This makes it abundantly clear that they were certainly not planted with 'one handthrow' (which is all that the Torah prohibits).
- (31) I.e., so as to obviate all reasonable possibility of strangers getting the impression that the Biblical prohibition had been transgressed
- (32) Onions are instanced merely as an example. presumably because the procedure described in this Mishnah was a common practice in onion fields (Maim.).
- (33) I.e., over a space of eight cubits.
- (34) I.e., in the middle of the cleared space of eight cubits, thus leaving two cubits unsown on either side.
- (35) Each row of gourds would thus be separated two cubits from the adjoining onions, and twelve cubits from the nearest row of gourds.
- (36) One species being, of course, separated from the other by a furrow.
- (37) One plot of gourds being eight cubits from the next, thus:
- (38) The Sages agree with R. Ishmael except in so far as he requires unsown spaces of two cubits each separating gourds from onions, whilst they do not, but permit onions to remain over all the space of twelve cubits (provided of course that a furrow's width separates species from species).
- (39) It should be noted that wherever the gourd has been instanced it was, and is here, in consequence of its long leaves which become tangled with nearby vegetation; hence the Greek gourd is meant and no other variety.
- (40) Six handbreadths, v. supra II, 10.
- (41) V. ibid.
- (42) עבודה, 'service', used here as an agricultural technical term for a border along which one has access to a plantation for watering and other purposes.
- (43) A single gourd requires a large separating space. viz., a beth-roba' (approx. 10.15 cubits square), because the single gourd in the midst of a heterogeneous species would otherwise look as if haphazardly sown and constituting kil'ayim; a whole row of gourds, however, needs a separating space only like that for any other heterogeneous vegetable viz., of six handbreadths (one cubit) square, since the row by itself already presents something distinctive, and makes it clear to all and sundry that it was sown separately.
- (44) If the gourd leaves have spread into the service-border separating the gourds from the corn, these leaves must be pulled up and the border kept clear.
- (45) The prohibition of kil'ayim in connection with vines, extending as it does to consumption and other uses, is stricter than kil'ayim of corn, pulse, and vegetables, applying as it does only to sowing and to deliberately suffering them to remain in one's field; here R. Jose reverses the order of stringency.
- (46) Cf. infra IV, 5.
- (47) As supra in this Mishnah.
- (48) I.e., heterogeneous species are not allowed within a third of a beth-se'ah of a gourd. So Maim. and Bert., but v. L. for another interpretation.
- (49) Mentioned here only. V. Bacher, Tradition, p. 91.
- (50) I.e., heterogeneous species are not allowed within a third of a beth-kor of a gourd., v. note I.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. A KARAHATH¹ [I.E.. A BARE PATCH] WITHIN A VINEYARD. SHOULD MEASURE, BETH SHAMMAI SAY, TWENTY-FOUR CUBITS;² BUT BETH HILLEL SAY, SIXTEEN CUBITS.³ A MEHOL [I.E.. AN UNSOWN BELT OF GROUND ROUND THE OUTER EDGES] OF A VINEYARD BETH SHAMMAI SAY, SHOULD MEASURE SIXTEEN CUBITS, BUT BETH HILLEL SAY, TWELVE CUBITS. NOW WHAT CONSTITUTES A KARAHATH OF A VINEYARD? A PLOT WITHIN A VINEYARD WHICH HAS BEEN DENUDED⁴ [OF VINES]. IF IT IS LESS THAN SIXTEEN CUBITS, THEN⁵ ONE MUST NOT INTRODUCE SEED INTO IT;⁶ IF IT IS SIXTEEN CUBITS. IT⁷ IS GIVEN ITS SERVICE-BORDER, AND ONE MAY SOW THE REST.

MISHNAH 2. WHAT IS A MEHOL OF A VINEYARD? [THE SPACE] BETWEEN VINEYARD [PRO PER] AND FENCE. IF IT DOES NOT MEASURE TWELVE CUBITS,⁸ IT IS FORBIDDEN TO INTRODUCE SEED INTO IT;⁹ IF IT DOES MEASURE TWELVE CUBITS, IT¹⁰ IS GIVEN ITS SERVICE-BORDER, AND ONE MAY SOW THE REST.

MISHNAH 3. R. JUDAH SAID: THE ABOVE IS BUT A VINEYARD FENCE [GADER].¹¹ WHAT THEN IS A MEHOL OF A VINEYARD? [AN INTERVENING SPACE] BETWEEN TWO VINEYARDS.¹² WHAT NOW IS A [STATUTORY] VINEYARD FENCE? — ONE TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH.¹³ AND [WHAT IS] A [STATUTORY] TRENCH? — ONE TEN HANDBREADTHS DEEP AND FOUR WIDE.¹³

MISHNAH 4. [IF A VINEYARD HAS] A PARTITION OF REEDS, THEN IF BETWEEN ONE REED AND ANOTHER THERE BE LESS THAN THREE HANDBREADTHS, [THE SPACE] THROUGH WHICH A KID CAN ENTER, IT COUNTS AS A [LEGALLY EFFECTIVE] PARTITION.¹⁴ IF A [STONE] FENCE HAS BEEN BROKEN THROUGH UP TO [THE LENGTH OF] TEN CUBITS, IT [THE BREACH] IS [REGARDED] AS A DOORWAY;¹⁵ [IF THE BREACH IS] MORE THAN THAT, [SOWING CLOSE TO THE LINE OF THE FENCE] IMMEDIATELY OPPOSITE THE BREACH IS PROHIBITED. IN THE EVENT OF MANY BREACHES HAVING BEEN MADE THEREIN, THEN IF THAT WHICH REMAINS STANDING¹⁶ EXCEEDS THAT WHICH IS BROKEN THROUGH,¹⁶ IT IS PERMITTED [TO SOW CLOSE TO THE LINE OF THE FENCE OPPOSITE THE BREACHES]; BUT IF THAT WHICH IS BROKEN THROUGH EXCEEDS THAT WHICH REMAINS STANDING, IT IS FORBIDDEN [TO SOW CLOSE TO THE LINE OF THE FENCE] OPPOSITE THE BREACH [OR BREACHES].¹⁷

MISHNAH 5. WHEN A MAN HAS SOWN A LINE OF [AT LEAST] FIVE VINES, BETH SHAMMAI SAID: THESE CONSTITUTE A VINEYARD;¹⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL SAID: THEY [VINES]¹⁹ DO NOT CONSTITUTE A VINEYARD²⁰ UNLESS THEY BE IN TWO ROWS.²¹ CONSEQUENTLY, IF ONE HAS SOWN IN THE FOUR CUBITS [OF THE SERVICE-PATH] WITHIN THE VINEYARD, BETH SHAMMAI SAID: HE HAS [THEREBY] CAUSED THE PROHIBITION [AS KIL'AYIM]²² OF ONE ROW,²³ WHEREAS BETH HILLEL SAID: HE HAS CAUSED THE PROHIBITION OF TWO ROWS.²⁴

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE HAS PLANTED TWO [VINES] OPPOSITE TWO, AND ONE [OTHER VINE] FORMING A 'TAIL',²⁵ THIS CONSTITUTES A VINEYARD. IF ONE HAS PLANTED TWO [VINES] OPPOSITE TWO, AND ONE [OTHER VINE] IN BETWEEN,²⁶ OR TWO OPPOSITE TWO, AND ONE IN THE MIDDLE,¹⁷ , NEITHER OF THESE [COLLECTIONS OF VINES] CONSTITUTE A VINEYARD UNLESS THERE BE TWO OPPOSITE TWO WITH ONE [OTHER] PROJECTING LIKE A TAIL.²⁷

MISHNAH 7. IF ONE HAS PLANTED ONE ROW²⁸ [OF VINES] ON HIS OWN [LAND] AND ANOTHER ROW²⁸ ON HIS NEIGHBOUR'S [LAND], THEN EVEN THOUGH THERE BE IN THE MIDDLE A PRIVATE ROAD,²⁹ OR A PUBLIC ROAD,³⁰ OR A FENCE LOWER THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS, THESE [TWO ROWS] COMBINE.³¹ IF THERE BE A FENCE HIGHER THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS³² THEY DO NOT COMBINE. R. JUDAH SAID: IF HE INTERTWINES THEM [THE ROWS OF VINES] ABOVE [THE FENCE, THOUGH IT BE HIGHER THAN TEN HANDBREADTHS] THEY DO COMBINE.

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE HAS PLANTED TWO ROWS [OF VINES]³³ AND THERE ARE NOT EIGHT CUBITS BETWEEN THEM, HE MAY NOT INTRODUCE SEED THERE [I.E., IN THE SPACE INTERVENING BETWEEN THE TWO ROWS].³⁴ IF THERE BE THREE [ROWS].³⁵ THEN IF BETWEEN ONE ROW AND ITS COMPANION [ROW]³⁶ THERE ARE NOT SIXTEEN CUBITS,³⁷ HE MAY NOT INTRODUCE SEED THERE. R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAID IN THE NAME OF HANINA B. HAKINAI: IF EVEN THE MIDDLE ROW WAS LAID WASTE AND BETWEEN ONE ROW AND ITS COMPANION [ROW] THERE ARE NOT SIXTEEN CUBITS,³⁸ HE MAY NOT INTRODUCE SEED THERE;³⁹ ALTHOUGH, HAD HE AB INITIO PLANTED THESE [TWO ROWS], IT WOULD HAVE BEEN PERMITTED [TO SOW BETWEEN THEM] IF THEY WERE EIGHT CUBITS [APART].⁴⁰

MISHNAH 9. IF ONE HAS PLANTED HIS VINEYARD ON [A PLAN OF] SIXTEEN CUBITS FOR EVERY INTER-SPACE,⁴¹ IT IS PERMITTED TO INTRODUCE SEED THERE.⁴² R. JUDAH SAID: IT HAPPENED AT ZALMON⁴³ THAT A MAN PLANTED HIS VINEYARD ON [A PLAN OF] SIXTEEN CUBITS TO EVERY INTER-SPACE; [ONE YEAR] HE TURNED THE TIPS OF THE VINE BRANCHES OF TWO [ADJACENT ROWS] TOWARDS ONE PLACE,⁴⁴ AND SOWED⁴⁵ THE PLOUGHED LAND, AND THE FOLLOWING YEAR HE TURNED THE TIPS OF THE VINE BRANCHES IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION, AND SOWED THE LAND WHICH HAD BEEN LEFT UNTILLED [THE PRECEDING YEAR]. THE MATTER CAME BEFORE THE SAGES, AND THEY DECLARED IT PERMITTED. R. MEIR AND R. SIMEON SAID: EVEN IF ONE HAS PLANTED ONE'S VINEYARD ON [A PLAN OF] EIGHT CUBITS [BETWEEN EVERY TWO ROWS], THIS IS PERMITTED.⁴⁶

(1) Cf. supra II, 9.

(2) Allowing for vineyard service-borders of four cubits each (v. infra VI, 1) on either side, and sixteen cubits in the middle for sowing. It should be borne in mind that Beth Shammai hold that 8 X 8 cubits is the smallest area that can be regarded as a 'field'. If therefore in our case, less than eight cubits remain, that ground is reckoned as forming a part of the vineyard, and it is forbidden to plant seeds there. As our karahath is flanked by vines on (at least) two sides there must be the minimum of eight cubits towards either side of the vineyard, i.e., a block of at least sixteen cubits in all, before it can be sown.

(3) Allowing for service-borders as above, and four cubits, the minimum 'field' after Beth Hillel, towards either side, i.e., altogether eight cubits, for sowing.

(4) . lit., 'laid waste'.

(5) Sc. in accordance with the Hillelite ruling.

(6) Even its very centre may not be sown.

(7) The vineyard.

(8) The Hillelite minimum; i.e., after allowing for four cubits of service-border and after deducting the four cubits close to the fence which are not sown, there are left less than four cubits.

(9) Since not being large enough to constitute a 'field' on its own, it is regarded as part of the vineyard.

(10) V. supra I, n. 7.

(11) I.e., the technical term for the space 'between vineyard and fence', is not mehal ha-kerem, as stated by the original anonymous Tanna, but geder ha-kerem ('the vineyard fence'), and it is to this geder ha-kerem (as long as it measures not less than six (Maim. four and a half) cubits) that the rule 'it is given its service-border, and one may sow the rest' applies.

- (12) And this must measure at least twelve cubits if it is in part to be sown.
- (13) Cf. supra II, 8. These are effective partitions and one may sow vines hard upon one side and seeds hard upon the other side of such partitions.
- (14) That a gap of less than three handbreadths does not impair the character of a partition where the law depends on the presence or absence of a partition is a law (orally imparted) to Moses at Sinai', (v. 'Er. 15a).
- (15) Which is regarded de jure as wall or fence, and it is therefore permitted to sow immediately in front of it a vine on the side of the boundary. and seed on the other just as if the fence were actually standing between them.
- (16) In the aggregate.
- (17) But it is permitted to do so where the fence still stands; if, however, the standing part is less than four handbreadths and more than three (and the broken part exceeds it) it is forbidden to sow vines on one side, and seed on the other even where the fence still stands.
- (18) And sowing of seed within four cubits thereof is prohibited.
- (19) Any number of them.
- (20) And one may sow seed at a distance of six handbreadths.
- (21) Either of three vines each, vine opposite vine (v. T.J.) or of five vines altogether set out as described infra 6.
- (22) , as used in Deut. XXII, 9.
- (23) Since, according to them this constitutes a vineyard.
- (24) Which according to them form the vineyard which according to Scripture (Deut. ibid.) becomes prohibited as a result of too close a proximity of other seed. How many and which of the vines are thus affected is discussed in detail in T.J. Our Mishnah is an instance of the rare occasions on which Beth Shammai took the more lenient, and Beth Hillel the more stringent rule. Cf. 'Ed. V, 2. (Sonc. ed.) p. 31f.
- (25) Thus: Rash and Bert.: Maim.:
- (26) Maim. and Rash: 'between either pair', thus: Bert.: in the continuation of the space between the pairs, thus: (11) Rash. and Bert.: Maim., Sipponte:
- (27) I.e., if in addition to either of the arrangements just described there is another vine 'projecting like a tail', they constitute a vineyard.
- (28) One row of two vines and one row of three vines (v. preceding Mishnah).
- (29) Four cubits wide.
- (30) The standard 'public road', דרך הרבים (referred to in Pe'ah II, 1) is sixteen cubits wide; this is taken by Maim. as meant here. Others, however, say that here a path less than eight cubits wide is to be understood, rather the kind designated in Pe'ah ibid., as שביל הרבים, 'a public path' (passable in the rainy as well as in the dry season).
- (31) Sc. to constitute a vineyard so as to forbid sowing seed either between the two rows or within four cubits from either of them. Even though according to R. Jose and R. Simeon one man's vine forming a tent over another person's produce does not cause kil'ayim (infra VII, 4). here not another person's but the man's own 'seed' is concerned; moreover the second row belongs to the first man's next-door neighbour, and this might easily give rise to a notion that the two rows belong to the same man, whose sowing seed between them causes kil'ayim.
- (32) The same applies if it is only ten handbreadths high; it is on account of what follows in this Mishnah that here it is said: 'higher than ten etc.'.
- (33) Of two vines in each, without another one 'projecting like a tail'.
- (34) Because they form sufficient of a vineyard to disallow sowing in the middle of it, even though for the purposes of sowing on the outer sides they are deemed as not forming a vineyard but as just individual vines. If, however, there are eight cubits (exclusive of the ground occupied by the vines) between them, the two rows (of two vines each) are deemed as separate, unrelated rows, and one may sow even between them at a distance of six handbreadths from the vines on either side.
- (35) Of two vines each. Such three rows constitute a vineyard.
- (36) Some say (a) between the two outer rows. Others say (b) between one and the next.
- (37) The size of a karahath of a vineyard (v. supra 1).
- (38) In accordance with note 2 (a), this means only as long as all three rows are there, is a distance of sixteen cubits required between the two outer rows (before sowing can be done in the intervening space); but if the middle row has been razed, the character of 'vineyard' ceases and one may sow between them (six handbreadths from the vines) even if they are not sixteen cubits apart. In accordance with note 2 (b) it means: Three rows constitute a 'vineyard' and sowing in either inter-row space is permitted only when each of the latter measures sixteen cubits (v. 1). If the middle row is razed, the character of the vineyard ceases, etc.

(39) Having once been a vineyard, it remains a vineyard even if any of the three vines, even the middle one, is razed, and a full-size karahath, i.e. of sixteen cubits, is essential, if the inter-space is to be sown.

(40) According to the beginning of this Mishnah.

(41) Originally so, and not when there were sixteen cubits only after the elimination of one row or more.

(42) At a distance from the vines of only six handbreadths. Even Beth Shammai concur that if, originally, rows of vines are planted sixteen cubits apart, it is permitted to sow there; they require twenty-four cubits (supra I) only when the empty space has been formed by the elimination of some vines.

(43) A place-name. Mount Zalmon is mentioned in Judg. IX, 47-48, as near Shechem.

(44) I.e., towards one another.

(45) Leaving six handbreadths clear.

(46) Because then they are deemed as individual vines, and one may sow seed at a distance of six handbreadths.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. IF A VINEYARD HAS BEEN [PARTLY] RAZED,¹ THEN SHOULD IT STILL BE POSSIBLE TO PICK TEN VINES WITHIN A BETH-SE'AH,² AND THESE ARE PLANTED ACCORDING TO THE ESTABLISHED LAW,³ IT CONSTITUTES A 'POOR' VINEYARD. IF A [POOR]⁴ VINEYARD IS PLANTED IN IRREGULAR LAY-OUT, THEN SHOULD THERE BE THEREIN AN ALIGNMENT OF [ONE LINE OF] TWO [VINES] PARALLEL AND OPPOSITE TO [A LINE OF] THREE, IT CONSTITUTES A VINEYARD;⁵ BUT IF THERE IS NOT [SUCH AN ALIGNMENT] IT DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A VINEYARD. R. MEIR SAID: SINCE IT IS IN APPEARANCE LIKE VINEYARDS [IN GENERAL], IT CONSTITUTES A VINEYARD.

MISHNAH 2. IF A VINEYARD⁶ HAS BEEN PLANTED ON [A PLAN OF] LESS THAN FOUR CUBITS [TO AN INTER-SPACE].⁷ R. SIMEON SAID: IT DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A VINEYARD.⁸ THE SAGES, ON THE OTHER HAND, SAID: IT DOES CONSTITUTE A VINEYARD, AND WE REGARD THE MIDDLE [ROWS] AS IF THEY WERE NOT [VINES].⁹

MISHNAH 3. IF A TRENCH PASSES THROUGH A VINEYARD, AND IS TEN [HANDBREADTHS] DEEP AND FOUR WIDE,¹⁰ R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAYS: IF IT RUNS RIGHT THROUGH FROM THE BEGINNING OF THE VINEYARD TO THE END THEREOF,¹¹ IT PRESENTS THE APPEARANCE OF TWO [SEPARATELY OWNED] VINEYARDS, AND IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW THEREIN; BUT IF IT IS NOT,¹² IT IS [DEEMED] AS [IF IT WERE] A WINE-PRESS. AND AS FOR A WINE-PRESS IN A VINEYARD THAT IS TEN [HANDBREADTHS] DEEP AND FOUR WIDE, R. ELIEZER SAYS: IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW THEREIN,¹³ WHILST THE SAGES,¹⁴ FORBID.¹⁵ IF A WATCH-MOUND IN A VINEYARD IS TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH AND FOUR WIDE IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW THEREIN;¹⁶ BUT IF THE ENDS OF THE VINE-BRANCHES BECAME INTERTWINED THEREON,¹⁷ IT IS FORBIDDEN.

MISHNAH 4. IF A VINE IS PLANTED IN A WINE-PRESS OR IN A DEPRESSION,¹⁸ IT IS ALLOWED ITS SERVICE-BORDER,¹⁹ AND ONE MAY SOW IN THE REST.²⁰ R. JOSE SAYS: IF THERE ARE NOT FOUR CUBITS THERE,²¹ ONE MAY NOT INTRODUCE SEED THITHER.²² AS FOR A HOUSE THAT IS WITHIN A VINEYARD, IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW THEREIN.²³

MISHNAH 5. IF ONE PLANTS A VEGETABLE OR SUFFERS IT TO REMAIN IN A VINEYARD, HE RENDERS PROHIBITED [AS KIL'AYIM] FORTY-FIVE VINES. WHEN? IN THE EVENT OF THEIR HAVING BEEN PLANTED ON A PLAN OF EITHER FOUR OR FIVE [CUBITS TO AN INTER-SPACE].²⁴ IN THE EVENT, HOWEVER, OF THEIR HAVING BEEN PLANTED ON [A PLAN OF] EITHER SIX OR SEVEN [CUBITS TO AN INTER-SPACE] HE

RENDERS PROHIBITED AS KIL'AYIM [THE VINES WITHIN AN AREA OF] SIXTEEN CUBITS IN EVERY DIRECTION, IN THE FORM OF A CIRCLE, NOT OF A SQUARE.²⁵

MISHNAH 6. IF ONE²⁶ SEES A VEGETABLE IN A VINEYARD, AND SAYS: WHEN I REACH IT I SHALL PLUCK IT', [ALL THAT HAS GROWN THERE] IS PERMITTED;²⁷ [BUT IF HE SAYS:] 'WHEN I COME BACK I SHALL PLUCK IT', THEN IF IT [THE VEGETABLE] HAS [IN THE MEANTIME] INCREASED BY A TWO-HUNDREDTH,²⁸ IT [ALL THAT HAS GROWN THERE] IS FORBIDDEN.²⁹

MISHNAH 7. IF, WHEN ONE HAS PASSED THROUGH A VINEYARD, SEEDS HAVE FALLEN FROM HIM, OR [SEEDS] HAVE GONE [INTO THE FIELD] WITH MANURE OR WITH [IRRIGATION] WATER, OR IF AS HE WAS [IN A CORNFIELD] SCATTERING SEED, THE WIND BLEW SOME BEHIND HIM [INTO A VINEYARD]. NO PROHIBITION APPLIES;³⁰ IF THE WIND BLEW THE SEED BEFORE HIM [INTO A VINEYARD]³¹ R. AKIBA SAID: IF³² IT HAS PRODUCED BLADES, HE MUST TURN THE SOIL;³³ IF IT HAS REACHED THE STAGE OF GREEN EARS,³⁴ HE MUST BEAT THEM OUT;³⁵ IF IT HAS GROWN INTO CORN,³⁶ IT MUST BE BURNT.³⁷

MISHNAH 8. IF ONE SUFFERS THORNS TO REMAIN GROWING IN A VINEYARD, R. ELIEZER SAID: [THEREBY] HE EFFECTS A STATE OF PROHIBITION,³⁸ BUT THE SAGES SAID: NOTHING CAUSES SUCH A STATE OF PROHIBITION EXCEPT THAT WHICH IT IS A COMMON PRACTICE [IN THE PLACE CONCERNED] TO PERMIT TO GROW.³⁹ IRIS,⁴⁰ IVY,⁴¹ AND THE KING'S LILY,⁴² LIKEWISE ALL MANNER OF SEEDS⁴³ [OTHER THAN THOSE ALREADY SPECIFICALLY DEALT WITH]⁴⁴ ARE NOT KIL'AYIM IN A VINEYARD.⁴⁵ [AS FOR] HEMP, R. TARFON SAID: IT IS NOT KIL'AYIM, BUT THE SAGES SAY IT IS KIL'AYIM.⁴⁶ ARTICHOKE⁴⁷ ARE KIL'AYIM IN A VINEYARD.

(1) Not a substantial patch (karahath) denuded of vines within a vineyard, but a vine, or a few vines missing here and there.

(2) An area of 2,500 square cubits (v. supra II, 9).

(3) 'Two vines opposite two, with one projecting like a tail', (v. supra IV, 6). and not more than sixteen cubits apart (supra IV, 9).

(4) So some versions.

(5) R. Zera in T.J.

(6) Of three or more rows of three vines in a row.

(7) I.e., less than the minimum distance required for attendance on a vineyard (with a yoke of oxen) v. infra VI, 1.

(8) Sc. but the vines are regarded as single vines, at a distance of six handbreadths (one cubit) from which it is permitted to sow other seed.

(9) But intended for fuel only. Close planting of vines would seem according to this to have been practised with a view to utilizing only the best rows for their fruit, but not the inferior ones. According to the Sages the latter, if they are inner rows, are virtually eliminated (they may even be trained to hang over corn, without bringing about kil'ayim) and the remaining ones are sufficiently apart to constitute a vineyard. R. Simeon's view is (v. T.J.) that all the vines, including those regarded by the Sages as so negligible as if nonexistent, are an essential part of the plantation (one does not plant vines with a view to pulling them out), which is therefore not a vineyard in respect of the law requiring inter-spaces of four cubits.

(10) V. supra IV, 3.

(11) Cf. supra III, 3.

(12) Either ten handbreadths deep, or four wide, or it does not traverse the plantation from end to end.

(13) Since, owing to its dimensions, it is deemed a separate domain.

(14) As well as R. Eliezer b. Jacob.

(15) Since it is within a hollow space formed by a vineyard.

(16) Cf. supra II, 8. The Sages and R. Eliezer are agreed on this.

- (17) So rendered by Rash. (who insists on adding 'of their own accord and not trained by hand') and others. Maim. renders 'reach and touch'. Some render the verb used here, viz., כּוּתַשׁ, in the sense in which it is used in the Bible, viz., 'pound', 'pulverize', and say that the point here is that if the vine branches reach the top of the mound, they will rub the soil and powder it so that the wind blows it off and the mound becomes lower than ten handbreadths and/or narrower than four. (v. Rosh. and Rash. and cf. Pe'ah II. 3 and commentators a.l.).
- (18) Measuring two to three cubits in length and three handbreadths in width (T.J., v. Rash. and Sipponite).
- (19) Of six handbreadths, like an individual vine.
- (20) Sc. of the wine-press or depression.
- (21) Either in length or in width.
- (22) But if there are four cubits, R. Jose agrees with the anonymous Tanna.
- (23) Even if the vines hang over the house; since the house has a roof over it.
- (24) In an area planted at intervals of four cubits (especially if it be four cubits clear, exclusive of the thickness of the vines), a circle with a radius of sixteen cubits (v. infra in this Mishnah) will contain forty-five vines. In an area planted, at intervals of five cubits, such a circle will actually contain only thirty-seven vines, but as the circumference passes only just four cubits (the width of a statutory service-border for a vineyard) from the outermost rows, we must visualize a virtual circle having a twenty cubit radius, which too, would contain forty-five vines. So Maim., Asheri, and Bert.
- (25) In the six-cubit plan, twenty-four, in the seven-cubit plan, twenty-one. vines become kil'ayim. The numbers mentioned in this and the preceding notes can be easily verified by drawing appropriate diagrams.
- (26) In this case, either the owner or an employee.
- (27) Because his evident readiness to remove the vegetable (or corn) shows that the latter is there without his knowledge or intention, whereas the Torah says: (Lev. XIX, 19) Thy field thou shalt not sow etc., and (Deut. XXII, 9) Thou shalt 'not sow thy vineyard etc., a prohibition, explain the Rabbis, only against such making or maintaining kil'ayim as is as deliberate as the act of sowing.
- (28) Since the processes of growth and withering are one the inverse of the other, it was assumed that the time taken by any species of produce to grow is the same as taken by that same species to become dried up after it had been cut or plucked, which period was of course, easily determinable by experiment.
- (29) Since he had knowingly allowed the 'offending' vegetable or corn to remain among the vines for a substantial period.
- (30) Since in each case the introduction of the seed was unintentional. If and when he notices it, he must of course remove it, as indicated in the preceding Mishnah.
- (31) Sc. and he has noticed it, then the prohibition applies, and he must retrieve the seed.
- (32) In the event of his having failed to retrieve the seed soon enough.
- (33) So as to ensure that they do not grow again.
- (34) I.e., before it has reached a third of its normal full growth.
- (35) And make no use of either grain or stalk. So R. Johanan; but in R. Hoshia's view only the grain is prohibited, but the stalks are permitted. (T.J.).
- (36) Having attained a third of its possible normal growth.
- (37) The rule of burning kil'ayim is derived from Deut. XXII, 9, which says: Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with kil'ayim; lest the fulness of the seed which thou hast sown be forfeited with the increase of the vineyard. The Hebrew word for 'be forfeited' viz. תִּקְדַּשׁ, is explained as signifying 'it shall be burnt'.
- (38) Sc. of kil'ayim; since thorns are deliberately allowed to grow in some countries, e.g., Arabia, for camel's food, this reason, primarily local, for ruling that they produce a state of kil'ayim in a vineyard, is deemed, by extension, as making the ruling applicable universally.
- (39) Thus only in places where thorns are suffered gladly do they render a vineyard kil'ayim, but not elsewhere.
- (40) אֲרִיִּים.
- (41) קִיסוֹם.
- (42) שׁוֹשַׁנַּת הַמֶּלֶךְ rendered by T.J. קִירִינְטוֹן which according to Kohut, is the lily flower, white in colour. Maim. renders (in Arabic) נַעֲמָן i.e., anemone. Danby renders 'fritillary'; there is a type called Fritillaria imperialis.
- (43) Viz., grain and vegetables.
- (44) Such as legumes, which also come under the term 'seeds' (zera'im).
- (45) The reason being, according to Maim., that they are 'seeds', but not vegetables (or grain) which alone constitute kil'ayim in a vineyard; or, according to Rabad, that even though (in his view) both 'seeds' and vegetables are prohibited in a vineyard, the specimens mentioned here are permitted because it is not the usual thing to let them grow in a vineyard. In Rabad's view, it appears, the Mishnah found it necessary to state specifically that these species do not constitute kil'ayim, because otherwise one might have thought that they do, on the analogy of the Sages' principle in the matter of thorns, inasmuch as both iris and ivy are, on botanical authority, eaten by cattle. The same uses probably apply to the 'king's lily'. The permissibility, however, is only as far as the purely Pentateuchal requirements are concerned. The Rabbis, however, have, some say, on the authority of a prophetic tradition, extended the prohibition to include other types of 'seeds' (Men. 15b). Some are of the opinion that they are prohibited also by Pentateuchal law though no penalty of stripes is prescribed for sowing these 'seeds' in a vineyard.

(46) Because hemp resembles grapes.

(47) קינרם , cynara.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 6

MISHNAH 1. WHAT IS AN 'ARIS¹ [WHICH IS REGARDED AS A VINEYARD]?² IF ONE HAS PLANTED A [SINGLE] ROW CONSISTING OF FIVE VINES BESIDE A FENCE TEN HANDBREADTHS HIGH,³ OR BESIDE A TRENCH TEN HANDBREADTHS DEEP AND FOUR WIDE,³ IT IS ALLOWED ITS SERVICE-BORDER OF FOUR CUBITS.⁴ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE FOUR CUBITS ARE TO BE MEASURED FROM THE BODY OF THE VINE TO THE FIELD;⁵ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: FROM THE FENCE TO THE FIELD.⁵ R. JOHANAN B. NURI SAID: ALL WHO SAY SO⁶ ARE MISTAKEN;⁷ IN FACT [WHAT WAS SAID⁸ WAS]: IF THERE BE FOUR CUBITS FROM THE BODY OF THE VINES TO THE FENCE, THE APPROPRIATE SERVICE-BORDER IS ALLOWED, AND THE REST MAY BE SOWN.⁹ AND HOW MUCH IS THE SERVICE-BORDER OF A VINE? SIX HANDBREADTHS IN EVERY DIRECTION;¹⁰ R. AKIBA SAID: THREE.¹¹

MISHNAH 2. AS FOR AN 'ARIS WHICH PROJECTS FROM A TERRACE, R. ELIEZER B. JACOB SAID: IF A PERSON STANDING ON THE [LEVEL] GROUND IS ABLE TO PICK ALL OF IT, [SUCH AN 'ARIS] PROHIBITS [THE SOWING OF SEED IN] FOUR CUBITS OF THE FIELD;¹² IF [HE IS] NOT [ABLE TO DO SO], IT PROHIBITS [THE SOWING OF SEED] ONLY [IN] THE [SOIL] WHICH IS DIRECTLY OPPOSITE¹³ IT.¹⁴ R. ELIEZER SAID: LIKEWISE,¹⁵ IF ONE HAS PLANTED ONE ON THE GROUND, AND ONE ON A TERRACE, THEN IF IT IS TEN HANDBREADTHS ABOVE THE [LEVEL] GROUND, ONE DOES NOT COMBINE WITH THE OTHER;⁶ , IF IT IS NOT [SO HIGH] ONE DOES COMBINE WITH THE OTHER.

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE HAS SUSPENDED VINE-BRANCHES OVER SOME OF THE LATHS [OF A TRELLIS], HE MAY NOT INTRODUCE SEED [INTO THE SOIL] BENEATH THE REMAINDER [OF THE TRELLIS]; YET IF HE DID INTRODUCE HE HAS NOT THEREBY BROUGHT ABOUT A PROHIBITED STATE.¹⁶ IF, HOWEVER, NEW [TENDRILS] HAVE SPREAD [OVER THE 'REMAINDER']. THAT [WHICH HAD BEEN SOWN UNDER THE 'REMAINDER'] IS PROHIBITED.¹⁷ EVEN SO IS IT WHEN ONE SUSPENDS VINE-BRANCHES OVER SOME PART OF A NON-FRUIT-BEARING¹⁸ TREE.

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE SUSPENDS [BRANCHES OF] A VINE ON PART OF [THE BRANCHES OF] A FRUIT TREE,¹⁹ IT IS PERMITTED TO INTRODUCE SEED BENEATH THE 'REMAINDER';²⁰ IF A NEW [GROWTH] SPREAD [OVER THE REMAINDER']. HE MUST TURN IT BACK.²¹ THERE WAS THE CASE OF R. JOSHUA WHO WENT TO R. ISHMAEL IN KEFAR 'AZIZ,²² AND THE LATTER SHOWED HIM A VINE [WITH ITS BRANCHES] SUSPENDED ON PART OF [THE BRANCHES OF] A FIG-TREE. HE [R. JOSHUA] ASKED HIM [R. ISHMAEL]: 'WHAT [IS THE LAW? MAY] I INTRODUCE SEED BENEATH THE REMAINDER?' HE ANSWERED HIM: IT IS PERMITTED'.²³ HE TOOK HIM TO BETH-HAMMAGGANYAH²⁴ WHERE HE SHOWED HIM A VINE [WHOSE BRANCHES WERE] SUSPENDED ON PART OF A BEAM²⁵ BELONGING TO THE TRUNK OF A

SYCAMORE,²⁶ WHICH HAD MANY BEAMS.²⁵ HE SAID TO HIM: BENEATH THIS BEAM IT IS PROHIBITED [TO SOW].²⁷ BUT BENEATH THE REMAINDER IT IS PERMITTED'.²⁸

MISHNAH 5. WHAT IS A SERAK²⁹ TREE? ANY TREE WHICH DOES NOT YIELD FRUIT. R. MEIR SAID: ALL TREES ARE SERAK, EXCEPT OLIVE AND THE FIG TREE.³⁰ R. JOSE SAID: ALL SUCH TREES AS ARE NOT PLANTED IN WHOLE FIELDS, ARE SERAK TREES.

MISHNAH 6. 'ARIS-GAPS³¹ MUST BE EIGHT CUBITS AND SOMEWHAT MORE.³² [IN THE CASE OF] ALL MEASUREMENTS [BY THE CUBIT] SPOKEN OF BY THE SAGES IN CONNECTION WITH A VINEYARD,³³ THERE IS NO 'AND SOMEWHAT MORE', EXCEPT IN THAT OF 'ARIS-GAPS. THE FOLLOWING CONSTITUTES AN 'ARIS-GAP: IF AN 'ARIS WAS RAZED MIDWAY, AND FIVE VINES WERE LEFT ON ONE SIDE AND FIVE VINES ON THE OTHER SIDE,³⁴ THEN IF THE GAP³⁵ BE [ONLY] EIGHT CUBITS, ONE MUST NOT INTRODUCE SEED THITHER,³⁶ IF IT BE EIGHT CUBITS AND SOMEWHAT MORE, ONE SHOULD ALLOT THE REQUISITE SERVICE-BORDER,³⁷ AND HE MAY SOW THE REST.³⁸

MISHNAH 7. IF AN 'ARIS TURNS AWAY FROM A WALL WHERE IT FORMS AN ANGLE, AND COMES TO AN END,³⁹ IT⁴⁰ IS GIVEN ITS SERVICE-BORDER,⁴¹ AND IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW THE REST.⁴² R. JOSE SAID: IF THERE BE NOT FOUR CUBITS THERE,⁴³ ONE MAY NOT INTRODUCE SEED THITHER.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 8. IF CANES [FORMING THE TRELLIS] PROTRUDE FROM THE 'ARIS AND ONE HAS FORBORN FROM CUTTING THEM SHORT,⁴⁵ IT IS PERMITTED TO SOW DIRECTLY BENEATH⁴⁶ THEM; IF, HOWEVER, HE MADE THEM [LONG] SO THAT THE NEW [GROWTH] MIGHT SPREAD ALONG THEM, IT IS FORBIDDEN.

MISHNAH 9. IF A BLOSSOM PROTRUDED BEYOND THE ARIS, IT IS REGARDED AS IF A PLUMMET WERE SUSPENDED THEREFROM: DIRECTLY BENEATH IT, IT IS PROHIBITED [TO SOW].⁴⁷ IT IS LIKEWISE IN THE CASE OF A [PROTRUDING] BLOSSOM FROM A HANGING BRANCH OF A SINGLE VINE. IF ONE HAS STRETCHED A VINE-SHOOT FROM TREE TO TREE, IT IS FORBIDDEN TO SOW BENEATH IT.⁴⁸ IF HE MADE AN EXTENSION THERETO BY MEANS OF ROPE OR REED-GRASS, IT IS PERMITTED UNDER THE EXTENSION; IF HE MADE THE EXTENSION SO THAT THE NEW [GROWTH] MIGHT SPREAD ALONG IT, IT IS FORBIDDEN.⁴⁹

(1) ערים a plaited cradle (cf. Biblical Heb. ערש) or trellis, on which vines are trained.

(2) And which forms, infra, a subject of dispute between the Shammaites and Hillelites.

(3) V. supra IV, 3.

(4) Thus the 'aris is regarded as a vineyard even by Beth Hillel who (supra IV, 5) require a minimum of two rows to form a vineyard within the meaning of the Scriptural precept.

(5) Either (a) to a field on the same side of the fence thus: (i) According to Shammaites: (ii) According to Hillelites: or (b) to a field on the other side of the fence, thus: (i) According to the Shammaites: (ii) According to the Hillelites: Although interpretation (b) (Maim. and Bert.) is apparently borne out by T.J. there is this difficulty, that this would constitute a stringency of Beth Hillel against a leniency of Beth Shammai, which is not mentioned in the list of such instances given in 'Ed. IV, and V, (v. Rash.). L. gets over the difficulty by explaining: A field on either side of the fence.

(6) Viz., that Beth Hillel ever, in any circumstances, recognized one row as a vineyard.

(7) They did not get the correct version of the orally transmitted tradition.

(8) By Beth Hillel.

(9) But not if there are not four cubits between the vines and the fence, in which case it is forbidden to plant seed there altogether (cf. supra V, 4).

(10) This is not part of R. Johanan b. Nuri's statement, but a consensus of opinion.

(11) שלשה == three, masc. qualifying the masc. noun טפחים 'handbreadths'. Rash. mentions a variant reading

- שלש == three, fem. qualifying, apparently, the fem. noun אמות , 'cubits' and referring to the distance between the vines and the fence. It is, however, clear from T.J. that the correct reading is the one accepted here.
- (12) I.e., four cubits in every direction outward from the edge of the plot of ground immediately beneath the 'aris.
- (13) I.e., beneath.
- (14) R. Eliezer b. Jacob's view is accepted. L. thinks that the same rule applies when a vine planted on flat ground has its uppermost branches resting on an aris.
- (15) In so far as the dictum following refers to a terrace. The consideration of an 'aris does not, according to Maim. and Bert. enter into the latter case; according to Sipponte it does. V. next note. (11) Maim. and Bert. interpret: If one has planted one row of vines on the ground and another on a terrace, one row of two vines and the other of three vines, one of which projects like a tail (v. IV, 6), then if the terrace is ten handbreadths above the level, the row on the terrace does not combine with the row on the level to form a vineyard in respect of the laws of kil'ayim. Sipponte interprets: If one has planted one vine on the level and one on a terrace, and so on, in all five vines, three of which are on the level and two on the terrace, then if those on the terrace are ten handbreadths high, the five trees do not combine to form an 'aris which requires that seed should not be sown within four cubits thereof. Rash. mentions both interpretations.
- (16) Sc. of kil'ayim.
- (17) According to Bert, this is so only if the crop of the vine increased by a two-hundredth part since the sowing under the 'remainder'. L. says, even if the increase was less.
- (18) סרק , v. infra 5. Such a tree is considered 'inconsiderable', in relation to a vine, and when the branches of the latter rest on it, the non-fruit-bearing tree is deemed the same as a trellisframe of dead wood.
- (19) Lit., '(human) food tree'.
- (20) Because such a tree retains its full individuality vis-a-vis the vine, and such ground beneath its branches over which vine-tendrils are not actually suspended, 'belongs' to the tree itself, and one may, therefore, sow seed there.
- (21) And keep it within the original bounds.
- (22) South of Hebron, v. Klein, S. Beitrage p. 52.
- (23) Because a fig-tree as a tree producing fruit for human consumption does not become subsidiary to the vine.
- (24) Near Hebron., v. Horowitz, I.S. Palestine, p. 143.
- (25) Apparently in view of the Tosef. (v. n. 6 infra) a rough beam or beams, severed from, but still resting, on the trunk.
- (26) Which is a kind of wild fig tree.
- (27) Even under that part of that beam which is not itself overhung by vine-branches.
- (28) Maim.: since the sycamore is a fruit tree. Tosef. IV, 4, however, gives the reason: Since every single beam is like a tree by itself. This would seem to suggest that the sycamore was not universally considered an אילן מאכל , 'a tree bearing fruit for human consumption'.
- (29) The term has already been used at the end of Mishnah 3, where in anticipation of the accepted definition given here, it was rendered a non-fruit-bearing tree'.
- (30) These alone, in R. Meir's minority view, do not become negligible vis-a-vis a vine in the circumstances discussed in the two preceding Mishnahs.
- (31) Explained infra.
- (32) Fixed in T.J. as one handbreadth, Tosef. as one sixth of a cubit (which is one handbreadth). Maim. both in Mishnah-Commentary and Yad (Hil. Kil. VIII, 6) also Shulhan Aruk, Yoreh De'ah Sec. 296. sub-sec. 60, say one-sixtieth of a cubit. This is due evidently to another reading in the Tosef.
- (33) L. says that from T.J. it seems to him that 'in a vineyard' should be omitted.
- (34) Less than which number do not form an 'aris.
- (35) Between the two short 'arisin newly formed out of the one long one.
- (36) In accordance with supra IV, 8.
- (37) According to R. Johanan b. Nuri (Mishnah 1), six handbreadths; according to the first-quoted Tanna (ibid), four cubits.
- (38) R. Johanan b. Nuri and the original Tanna differ on the extent of this 'rest'. V. preceding note.
- (39) Or is completed (to the number of five vines) thus: The above is the accepted interpretation of the Mishnah. Maim. interprets: If an 'aris goes forth (i.e., commences) from the angles formed by two walls with another, and comes to a point. thus:
- (40) I.e., each vine.
- (41) Of six handbreadths.

(42) Even if there be less than four cubits.

(43) This refers to the space between the two walls (Maim.) or to the length of the wail (Sipponte).

(44) In pursuance of his (R. Jose's) view expressed supra V, 4.

(45) So that the protrusion of the canes is due not to deliberation but to passivity.

(46) Lit., 'opposite'.

(47) I.e., even when the blossom extended beyond the six handbreadths (of the service-border) from the stem of the vine, within which space sowing is prohibited even when there is no blossom overhanging.

(48) But not either side of it (as long, of course, as it is not within six handbreadths of the vine itself).

(49) Since the circumstances resemble those of Mishnah 3.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 7

MISHNAH 1. IF ONE HAS BENT [INTO, AND CONDUCTED THROUGH, THE SOIL] A VINE [SHOOT]¹, THEN IF THERE IS NOT SOIL OVER IT TO THE HEIGHT OF THREE HANDBREADTHS, HE MAY NOT INTRODUCE SEED ABOVE IT,² EVEN IF HE BENT [AND CONDUCTED IT UNDERGROUND] THROUGH A GOURD³ OR THROUGH A PIPE.⁴ IF HE BENT [AND CONDUCTED] IT THROUGH ROCKY SOIL,⁵ THEN EVEN IF THERE BE NOT SOIL OVER IT TO THE HEIGHT OF THREE HANDBREADTHS, IT IS PERMITTED TO INTRODUCE SEED ABOVE IT. AS FOR A KNEE-JOINT-LIKE VINE-STEM [FORMED BY BURYING AND CONDUCTING IT UNDERGROUND],⁶ ITS SERVICE-BORDER IS MEASURED FROM THE SECOND ROOT.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE HAS BENT [AND CONDUCTED UNDERGROUND] THREE VINES SO THAT THEIR [ORIGINAL] STEMS ARE VISIBLE [AS WELL AS THE CONTINUATION OF THESE EMERGING ABOVE GROUND]⁸. R. ELIEZER B. ZADOK SAID: IF THERE IS BETWEEN THEM FROM FOUR TO EIGHT CUBITS,⁹ THEY COMBINE,¹⁰ IF NOT, THEY DO NOT COMBINE. IF A VINE IS WITHERED, IT IS PROHIBITED [TO SOW NEAR IT].¹¹ BUT¹² IT DOES NOT CONDEMN [THE SEED AS KIL'AYIM]. R. MEIR SAID: THE SAME APPLIES TO A COTTON-PLANT.¹³ IT IS FORBIDDEN [TO SOW NEAR IT.] BUT IT DOES NOT CONDEMN. R. ELIEZER B. ZADOK SAID IN HIS¹⁴ NAME: ABOVE THE VINE¹⁵ TOO, IT IS PROHIBITED [TO SOW], YET IT DOES NOT CONDEMN.

MISHNAH 3. IN THE FOLLOWING [SOWING] IS PROHIBITED, BUT THEY DO NOT CONDEMN [SEED ALREADY SOWN THERE]:¹⁶ THE REMAINDER OF A [STATUTORILY INADEQUATE] KARAHATH OF A VINEYARD,¹⁷ THE REMAINDER OF A [STATUTORILY INADEQUATE] MEHOL OF A VINEYARD,¹⁸ THE REMAINDER OF A [STATUTORILY INADEQUATE] 'ARIS-GAP,¹⁹ THE [GROUND UNDER THE] REMAINDER OF TRELLIS-LATHS.²⁰ BUT [THE GROUND] BENEATH A VINE,²¹ AND THE SERVICE-BORDER OF A VINE,²² AND THE [GROUND WITHIN] FOUR CUBITS OF A VINEYARD,²³ DO CONDEMN [SEED SOWN THERE].²⁴

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE CAUSES HIS VINE TO OVERHANG THE [STANDING] CORN OF HIS NEIGHBOUR, HE RENDERS [THAT CORN] CONDEMNED [AS KIL'AYIM].²⁵ AND HE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR IT.²⁶ R. JOSE AND R. SIMEON SAID: A PERSON DOES NOT CONDEMN [AS KIL'AYIM] THAT WHICH IS NOT HIS OWN.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. R. JOSE SAID: IT HAPPENED THAT A MAN SOWED [SEED IN] HIS VINEYARD IN THE SABBATICAL YEAR,²⁸ AND THE MATTER CAME BEFORE R. AKIBA, WHO SAID: A PERSON DOES NOT CONDEMN [AS KIL'AYIM] THAT WHICH IS NOT HIS OWN.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. IF A HIGH-HANDED OCCUPIER³⁰ HAS SOWN SEED IN A VINEYARD,³¹

AND IT LEFT HIS OCCUPATION [AND REVERTED TO THE RIGHTFUL OWNER],³² THE LATTER SHOULD CUT IT DOWN,³³ EVEN IF IT BE DURING [THE MIDDLE DAYS OF] A FESTIVAL.³⁴ UP TO WHAT AMOUNT SHOULD HE PAY THE LABOURERS?³⁵ UP TO A THIRD.³⁶ IF [THEY DEMAND] MORE THAN THIS, HE SHOULD CUT IT IN HIS USUAL WAY EVEN IF HE HAS TO RESUME AFTER THE FESTIVAL.³⁷ FROM WHAT STAGE [ONWARDS] IS ONE TERMED A 'HIGH-HANDED OCCUPIER' ['ANNAS']?³⁸ FROM SUCH TIME AS [THE NAME OF THE ORIGINAL OWNER] HAS SUNK [INTO OBLIVION].³⁹

MISHNAH 7. IF THE WIND HAS BLOWN⁴⁰ VINE-SHOOTS [SO THAT THEY] OVERHANG [STANDING] CORN, ONE SHOULD IMMEDIATELY LOP THEM OFF;⁴¹ IF A MISHAP OCCURRED TO HIM,⁴² IT [I.E., THE PRODUCE] IS PERMITTED.⁴³ IF CORN IS BENT [AND THE EARS REACH] BENEATH A VINE [LIKEWISE IN THE CASE OF GREENS], ONE SHOULD TURN THEM BACK, BUT [IF THIS HAS NOT BEEN DONE], IT DOES NOT CREATE A STATE OF CONDEMNATION [AS KIL'AYIM].⁴⁴ FROM WHAT STAGE IS CORN CAPABLE OF BEING CONDEMNED AS KIL'AYIM? FROM THE TIME IT HAS STRUCK ROOT.⁴⁵ AND GRAPES? FROM THE TIME THEY BECOME AS LARGE AS WHITE BEANS.⁴⁶ CORN WHICH HAS BECOME THOROUGHLY DRY,⁴⁷ AND GRAPES WHICH HAVE BECOME FULLY RIPE,⁴⁸ ARE NOT LIABLE TO BE CONDEMNED [As KIL'AYIM].

MISHNAH 8. [SEED SOWN IN A] PERFORATED FLOWERPOT,⁴⁹ CREATES A STATE OF CONDEMNATION [AS KIL'AYIM] IN A VINEYARD;⁵⁰ [IN] ONE NOT PERFORATED, IT DOES NOT CREATE A STATE OF CONDEMNATION.⁵¹ R. SIMEON, HOWEVER, SAID: [THE SOWING OF SEED IN] EITHER ONE OR THE OTHER IS PROHIBITED, BUT IT DOES NOT [IN THE EVENT] CREATE A STATE OF CONDEMNATION. IF ONE CARRIES A PERFORATED FLOWER-POT THROUGH A VINEYARD, THEN IF [THAT WHICH IS SOWN THEREIN] HAS GROWN A TWO-HUNDREDTH PART,⁵² IT IS FORBIDDEN.⁵³

(1) And it emerges more than six handbreadths away; otherwise the question does not arise.

(2) Since the roots struck by the 'seed' are then liable to penetrate into the soft vine-shoot and this would be like grafting, that is forbidden.

(3) Which has been hollowed out and dried; otherwise the very putting into or passing through it of a vine-shoot would constitute kil'ayim.

(4) Made of earthenware, which is soft enough for the roots of the 'seed' to penetrate.

(5) Or through a conduit of metal or other substance impervious to penetration by the roots.

(6) Emerging above the ground some distance from the root of the vine.

(7) I.e., where it emerges from the ground; this applies only if the original root and stem are completely concealed underground.

(8) Thus presenting six vines in two rows of three each, which constitute a statutory vineyard. In fact only two of the trees need be assumed to have been bent into the soil and conducted underground to emerge some distance away, as then the result would be five vines in two rows of two vines opposite two, and one other 'projecting like a tail'.

(9) I.e., not less than four, and not more than eight cubits.

(10) To form a statutory vineyard, and inter alia necessitate a service-border of four cubits.

(11) On account of appearances, sine people might think that the vine had cast its leaves only temporarily, which happens to all vines, as a rule in the autumn but in some instances also in the summer; this rule, therefore, applies throughout the year.

(12) Once the seed has in innocence been sown.

(13) צמר גפן, lit., 'vine-wool'; the cotton-plant bears resemblance to the vine.

(14) R. Meir's.

(15) When it is sunk underground, and there is not a depth of three handbreadths of soil over it (Maim. and Bert.).

(16) As kil'ayim.

(17) According to supra IV, 1, end, in a karahath of the statutory measure of sixteen cubits, four cubits are allotted on each side as service-borders, and the remaining eight cubits may be sown. Here we speak of a karahath less than sixteen cubits, in which case the space left for sowing is less than eight cubits.

(18) V. supra IV, 1 and 2; a mehol should be twelve cubits if any of it is to be sown, i.e., to allow for a service-border of four cubits on each side leaving four cubits for sowing.

(19) V. supra VI, 6. An 'aris-gap should be eight cubits and one handbreadth.

(20) As already stated in VI, 3, it is prohibited to sow beneath those laths of a trellis which are not themselves overhung with vine-shoots, but once seed has been innocently sown there, it is not condemned as kil'ayim.

(21) I.e., beneath a vine-shoot which extends beyond the six handbreadths constituting the vine's service-border.

(22) I.e., of an individual vine not being part of a vineyard, viz., six handbreadths.

(23) I.e., its service-border. Cf. IV, 5.

(24) As kil'ayim.

(25) Just as if it were his own; especially since it was a deliberate action.

(26) He must compensate his neighbour for the amount of corn which had thus become a total loss to the latter

(27) Since Scripture says: Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with two kinds of seed (Deut. XXII, 9); the effect of this dictum in the present case is that he has made his own vine kil'ayim¹, but not his neighbour's corn.

(28) When all produce is hefker, i.e., ownerless, and at the disposal of any person wishing to help himself to it.

(29) Applied to the case in question this would mean that, in the circumstances given, neither the seed-produce nor the grapes of the vineyard are kil'ayim. The vines — themselves, however, are condemned as kil'ayim, even according to R. Akiba, since there are not hefker in the Sabbatical Year, (v. T.J., and L.).

(30) אנס, one who has seized property illegally and by violence.

(31) Since the public are under the impression that it is his own vineyard, the rule that 'a person does not condemn as kil'ayim that which is not his own' does not apply here.

(32) Now the position is that the person who had sown the seed in the vineyard had been operating with something not his own, and that, therefore, no state of kil'ayim had in fact been brought about.

(33) On account of 'appearances'. i.e., in order that people might not be under the impression that this man, the rightful owner, is allowing kil'ayim to stay in his vineyard.

(34) When, as a rule only such work may be done as is necessary to obviate deterioration or loss; here this consideration does not apply, but in order to remove suspicion through 'appearances', the work is permitted.

(35) For cutting the corn.

(36) Either a third more than the customary wage-rate, or a third of the value of the entire produce affected.

(37) Even though by this time the produce might have increased by a two-hundredth part. (Cf. supra V, 6).

(38) In the sense that the field is regarded as his, so that the sowing by him of seed in a vineyard results in kil'ayim.

(39) Maim. renders: From such time as he, i.e., the original owner has sunk, i.e., disappeared, withdrawn himself, hidden, to avoid terrorization by the 'annas.

(40) Maim. 'broken'; L. adds 'but not severed'.

(41) Reading יגדור Maim. 'Our text יגדור might mean: 'prop up (the shoots) with a fence'.

(42) Preventing him from taking the measure prescribed.

(43) Since it is there not with the owner's acquiescence.

(44) The difference between this case and the one dealt with in Mishnah 4 is that in the latter the roots of the corn are under the foliage of the vine, and here only the top ends.

(45) Reading משתשליש. Another version mentioned already in T.J. משתשליש, 'from the time it has grown a third (of its possible full size)'. Till then there is no 'fulness of the seed', required by the precept of kil'ayim (Deut. XXII, 9).

(46) Till then the 'produce (E.V. 'increase') of the vineyard' (ibid.) is not applicable.

(47) After this the term '(fulness of the) seed' no longer applies; (it is called just wheat or barley etc. Maim.).

(48) After this the expression 'produce of the vineyard' is no longer applied; (the term is just: 'grapes', Maim.).

(49) The hole being sufficient to permit a thin root to go through.

(50) Or within its four cubits service-border, just as if it had been sown in the soil of the vineyard itself; if the flower-pot stayed there long enough for the seed in it to grow a two-hundredth part of its normally possible full size.

(51) Since the earth in the flower-pot is not exposed towards the soil of the vineyard or of its service-border.

(52) Of its possible full size. For the method of calculating this, v. supra V, 6, notes.

(53) The seed; but since the flowerpot had not been set down on the ground, the vines are not affected. Maim. understands this passage thus: Carrying a perforated flower-pot across a vineyard, if in the course of transit it could grow a two-hundredth part, is prohibited (Yad. Hil. Kil'ayim V, 23). It seems that according to Maim. it is prohibited ab initio to do this, but that in the event the seed does not thereby become forbidden.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 8

MISHNAH 1. KIL'AYIM OF THE VINEYARD IT IS FORBIDDEN EITHER TO SOW OR TO SUFFER TO GROW; IT IS, MOREOVER, FORBIDDEN TO DERIVE USE THEREFROM.¹ KIL'AYIM OF SEEDS² IT IS PROHIBITED EITHER TO SOW³ OR TO SUFFER TO GROW;³ BUT IT IS PERMITTED TO CONSUME IT, AND, SO MUCH THE MORE, TO DERIVE USE THEREFROM. KIL'AYIM OF CLOTHING MATERIALS IS PERMITTED IN ALL RESPECTS, EXCEPT THAT THE WEARING THEREOF [ALONE] IS FORBIDDEN.⁴ KIL'AYIM OF CATTLE IT IS PERMITTED TO REAR AND TO KEEP,⁵ THE DELIBERATE CROSS-BREEDING [PRODUCING SUCH] BEING ALONE PROHIBITED. [THE DELIBERATE MATING, OR YOKING TOGETHER OF] ONE KIND OF KIL'AYIM OF CATTLE WITH ANOTHER⁶ IS PROHIBITED.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IT IS PROHIBITED TO USE A BEHEMAH⁸ WITH A BEHEMAH [OF ANOTHER SPECIES], OR A HAYYAH⁹ WITH A HAYYAH [OF ANOTHER SPECIES], OR A BEHEMAH WITH A HAYYAH, OR A HAYYAH WITH A BEHEMAH, OR AN UNCLEAR BEAST WITH AN UNCLEAR BEAST [OF ANOTHER SPECIES], OR A CLEAR BEAST WITH A CLEAR BEAST [OF ANOTHER SPECIES], OR AN UNCLEAR BEAST WITH A CLEAR BEAST, OR A CLEAR BEAST WITH AN UNCLEAR BEAST,¹⁰ FOR PLOUGHING OR FOR TRACTION, OR TO LEAD THEM [TIED TOGETHER].¹¹

MISHNAH 3. THE PERSON DRIVING¹² RECEIVES THE FORTY [LASHES].¹³ AND THE PERSON SITTING IN THE WAGON RECEIVES THE FORTY [LASHES].¹⁴ BUT R. MEIR EXEMPTS [THE LATTER].¹⁵ [THE TYING OF] A THIRD [ANIMAL HETEROGENEOUS TO TWO ALREADY HARNESSSED TO A WAGON] TO THE STRAPS [OF THOSE ANIMALS]¹⁶ IS PROHIBITED.

MISHNAH 4. IT IS PROHIBITED TO TIE A HORSE EITHER TO THE SIDES OF A WAGON [DRAWN BY OXEN] OR BEHIND THE WAGON,¹⁷ OR [TO TIE] A LIBYAN ASS TO [THE SIDES OF, OR BEHIND, A WAGON DRAWN BY] CAMELS.¹⁸ R. JUDAH SAID: ALL [MULES] BORN FROM MARES, NOTWITHSTANDING THAT THEIR SIRES WERE ASSES, ARE PERMITTED ONE WITH ANOTHER;¹⁹ LIKEWISE [MULES] BORN FROM SHE-ASSES, NOTWITHSTANDING THAT THEIR SIRES WERE HORSES, ARE PERMITTED ONE WITH ANOTHER;¹⁹ BUT [MULES] BORN FROM MARES WITH [MULES] BORN FROM SHE-ASSES ARE PROHIBITED ONE WITH ANOTHER.²⁰

MISHNAH 5. MULES OF UNCERTAIN PARENTAGE²¹ ARE FORBIDDEN ONE WITH ANOTHER, BUT A RAMMAK [A MULE WHOSE DAM IS KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN A MARE] IS PERMITTED [WITH ANOTHER RAMMAK].²² WILD MAN-LIKE CREATURES²³ ARE DEEMED AS BELONGING TO THE CATEGORY OF HAYYAH.²⁴ R. JOSE SAID: [WHEN DEAD] THEY [OR PART OF THEIR CORPSES] COMMUNICATE UNCLEANNESS [TO MEN AND TO OBJECTS SUSCEPTIBLE THERETO WHICH ARE] UNDER THE SAME ROOF,²⁵ AS DOES [THE CORPSE OF] A HUMAN BEING.²⁶ THE HEDGEHOG AND THE MOLE²⁷ OF THE BUSHES BELONG TO THE CATEGORY OF HAYYAH.²⁸ AS FOR A MOLE, R. JOSE SAID IN THE NAME OF BETH SHAMMAI: AN OLIVE'S SIZE [OF ITS CARCASE] RENDERS A PERSON CARRYING IT UNCLEAR, AND A LENTILS SIZE THEREOF RENDERS A PERSON TOUCHING IT UNCLEAR.²⁹

MISHNAH 6. THE WILD OX BELONGS TO THE CATEGORY OF BEHEMAH,³⁰ BUT R.

JOSE SAID: TO THE CATEGORY OF HAYYAH.³¹ THE DOG BELONGS TO THE CATEGORY OF HAYYAH,³² BUT R. MEIR SAID: TO THE CATEGORY OF BEHEMAH.³² THE SWINE BELONGS TO THE CATEGORY OF BEHEMAH; THE WILD ASS TO THAT OF HAYYAH,³³ THE ELEPHANT AND THE APE TO THAT OF HAYYAH.³² A HUMAN BEING IS PERMITTED TO DRAW, PLOUGH, OR LEAD WITH ANY OF THEM.³⁴

(1) According to supra V, 7, it should be burnt.

(2) Including grain and vegetables.

(3) Only in the Holy Land.

(4) V. Lev. XIX, 19 and Deut. XXII, 12.

(5) For one's use. It was necessary for the Mishnah to mention both 'rear' and 'keep'. If the former only had been mentioned one might have thought that whilst rearing was permitted, it was forbidden to use the animal. If the latter only had been mentioned one might have thought that one may use such an animal only when it had been reared by a non-Israelite.

(6) E.g., the sire of one having been a horse, and of the other, an ass.

(7) The prohibition applies to any two kil'ayim offspring of cattle which are unlike in respect of ears, tail and the sound emitted by them.

(8) The word rendered in E.V. 'cattle'; it is, however, used also for an individual piece of cattle and denotes a domestic, mostly horned, animal.

(9) (One of the) animals of chase. Cf. supra I, 6. Scripture forbids ploughing with an ox and an ass together (Deut. XXII, 10), but on analogy with the prohibition of suffering one's animals to work on the Sabbath, this prohibition is understood as applying to any two animals of diverse species and likewise to birds.

(10) The repetition of 'A with B, or B with A' in all these instances is for the purpose of making it clear that the prohibition applies whether animal A is the principal factor in the case and B secondary, or vice-versa.

(11) Ploughing is expressly forbidden in Scripture, y. Deut. loc. cit.; the Rabbis extend the prohibition to all forms of traction and load-carrying, as well as to tying them together even if it be for the purpose only of leading them, without their drawing or carrying a load. T.J. discusses whether leading them together by means of the driver's call is also prohibited. According to T.B., B.M. 9a it would appear that 'drawing' (מושך) and 'leading' (מנהיג) are synonymous terms, the first being used in connection with camels and the latter with asses.

(12) Lit., 'leading'. sc. two heterogeneous animals.

(13) Prescribed as the penalty for the transgression of a negative precept (v. Deut, XXV, 3).

(14) Since it is on his account that the wagon is being drawn.

(15) On the ground that he takes no active part in the driving.

(16) I.e., even though not to the wagon itself. Maim. (in his commentary) renders: 'Sitting in a third wagon tied to the straps of a second which is attached to the first wagon'.

(17) Since the horse assists in some measure in the propelling of the vehicle.

(18) One would think that an ass can make no appreciable difference to the propelling of the wagon already drawn by camels, since the latter are so much the stronger. The Libyan ass, however, was of a heftier species approximately to the camel, and would, when tied even to a camel-drawn vehicle, help in pulling it.

(19) Since their sires and dams respectively were, in each case, of the same species.

(20) Sc., for purposes of cross-breeding or use, but one is not liable to lashes. On the other hand if their respective sires were of the same species and not their dams, transgression of the prohibition is punishable by lashes.

(21) In the case of these mules it is impossible, when they are young, to recognize whether its sire belonged to the horses and its dam to the asses, or vice-versa.

(22) L., 'with other horses'.

(23) אדני השדה n . Perhaps a chimpanzee or gorilla. Another reading אדמי (? constr. pl. of אדם , 'man'). Some versions, אבני השדה. Cf. Rashi to Job. V, 23. T.J. renders בר נש דטורא , 'man of the mountain' in connection with which Kohut suggests that the reading must be supposed to have been ארני (a fem. sing. adjective from the noun GR. 'mountain').

(24) And are subject to the same laws re yoking etc., together as a hayyah. Cf. supra 2, n. 9.

(25) v. Num. XIX, 14. Cf. Oh. II, 1.

(26) Which means that the creatures referred to are deemed as belonging to the human species, and not to the category of hayyah, and therefore, not subject to the laws applying to a hayyah in respect of yoking etc., together with other animals.

(27) Or, weasel.

(28) In respect of the laws of uncleanness.

(29) V. B. K. 80a. If the mole (or weasel) is identical with inn of Lev. XI, 23. it is a שרץ , 'a creeping thing', a lentil's-size thereof renders unclean by contact, not by carrying; if it is a hayyah, an olive's-size thereof renders a person carrying it unclean. As there is doubt as to which category the mole belongs, both disabilities attach thereto.

(30) On the assumption that its origin is domestic. As a behemah, its heleb (fat v. Glos.) is prohibited and when it is slaughtered its blood does not require covering with earth.

(31) His assumption being that its origin is wild. As a hayyah, its heleb is permitted, and its blood requires covering.

(32) The matter is of practical importance in the event of a person entering into a contract to sell all his hayyah, or all his behemah.

(33) And is therefore forbidden with a domestic ass.

(34) I.e., a human being may pull a vehicle-drawing (or load-carrying) animal by the bridle, help to propel and guide a plough drawn by an animal, and walk beside an animal attached to him by a rope.

Mishna - Mas. Kilayim Chapter 9

MISHNAH 1. NO [CLOTHING MATERIAL] IS FORBIDDEN ON ACCOUNT OF KIL'AYIM EXCEPT [A MIXTURE OF] WOOL AND LINEN.¹ NO [CLOTHING MATERIAL] IS SUBJECT TO UNCLEANNESS BY LEPROSY EXCEPT [SUCH AS IS MADE OF] WOOL OR LINEN.² PRIESTS DON FOR SERVICE IN THE SANCTUARY, NONE BUT [GARMENTS OF] WOOL AND LINEN.³ IF ONE HAS HACKLED TOGETHER CAMEL'S WOOL WITH SHEEP'S WOOL, IF THE GREATER PART BE CAMEL'S WOOL, IT IS PERMITTED [TO MIX LINEN THEREWITH];⁴ IF THE GREATER PART BE SHEEP'S WOOL, IT IS FORBIDDEN; IF IT IS HALF AND HALF, IT IS FORBIDDEN. THE SAME APPLIES TO HEMP AND LINEN HACKLED TOGETHER.

MISHNAH 2. [GARMENTS MADE OF A MIXTURE OF] SILK AND FLOSS-SILK⁵ DO NOT COME UNDER THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM, BUT ARE PROHIBITED ON ACCOUNT OF APPEARANCES.⁶ TO MATTRESSES AND PILLOWS THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM DOES NOT APPLY,⁷ PROVIDED ONE'S FLESH DOES NOT COME INTO [IMMEDIATE] CONTACT WITH THE MIXED MATERIAL. THERE IS NO [PERMISSIBILITY FOR THE] CASUAL [WEARING] OF KIL'AYIM,⁸ NEITHER MAY ONE WEAR KIL'AYIM EVEN ON TOP OF TEN [GARMENTS]. EVEN FOR THE PURPOSE OF ELUDING [UNAUTHORIZED] IMPOSTS.⁹

MISHNAH 3. HAND-TOWELS, SCROLL-WRAPPINGS,¹⁰ AND BATH-TOWELS DO NOT COME UNDER THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM.¹¹ R. ELIEZER DECLARED THEM SUBJECT TO THAT PROHIBITION.¹² BARBERS'-SHEETS ARE SUBJECT TO THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM.¹³

MISHNAH 4. SHROUDS FOR THE DEAD, AND THE PACKSADDLE OF AN ASS ARE NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF KILAYIM;¹⁴ ONE MUST NOT [HOWEVER] PLACE A PACK-SADDLE [MADE OF KIL'AYIM] ON ONE'S SHOULDER EVEN FOR THE PURPOSE OF CARRYING DUNG OUT THEREON.

MISHNAH 5. VENDORS OF CLOTHES MAY SELL [CLOTHES MADE OF KIL'AYIM] IN ACCORDANCE WITH THEIR [TRADE] CUSTOM,¹⁵ AS LONG AS THEY HAVE NOT THE INTENTION. IN THE SUN, [TO PROTECT THEMSELVES] FROM THE SUN, OR, IN THE RAIN, [TO PROTECT THEMSELVES THEREBY] FROM THE RAIN. THE PARTICULARLY SCRUPULOUS¹⁶ SUSPEND [SUCH MATERIALS OR GARMENTS] ON A STICK OVER THEIR BACKS.¹⁷

MISHNAH 6. TAILORS MAY SEW [MATERIALS WHICH ARE KIL'AYIM] IN THEIR ACCUSTOMED WAY,¹⁸ AS LONG AS THEY HAVE NO INTENTION, IN THE SUN, [TO PROTECT THEMSELVES THEREBY] FROM THE SUN, OR, IN THE RAIN, [TO PROTECT THEMSELVES THEREBY] FROM THE RAIN. THE PARTICULARLY SCRUPULOUS SEW [SUCH MATERIALS AS THEY ARE LAID] ON THE GROUND.¹⁹

MISHNAH 7. THE BIRRUS BLANKET OR BRINDISIAN²⁰ BLANKET, OR [NETHER GARMENTS OF] DALMATIAN CLOTH, OR FELT²¹ SHOES, MAY NOT BE WORN UNTIL ONE HAS EXAMINED THEM].²² R. JOSE SAID THAT SUCH [OF THE ABOVE] AS COME FROM THE SEA-COAST OR FROM LANDS BEYOND THE SEA, DO NOT REQUIRE EXAMINATION, SINCE THE PRESUMPTION WITH REGARD TO THEM IS [THAT THEY ARE SEWN] WITH HEMPEN THREAD.²³ TO CLOTH-LINED FOOTWEAR THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM DOES NOT APPLY.²⁴

MISHNAH 8. ONLY THAT WHICH IS SPUN OR WOVEN IS FORBIDDEN²⁵ UNDER THE LAW OF KIL'AYIM, FOR IT IS SAID: THOU SHALT NOT WEAR SHA'ATNEZ,²⁶ WHICH WORD IS A COMPOUND STANDING FOR SHUA',²⁷ TAWUI,²⁸ AND NUZ.²⁹ R. SIMEON SAID: [THE WORD SHA'ATNEZ SUGGESTS THAT] HE [THE TRANSGRESSOR OF THE PRECEPT] IS PERVERTED³⁰ AND CAUSES HIS FATHER IN HEAVEN TO AVERT HIMSELF [FROM HIM].³¹

MISHNAH 9. TO FELTED MATERIALS THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM APPLIES, SINCE [THE STRANDS CONSTITUTING THEM] HAVE BEEN CARDED. IT IS PROHIBITED TO ATTACH³² AN EDGING OF WOOL TO LINEN MATERIAL,³³ SINCE THIS RESEMBLES WEAVING.³⁴ R. JOSE SAID: IT IS FORBIDDEN TO USE CORDS OF RED PURPLE [WOOL] [TO TIE ROUND A LOOSE LINEN GARMENT], SINCE PRIOR TO TYING IT, ONE STITCHES IT ON. IT IS FORBIDDEN TO TIE A STRIP OF WOOLLEN MATERIAL WITH ONE OF LINEN MATERIAL FOR THE PURPOSE OF GIRDLING ONE'S LOINS THEREWITH, EVEN IF THERE IS A LEATHER STRAP BETWEEN THE TWO.³⁵

MISHNAH 10. TO [STITCHED-ON] WEAVERS' MARKS OR LAUNDRYMEN'S MARKS THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM APPLIES. IF ONE HAS DRAWN A THREAD [THROUGH MATERIAL]³⁶ ONCE, THIS DOES NOT [IN LAW] CONSTITUTE A CONNECTION,³⁷ NOR DOES [THE PROHIBITION OF] KIL'AYIM APPLY THERETO,³⁸ AND IF ONE HAS DRAWN IT OUT ON THE SABBATH, HE IS NOT PUNISHABLE.³⁹ IF ONE MADE ITS TWO ENDS COME OUT ON THE SAME SIDE [OF THE MATERIAL], THIS CONSTITUTES A CONNECTION, AND COMES UNDER THE PROHIBITION OF KIL'AYIM,⁴⁰ AND ONE WHO HAS DRAWN THIS THREAD OUT ON THE SABBATH IS LIABLE.⁴¹ R. JUDAH SAID: [THE PROHIBITION DOES NOT APPLY] UNTIL ONE HAS MADE THREE STITCHES. A SACK AND A BASKET [ONE HAVING A STRIP OF WOOLLEN MATERIAL ATTACHED TO IT, AND THE OTHER A STRIP OF LINEN] COMBINE TO FORM KIL'AYIM.⁴²

(1) Termed sha'atnez cf. infra 8. V. Lev. XIX, 19 and, more explicitly. Deut. XXII, 11. Wool for the purpose of this prohibition, is only sheep's wool, since from II Kings III, 4 it is apparent that צמר (zemer) 'wool' without any qualifying description, means, sheep's wool.

(2) V. Lev. XIII, 47ff. This is taken to apply only to undyed wool or linen. With regard to kil'ayim, however, there is no difference whether these be dyed or undyed.

(3) The priestly garments were made of byssus (fine linen) and wool dyed blue-purple, red-purple and crimson. V. Ex. XXVIII, 4-8, XXXIX, 1.

(4) The permission applies only when the two kinds of wool have been well mixed together e.g., by hackling or combing or crushing; but if a piece of cloth of camel's wool has one distinct thread of sheep's wool drawn through it, it is not permitted to draw a linen thread through the material.

(5) כלף. A vegetable yarn variously identified which in some respects resembles sheep's wool.

(6) Since the silk resembles linen, and the floss-silk wool. Likewise silk would be forbidden with wool (and floss-silk with linen) 'on account of appearances', but since silk has become a generally known commodity, the reason 'on account of appearances' has entirely fallen away, and silk is permitted with either wool or linen. V. Yoreh De'ah 298, 1. and cf. L. to our Mishnah and his בתי כלאים 113. and Pithehe Teshubah to Yoreh De'ah, loc. cit.

(7) Since Scripture says of material which is kil'ayim: 'it shall not come upon thee' (Lev. XIX, 19) and: 'thou shalt not wear' (Deut. XXII, 11), having it beneath a person, is not forbidden. This permission is, in practice, operative only if the bolsters or mattresses made with kil'ayim are hard; but if they are soft, and there is consequently the possibility of even a thread winding itself round one's body and giving some warmth, it is not permitted to lie on them even if they are under ten permitted blankets.

(8) When the person's intention is that it shall serve him as a garment or covering.

(9) The commentators explain: By wearing garments which, had they been carried otherwise, would have been dutiable, a device not unknown nowadays. According to the Gemara in B.K. 113a (Sonc. ed. p. 662 f.) the Mishnah must have had in mind here imposts unauthorized by the proper authority, since were it otherwise, the duty of complying with the law of the land is, in Jewish teaching, beyond question; in fact the eluding of customs is denounced (Semahoth II, 9) as being as reprehensible as bloodshed, idol-worship, incest and Sabbath-desecration. In connection with an incident reported (Gen. R. LXXXII, 8) of two scholars who in time of persecution varied their garb but were, nevertheless, held up by Roman soldiers, who expressed surprise that the scholars should have attempted to save their lives by transgressing the Torah, the present writer has suggested, that since it was evidently a transgression of a biblical precept relating to clothing that was involved, it seems that the disguise consisted in wearing kil'ayim so as not to be recognized as Jews. The tax referred to in our Mishnah might thus have been the Fiscus Judaicus which was considered an affront to Jewish religious feelings. The editor has, as a comment on this surmise, brought to my notice an anonymous opinion cited in שאלות ותשובות מהרי ק No. 84, to the effect that the impost referred to in our Mishnah might have been one enforced on Jews only. In B.K., loc. cit. the view is expressed that the legal principle involved is the question of דבר שאינו מתכוון i.e., the permissibility of an action which is in itself permissible, but which unavoidably, though unintentionally, results in something forbidden.

(10) Cloth bands and 'mantles' used to tie up and cover Scrolls of the Law, or cloths spread on the desk on which the Scrolls are unrolled and read.

(11) Since these are not intended for protecting or warming the human body. A table-cloth is in the same category.

(12) Since when drying oneself with either towel one does warm oneself; with a bath-towel one also covers oneself as with a cloak; when one clasps the covered Torah-scroll one derives warmth therefrom.

(13) Only if it has an aperture for the head; otherwise it is not an article of wear nor is it intended to protect the body, but one's clothes.

(14) In the case of the shrouds the reason is that on the strength of a Rabbinic interpretation of Ps. LXXXVIII, 6, the dead are declared exempt from all precepts. The saddle-cloth is exempt because it is stiff (cf. p. 135. n. 1). The exemption in the latter case operate only when the heterogeneous element is recognizable in the material but not otherwise, since one might in error use some of it for patching one's garments. (V. Nid. 61b).

(15) Either by way of carrying them over their shoulder, or by way of putting them for the purpose of displaying them before prospective customers.

(16) צנועים, lit., the 'modest', denoting a positive quality, probably nothing else but discretion or modesty 'Buchler' Types (contra Kohler who identifies the Zenu'im with the Essenes) pp. 59 ff.

(17) So that the forbidden materials or garments do not touch the person carrying them.

(18) I.e., letting them lie across one's lap.

(19) Placing the material on a board or table would answer the same purpose viz., avoid letting the material rest on one's body.

(20) הברסין והברדין. Our rendering is after last. But v. Kohut, 'Aruk s.v. בדם for variant readings and varying renderings; he concludes that one represents a (? woven) woollen and the other a felt material. Maim., frankly admits that he is unable definitely to identify the materials mentioned here except in so far as it is apparent from T.J. that they were woollens for covering the feet and thighs, and were often sown with linen thread.

(21) פינון, pile.

(22) To see whether they are made with linen.

- (23) Since in the days of the Mishnah linen was very rare in those countries. T.J., however, says: Now that linen is common, all must be examined. Rash. (ca. 1150 — 1230 C.E.) says that in his own locality (Sens, district of Yonne, France) there was no need to examine because hempen thread was much cheaper there than linen and also made a stronger thread and was therefore commonly used; but, he adds, in England and Normandy (of which he was a native) where hemp is scarce, examination is essential.
- (24) Maim., Yad. Hil. Kil. X, 15 gives as the reason that the skin of the feet is very hard and that consequently in comparison with that of other parts of the body, the foot does not derive so much warmth from the cloth lining. Kesef Mishneh to this says that the footwear spoken of in our Mishnah was lined with linen for the summer, but additionally lined with wool for the winter. Ikkar Tosaf. Yomtov rightly says that the reason for this exemption is not apparent.
- (25) By the Pentateuchal law.
- (26) שעטנז, Deut. XXII, 11. What follows is an interpretation by the Midrashic device of Notarikon.
- (27) שוע, each thread (one of wool and the other of linen) smoothed out by the process of carding.
- (28) טווי (each strand) spun.
- (29) נז. Maim., and Rashi to Nid., 61b, 'woven', but Rashi to Lev. XIX, 19, also R. Tam (v. Tosaf. to Nid. l.c.) 'twisted'. The latter is the accepted meaning, and the Mishnah is taken to mean that according to Pentateuchal law, the prohibition of sha'atnez applies only when a strand of wool and one of linen, each carded (shua'), and spun (tawui), and twisted (nuz) have been joined together (יחדו in the text) by weaving or sewing or tying. According to R. Tam (also Maim.), we should understand: When each strand has been carded, or spun, or twisted etc. This is accepted as a Rabbinic extension of the Pentateuchal law. Bert., prefers a rendering which he quotes (among others) from an anonymous teacher. Viz., 'When the strands have been shua' (carded), and tawui (spun), and nuz, which he renders 'woven'. This authority apparently takes the word יחדו 'together' in the text as adding sewing and tying to the prohibition of weaving, which according to him, is covered by nuz.
- (30) נלז, Naloz, another play on the last syllable of the word sha'atnez.
- (31) So Maim., and others. An alternative rendering: 'And he perverts or subverts (the order willed by) his Father in Heaven (in that he joins together species which He ordained should be kept distinct)'.
- (32) Either by drawing through or interlacing, or by means of an adhesive substance (v. L.).
- (33) Or vice-versa.
- (34) Or, 'since this (i.e., the edging) is wound round (or encloses) the woven material'.
- (35) Since the woollen and linen strips will be tied together when the girdle is used. Otherwise such a combination of wool-leather-linen is not forbidden.
- (36) A thread of linen through woollen material, or vice versa; or any thread through two pieces of material one woollen and the other linen.
- (37) In the case of more than one piece of material, the drawing through of a thread once would not make them into one piece in respect of the laws of uncleanness, thus: If one piece becomes unclean, the other is not thereby rendered unclean; likewise if both are unclean, the ritual cleansing of the one will not restore cleanness to the other.
- (38) Some stipulate: As long as the ends of the thread are not tied together, (v. L.).
- (39) Even if he has done so in order later to sew up again, since it is 'tearing so as to sew two stitches' which is prohibited on the Sabbath (Shab. VII, 2).
- (40) Some say: Even if the ends of the thread are not tied together, (v. L.).
- (41) But only if the ends had been tied together.
- (42) Sc. when the two strips are sewn together (with at least two stitches); and we do not say that each piece of cloth, being merely an appendage to the principal article, is negligible. Maim.: A garment made of wool and linen joined together by a sack or basket. Sippons, apparently on the basis of a variant reading in Sifre, Deut. 232 (ed. Friedmann, p. 117a): If a sack, or a basket, contain wool and linen, the sack, or basket have the effect of combining the two species, so as to form kil'ayim (and it is therefore forbidden to carry such a sack or basket on one's shoulder). v. Rosh. In view of the fact that T.J. here comments: 'But tents, (covered enclosures containing wool and linen together) do not effect kil'ayim,' the latter interpretation seems to be the correct one.

Mishna - Mas. Kinim Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THE [SPRINKLING OF THE BLOOD OF A] SIN-OFFERING OF THE BIRD¹ IS PERFORMED BELOW,² BUT THAT OF A BEAST, ABOVE.³ THE BURNT-OFFERING OF THE BIRD IS PERFORMED ABOVE,⁴ BUT THE BURNT-OFFERING OF A BEAST, BELOW.⁵ SHOULD ONE VARY THIS PROCEDURE WITH EITHER, THEN THE OFFERING IS DISQUALIFIED.⁶ THE PRESCRIBED RITUAL IN THE CASE OF KINNIM⁷ WAS AS FOLLOWS: IN THE CASE OF OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS,⁸ ONE [BIRD] IS A SIN-OFFERING⁹ AND ONE A BURNT-OFFERING.¹⁰ IN RESPECT OF VOWS AND FREEWILL OBLIGATIONS, HOWEVER, ALL ARE BURNT-OFFERINGS.¹¹ WHAT CONSTITUTES A VOW-OFFERING? WHEN ONE SAYS: 'IT IS INCUMBENT UPON ME TO BRING A BURNT-OFFERING'.¹² AND WHAT CONSTITUTES A FREEWILL-OFFERING? WHEN ONE SAYS: BEHOLD, THIS SHALL SERVE AS A BURNT-OFFERING'.¹³ WHAT IS THE [PRACTICAL] DIFFERENCE BETWEEN VOWED AND FREEWILL OBLIGATIONS? IN THE CASE OF VOWS, ONE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THEIR REPLACEMENT IN THE EVENT OF THEIR DEATH, OR THEIR HAVING BEEN STOLEN; BUT IN THE CASE OF FREEWILL OBLIGATIONS, ONE IS NOT HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR THEIR REPLACEMENT.

MISHNAH 2. IF A SIN-OFFERING BECOMES MIXED UP WITH BURNT-OFFERINGS,¹⁴ OR BURNT-OFFERINGS WITH SIN-OFFERINGS, WERE IT EVEN ONE IN TEN THOUSAND, ALL MUST BE LEFT TO DIE.¹⁵ IF [BIRDS ASSIGNED AS] SIN-OFFERINGS¹⁶ BECOME MIXED UP WITH [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS,¹⁷ THEN THOSE VALID CORRESPOND TO THE NUMBER OF SIN-OFFERINGS AMONG THE OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS;¹⁸ SIMILARLY, IF [BIRDS ASSIGNED AS] BURNT-OFFERINGS BECOME MIXED UP WITH [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS,¹⁹ THE NUMBER VALID IS IN PROPORTION TO THE NUMBER OF BURNT-OFFERINGS AMONG OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS.²⁰ [THIS RULE HOLDS GOOD] WHETHER THE [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS ARE IN THE MAJORITY AND THE FREEWILL-OFFERINGS IN THE MINORITY, OR THE FREEWILL-OFFERINGS ARE IN THE MAJORITY AND AND THOSE THAT ARE OBLIGATORY IN THE MINORITY,²¹ OR WHETHER THEY ARE BOTH EQUAL IN NUMBER.²²

MISHNAH 3. WHEN IS THIS SO?²³ WHEN OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS [GET MIXED UP] WITH VOLUNTARY OFFERINGS.²⁴ WHEN, HOWEVER, OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS GET MIXED UP ONE WITH ANOTHER,²⁵ WITH ONE [PAIR] BELONGING TO ONE [WOMAN] AND THE OTHER PAIR TO ANOTHER [WOMAN],²⁶ OR TWO [PAIRS] BELONGING TO ONE AND TWO [PAIRS] TO ANOTHER, OR THREE [PAIRS] TO ONE AND THREE [PAIRS] TO ANOTHER,²⁷ THEN HALF OF THESE ARE VALID AND THE OTHER HALF DISQUALIFIED.²⁸ IF, HOWEVER, ONE [PAIR] BELONGS TO ONE [WOMAN] AND TWO PAIRS TO ANOTHER, OR THREE PAIRS TO ANOTHER, OR TEN PAIRS TO ANOTHER OR A HUNDRED TO ANOTHER, ONLY THE LESSER NUMBER REMAINS VALID.²⁹ [THIS IS IRRESPECTIVE OF] WHETHER [THE PAIRS] ARE OF THE SAME DENOMINATION³⁰ OR OF TWO DENOMINATIONS,³¹ OR WHETHER THEY BELONG TO ONE WOMAN OR TO TWO.

MISHNAH 4. WHAT IS MEANT BY ONE 'DENOMINATION'?³² [WHEN BOTH PAIRS ARE] FOR TWO BIRTHS,³³ OR FOR TWO ISSUES;³⁴ [SUCH A CASE] CONSTITUTES ONE DENOMINATION.³⁵ AND 'TWO DENOMINATIONS'? [WHEN ONE PAIR IS BROUGHT] FOR A BIRTH, [AND THE OTHER] FOR AN ISSUE. WHAT IS MEANT BY 'TWO WOMEN'? [WHEN] ONE [WOMAN] BRINGS [HER OFFERING] FOR A BIRTH AND THE OTHER FOR A BIRTH, OR [WHEN ONE BRINGS] AFTER AN ISSUE AND THE OTHER AFTER AN ISSUE, THIS ALSO CONSTITUTES 'OF ONE DENOMINATION'. AND A CASE 'OF TWO

DENOMINATIONS'? WHEN ONE BRINGS HER PAIR AS A RESULT OF A BIRTH AND THE OTHER AS A RESULT OF AN ISSUE. R. JOSE SAYS: WHEN TWO WOMEN PURCHASE THEIR KINNIM IN PARTNERSHIP,³⁶ OR GIVE THE PRICE OF THEIR KINNIM TO THE PRIEST [FOR HIM TO PURCHASE THEM], THEN THE PRIEST CAN OFFER WHICH ONE HE PLEASURES AS A SIN-OFFERING OR AS A BURNT-OFFERING, IRRESPECTIVE OF THE FACT WHETHER THEY BELONG TO ONE DENOMINATION OR TO TWO.³⁷

(1) All the instances for which the Bible prescribes the offering of a couple of birds are cited in the Introduction heading this Tractate. One of these birds was regarded as a sin-offering (חטאת) and the other as a burnt-offering (עולה). V. Lev. V, 9-10. The Mishnah (Zeb. 53a) records that the חטאת was eaten by the males of the priesthood within the hangings of the Court on the same day and evening until midnight; whereas the עולה, which belongs to the holiest class of sacrifices (קדשי קדשים) has to be flayed, dismembered and totally consumed by fire.

(2) V. Mid. III, 1 for a graphic description of the altar. A red line, right across the centre of the altar, served to distinguish its upper part from the lower part thereof, a distinction necessary for the proper fulfilment of the blood-sprinkling attached to the various sacrifices. Our Mishnah refers to Lev. V, 9: 'And he shall sprinkle the blood of the sin-offering upon the side of the altar; and the rest of the blood shall be drained at the base of the altar: it is a sin-offering'. In the case of the חטאת 'the side of the altar' was that part below the red line, v. Zeb. 64b.

(3) V. Lev. IV, 30.

(4) Lev. I, 15: 'And the priest shall bring it upon the altar and pinch off its head and make it smoke on the altar, the blood thereof shall be drained on the side of the altar'. Since the draining (ונמצה) occurs side by side with the smoke of the sacrifices (והקטיר), which must refer to the top of the altar, the deducted inference is that the sprinkling of the עולה is also performed above.

(5) In the case of all burnt-offerings of beasts the sprinkling is done below the line, the Bible always using the words 'at the base of the altar', v. Zeb. 57a.

(6) I.e., in the sprinkling, or in the case of the 'burnt-offering of a bird' which had no sprinkling, in the draining of the blood.

(7) The Mishnah proper begins here, hitherto being merely introductory of the cases of confusion dealt with in this Tractate. The חטאת is mentioned first here, according to the order found in the Bible. קנים is pl. of קן (cf. Deut. XXII, 6; XXXII, 11), and always refers to the pair of sacrificial birds, whereas פרידה is used of a single bird (v. infra III, 6).

(8) V. Introduction. Though 'Kinnim' was the poor man's offering, yet in the case of a man or woman suffering a flux (זב וזבה), it sufficed even for the opulent.

(9) The blood-sprinkling taking place below the red line. In the case of the 'Kinnim' brought by the proselyte, both birds were regarded as burnt-offerings; not being so common an instance, the Mishnah does not deal with it. In Temple times, the new proselyte had to bring the silver equivalent of the 'Kinnim' (Tosef. Shek. IV, 22 and Baraita R.H. 31b).

(10) With the blood-sprinkling above.

(11) Freewill-offerings consisted only of burnt- or peace-offerings; but as birds were ruled out from being offered as peace-offerings, they could, therefore, only serve as burnt-offerings. Peace-offerings could only be brought from the herd and from sheep and goats.

(12) Since he pledged himself the vow is not fulfilled until the replacement of the sacrifice (cf. R.H. 6a, Meg. 8a, Hul. 139a).

(13) No replacement is required, since he pledged the animal and that animal is now non-existent; cf. 'Arak. 20b.

(14) All the nouns in this Mishnah, though in the singular, are used in a collective sense.

(15) Since we have already been told in the preceding Mishnah that the slightest variation in the blood-sprinkling disqualifies the offering, what greater variations can there be than in the confusion here instanced? In the case of living creatures, the rule of 'majority' does not apply, on the ground that anything of outstanding importance cannot be declared 'non est'. To avoid the risk of their being unwittingly offered up by another, they had to be secluded in a special place, where they would ultimately perish.

(16) I.e., doves or pigeons already designated for this purpose (מפורשות).

(17) Not yet defined as to which should be a חטאת and which an עולה.

(18) An example will make this clearer. If one bird, specified as a sin-offering, gets confused with two pairs of birds brought as obligatory offerings but not yet specified (סתומות), then none of the five birds can be offered as a burnt-offering, since one is definitely a חטאת. To offer up three as sin-offerings is also not permissible, lest all the three may belong to the two 'kinnim' brought as obligatory offerings, of which not more than two are sin-offerings. Only two out of the five can be offered as sin-offerings, corresponding to the number of sin-offerings in the obligatory offerings. This only holds good if the two unspecified 'kinnim' belong to the same woman and were brought for similar causes, as for a past and present confinement, in which case they consist of two burnt-offerings and two sin-offerings.

(19) As above, a bird specified as a burnt-offering gets confused with two 'kinnim' still unspecified.

(20) V. supra n. 2; the example there given applies equally to this case. He cannot offer even one bird as a sin-offering, but only two as burnt-offerings.

(21) Freewill-offerings could only consist of burnt-offerings, whereas obligatory offerings consisted of an עולה and a חטאת. The Mishnah refers to obligatory offerings that have not been specified; in all these instances, the rule is that only that number is valid which corresponds to the number of burnt-offerings among the obligatory offerings.

(22) If two burnt-offerings or two specified sin-offerings get mixed up with an unassigned pair of birds, the rule applied is always the same.

(23) Lit., 'when are these words said?' Namely, that those valid correspond to the number of sin-offerings or burnt-offerings among the obligatory offerings. This Mishnah explains the preceding.

(24) That is when offerings comprising both burnt- and sin-offerings get mixed up with burnt-offerings.

(25) If unassigned kinnim brought by a woman after child-birth or a flux get confused with the kinnim of another brought for a similar cause.

(26) The word זו is in the fem., as all the instances in this treatise refer to women, who brought these offerings more often (child-birth being only applicable to them and also because they have the flux more often).

(27) Each bringing an equal number, without yet specifying what offering each bird should be.

(28) Ct. III, 2 infra. Of the two kinnim that got confused, only one bird can be offered as a חטאת and the other as an עולה; more than this number cannot be offered as either offering, lest the two birds offered, for instance, as burnt-offerings belong to the pair of one woman, of which only one is an עולה. This ruling equally applies to any number of kinnim that get confused. When the priest sacrifices the half that are valid, he must stipulate that they are on behalf of the woman who has specified them for this purpose. In addition, the two women must bring another offering in partnership and state that each allows the other to offer up the part belonging to herself. This was done in order to make the offering perfectly valid.

(29) Hitherto the examples quoted were of the women each with an equal number of kinnim. The Mishnah now discusses the case when one woman only brings one pair and the other two, three, ten or a hundred pairs. In this case, only two birds can be sacrificed, one as a חטאת and the other as an עולה. Similarly, if ten kinnim get confused with a hundred belonging to another woman, only ten kinnim can be sacrificed, half of them as burnt-offerings and half as sin-offerings. Maim. in his Pesule ha-Mukdashim VIII, 6 gives a somewhat different interpretation; v. the Kesef Mishneh a.l.

(30) Each woman being after child-birth or after having seen a flux; v. infra I, 4.

(31) That is, either when each woman brings two kinnim, each for a different cause, or when one brings her sacrificial pair after child-birth and the other after suffering a flux. The same rule applies — only the lesser number brought by one woman is valid. In the case, however, of one woman bringing two different kinnim for the same cause, say for a present child-birth and for one gone by, for which no offering had yet been brought, then all the birds are valid, provided that they were unspecified. Two birds are offered as sin-offerings and two as burnt-offerings.

(32) This Mishnah explains the one above.

(33) Lit., 'for a birth and a birth'. Lev. XII, 8.

(34) Lev. XV. 29.

(35) And the law stated in the preceding Mishnah applies (המועט כשר).

(36) Without specifying which pair belonged to one, or which to another.

(37) Because the actual specification of the birds can take place either at the time of purchase or at the time of their offering by the priest, any intervening specification being of no effect (Yoma 41a). R. Jose's statement gave rise to much Talmudic discussion: v. 'Er. 37a and especially Rashi's commentary a.l. The question arose: If the women had specified the nature of their offerings at the time of purchase or when they gave the money to the priest, but forgot them later, or had not specified at all — then how could the latter perform the sacrifice? Might he not offer up a burnt-offering for Rachel when she intended it for a sin-offering, since it is an established principle that 'the Torah considers not of legal effect a retrospective assignment of things previously undefined as to their purpose'? (Cf. Bz. 38a; Hul. 14b). To solve these difficulties, the explanation arrived at by Rashi is as follows: When the women bought the birds or gave the purchase money to the priest, they left to the priest the option to offer them up as he thought fit, thus removing the difficulty of retrospective selection (ברירה). V. Tosaf. ibid. s.v. כשהתנו .

Mishna - Mas. Kinim Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. IF A SINGLE PIGEON FROM AN UNASSIGNED PAIR OF BIRDS¹ ESCAPED INTO THE OPEN AIR, OR FLEW AMONG BIRDS THAT HAD BEEN LEFT TO DIE,² OR IF IT ITSELF DIED, THEN MUST A MATE BE SUPPLIED FOR THE SECOND ONE.³ IF IT FLEW AMONG BIRDS THAT ARE TO BE OFFERED UP,⁴ IT BECOMES INVALID⁵ AND INVALIDATES ALSO ANOTHER BIRD AS ITS COUNTERPART [IN THE PAIR];⁶ FOR THE PIGEON THAT FLEW AWAY BECOMES INVALID AND INVALIDATES ANOTHER BIRD AS ITS COUNTERPART [IN THE PAIR].⁷

MISHNAH 2. FOR EXAMPLE?⁸ TWO WOMEN⁹ — EACH WITH HER TWO PAIRS,¹⁰ AND ONE BIRD FLIES FROM THE [PAIR OF] ONE TO ANOTHER [WOMAN'S PAIR]. THEN IT DISQUALIFIES BY ITS ESCAPE ONE [OF THE BIRDS FROM WHICH IT FLEW].¹¹ IF IT RETURNED, IT DISQUALIFIES YET ANOTHER¹² BY ITS RETURN.¹³ IF IT FLEW AWAY AGAIN AND THEN RETURNED, AND YET AGAIN FLEW AWAY AND RETURNED, NO FURTHER LOSS IS INCURRED,¹⁴ SINCE EVEN IF THEY HAD ALL BECOME MIXED TOGETHER, NOT LESS THAN TWO [PAIRS WOULD STILL BE VALID].¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. IF ONE [WOMAN] HAD ONE PAIR, ANOTHER TWO, ANOTHER THREE, ANOTHER FOUR, ANOTHER FIVE, ANOTHER SIX AND ANOTHER SEVEN PAIRS,¹⁶ AND ONE BIRD FLEW FROM THE FIRST TO THE SECOND PAIR,¹⁷ [AND THEN A BIRD FLEW FROM THERE] TO THE THIRD, [AND THEN A BIRD FLEW FROM THERE] TO THE FOURTH, [AND FROM THERE A BIRD FLEW] TO THE FIFTH. [AND FROM THERE FLEW ONE] TO THE SIXTH, [AND ONE FROM THERE FLEW] TO THE SEVENTH, AND THEN A BIRD RETURNS [IN THE SAME ORDER].¹⁸ IT DISQUALIFIES A BIRD AT EACH FLIGHT AND RETURN.¹⁹ UNTO THE FIRST AND SECOND [WOMEN] THERE ARE NONE LEFT,²⁰ UNTO THE THIRD THERE IS ONE PAIR,²¹ UNTO THE FOURTH TWO, UNTO THE FIFTH THREE, UNTO THE SIXTH FOUR, AND UNTO THE SEVENTH SIX PAIRS.²² IF AGAIN [ONE FROM EACH GROUP] FLEW AWAY AND RETURNED [IN LIKE ORDER].²³ IT DISQUALIFIES A BIRD BY ITS FLIGHT AND RETURN; [IN WHICH CASE] THE THIRD AND FOURTH WOMAN WILL HAVE NONE LEFT,²⁴ THE FIFTH WILL HAVE ONE PAIR,²⁵ THE SIXTH TWO PAIRS,²⁶ AND THE SEVENTH WOMAN FIVE PAIRS.²⁷ IF AGAIN ONE [FROM EACH GROUP] FLEW AWAY AND RETURNED,²⁸ IT DISQUALIFIES A BIRD BY ITS FLIGHT AND RETURN; IN WHICH CASE, THE FIFTH AND SIXTH WOMEN HAVE NONE LEFT,²⁹ AND THE SEVENTH HAS FOUR PAIRS.³⁰ BUT SOME SAY THAT THE SEVENTH WOMAN HAS THEREBY LOST NOTHING.³¹ IF [A BIRD] FROM THOSE THAT ARE LEFT TO DIE³² ESCAPED TO ANY OF ALL THE GROUPS, THEN ALL MUST BE LEFT TO DIE.³³

MISHNAH 4. IF [THERE ARE TWO PAIRS], ONE UNASSIGNED³⁴ AND THE OTHER ASSIGNED,³⁵ AND ONE BIRD FROM THE UNASSIGNED [PAIR] FLEW OVER TO THE ASSIGNED [PAIR], THEN A MATE MUST BE TAKEN FOR THE SECOND [BIRD].³⁶ IF ONE BIRD FLEW BACK,³⁷ OR IF, IN THE FIRST PLACE, A BIRD FROM THE ASSIGNED PAIR FLEW [AMONG THE OTHER PAIR].³⁸ THEN ALL MUST BE LEFT TO DIE.³⁹

MISHNAH 5. IF THERE ARE SIN-OFFERING⁴⁰ ON ONE SIDE, BURNT-OFFERING ON THE OTHER AND UNASSIGNED [PAIR] IN THE CENTRE, AND FROM THE CENTRE THERE FLEW A BIRD TO EACH SIDE, ONE HERE AND THE OTHER THERE, THEN NO LOSS ACCRUES, BUT HE [THE PRIEST] SAYS THAT THE BIRD THAT FLEW [FROM THE

CENTRE] TOWARDS THE SIN-OFFERING IS A SIN-OFFERING AND THE BIRD THAT FLEW TOWARDS THE BURNT-OFFERING IS A BURNT-OFFERING.⁴¹ IF ONE [FROM EACH SIDE] RETURNS TO THE CENTRE, THEN [ALL] THOSE IN THE CENTRE MUST BE LEFT TO DIE, BUT THOSE [LEFT ON EITHER SIDE] CAN BE OFFERED UP AS SIN-OFFERINGS OR AS BURNT-OFFERINGS RESPECTIVELY.⁴² IF AGAIN A BIRD [FROM THE CENTRE] RETURNED OR FLEW AWAY TO THE SIDES,⁴³ THEN ALL MUST BE LEFT TO DIE.⁴⁴

ONE CANNOT PAIR TURTLE-DOVES WITH PIGEONS OR PIGEONS WITH TURTLE-DOVES.⁴⁵ FOR EXAMPLE? IF A WOMAN HAS BROUGHT A TURTLE-DOVE AS HER SIN-OFFERING AND A PIGEON AS HER BURNT-OFFERING, SHE MUST THEN BRING ANOTHER TURTLE-DOVE AS HER BURNT-OFFERING; IF HER BURNT-OFFERING HAD BEEN A TURTLE-DOVE AND HER SIN-OFFERING A PIGEON, THEN SHE MUST BRING ANOTHER PIGEON AS HER BURNT-OFFERING.⁴⁶ BEN 'AZZAI SAYS: ONE IS GUIDED BY WHAT WAS THE FIRST [OFFERING].⁴⁷ IF A WOMAN BROUGHT HER SIN-OFFERING AND THEN DIED, HER HEIRS MUST BRING HER BURNT-OFFERING;⁴⁸ [BUT IF SHE FIRST BROUGHT] HER BURNT-OFFERING AND THEN DIED, HER HEIRS NEED NOT BRING HER SIN-OFFERING.⁴⁹

(1) The word סתומה points to the undesignated state of each bird; its opposite (מפורשת) is used of a pair of birds that have been specified as to which was to be offered as a sin-offering and which as a burnt-offering (B.B. 71a; Nazir 12a).

(2) Supra I, 2. Should this unassigned pair get confused with birds specified as sin-offerings, all may then be offered as sin-offerings and the bird still remaining of the unassigned pair is brought as a burnt-offering. (V. Rashi on Nazir 12a).

(3) We do not condemn it to exposure to die, but it is still fit to be offered up either as a חטאת or an עולה, once it has been supplied with a partner. If the bird escapes from a specified pair, this rule all the more applies.

(4) That have also not yet been specified. Our Mishnah speaks of סתומה; for if a bird from a קן מפורשת gets confused with unassigned birds, the law is that of I, 2 supra. Moreover, if the nature of the escaped bird from the specified pair be unknown, then it would disqualify not only itself and one of the birds of the group into which it had flown, but also the bird remaining of the specified pair; v. infra II, 3.

(5) I.e., of the confused birds one remains invalid and not fit to be offered as representing the bird that had flown into them.

(6) Being unassigned, it can only disqualify its counterpart in the pair from which it flew (infra II, 4). The other birds can be offered up according to the number of sin- and burnt-offerings that were there before the confusion occurred.

(7) We expected a reason and get instead a repetition of the statement. Besides, these words refer only to the last case but not to the first instances quoted in the Mishnah. The stress, however, here is that the escaped bird can only disqualify both the one left behind and one of those into whose midst it flies. We do not apply here the principle of כל דפריש מרובא פריש, 'that whatever proceeds from a mixed multitude has the legal status of the majority'. since it may easily be that the bird offered up is the one that remained stationary (kabua), and the principle is that the majority rule is not applicable. (For a discussion v. Zeb. 73b.)

(8) A fuller illustration of the principle clearly stated in the preceding Mishnah.

(9) Again women, for it is they who have more frequent occasion to bring bird-offerings.

(10) Still unassigned. Two pairs are cited, for if each had brought only one pair, the bird remaining would have become invalid even prior to the return of its escaped companion. In the case of one bringing one pair and the other woman several, the rule of 'only the lesser number remains valid' (supra I, 3) would apply here too.

(11) When a bird escapes from the four birds of one to the four of another, then three are left in one group and five in the other. Of the three one can be offered as a חטאת and the other as an עולה for were he to offer up two as burnt-offerings, both the third bird and the one that escaped would thereby be classed as sin-offerings. The result would then be that of the five birds he would be able to offer only two sin-offerings in accordance with the principle of supra I, 2. After having sacrificed two of the three birds, the third must be left to die; for were it brought as a sin-offering, the fear is lest its mate that swelled the other group to five also be offered as a חטאת. The result would then be that one pair would yield two sin-offerings. 'quod impossibile est'. Similarly, not more than four of the five birds are valid, two as sin-offerings and two as burnt-offerings. For were three birds offered as either kind of sacrifice, it is possible that they were of the two pairs brought by the same woman, of which only two are sin-offerings and only two are burnt-offerings. It thus stands to reason that the bird that escapes disqualifies itself and a bird from each of the groups from which it has flown and to which it escapes. (As in all other cases, the women, in order to fulfil their obligation meticulously, had to subscribe jointly for another pair and give each other full rights in the pair brought.)

(12) Of the birds from which it now flew.

(13) If one of the five birds flew towards the three. Once again there are two equal groups of four birds each, but of each group only one can be offered as a חטאת and one as an עולה since it might easily be that the bird that now escapes towards the three is not the bird that originally belonged to that group, so that we would now have three birds belonging to one woman and one to another, and as explained in n. 4 supra, only two birds of each group can be offered as a חטאת and an עולה respectively.

(14) Even with endless flying and returning at least two pairs remain valid.

(15) Of these two pairs only two can be offered as sin-offerings and two as burnt-offerings. The sole fear stressed in this Mishnah is lest if three be offered as either sacrifice, the three birds may belong to the two pairs of one woman.

(16) The pairs being yet unassigned.

(17) The bird left to her, who only brought one pair, becomes disqualified; v. supra land II n. 4.

(18) A bird from the seven kinnim flies towards the six kinnim, and from there another bird flies towards the five kinnim, and so on in reverse order. The result of this backward flight is that the women finish up each with the number with which they at first began.

(19) On account of the uncertainty of identity. V. Bertinoro s.v.

(20) The pair of the first is invalid, for one bird is disqualified at the first flight and the other remaining bird by the return of another bird. Similarly, of the four birds belonging to the second woman, two get disqualified by the first flight and two by the return flight.

(21) More she cannot offer, for four have become disqualified by the flight and return. Hence, the fourth, fifth and sixth women can offer their kinnim minus four as these may be of those belonging to the first and second, whose offerings are now invalid.

(22) Since only one bird escaped from her group when the birds began to fly back in reverse order; for at the first flight, her birds were not affected at all. In all cases the fear is lest more sin-offerings and burnt-offerings than originally existed in each of the groups be sacrificed.

(23) This return can only refer to the groups commencing with the third woman onwards; for should a bird escape from the kinnim of the first two women that have been invalidated, and, therefore, condemned to die, then the concluding rule of our Mishnah IF A (BIRD) FLEW FROM THOSE THAT ARE LEFT TO DIE would be applicable. Some commentators (notably Asheri) do not agree that the disqualified kinnim of the first two women are to be left to die, and aver that if these disqualified birds again get mixed up with those about to be sacrificed, they would be rendered valid on the principle of (ספק ספיקא) double doubt. The return of the bird must be understood as taking place in the same order as the flight. Only reversed; e.g., from the seventh to the sixth, from the sixth to the fifth, and so on.

(24) Three comings and goings have now taken place from each group, and of the six birds belonging to the third woman, three have gone. The fear is lest these three departed birds be offered up either as sin-offerings or as עולות, and if in addition, we allow her to offer up even one pair, we would find four sacrifices of each kind offered from a possible three. A similar reasoning is applicable to the fourth woman of whose eight birds six have become invalid by the three movements from and into the kinnim (v. Tif. Israel).

(25) Of her original ten birds, four are deemed to have escaped. These might be offered up later as four sin-offerings or as four burnt-offerings; so by allowing the fifth woman more than one valid pair, the same situation as the one described above would arise—more sacrifices would be brought from her kinnim than possibly existed when she first brought them. Some commentators (Tif. Israel) question this ruling: since the third and fourth cannot offer up their kinnim at all, and since they are set aside, then why should not the fifth be allowed to offer up three pairs? But the fear is lest the fourth woman, whose remaining two birds have been disqualified on account of a preventive measure, might offer up those birds again after they had become mixed up with the others, in which case they would be rendered valid, as aforementioned, on account of ספק ספיקא (a double doubt).

(26) For the reasons above given; four birds have escaped and more than two pairs would increase the possible number of her offering.

(27) Hers is the least loss, since her kinnim have been affected Only at each return and not, as in the other cases, at each flight also. Were she allowed more than five pairs, the same impossible situation referred to in the above notes would arise.

(28) Since the kinnim of the first four women have become invalid, we must interpret this flight to be from the kinnim of the fifth downwards and the return, in reverse order, from the seventh to the sixth, and the sixth to the fifth.

(29) For the same reason as that given in the case of the third and fourth woman in p. 10, n. 2 supra.

(30) Since only three birds have been affected, she loses only three pairs, each fleeing and returning bird disqualifying a corresponding bird. To the question, why she be not allowed to offer more, since the kinnim of all the others have been disqualified, the same answer as that given in p. 10, n. 3 supra can be cited.

(31) This does not mean that she can offer up all her seven pairs, but simply that the third flight does not affect her and she may still offer up five pairs, as after the second flight. Wilna Gaon contends that HAS THEREBY LOST NOTHING means that all the seven pairs can be offered up since there is no fear of more than the possible sin- and burnt-offerings being brought, as all the other kinnim have been declared invalid. The Bertinoro disagrees on the contention that the third flight would thus qualify even those birds that had become invalid after the second flight, when the seventh was allowed to bring only five pairs.

(32) These may either be those birds our Mishnah disqualifies, or birds of owners who had died or had been forgiven before the sacrifice could take place.

(33) On the ground that living things are too important for the majority rule to be applied to them. Neither can the principle of נכבשנהו דנייד 'let us force them to scatter' (v. Zeb. 73b) or of כל דפריש מרובא פריש 'whatever comes out of a mixed multitude presumably comes from the majority' be applied, since the birds to be offered up may quite easily be of those that remained stationary, and the principle is that 'if there be anything stationary the whole is treated as equally divided'. Cf. supra II, 1 (n. 7).

(34) The owners or the priest had not yet specified the kind of offering each bird should be.

(35) The owners at the time of purchase designated each bird, but can no longer identify which is for the sin-offering and which for the burnt-offering.

(36) This cannot be taken from the three birds now all mixed up with the assigned pair, since none of these can now be offered up. V. supra II. 1.

(37) From the three, back to the bird that had been left alone.

(38) Without knowing whether it was a חטאת or an עולה.

(39) Since the specific nature of each had been fixed, the present uncertainty disqualifies them from the altar.

(40) The sing. is used in a collective sense. The offerings in the two sides have already been specified.

(41) I.e., the priest, at the time of the sacrifice, declares the kind of offering the unassigned bird should be.

(42) Those in the centre are invalid, because they have become confused with the assigned offerings from each side, whereas those on either side are still valid, since we know the nature of the offerings.

(43) If birds from an assigned pair in the centre flew, a bird to each side, without knowing precisely which.

(44) On account of the confusion of sacrifices not only in the centre but also at the sides. Asheri reads חזר ופרח for חזר או שפרח. Maim. translates this statement of חזר או שפרח thus: 'a bird flies from the centre to one of the sides, and from that side the same, or another bird, flies to the other side'. The translation in our Mishnah is that given by R. Zerahia ha-Levy; Bertinoro simplifies the text by omitting OR FLEW AWAY.

(45) An introduction to the next chapter which deals with this subject.

(46) The sin-offering is mentioned first, on account of its pre-eminence in the Bible; cf. Lev. V, 8. The point stressed is that the pair of birds she brings must both be the same, either two pigeons or two turtle-doves, and when she brings one of each kind, she must bring another bird of the kind she had designated as a sin-offering, since that is the most important.

(47) Regardless whether this be a sin-offering or a burnt-offering.

(48) For the Temple authorities could claim from the heirs promises unredeemed by the death of the owner; v. Kid. 13b, Zeb. 5a and Men. 4b.

(49) Though as stated in n. 2 supra, the חטאת had to precede the עולה yet a reversal of this order by no means invalidated the offering. The point here stressed is that whereas a burnt-offering had to be brought by the heirs, a sin-offering had not to be brought, since death atones for any sin; cf. Ter. IV, 1.

Mishna - Mas. Kinim Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. WHEN ARE THESE WORDS SAID?¹ WHEN THE PRIEST ASKS ADVICE;² BUT IN THE CASE OF A PRIEST WHO DOES NOT SEEK ADVICE, AND ONE [PAIR] BELONGS TO ONE [WOMAN] AND ONE TO ANOTHER, OR TWO [PAIRS] TO ONE AND TWO TO ANOTHER, OR THREE [PAIRS] TO ONE AND THREE TO ANOTHER,³ AND HE OFFERED⁴ ALL OF THEM ABOVE [THE RED LINE]. THEN HALF ARE VALID AND HALF INVALID.⁵ [SIMILARLY], IF [HE OFFERED] ALL OF THEM BELOW, HALF ARE VALID AND HALF ARE INVALID. IF [HE OFFERED] HALF OF THEM ABOVE AND HALF OF THEM BELOW,⁶ THEN OF THOSE [OFFERED] ABOVE, HALF ARE VALID AND HALF ARE INVALID, AND ALSO OF THOSE [OFFERED] BELOW, HALF ARE VALID AND HALF ARE INVALID.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IF ONE [PAIR] BELONGED TO ONE WOMAN AND TWO [PAIRS] TO ANOTHER, OR [EVEN] THREE [PAIRS] TO ANOTHER, OR [TEN] PAIRS TO ANOTHER OR A HUNDRED TO ANOTHER,⁸ AND HE OFFERED ALL OF THEM ABOVE, THEN HALF ARE VALID AND HALF ARE INVALID. [SIMILARLY], IF HE OFFERED ALL OF THEM BELOW, HALF ARE VALID AND HALF ARE INVALID.⁹ [IF HE OFFERED] HALF OF THEM ABOVE AND HALF BELOW, THEN THE [NUMBER OF BIRDS AS THERE IS IN THE] LARGER PART ARE VALID.¹⁰ THIS IS THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE: WHENEVER YOU CAN SO DIVIDE THE PAIRS [OF THE BIRDS] SO THAT THOSE BELONGING TO ONE WOMAN NEED NOT HAVE PART OF THEM [OFFERED] ABOVE AND PART [OFFERED] BELOW,¹¹ THEN HALF OF THEM ARE VALID AND HALF ARE INVALID;¹² BUT WHENEVER YOU CANNOT SO DIVIDE THE PAIRS [OF BIRDS] WITHOUT SOME OF THOSE BELONGING TO ONE WOMAN BEING [OFFERED] ABOVE AND SOME BELOW,¹³ THEN [THE NUMBER AS THERE IS IN] THE LARGER PART ARE VALID.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. IF THE SIN-OFFERINGS BELONGED TO ONE AND THE BURNT-OFFERINGS TO ANOTHER,¹⁵ AND THE PRIEST OFFERED THEM ALL ABOVE, THEN HALF ARE VALID AND HALF DISQUALIFIED.¹⁶ IF HE OFFERED THEM ALL BELOW, HALF ARE VALID AND HALF DISQUALIFIED. IF HE OFFERED HALF OF THEM ABOVE AND HALF BELOW, THEN BOTH OF THEM ARE DISQUALIFIED, BECAUSE I CAN ARGUE THAT THE SIN-OFFERINGS WERE OFFERED ABOVE AND THE BURNT-OFFERINGS BELOW.¹⁷

MISHNAH 4. IF A SIN-OFFERING, A BURNT-OFFERING, AN UNASSIGNED PAIR OF BIRDS AND AN ASSIGNED¹⁸ PAIR [BECAME MIXED UP], AND HE OFFERED THEM ALL ABOVE, THEN HALF ARE VALID AND HALF ARE INVALID;¹⁹ [ALSO] IF ALL OF THEM BELOW, HALF ARE VALID AND HALF INVALID. IF HE OFFERED HALF OF THEM ABOVE AND HALF BELOW, NONE IS VALID EXCEPT THE UNASSIGNED PAIR,²⁰ AND THAT MUST BE DIVIDED BETWEEN THEM.²¹

MISHNAH 5. IF [BIRDS ASSIGNED AS] SIN-OFFERINGS WERE CONFUSED WITH [UNASSIGNED BIRDS THAT WERE] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS, THEN ONLY THE NUMBER OF SIN-OFFERINGS AMONG THE OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS ARE VALID.²² IF THE [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS BE TWICE AS MANY AS THE SIN-OFFERINGS,²³ THEN HALF ARE VALID AND HALF INVALID;²⁴ BUT IF THE SIN-OFFERINGS BE TWICE AS MANY AS THE [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS,²⁵ THEN THE NUMBER [OF SIN-OFFERINGS] AMONG THE OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS ARE VALID.²⁶ SO, TOO, IF [BIRDS ASSIGNED AS] BURNT-OFFERINGS WERE MIXED UP WITH [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS, ONLY THE NUMBER OF BURNT-OFFERINGS AMONG THE OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS ARE VALID,²⁷ IF THE [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS ARE TWICE AS MANY AS THE BURNT-OFFERINGS,²⁸ THEN HALF ARE VALID AND HALF DISQUALIFIED,²⁹ BUT IF THE BURNT-OFFERINGS ARE TWICE THE NUMBER OF [UNASSIGNED] OBLIGATORY

OFFERINGS, THEN THE NUMBER [OF BURNT-OFFERINGS] AMONG THE OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS ARE VALID.³⁰

MISHNAH 6. IF A WOMAN SAYS: 'I VOW A PAIR OF BIRDS IF I GIVE BIRTH TO A MALE CHILD';³¹ AND SHE DOES GIVE BIRTH TO A MALE CHILD, THEN SHE MUST OFFER UP TWO PAIRS — ONE FOR HER VOW AND ONE FOR HER OBLIGATION.³² IF [BEFORE SHE ASSIGNED THEM] SHE GAVE THEM TO THE PRIEST,³³ AND THE PRIEST WHO OUGHT TO OFFER THREE BIRDS ABOVE AND ONE BELOW³⁴ DOES NOT DO SO, BUT OFFERS TWO ABOVE AND TWO BELOW, AND DOES NOT SEEK GUIDANCE,³⁵ THEN MUST SHE BRING ANOTHER BIRD [OF THE SAME KIND]³⁶ AND OFFER THAT ABOVE.³⁷ [THIS IS IF THE BIRDS SHE BROUGHT] ARE OF ONE KIND. IF THEY WERE OF TWO KINDS, THEN MUST SHE BRING TWO OTHERS.³⁸ IF SHE HAD EXPRESSLY DEFINED HER VOW.³⁹ THEN MUST SHE BRING THREE OTHER BIRDS.⁴⁰ [THIS IS IF THE BIRDS SHE BROUGHT] ARE OF ONE KIND, FOR WERE THEY OF TWO KINDS, SHE MUST BRING FOUR OTHERS.⁴¹ IF SHE MADE A DEFINITE FIXTURE AT THE TIME OF HER VOW,⁴² THEN MUST SHE BRING ANOTHER FIVE BIRDS — [THAT IS, IF THOSE SHE ORIGINALLY BROUGHT] WERE OF ONE KIND.⁴³ IF THEY WERE OF TWO KINDS, THEN MUST SHE BRING SIX OTHERS.⁴⁴ IF SHE GAVE THEM TO THE PRIEST AND IT BE NOT KNOWN WHAT SHE GAVE,⁴⁵ AND THE PRIEST PERFORMED THE SACRIFICE, BUT KNOWS NOT NOW HOW HE PERFORMED IT,⁴⁶ THEN MUST SHE BRING FOUR OTHER BIRDS FOR HER VOW,⁴⁷ AND TWO FOR HER OBLIGATION⁴⁸ AND ONE FOR HER SIN-OFFERING.⁴⁹ BEN 'AZZAI SAYS: [SHE MUST BRING] TWO SIN-OFFERINGS.⁵⁰ R. JOSHUA SAID: TO THIS APPLIES WHAT [THE SAGES] HAVE SAID: 'WHEN [THE BEAST] IS ALIVE IT POSSESSES ONE SOUND, BUT WHEN IT IS DEAD ITS SOUND IS SEVENFOLD'.⁵¹ IN WHAT WAY IS ITS SOUND SEVENFOLD? ITS TWO HORNS [ARE MADE INTO] TWO TRUMPETS,⁵² ITS TWO LEG-BONES INTO TWO FLUTES, ITS HIDE INTO A DRUM, ITS ENTRAILS FOR LYRES AND ITS LARGE INTESTINES FOR HARP STRINGS; AND THERE ARE SOME WHO ADD THAT ITS WOOL IS USED FOR THE BLUE [POMEGRANATES].⁵³ R. SIMEON B. AKASHIAH SAYS: UNINSTRUCTED PERSONS, THE OLDER THEY BECOME, THE MORE THEIR INTELLECT GETS DISTRACTED, AS IT IS SAID: HE REMOVETH THE SPEECH OF MEN OF TRUST AND TAKETH AWAY THE SENSE OF THE ELDERS';⁵⁴ WHEREAS OF AGED SCHOLARS, IT IS NOT SO. ON THE CONTRARY, THE OLDER THEY GET, THE MORE THEIR MIND BECOMES COMPOSED, AS IT IS SAID: 'WITH AGED MEN THERE IS WISDOM, AND UNDERSTANDING IN LENGTH OF DAYS'.⁵⁵

(1) A reference back to the principles enumerated in I, 2 — 3 supra, that in the case of a sin-offering getting mixed up with a burnt-offering, or vice versa, both must be left to die; or that if one pair belonging to one woman gets confused with ten pairs or one hundred pairs belonging to another, only the lesser number of the two groups confused is valid.

(2) The passages above quoted speak of a case where the priest comes to consult the Sanhedrin as to the procedure ('de jure') in such cases of confusion; this chapter deals with cases of 'de facto' where the priest acts on his own initiative. Acc. to Maim. נמלך refers to the priest asking the woman which bird she had specified as the sin or burnt-offering; but from Zeb. 73b it would appear that this view is incorrect. V. Kesef. Mishneh, Maim. Pesule ha-Mukdashim.

(3) As indicated supra I, 3 these birds are unspecified, and accordingly of the half that are valid, half can be brought as sin-offerings and half as burnt-offerings.

(4) I.e., sprinkled the blood.

(5) Since only half of the half that are valid can be offered above as burnt-offerings, and half below as sin-offerings,

(6) The case is of detached birds that had become confused and which the priest now takes to offer up half as sin-offerings and half as burnt-offerings; for had the birds of each pair been bound together and then got mixed up with other pairs, and then offered up one bird as a חטאת and the other as an עולה, all would still have been valid. V. next note.

(7) The main fear is lest the priest offer up all the pairs of one woman above and all those of another below; and though this fear may be too extreme, yet the principle is 'any doubt concerning a Biblical command is to be interpreted rigorously', Bez. 3b, Hul. 9b. Since only half of the birds are valid and these are mixed up, so that one knows not whether they belong to one woman or another, the two women are advised to bring another pair of birds in joint-ownership, and make the condition that these be the birds for the woman whose sacrifice has not been offered up. If the priest had separated the birds, offering up half as sin-offerings and half as burnt-offerings (instead of a whole pair together above the red line) all the birds would have been valid on the plea that the priest, when he begins to sacrifice the unassigned birds, has the right to define the kind of sacrifice intended.

(8) Though we were told supra I, 3 that only the lesser number in such a case is valid, our present chapter deals with 'de facto' cases, in which the priest sacrifices without consulting as to the procedure.

(9) For in both cases half of the birds had been sacrificed in their proper places.

(10) In all such cases, where half are disqualified, the women, to fulfil their obligation, must bring other kinnim in partnership, and condition these as the sacrifices of her whose kinnim have been disqualified. An illustration will clarify the statement (THE NUMBER OF BIRDS AS THERE IS IN THE) LARGER PART ARE VALID. If the one pair belonging to A gets confused with the two pairs belonging to B, altogether six birds, and the priest offered three above and three below, then four birds are valid. For if we are to assume that all the three birds that were offered above belonged to B, then two of them are valid; and if on the other hand, we are to assume that two of the three offered above belonged to A, then these two birds are also valid, and the same applies to the three birds offered below, so that we have four birds, corresponding to the number belonging to B, valid. And the same applies to the case where the confusion arose among the pairs belonging to a larger number of women. If the one pair belonging to A gets confused with the two pairs belonging to B, and then with three other pairs, or ten pairs or a hundred other pairs belonging to others — a hundred and sixteen pairs altogether — and the priest offered up half of these birds above and half below the red line, then a hundred pairs are valid and sixteen pairs invalid. Why? If the one hundred and sixteen birds offered above belong to her who brought a hundred pairs, then a hundred birds are valid above, and sixteen invalid; but even if thirty-two of these hundred and sixteen belong to the other women, who brought these between them (one plus two plus three plus ten pairs), eighty-four birds are still valid since they belong to her who brought a hundred pairs, and of the thirty-two birds belonging to the others, sixteen would be valid above and sixteen below, thus still leaving a hundred birds valid, whether offered up above or below. This Mishnah differs from that previous in the fact that whereas the former cited the case of two women bringing an equal number of birds, the reference here is to women bringing each more than the other, the last one even bringing more than all the others put together.

(11) Since the priest offers up half of all the birds confused above and half below, it may be possible that all those birds offered up above belonged to one woman, or some to one and some to another. Here is an illustration: If A brings one pair, and B two pairs and C three pairs (together six pairs), and the priest offers half above, it is possible that either the six birds belong to A, B, or all to C. In this case, the priest may not have offered up half of the kinnim belonging to each woman above and half below.

(12) Whenever the number of the kinnim brought can be divided equally, as in the instance cited in a former note of A bringing one pair, B two pairs and C three pairs. In which case one plus two is three; or in the case of one, two, four or five pairs being brought, when one plus four is five, and the priest offers half of all the confused birds above and half below, then half are valid and half are not.

(13) If one pair gets confused with two pairs, and then with four pairs (together seven pairs), the kinnim cannot so be divided as to make any of them equal the largest number brought; as a result, it is possible that the priest offers some of the birds of one woman above and some below. Even in the case of three plus four plus five kinnim that get mixed up. though the total of twelve kinnim can be divided equally into two parts, yet of the numbers of the birds themselves no division can be made without one of the birds of a pair being above and the other below. Similarly, though the total number is a hundred and sixteen kinnim (v. n. 3, p. 15) one plus two plus three plus ten plus a hundred, yet the numbers cannot so be arranged as to make any equal the greatest number, with the result that the priest may be offering up part of the birds of one woman above and part below.

(14) Thus if one pair gets confused with two or four pairs, then four pairs are valid, to be offered up half above and half below. The numbers one plus two plus four cannot be so divided as to make any of the smaller numbers equal the larger number. So also of the numbers mentioned in n. 3, p. 15 (one plus two plus three plus ten plus a hundred), of which the smaller only combine to make sixteen. Thus the principle here stressed is that the greatest number brought (if more than all the other kinnim put together), is the number still valid after the mixing has taken place.

(15) This Mishnah further elucidates the principle stated supra I, 2. When do we say that 'if a sin-offering gets confused with a burnt-offering, then all must be left to die'? Only 'de jure', that is when the priest seeks guidance on the procedure. This chapter, however, deals with 'Post facto' cases (בלא נמלך), in which case half of those he sacrificed above and below the red line are valid.

(16) Evidently the number of sin-offerings equals that of burnt-offerings and, moreover, the birds have all been designated as to the nature of their offering (מפורשות); hence half must be valid.

(17) Since the birds had been designated, it may easily be that he just offered up the wrong ones above or below.

(18) An amplification of the previous Mishnah. Rashi (Zeb. 67b), followed by Asheri and Bertinoro explains that the case here is of two women, one of whom brings two sin-offerings and one burnt-offering and the other two burnt-offerings and one sin-offering. These three kinnim they bring in partnership. One pair they specify at the time of purchase that one bird should act as the עולה for the one and as the חטאת for the other. Concerning the other pair they stipulated nothing whilst the third pair they again condition which should be a sin-offering and which a burnt-offering, but without specifying on whose behalf the respective sacrifice be made. The priest then offers up the three kinnim, unaware of the nature of each in the manner above narrated. The burnt-offering and the sin-offering have to be brought in the name of the owner, but the priest could 'de facto' do so without this knowledge. The same ruling would have applied to the case of an assigned pair with an unassigned pair only, without further mention of a חטאת ועולה : (v. Tosaf. Zeb. 67b s.v. חטאת). Concerning these last three Mishnahs of our Chapter, all commentators (v. the Tif. Israel) agree that they are the most difficult in the whole Talmud, since they not only deal with a most complicated subject, but they also demand a knowledge of permutation. i.e., the variation of the order of a set of things lineally arranged.

(19) Let A be the specified sin-offering of Rachel and B the burnt-offering of Leah, and let CC stand for the unspecified pair (each bird being called C), and let D and E symbolize the sin-offering and burnt-offering respectively in the third pair, which differs from the first pair in that though the sacrifice be specified, yet it be not known on whose behalf it is offered. Each pair is then tied together separately, thus AB, CC, DE. The priest, under the impression that all are unspecified, offers up from each pair one bird above and one bird below the red line.

(20) A and B are invalid, since it is not known which was offered above and which below, and for the same reason, D and E are invalid; only CC are valid, since it is within the power of the officiating priest to specify the nature of the offering.

(21) D and E being disqualified, it is for the women to arrange between them which bird in the unspecified pair (that is valid) should act as a substitute for each of their offerings that had been rendered invalid as a result of their offerings getting mixed up. Rachel must further bring another sin-offering in lieu of A that was disqualified and Leah another burnt-offering in lieu of B that was disqualified.

(22) An explanation of supra I, 2. Whether the birds unassigned equal or double the number of those assigned, only the number of unspecified sin-offerings among the obligatory offerings are valid. This rule is in the case of a priest who comes to consult the Beth din; for a 'de facto' case v. supra I, 4.

(23) For instance, if four unspecified birds, of which half are sin-offerings and half are burnt-offerings get confused with two others which are designated sin-offerings, and the priest offers up half above and half below.

(24) That is two sin-offerings and one burnt-offering. Of the three birds offered below, two are valid for both in the two assigned and in the two unassigned kinnim there must be two sin-offerings; and of the three offered above, one is still valid as a burnt-offering. since if two were sin-offerings. the third is a burnt-offering. (Some commentators will not have these two sin-offerings and one burnt-offering sacrificed, though not actually disqualified, lest the priest eventually offer them for a purpose other than that originally intended.) Tosaf. Yom Tob somewhat differs from the explanation of the Bertinoro given above. His illustration of our passage is of eight sin-offerings getting confused with eight others, of which four are burnt-offerings and four are sin-offerings. — a total of twelve sin-offerings and four burnt-offerings. Of these sixteen birds, the priest unwittingly offers up half above and half below the red line; as a result, those above are unfit, lest all be sin-offerings, but of the eight offered up below, four are valid, since the majority are sin-offerings and also that number being the number of sin-offerings among obligatory offerings. To illustrate the case of sin-offerings being twice as many as the unassigned obligatory offerings, the Bertinoro cites the example of sixteen sin-offerings getting confused with eight obligatory offerings, of which half are burnt-offerings and half sin-offerings. The priest offers up twelve birds above and twelve below the red line, with the result that all those offered above are invalid, whereas of the twelve offered below, only four are invalid, lest they be burnt-offerings.

(25) Four sin-offerings get confused with two unspecified obligatory offerings.

(26) Only two are valid as sin-offerings. Why? The three offered above are invalid lest they be of the four specified sin-offerings; but two of the three offered below are valid, either because they may all be or because even if two of the three birds be the unspecified obligatory offerings, two are still valid as sin-offerings, since one bird is a sin-offering in any case. The number thus valid corresponds to the number of sin-offerings among the unspecified obligatory offerings. The same principle holds good in all cases where the number of unspecified obligatory offerings is double the number of sin-offerings. Should, however, the number of specified sin-offerings double that of the unspecified offerings, then instead of half being valid and half not, only a third of all the birds confused are still valid, that is, the amount corresponding to the number among the unspecified pairs. The Bertinoro cites this example: The woman can only offer one sin-offering of her two kinnim. She cannot offer two as burnt-offerings, lest they be the two sin-offerings that became confused; neither can she offer two as sin-offerings, lest one be the specified עולה. Accordingly, less than half are valid, that is, according to the least number among the obligatory offerings.

(27) Elaborating supra I, 2: IF BURNT-OFFERINGS BECAME MIXED UP WITH OBLIGATORY OFFERINGS; but whereas the first chapter deals with cases where the priest comes to ask advice, this chapter deals with 'de facto' cases.

(28) I.e., if four unspecified obligatory offerings get confused with two burnt-offerings, and the priest offers three birds above and three below the red line.

(29) Of the three offered above (as burnt-offerings) at least two are valid, even if all the three were unspecified; and of the three offered below (as sin-offerings) one is valid, since there are only two specified burnt-offerings. Thus only half of the birds are disqualified.

(30) The following example can serve as an illustration: Four burnt-offerings get confused with two unspecified birds and the priest offers up half above and half below, then all those offered up below are invalid, lest they be of the four burnt-offerings; whereas of those offered above, at least two are valid, whether all the three birds be of the burnt-offerings or only one be of the specified burnt-offerings and the other two of the unspecified, of which one must be a burnt-offering. Thus of all the six birds, only two are valid — according to the number of burnt-offerings among the obligatory offerings.

(31) The two birds brought as a result of her vow must both be burnt-offerings since a voluntary offering cannot consist of a sin-offering. Our instance is of a poor woman, for a rich woman was required to bring a lamb as her burnt-offering and a bird as her sin-offering. (The reason why a woman is more eager to have a male child is, according to some commentators, the belief that the pangs of birth are less than those for a daughter. v. Nid. 31a. More satisfactory is the reason cited by the רשב"י, and that is, because a son is referred to in the Talmud (Keth. 64a) as 'a staff for her old age', a support. But this ascendancy of the male was not regarded with unanimity, for in B.B. 141a the preference is given to the birth of a girl, especially if she be the first child, since she will be a help to her mother in looking after the other children.)

(32) 'And when the days of her purification are fulfilled, for a son or a daughter, she shall bring a lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering and a young pigeon or a turtle-dove for a sin offering, unto the door of the tent of meeting, unto the priest' (Lev. XII, 6). The point to be noted is that whereas her obligatory offering had to be brought at the end of forty days for a male, and eighty days for a female child, her vow-offering had to be brought immediately at birth.

(33) Of these two pairs, three birds are burnt-offerings and one a sin-offering; the priest offers the four birds up as if they were two pairs of obligatory offerings.

(34) As already stated, no voluntary offering can consist of a sin-offering, whereas the obligatory offering consists of a sin-offering and a burnt-offering.

(35) Under the impression that these two kinnim represent two obligatory offerings.

(36) A turtle-dove if the others had been turtle-doves, or a pigeon if the others had been pigeons.

(37) Since of the four birds, three were burnt-offerings and the priest only offers up two above, another bird of the same kind to which the four belonged must be brought as a burnt-offering. (V. Rashi to Zeb. 67b-68a for a detailed commentary on our Mishnah.)

(38) I.e., one turtle-dove and one pigeon; since one kind cannot be substituted for another (supra II, 5) and the two pairs consisted of a pair of pigeons and a pair of turtle-doves, a bird of each kind must be brought and offered, as an עולה, to replace the one burnt-offering that was disqualified. In such cases the birds brought to replace those disqualified are regarded as her vow-offering, though, as already stated, the 'vow' had to be brought at child-birth and her obligatory offering at the expiration of her period of purification.

(39) פירשה. At the time of the vow or even later, she had made clear the kind she would bring as her vow-offering, and after child-birth she brought two pairs of birds of the same kind, and the priest, without any investigation, offers two birds above and two birds below, and the woman does not recollect now of which kind she had specified for her vow-offering.

(40) Two of the birds already offered are treated as her obligation offering, consisting of one sin-offering and one burnt-offering. Of the second pair, brought in fulfilment of her vow, one is invalid since it was treated as a sin-offering. Besides substituting for this disqualified bird, two others must be brought as burnt-offerings, lest the two offered be not of the kind she had defined in her vow. The Mishnah deals with the more common case.

(41) She brought each pair of a different kind, but has forgotten the kind she vowed to bring for each offering. Accordingly, two birds became disqualified, lest they be not of the kind specified in her vow, and two birds must now be brought of each kind as burnt-offerings. with the stipulation that the two birds which are of a different kind to her original vow must be considered as voluntary offerings. Tif. Israel.

(42) קבעה. At the time of her vow, she had planned to bring both her offerings of the same kind and at the same time. This she did, but did not tell the priest the circumstances. and as a result he offers two birds above and two below. The woman had now forgotten the kind she had defined as her vow-offering, only remembering of what kind she had brought the two pairs (Tif. Israel). According to the Bertinoro, פירשה means that the woman does not define the kind of bird at the time of her vow, but at the time of the actual bringing of her offering declares: 'These birds shall serve as my vow-offering'; and קבעה means that this definition is made at the actual moment of her vow. Rashi, however, draws no such distinction between the two terms, both being the same, with the only difference that קבעה means that she declares to bring both her offerings at the same time. (V. also Men. 103a.) According to Wilna Gaon קבעה means that she defines at the time of the actual bringing of the pairs the kind she had stipulated at the time of her vow (פירשה), but which she had now forgotten.

(43) Though the birds she brought are all of one kind, the fear is lest those she had vowed were of a different kind; consequently, the two birds in fulfilment of her vow are invalid. Again, since she had vowed to bring both her offerings at the same time, and one of the offerings became invalid, her vow remains unfulfilled. Accordingly, she must now bring another two pairs of both kinds, and yet another bird of the same kind as that already offered as a sin-offering in fulfilment of her obligatory offering. These five birds must be sacrificed together. The principle behind all this is the rule laid down in Nazir V, 1 that any votive offering surrounded by doubt cannot be considered as a valid sacrifice.

(44) Four birds to fulfil her vow — since she has forgotten which kind had been offered — and two others to fulfil her obligation.

(45) She had forgotten the kind she had defined at the time of her vow and also the kind she had brought to the priest, and the latter also was unaware of the kind she had offered; accordingly, she must now bring seven other birds — four for her vow (two of each kind), two for her obligation offering and one as an additional sin-offering in case the other had been offered above. This would satisfy all doubts, since the slightest doubt concerning a sacrifice does not avail to render it valid.

(46) Did he offer all above or all below, or two above and two below? Accordingly, the woman cannot be said to have fulfilled any of her obligations.

(47) For she may have vowed all birds to be of one kind, whereas she has brought of two kinds, or the reverse. To allay doubt, let her bring a sacrificial pair of each kind.

(48) One of each kind, both of which must be offered as burnt-offerings, lest all the four birds had been offered below. The עולה of her obligatory offering must be of the same kind as her הטאת, the kind itself being immaterial.

(49) This can be of any kind she wishes, for she can pair the sin-offering to any burnt-offering she wishes to bring with it and she brings the burnt-offerings of both kinds.

(50) True to his principle that one is guided by what was first, supra II, 5. Since all the four birds may have been offered above, she has fulfilled the עולה of her obligation and she must now only bring the הטאת of the same kind as the burnt-offering; but the kind being unknown, two birds of different kind must be offered up as sin-offerings. The birds offered as sin-offerings, whether according to the first Tanna or Ben 'Azzai, cannot be eaten, lest she had already offered her sin-offering and a sin-offering cannot be brought as a voluntary offering. Ben 'Azzai, it would seem, prescribes that two sin-offerings be brought in all cases where the first Tanna of the Mishnah prescribes one to be brought.

(51) Symbolic of the number of additional birds prescribed by the Tanna of our Mishnah in consequence of the many doubts that have arisen. Thus one sacrifice is magnified sevenfold, and according to Ben 'Azzai, even eightfold. This Mishnaic parable is especially apt according to Rash (loc. cit.), who interprets the dispute between Ben 'Azzai and the first Tanna only as to seven or eight birds; other commentators would have it that Ben 'Assai requires two sin-offerings wherever the first Tanna prescribes only one.

(52) Another name for Shofar is, הצוצרה, Suk. 34a. Those used by the priests were of silver, whereas those used by the Levites were of horn.

(53) Attached to the robes of the High priest, Ex. XXVIII, 33.

(54) Job XII, 20 refers to the ignorant in the Torah, as can be seen from v. 24 of the same chapter. (Cf. also Shab. 152a.) The verses of the Bible are cited lest it be thought that the Rabbis are just praising themselves at the expense of the ignorant. The Torah becomes 'wisdom' with the very aged and 'understanding' with those still blessed with years to come.

(55) Job. XII, 12. This forms a fitting conclusion to the whole Order of Kodashim ('Hallowed Things'), of which Kinnim is the last Tractate, since the Talmud (Shab. 31a) refers to Kodashim as 'Wisdom'. Though this verse occurs earlier in the Biblical text than the one cited first, the compiler of the Mishnah thought it better to conclude with a statement on the scholar, the policy of Bible and Talmud being to conclude any prophecy or discussion on a joyful and optimistic note.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aser Shenit Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. SECOND TITHE MAY NOT BE SOLD,¹ NOR MAY IT BE PLEDGED, NOR MAY IT BE EXCHANGED,² NOR MAY IT BE USED AS A WEIGHT.³ ONE MAY NOT SAY TO HIS FELLOW [EVEN] IN JERUSALEM: HERE IS WINE,⁴ GIVE ME [FOR IT] OIL;⁴ THIS APPLIES ALSO TO ALL OTHER PRODUCE. BUT PEOPLE MAY GIVE IT TO ONE ANOTHER AS A FREE GIFT.

MISHNAH 2. TITHE OF CATTLE⁵ WHEN UNBLEMISHED MAY NOT BE SOLD⁶ ALIVE,⁷ AND WHEN BLEMISHED NEITHER ALIVE NOR SLAUGHTERED; NOR MAY A WIFE BE BETROTHED THEREWITH.⁸ A FIRSTLING⁹ WHEN UNBLEMISHED MAY BE SOLD ALIVE, AND WHEN BLEMISHED BOTH ALIVE AND SLAUGHTERED; AND A WIFE MAY BE BETROTHED THEREWITH.¹⁰ SECOND¹¹ TITHE MAY NOT BE EXCHANGED¹² FOR UNSTAMPED COIN,¹³ NOR FOR COIN WHICH IS NOT CURRENT,¹⁴ NOR FOR MONEY WHICH IS NOT IN ONE'S POSSESSION.¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. IF CATTLE WAS BOUGHT¹⁶ FOR A PEACE-OFFERING OR A WILD ANIMAL¹⁷ FOR SECULAR MEAT,¹⁸ THE HIDE BECOMES COMMON,¹⁹ EVEN THOUGH THE VALUE OF THE HIDE EXCEEDS THE VALUE OF THE FLESH. IF SEALED JARS OF WINE [WERE BOUGHT] IN A LOCALITY WHERE THEY WERE USUALLY SOLD SEALED,²⁰ THE JARS BECOME COMMON.¹⁹ IF WALNUTS AND ALMONDS [WERE BOUGHT], THEIR SHELLS BECOME COMMON. GRAPE-SKIN WINE²¹ MAY NOT BE BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY BEFORE IT HAS FERMENTED,²² BUT AFTER IT HAS FERMENTED IT MAY BE BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY.

MISHNAH 4. IF A WILD ANIMAL²³ WAS BOUGHT FOR A PEACE-OFFERING OR CATTLE FOR SECULAR MEAT, THE HIDE DOES NOT BECOME COMMON.²⁴ IF OPEN OR SEALED JARS OF WINE [WERE BOUGHT] IN A LOCALITY WHERE THEY ARE USUALLY SOLD OPEN, THE JARS DO NOT BECOME COMMON.²⁵ IF BASKETS OF OLIVES OR BASKETS OF GRAPES WERE BOUGHT TOGETHER WITH THE VESSEL, THE VALUE OF THE VESSEL DOES NOT BECOME COMMON.²⁶ MISHNAH 5. IF WATER OR SALT²⁷ WERE BOUGHT, OR PRODUCE STILL JOINED TO THE SOIL, OR PRODUCE WHICH CANNOT REACH JERUSALEM, THE PURCHASE DOES NOT BECOME SECOND TITHE. IF PRODUCE WAS BOUGHT UNWITTINGLY,²⁸ THE MONEY MUST BE RESTORED TO ITS FORMER PLACE;²⁹ BUT IF WITH FULL KNOWLEDGE, THE PRODUCE MUST BE TAKEN UP AND BE CONSUMED IN THE [HOLY] PLACE;³⁰ AND WHEN THERE IS NO SANCTUARY,³¹ IT MUST BE LEFT TO ROT.

MISHNAH 6. IF CATTLE WAS BOUGHT UNWITTINGLY,²⁸ THE MONEY MUST BE RESTORED TO ITS FORMER PLACE;²⁹ BUT IF [IT WAS BOUGHT] WITH FULL KNOWLEDGE, THE CATTLE MUST BE TAKEN UP AND BE CONSUMED IN THE [HOLY] PLACE; AND WHEN THERE IS NO SANCTUARY, IT MUST BE BURIED TOGETHER WITH ITS HIDE.³²

CANNOT BE USED FOR EATING OR DRINKING OR ANOINTING, ITS VALUE MUST BE CONSUMED [AS SECOND TITHE IN JERUSALEM].

- (1) In Jerusalem or elsewhere, even on condition that it would be taken up to Jerusalem to be consumed there as Second Tithe. But it may be sold in order that its purchase money should be taken up to Jerusalem and be spent there as Second Tithe money, just as Second Tithe can be redeemed by the owner for money; cf. infra IV, 6, n. 1.
- (2) Bartered for other produce.
- (3) To weigh by it other produce in the scales of a balance. Second Tithe is 'holy unto the Lord', (Lev. XXVII, 30), and must not be treated like secular produce.
- (4) Of Second Tithe.
- (5) Cf. Ibid. XXVII, 32 — 33.
- (6) This is deduced from the expression 'it shall not be redeemed'. (Ibid., 33), which includes any business transaction.
- (7) Nor when slaughtered. The only difference between unblemished and blemished is that the unblemished has to be offered as a sacrifice and its flesh consumed by the owner in Jerusalem (cf. Zeb. V, 8), whereas the blemished may be slaughtered and eaten by the owner anywhere. The wording of the text is merely intended to bring out the difference between cattle tithes and firstlings, spoken of lower down in our Mishnah.
- (8) Cf. Kid. II, 8. This is also considered a business transaction.
- (9) Cf. Deut. XV, 19 — 23 etc.
- (10) Only when it cannot be offered as a sacrifice, viz., after the destruction of the Temple. It is then the property of the Priest.
- (11) Cf. 'Ed. III, 2.
- (12) Lit., render it 'non-holy' or common.
- (13) This cannot be called 'money'; Deut. XIV, 25.
- (14) Which has become obsolete, or is of foreign origin.
- (15) E.g., where one has lost his money in the sea, though a diver could recover it for him. (Bert.). With such coin nothing can be bought. (Deut. ibid., 26).
- (16) With Second Tithe money in Jerusalem.
- (17) An animal of chase.
- (18) Lit., 'flesh of lusting'; cf. Deut. XII, 15.
- (19) Lit., 'non-holy'. No sanctity of Second Tithe attaches to it.
- (20) I.e., these jars are not sold as a rule without wine, so that the relation of the jar to the wine is that of the hide to the flesh of the animal.
- (21) תַּמְזַר an inferior wine made by steeping in water husks and stones of pressed grapes.
- (22) It is not yet wine, but mere water; cf. infra 5. Mik. VII, 2, nn. 8 — 9.
- (23) A wild animal may not be offered as a sacrifice.
- (24) In order to encourage people to use Second Tithe money for buying peace-offerings.
- (25) And their value must be consumed as Second Tithe in Jerusalem.
- (26) Since it is unusual to sell olives and grapes without the vessel.
- (27) These do not belong to the list in Deut. XIV, 26.
- (28) Not knowing that the money was Second Tithe money.
- (29) The bargain is void.
- (30) In Jerusalem. Things bought with Second Tithe money cannot be redeemed.
- (31) After the destruction of the Temple.
- (32) The hide also belongs to Second Tithe; cf. III, 2.
- (33) I.e., the owner must set aside an amount of money corresponding to the amount of money he had expended for them and consume it as Second Tithe. The reference is where he did it with full knowledge, otherwise the law here applies as supra 5 and 6.
- (34) Cf. Lev XV, 14, 29.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aser Sheni Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. SECOND TITHE MUST BE SET APART FOR EATING, FOR DRINKING¹ AND FOR ANOINTING;² FOR EATING WHAT IS USUALLY EATEN,³ FOR DRINKING WHAT IS USUALLY DRUNK, AND FOR ANOINTING WHAT IS CUSTOMARILY USED FOR ANOINTING. [THUS] ONE MAY NOT ANOINT ONESELF WITH WINE OR WITH VINEGAR, BUT ONE MAY ANOINT ONESELF WITH OIL. OIL OF SECOND TITHE MAY NOT BE SPICED,⁴ NOR MAY SPICED OIL BE BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY;⁵ BUT WINE MAY BE SPICED. IF HONEY OR SPICES FELL INTO WINE⁶ AND IMPROVED ITS VALUE, THE IMPROVED VALUE [IS DIVIDED] ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION.⁷ IF FISH WAS COOKED WITH LEEK OF SECOND TITHE AND IT IMPROVED IN VALUE, THE IMPROVED VALUE [IS DIVIDED] ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION. IF DOUGH OF SECOND TITHE WAS BAKED AND IT IMPROVED IN VALUE, THE WHOLE IMPROVED VALUE BELONGS TO THE SECOND [TITHE].⁸ THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHENEVER THE IMPROVEMENT IS RECOGNIZABLE⁹ [EXTERNALLY] THE IMPROVED VALUE [IS DIVIDED] ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION, BUT WHENEVER THE IMPROVED VALUE IS NOT RECOGNIZABLE THE IMPROVED VALUE BELONGS TO THE SECOND [TITHE].

MISHNAH 2. R. SIMEON SAYS: ONE MAY NOT ANOINT ONESELF WITH OIL¹⁰ OF SECOND TITHE IN JERUSALEM. BUT THE SAGES ALLOW IT. THEY SAID TO R. SIMEON: IF A LENIENT RULING HAS BEEN ADOPTED IN THE CASE OF HEAVE-OFFERING¹¹ WHICH IS A GRAVE MATTER,¹² SHOULD WE NOT ALSO ADOPT A LENIENT RULING IN THE CASE OF SECOND TITHE WHICH IS A LIGHT MATTER? HE SAID TO THEM: WHY, NO; A LENIENT RULING HAS BEEN ADOPTED IN THE CASE OF HEAVE-OFFERING THOUGH IT IS A GRAVE MATTER, BECAUSE IN HEAVE-OFFERING WE HAVE ADOPTED A LENIENT RULING ALSO AS REGARDS VETCHES¹³ AND FENUGREEK;¹⁴ BUT HOW CAN WE ADOPT A LENIENT RULING IN THE CASE OF SECOND TITHE THOUGH IT IS A LIGHT MATTER, WHEN WE HAVE NOT ADOPTED A LENIENT RULING IN SECOND TITHE AS REGARDS VETCHES AND FENUGREEK?¹⁵

MISHNAH 3. FENUGREEK OF SECOND TITHE MAY BE EATEN [ONLY] WHEN IT IS STILL TENDER;¹⁶ BUT AS FOR FENUGREEK OF HEAVE-OFFERING, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: WHATEVER IS DONE WITH IT MUST BE DONE IN A STATE OF PURITY,¹⁷ EXCEPT WHEN IT IS USED FOR CLEANSING THE HEAD. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: WHATEVER IS DONE WITH IT MAY BE DONE IN A STATE OF IMPURITY,¹⁸ EXCEPT SOAKING IT IN WATER.¹⁹

MISHNAH 4. VETCHES²⁰ OF SECOND TITHE MAY BE EATEN ONLY WHEN STILL TENDER, AND MAY BE BROUGHT INTO JERUSALEM AND TAKEN OUT AGAIN.²¹ IF THEY BECAME UNCLEAN, R. TARFON SAYS: THEY MUST BE DIVIDED²² AMONG PIECES OF DOUGH. BUT THE SAGES SAY: THEY MAY BE REDEEMED.²³ [VETCHES] OF HEAVE OFFERING, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THEY MUST BE SOAKED AND RUBBED IN A STATE OF PURITY,²⁴ BUT MAY BE GIVEN AS FOOD²⁵ IN A STATE OF IMPURITY.²⁶ BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY MUST BE SOAKED [ONLY] IN A STATE OF PURITY,²⁷ BUT MAY BE RUBBED AND GIVEN AS FOOD IN A STATE OF IMPURITY. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THEY MUST BE EATEN DRY²⁸ [ONLY]. R. AKIBA SAYS: WHATEVER IS DONE WITH THEM²⁹ MAY BE DONE IN A STATE OF IMPURITY.

MISHNAH 5. IF COMMON MONEY AND SECOND TITHE MONEY WERE SCATTERED TOGETHER,³⁰ WHATEVER IS PICKED UP [SINGLY] BELONGS TO SECOND TITHE UNTIL ITS SUM IS COMPLETED, AND THE REMAINDER BELONGS TO THE COMMON MONEY.³¹ IF THEY WERE SO MIXED UP AS TO BE TAKEN UP BY THE HANDFUL, [THEY ARE DIVIDED] ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION.³² THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: WHAT IS PICKED UP [SINGLY] MUST BE FIRST GIVEN TO SECOND TITHE, BUT WHAT IS PICKED UP IN A MIXED [QUANTITY MUST BE DIVIDED] ACCORDING TO THE PROPORTION.

MISHNAH 6. IF A SELA³³ OF SECOND TITHE WAS MIXED UP WITH A SELA' OF COMMON MONEY,³⁴ ONE MAY BRING COPPER COINS FOR A SELA' AND SAY: LET THE SELA' OF SECOND TITHE WHEREVER IT MAY BE, BE EXCHANGED FOR THESE COPPER COINS;³⁵ AND THEN HE MUST SELECT THE BETTER OF THE TWO SELA'S, AND CHANGE [AGAIN] THE COPPER COINS FOR IT.³⁶ FOR THEY HAVE DECLARED: ONE MAY CHANGE SILVER FOR COPPER [ONLY] IN CASE OF NECESSITY, AND NOT TO LEAVE IT SO BUT TO CHANGE IT AGAIN FOR SILVER.

MISHNAH 7. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: ONE MAY NOT TURN HIS SELA'S³⁷ INTO GOLD DENARS.³⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL ALLOW IT. R. AKIBA SAID: ONCE I TURNED SILVER COINS FOR GOLD DENARS FOR RABBAN GAMALIEL AND R. JOSHUA.

MISHNAH 8. IF³⁹ ONE CHANGES FOR A SELA' COPPER COINS OF SECOND TITHE,⁴⁰ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MAY CHANGE COPPER COINS FOR A WHOLE SELA. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: SILVER FOR ONE SHEKEL AND COPPER COINS FOR THE OTHER SHEKEL.⁴¹ R. MEIR SAYS: SILVER AND PRODUCE MAY NOT BE EXCHANGED TOGETHER FOR SILVER.⁴² BUT THE SAGES ALLOW IT.

MISHNAH 9. IF⁴³ ONE CHANGES A SELA OF SECOND TITHE IN JERUSALEM,⁴⁴ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MAY CHANGE THE WHOLE SELA' FOR COPPER COINS. BETH HILLEL SAY: SILVER FOR ONE SHEKEL AND COPPER COINS FOR THE OTHER SHEKEL. THE DISPUTANTS⁴⁵ BEFORE THE SAGES SAY: SILVER FOR THREE DENARS AND COPPER COINS FOR ONE DENAR. R. AKIBA SAYS: SILVER FOR THREE DENARS AND COPPER COINS FOR A FOURTH [OF THE FOURTH DENAR].⁴⁶ R. TARFON SAYS: FOUR ASPERS⁴⁷ IN SILVER. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MUST LEAVE IT⁴⁸ IN A SHOP AND EAT ON THE CREDIT THEREOF.

MISHNAH 10. IF ONE HAD SOME OF HIS SONS CLEAN AND SOME UNCLEAR,⁴⁹ HE MAY LAY DOWN A SELA'⁵⁰ AND SAY: MAY THIS SELA BE AN EXCHANGE FOR WHAT THE CLEAN SHALL DRINK. THUS THE CLEAN AND THE UNCLEAR MAY DRINK FROM ONE JAR.⁵¹

(1) Drinking is implied in the expression 'and for wine, or for strong drink'. (Deut. XIV, 26).

(2) Ointment is considered a drink for the bones of the human body; cf. Ps. CIX, 18.

(3) But not spoilt or raw food.

(4) The spices absorb oil which is thus wasted.

(5) Because spiced oil is an unusual luxury.

(6) Second Tithe wine.

(7) If for example the wine alone was worth two sela's and the honey or spices which fell into it was worth one sela', and the mixture was now worth six sela's, the wine must be assessed for redemption at four sela's, and two sela's must be assigned to the spices.

(8) It must be redeemed at the price of bread without deduction for the cost of baking etc.

(9) By an increase in the weight or measure.

(10) He holds that oil must be used for food only.

(11) Oil of heave-offering may be used as an ointment; cf. Sheb. VIII, 3.

(12) Heave offering is of greater sanctity than Second Tithe.

(13) It may be given to animals; cf. Ter. XI, 9,

(14) It may be eaten when green or dry.

(15) Both these if of Second Tithe may only be eaten when green; cf. 3 and 4.

- (16) When it overgrows it becomes tasteless and unfit for ordinary food. But fenugreek of heave-offering may be eaten also when dry since it may be used for other purposes than eating and in an unclean state.
- (17) With clean hands, as mere indication that it is heave-offering, not to be eaten by non-priests
- (18) With hands unclean.
- (19) Cf. n. 8. Because the water renders it susceptible to contract uncleanness from the touch of the unclean hands. Cf. Lev. XI, 37 — 38. Maksh., Introd.
- (20) Like fenugreek, n. 7. They are eaten by human beings only in case of great poverty.
- (21) Which is not permitted in the case of other produce; cf. III, 5.
- (22) In quantities less than the size of an egg, so that they may be neutralized by the dough.
- (23) Like other Second Tithe produce which has become unclean.
- (24) As in n. 8, p 289.
- (25) To animals.
- (26) As in n. 9, P. 289.
- (27) As in n. 10, p 289.
- (28) When it is not susceptible to uncleanness, cf. n. 10, p. 289.
- (29) Even soaking in water.
- (30) And were mixed up.
- (31) Stipulating to the effect that whatever coin in the remainder may belong to the Second Tithe would be exchanged for a corresponding coin the lot first picked up.
- (32) If the Second Tithe money was ten and the common money twenty, a third of the money recovered belongs to the Second Tithe and two thirds to the common money.
- (33) סֵלָע . It equals two silver shekels or four silver denars.
- (34) And the owner wants to spend the common sela' outside Jerusalem.
- (35) So that now both sela's are common.
- (36) Thus turning the better sela' back into Second Tithe.
- (37) Of Second Tithe money.
- (38) The difficulty of changing again the gold into silver may cause the owner to delay his pilgrimage to Jerusalem.
- (39) Cf. 'Ed. I, 9. (Sonc. Ed.).
- (40) He changes copper coin into silver sela's, in order to lighten for the journey to Jerusalem the weight of the money.
- (41) If pilgrims will bring to Jerusalem only silver coin, copper coin will go up in price and thus cause a loss to Second Tithe.
- (42) Half a silver denar and its value in produce may not together be changed for a silver denar.
- (43) Cf. 'Ed. I, 10. (Sonc. Ed.).
- (44) Silver for copper in order to buy provisions.
- (45) Young Sages who were not yet members of the Sanhedrin. For their identity cf. Sanh. 17b.
- (46) I.e., for one sixteenth of a sela'. So the commentaries, The text is uncertain.
- (47) According to Bert. it equals one fifth of a denar, or one twentieth of a sela'.
- (48) The whole sela' without changing it at all, lest when there is any surplus he may unwittingly use it as common money.
- (49) Unclean persons may not consume Second Tithe produce, but the father wants all the sons to drink wine out of one jug, and the drink of the clean ones should be on the account of Second Tithe.
- (50) Second Tithe money.
- (51) The wine drunk by the clean sons becomes Second Tithe, while the wine drunk by the unclean sons (without, of course, coming into contact with the jar itself) remains common.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aser Sheni Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. A MAN MAY NOT SAY TO HIS FELLOW: CARRY UP THIS [SECOND TITHE] PRODUCE TO JERUSALEM THAT YOU MAY HAVE A SHARE THEREIN¹ BUT HE MAY SAY TO HIM: 'CARRY IT UP THAT WE MAY BOTH EAT AND DRINK OF IT IN JERUSALEM'. 'BUT² PEOPLE MAY GIVE IT TO ONE ANOTHER AS A FREE GIFT.

MISHNAH 2. HEAVE-OFFERING MAY NOT BE BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY, BECAUSE THEREBY THE NUMBER OF THOSE WHO CAN EAT IT BECOMES REDUCED.³ BUT R. SIMEON ALLOWS IT. R. SIMEON SAID TO THEM: WHY, IF A LENIENT RULING HAS BEEN ADOPTED IN THE CASE OF PEACE-OFFERINGS,⁴ THOUGH THEY MAY BECOME UNFIT OR A REMNANT OR UNCLEAN,⁵ SHOULD WE NOT ALSO ADOPT A LENIENT RULING IN THE CASE OF HEAVE-OFFERING?⁶ BUT THEY SAID TO HIM: WHY, IF A LENIENT RULING HAS BEEN ADOPTED IN THE CASE OF PEACE-OFFERINGS, IT IS BECAUSE THEY ARE PERMITTED TO NON-PRIESTS,⁷ BUT HOW CAN WE ADOPT A LENIENT RULING IN THE CASE OF HEAVE-OFFERING, SEEING THAT IT IS FORBIDDEN TO NON-PRIESTS?

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN HAD [SECOND TITHE] MONEY IN JERUSALEM AND HE NEEDED [TO SPEND] IT,⁸ AND HIS FELLOW HAD [COMMON] PRODUCE, HE MAY SAY TO HIS FELLOW: 'LET THIS MONEY BE EXCHANGED FOR YOUR PRODUCE'. THUS, THE ONE EATS HIS PRODUCE IN A CONDITION OF PURITY⁹ AND THE OTHER MAY DO WHAT HE NEEDS WITH HIS MONEY. BUT HE MAY NOT SAY THUS TO AN AM HA-AREZ¹⁰ EXCEPT WHEN [THE MONEY WAS] FROM [SECOND TITHE OF] DEMAI.¹¹

MISHNAH 4. IF [ONE HAD COMMON] PRODUCE IN JERUSALEM AND [SECOND TITHE MONEY] IN THE PROVINCES,¹² HE MAY SAY: 'LO, LET THAT MONEY BE EXCHANGED FOR THIS PRODUCE'.¹³ IF [HE HAD SECOND TITHE] MONEY IN JERUSALEM AND [COMMON] PRODUCE IN THE PROVINCES, HE MAY SAY: LO, LET THIS MONEY BE EXCHANGED FOR THAT PRODUCE, BUT ONLY ON CONDITION THAT THE PRODUCE SHALL BE CARRIED UP AND BE EATEN IN JERUSALEM.

MISHNAH 5. [SECOND TITHE] MONEY MAY BE BROUGHT INTO JERUSALEM AND BE TAKEN OUT AGAIN, BUT [SECOND TITHE] PRODUCE MAY ONLY BE BROUGHT IN, BUT MAY NOT BE TAKEN OUT AGAIN.¹⁴ RABBAN SIMEON B. GAMALIEL SAYS: PRODUCE¹⁵ ALSO MAY BE BROUGHT IN AND BE TAKEN OUT AGAIN.

MISHNAH 6. IF PRODUCE HAD ALL ITS WORK FINISHED¹⁶ AND IT PASSED THROUGH JERUSALEM.¹⁷ THE SECOND TITHE THEREOF MUST BE BROUGHT BACK AND EATEN IN JERUSALEM.¹⁸ IF ALL ITS WORK HAD NOT BEEN FINISHED, [SUCH AS] BASKETS OF GRAPES [THAT WERE GOING] TO THE WINE-PRESS OR BASKETS OF FIGS [THAT WERE GOING] TO THE DRYING-PLACE, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE SECOND TITHE THEREOF MUST BE BROUGHT BACK AND BE EATEN IN JERUSALEM.¹⁹ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT MAY BE REDEEMED AND EATEN ANYWHERE. R. SIMEON B. JUDAH SAYS IN THE NAME OF R. JOSE: THERE WAS NO CONTROVERSY BETWEEN BETH SHAMMAI AND BETH HILLEL CONCERNING PRODUCE WHICH DID NOT HAVE ALL ITS WORK FINISHED THAT THE SECOND TITHE THEREOF MAY BE REDEEMED AND BE EATEN ANYWHERE. BUT ABOUT WHAT WAS THEIR CONTROVERSY? ABOUT PRODUCE WHICH HAD ALL ITS WORK FINISHED, OF WHICH BETH SHAMMAI SAID THAT THE SECOND TITHE THEREOF MUST BE BROUGHT BACK AND BE EATEN IN JERUSALEM, AND BETH HILLEL SAID THAT IT MIGHT BE REDEEMED AND BE EATEN ANYWHERE.²⁰ IN THE CASE OF DEMAI²¹, [THE SECOND TITHE THEREOF] MAY BE BROUGHT IN AND TAKEN OUT AGAIN AND BE REDEEMED.²²

MISHNAH 7. IF A TREE STOOD WITHIN²³ AND WAS BENDING OUTWARDS, OR IF IT STOOD OUTSIDE AND WAS BENDING INWARDS, WHAT FACES THE WALL INWARDS IS DEEMED AS BEING WITHIN,²⁴ AND WHAT FACES THE WALL OUTWARDS IS DEEMED AS BEING OUTSIDE. OLIVE-PRESSES WHICH HAVE THEIR ENTRANCE WITHIN AND THEIR INNER SPACE OUTSIDE, OR WHICH HAVE THEIR ENTRANCE

OUTSIDE AND THEIR INNER SPACE WITHIN, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE WHOLE IS DEEMED AS BEING WITHIN.²⁵ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: WHAT FACES THE WALL INWARDS IS DEEMED AS BEING WITHIN, AND WHAT FACES THE WALL OUTWARDS IS DEEMED AS BEING OUTSIDE.

MISHNAH 8. IN CHAMBERS WHICH WERE BUILT ON HOLY GROUND²⁶ BUT WERE OPEN TOWARDS COMMON GROUND,²⁷ THE INTERIOR WAS DEEMED COMMON²⁸ AND THEIR ROOFS WERE DEEMED HOLY.²⁹ IN THOSE WHICH WERE BUILT ON COMMON GROUND BUT WERE OPEN TOWARDS HOLY GROUND, THE INTERIOR WAS DEEMED HOLY AND THEIR ROOFS WERE DEEMED COMMON. IN THOSE WHICH WERE BUILT BOTH ON HOLY AND ON COMMON GROUND AND WERE OPEN BOTH TOWARDS HOLY AND COMMON GROUND, [THE INTERIOR AND THE ROOFS] FACING HOLY GROUND INWARDS³⁰ WERE DEEMED HOLY, BUT THOSE FACING COMMON GROUND OUTWARDS³¹ WERE DEEMED COMMON.

MISHNAH 9. IF SECOND TITHE WAS BROUGHT INTO JERUSALEM AND IT BECAME UNCLEAR, WHETHER IT BECAME UNCLEAR BY A PRINCIPAL DEFILEMENT³² OR BY A SECONDARY DEFILEMENT,³³ WHETHER IT BECAME UNCLEAR WITHIN [JERUSALEM] OR OUTSIDE, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT MUST ALL BE REDEEMED AND BE EATEN WITHIN EXCEPT WHAT BECAME UNCLEAR BY A PRINCIPAL DEFILEMENT OUTSIDE.³⁴ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT MUST ALL BE REDEEMED AND BE EATEN OUTSIDE EXCEPT WHAT BECAME UNCLEAR BY A SECONDARY DEFILEMENT WITHIN.

MISHNAH 10. IF WHAT WAS BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY BECAME UNCLEAR, IT SHOULD BE REDEEMED. R. JUDAH SAYS: IT MUST BE BURIED.³⁵ THEY SAID TO R. JUDAH: WHY, IF SECOND TITHE ITSELF WHEN IT BECAME UNCLEAR MAY BE REDEEMED, SHOULD NOT ALSO WHAT IS BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY BE REDEEMED WHEN IT BECAME UNCLEAR? HE SAID TO THEM: NO; IF YOU SAY THUS OF SECOND TITHE ITSELF, IT IS BECAUSE IT MAY BE REDEEMED ALSO WHEN CLEAR AT A DISTANCE FROM THE [HOLY] PLACE;³⁶ BUT HOW CAN YOU SAY THUS OF WHAT IS BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY, SEEING THAT IT CANNOT BE REDEEMED WHEN CLEAR AT A DISTANCE FROM THE [HOLY] PLACE.

MISHNAH 11. IF A GAZELLE WHICH HAD BEEN BOUGHT WITH SECOND TITHE MONEY DIED, IT MUST BE BURIED TOGETHER WITH ITS HIDE. R. SIMEON SAYS: IT MAY BE REDEEMED.³⁷ IF IT WAS BOUGHT ALIVE AND SLAUGHTERED AND IT THEN BECAME UNCLEAR, IT MAY BE REDEEMED. R. JOSE SAYS: IT MUST BE BURIED. IF IT WAS BOUGHT SLAUGHTERED AND IT BECAME UNCLEAR, THIS IS LIKE PRODUCE.³⁸

MISHNAH 12. IF JARS WERE LENT³⁹ FOR SECOND TITHE [WINE], EVEN IF THEY WERE CORKED,⁴⁰ THEY DO NOT ACQUIRE [THE SANCTITY OF] SECOND TITHE.⁴¹ IF UNDEFINED WINE⁴² WAS POURED INTO THEM THEY DO NOT ACQUIRE [THE SANCTITY OF] SECOND TITHE BEFORE THEY ARE CORKED,⁴³ BUT AFTER THEY ARE CORKED⁴⁴ THEY ACQUIRE [THE SANCTITY OF] SECOND TITHE. BEFORE THEY ARE CORKED THEY ARE NEUTRALIZED IN A HUNDRED AND ONE,⁴⁵ BUT AFTER THEY ARE CORKED THEY SANCTIFY ANY QUANTITY.⁴⁶ BEFORE THEY ARE CORKED HEAVE-OFFERING MAY BE TAKEN FROM ONE JAR FOR ALL THE OTHERS, BUT AFTER THEY ARE CORKED HEAVE-OFFERING MUST BE TAKEN FROM EACH JAR SEPARATELY.

MISHNAH 13. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: THE JARS MUST BE OPENED AND EMPTIED INTO THE WINE-PRESS.⁴⁷ BETH HILLEL SAY: THEY MUST BE OPENED BUT NEED NOT BE EMPTIED. WHERE IS THIS THE CASE?⁴⁸ IN A PLACE WHERE THEY ARE USUALLY SOLD CLOSED;⁴⁹ BUT IN A PLACE WHERE THEY ARE USUALLY SOLD OPEN, THE JAR DOES NOT REMAIN COMMON.⁵⁰ IF, HOWEVER, THE DEALER WISHED TO IMPOSE A STRINGENCY UPON HIMSELF AND TO SELL [ONLY] BY MEASURE, THE JAR REMAINS COMMON.⁵¹ R. SIMEON SAYS: ALSO WHEN ONE SAYS TO HIS FELLOW: 'THIS JAR [OF WINE] I SELL THEE⁵² WITHOUT THE EMPTY JAR', THE JAR⁵³ REMAINS COMMON.

- (1) It is the duty of the owner to carry up his Second Tithe to Jerusalem. If he employs another person to do it for him, he must not pay him out of the Second Tithe. But he may make him a gift of Second Tithe.
- (2) A quotation from I, 1.
- (3) Heave-offering may only be eaten by priests, and by them also only when they are in a state of purity.
- (4) Allowing it to be bought with Second Tithe money.
- (5) Which restricts the consumption of peace-offerings. Cf. Lev. VII, 17,19; Zeb. I, 2 ff.
- (6) And allow it to be bought with Second Tithe money.
- (7) Thus everybody can eat of it.
- (8) On things which cannot be bought with Second Tithe money; cf. II, 1.
- (9) The produce has now become Second Tithe which may be eaten only by those who are clean.
- (10) Who does not observe the laws of purity; cf. Demai, Introd.
- (11) And thus it is doubtful whether it is really Second Tithe.
- (12) And he needed the money for things which may not be bought with Second Tithe money.
- (13) The produce becomes Second Tithe and the money becomes common. For the purpose of such an exchange the produce and the money need not be both in one and the same place.
- (14) Once produce enters Jerusalem, it must be consumed there as Second Tithe and cannot be redeemed for money.
- (15) Such as wheat may be taken out of Jerusalem to be ground and baked and then be brought back to Jerusalem for consumption.
- (16) In connection with its harvesting, when it becomes liable for tithing; cf. Ma'as. I, 1 ff.
- (17) Before, it had been tithed.
- (18) It may not be redeemed for money. For since the produce was already liable to tithing when it reached Jerusalem, a tenth part of it is considered as virtual Second Tithe which had entered Jerusalem; cf. n. 7, p. 294.
- (19) Like regular Second Tithe which had once been brought into Jerusalem.
- (20) Since the Second Tithe had not actually been separated from the produce.
- (21) Even if all its work had been finished.
- (22) Even according to Beth Shammai.
- (23) Within the wall of Jerusalem.
- (24) And the Second Tithe of its fruit may not be redeemed, like Second Tithe which has once entered into Jerusalem, n. 7, p. 294.
- (25) It all belongs to the precincts of the Holy City in respect of the consumption of sacrificial flesh (cf. Zeb. V, 6 — 8), of Second Tithe, etc.
- (26) On the Temple court.
- (27) Outside the Temple precincts.
- (28) As outside the Temple.
- (29) As within the Temple.
- (30) Lit., 'towards the holy'.
- (31) Lit., 'towards the common'.
- (32) By the touch of a carcase or a dead creeping thing; cf. Kelim I, 1 ff.
- (33) A defilement produced by the touch of a principal defilement; cf. 'Ed.. (Sonc. Ed.), p. 9, n. 14.
- (34) The rule that Second Tithe which had entered Jerusalem may not be redeemed does not apply to such unclean Second Tithe.
- (35) It may not be redeemed again.
- (36) From Jerusalem.
- (37) And given to dogs for food.
- (38) Viz., like the case of produce bought with Second Tithe money, which had become unclean, discussed in the last Mishnah.

(39) Outside Jerusalem.

(40) After being filled with Second Tithe wine.

(41) And the owner need redeem the wine only.

(42) Which had not been tithed.

(43) If after pouring in the wine and before corking the jars he designated the wine as Second Tithe.

(44) If he designated the wine as Second Tithe.

(45) If such an open jar containing heave-offering wine was mixed up with 101 jars of common wine, it is neutralized and becomes common, as in the case of heave-offering becoming mixed up with ordinary common produce; cf. Ter. IV, 7.

(46) If a corked jar of heave-offering wine was mixed with any number of jars containing common wine, all the jars become forbidden to the non-priest, and the owner must sell all the jars, but one, to a priest at the price of heave-offering wine (which is lower than the price of common wine, because its consumption is restricted to the small public of priests), and one jar he must give away to a priest as heave-offering.

(47) If he wants to give heave-offering from one corked jar for other corked jars.

(48) That if he designated the wine as Second Tithe after he had corked the jars they acquire the sanctity of Second Tithe.

(49) Cf. supra I, 3.

(50) And the jar has to be redeemed together with its contents.

(51) If he sold for Second Tithe money a jar full of wine by measure, whether the jar was open or closed.

(52) For Second Tithe money.

(53) Var. lec. 'its jar'.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aser Sheni Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN CARRIED PRODUCE OF SECOND TITHE FROM A PLACE WHERE IT WAS DEAR TO A PLACE WHERE IT WAS CHEAP, OR FROM A PLACE WHERE IT WAS CHEAP TO A PLACE WHERE IT WAS DEAR, HE MAY REDEEM IT ACCORDING TO THE MARKET PRICE OF THE PLACE [OF REDEMPTION]. IF A MAN BROUGHT PRODUCE FROM THE THRESHING-FLOOR INTO THE CITY, OR JARS OF WINE FROM THE WINE-PRESS INTO THE CITY, THE INCREASE IN THE PRICE¹ BELONGS TO THE SECOND TITHE AND THE EXPENSES² [MUST BE COVERED] FROM HIS HOUSEHOLD.

MISHNAH 2. SECOND TITHE MAY BE REDEEMED AT THE LOWER MARKET PRICE, AT THE PRICE AT WHICH THE SHOPKEEPER BUYS AND NOT AT WHICH HE SELLS, AT THE PRICE AT WHICH THE MONEY-CHANGER TAKES³ SMALL CHANGE AND NOT AT THE PRICE AT WHICH HE GIVES⁴ SMALL CHANGE. SECOND TITHE MAY NOT BE REDEEMED IN A LUMP.⁵ IF ITS VALUE IS KNOWN,⁶ IT MAY BE REDEEMED ACCORDING TO THE VALUATION OF ONE WITNESS;⁷ BUT IF ITS VALUE IS NOT KNOWN, IT MUST BE REDEEMED ACCORDING TO THE VALUATION OF THREE, AS FOR INSTANCE IN THE CASE OF WINE WHICH HAS FORMED A FILM,⁸ OR PRODUCE WHICH HAS BEGUN TO ROT, OR COINS WHICH HAVE BECOME RUSTY.

MISHNAH 3. IF THE OWNER OFFERED A SELA⁹ AND A STRANGER OFFERED A SELA, THE OWNER HAS THE FIRST RIGHT, BECAUSE HE MUST ADD A FIFTH.¹⁰ IF THE OWNER OFFERED A SELA AND A STRANGER OFFERED A SELA' AND AN ISSAR,¹¹ THE ONE WHO OFFERED A SELA' AND AN ISSAR HAS THE FIRST RIGHT, BECAUSE HE ADDED TO THE PRINCIPAL.¹² IF A MAN REDEEMS HIS SECOND TITHE HE MUST ADD A FIFTH,¹³ WHETHER IT IS HIS OWN OR IT WAS GIVEN HIM AS A GIFT.¹⁴

MISHNAH 4. ONE MAY USE AN ARTIFICE IN RESPECT OF SECOND TITHE.¹⁵ IN WHAT MANNER? A MAN MAY SAY TO HIS GROWN-UP SON OR DAUGHTER, OR TO HIS

HEBREW MAN-SERVANT OR MAID-SERVANT: TAKE THIS MONEY¹⁶ AND REDEEM¹⁷ THIS SECOND TITHE FOR THYSELF'. BUT HE MAY NOT SAY SO TO HIS SON OR DAUGHTER WHO ARE MINORS OR TO HIS CANAANITE MAN-SERVANT OR MAID-SERVANT, BECAUSE THEIR HAND IS AS HIS OWN HAND.¹⁸

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN WAS STANDING IN HIS THRESHING-FLOOR AND HE HAD NO MONEY,¹⁹ HE MAY SAY TO HIS FELLOW: 'LO, THIS PRODUCE IS GIVEN TO THEE AS A GIFT', AND THEN HE MAY SAY AGAIN: 'LO, LET THIS PRODUCE BE EXCHANGED FOR MONEY WHICH I HAVE IN THE HOUSE'.²⁰

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN²¹ TOOK POSSESSION²² FROM THE OWNER OF SECOND TITHE FOR A SELA', BUT BEFORE HE HAD TIME TO REDEEM IT,²³ IT STOOD AT THE PRICE OF TWO SELA'S, HE MAY GIVE HIM ONE SELA' AND MAKE A PROFIT OF ONE SELA' AND THE SECOND TITHE REMAINS HIS.²⁴ IF HE TOOK POSSESSION FROM THE OWNER OF SECOND TITHE FOR TWO SELA'S, BUT BEFORE HE HAD TIME TO REDEEM²³ IT, IT STOOD AT THE PRICE OF ONE SELA',²⁵ HE MAY GIVE HIM ONE SELA' OUT OF COMMON [MONEY] AND ONE SELA' OUT OF HIS SECOND TITHE [MONEY].²⁶ IF THE OWNER WAS AN'AM HA-AREZ, HE MAY GIVE HIM OUT OF [SECOND TITHE OF] DEM'AI.²⁷

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN REDEEMED SECOND TITHE BUT DID NOT CALL IT BY ITS NAME,²⁸ R. JOSE SAYS: IT IS SUFFICIENT. BUT R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MUST NAME IT EXPLICITLY. IF A MAN WAS SPEAKING TO A WOMAN CONCERNING HER DIVORCE OR HER BETROTHAL, AND GAVE HER HER BILL OF DIVORCE OR HER GIFT OF BETROTHAL BUT DID NOT NOTIFY IT EXPLICITLY,²⁹ R. JOSE SAYS: IT IS SUFFICIENT. BUT R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MUST NOTIFY IT EXPLICITLY.

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN PUT DOWN AN ISSAR³⁰ [FOR THE REDEMPTION OF SECOND TITHE] AND ON THE ACCOUNT THEREOF HE ATE [THE VALUE OF] HALF [AN ISSAR] AND THEN WENT TO ANOTHER PLACE WHERE THE PRODUCE WAS SOLD FOR A PONDION,³¹ HE MAY EAT OF IT [ONLY TO THE VALUE OF] ANOTHER ISSAR.³² IF HE PUT DOWN A PONDION [FOR THE REDEMPTION OF SECOND TITHE] AND ON THE ACCOUNT THEREOF HE ATE [TO THE VALUE OF] HALF [A PONDION] AND THEN WENT TO ANOTHER PLACE WHERE THE PRODUCE WAS SOLD FOR AN ISSAR, HE MAY EAT OF IT [ONLY TO THE VALUE OF ANOTHER] HALF [AN ISSAR].³³ IF HE PUT DOWN AN ISSAR³⁴ OF SECOND TITHE [MONEY] HE MAY EAT ON THE ACCOUNT THEREOF [UNTIL THERE IS LEFT] AN ELEVENTH PART³⁵ OF [THE VALUE OF] AN ISSAR,³⁶ OR [UNTIL THERE IS LEFT] A HUNDREDTH PART OF [THE VALUE OF] AN ISSAR.³⁷ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IN BOTH CASES³⁸ [HE MAY EAT UNTIL THERE IS LEFT THE VALUE OF] ONE TENTH PART³⁹ [OF AN ISSAR]. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IN THE CASE OF CERTAIN⁴⁰ [SECOND TITHE HE MAY EAT UNTIL THERE IS LEFT THE VALUE OF] AN ELEVENTH PART⁴¹ [OF AN ISSAR] BUT IN THE CASE OF [SECOND TITHE] OF DEMAI,⁴² [HE MAY EAT UNTIL THERE IS LEFT THE VALUE OF] A TENTH PART⁴¹ [OF AN ISSAR].

MISHNAH 9. ANY MONEY FOUND⁴³ IS CONSIDERED COMMON,⁴⁴ EVEN A GOLD DENAR WITH SILVER AND WITH COPPER COINS.⁴⁵ IF A POTSHERD WAS FOUND WITH THE MONEY ON WHICH WAS WRITTEN 'TITHE' THIS IS CONSIDERED SECOND TITHE [MONEY].

MISHNAH 10. IF A VESSEL WAS FOUND ON WHICH WAS WRITTEN 'KORBAN'⁴⁵ R. JUDAH SAYS: IF IT WAS OF EARTHENWARE, IT IS ITSELF COMMON AND WHAT IS IN IT IS KORBAN;⁴⁶ BUT IF IT WAS OF METAL IT IS ITSELF KORBAN AND WHAT IS IN IT IS

COMMON. BUT THEY SAID UNTO HIM: IT IS NOT THE CUSTOM OF PEOPLE TO PUT WHAT IS COMMON INTO WHAT IS KORBAN.⁴⁷

MISHNAH 11. IF A VESSEL WAS FOUND ON WHICH WAS WRITTEN A KOF,⁴⁸ IT IS KORBAN; IF A MEM, IT IS MA'ASER;⁴⁹ IF A DALETH, IT IS DEMAI; IF A TETH, IT IS TEBEL;⁵⁰ IF A TAW, IT IS TERUMAH,⁵¹ FOR IN THE TIME OF DANGER⁵² PEOPLE WROTE TAW FOR TERUMAH. R. JOSE SAYS: THEY MAY ALL STAND FOR THE NAMES OF MEN.⁵³ R. JOSE SAID: EVEN IF A JAR WAS FOUND WHICH WAS FULL OF PRODUCE AND ON IT WAS WRITTEN 'TERUMAH'⁵⁴ IT MAY YET BE CONSIDERED COMMON PRODUCE, BECAUSE I MAY ASSUME THAT LAST YEAR IT WAS FULL OF PRODUCE OF HEAVE-OFFERING AND WAS AFTERWARDS EMPTIED.⁵⁵

MISHNAH 12. IF A MAN SAID TO HIS SON: 'THERE IS SECOND TITHE [MONEY] IN THIS CORNER, BUT THE SON FOUND [MONEY] IN ANOTHER CORNER, THIS MAY BE CONSIDERED COMMON⁵⁶ [MONEY]. [IF THE FATHER SAID] THERE WAS THERE A HUNDRED AND THE SON FOUND TWO HUNDRED, THE REMAINDER IS COMMON. [IF THE FATHER SAID THERE WERE THERE] TWO HUNDRED AND THE SON FOUND ONE HUNDRED, IT IS ALL SECOND TITHE MONEY.

(1) In the city, as compared with the lower price at the threshing-floor or wine-press.

(2) Of the transport to the city.

(3) For a sela' in exchange for the customer's copper coin. He receives copper coin at a lower rate than its real value.

(4) For the sela' of his customer. He charges the copper coin at a higher rate than its true value.

(5) But only according to its exact measure or weight.

(6) It has a more or less fixed price.

(7) Who acts as valuer.

(8) שקרם . Var. lec. שקם 'which has become pungent'.

(9) For Second Tithe produce which is to be redeemed.

(10) As infra, n. 5.

(11) The Roman As. Its value was 1/24 of a denar, or 1/96 of a sela'; cf. B.M. IV, 5.

(12) Thus increasing the real price of the Second Tithe, although the increase is less than the fifth which the owner would have to add.

(13) In accordance with the law in Lev. XXVII, 31; cf. Introd.; B.M. IV, 8.

(14) I.e., the produce was given him as a gift before the Second Tithe was taken from it. Cf. supra I, 1.

(15) To escape the duty of adding a fifth.

(16) As a gift.

(17) I.e., buy, and since they are not the owners, they need not add the fifth.

(18) Whatever they do possess is deemed his possession.

(19) He wants to evade paying the fifth in redeeming his Second Tithe, but has no money in hand which he might give to his fellow that his fellow should redeem the Second Tithe for him.

(20) It is as if he had bought back his gift from his fellow.

(21) Who had bought Second Tithe produce in order that its purchase money might be turned by the owner.

(22) Lit., 'drew into his possession.' I.e., he acquired it by means of Meshikah, v. Glos.

(23) To pay its purchase money.

(24) The produce became the property of the purchaser as soon as he took possession of it; cf. B.M. IV, 2. But it still retained its sanctity as Second Tithe until its price was paid. Therefore the sela' increase in its value becomes Second Tithe money, and the purchaser must redeem the produce at its new price of two sela's, one of which is Second Tithe which must be spent in Jerusalem.

(25) But he must still pay the seller two sela's.

(26) Thus redeeming the produce at its present price of one sela'.

(27) מדמאי, the sanctity of which is not as great as of certain Second Tithe. Var. lec., מדמיו, 'of his own money'. I.e., he may pay the sela' with common money.

- (28) He had not designated the money as Second Tithe money; cf. infra, V. .
- (29) That what he gave her was a bill of divorce or a gift of betrothal.
- (30) Cf. supra, 3, n. 3.
- (31) Which is equal to two issars.
- (32) And not one issar and a half.
- (33) And not to the value of half a pondion.
- (34) To serve as the purchase price of produce.
- (35) Lit., 'eleven'. The interpretation of this passage is difficult and doubtful. The explanation given here follows Maim. and Bert.
- (36) In case the issar was the redemption money of Second Tithe of demai, and then the remaining eleventh becomes common produce.
- (37) In case the issar was the redemption money of certain Second Tithe, and then the remaining hundredth becomes common produce.
- (38) Whether the issar was the redemption money of demai Second Tithe or of certain Second Tithe.
- (39) Lit., 'ten'.
- (40) The issar was the redemption money of certain Second Tithe.
- (41) Lit., 'eleven', 'ten'.
- (42) The issar was the redemption money of demai Second Tithe.
- (43) Except in Jerusalem during a festival or pilgrimage; cf. Shek. VII, 2.
- (44) It need not be suspected of being Second Tithe money. (15) Which is not usual to mix together, except in the case of Second Tithe money; cf. supra, II, 7 ff.
- (45) 'Offering', or gift to the Temple.
- (46) Holy property, because people did not make gifts to the Temple of earthenware articles and therefore the inscription was intended for the contents, and not for the vessel itself.
- (47) Therefore in the case of a metal vessel, both the vessel and its contents are holy.
- (48) This and the following are names of letters of the Hebrew alphabet.
- (49) 'Tithe'.
- (50) Produce from which heave-offering and tithes have not yet been taken.
- (51) Heave-offering.
- (52) When Jews were persecuted by the Romans for the observance of the Torah.
- (53) The initials of the names of the owners of the vessels.
- (54) The word in full.
- (55) And then filled again with common produce.
- (56) The Second Tithe money had been removed before the son came to look for it, and this is other money, which is usually common money.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aser Sheni Chapter 5

MISHNAH 1. A VINEYARD¹ IN ITS FOURTH YEAR² MUST BE MARKED³ WITH CLODS OF EARTH, [TREES OF] 'ORLAH⁴ WITH POTTER'S CLAY, AND GRAVES⁵ WITH LIME WHICH IS DISSOLVED AND POURED ON.⁶ RABBAN SIMEON R. GAMALIEL SAID: WHEN IS THIS DONE?⁷ IN THE SEVENTH YEAR.⁸ THE CONSCIENTIOUS⁹ USED TO PUT DOWN MONEY AND SAY: ANY FRUIT GATHERED FROM THIS VINEYARD MAY BE EXCHANGED FOR THIS MONEY.

MISHNAH 2. [THE FRUIT OF] A VINEYARD IN ITS FOURTH YEAR WAS BROUGHT UP TO JERUSALEM¹⁰ WITHIN A DISTANCE OF ONE DAY'S JOURNEY ON EACH SIDE. AND WHAT WAS THE LIMIT THEREOF? ELATH ON THE SOUTH, AKRABAH ON THE NORTH, LYDDA ON THE WEST, AND THE JORDAN ON THE EAST.¹¹ WHEN FRUIT INCREASED,¹² IT WAS ORDAINED THAT IT SHOULD BE REDEEMED EVEN IF THE VINEYARD WAS CLOSE TO THE WALL;¹³ BUT THIS WAS DONE ON THE CONDITION THAT WHENEVER IT WAS SO DESIRED, THE ARRANGEMENT WOULD BE RESTORED AS IT HAD BEEN

BEFORE.¹⁴ R. JOSE SAYS: THIS WAS THE UNDERSTANDING AFTER THE TEMPLE WAS DESTROYED, AND THE UNDERSTANDING WAS THAT WHEN THE TEMPLE SHOULD BE REBUILT THE ARRANGEMENT WOULD BE RESTORED AS IT HAD BEEN BEFORE.¹⁴

MISHNAH 3. A¹⁵ VINEYARD¹⁶ IN ITS FOURTH YEAR, BETH SHAMMAI SAY, IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE LAW OF THE FIFTH¹⁷ NOR TO THE LAW OF REMOVAL.¹⁸ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT IS SUBJECT. BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT IS SUBJECT¹⁹ TO THE LAW OF THE GRAPE GLEANING AND TO THE LAW OF DEFECTIVE CLUSTER, AND THE POOR MUST REDEEM THEM FOR THEMSELVES.²⁰ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: ALL OF IT²¹ GOES TO THE WINE-PRESS.²²

MISHNAH 4. HOW DOES ONE REDEEM THE FRUIT OF A PLANT IN ITS FOURTH YEAR? THE OWNER PUTS DOWN A BASKET IN THE PRESENCE OF THREE [PERSONS]²³ AND SAYS: HOW MANY SUCH BASKETS WOULD A MAN WISH TO REDEEM²⁴ FOR HIMSELF FOR A SELA' ON CONDITION THAT THE OUTLAY²⁵ SHALL BE BORNE BY THIS HOUSE?'²⁶ HE THEN PUTS DOWN THE MONEY²⁷ AND SAYS: WHATEVER SHALL BE PICKED FROM THIS PLANT MAY IT BE EXCHANGED FOR THIS MONEY AT THE PRICE OF SO MANY BASKETS FOR A SELA'.

MISHNAH 5. BUT IN THE SEVENTH²⁸ YEAR HE MUST REDEEM IT FOR ITS FULL VALUE.²⁹ IF IT HAD ALL BEEN MADE OWNERLESS PROPERTY,³⁰ THE PERSON WHO SEIZED IT CAN ONLY CLAIM THE COST OF PICKING IT.³¹ IF A MAN REDEEMED HIS FRUIT OF A PLANT IN ITS FOURTH YEAR, HE MUST ADD A FIFTH OF ITS VALUE,³² WHETHER THE FRUIT WAS HIS OWN OR WAS GIVEN HIM AS A GIFT.

MISHNAH 6. ON THE EVE OF THE FIRST FESTIVAL-DAY OF THE PASSOVER IN THE FOURTH AND IN THE SEVENTH³³ [YEARS OF THE SABBATICAL CYCLE] THE REMOVAL³⁴ WAS PERFORMED. HEAVE-OFFERING AND THE HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE³⁵ WERE GIVEN TO THEIR OWNERS,³⁶ THE FIRST TITHE WAS GIVEN TO ITS OWNER,³⁷ THE TITHE OF THE POOR TO ITS OWNER,³⁸ AND SECOND TITHE AND FIRST-FRUIT³⁹ WERE REMOVED EVERYWHERE. R. SIMEON SAYS: FIRST-FRUIT WERE GIVEN TO THE PRIESTS⁴⁰ LIKE HEAVE-OFFERING. AS FOR BROTH,⁴¹ BETH SHAMMAI SAY: IT MUST BE REMOVED. BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: LO, IT MAY BE CONSIDERED AS ALREADY REMOVED.⁴²

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN HAD PRODUCE AT THIS TIME⁴³ AND THE TIME OF REMOVAL ARRIVED, BETH SHAMMAI SAY: HE MUST EXCHANGE IT FOR MONEY.⁴⁴ BUT BETH HILLEL SAY: IT IS ALL THE SAME WHETHER IT BECOMES MONEY OR IT REMAINS FRUIT.⁴⁵

MISHNAH 8. R. JUDAH SAID: FORMERLY THEY USED TO SEND TO HOUSEHOLDERS IN THE PROVINCES [SAYING:] 'HASTEN TO SET RIGHT YOUR PRODUCE⁴⁶ BEFORE THE TIME OF REMOVAL ARRIVES', UNTIL R. AKIBA CAME AND TAUGHT THAT ALL PRODUCE WHICH HAS NOT REACHED THE SEASON⁴⁷ OF TITHING IS EXEMPT FROM THE REMOVAL.

MISHNAH 9. IF A MAN HAD HIS PRODUCE AT A DISTANCE FROM HIM,⁴⁸ HE MUST CALL BY NAME [THE RECIPIENTS OF THE TITHE] THEREOF.⁴⁹ ONCE IT HAPPENED THAT RABBAN GAMALIEL AND THE ELDERS WERE TRAVELLING HOME BY SHIP,⁵⁰ AND RABBAN GAMALIEL SAID: 'ONE TENTH WHICH I SHALL MEASURE IS GIVEN TO JOSHUA,⁵¹ AND THE PLACE THEREOF IS LEASED TO HIM;⁵² THE OTHER TENTH WHICH I SHALL MEASURE IS GIVEN TO AKIBA B. JOSEPH⁵³ THAT HE MAY HOLD IT FOR THE POOR, AND THE PLACE THEREOF IS LEASED TO HIM'. R. JOSHUA SAID: THE TENTH WHICH I SHALL MEASURE⁵⁴ IS GIVEN TO ELEAZAR B. AZARIAH,⁵⁵ AND THE PLACE THEREOF IS LEASED TO HIM', AND THEY EACH RECEIVED RENT⁵⁶ ONE FROM ANOTHER.

MISHNAH 10. IN THE AFTERNOON OF THE LAST FESTIVAL-DAY THE CONFESSION⁵⁷ WAS MADE. HOW WAS THE CONFESSION MADE? [HE SAID:] 'I HAVE REMOVED THE HALLOWED THINGS OUT OF MINE HOUSE' — THIS MEANS⁵⁸ SECOND TITHE AND THE FRUIT OF PLANTS IN THEIR FOURTH YEAR; 'I HAVE GIVEN THEM TO THE LEVITE' — THIS MEANS THE TITHE OF THE LEVITES; 'AND ALSO⁵⁹ I HAVE GIVEN THEM' — THIS MEANS HEAVE-OFFERING AND THE HEAVE-OFFERING OF TITHE; 'UNTO THE STRANGER, TO THE FATHERLESS, AND TO THE WIDOW' — THIS MEANS THE TITHE OF THE POOR, GLEANINGS, FORGOTTEN SHEAF, AND THE CORNER OF THE FIELD, ALTHOUGH THESE DO NOT DEBAR⁶⁰ [ONE FROM MAKING] THE CONFESSION; 'OUT OF MINE HOUSE' — THIS MEANS THE DOUGH-OFFERING.⁶¹

MISHNAH 11. 'ACCORDING TO ALL THY COMMANDMENTS WHICH THOU HAST COMMANDED ME' — LO, IF HE TOOK OFF THE SECOND TITHE BEFORE THE FIRST TITHE HE CANNOT MAKE THE CONFESSION; 'I HAVE NOT TRANSGRESSED ANY OF THY COMMANDMENTS' — I HAVE NOT SET APART [DUES] FROM ONE KIND FOR SOME OTHER KIND, NOR FROM PLUCKED [PRODUCE] FOR [PRODUCE STILL] JOINED [TO THE SOIL], NOR FROM NEW [PRODUCE] FOR OLD [PRODUCE], NOR FROM OLD [PRODUCE] FOR NEW;⁶² 'NEITHER HAVE I FORGOTTEN' — I HAVE NOT FORGOTTEN TO BLESS THEE, NOR TO MAKE MENTION OF THY NAME OVER IT.⁶³

MISHNAH 12. 'I HAVE NOT EATEN THEREOF IN MY MOURNING' — LO, IF HE HAD EATEN THEREOF IN HIS MOURNING,⁶⁴ HE CANNOT MAKE THE CONFESSION; 'NEITHER HAVE I REMOVED OUGHT THEREOF WHEN UNCLEAN' — LO, IF HE HAD SET IT APART IN UNCLEANNESS HE CANNOT MAKE THE CONFESSION; 'NOR GIVEN OUGHT THEREOF FOR THE DEAD' — I HAVE NOT TAKEN THEREOF FOR A COFFIN OR SHROUDS FOR THE DEAD, NOR HAVE I GIVEN THEREOF TO OTHER MOURNERS: 'I HAVE HEARKENED TO THE VOICE OF THE LORD MY GOD' — I HAVE BROUGHT IT TO THE CHOSEN HOUSE.⁶⁵ 'I HAVE DONE ACCORDING TO ALL THAT THOU HAST COMMANDED ME' — I HAVE REJOICED AND MADE OTHERS⁶⁶ TO REJOICE.

MISHNAH 13. 'LOOK DOWN FROM THY HOLY HABITATION, FROM HEAVEN' — WE HAVE DONE WHAT THOU HAST DECREED CONCERNING US, DO THOU ALSO WHAT THOU HAST PROMISED US; 'LOOK DOWN FROM THY HOLY HABITATION, FROM HEAVEN, AND BLESS THY PEOPLE ISRAEL' — WITH SONS AND DAUGHTERS; 'AND THE LAND WHICH THOU HAST GIVEN US' — WITH DEW AND RAIN AND WITH OFFSPRING OF CATTLE; 'AS THOU DIDST SWEAR UNTO OUR FATHERS, A LAND THAT FLOWETH WITH MILK AND HONEY' — THAT THOU MAYEST GRANT A GOOD TASTE IN THE FRUIT.

MISHNAH 14. HENCE⁶⁷ IT WAS DEDUCED THAT ISRAELITES AND BASTARDS MAY MAKE THE CONFESSION, BUT NOT PROSELYTES, NOR FREED BONDMEN, SINCE THEY HAVE NO SHARE IN THE LAND. R. MEIR SAYS: NEITHER MAY PRIESTS AND LEVITES SINCE THEY DID NOT RECEIVE A SHARE IN THE LAND. R. JOSE SAYS: THEY HAVE THE CITIES WITH SUBURBS.⁶⁸

MISHNAH 15. JOHANAN⁶⁹ THE HIGH PRIEST⁷⁰ SET ASIDE THE CONFESSION OF THE TITHES.⁷¹ HE ALSO ABOLISHED THE 'WAKERS'⁷² AND THE 'STRIKERS'.⁷³ UNTIL HIS

DAYS THE HAMMER USED TO BEAT IN JERUSALEM.⁷⁴ AND IN HIS DAYS ONE HAD NO NEED TO ENQUIRE CONCERNING DEMAI.⁷⁵

- (1) The same applies also to a single vine or other fruit tree.
 - (2) Cf. Lev. XIX, 24. The Fruit of the fourth year since the tree was planted was considered like Second Tithe. It had to be consumed in Jerusalem, or redeemed and its value spent in Jerusalem.
 - (3) As a sign that its fruit must not be picked and eaten.
 - (4) 'Uncircumcision', Lev. XIX, 23.
 - (5) To mark them as a place of impurity, cf. Shek I, 1; M.K. I, 2.
 - (6) On the grave.
 - (7) The marking of forbidden fruit.
 - (8) The sabbatical year when all produce was ownerless and free to everybody; cf. Lev. XXV, 6. But in other years no marking was needed because strangers who were scrupulous about the observance of religious laws would not in any case eat of fruit which was private property.
 - (9) Who were eager to prevent the commission of a religious transgression through their fruit. Lit., 'the modest'. v. Kil'ayim, IX, 5.
 - (10) The fruit itself, and not its redemption money, in order to enrich the Holy City with an abundance of fruit.

 - (13) Of Jerusalem.
 - (14) That no redemption of such fruit should be allowed within a day's journey from Jerusalem. When Jerusalem was in the hand of the enemy there was no eagerness to increase the supply of fruit in Jerusalem, and it was therefore permitted to redeem all such fruit from outside Jerusalem, even within a day's journey from the city.

- (70) John Hyrcanus, 135 — 104 B.C.E. The rendering and explanation of this ancient Mishnah are uncertain. The interpretation given here follows the explanations found in Tosef Sot. XIII, 9 — 10; T.J. Ma'as Sh. ad loc., and Sot. l.c.; V. Sot. 47b, 48a and notes a.l. in Sonc. ed.
- (71) Because Ezra had enacted that the First Tithe should be given to the priests, not to the Levites, as a punishment for the refusal of the Levites to return from Babylon; cf. Ezra VIII, 15. Therefore one could not truthfully declare in confession, 'I have given it to the Levite'.
- (72) The singing by the Levites in the temple of the verse 'Awake, why sleepest thou, O Lord?' (Ps. XLIV, 24), because it sounded like blasphemy.
- (73) Those who used to strike the animal between its horns before slaughtering it for a sacrifice, in order to stun it. This appeared like causing a blemish in the sacrifice.
- (74) Workmen's hammers on the middle days of Passover and the Feast of Tabernacles. Johanan abolished work on these semi-sacred days.
- (75) Whether the original owner had tithed it. Johanan ordered that all demai produce of an 'am ha-arez must be tithed by the new owners; cf. Demai, introd.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aseroth Chapter 1

MISHNAH 1. THEY HAVE LAID DOWN A GENERAL RULE CONCERNING TITHES:¹ WHATEVER IS [CONSIDERED] FOOD² AND IS GUARDED³ AND GROWS OUT OF THE SOIL,⁴ IS LIABLE TO TITHES.⁵ AND THEY HAVE FURTHER LAID DOWN ANOTHER RULE [AS REGARDS TITHE]: WHATSOEVER IS CONSIDERED FOOD BOTH AT THE BEGINNING AND AT THE CONCLUSION [OF ITS GROWTH].⁶ EVEN THOUGH HE WITHHOLDS IT FROM USE SO AS TO ENABLE THE QUANTITY OF FOOD TO INCREASE, IS LIABLE [TO TITHE]. WHETHER [IT BE GATHERED] IN ITS EARLIER OR LATER STAGES [OF RIPENING].⁷ WHEREAS WHATSOEVER IS NOT CONSIDERED FOOD IN THE EARLIER STAGES [OF ITS GROWTH] BUT ONLY IN ITS LATER STAGES,⁸ IS NOT LIABLE [TO TITHE] UNTIL IT CAN BE CONSIDERED FOOD.⁹

MISHNAH 2. WHEN DO THE FRUITS BECOME LIABLE TO TITHE?¹⁰ FIGS FROM THE TIME THEY ARE CALLED BOHAL,¹¹ GRAPES AND WILD GRAPES IN THE EARLY STAGES OF RIPENING,¹² RED BERRIES AND MULBERRIES AFTER THEY BECOME RED; [SIMILARLY] ALL RED FRUITS, AFTER THEY BECOME RED. POMEGRANATES ARE LIABLE TO TITHE AFTER THEIR CORE BECOMES PULPY,¹³ DATES AFTER THEY BEGIN TO SWELL,¹⁴ PEACHES AFTER THEY ACQUIRE [RED] VEINS,¹⁵ WALNUTS FROM THE TIME THEY FORM DRUPES.¹⁶ R. JUDAH SAYS: WALNUTS AND ALMONDS, AFTER THEIR KERNEL SKINS HAVE BEEN FORMED.¹⁷

MISHNAH 3. CAROBS [ARE SUBJECT TO] TITHES AFTER THEY FORM DARK SPOTS.¹⁸ SIMILARLY ALL BLACK-FINISHED FRUITS¹⁹ AFTER THEY FORM DARK SPOTS; PEARS AND CRUSTUMENIAN PEARS,²⁰ QUINCES,²¹ AND MEDLARS²² [ARE LIABLE TO TITHES] AFTER THEIR SURFACE BEGINS TO GROW SMOOTH.²³ SIMILARLY ALL WHITE FRUITS,²⁴ AFTER THEIR SURFACE BEGINS TO GROW SMOOTH; FENUGREEK [IS LIABLE TO TITHE, WHEN IT IS SO FAR ADVANCED] THAT THE SEEDS [CAN BE PLANTED AND] WILL GROW,²⁵ GRAIN AND OLIVES AFTER THEY ARE ONE-THIRD RIPE.²⁶

MISHNAH 4. WITH REGARD TO VEGETABLES,²⁷ CUCUMBERS, GOURDS, WATER-MELONS, CUCUMBER-MELONS,²⁸ APPLES AND CITRONS ARE LIABLE [TO TITHE], WHETHER GATHERED IN THE EARLIER OR LATER STAGES OF RIPENING.²⁹ R. SIMEON EXEMPTS THE CITRON IN THE EARLIER STAGES.³⁰ THE CONDITION IN WHICH BITTER ALMONDS ARE LIABLE [TO TITHE] IS EXEMPT IN THE CASE OF SWEET ALMONDS, AND THE CONDITION IN WHICH SWEET ALMONDS ARE LIABLE [TO TITHE] IS EXEMPT IN THE CASE OF BITTER ALMONDS.³¹

MISHNAH 5. WHEN ARE THE FRUITS FIXED TO BE TITHED?³² CUCUMBERS AND GOURDS [ARE LIABLE TO TITHE] AFTER THEIR FRINGE³³ FALLS OFF, OR IF THIS DOES NOT FALL OFF, AFTER [THE FRUIT] HAS BEEN PILED UP; MELONS SO SOON AS THEY BECOME SMOOTH,³⁴ AND IF THEY HAVE NOT BECOME SMOOTH, AFTER THEY ARE STORED AWAY;³⁵ VEGETABLES WHICH ARE TIED IN BUNDLES,³⁶ FROM THE TIME THEY ARE TIED UP IN BUNDLES; IF THEY ARE NOT TIED UP IN BUNDLES, AFTER THE VESSEL HAS BEEN FILLED WITH THEM;³⁷ IF THE VESSEL IS NOT TO BE FILLED WITH THEM, AFTER THERE HAS BEEN GATHERED ALL THAT HE WISHES TO GATHER. [PRODUCE WHICH IS PACKED IN] A BASKET [IS LIABLE TO TITHE] AFTER IT HAS BEEN COVERED;³⁸ IF IT IS NOT TO BE COVERED, AFTER A VESSEL IS FILLED; IF A VESSEL IS NOT TO BE FILLED, AFTER HE HAS GATHERED ALL HE REQUIRES. WHEN DOES THIS REGULATION APPLY?³⁹ WHEN A MAN BRINGS [THE PRODUCE] TO THE MARKET, BUT WHEN HE BRINGS IT TO HIS OWN HOUSE, HE MAY MAKE A CHANCE MEAL OF IT, UNTIL HE REACHES HIS HOUSE.

MISHNAH 6. DRIED SPLIT-POMEGRANATES, RAISINS AND CAROBS, ARE LIABLE [TO TITHE] AFTER THEY ARE STACKED; ONIONS, AFTER THEY ARE STRIPPED;⁴⁰ IF THEY ARE NOT STRIPPED, AFTER THEY ARE STACKED; GRAIN, AS SOON AS THE PILE HAS BEEN EVENED;⁴¹ IF IT IS NOT EVENED, AFTER IT HAS BEEN STACKED; PULSE, AFTER IT HAS BEEN SIFTED;⁴² IF IT IS NOT SIFTED, AFTER THE PILE HAS BEEN EVENED. EVEN AFTER THE PILE HAS BEEN EVENED, HE MAY [WITHOUT TITHING] TAKE OF THE TINY EARS,⁴³ FROM THE SIDES OF THE PILES, AND FROM THAT WHICH IS STILL IN THE HUSK, AND EAT.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 7. WINE [IS LIABLE TO TITHE] AFTER IT HAS BEEN SKIMMED,⁴⁵ BUT ALTHOUGH IT HAS BEEN SKIMMED, HE MAY TAKE FROM THE UPPER WINE-PRESS,⁴⁶ OR FROM THE DUCT,⁴⁷ AND DRINK THEREOF [WITHOUT GIVING TITHE]. OIL, AFTER IT HAS DRIPPED INTO THE TROUGH,⁴⁸ BUT EVEN AFTER IT HAS DRIPPED HE MAY STILL TAKE OF THE OIL FROM THE BALE,⁴⁹ OR FROM THE PULP [UNDER THE PRESS],⁵⁰ OR FROM BETWEEN THE BOARDS OF THE PRESS,⁵¹ [WITHOUT TITHING,] AND PUT THE OIL ON A CAKE,⁵² OR PLATE,⁵³ BUT NOT IN A DISH OR STEWPOT, WHILE THE CONTENTS THEREOF ARE BOILING.⁵⁴ R. JUDAH SAYS: HE MAY PUT IT INTO ANYTHING⁵⁵ SAVE IN TO THAT WHICH CONTAINS VINEGAR OR BRINE.⁵⁶

MISHNAH 8. A CAKE OF PRESSED FIGS [IS LIABLE TO TITHE] FROM THE MOMENT ITS SURFACE HAS BEEN SMOOTHED.⁵⁷ IT MAY BE SMOOTHED WITH [THE JUICE OF] UNTITHED FIGS OR GRAPES,⁵⁸ BUT R. JUDAH FORBIDS THIS. IF IT IS SMOOTHED WITH GRAPES, IT IS NOT SUSCEPTIBLE TO [RECEIVE] LEVITICAL UNCLEANNESS;⁵⁹ R. JUDAH, HOWEVER, SAYS, IT IS SUSCEPTIBLE.⁶⁰ DRIED FIGS [ARE LIABLE TO TITHE] AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN TRODDEN,⁶¹ AND [FIGS] STORED IN A BIN [ARE LIABLE TO TITHE] AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN PRESSED. IF ONE WAS TREADING [THE FIGS] INTO A JAR, OR PRESSING THEM IN A STORE BIN, AND THE CASK WAS BROKEN OR THE STORE BIN OPENED, IT IS NOT ALLOWED TO MAKE A CHANCE MEAL OF THEM; R. JOSE, HOWEVER, PERMITS THIS.

(1) V. Introduction. The ruling here also applies to terumah.

(2) This excludes e.g., madder, although in times of dire necessity both are used as food.

(3) In contradistinction to ownerless property, looked after by no private owner.

(4) This excludes such things as mushrooms and truffles, which are not deemed to be things growing from the soil, since they are not sown. In all these cases the ruling is deduced from Deut. XIV, 22, Thou shalt surely tithe all the produce of thy seed, identifying 'produce' with food; 'thy seed', with privately owned produce, and 'seed' with earth-sown produce.

(5) The whole of this paragraph refers to what are technically known as 'regular' meals in contradistinction to 'chance' meals, to which this ruling does not apply.

(6) As for example, all herbs which become fit for consumption as soon as they begin to ripen. The owner nevertheless withholds them from being gathered until they are fully ripe, so as to enable him to accumulate the maximum quantity of produce.

(7) Since they are considered as food, fit to be eaten, from the very beginning of their ripening. Lit., 'whether small or large'.

(8) As for example, certain kinds of fruit which grow on trees.

(9) Derived from Lev. XXVII, 30. From the seed of the earth, from the fruit of the tree, which is interpreted to mean that it is not to be considered food until it grows up and becomes fruit proper.

(10) Fruit, that is to say, which in the early stages of its growth is not considered a food, and which is also eaten at regular times.

(11) The commencement of the ripening is known as בוהל. Rashi: From the time their tips become white.

(12) They have reached that stage of ripeness when the berries appear from inside the husks. In the case of a cluster, if one berry has reached this measure of ripeness, the whole of the cluster is liable to tithe.

(13) When the eatable portion, the core, can be mashed under one's fingers.

(14) Lit., 'they cast a dough'. When they rise like dough.

(15) When there appears in the skin a sort of red vein.

(16) Lit., 'they form a store'. When the food is actually separated from the outer shell, and gives the appearance of something laid in a store-house.

(17) R. Judah refers to a thin skin nearest to the food, which does not form upon the fruit until after the completion of the ripening.

(18) They begin to darken at the completion of their ripening.

(19) This refers to all fruits which are black on the completion of their ripening, eg., the berries of the myrtle and thorn.

(20) Small pears resembling nuts. These have hair on them which needs smoothening.

(21) V. Kil. I, 4.

(22) A sort of crab-apple.

(23) After the hair upon them, which covers them in the earlier stages of ripening, falls out. These fruits in their early stages are covered with small hairs, like feathers, and as they ripen they gradually become bald, so that eventually when they are completely ripe, all their hair has fallen out.

(24) The law does not specifically apply only to those which are actually white, but it also includes those which are neither black nor red.

(25) Namely when it has become so complete in its ripeness that if it were seed, it would sprout forth. The method of testing to discover when it had reached this stage is by putting the plant in water.

(26) A third part of that which will eventually grow, or alternately, if he were to store them or in the case of grain to grind them) he would be able to produce from them, at that stage, one third of the amount which will be produced when they are fully ripe.

(27) The four species of vegetables enumerated here.

(28) An apple-shaped melon.

(29) Since both in their earlier and later stages they are considered to be food. Lit., 'whether large or small'.

(30) Since he holds that they are not eaten at this stage.

(31) Bitter almonds are gathered and eaten at their earlier stages, not at their later. With sweet almonds the reverse is the case.

(32) To forbid even a chance meal. Lit., 'when is their threshing-floor (condition) for tithes'. In the case of corn, the tithing-season begins after the produce has been stacked on the threshing-floor.

(33) In the early stages of ripening there is a woolly substance on their surface; when fully ripe this falls off.

(34) By the loss of their woolly substance on the surface.

(35) Lit 'made into a store'. When they have been spread out to be dried. Melons are not piled up but spread out.

(36) That which it is customary to sell in bundles.

(37) If a man customarily fills many vessels from his field, he may eat a chance meal until the last vessel has been filled.

(38) It was customary to cover the fruits with the leaf of a tree when taken to the market so that they should not wither.

(39) When do the above conditions concerning the season for tithing hold good?

(40) After the bad peel has been taken off.

(41) After the produce has been cleansed from its chaff, it is heaped up and levelled.

(42) Since it is usual to uproot the pulse with dust, it is therefore necessary to sift it in a sieve in order to cleanse it.

(43) Plucked ears of corn not well threshed.

(44) Since all these latter things are as yet not ready for tithe.

(45) From the time that he removes the kernels and the husks which rise to the surface of the wine on its fermenting.

(46) From the wine which has not yet gone into the press tank.

(47) Formed in the mouth of the wine-press from which the wine flows into the press tank. The wine which is still in the upper wine-press or in the duct is as yet not completely ready for use.

(48) The cavity into which the oil drips.

(49) The meaning of this Hebrew word is obscure; Jast. translates: 'A bale of loose texture containing the olive pulp to be pressed'. Bert.: 'A vessel made of ropes in which the olives are heaped up during the time they lay the press-beam upon them'. Tif. Yis: A perforated basket into which the pressed-out olives are placed when they are gathered together. The oil creeps and oozes out from the holes in the basket.

- (50) The upper millstone with which they grind the olives (Bert.). The stone placed in the basket to press upon the olives and to squeeze them (Tif. Yis.).
- (51) The oil which comes out from between the boards.
- (52) A small, thin and hot cake which, when taken out of the oven, used to be smoothed with oil over its face. This last statement is made to teach us that the cake is not considered in the category of 'cooked' dishes, since generally it is forbidden to eat a chance meal from all produce, fruits and vegetables, cooked by the fire.
- (53) A large dish upon which there is hot cooking.
- (54) Even though he has removed them from the fire.
- (55) He may put it into all boiling pots and dishes, after he has removed it from the fire, and it is still not liable to tithe.
- (56) Brine-water which issues from salted fish or meat. The sharpness of these two ingredients, vinegar and brine, aids considerably in the cooking process.
- (57) It is customary to smoothen its surface with juice in order to beautify it. Then, and then only, does the tithing stage begin.
- (58) Since juices used for smoothing purposes are considered of no consequence. R. Judah, however, holds the contrary view, and therefore, since their fruit is untithed, they are forbidden.
- (59) V. Lev. XI, 34, 38. This refers only to grapes and not to figs, since fig-juice does not render food susceptible to uncleanness.
- (60) The dispute between R. Judah and the other authorities is as to whether the juice is to be considered liquid or not.
- (61) The figs are dried and then are trodden with staves in a vessel, or are pressed with the hands in the store-house.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aseroth Chapter 2

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN WAS PASSING THROUGH THE STREET,¹ AND SAID 'TAKE YE OF MY FIGS', ONE MAY EAT AND BE EXEMPT FROM TITHE;² THEREFORE IF³ THEY BROUGHT THEM INTO THEIR HOUSES,⁴ THEY MUST GIVE THE PRIESTLY DUES AS IF THEY WERE CERTAINLY UNTITHED. [IF HE SAID] TAKE YE AND BRING INTO YOUR HOUSES',⁵ THEY MAY NOT MAKE A CHANCE MEAL OF THEM.⁶ THEREFORE, IF THEY BROUGHT THEM INTO THEIR HOUSES, THEY NEED TITHE THEM ONLY AS DEMAI.⁷

MISHNAH 2. IF MEN WERE SITTING IN A DOORWAY OR A SHOP, AND HE⁸ SAID, 'TAKE YE OF MY FIGS',⁹ THEY MAY EAT AND BE EXEMPT FROM TITHES,¹⁰ BUT THE OWNER OF THE DOORWAY, OR THE OWNER OF THE SHOP, IS LIABLE [TO GIVE TITHE]. R. JUDAH, HOWEVER, EXEMPTS HIM¹¹ UNLESS HE TURNS HIS FACE¹² OR CHANGES THE PLACE WHERE HE WAS SITTING [AND SELLING].¹³

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN BRINGS FRUIT FROM GALILEE TO JUDEA,¹⁴ OR IF HE GOES UP TO JERUSALEM, HE MAY EAT OF THEM,¹⁵ UNTIL HE ARRIVES AT THE PLACE TO WHICH HE INTENDS TO GO;¹⁶ AND SO, ALSO, IF HE RETURNS.¹⁷ R. MEIR, HOWEVER, SAYS: [HE MAY EAT] ONLY UNTIL HE REACHES THE PLACE WHERE HE INTENDS TO REST [ON THE SABBATH].¹⁸ BUT PEDLARS WHO GO ABOUT THE CITIES,¹⁹ MAY EAT,²⁰ UNTIL THEY REACH THE PLACE WHERE THEY INTEND STAYING OVER NIGHT.²¹ R. JUDAH SAYS: 'THE FIRST HOUSE [HE REACHES] IS HIS HOUSE'.²²

MISHNAH 4. IF ONE SET ASIDE THE TERUMAH FROM FRUITS BEFORE THEIR WORK WAS FINISHED,²³ R. ELIEZER SAYS: IT IS FORBIDDEN TO MAKE A CHANCE MEAL OF THEM,²⁴ BUT THE SAGES PERMIT IT²⁵ EXCEPT WHEN IT IS A BASKET OF FIGS. IF ONE SET ASIDE THE TERUMAH FROM A BASKET OF FIGS, R. SIMEON PERMITS IT,²⁶ BUT THE SAGES FORBID IT.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. IF A MAN SAYS TO HIS FELLOW: 'HERE IS THIS ISSAR,²⁸ GIVE ME FIVE FIGS FOR IT', HE MAY NOT EAT OF [THEM] UNTIL HE HAS TITHED THEM;²⁹ SO R. MEIR. R. JUDAH SAYS: IF HE ATE THEM ONE BY ONE, HE IS EXEMPT, BUT IF SEVERAL

TOGETHER,³⁰ HE IS LIABLE [TO TITHE.] R. JUDAH SAID: IT HAPPENED IN A ROSE-GARDEN IN JERUSALEM THAT THERE WERE FIGS BEING SOLD THREE OR FOUR FOR AN ISSAR,³¹ AND NEITHER TERUMAH NOR TITHE WAS EVER GIVEN FROM IT.³²

MISHNAH 6. IF A MAN SAID TO HIS FELLOW: 'HERE IS AN ISSAR FOR TEN FIGS WHICH I MAY SELECT FOR ME',³³ HE MAY SELECT AND EAT;³⁴ [IF HE SAID] 'FOR A CLUSTER OF GRAPES WHICH I MAY SELECT FOR ME', HE MAY PICK GRAPES FROM THE CLUSTER AND EAT;³⁵ [IF HE SAID], 'FOR A POMEGRANATE WHICH I MAY SELECT FOR ME', HE MAY SPLIT³⁶ [THE POMEGRANATE] AND EAT [A SLICE]; [IF HE SAID] 'FOR A WATER-MELON, WHICH I MAY SELECT FOR ME', HE MAY SLICE AND EAT;³⁷ IF HE, HOWEVER, SAID 'FOR THESE TWENTY FIGS', OR 'FOR THESE TWO CLUSTERS', OR 'FOR THESE TWO WATER-MELONS', HE MAY EAT THEM IN HIS USUAL WAY AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE], BECAUSE HE BOUGHT THEM WHILST THEY WERE STILL ATTACHED TO THE GROUND.³⁸

MISHNAH 7. IF A MAN HIRED A LABOURER TO HELP HIM HARVEST FIGS,³⁹ AND HE [THE LABOURER] SAID UNTO HIM 'ON CONDITION THAT I MAY EAT THE FIGS', HE MAY EAT THEM AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE].⁴⁰ IF HE, HOWEVER, SAID, 'ON CONDITION THAT I AND MY SON MAY EAT',⁴¹ OR 'THAT MY SON MAY EAT OF THEM IN LIEU OF MY RECEIVING A WAGE',⁴² HE MAY EAT AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE], BUT IF HIS SON EATS HE IS LIABLE. IF HE SAID: 'ON CONDITION THAT I MAY EAT OF THEM DURING THE TIME OF THE FIG HARVEST, AND AFTER THE FIG HARVEST', DURING THE TIME OF THE FIG HARVEST HE MAY EAT AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE], BUT IF HE EATS AFTER THE FIG HARVEST HE IS LIABLE, SINCE HE DOES NOT EAT OF THEM AFTER THE MANNER PRESCRIBED BY THE TORAH.⁴³ THIS IS THE GENERAL RULE: ONE WHO EATS AFTER THE MANNER PRESCRIBED BY THE TORAH IS EXEMPT [FROM TITHE], AND ONE WHO DOES NOT EAT AFTER THE MANNER PRESCRIBED BY THE TORAH IS LIABLE.⁴⁴

MISHNAH 8. IF A MAN IS DOING [HIRED LABOUR] AMONG POOR FIGS, HE MAY NOT EAT OF GOOD FIGS,⁴⁵ AND IF HE IS DOING [HIRED LABOUR] AMONG GOOD FIGS, HE MAY NOT EAT OF THE POOR FIGS, BUT HE MAY RESTRAIN HIMSELF UNTIL HE REACHES THE PLACE WHERE THERE ARE THE BETTER FIGS,⁴⁶ AND THEN HE MAY EAT. IF A MAN EXCHANGES WITH HIS FELLOW EITHER HIS FRESH FIGS FOR HIS FRESH FIGS,⁴⁷ HIS DRIED FIGS FOR HIS DRIED FIGS,⁴⁸ HIS FRESH FIGS FOR HIS DRIED FIGS, THEN HE IS LIABLE TO GIVE TITHE.⁴⁹ R. JUDAH, HOWEVER, SAYS: IF A MAN EXCHANGES [HIS FIGS] FOR [HIS FELLOW'S] FRESH FIGS HE IS LIABLE, BUT [IF FOR THE OTHER'S] DRIED FIGS HE IS EXEMPT.⁵⁰

(1) The statement speaks of an 'am ha-arez who is suspected of not having given his tithe, and also of fruit which is not being taken to be sold.

(2) Because we can say they have not been taken indoors, and therefore, the time has not yet arrived when they are liable to tithe; v. supra I, 5.

(3) Since he uses only this phrase 'Take' in his statement, implying a chance meal.

(4) The man who gave them had not tithed them, thinking they were going to eat them in the street, which does not require tithing. From the moment, however, that they are taken indoors, they are liable to tithe. In this case, they give the tithe of tithe which the Levite owes to the priest (תרומת מעשר) v. Num. XVIII, 26; the first tithe (מעשר ראשון) belonging to the Levite; the second tithe (מעשר שני) to be consumed by the owner in Jerusalem (v. Deut. XIV, 23) they may keep for themselves.

(5) Thus indicating that they may be eaten, even in the house, as having been tithed, after having become liable to tithe.

(6) The man is believed in so far that the produce had reached the stage when it became liable to tithe, and consequently forbidden even for a chance meal, but he is not believed that the tithe had been taken from them.

(7) v. Glos.

(8) The owner of the doorway or the ship, who was carrying fruit.

(9) Which I have in the street; because if they were in the doorway or shop they would become liable, as if they were in the house.

(10) Since a man's house renders produce liable to tithe only as far as he is concerned.

(11) R. Judah holds that since a doorway or shop is a place where he will be ashamed to eat, it is not regarded as a courtyard or house which renders produce liable to tithe.

(12) Enabling him to eat without feeling ashamed.

(13) Even though his face is turned towards his buyers, by changing his position he indicates his desire to find a place where he can eat unashamed.

(14) He gathered them in his field in Galilee with the intention of taking them up to Judea and selling them there.

(15) A chance meal without tithing.

(16) Even if he stops on the way, he is still exempt from giving tithe, because it is his intention to sell them only in Judea.

(17) If before he reached Judea he decided to take them back to Galilee, he may make a chance meal of them until he reaches Galilee again.

(18) That is to say until he has brought them into the house where he intends to rest on Sabbath, and as soon as he reaches his destination, and even though Sabbath has not yet arrived, he is liable to give tithe.

(19) To sell spices and other perfumery of women; and they carry with them at the same time fruit which has been given to them, but which has not yet been tithed.

(20) A chance meal, until they reach their destination, and then the fruit is liable to tithe.

(21) He is only liable when they have been actually brought into the house.

(22) As regards the law of tithes. Because as soon as the man reaches the city he will enter the first house he can find with the intention of staying there. Therefore, even although ultimately he does not settle with the owner of the house to stay in this particular house, he has, by bringing his fruit into this house, made it liable to tithe.

(23) The season has not yet been reached when they are liable to tithe, as defined supra I.

(24) Until all the tithes have been separated. because he holds the view that the setting aside of terumah fixes the liability of fruit tithes, even though they are not yet fully finished.

(25) They do not accept R. Eliezer's principle.

(26) Because the tithing season in this case begins only after all the fruit has been gathered or as much as is required; V. supra I, 5.

(27) Because once the terumah has been set aside from the basket, it is indicative that all that is needful has been gathered.

(28) V. Glos.

(29) Because the sale fixes liability to tithing.

(30) If the owner of the garden gives him two or more, at the same time, he is liable to tithe, because these constitute for him an immature threshing-floor.

(31) Here the seller used to gather them, since he would allow no buyers to enter the garden on account of the roses.

(32) Since they eat them one by one.

(33) Which I may select and gather from the trees.

(34) He may pluck them one by one, and eat without tithing. If, however, he plucked two together he is liable to give tithe.

(35) He may gather the single berries from the cluster which he has chosen and eat. The cluster itself must be attached to the ground, otherwise even under these conditions he is liable.

(36) While the pomegranate is still attached to the ground he may eat it slice by slice

(37) He may cut off separate thin slices from the fruit whilst it is attached in the ground

(38) Since he bought that which was attached to the ground his is the same ruling as that if the owner of the garden who may eat a chance meal until he reaches his house (v. supra I, 5). For the sale does not fix the liability to tithe in that which is attached to the ground.

(39) Either to cut them or to store them for drying.

(40) The condition does not invalidate anything normally observed, since even without this stipulation he is legally entitled to eat, according to Deut. XXIII, 25: 'If thou shalt come to the vineyard of thy friend and thou shalt eat grapes' etc., which verse refers to a workman. It is therefore not like a sale and does not therefore fix liability to tithing.

(41) The eating by the son constitutes a sale and therefore fixes the liability in tithing.

(42) In lieu of wages for my work, and instead of my eating.

(43) Since his status is then not one of a workman, he eats on the basis of a condition, and hence it is like a sale.

(44) V. B.M. 87b as to what work entitles the labourer to eat.

(45) Deduced from Deut. XXIII, 25. V. supra p. 264, n. 6.

(46) The labourer who harvests both amongst poor and good figs restrains himself from eating whilst working amongst the poor figs, and then when he arrives at the good figs, he may eat even the amount due to him from the previous poor figs.

(47) Lit., 'the one to eat, and the one to eat'. If he says, you eat my fresh figs and I yours.

(48) Lit., 'the one to store' etc.. A similar stipulation with regard to figs spread out to dry.

(49) Since the exchange is considered equivalent to the sale.

(50) R. Judah holds that a sale does not fix liability to tithe in regard to anything the work of which is unfinished, as in the case of figs stored for drying.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aseroth Chapter 3

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN WAS TAKING HIS FIGS THROUGH HIS COURTYARD TO BE DRIED,¹ HIS CHILDREN AND THE OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS HOUSEHOLD² MAY EAT [OF THEM] AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE].³ THE LABOURERS⁴ [WHO WORK] WITH HIM MAY EAT,⁵ AND BE EXEMPT⁶ SO LONG AS HE IS NOT OBLIGED TO MAINTAIN THEM;⁷ IF, HOWEVER, HE IS OBLIGED TO MAINTAIN THEM,⁸ THEY MAY NOT EAT.⁹

MISHNAH 2. IF A MAN BROUGHT HIS LABOURERS INTO THE FIELD,¹⁰ SO LONG AS HE IS NOT OBLIGED TO MAINTAIN THEM, THEY MAY EAT AND BE EXEMPT FROM TITHES.¹¹ IF, HOWEVER, HE IS OBLIGED TO MAINTAIN THEM THEY MAY EAT OF THE FIGS ONE AT A TIME,¹² BUT NOT FROM THE BASKET, NOR FROM THE LARGE VESSELS, NOR FROM THE DRYING SHED.¹³

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN HIRED A WORKMAN TO PREPARE HIS OLIVES¹⁴ AND HE SAID TO HIM, 'ON CONDITION THAT I MAY EAT THE OLIVES',¹⁵ HE MAY EAT OF THEM ONE AT A TIME AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE]. IF, HOWEVER, HE ATE SEVERAL TOGETHER HE IS LIABLE. [IF HE HAD BEEN HIRED] TO WEED OUT ONIONS,¹⁶ AND HE SAID TO HIM, 'ON CONDITION THAT I MAY EAT THE VEGETABLES', HE MAY PLUCK LEAF BY LEAF,¹⁷ AND EAT [WITHOUT TITHING]; IF, HOWEVER, HE ATE SEVERAL TOGETHER, HE IS LIABLE [TO GIVE TITHE].¹⁸

MISHNAH 4. IF A MAN FOUND CUT FIGS¹⁹ ON THE ROAD, OR EVEN BESIDE A FIELD [WHERE CUT FIGS] HAVE BEEN SPREAD [TO DRY] (AND SO, TOO, IF A FIG TREE OVERHANGS THE ROAD, AND FIGS WERE FOUND BENEATH IT). THEY ARE ALLOWED [AS NOT COMING WITHIN THE LAW] OF ROBBERY,²⁰ AND THEY ARE EXEMPT FROM TITHE;²¹ OLIVES AND CAROBS, HOWEVER, ARE LIABLE.²² IF A MAN FOUND DRIED FIGS, THEN IF THE MAJORITY OF PEOPLE HAD ALREADY TRODDEN [THEIR FIGS].²³ HE IS LIABLE [TO TITHE], BUT IF NOT HE IS EXEMPT. IF A MAN FOUND SLICES OF FIG-CAKE²⁴ HE IS LIABLE [TO TITHE]. SINCE IT IS OBVIOUS THEY COME FROM SOMETHING [THE WORK IN CONNECTION THEREWITH IS] FULLY COMPLETED. WITH CAROBS,²⁵ IF THEY HAD NOT YET BEEN ON THE TOP OF THE ROOF, HE MAY TAKE SOME DOWN FOR THE CATTLE²⁶ AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE]. SINCE HE MAY RETURN THAT WHICH IS LEFT OVER.²⁷

MISHNAH 5. WHICH COURTYARD IS IT WHICH MAKES [THE PRODUCE] LIABLE TO TITHE.²⁸ R. ISHMAEL SAYS: THE TYRIAN YARD [WITH A LODGE AT THE ENTRANCE].²⁹

WHEREIN WATCH IS KEPT OVER THE VESSELS. R. AKIBA SAYS: ANY YARD WHICH ONE PERSON MAY OPEN AND ANOTHER MAY SHUT [AS THEY PLEASE],³⁰ IS EXEMPT. R. NEHEMIAH SAYS: ANY YARD IN WHICH A MAN IS NOT ASHAMED TO EAT, IS LIABLE. R. JOSE SAYS: ANY YARD INTO WHICH A PERSON³¹ MAY ENTER, AND ONE DOES NOT SAY UNTO HIM, WHAT ARE YOU SEEKING? IS EXEMPT.³² R. JUDAH SAYS: 'IF THERE ARE TWO YARDS ONE WITHIN THE OTHER, THE INNER ONE MAKES [THE PRODUCE] LIABLE [TO TITHE], THE OUTER ONE IS EXEMPT'.³³

MISHNAH 6. ROOFS DO NOT RENDER [PRODUCE] LIABLE, EVEN THOUGH THEY BELONG TO A COURTYARD WHICH RENDERS IT LIABLE.³⁴ A GATEWAY,³⁵ PORTICO,³⁶ OR BALCONY,³⁷ IS CONSIDERED [IN THE SAME CATEGORY] AS THE COURTYARD [TO WHICH IT BELONGS]; IF THIS MAKES [PRODUCE] LIABLE [TO TITHE] SO DO THEY, AND IF IT DOES NOT, THEY DO NOT.

MISHNAH 7. CONE-SHAPED HUTS,³⁸ THE STORES IN TURRETS,³⁹ AND SHEDS IN THE FIELD⁴⁰ DO NOT RENDER [PRODUCE] LIABLE; THE LODGE OF GENESARETH GARDENS,⁴¹ EVEN THOUGH IT CONTAINS HANDMILL AND POULTRY,⁴² DOES NOT RENDER [PRODUCE] LIABLE. AS FOR THE POTTER'S HUT,⁴³ THE INNER PART RENDERS [PRODUCE] LIABLE, THE OUTER PART DOES NOT. R. JOSE SAYS: ANYTHING WHICH IS NOT BOTH A SUMMER AND WINTER DWELLING DOES NOT RENDER [PRODUCE] LIABLE [TO TITHES].⁴⁴ AS REGARDS THE FESTIVE BOOTHS USED ON THE FESTIVAL, R. JUDAH SAYS: THIS ALSO RENDERS [PRODUCE] LIABLE TO TITHE,⁴⁵ BUT THE SAGES SAY: IT DOES NOT.

MISHNAH 8. IF A FIG TREE STOOD IN A COURTYARD,⁴⁶ A MAN MAY EAT THE FIGS FROM IT SINGLY AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE], BUT IF HE TOOK TWO OR MORE TOGETHER HE IS LIABLE. R. SIMEON SAYS: [EVEN] IF HE HAS [AT ONE AND THE SAME TIME] ONE IN HIS RIGHT HAND, ONE IN HIS LEFT HAND AND ONE IN HIS MOUTH, HE IS STILL EXEMPT.⁴⁷ IF HE ASCENDED TO THE TOP [OF IT],⁴⁸ HE MAY FILL HIS BOSOM AND EAT.⁴⁹

MISHNAH 9. IF A VINE WAS PLANTED IN A COURTYARD, A MAN MAY TAKE A WHOLE CLUSTER.⁵⁰ SIMILARLY WITH A POMEGRANATE, OR A MELON. SO R. TARFON. R. AKIBA SAYS: HE SHOULD PICK SINGLE BERRIES FROM THE CLUSTER,⁵¹ OR SPLIT THE POMEGRANATE INTO SLICES, OR CUT SLICES OF MELON. IF CORIANDER WAS SOWN IN A COURTYARD HE MAY PLUCK LEAF BY LEAF AND EAT [WITHOUT TITHING], BUT IF HE ATE THEM TOGETHER HE IS LIABLE [TO GIVE TITHE]. SAVORY AND HYSSOP, AND THYME⁵² WHICH ARE IN THE COURTYARD,⁵³ IF KEPT WATCH OVER, ARE LIABLE TO TITHE.⁵⁴

MISHNAH 10. IF A FIG TREE STOOD IN A COURTYARD, AND OVERHUNG A GARDEN, A MAN MAY EAT AFTER HIS CUSTOMARY FASHION⁵⁵ AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE]. IF, HOWEVER, IT STOOD IN THE GARDEN AND OVERHUNG THE COURTYARD, A MAN MAY EAT [THE FIGS] SINGLY⁵⁶ AND BE EXEMPT, BUT IF HE TAKES TWO OR MORE TOGETHER, HE IS LIABLE [TO TITHES]. IF IT STOOD IN THE LAND [OF ISRAEL] AND OVERHUNG [THE TERRITORY] OUTSIDE THE LAND, OR IF IT STOOD IN [THE TERRITORY] OUTSIDE THE LAND, AND OVERHUNG THE LAND, IN ALL THESE CASES [THE LAW IS] DECIDED ACCORDING TO THE POSITION OF THE ROOT.⁵⁷ AND AS REGARDS HOUSES IN WALLED CITIES, EVERYTHING IS DECIDED ACCORDING TO THE POSITION OF THE ROOT.⁵⁸ BUT AS REGARDS CITIES OF REFUGE, EVERYTHING IS DECIDED [ALSO] ACCORDING TO THE LOCATION OF THE BRANCHES.⁵⁹ AND ALSO IN WHAT CONCERNS JERUSALEM,⁶⁰ EVERYTHING IS [ALSO] DECIDED BY THE

LOCATION OF THE BRANCHES.⁶¹

- (1) He was taking them through his courtyard to the place where they were to be dried.
- (2) His wife.
- (3) Because a courtyard does not fix the liability to tithing any produce the work of which is not complete. Nevertheless he himself is still forbidden to make a chance meal of them, without tithing, except in the place where they are to be dried, where it is evident that the work in connection with the figs has not been completed.
- (4) Whom he has hired to take the fruit through the courtyard. Then it is a work which does not entitle them to eat; v. supra II, 7.
- (5) If he offered the fruit to them.
- (6) A gift, unlike a sale, does not fix liability to tithing; v. supra II, 2.
- (7) Lit., 'their food is not upon him'. So long as he has not stipulated that he will maintain them.
- (8) He stipulated he would maintain them.
- (9) For this is like a sale.
- (10) For some other work, and not to gather fruits, and therefore, not entitled Biblically to eat.
- (11) If he gave unto them, because a gift does not follow the same ruling as a sale.
- (12) Which is a casual meal and permissible even in the case of a sale, unless the work in connection with the produce had been completed.
- (13) In these cases it is treated as produce taken to the market, which is in itself sufficient to fix 'liability to tithing'; v. supra I, 5.
- (14) To hoe beneath the olives, but not to gather, and therefore not entitled to eat according to the Biblical law.
- (15) This is equivalent to a sale.
- (16) To weed out the bad herbs which grow beneath the onions. This also does not entitle him to eat Biblically.
- (17) Singly, from that which is joined to the ground.
- (18) The combination of several together constitutes a kind of threshing-floor and fixes liability to tithing; v. supra II, 5.
- (19) קציצות, figs partly dried. The development in the growth of figs is as follows: When they are plucked from the tree and are still juicy they are called in Hebrew תאנים; after this, when they are laid upon mats of reed grass to be dried, and their surface contracts a little when they begin to dry they are called קציעות or קציצות. Then when they are altogether dried they are called גרוגרות, and finally, when they are trodden into a round cake they are called דבילה. The vessel in which the figs are dried is called מוקצה.
- (20) Because when a fig falls it is spoilt and the owners have therefore disclaimed ownership from it. Similarly, where the figs are found on the road, it is assumed the owner has surrendered his ownership of them.
- (21) As all ownerless produce.
- (22) It is considered robbery because the owners do not give it up; moreover its appearance proves that it fell from this tree; but when a fig falls it is spoilt, and it is not known from which tree it fell.
- (23) If the majority of the inhabitants of that city had already trodden their dried figs in their fields, we can see, therefore, that these are also from the trodden ones, and therefore have become liable to tithe, and this liability remains even when the produce becomes ownerless.
- (24) After the round cake has been trodden, it is divided up into many slices.
- (25) This does not refer to a find, but to the case where a man had carobs on his roof. Since it was his intention to bring them up on to this roof in order to dry them, therefore their work is not complete, and their liability to tithe is not fixed by the courtyard.
- (26) Though they are already on the roof, provided they have not been thoroughly dried, and not yet heaped up there for storing (Tif. Yis.).
- (27) To the place where he spreads them out to dry; even if he has brought down much for the cattle, he is nevertheless exempt.
- (28) Which like a house determines the tithe brought there.
- (29) In the province of Tyre there sat a watchman at the entrance to the courtyard (cf. Isa. XXIII, 8). Because all the inhabitants of Tyre were princes and dwelt in royal residences, therefore out of respect for them, there was also a lodge to their court in which sat a watchman (Tif. Yis.).
- (30) I.e., in a court in which there are two houses for two men, and where one opens the entrance of the court, the second may come in and close it; similarly where one locks it, the second may object and open it, such a court is 'not well-guarded’.

(31) A stranger.

(32) Even though he is not ashamed to eat in it.

(33) Since access is gained to the inner one through the outer one, the latter is not considered ‘well guarded’.

(34) Even though he has brought the produce up to the roof by the way of the courtyard, it is nevertheless not liable to tithe, since at the time he brought them into the courtyard it was his intention to bring them up, and to eat them on the roof.

(35) Near the entrance of the courtyard.

(36) Exedra, a covered place in front of the house surrounded by three walls.

(37) A gallery from which one descends by a ladder to the courtyard.

(38) They have no roof, but the walls at the top touch one another and then gradually broaden downwards.

(39) Sort of network arrangement in the field, to store therein the fruits. Often used as a station for travellers.

(40) A booth erected in the summer and generally in the days of the sun as a shade. A shed for stacks in the field.

(41) The district of the Sea of Galilee, where the fruits are many and good, and its inhabitants make booths in which to dwell during the entire season of the fruits, which means actually the greater part of the year.

(42) Which indicates that this is their dwelling place day and night.

(43) It has two booths, one within the other; in the outer one he makes dishes etc. and sells them, and in the inner one, where he lives, he keeps and stores them.

(44) Consequently, since the potter does not live in the inner booth in the rainy season, it does not render produce liable.

(45) He holds the opinion that since the booth is a regular abode it fixes liability to tithing. The law was not according to R. Judah.

(46) Of a kind which renders produce liable for tithing.

(47) Even three taken in this manner are not considered as taken together, and are allowed.

(48) The fig-tree.

(49) Only at the top of the tree. He is allowed to eat so long as he does not descend into the courtyard.

(50) He may eat after his customary fashion, and he need not pick single berries only nor take separate slices of pomegranate and melon.

(51) Whilst it is still joined to the soil.

(52) Or, organum.

(53) It is usual for these plants to grow in gardens etc., without being sown; v. Nid. 51b.

(54) Otherwise they are ownerless property since it is their custom to grow without being sown, and exempt from tithes.

(55) From the branch which overhangs the garden.

(56) From that branch which overhangs the courtyard.

(57) This follows the principle laid down that the branches always comply with the same conditions as the root, which is the source from which the tree grows.

(58) V. Lev. XXV, 29ff, and ‘Ar. 31aff, Whether or not the tree is included in the law depends on whether the roots are within or outside the bounds of the walled city.

(59) If there is a tree the branch of which is within the area allocated to the city of refuge, and the root outside the area, as soon as the murderer reaches the rout, though it is outside the area, the avenger of blood may not kill him; v. Mak. 12a — b.

(60) As regards second tithe which may not be taken out of Jerusalem once it has entered the city (v. M. Sh. III, 5, 7) and the holy sacrifices which must be consumed within the wall of Jerusalem.

(61) We adopt the more stringent ruling, as is done in what appertains to the cities of refuge.

Mishna - Mas. Ma'aseroth Chapter 4

MISHNAH 1. IF A MAN PICKLED,¹ STEWED,² OR SALTED³ [PRODUCE].⁴ HE IS LIABLE⁵ [TO GIVE TITHE]; IF HE HID [PRODUCE] IN THE GROUND,⁶ HE IS EXEMPT.⁷ IF HE DIPPED IT [WHILE YET] IN THE FIELD,⁸ HE IS EXEMPT. IF HE BRUISED OLIVES⁹ SO THAT THE ACRID SAP MAY COME OUT OF THEM, HE IS EXEMPT. IF A MAN SQUEEZED OLIVES AGAINST HIS SKIN,¹⁰ HE IS EXEMPT; IF HOWEVER, HE SQUEEZED THEM AND PUT THEM INTO HIS HAND,¹¹ HE IS LIABLE. HE THAT SKIMS [WINE PUT IN] A [COLD]¹²

DISH¹³ IS EXEMPT.¹⁴ BUT [IF WINE IS PUT] IN AN [EMPTY] POT, HE IS LIABLE BECAUSE IT MAY BE CONSIDERED AS A SMALL VAT.¹⁵

MISHNAH 2. IF CHILDREN¹⁶ HAVE HIDDEN FIGS [IN THE FIELD] FOR THE SABBATH AND THEY FORGOT TO TITHE THEM,¹⁷ THEY MUST NOT BE EATEN¹⁸ AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF THE SABBATH UNTIL THEY HAVE BEEN TITHED.¹⁹ IN THE CASE OF A BASKET OF FRUITS FOR THE SABBATH,²⁰ BETH SHAMMAI EXEMPT IT FROM TITHE; BUT BETH HILLEL RENDER IT LIABLE.²¹ R. JUDAH SAYS: ALSO HE WHO SELECTS A BASKETFUL OF FIGS TO SEND AS A PRESENT TO HIS FRIEND,²² MUST NOT EAT OF THEM, UNTIL THEY HAVE BEEN TITHED.

MISHNAH 3. IF A MAN TOOK OLIVES FROM THE VAT,²³ HE MAY DIP THEM SINGLY IN SALT, AND EAT THEM;²⁴ IF, HOWEVER, HE SALTED THEM, AND PUT THEM IN FRONT OF HIM,²⁵ HE IS LIABLE [TO GIVE TITHE]. R. ELIEZER SAID: [IF AN UNCLEAN PERSON TOOK THEM OUT] FROM A CLEAN VAT HE IS LIABLE;²⁶ FROM AN UNCLEAN [VAT]. HE IS EXEMPT BECAUSE HE IS ABLE TO RESTORE THAT WHICH IS LEFT OVER.

MISHNAH 4. ONE MAY DRINK [WINE] OUT OF THE WINEPRESS,²⁷ WHETHER²⁸ [IT IS MIXED] WITH HOT OR COLD WATER, AND BE EXEMPT [FROM TITHE]; SO R. MEIR. R. ELIEZER, THE SON OF R. ZADOK, HOWEVER, RENDERS THIS LIABLE;²⁹ WHILST THE SAGES SAY: IF MIXED WITH HOT WATER IT IS LIABLE [TO TITHE]. BUT WITH COLD WATER, IT IS EXEMPT.³⁰

MISHNAH 5. HE WHO HUSKS BARLEY MAY HUSK EACH [GRAIN] SINGLY AND EAT³¹ [WITHOUT TITHING], BUT IF HE HUSKED AND PUT THEM INTO HIS HAND, HE IS LIABLE [TO TITHE].³² HE WHO RUBS PARCHED EARS OF WHEAT³³ MAY BLOW OUT [THE CHAFF OF THE WHEAT] FROM HAND TO HAND AND EAT,³⁴ BUT IF HE BLOWS AND PUTS THE GRAIN IN HIS LAP HE IS LIABLE. IF CORIANDER WAS SOWN FOR THE SAKE OF THE SEED, THE PLANT³⁵ IS EXEMPT [FROM TITHE]. BUT IF SOWN FOR THE SAKE OF THE PLANT THEN BOTH THE SEED AND THE PLANT MUST BE TITHED. R. ELIEZER SAID: AS FOR DILL, TITHE MUST BE GIVEN FROM THE SEED AND THE PLANT, AND THE PODS. BUT THE SAGES, HOWEVER, SAY: BOTH THE SEEDS AND PLANT ARE TITHED ONLY IN THE CASE OF PEPPERWORT AND ERUCA.

MISHNAH 6. RABBAN GAMALIEL³⁶ SAID: SHOOTS³⁷ OF FENUGREEK, OF MUSTARD, AND OF WHITE BEANS ARE LIABLE [TO TITHE].³⁸ R. ELIEZER SAYS: AS FOR THE CAPER-TREE, TITHES MUST BE GIVEN FROM THE SHOOTS.³⁹ THE CAPERBERRIES AND THE CAPER FLOWER.⁴⁰ R. AKIBA SAYS: ONLY THE CAPERBERRIES ARE TITHED SINCE THEY [ALONE] COUNT AS FRUIT.

(1) Olives or vegetables in vinegar or in wine.

(2) השולק This is a more thorough preparation than mere boiling.

(3) Many vegetables, olives etc. together.

(4) Var. lec. add: 'while yet in the field'.

(5) Any one of these acts fixed liability to tithing.

(6) Fruits which have not completely ripened on the tree are hidden in the earth, where, by means of the warmth, they ripen.

(7) I.e., he may take of it 'a chance meal'.
